Class PN1993

Book .M88

Scanned from the collections of
The Library of Congress

Packard Campus for Audio Visual Conservation
www.loc.gov/avconservation

Vol. 36, No. 1 April 6, 1918 Price 15 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907

TRADE MARK
Paramount Pictures
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
NEW YORK
TRADE MARK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Copyright 1917 by the Chalmers Publishing Company.

Chalmers Publishing Company 516 Fifth Ave. New York

With wonderful Priscilla Dean in the title Role—Joseph Girard as "The Doctor"—Ashton Dearholt as "The Husband" and Evelyn Selbie as "The Housekeeper."

Based on the amazing novel "THE WHITE CAT" by the celebrated fiction writer, Gelett Burgess—read by thousands all over America.

Produced by

ELMER CLIFTON

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO., Largest Film Manufacturing Company in the Universe, Carl Laemmle, President, 1600 Broadway, New York.

4

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

565
1053

VOLUME XXXVI

April—June, 1918

J. P. CHALMERS
Founder

PUBLISHED BY

CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.

516 Fifth Avenue, New York

PN1990
.M88

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

VOLUME XXXVI April—June, 1918

INDEX TO CONTENTS

A

Active Work for Film Exporters.....1821
Adding to the Picture.....1406
Adolfi, John G., Joins World Pictures..... 72
Advertising Essentials 74
Advertising for Exhibitors, by Epes Winthrop Sargent.....83, 237, 386, 534, 689, 845, 994, 1133, 1281, 1428, 1560, 1708, 1834
Advertising Men Enter Reissue Controversy 1845
Affiliated Begins Soon, Says Pettijohn.....1696
Affiliated Distributors Are Incorporated.....1003
Affiliated Increases Capitalization.....1295
Affiliated, No Stock Salesmen for.....1440
Affiliated Units, Many, Elect Directors....1850
Aiding the Exhibitor.....1400
Airdomes, Few Will Open in Louisville....1462
Airdomes Find Daylight Saving a Problem.. 424
Airdomes Go Well Near Mother Theater...1751
Alameda, New Theater Opens in..... 890
Alberta Has New Ticket Tax.....1124
All Ready for the Liberty Drive..... 229
Allen, Mr., Joins Universal Staff..... 397
Allen Promoted by Famous Players.....1156
Allens Getting a Long Chain of Theaters...1026
Allens Have Two More Canadian Theaters..1882
Allens' Program Shift, Wide Interest in...1689
Allied Amusement Association Meets.....1843
Allied Is Granted Temporary Injunction.... 374
Allied Theaters Company (New) Started... 577
Always a Steady Demand..... 969
Amateur Afternoons at World Studios.....1125
American Films Kill German Propoganda..1822
American Women, To Hold Up, to China...1553
Amusements Proved to Be War Essential...1547
An Important Disclaimer..... 969
Anderson, Carl, Promises Splendid Plays.. 69
Anderson, Ind., Prepares License Ordinance.1464
Aoki in Hayakawa Picture.....1296
Are Exhibitors Demonstrating Value..... 385
Are We Advancing?.....1262
Arnold, Sylvia, Newcomer..... 230
Arrow Film Corporation Handling "Finger of Justice" 1740
Artcraft Wins in Hart Suit..... 71
Astor Market Becomes Symphony Theater.. 63
Atlantans Attend Chicago Convention.....1404
Atlas Film Entertains Boston Movie Club..1878
Australian Film Distributors Optimistic....1553

B

Back Horstmann for President.....1849
Baggot, King, Gets Ovation in Rochester, N. Y. 373
Bailey, William N.....1585
Ballyhoo, The Expenseless..... 828
Barker, Reginald, at Work.....1829
Barrymore, Jack, Is Again with Paramount.1294
Bassett, Russell, Veteran Actor, Dead.....1126
Betwixt and Between..... 830
Big Days These for Western Theaters..... 683
Binney, Josh, Makes a Find..... 837
Binney to Make Two-Reel Comedies..... 680
Block Visits Goldwyn Studios..... 981
Blumenthal Challenges Critics..... 224
Board of Review Holds Annual Luncheon... 970
Boom O'Donnell at Testimonial Luncheon... 984
Boston Convention Committees Appointed... 974
Boston Exchanges, Girls of, Form Club....1459
Boston Exposition Pushing Plans for..... 65
Boston's Cadman Square Has Premiere.....1266
Boston's Eyes Turns Toward Screen Players. 737
Brady Sends Call for Final Figures..... 676
Brett, Tom, Announces Comedies..... 676
Brooklyn Exhibitors Hold Regular Session.. 66
Brooklyn to Have Noted Screen Theater...1584
Brooklyn's Biggest Picture House Opens May 1 701
Buhler Is Managing Director of Stanley...1586
Business and the Box Office.....1688

C

Call for Screen Players for "Over There"..1582
Call the Game.....699
Calnay, James, Caught in Galveston.....1579
Canada, All Theaters Show Food Films..... 735
Canada, Business Conditions in, Favorable.1178
Canada, New Producing Company in..... 255
Canada, Theaters Reopening All Over..... 684
Canada Watching Use of Light..... 553
Canada's Large Use of Instructive Films... 706
Canadian Exhibitors Choose an Organizer..1694
Canadian Film Business Upset.....1298
Canadian Sabbatarians Active..... 551
Canadians Give Dinner to Richardson..... 707
Canadians Talk of National Organization..1404
Capitol Society Sees "My Own U. S."..... 1003
Capitol Comedies Make Their Debut..... 256
Carolinas Plan Co-operative Booking Agency 64
Catalogue of Educational and Selected Pictures Released Between January 1 and March 31, 1918..... 987
Catalogues Location, How World Film.....1274
Cella, Louis A., Dies in St. Louis..... 976
Censor Ordinance, Proposed Amendment of..1143
Censors, Detroit Police Appoint..... 423
Censors Shy at Native African Costumes... 419
Censorship Begins at Home..... 830
Censorship by Persuasion in New Orleans... 738
Censorship Ordinance in Portland, Ore..... 428
Censorship, Portland Wants Responsible.... 584
Chapin, Benjamin, Dead at Forty-Four....1699
Chaplin Finishes Liberty Bond Tour..... 976
Chaplin Grotesqueries Fit in War Zone.....1276
Chaplin Sees Life in Atlanta..... 839
Chaplin to Advertise with Cartoons..... 864
Chaplin to Don United States Uniform..... 521
Chautard, Emile, Renews Contract.....1440
Cheer Up, Dr. Crane.....1117
Chicago Organizes Branch of Affiliated.....1291
Children, More Shows for, in Canada.....1427
Chillicothe Theaters Found Prospering..... 420
Cincinnati Musicians Want Raise..... 736
Cincinnati Operators Win Increase.....1180
Cincinnati Theaters Feel No Slump..... 122
Clayton, Ethel, Signs Paramount Contract.. 867
Clayton, Miss, in Cohan Support.....1422
Clemmer Advertising Brings 'em In..... 840
Cleveland Company Will Build Theaters....1322
Cleveland Exchanges Move..... 884
Cleveland, Many Theater Combinations in... 708
Closing Hours of Northwest Convention....1264
Cohen Advances Fox as "Favorite Son"...1548
Cohen and Pettijohn May Join Forces..... 375
Cohen Optimistic on Co-operative Idea.....1292
Cohen Talks on Hawaiian Conditions..... 371
College to Teach Scenario Writing..... 699
Comedy Folks 218
Comedy Sense, The..... 829
Commercial Kaiserism 1545
Company Publicity Supreme, Says Cochrane.1580
Compson, Betty, in Pathe Serial..... 839
Conditions as Seen in the Northwest.....1269
Conditions in British Columbia Good.....1155
Congress Providing for Soldiers' Rehabilitation 1579
Conservation Pictures, Screen Stars in..... 361
Construction Work Begun by Titan.....1300
Contest, A New Form of.....1260
Convention Afterthoughts 524
Convention, Dallas Exhibitors Start for.... 522
Convention, Northwest Exhibitors Hold.....1121
Convention, Tennessee, April 9 and 10..... 65
Copyrights to Agents Are Not Valid..... 545
Croffer Establishes "Sterling System" Office 563
Crown of Texas Visiting New York.....1550
Cunningham Heads First National Branch..1461

D

Dallas Theaters Pick Good Shows and Win.. 888
Dalton, Dorothy, Has Her Picture Taken..1860
Daly Appears as Four Minute Man..... 521
David Come to Judgment, A..... 217
David, Harry, on Trip East..... 706
Daylight Saving a Drawback in Villages...1183
Daylight Saving and the Airdome.....1276
Daylight Saving Awkward in Cleveland.280, 420
Detroit Exchanges Join Board of Commerce..1883
DeHoff, of Baltimore, Strong for Newspapers 1551
Denmark, May Export Film to.....1584
Des Moines Rialto Opens to Public..... 840
Detroit's Adams Theater Turns to Films... 123
Diamond Film Company to Begin Production 580
Diando Enlarges Glendale Studio.....1299
Dittmar, L. J., Forming New Company..... 227
Do Exhibitors Undervalue News Weeklies?..1416
Dobs Takes Interest in Palisade Laboratory 521
Dolle, Fred, on Lenten Prohibition..... 227
Loric Opens with Red Cross Benefit.....1608
Drew, Sidney, Now Counted Dead.....1854
Dwyer, Leo, Visits New York..... 371

E

Earl, Edward, Is Guest at Dinner..... 67
Edison Studio and Film Plant Sold..... 837
Educational to Handle International Cartoon Series 257
Educational Navy Picture Nearly Made....1441
El Paso's Fine Theater Ready to Open..... 583
End of the Trail, The.....1575
Enduring Appeal of Good Films..... 274
England Helps Maimed Soldiers, How..... 380
Epstin Handling "Depth of the Sea"..... 259
Essanay Announces Real Novelty.....1411
Essanay Busy on "Young America"..... 863
Essanay Men in State Service..... 553
Essanay to Teach Food Conservation.....1298
Evans, Madge, Stamp Booster..... 378
Exhibitors Annoyed by Slipshod Tax Office..1030
Exhibitors Back Liberty Loan Night..... 362
Exhibitors' Booking Directors Hold Session.1419
Exhibitors are Smiling, Says Goldwyn Man 76
Exhibitors as Critics..... 828
Exhibitors' Co-operative Organizations Meet 523
Exhibitors Drawing the Line.....1261
Exhibitors Now Producers..... 358
Exhibitors Should Watch Income Tax Returns 1692
Exposition Auditorium vs. Theaters.....1855

F

Fairbanks Called Into Court..... 545
Famous Players Announce a Find 1701
Famous Players-Lasky Reaching Out.....1582
Famous Players' Managers Conclude Session 1572
Famous Players Organize Film Hospital... 228
Famous Players to Make Cheerful Pictures.1577
Farnsworth Returns to California..... 836
Feature Comedies, Advises Manufacturer...1859
Federal Trades Commission Looks In..... 518
Ferrandini, Frank 226
F. I. L. M. Club Has Successful Dinner.... 69
F. I. L. M. Club Monthly Meeting..... 973
Film Division in New York..... 99
Film Division Perfects Organization..... 835
Film Exporters to Form Association.....1553
Film Exporters Form an Association.....1698
Film Exports Show Steady Decline.....1823
Film Industry Working for Liberty Loan... 519
Film Studio Projected in San Francisco.....1581
Film Titles 517
Film Trade a Great Help to Loan..... 831
Find Forty Subjects in 3,500 Manuscripts.. 396
Fineman Gets Ready to "Treat 'em Rough"..1857
First Lady of the Land to See "Joan".....1409
First National Gets Pershing's Crusaders...1726
First National Issues Handsome Booklet... 705
First National Opens Oklahoma Office..... 227
First National Takes Larger Quarters.....1153
First National Takes Over Gerard Film... 254
First National's New York Franchise Sold. 69
Foote, Courtenay.....1859
Foran, How He Builds Business..... 839
Forbids Indianapolis to Tax Operators.....1856
Ford, Francis, to Return West..... 255
Ford, Francis, to Produce Six Pictures a Year 1599
Foreign Trade News Conducted by F. G. Ortega.78, 231, 395, 703, 841, 1128, 1412, 1555
Foursquare to Give Bonus to Employees... 104
Foursquare to Handle W. S. Exhibitors Features 258
Fox Defends Costume of Cleopatra..... 832
Fox Film Opens Exchange in Buffalo.....1025
Fox Managers Hold Fourth Convention....1701
Fox Managers on Their Way Home.....1854
Fox Pushing Foreign Business..... 547
Fox to Organize East for War Work.....1858
Fox, William, Entertains Drive Aids.....1554
Francis, Alec B..... 77
Franklin Brings Good Reports on Provinces 862
Frederick, Miss, to Release Through Goldwyn 1153
Freuler Resigns as Mutual's President..... 971
Frisco Hall Owners Hit Out at Music Tax..1468
From the Depths.....1401
Funkhouser Cuts Gerard Film..... 976
Funkhouser Cuts "Hearts of the World".... 982
Funkhouser, Major, Suspended.....1407
Funkhouser, Put Up to President..... 862
Funkhouser Removal Pleases First National.1572
Funniest Thing on Earth, The.....1544

G

Gamble, Sergeant Richard H.....1438
Gathered by the Wayside..... 217
Gates, Mark, Opens Dayton Theater.....1154
Gaumont Will Produce for State Rights... 338
Gaumont Announces a Twenty-Reel Serial.1316
General in Midst of Big Year.....1156
Gerard Film Has Dallas by the Ears.....1695
Gerard Film Starts in San Francisco.....1182
Getting Out of the Well Beaten Track.....1408
Gihbsson, Leif 1154
Gilchrist Hears from Brooklyn Exhibitors... 361
Gilligham and Smith Theaters Change Name 1606
Gilligham Joins United Picture Theaters.... 397
Gillstrom on from the Coast.....1828
Goldfish Finds Exhibitors Optimistic.....1697
Goldfish Praises Review Board's Work.....1578
Goldwyn Again Signs Mabel Normand.....1126
Goldwyn Engages Two Directors.....1418
Goldwyn Exchanges Are a Year Old.....1830
Goldwyn Quartet on Tour..... 381
Goldwyn Takes Horace Greeley's Advice....1439
Goldwyn to Double Its Output.....1266
Goldwyn to Temper the Summer's Heat.....1576
Good Stories Make Monopoly Impossible... 981
Government Film, 128 Reels of, for Coast.. 278
Grant, Lawrence, Bears Likeness to Kaiser..1704
Great Film Drive, The..... 359
Griffith Film to Be State Righted..... 835
Griffith Film, Rights for Many States Disposed of 1598
Griffith Picture Has Impressive Premiere.. 369
Griffith Picture Opens Friday Night..... 228
Grinding the Crank.....1827
Guaranty Trust Not Depository for U. P. T., Inc. 361

H

Hadley Completing a Cinema-Symphony... 699
Hadley Picks Subject for Cinema-Symphony 835
Hart to Aid Liberty Bond Campaign..... 67
Hart, Will, Makes Stirring Wind Up..... 832
Have Sunday Closing—Want Censorship...1299
Hayakawa to Release Through Mutual.....1292
"Hearts of the World" for Sunday Shows...1022
"Hearts of the World" Not for Philadelphia. 986
Held, Anna, Sees "Joan of Plattsburg".....1577
Henry, Hobart, Director.....1409
Hinz Protests Minneapolis Election.....1405
Hodkinson, W. W., Not in New Concern...1702
Hodkinson Optimistic on Return from Trip.1725
Hoffman Outlines Future Activities.....1856
Hoffman Retires from Foursquare.....1700
How Home Pictures Strike Soldiers.....1850
How It Is Done at the Strand, by Harold Edel 73, 226, 553, 708, 1155, 1298, 1570
How Railroad Rate Increase Hits Pictures..1830
Hutchinson Offers Big Money for Scripts...1725

I

Illinois Holds State Convention.....1267
Ince, Ralph, at Head of New Company.....1417
Ince, Ralph, to Direct Ethel Barrymore....1857
Indian Life Pictures..... 370
Indiana Bone Dry..... 422
Indianapolis Exchanges Hit by Ordinance...1126
Indianapolis Lyric Will Be Larger..... 274
Indianapolis Mutual Compelled to Vacate...1885
Indianapolis, New Film Storage Code in... 581
Indianapolis, New Fire Code Protested.....1029
Industrial Committee Heads All Team Scores 1547
Industry in West to Back the Government...1549
Industry Still Has Large Task Before It... 548
Intensive Advertising 1261
Irving, George, Joins Goldwyn.....1700
Is This the Open Market?.....1819

J

Jardon, Dorothy 74
Jensen & Von Herberg Open Strand Theater 127
Jewel to Retitle Adaptations..... 836
Jones a Believer in War Films.....1724
Jose, Edward, Making "Gismonda"..... 547

K

Kaiser, Noise and Enthusiasm at Showing of 740
Kansas City Censor, Sydney S. Baker Becomes 1466
Kansas City Corporation Grows Bigger.....1327
Kansas City Managerial Changes..... 426
Kansas City Theaters Change Hands..... 277
Kansas City Universal Under New Manager 582
Kansas League Meets at McPherson..... 833
Keeney Will Continue Making Pictures....1411
Keep the War Reels Turning.....1401
Kennedy, Madge, Signs Longer Contract....1269
Keystone Owner of "Dough and Dynamite" 861
Know Your Power.....1544

L

Laemmle, Carl, Finishes Coast Trip.....1548
Laemmle Recognizes "Vacuum Pan".....1850
Laemmele to Push Short Subjects..... 838
Lafayette's (Ind.) Luna Theater Opens.....1184
"Lafayette! We Come".....1855
Lang, Phil., and Kalem Part at Last..... 99
Larkin, George, Hurt, Is Recovering.....1858
Lasky Enthusiastic Over Griffith Picture... 71
Lasky Goes to West Coast Studios..... 837
La Voy, Merl, to Visit Battlefronts.....1295
Lawyer Protests Against Absurdities..... 840
Ledermann (Dan) Becomes Brandt's Assistant 1030
Legislators Want Facts, Not Generalities... 220
Lesser Spends $250,000 for Territorial Rights 1598
Liberty Loan, The Third..... 679
Little Christopher Discovers the Show Business 1688
Little Theatricalisms 968
Lloyd, Frank, to Make Grey Stories..... 682
Local 110 I. A. T. S. E. Under Fire..... 95
Logic and Photoplay..... 359
Long Run, In the.....1818
Los Angeles Film Men Alarmed.....1403
Love, Bessie, May Form Own Company.... 251
Lynch Selling Rights on "Carmen of the Klondike" 1020

M

MacMahon Joins Educational Forces..... 706
McCormick, Director of Indianapolis Circle 75
Magner Talks of Conditions in Orient..... 379
Maids of the Millions.....1819
Major and Fox Many Times at Odds.....1572
Make Your Own Movies..... 838
Malitz and Engler Sentenced to Prison.....1123
Managing Editor Takes Up Gage..... 979
Manhattan Exhibitors Get Busy..... 220
Manhattan Social Holds an Active Session.1693
Marion, Frank, Returns to United States...1691
Mark, Mitchell H., Dies in Buffalo..... 68
Marks, Jack, Opens Opera House.....1858
Marsh, Mae, Philosopher.....1726
Maryland's General Assembly Adjourns..... 368
Mastbaum, Memorial to, Planned..... 68
Mayo, Christine 684
Maypole Ordinance Is Referred Back.....1719
Metro Engages Pageant Specialist.....1132
Metro Rents Part of Biograph Studio.....1857
Metro Transplanting Directors..... 547
Metropolitan Not for Rothapfel..... 64
Michigan Begins Prohibition.....1032
Michigan Exhibitors Join Affiliated..... 975
Million in Tax Paid by Theaters.....1405
Minneapolis Exchanges, Another Shift in...1749
Minneapolis Exchange Office Changes..... 425
Minneapolis Film Row Scene of Changes...1609
Modern Picture Director's Problems, A.... 702
Montgomery Reports Titan City Ready..... 255
Montreal Exhibitors Prepare for Action... 834
Montreal Police Catch Film Thief.....1150
Montreal Police Spoil Approved Posters..... 885
Moore, Tom, of Goldwyn.....1146
Moore, Willie, Wins French War Cross..... 66
Motion Picture Educator, The, Conducted by the Rev. W. H. Jackson and Margaret I. MacDonald....80, 233, 384, 531, 686, 843, 987, 1130, 1277, 1426, 1558, 1706, 1832
Motion Picture Exhibitor.....65, 223, 368, 522, 677, 833, 974, 1121, 1264, 1404, 1693, 1824
Motion Picture Industry Boosting Bond Sale 672
Motion Picture Option Bill..... 56
Motion Picture Option Bill Dead..... 526
Motion Picture Photography, Conducted by Carl Louis Gregory, F. R. P. S.....88, 244, 540, 696, 852, 1140, 1288, 1437, 1569, 1715
Motion Picture Subtitles 1415
Motion Pictures Are Essential to Victory...1690
Movie Fans, What Most Interests..... 550
Movies at the Authors' League..... 671
Moving Pictures and the War..... 517
Murray, Harry, Is Wounded..... 980
Music for the Picture, Conducted by George W. Beynon....89, 245, 393, 541, 697, 853, 1001, 1141, 1289, 1435, 1567, 1717, 1841
Mutt, Poor, Struts His Brief Hour on Stage.1153
Mutual Exchange Now in Mecca Bldg..... 70

N

Nashville Church Bell Sounds Prayer Call..1855
Nashville Expects to See New Theater..... 121
Nashville Fights for Sunday Shows.....1696
National Association Chiefs Confer.....1723
National Association Holds Meeting..... 396
National Association to Meet July 19.....1825
National Exposition, Pushing Plans for.....1552
New Big Theaters Must Fill Public Need...1831
New Brunswick Has Graded Tax.....1003
New Canadian Tax Causes Consternation...1124
New Hampshire Exhibitors Meet..... 368
New Haven Exhibitors' Banquet..... 522
Newman, E. M., Goes Abroad.....1144
Newman Hunts Out Remote Spots.....1579
New Producing Company in Canada..... 255
New York Rectifies Delegate List.....1826
No Amalgamation, Says Rembusch.....1546
No Reason for Bitterness Over Publicity...1151
Normand, Mabel, Meets Mrs. Wilson.....1699
North Carolina Ignores Boston Session.....1696
North, Tom, Wins a Real Job.....1154
Northrup, Harry S., Villain.....1149
Northwest Board Effectively Co-operates... 251
Northwest Exhibitors to Meet..... 525
Northwest Convention, Impressions of.....1265
Northwest Election Protested.....1405
Now for the War Saving Stamps.....1820

O

Ochs Issues Call for National Convention... 974
Ochs Issues Supplementary Call.....1404
Ochs Resigns from Trade Review..... 526
Offers Liberty Bonds for Deposits..... 364
Ohio Exhibitors' Film Exchange Started....1179
Oklahoma, Notes on Trade Conditions in... 886
Oklahoma Theaters Praised by McAdoo.....1177
Old Trio Retire from Paralta.....1297
Ontario Also Increases Film Tax.....1274
Ontario, Reviving Exhibitors' Association in 677
Ontario Taxes Occasional Picture Shows.... 227
Ontario's New License Fees Counted Fair..1605
Oregon League Elects Officers.....1404
Oregon Offers a Good State Right Field..... 127
Oregon, Small Towns in, Losing Business.. 891
Orpheum Finds That Film Shows Pay.....1329
Our Weakest Spot.....1116

P.

"P. A." Heads New Rochester Concern.....1125
Packed House Pays Money to Render Verdict 369
Pallette, Gene, Waits for Air Call.....1418
Panama, Business Better Than Usual in..1410
Paralta, Change of Ownership in.....1120
Paralta Changes Due to Army Demands...1416
Paralta Studios, Work on, Progressing..... 256
Paramount Managers Holding Conference...1296
Passing Along the Torch.....1818
Pathe Club Holds Semi-Annual Dinner..... 551
Pathe Exchange Declares a Bonus.....1702
Pathe Plans in Two Broadway Houses.....1420
Pathe to Issue Official War Review.....1858
Pathe's New President Visits Chicago..... 554
Patriotic Film Bureau Formed on Coast... 126
Patriotic Films Enjoying Extended Runs...1328
Pearce, Josiah, Dies in Cleveland..... 835
Pennsylvania, Big Rush for Licenses in..... 120
Penrose Discusses Censorship with Film Men 1126
"Perchers," Get After Them.....1576
Perfect Reviewer, The..... 57
Perret at Work on First Production.....1550
Perret to Make Patriotic Series.....1725
"Pershing's Crusaders" Screened in New York 1120
Petrova Leases New Bacon-Backer Studio.. 404
Petrova to Make National Tour.....1003
Petrova to Make Trip for War Stamp Sale.1016
Pettijohn Gives a Luncheon..... 372
Photoplaywright, The, Conducted by Epes Winthrop Sargent....240, 389, 536, 692, 848, 997, 1136, 1284, 1431, 1563, 1711, 1837
Pickford, Jack, Now a Censor..... 255
Picture Experts Needed in France..... 236
Picture Legislation Fares Poorly at Albany. 678
Picture Measures Up in Maryland..... 221
Picture Stars Shine to Aid War Stamp Sales.1318
Pictures and the Law, The.....1704
Pictures the Big Thing, Says Eugene Levy.1469
Pittsburgh's Olympic Again Brightens.....1024
Plans Ready for New Lasky Building.....1294
Pleasing Small Town with Picture Shows... 734
Portland Censors Arrest on Technicality....1328
Portland, Ore., Operators Ask for Raise... 741
Porto Ricans Protest Against Film Tax..... 684
Portuguese Notes 1414
Press Agents, What's Wrong With?..... 219
Program Building 1402
Projection Department, Conducted by F. H. Richardson....85, 241, 390, 537, 693, 849, 998, 1137, 1285, 1432, 1564, 1712, 1838
Public Responds to Players' Appeal..... 972
Publicity Director Gives and Takes.....1275
Publicity, No Reason for Bitterness Over...1151

R

Ragland Goes to St. Louis for Select.....1702
Rambles 'Round Filmtown With Walter K Hill....91, 247, 398, 558, 709, 855, 1004, 1157, 1301, 1442, 1587, 1727, 1861
Randolph Film Reissues "The Million Dollar Mystery" 880
Raw Film Exports Show Increase.....1279
Receipts from Graduated Tax Decline.....1826
Red Cross Drive Interest Fills Theaters....1610
Red Cross Drive "Over the Top".....1407
Red Cross Film Free to Exhibitors..... 219
Red Cross Founds Operators' School.....1144
Religious Film Concern Formed..... 72
Rembusch Calls a Meeting..... 74
Requisite of a Long Run, The.....1118
Restaurateurs Want to Show Pictures..... 418
Richardson Home After Five Weeks' Trip.1270
Richardson Off on Another Trip..... 858
Richardson Rambles Around Lake States... 977
Richardson Visits Chicago and St. Louis...1147
Ruppert Plans a Film Clearing House.....1822
Roach, Hal, in New York.....1409
Rochester, Motion Picture Engineers Meet in 549
Rock's (Pop) Fortune Was $1,436,677..... 526
Rolfe Severs Active Connection With Metro. 699
Ruben and Finkelstein Get Two More Theaters 1467
Rudolph Goes to West Coast.....1418

S

Sabbatarians Win Battle in Sherbrooke....1152
Sabbath Shows Killed in Birmingham.....1118
Saenger Amusement Company Under Charges 1849
Safety First Relay, A.....1581
St. Helens, Ore., Liberty Theater Opens at.. 279
St. John Exchange Managers Organized....1123
St. Louis Airdomes to Go a Bit Slow at Start 1324
St. Louis Snoopers Are Ousted.....1268
St. Paul and Minneapolis Form Locals.....1693
Salesmen Must Push All Propaganda Films.1441
San Francisco Exchange Catches Thief..... 427
San Francisco, Co-operative Booking Organized in 1752
San Franciscans Give Dinner to Allen..... 861
San Francisco's Patrola Brightens.....1031
Scenario, From, to Screen.....1300
Scrantonia Adds to Activity..... 101
Screen Classics Takes Over Metro Specials. 552
Select to Release Marion Davies Films.....1580

Select Managers Hold First Conference....1860
Select's Eastern Managers to Meet.....1725
Selig to Release Through Capitol.....1275
Sell Foreign Rights to Kellermann Film... 397
Sennott, N. J., Dinner to, a Big Event.....1152
Sense of Values, A.....1117
Sex and Common Sense..... 968
Shea's Hippodrome, Why It Is Famous.....1439
Sheehan Hears Good Reports from England 980
Sheldon Announces Summer Schedules.....1297
Sheldon, James M., in New York.....1152
Sherrill and Noble to Stage Spectacle..... 61
Sherry Exchanges, Fourteen, Are Open....1860
Sherry Opens Headquarters in New York...1418
Sherry Resigns Paramount Position..... 867
Sherry Service Acquiring Exchanges.....1586
Sherry to Distribute De Luxe Pictures.....1724
Sherry to Distribute Keeney Pictures.....1125
Shipman Completes Large Plans.....1267
Shipman, Nell, Australian Favorite.....1831
Shipman to Release Fifty-Two Pictures a Year 1171
Shipping Film, Limits Responsibility in... 585
Short, Florence 73
Short Shift for Meddlesome Teachers.....1694
Show Business and the Screen.....1116
Showmanship Made the Anchor Hold.....1881
Simmonds Speaks About W. H. Reissues... 101
Sinnott to Open Sherry Exchanges.....1724
Small Towns Make and Unmake Stars.....1848
Smith to Distribute War Pictures..... 688
Soldiers at Camp Sherman Get Good Pictures 529
Soldiers Constitute New Audience Type.....1440
Soldiers, Would Give Free Admission to....1699
Something About Standards..... 669
Something in Reserve..... 360
South American Neighbors, Our.....1545
Spokane Picture Men Disagree..... 551
Spokane Studio Begins Production.....1753
Stage and Screen Unite for Charity.....1263
Stanley Company Under Charges.....1584
State Rights Men Discuss Trade Conditions. 543
State Rights Department, Conducted by C. S. Sewell.....100, 257, 401, 561, 712, 879, 1016, 1171, 1314, 1455, 1598, 1740, 1874
State Rights Still Strong.....1423
Stay Away from Capital Urges Crandall....1578
Stewart, Honor Wright.....1855
Stolen Films, Many, Found in Cleveland...1274
Stone, Fred, Starts for West Coast.....1559
Strand Benefit Gets $20,000..... 373
Strand, Break Ground for New..... 396
Sunday Bill, Live Publicity to Help..... 222
Sunday Bill Passes Assembly, New York's.. 365
Sunday Entertainment, Stop Meddling with. 221
Sunday Issue, Voters Will Decide..... 367
Sunday Law, Court Won't Interfere with...1700
Sunday Move, Buffalo Exhibitors Aid..... 62
Sunday Option Bill, Favorable Outlook for.. 62
Sunday Option Bill Makes Strong Getaway.. 365
Sunday Option Is Not Dead..... 670
Sunday, Schenectady Houses Close on..... 58
Sunday Show, Hattiesburg Editor Arrested for 222
Sunday Shows, Daniel Cauffiel Pleads for...1118
Sunday Shows, Great Need of, in Sharon, Pa. 1747
Sunday Shows in Quebec, Lost Chance for. 77
Symphony Theater Opening a Success.....1848

T

Tallis, of Australia, in New York.....1582
Tally Pleased with First National..... 372
Talmadge, Norma, to Remain with Select... 973
Tax, New Brunswick Proposes Drastic..... 733
Tax (Seat) Theaters Must Let Patrons Pay..1879
Tennessee League Holds Session..... 525
Texas Airdomes Will Be Few This Season..1326
Texas Amusement Managers Convene..... 677
Texas, Business Outlook Improved in..... 124
Texas, Easterners May Build Theaters in... 552
Texas Exhibitors Now Aid Red Cross.....1466
Texas Village Shows Wait on Harvest....1884
Thanhouser to Resume Production..... 707
Theaters Are to Aid in Saving Coal.....1831
Theater Made a Bower of Flowers for Summer 1323
Theatrical Folks Have Own Red Cross Team.1119
Think Trade Should Aid Soldier Film Men..1845
Thompson, Hugh, Supports Miss Whelan..1297
Three Scenario Writers for World..... 73
Tincher, Fay, Becomes World Star..... 557
Toledo Exhibitors Form Association.....1266
Toledo Fourth City in Advertising Efficiency..1828
Too Much of a Good Thing in Stars..... 381
Toronto Exchangemen Uncover Queer Situation 77
Toronto Theater (New) Will Seat 1,000... 579
Toronto Theaters (Two) Change Hands..... 421
Toronto's Allen Starting Week on Saturdays 1551
Tourneur Pays Respect to Star System....1689
Tourneur to Make "Sporting Life"..... 397
Tourneur to Produce Independently 224
Trade Active for Red Cross.....1263
Traverse, Madaline, Forming Company.....1581
Triangle Exchange Managers Meet..... 973
Triangle Exchange Shifts Quarters..... 397
Trimble Engages Players for New Company.1152
Trimble, Larry, Visits Spokane..... 82
Trimont Film Is New Boston Exchange... 273
Trouble with Film Columnists, The..... 701
Truesdell, Frederick.....1823
Truth Pleasantly Told..... 668

U

Unearth Conspiracy to Steal Films.....1150
U. S. Exhibitors Secure First Bacon-Backer Film 561
U. S. Exhibitors Secure "Crucible of Life". 712
Universal Appeals to Newspapers.....1850
Universal Coaching Army Photographers... 973
Universal Hails a Chaplin in Petticoats....1296
Universal Institutes Traveling School.....1149
Universal Makes Safety First Subject..... 72
Universal Photographs Start of Air Mail...1267
Universal Takes Over Branch Offices.....1295
Universal to Make Films for Government...1724
Universal's Footage Tax Runs High.....1405
Unlocking Secret Doors..... 57
Up-to-date Melodrama 216
Ushers Must Be Girls, Decrees Crowder....1584

V.

Vance Joins New Producing Combination...1559
Virginia Holds Convention and Exposition..1825
Votes Approve Sunday Film Shows.....1583

W

Wagner, Bob, Between Coons..... 842
W. H. Productions Will Reissue Chaplin Comedies 714
"War Brides" Film Cannot Enter Maryland.1612
War Film for War Funds, A..... 373
War Stamp Drive by Baltimore Theaters...1745
Warwick, Captain Robert..... 518
Washington Motion Picture Company Elects..1855
Washington Motion Picture Plant Opens May 11 980
Washington, D. C., Operators Demand Raise.1321
Washington Theaters Wait on Local Boards..1880
Webster Producing "Reclaimed"..... 103
Wertz Puts Ban on German Music..... 378
Western Joins with United, Limited.....1723
Western Photoplays Open Offices.....1585
What Goes Into Making of Pictures..... 707
Whartons Make Picture for War Charity....1830
Whartons Make Picture for War Charity...1580
Whelan, C. C., Kleine Manager..... 378
Whiteside to Make Patriotic Picture.....1700
Williams Has Animated Filming List.....1859
Williams Roasts "The Grave Diggers".....1416
Wilson, President, Corrects a Title.....1831
Winchester Joins Shipping Control Committee 1848
Woman's Auxiliary to Boost Exposition.... 974
Women Refuse to Endorse Censorship.....1262
World Crew Sees "A Dog's Life"..... 546
World Film Insures Its Employees.....1829
World Pictures Cuts Out "Friends" in Casting 66
World Pictures Suggests Title Clearing House 1300
World Pictures in Bright New Offices.....1023
World Pictures Rewards Operators..... 547
World Pictures Trying Script Novelty..... 553
World Studio Employees Care for Pals.....1414

Y

Yankees Frolic and Boost Horstmann.....1824
Yankee Exhibitors Discuss Conditions.....1122
Young, James, to Direct Williams.....1299

Z

Zecca, Ferdinand, an Old Timer..... 99
Zukor Gives Plan for Liberty Loan Drive.. 59

Index to Reviews, Comments, and Advertising Aids on the Films

Appended is a list of subjects which have been released during the three months ending June 30, 1918, and u majority of which have been published reviews, comments, or advertising aids. This list is as accurate as it is po make it with the information that we have received from the companies whose productions are included. Shou our readers detect errors, we shall be pleased to have our attention called to them so that we may correct our The letter before the folio indicates the page where the review, comment, or advertising aids can be found. "R for review; "C" for comment; and "A" for advertising aids. Where reference letter is omitted it signifies that none was published. Of the later releases where any or all reference letters are omitted it may be said that the missing information, or part of it, will probably be published in the next volume.

N. B.—Comments or reviews of episodes of serials or series are indexed in connection with general title of such serial or series and not under title of each episode. Date shown for Pathe subjects indicates the week during which they were released. "S" indicates synopsis, publication of which has been discontinued.

A

Accidental Honeymoon, The (5 parts) (Arrow Film-Harry Rapf)—A-597; R-1035; C-1037.
Accusing Toe, The (2 parts) (General Film-Judge Brown)—R-589; C-746.
Ace High (5 parts) (Fox Special)—June 9; A-1192; R-1614; C-1616.
Adventurous Ambrose (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—April 17; C-434.
After the War (5 parts) (Bluebird).
Aides of a Nation (No. 1 of Boy Scouts to the Rescue) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—April 15; C-590.
All Dressed Up (Christie)—R-743; C-746.
All for the Love of a Girl (Vitagraph-Drew Reissue)—April 29.
All Woman (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—June 2; R-1470; C-1475; A-1481.
American Aristocracy (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Fairbanks Reissue).
American Arms and Cartoon Comedy (Pathe-International)—Feb. 10; C-131.
American Buds (6 parts) (Fox Standard) Apr. 21; R-Vol. 35-1701; C-Vol. 35-1706; A-595.
American Rifles and Riflemen; War Garden Hints; Cartoon by Bray Studio (Paramount-Bray)—May 20.
Americano, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Douglas Fairbanks Reissue).
America's Sleeping Giants; Ingenious Insects, Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—May 6.
An Alien Enemy (5 parts) (W. W. Hodkinson-Paralta)—April 1; R-586; C-589; A-750.
An Honest Man (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 5; A-899; R-1033; C-1037.
Animated Weekly No. 14 (Universal)—Mar. 6; S-140.
Animated Weekly No. 15 (Universal)—Mar. 13; C-Vol. 35-1868; S-140.
Animated Weekly No. 16 (Universal)—Mar. 20; S-444.
Animated Weekly No. 17 (Universal)—Mar. 27; S-446.
Animated Weekly No. 18 (Universal)—Apr. 3; C-434; S-446.
Animated Weekly No. 19 (Universal)—Apr. 10; C-590; S-600.
Animated Weekly No. 20 (Universal)—Apr. 17; C-747; S-906.
Animated Weekly No. 21 (Universal)—Apr. 24; C-897; S-1043.
Animated Weekly No. 22 (Universal)—May 1; C-1037; S-1044.
Animated Weekly No. 23 (Universal)—May 8; S-1196; C-1334.
Animated Weekly No. 24 (Universal)—May 15; S-1342.
Animated Weekly No. 25 (Universal)—May 22; C-1475.
Animated Weekly No. 26 (Universal)—May 29.
Animated Weekly No. 27 (Universal)—June 5; C-1758.
Animated Weekly No. 28 (Universal)—June 12; C-1892.
Animated Weekly No. 29 (Universal)—June 19.
Animated Weekly No. 30 (Universal)—June 26.
Animal Studies by William L. Finley, Oregon Fish and Game Commissioner, Science and Invention; War Garden Hints No. 2; Animated Technical Cartoon by E. Dean Parmalee (Paramount-Bray)—June 24.
Apostle of Vengeance (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart Reissue).
Are Crooks Dishonest? (Pathe-Rolin)—June 23 C-1758.
Are Wives Unreasonable? (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—May 26; C-1475.
Are Working Girls Safe? (General Film-Ebony).
Art Bug, The (Girls You Know Series) (Kleine-Edison-Flagg)—Apr. 10; R-433; C-590.
Art of Animal Training; Lumbering for War Time; Cartoon by Earl Hurd (Paramount-Bray)—May 13.
At the Mercy of Men (5 parts) (Select)—Apr. R-744; R-894; C-747; A-753.
Atop the Alps and Wild Animals of Yellowstone (Finley Nature Studies No. 14) (Univers Special)—Apr. 20.

B

Bachelor's Children, A (5 parts) (Vitagraph-Blue Ribbon)—Apr. 22; A-596; R-742; C-746.
Back to the Balkans (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Cartoon)—Mar. 31.
Bandit and the Preacher (5 parts) (W. H. Productions Reissue)—A-592; R-1036; C-1037.
Baree, The Son of Kayan (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 27; A-1336; R-1470; C-1475.
Bath House Scandal, The (Universal-Nestor)—May 20; C-1892.
Battle Royal (2 parts) (Paramount-Mack Sennett)—May 20; C-1188.
Beasts of the Jungle (No. 2 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 13; R-430; C-434.
Beautiful, The; Women in the World of Work; Hawaii; Cartoon by Earl Hurd (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 15.
Beautiful Thoughts (Vitagraph-Drew Reissue)—Apr. 22.
Beauty to Order; Scenic Gems of America; Women in the World of Work; Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—June 17.
Believe Me, Xantippe (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 27; R-1332; C-1333; A-1337.
Berlin via America (6 parts) (Shipman-Francis Ford)—R-896; A-1042.
Berth Control (Universal-Star)—June 29.
Beware of Blonds (Mutual-Strand)—June 18; C-1892.
Betty's Adventure (Christie)—R-743; C-746.
Biggest Show on Earth, The (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 6; R-896; C-1037.
Billie in Society (2 parts) (Highgrade Film Enterprises, Inc.).
Bill's Baby (2 parts) (Goldwyn-Capitol)—R-283; C-434.
Bill's Predicament (2 parts) (Goldwyn-Capitol).
Billy in Harness (2 parts) (Highgrade Film Enterprises, Inc.).
Birds of a Feather (2 parts) (Goldwyn-Capitol).
Bit of Jade, A (5 parts) (Mutual-Star-American)—Apr. 1; A-136; R-282; C-284.
Black Sherlock Holmes, A (General Film-Ebony)—R-745; C-896.
Blackmailers, The (American Standard-Tom Brett).
Blind Pig, A (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—June 12; C-1758.
Blindfolded (5 parts) (W. W. Hodkinson)—Apr. 15; R-894; C-897; A-901.
Blindness of Divorce, The (7 parts) (Fox)—Apr. 7; R-587; C-589; A-596.
Bluebird, The (6 parts) (Famous Players-Artcraft-Paramount)—Mar. 31; A-134; R-283; C-433.
Blue Blood (6 parts) (Goldwyn-Selexart)—A-436; R-742; C-746.
Blue-Eyed Mary (5 parts) (Fox Special)—June 2; A-1194; R-1471; C-1475.
Bo'sman, The (Fox Reissue)—R-1756; C-1757.
odle and Bandits (Vitagraph-Big V)—June 24.
rrowed Baby, The (Universal-Nestor)—June 24.
s of Lazy "Y," The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 7; A-285; R-430; C-435.
Scouts to the Rescue (No. 1, Aides of a Nation) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—pr. 15; C-590.
outs to the Rescue (No. 2, On the Trail) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 22; C-590.
Boy Scouts to the Rescue (No. 3, The Great Mine Disaster) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 29.
Boy Scouts to the Rescue (No. 4, The Spies' Nest) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 10.
Boy Scouts to the Rescue (No. 5, Treachery at Sea) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 18.
Brave and Bold (5 parts) (Fox Special)—May 5; A-898; R-1034; C-1037.
Bravest Way, The (5 parts) (Paramount)—June 16; R-1615; A-1759.
Breakers Ahead (5 parts) (Metro)—Apr. 1; A-Vol. 35-1869; R-284; C-434.
Bride of Fear, The (5 parts) (Fox Special)—Apr. 7; R-429; C-434; A-435.
Bride of Hate (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Frank Keenan Reissue).
Bride's Awakening, The (6 parts) (Universal Special)—May 25; R-895; C-897; A-1191.
Brief Debut of Tildy (One of the O. Henry Stories) (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star).
Bright and Early (2 parts) (King Bee)—June 1.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 1, Women Mountaineers of England) (Pathe)—May 12; C-897.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 2, Messines and Its Irish Captors) (Pathe)—May 19; C-1188.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 3, Hardships of the British Army on Its Way to Bagdad) (Pathe)—May 26; C-1334.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 4, How England Treats Her Prisoners) (Pathe)—June 2; C-1474; R-1558.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 5, With the Drifters and Mine Sweepers in the Danger Zone) (Pathe)—June 9; C-1616.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 6, Destroyers' Raid on Zeebrugge) (Pathe)—June 16; C-1758.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 7, Fighting the Hun at St. Quentin (Pathe)—June 23; C-1892.
Britain's Bulwarks (No. 8, Destruction Wrought by the Hun at St. Quentin (Pathe)—June 30.
British Cavalry on Western Front (Pathe)—May 12; C-897.
Broadway Scandal, A (5 parts) (Bluebird)—A-1338; R-1613; C-1616.
Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need (General Film-Essanay)—Apr. 5.
Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child (General Film-Essanay)—Apr. 26.
Broncho Billy's First Arrest (General Film-Essanay)—Apr. 19.
Broncho Billy's Indian Romance (General Film-Essanay)—Mar. 29.
Broncho Billy's Last Deed (General Film-Essanay)—May 3.
Brown Port Folio (No. 7 of the Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare-Wharton).
Building the Liberty Hospitals; War Garden Hints (Paramount-Bray)—June 3; R-1558.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 9, The Flaming Crisis) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 6; C-131.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 10, Coyotes of the Desert) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 13; C-434.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 11, Fired) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 20; C-434.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 12, Burning Sands) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 27; C-590.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 13, Sold at Auction) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 3; C-747.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 14, The Firing Squad) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 11; C-897.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 15, The Stained Face) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 18.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 16, Running Wild) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 25; C-1037.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 17, In Irons) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 27; C-1334.
Bull's Eye, The (No. 18, The Runaway) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—June 8; C-1475.
Bully, The (General Film-Ebony)—C-1474.
Bunco Billy (2 parts) (Highgrade Film Enterprises, Inc.).
Burning Sands (No. 12 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 27; C-590.
Business of Life, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 8; A-289; R-431; C-434.
Busted Romance (General Film-Ebony).
Busy Inn, The (5 parts) (Pathe-Russian Art)—Apr. 14; A-438; R-587; C-590.
Butter Again (Universal-Nestor)—June 10; C-1892.
Buyer from Cactus City, The (One of the O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star)—R-1036; C-1188.
By Heck, I'll Save Her (General Film-Clover).
By Fowl Means (Mutual-Strand)—June 11; C-1616.
By Orange Aid (Christie)—R-743; C-746.

C

Cabaret, The (5 parts) (World)—June 10; R-1613; C-1616; A-1617.
Caillaux Case, The (6 parts) (Fox Standard)—May 19; A-1336.
Camouflage Kiss, A (5 parts) (Fox Special)—Mar. 31; R-282; C-284; A-286.
Carmen of the Klondike (7 parts) (State Right Distributors-Selexart)—R-Vol. 35-1137; C-Vol. 35-1139; A-593.
Case of Bennie, The (2 parts) (General Film-Judge Brown).
Case of Eugenics, A (Vitagraph-Drew Reissue)—June 10.
Caught in the Toils (No. 11 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—June 15; C-1758.
Caught in the Web (No. 1 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 8; R-282.
Caviar, The Making of Russian (Educational)—R-80.
Cecilia of the Pink Roses (6 parts) (Select-Marion Davies Film Co)—R-1473; C-1475; A-1620.
Character Analysis; The Science of Weather Prediction; Cartoon by Earl Hurd (Paramount-Bray)—June 10.
Charting the Sky; Scenic Gems of America; Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—May 27.
Chase Me, Charlie (6 parts) (Kleine-Chaplin Reissue)—Apr. 8; R-284; C-434; A-591.
Cheerful Liars (Goldberg-Scrantonia).
Chinese Musketeer (Goldberg-Scrantonia).
City Slicker, The (Pathe-Rolin)—June 2; C-1334.
Claim, The (5 parts) (Metro)—Mar. 18; A-Vol. 35-1712; R-130; C-284.
Claw, The (5 parts) (Select)—R-1756.
Cleopatsy (2 parts) (Pathe-Rolin)—June 23.
Clients of Aaron Green, The (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star)—R-1332; C-1333.
Closin' In (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 23; A-1898.
Clutch of Terror, The (No. 4 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 29.
Colombia, Part I (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Feb. 15.
Colombia, Part II (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Feb. 22.
Coming of Faro Nell, The (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star).
Confession, The (5 parts) (Fox Special)—May 19; R-1186; C-1188; A-1194.
Conquered Hearts (5 parts) (Ivan Film Productions)—R-586; C-589; A-750.
Counts and No Accounts (Vitagraph-Big V)—Apr. 15.
Coyotes of the Desert (No. 10 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 13; C-434.
Crab, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Frank Keenan Reissue).
Crater of Death, The (No. 7 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 20.
Crimea, The—Strange Animals from Many Climes (Pathe)—May 12.
Cruise of the Quickern 'eil, The (Educational Films Corp.)—Apr. 24.
Cupid and the Cop (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—June 16.
Curse of Iku, The (6 parts) (Kleine-Essanay)—Apr. 1; R-Vol. 35-1865; C-Vol. 35-1867; A-133.
Cuzco, the City of the Sun (Kleine-Lincoln & Parker)—R-234.
Cyclone Higgins, D. D. (5 parts) (Metro)—May 13; A-1039; R-1332; C-1333.
Cynthian (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star)—R-1332; C-1333.

D

Dagger Woman, The (5 parts) (Pathe-Russian Art Films)—May 12; R-1034; C-1037; A-1038.
Danger Game, The (5 parts) (Goldwyn)—Apr. 7; A-288; R-431; C-434.
Danger Within (5 parts) (Bluebird)—May 11; R-743; C-746; A-1040.
Daughter of France, A (5 parts) (Fox Special)—Mar. 24; A-Vol. 35-1869; R-128; C-130.
Daughter of the West, A (5 parts) (Pathe-Diando)—May 26; R-1331; A-1337.
Death Switch, The (No. 17 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 30.
Deceivers, The (Vitagraph-Drew Reissue)—Apr. 15.
Decoy, The (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Animated Cartoon)—Mar. 24.
De Luxe Annie (7 parts) (Select Pictures)—May; R-1471; C-1475; A-1478.
Denny from Ireland (No. 1 of the Shorty Hamilton Series) (5 parts) (E. Shipman-W. H. Clifford Photoplays Co.)—R-896; A-1042.
Depths of the Sea, The (in a series of 4 parts) (M. S. Epstein).
Der Black Mitt (Educational-Katzenjammer Kids Cartoon)—May 20.
Desert Man, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart Reissue).
Desert Wooing, A— (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 23; C-1891; R-1890; A-1895.
Desperate Love, A (Universal-Hy. Mayer)—C-590.
Destiny (5 parts) (Metro Reissue)—A-1896.
Destroyers' Raid on Zeebrugge (No. 6 of Britain's Bulwarks) (Pathe)—June 16; C-1758.
Devil's Double, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart Reissue).
Devil's Playground, The (7 parts) (Atlantic Distributing Corp.)—Jan.; A-1335; C-Vol. 35-530; R-Vol. 35-527).
Dismissal of Silver Phil (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star).
Doctor and the Woman, The (6 parts) (Jewel)—R-745; A-Vol. 35-869.
Dodgers, The (Universal-Star)—May 18.
Dog. vs. Dog (2 parts) (General Film-Judge Brown).
Dog's Life, A (3 parts) (First National-Charlie Chaplin)—R-546; A-751.
Doing His Bit (Educational Films Corp.)—C-896.
Doll's House, A (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 2; R-1473; A-1480.
Dolly Does Her Bit (5 parts) (Pathe-Diando)—Apr. 28; R-743; C-747; A-749.
Double Crossed (No. 10 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe)—May 12; C-897.
Down the River (No. 8 of Son of Democracy, The) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin) Apr. 1.
Down the Yukon (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—Apr. 1.
Dungeon of Terror, The (No. 6 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 10; C-897.

E

Eagle, The (5 parts) (Bluebird)—A-1900.
Eagle's Eye, The (No. 4, Von Rintelen, The Destroyer) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Eagle's Eye, The (No. 5, The Strike Breeders) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Eagle's Eye, The (No. 6, The Plot Against Organized Labor) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Eagle's Eye, The (No. 7, Brown Port Folio) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Eagle's Eye, The (No. 8, The Kaiser's Death Messenger) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Eagle's Eye, The (No. 9, The Munition's Campaign) (2 parts) (Foursquare).

Eagle's Eye, The (No. 10, The Invasion of Canada) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Eleventh Commandment, The (5 parts) (Advanced M. P. Corp.)—R-1754; C-1757.
Enchanted Profile, The (One of the O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star)—R-1473; C-1474.
Enemy Aliens (No. 13 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 2; C-1334.
England—Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance and A Day at Yellowstone Park (Finley Nature Studies No. 12) (Universal Special)—Apr. 6.
England, Picture Spots in (Pathe)—Apr. 28; C-590.
England, Picture Spots in—and Picturesque Wales—Langollen (Pathe)—Apr. 28; R-687.
England, Women Mountaineers of (Britain's Bulwarks No. 1) (Pathe)—May 12.
Escape Through the Flames, The (No. 10 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—June 8; C-1475.
Ex-Cannibal Carnival (Mutual-Outing Chester)—June 30.

F

Fabulous Fortune Fumblers (Shipman-Florida Film Corp.)—R-896.
Face in the Dark, The (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—Apr. 21; A-597.
Fair Pretender, The (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—May 19; A-1189; R-1615; C-1757.
False Signal, The (No. 15 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 16; C-1758.
Faro Nell, Lookout (General Film-Broadway Star) (2 parts).
Fast Company (5 parts) (Bluebird)—Apr. 8; R-128; C-131; A-286.
Fate and Fortune (Goldberg-Scrantonia).
Fathers, Sons and Chorus Girls (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—May 1; C-747.
Feet and Defeat (Goldberg-Scrantonia).
Fighting the Hun at St. Quentin (No. 7 of Britain's Bulwarks) (Pathe)—June 23.
Filipino National Guard, The (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—May 6.
Find the Woman (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 10; A-1618; R-1754.
Finger Print, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 21.
Finley Nature Studies No. 12 (A Day at Yellowstone Park and Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance—England) (Universal Special)—Apr. 6.
Finley Nature Studies No. 13 (Sea Birds and Animals and The Land of Long Ago) (Universal Special)—Apr. 13; R-234.
Finley Nature Studies No. 14 (Wild Animals at Yellowstone and Atop the Alps) (Universal Special)—Apr. 20.
Finley Nature Studies No. 15 (Wild Bird Pets and In and Around Key West, Florida) (Universal Special)—Apr. 27; R-531.
Fire Trap, The (No. 9 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 3.
Firebrand, The (5 parts) (Fox Special)—May 26; A-1040; R-1332; C-1333.
Fired (No. 11 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 20; C-434.
Fired (2 parts) (World)—June 10; C-1616.
Firefly of France, The (Paramount)—R-1756; A-1894.
Fireman, Save My Child! (Pathe-Rolin)—May 26; C-1188.
Firing Squad, The (No. 14 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 11; C-897.
First Aid (Triangle-Keystone)—Apr. 14.
Fisherless Cartoon, A (Fox-Mutt and Jeff)—May 5; R-1331; C-1333.
Fisherman's Luck (Educational Films Corp.)—C-1474.
$5,000 Reward (5 parts) (Bluebird)—R-1185; C-1188; A-1340.
Flaming Crisis, The (No. 9 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 6; C-131.
Flapjacks (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—June 2.
Flashes in the Dark (No. 12 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 26; C-1188.
Flirts and Fakers (Vitagraph-Big V)—Apr. 29.
Florida, In and Around Key West, and Wild Bird Pets (No. 15 of Finley Nature Studies) (Universal Special)—Apr. 27.
Fly God, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 30.
Follow the Crowd (Pathe-Rolin)—Apr. 7; C-285.
Following the Course of the Cayuse (Educational Films Corp)—May 22.
Following the Scent (Vitagraph-Drew Reissue)—Apr. 1.
Fool There Was, A (Fox Reissue)—R-1756; C-1757.
For Art's Sake (Mutual-Strand)—Apr. 9; C-434.
For Sale (5 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 9; R-1614; C-1616; A-1620.
Fox Trot Finesse (Vitagraph-Drew)—May 13.
France, St. Flour and Aurillac, and Timber Transportation, Sweden (Pathe)—Apr. 7; R-234; C-285.
France—Valley of the Dordogne and The Horse in Action—Part 2—Analysis of Motion (Pathe)—Mar. 31; R-80; C-131.
Freda's Fighting Father (Shipman-Florida Film Corp.).
Fred's Fictitious Foundling (Shipman-Florida Film Corp.)—R-896.
Freight Investigation, The (Fox-Mutt and Jeff)—Apr. 7; C-746.
Friend Husband (2 parts) (Paramount-Mack Sennett)—Apr. 8; C-284.
Friendly Bee, the (Educational Films Corp.-Ditmar's)—May 20.
Fringe of Society, The (7 parts) (Foursquare-George Backer)—A-1039; C-Vol. 34-1191; R-Vol. 34-1186.
From Caterpillar to Butterfly (General Film-Clover).
Frozen Warning (6 parts) (Commonwealth Pictures)—A-748.
Full Speed Ahead (No. 6 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 13.
Furniture Movers, The (Pathe-Rolin)—June 30; C-1892.

G

Game With Fate, A (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 3; R-1613; C-1616; A-1619.
Gas Logic (Metro-Drew)—Apr. 1.
Gaumont Graphic No. 1 (Gaumont Co.)—S-290.
Gaumont Graphic No. 2 (Gaumont Co.)—Mar. 22; S-598.
Gaumont Graphic No. 3 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 5; S-754.
Gaumont Graphic No. 4 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 12.
Gaumont Graphic No. 5 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 19; S-904.
Gaumont Graphic No. 6 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 26; S-1046.
Gaumont Graphic No. 7 (Gaumont Co.)—May 3; S-1196.
Gaumont Graphic No. 8 (Gaumont Co.)—May May 10; S-1342.
Gaumont News No. 1 (Gaumont Co.)—Mar. 26; S-291.
Gaumont News No. 2 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 2; S-444.
Gaumont News No. 3 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 9; S-598.
Gaumont News No. 4 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 16; S-754.
Gaumont News No. 5 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 23; S-904.
Gaumont News No. 6 (Gaumont Co.)—Apr. 30; S-1046.
Gaumont News No. 7 (Gaumont Co.)—May 6; S-1197.
Gaumont News No. 8 (Gaumont Co.)—May 14; S-1342.
Germ Menace, The (No. 7 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra) Apr. 21; C-434.
Girl and the Graft, The (One of the O. Henry Series) (2 parts) General Film-Broadway Star).
Girl in His House, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 24; A-1897.
Girl from Beyond, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph-Blue Ribbon)—Apr. 15; A-436; R-587; C-589.
Girl Who Wouldn't Quit, The (5 parts) (Universal)—Mar. 25; A-Vol. 35-1874; R-129; C-131.
Girls You Know Series (The Art Bug) (Kleine-Edison-Flagg)—Apr. 10; R-433; C-590.
Girls You Know (The Spoiled Girl) (Kleine-Edison-Flagg)—Mar. 13; R-1757; C-1758.
Glass, The Manufacture of Window (James Ramsey)—R-80.
Golden Goal, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)-Blue Ribbon)—May 20; A-1190; R-1330; C-1333.
Good Night Paul (Select)—June 20; R-1891; C-1892.
Gowns and Girls (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—Apr. 3.
Grand Passion, The (7 parts) (Bluebird-Dorothy Phillips)—C-Vol. 35-245; R-Vol. 35-241; A-290.
Great Mine Disaster, The (No. 3 of Boy Scouts to the Rescue) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 29.
Greatest Show on Earth, The (Paramount-Ince)—May 6; A-899.
Grizzly Bear Pets; Uncle Sam's Stamp Factory; Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 8; R-384.
Guadeloupe (Pathe-Post Film Co.)—June 30.
Guilt of Silence, The (5 parts) (Bluebird)—A-1193; R-1331; C-1333.
Guilty Egg, The (Universal Star)—Apr. 27; C-1892.
Gunfighter, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart Reissue).
Hand at the Window, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 21; A-593; R-746; C-747.
Hand of Mystery, The (No. 5 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 6.

H

Handy Man, The (2 parts) (King Bee)—May 15.
Hardships of the British Army on Its Way to Bagdad (No. 3 of Britain's Bulwarks) (Pathe)—May 26; C-1334.
Haunts of Evil (No. 11 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 19; C-1037.
Hawaii; Women in the World of Work; The Beautiful; Cartoon by Earl Hurd (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 15; R-531.
He Couldn't Fool His Wife (General Film-Clover).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 22 (Pathe-International)—Mar. 10; S-138.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 23 (Pathe-International)—Mar. 10; S-138.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 24 (Pathe-International)—Mar. 17; S-138.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 25 (Pathe-International)—Mar 17.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 26 (Pathe-International—Mar. 24; S-291.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 27 (Pathe-International)—Mar 24; S-439.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 28 (Pathe-International)—Mar. 31; S-440.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 29 (Pathe-International)—Mar. 31; S-600.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 30 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 7; S-754.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 31 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 7; S-756.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 32 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 14; S-756.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 33 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 14; S-906.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 34 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 21; S-906.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 35 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 21.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 36 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 28; S-1045.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 37 (Pathe-International)—Apr. 28; S-1195.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 38 (Pathe-International)—May 5.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 39 (Pathe-International)—May 5; S-1340.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 40 (Pathe-International)—May 12; S-1340.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 41 (Pathe-International)—May 12.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 42 (Pathe-International)—May 19.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 43 (Pathe-International)—May 19.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 44 (Pathe-International)—May 26.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 45 (Pathe-International)—May 26.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 46 (Pathe-International)—June 2.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 47 (Pathe-International)—June 2.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 48 (Pathe-International)—June 9.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 49 (Pathe-International)—June 9.
Hearst-Pathe News No. 50 (Pathe-International).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 51 (Pathe-Intednational).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 52 (Pathe-International).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 53 (Pathe-International).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 54 (Pathe-International).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 55 (Pathe-International).
Heart of a Girl (5 parts) (World)—R-1891.
Heart of the Sunset (7 parts) (Goldwyn Special)—R-432; A-435; C-589.
Hearts of the World (Griffith)—R-369; C-434.
Hearts or Diamonds (5 parts) (Mutual-Star)—Apr. 29; R-893; C-897; A-902.
Hell Hound of Alaska (W. H. Productions Reissue)—A-752; R-1187.
Helping McAdoo (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Cartoon)—Apr. 28.
Her Ambitious Ambition (General Film-Diamond).
Her Decision (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 12; A-1038; R-1186; C-1188.
Her Final Reckoning (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 9; A-1622; R-1755; C-1757.
Her Helping Hand (Mutual-Strand)—Apr. 16; C-590.
Her Mistake (Julius Steger)—R-745.
Her Movie Madness (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—May 8; C-897.
Her Neckless and His Hoodoo Day (Crystal Film Co.).
Her One Mistake (5 parts) (Fox Special)—Apr. 28; A-749; R-895; C-897.
Her Rustic Romeo (Mutual-Strand)—May 28; C-1334.
Her Spooney Affair (Mutual-Strand)—June 25.
Her Screen Idol (2 parts) (Paramount-Sennett)—R-1890.
Her Terrible Time (Mutual-Strand)—May 14; C-1334.
Her Unmarried Life (2 parts) (Universal-Century)—May 29.
Here Comes the Groom (Christie)—Apr. 22; R-1473; C-1474.
Hey There! (Pathe-Rolin)—Apr. 28; C-590.
Hickory Hiram (Universal-Nestor)—Apr. 8; C-434.
High Spots of Hawaii (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—Apr. 22.
High Stakes (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 26; A-1338; R-1471; C-1475.
Hillcrest Mystery, The (5 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Mar. 24; A-Vol. 35-1870; R-129; C-130.
His Busy Day (2 parts) (Pathe-Rolin)—Apr. 28; C-747.

His Daughter Pays (Piedmont Pictures Corp.).
His Enemy, the Law (5 parts) Triangle)—June 16; A-1763; C-1892; R-1889.
Hit Fatal Fate (General Film-Diamond)—R-1616.
His Last Will (Eduactional Films Corp.-Katzenjammer Kids)—May 13.
His Majesty, Bunker Bean (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Apr. 8; A-286; R-432; C-433.
His Matrimonial Moans (General Film-Diamond).
His New Job (2 parts) (General Film-Essanay-Chaplin Reissue)—C-433.
His Own Home Town (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 27; R-1333; A-1335; C-1474.
His Smothered Love (2 parts) (Paramount-Mack Sennett)—May 6; R-896; C-1037.
Hit-the-Trail Holliday (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 16; R-1756; C-1757; A-1760.
Home Cure, The (Vitagraph-Drew)—Apr. 8.
"Home, James" (Universal-Nestor)—June 3; C-1892.
Home Trail, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—Mar. 25; A-Vol. 35-1870; R-129; C-130.
Honor of His House, The (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky-Paramount)—Apr. 1; A-135; R-430; C-433.
Honor's Cross (6 parts) (Goldwyn Special)—A-592; R-893; C-897.
Horse in Action, The—Part 2—Analysis of Motion and Valley of the Dordogne—France (Pathe)—Mar. 31; R-80; C-131.
Horse Training by Experts; Microscopic Revelations; Scientific Rose Culture; Cartoon (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 22; R-687.
Hospital Orderlies (Fox-Mutt and Jeff)—June 9; C-1892; R-1889.
Hot Time in Snakeville, A (General Film-Essaney Reissue).
House of Gold, The (5 parts) (Metro)—June 17; A-1764.
House of Hate, The (No. 4, The Man from Java) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Mar. 31; C-131.
House of Hate, The (No. 5, Spies Within) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 7; C-285.
House of Hate, The (No. 6, A Living Target) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 14; R-282.
House of Hate, The (No. 7, The Germ Menace) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 21; C-434.
House of Hate, The (No. 8, The Untold Secret) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 28; C- 590.
House of Hate, The (No. 9, Poisoned Darts) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 5; C-747.
House of Hate, The (No. 10, Double Crossed) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 12; C-897.
House of Hate, The (No. 11, Haunts of Evil) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 19; C-1037.
House of Hate, The (No. 12, Flashes in the Dark) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 26; C-1188.
House of Hate, The (No. 13, Enemy Aliens) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 2; C-1334.
House of Hate, The (No. 14, Under-World Allies) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 9; C-1475.
House of Hate, The (No. 15, The False Signal) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 16; C-1758.
House of Hate, The (No. 16, The Vial of Death) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 23.
House of Hate, The (No. 17, The Death Switch) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 30.
House of Silence, The (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Apr. 8; A-287; R-432; C-433.
House That Jack Built, The (Christie).
How Could You, Caroline? (5 parts) (Pathe)—May 5; R-894; C-897; A-900.
How Could You Jean? (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 23; C-1891; R-1888; A-1899.
How England Treats Her Prisoners (No. 4 of Britain's Bulwarks) (Pathe)—June 2; C-1475.
Hula Hula Dance (2 parts) (W. H. Productions-Chaplin Reissue)—R-1187.
Human Pendulum, The (No. 9 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 27; C-1334.
Hundrum Brown (5 parts) (W. W. Hodkinson-Paralta)—Mar. 15; A-134; R-432; C-434.
Hurled to Destruction (No. 12 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 24.
Hypocrites, The (Cosmofotofilm Co., Inc.)—R-1186; C-1188; A-1617.

I

I Love Charles Albert (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—May 5.
I'm a Man (2 parts) (General Film-Judge Brown)—R-1187; C-1188.
Ignorance (American Standard M. P. Corp.).
In and Out (Christie Film Corp.).
In Dutch (2 parts) (Universal-Century)—June 26; C-1892.
In Happy Honolulu (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—Apr. 8.
In Irons (No. 17 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 27; C-1334.
In the Desert's Grip (No. 11 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 17.
In the Shadow of the Rockies (2 parts) (General Film-Rancho).
In Southernmost Russia (Pathe)—June 2; C-1334; R-1426.
Ingenious Insects; America's Sleeping Giants; Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—May 6; R-1132.
Innocent's Progress (5 parts) (Triangle)—Mar. 31; A-Vol. 35-1869; R-129; C-131.
Interloper, The (5 parts) (World)—June 3; R-1471; C-1475; A-1477.
Into the Harem (No. 8 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 20; C-1334.
Invasion of Canada, The (No. 10 of The Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
Isn't It Warm? (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—June 16.

K

It's a Cruel World (Universal-Nestor)—Apr. 29; C-747.
It's a Wild Life (Pathe-Rolin)—Apr. 21; C-434.

J

Janitor, The (General Film-Ebony).
Jerry 8ries Again (Mutual-Cub)—C-284.
Jim's Folks (Vanco Films Co.)—C-1475.
Joan of Plattsburg (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—May 5; A-903; R-1033; C-1037.
Journey's End (5 parts) (World)—May 13; R-1034; C-1037; A-1042.
Junkman, The (2 parts) (Pathe-Rolin)—May 26.
Just a Woman (6 parts) (U. S. Exhibitors' Booking-Steger)—A-133; C-Vol. 35-99; R-Vol. 35-92.

K

Kaiser, The, the Beast of Berlin (7 parts) (Jewel Productions, Inc.)—R-Vol. 35-1704; C-Vol. 35-1867; A-438.
Kaiser's Death Messenger, The (No. 8 of The Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare-Wharton).
Kicked Out (Pathe-Rolin)—May 5; C-747.
Kid Is Klever, The (5 parts) (Fox Special)—June 30; A-133.
Kid Politics (2 parts) (General Film-Judge Brown).
Kidder & Ko (5 parts) (Pathe)—June 16; R-1755; C-1758; A-1760.
Kitchen Hero, A (Universal-Nestor)—May 6.
Klondike Today, The (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—May 13.
Knockout, The (Universal-Star)—June 22; C-1758.

L

Lady Detective, The, and His Wedding Day (Crystal Film Co.).
Lame Brains and Lunatics (Vitagraph-Big V)—June 17.
Land of Long Ago, The, and Sea Birds (Finley Nature Studies No. 13) (Universal)—Apr. 13.
Landloper, The (5 parts) (Metro-Yorke)—Apr. 1; A-131; R-433; C-590.
Last Raid of Zeppelin L-21 (2 parts) (General Film-Interstate Film Co.).—R-1035; C-1188.
La Tosca (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Mar. 25; A-Vol. 35-1869; R-130; C-130.
Law of the Great Northwest, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 14; A-436; R-589; C-590.
Laws and Outlaws (Vitagraph-Big V)—May 6.
Leak, The (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Cartoon)—C-130.
Leap to Fame (5 parts) (World)—Apr. 29; R-744; C-747; A-748.
Lend Me Your Name (5 parts) (Metro)—May 27; A-1335; R-1615; C-1616.
Lesson, The (5 parts) (Select Pictures)—May; A-1480.
Let's Get a Divorce (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Apr. 29; R-744; A-752; C-897.
Lie, The (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky-Artcraft)—Apr. 8; R-283; A-288; C-433.
Life Mask, The (5 parts) (First National-Petrova)—A-Vol. 35-1870; R-283; C-284.
Life or Honor (7 parts) (Ivan Film Productions)—R-129; C-130; A-436.
Life-Savers (Fox—Mutt and Jeff)—June 16.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 1, A Woman's Honor) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 6; C-131.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 2, Beasts of the Jungle) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 13; R-430; C-434.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 3, The Net of Terror) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 15; C-434.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 4, A Woman's Scream) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 27; C-590.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 5, The Secret Document) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 3.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 6, The Dungeon of Terror (2 parts) Universal Special)—ay 10; C-897.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 7, Quicksand) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 17.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 8, Into the Harem) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 20; C-1334.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 9, The Human Pendulum) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—May 27; C-1334.
Lion's Claws, The No. 10, The Escape Through the Flames) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—June 8; C-1475.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 11, Caught in the Toils) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—June 15; C-1758.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 12, The Spies' Cave) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—June 22.
Lion's Claws, The (No. 13, In Disguise) (2 parts) (Universal Special)—June 29.
Little Miss No-Account (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 1; R-283; C-284; A-290.
Little Runaway, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 6; A-900; R-1033; C-1037.
Little Sister of Everybody, A (5 parts) (Pathe)—June 30; R-1891.
Living Target, A (No. 6 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 14; R-282.
Lonely Woman, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 28; A-749; R-894; C-897.
Last Rebel, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 9; A-1618; R-1757; C-1758.
Lost on Dress Parade (one of O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star)—R-745; C-896.
Love and a Gold Brick (Christie Film Corp.)—R-1473; C-1474.
Love and Lavallieres (Vitagraph-Big V)—May 20.
Love Brokers, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Mar. 31; R-282; C-285; A-285.
Love Loops the Loop (2 parts) (Paramount-Mack Sennett)—June 3; C-1474.
Love of Bob (2 parts) (General Film-Judge Brown).
Love's Conquest (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 2; A-1478; R-1613; C-1616.
Love's Lucky Day (General Film-Clover).
Lumbering for War Time; The Art of Animal Training; Cartoon by Earl Hurd (Paramount-Bray)—May 13.

M

Madam Sphinx (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 9; A-1623; R-1756; C-1758.
Magic Eye, The (5 parts) (Universal Special)—Apr. 1; A-289; R-431; C-434.
Main 1-2-3 (2 parts) (World-Fay Tincher)—May 27; C-1334.
Mlle. Paulette (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 5; A-899.
Man from Java, The (No. 4 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Mar. 31; C-131.
Man from Nowhere, The (2 parts) (General Film-Blue Ridge).
Man Hunt, The (5 parts) (World)—June 17; R-1754; C-1758; A-1759.
Man Who Woke Up, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 2; A-1482.
Manhattan Madness (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Douglas Fairbanks Reissue).
Man's World, A (5 parts) (Metro)—June 24; A-1898.
Marriage (W. L. Sherry-Keeney).
Marriage Bubble, The (3 parts), and Unfaithful (2 parts) (Triangle)—Mar. 31; R-Vol. 35-1702; C-Vol. 35-1706; A-132.
Marriage Lie, The (5 parts) (Bluebird)—Apr. 27 R-587; C-589; A-750.
Marvelous Maciste, The (6 parts) (Hanover Film Co.) (A-1041.
Mary's Frame-Up (Mutual-Strand)—Apr. 23; C-746.
Masks and Faces (5 parts) (World)—May 6; R-895; C-897; A-901.
Matching Billy (2 parts) (Goldwyn-Capitol)—June 17.
Mating of Marcella, The (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 20; A-1191; R-1330; C-1333.
Matrimaniac, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Douglas Fairbanks Reissue).
Me Und God; or the Crimson God Depicting Kaiser's Attempt to Enslave World (5 parts) (Romayne Super Film Co.).
M'Liss (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky-Artcraft)—May 13; R-894; C-897; A-1043.
Melting Pot of the Pacific, The (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—June 3.
Men (6 parts) (Foursquare-U. S. Exhibitors-Bacon-Backer)—R-1187; C-1334; A-1339.
Mercy, the Mummy Mumbled (General Film-Ebony).
Merry Mermaids (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—June 5; C-1475.
Messenger, The (2 parts) (King-Bee Films Corp.)—Apr. 15.
Messines and Its Irish Captors (Britain's Bulwarks No. 2) (Pathe)—May 19; C-1188.
Microscopic Revelations; Horse Training by Experts; Scientific Rose Culture; Cartoon (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 22; R-531.
Midnight Flyer, The (2 parts) (Universal)—June 29.
Midnight Madness (5 parts) (Bluebird)—June 8; A-1617; C-1891; R-1889.
Mile-a-Minute Kendall (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 13; R-1033; C-1037; A-1039.
Milk-Fed Hero, A (General Film-Ebony).
Million Dollar Dollies, The (5 parts) (Screen Classics, Inc.-Emerald)—A-1190.
Million Dollar Mystery (6 parts) (Arrow Film Corp.-Randolph)—R-1473; C-1474; A-1895.
Missing (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 2; R-1474; A-1478.
Mr. Briggs Closes the House (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—Apr. 7.

Mr. Fix-it (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky-Artcraft)—Apr. 22; R-432; C-433; A-592.
Mr. Miller's Economies (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—Apr. 28.
Mr. Miller's Muddles Through (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—May 12.
Mrs. Slacker (5 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Mar. 31; A-131; R-282; C-285.
Model's Confession, The (6 parts) (Universal-Special)—June 8; A-1483; R-1756; C-1758.
Monster of Fate (Gen. Film-Hanover)—A-1482.
Moonshine (2 parts) (Paramount-Arbuckle)—R-1185; C-1188.
Moral Suicide (7 parts) (Graphic Film Corp.)—A-899.
More Trouble (5 parts) (Pathe)—July 14; R-1615; C-1758.
Mother's Secret, A (5 parts) (Bluebird)—May 4; R-744; C-746; A-900.
Mountain Law (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Blue Ridge); R-1187; C-1188.
Mum's the Word (Mutual-Star)—May 3; C-1892.
Munition's Campaign, The (No. 9 of The Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare).
My Lady Nicotine (Mutual-Strand)—May 21; C-1475.
My Own United States (8 parts) (Screen Classics-Frohman)—Jan.; A-748; R-Vol. 35-685; C-Vol. 35-689.
Mysterious Client, The (5 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—May 19; R-1185; C-1188; A-1189.
Mysterious Mr. Davey, The (Vitagraph-Drew; Reissue)—May 20.

N

Nancy Comes Home (5 parts) (Triangle)—Mar. 24; A-Vol. 35-1868; R-129; C-131.
Native State (No. 7 of The Son of Democracy) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Mar. 25; C-433.
Naughty, Naughty (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Mar. 25; A-Vol. 35-1868; R-128; C-130.
Neighbor's Keyhole, A (2 parts) (Fox Sunshine)—May 5; R-1331; C-1333.
Nemesis and the Candy Man (One of O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Broadway Star)—R-1036; C-1188.
Net of Terror, The (No. 3 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—Apr. 15; C-434.
Never Surprise Your Wife (Christie Film Corp.).
Newspaper Clippings (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—May 19.
New York—By Heck (Universal-Nestor)—May 13.
Night Out, A (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Essanay-Chaplin; Reissue).
Nine-Tenths of the Law (6 parts) (Atlantic Distributing Corp.)—R-744; C-746; A-1041.
Non-Stop Kid, The (Pathe-Rolin)—May 12; C-897.
Nugget in the Rough, A (5 parts) (Ernest Shipman).

O

Oblin: the Switzerland of British Columbia (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—May 20.
Occultism (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Cartoon)—May 12; C-1474.
O'Garry Rides Alone (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Blue Ridge).
Oh! the Women (Gen. Film-Clover).
Old Hartwell's Cub (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 19; A-1192; R-1333; C-1334.
Old Love for New (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 26; A-1338.
Old Wives for New (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 20; A-1191; R-1470; C-1474.
Oldest Law, The (5 parts) (World)—May 27; R-1331; C-1334; A-1339.
On a Fox Farm (Gen. Film-Progressive).
On Ice (Fox-Mutt and Jeff)—Apr. 21.
On the Beach at Waikiki (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—May 27.
On the Jump (Pathe-Rolin)—Mar. 31; C-130.
On the Trail (No. 2 of Boy Scouts to the Rescue) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—Apr. 22; C-590.
One Horse Show, The (Universal-Star)—May 25.
Only Road, The (5 parts) (Metro)—June 3; A-1623; R-1755; C-1758.
Open Switch, The (No. 2 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 15.
Ordeal of Rozetta, The (5 parts) (Select Pictures)—May; A-1479.
Our Egypt of the Southwest (Educational Films Corp.)—Apr. 17.
Our Fighting Ally—The Tank (Pathe)—May 5; C-897.
Our Filipino Fighting Force (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—Apr. 29.
Out of the Dungeon (No. 10 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 10.
Over the Garden Wall (Mutual-Strand)—May 7; C-1188.
Over the Top (8 parts) (Vitagraph)—R-430; C-434; A-1194.

P

Painted Lily, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 30.
Panama Canal, Part 1 (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Feb. 1.
Panama Canal, Part 2 (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Feb. 8.
Paper Hanger's Revenge, The (Gen. Film-Clover).
Paramount-Bray Pictograph (Issued Weekly) (Paramount-Bray); No. 112-R-80; No. 113-R-234; No. 114-R-384.
Parson Pepp (Goldberg-Scrantonia).
Passing of the Third Floor Back (6 parts) (First National-Brenon)—R-895; C-897; A-900.
Passing the Bomb (Universal-Nestor)—June 17; C-1892; R-1889.
Patriotism (W. W. Hodkinson Corp.)—June 10; C-1892.
Pay Day (5 parts) (Metro)—May 27; A-1336.
Paying His Debt (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 28; A-749; R-895; C-897.
Pearls Without Price (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—June 30.
Peerless Pineapples of the Pacific (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—Apr. 15.
Peg of the Pirates (5 parts) (Fox)—May 12; A-898; R-1185; C-1188.
Pershing's Crusaders (First National Exhibitors' Circuit).
Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 1 (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Mar. 1.
Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 2 (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Mar. 8; R-531.
Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 3 (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Mar. 15.
Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 4 (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Mar. 22.
Pigskin Hero, A (Universal-Star)—Apr. 8; C-434.
Pink Pajamas (Universal-Nestor)—Apr. 3; C-131.
Play Straight or Fight (2 parts) (Universal)—June 15— C-1892.
Pipe the Whiskers (Pathe-Rolin)—Apr. 14; C-285.
Playing the Game (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky-Ince)—Apr. 22; A-591; R-1186; C-1188.
Plot Against Organized Labor, The (No. 6 of The Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare-Wharton).
Plunge of Horror, The (No. 8 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 27.
Poisoned Darts (2 parts) (No. 9 of The House of Hate) (Pathe-Astra)—May 5; C-747.
Poor Fish, The (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)
Porters, The (Gen. Film-Ebony)—June 2; C-1616.
Pretty Babies (Universal-L-Ko)—May 15; C-1334.
Primitive Woman, The (5 parts) (Mutual-Star-American)—Apr. 15; A-594; R-743; C-746.
Prunella (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 27; A-Vol. 35-1707; R-1472; C-1474.
Puno, and Scenes Around Lake Titicaca, Bolivia (Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue)—Apr. 29.
Purple Dress, The (One of O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Broadway Star)—R-1757; C-1757.
Purple Lily, The (5 parts) (World)—Apr. 22; R-588; C-590; A-591.

Q

Quick Triggers (2 parts) Universal)—June 22.
Quicksand (No. 7 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal-Special).

R

Raiders of Sunset Gap, The (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Blue Ridge)—C-1616.
Ranger, The (One of the Shorty Hamilton Series) (5 parts) (Ernest Shipman-Clifford).
Reason Why, The (5 parts) (Select)—Apr.; A-751; R-893; C-897.
Rebellion (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Judge Brown)—R-589; C-746.
Reclaimed (7 parts) (Chester Beecroft-Harry McRae Webster)—R-1472; C-1475.
Reckless Rover, The (General Film-Ebony).
Reckoning, The (No. 15 of Vengeance and The Woman) (2 parts) (Gtr. Vitagraph)—Apr. 1; C-130.
Red Crossed (Christie)—Apr. 15; R-743; C-746.
Red-Haired Cupid, A (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 2; A-1481; R-1614; C-1616.
Red, Red Heart, The (5 parts) (Bluebird)—Apr. 1; R-281; C-284; A-285.
Regular Patsy, A (Christie Film Corp.)—R-1473; C-1474.
Restitution (10 parts) (Mena Film Co.)—R-1472; C-1475.
Resurrection (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 6; A-898; R-1035; C-1037.
Return of Draw Egan, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart; Reissue).
Return of O'Garry, The (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Blue Ridge)—R-433; C-433; C-589.
Reuben's Romance Crystal Film Co.).
Rich Man, Poor Man (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Apr. 22; A-437.
Rich Man's Darling, A (5 parts) (Bluebird)—Apr. 8; A-438; C-896.
Richest Girl, The (5 parts) (Mutual-Star-Frohman)—Apr. 8; R-431; C-434; A-435.
Riders of the Night (5 parts) (Metro)—Apr. 29; A-751; R-1036; C-1188.
Riders of the Purple Sage (Fox)—June 16; A-1761.
Ring and the Ringer, The (Goldberg-Scrantonia).
Rip-Roaring Rivals (Gen. Film-Clover)—R-745; C-896.
Ripping Time, A (Universal-Star)—June 1; C-1892.
Risky Road, The (5 parts) (Universal)—Apr. 8; A-286; R-431; C-434.
Romance and Dynamite (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—June 19; C-1892.
Romance of the Underworld, A (6 parts) (W. L. Sherry-Keeney)—R-429; A-899.
Romans and Rascals (Vitagraph-Big V)—May 27.
Romantic Reggie (Vitagraph-Drew; Reissue)—June 3.
Romeo and Juliet (2 parts) (Crystal Film Co.).
Rooney's Sad Case (Vitagraph-Drew; Reissue)—May 27.
Rose o' Paradise (5 parts) (W. W. Hodkinson-Paralta)—May 20; R-1331; C-1333; A-1338.
Rough and Ready (6 parts) (Fox)—Mar. 24; A-133; R-281; C-284.
Rubaiyat of a Scotch Highball, The (One of O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Broadway Star)—R-1036; C-1037.
Ruler of the Road (5 parts) (Pathe)—Apr. 21; R-587; C-590; A-752.
Rummies and Razors (Vitagraph-Big V)—Apr. 8.
Runaway, The (No. 18 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—June 8; C-1475.
Running Wild (No. 16 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—May 25; C-1047.
Rural Riot, A (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—Apr. 24; C-590.

S

S. O. S. (American Standard M. P. Corp.).
St. Croix (Pathe-Post Film Co.)—June 23.
St. Thomas (Pathe-Post Film Co.)—June 16; C-1616.
Satan's Pawn (5 parts) (W. H. Productions; Reissue)—R-1187; A-1038.
Saucy Madeline (2 parts) (Paramount-Mack Sennett)—Apr. 22; R-588; C-746.
Saved from a Vamp (2 parts) (Universal-L-Ko)—Apr. 10.
Say! Young Fellow (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 16; A-1763.
Scarlet Drop, The (5 parts) (Universal)—Apr. 22; R-586; C-590; A-591.
Scarlet Road, The (5 parts)(Fox-Special)—June 23; A-1478.
Scenic Gems of America, Beauty to Order, Women in the World of Work, and Cartoon (Paramount-Bray)—June 17.
Scenic Gems of America; Charting the Sky; Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—May 27.
Science and Invention, On (Paramount-Bray Pictograph)—June 24.
Scientific Rose Culture; Microscopic Revelations; Horse Training by Experts; Cartoon (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 22.
Screen Telegram No. 4 (Mutual)—Mar. 13; C-Vol. 35-1867; S-136.
Screen Telegram No. 5 (Mutual)—Mar. 18; S-136.
Screen Telegram No. 6 (Mutual)—Mar. 20.
Screen Telegram No. 7 (Mutual)—Mar. 24; S-136; C-284.
Screen Telegram No. 8 (Mutual)—Mar. 27; C-284; S-440.
Screen Telegram No. 9 (Mutual)—Mar. 31; S-440.
Screen Telegram No. 10 (Mutual)—Apr. 3; C-434; S-442.
Screen Telegram No. 11 (Mutual)—Apr. 7; C-434; S-442.
Screen Telegram No. 12 (Mutual)—Apr. 10; S-753.
Screen Telegram No. 13 (Mutual)—Apr. 14; C-590; S-600.
Screen Telegram No. 14 (Mutual)—Apr. 17; C-746; S-753.
Screen Telegram No. 15 (Mutual)—Apr. 21; C-746; S-754.
Screen Telegram No. 16 (Mutual)—Apr. 24; C-897; S-903.
Screen Telegram No. 17 (Mutual)—Apr. 28; C-897; S-903.
Screen Telegram No. 18 (Mutual)—May 1; S-1046; C-1188.
Screen Telegram No. 19 (Mutual)—May 5; S-1046; C-1188.
Screen Telegram No. 20 (Mutual)—May 8; C-1188; S-1195.
Screen Telegram No. 21 (Mutual)—May 12; C-1188; S-1195.
Screen Telegram No. 22 (Mutual)—May 15; C-1334; S-1341.
Screen Telegram No. 23 (Mutual)—May 19; S-1341.

Screen Telegram No. 24 (Mutual)—May 22; C-1475.
Screen Telegram No. 25 (Mutual)—May 26; C-1475.
Screen Telegram No. 26 (Mutual)—May 29; C-1616.
Screen Telegram No. 27 (Mutual)—June 2; C-1616.
Screen Telegram No. 28 (Mutual)—June 5.
Screen Telegram No. 29 (Mutual)—June 9; C-1758.
Screen Telegram No. 30 (Mutual)—June 12; C-1892.
Screen Telegram No. 31 (Mutual)—June 16; C-1892.
Screen Telegram No. 32 (Mutual)—June 19.
Screen Telegram No. 33 (Mutual)—June 23.
Screen Telegram No. 34 (Mutual)—June 26.
Screen Telegram No. 35 (Mutual)—June 30.
Seal of Silence, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 29; A-750; R-894; C-897.
Secret Document, The (No. 5 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—May 3.
Self Made Lady, A (2 parts) (Fox-Sunshine)—Mar. 15; R-431; C-434.
Selfish Yates (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky-Artcraft)—May 20; R-1036; C-1188; A-1193.
Service Star, The (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—June 30.
Scenic Gems of America; Beauty to Order; Women in the World of Work, Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—June 17.
Shackled (5 parts) (W. W. Hodkinson-Paralta)—May 20; A-1477; R-1755; C-1757.
Shame (Gen. Film-Duplex Films)—A-1043.
She Couldn't Grow Up (Mutual-Strand)—Apr. 2.
Shifty Shoplifter, The (Universal-Nestor)—Apr. 15.
Shooting of Dan McGrew (5 parts) (Metro Reissue)—A-1894.
Sic 'em Towser (Pathe-Rolin)—June 9; C-1475.
Silent Witness, The (Foursquare)—A-1042.
Silent Wonderlands of the West, The, No. 1 (Educational Films Corp.)—May 15.
Silent Wonderlands of the West, The, No. 2 (Educational Films Corp.)—May 29.
Sin Woman, The (Foursquare).
Sinking of the Lusitania (Windsor McCay)—R-1034; C-1188.
Sins Ye Do, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-Frank Keenan; Reissue).
Sisters of the Golden Circle (One of the O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Broadway Star).
Sisters of the Golden Circle (One of O. Henry Stories) (2 parts) (General Film-Broadway Star).
Skids and Scalawags (Vitagraph-Big V)—June 10.
Slave Auction, The (No. 9 of The Son of Democracy) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Apr. 8.
Sleuths and Slickers (Vitagraph-Big V)—Apr. 1.
Slippery Slim and the Claim Agent (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Slippery Slim and the Fortune Teller (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue)—C-433.
Slippery Slim and His Tombstone (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue)—C-1037.
Slippery Slim, Diplomat (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Slippery Slim's Dilemma (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Slippery Slim's Inheritance (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Slippery Slim's Stratagem (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Smashing Through (5 parts) (Universal Special)—June 22; R-1755; C-1758; A-1759.
Snakeville Epidemic, A (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Snakeville's New Sheriff (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Snakeville's New Waitress (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue)—C-1474.
Sneakers and Snoozers (Vitagraph-Big V)—June 3.
Soap Girl, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 17; A-622; C-1892; R-1888.
Social Ambition (7 parts) (Goldwyn-Selexart)—A-593; R-1036; C-1037.
Social Briars (5 parts) (Mutual-American)—May 27; A-1040; R-1331; C-1334.
Social Hypocrites (5 parts) (Metro)—Apr. 8; A-287; R-588; C-746.
Social Quicksands (5 parts) (Metro)—June 10; R-1755; C-1758; A-1760.
Society for Sale (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 4; A-592; R-743; C-747.
Sold at Auction (No. 13 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—May 3; C-747.
Somebody's Baby (Christie)—Apr. 29; R-1473; C-1474.
Somewhere in Turkey (Pathe-Rolin)—June 16; C-1616.
Son of Democracy, The (No. 7, Native State) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Mar. 25; C-433.
Son of Democracy, The (No. 8, Down the River) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Apr. 1.
Son of Democracy, The (No. 9, The Slave Auction) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Apr. 8.
Son of Democracy, The (No. 10, Under the Stars) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Apr. 15.
Song and the Sergeant, The (One of O. Henry Series) (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Broadway Star)—R-Vol. 35-1866; C-284.
Sophie Gets Stung (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Sophie's Birthday Party (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Sophie's Legacy (Gen. Film-Essanay; Reissue).
Soul for Sale, A (6 parts) (Jewel Production, Inc.)—R-1472; C-1475; A-1618.
Soul of Buddah, The (5 parts) (Fox)—R-1035; A-1039.
Speeding Doom, The (No. 3 of The Woman in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 22.
Spies and Spills (Vitagraph-Big V)—May 13.
Spies' Cave, The (No. 12 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts)—(Universal Special)—June 22.
Spies' Nest, The (No. 4 of The Boy Scouts to the Rescue) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—May 10.
Spies Within (No. 5 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 7; C-285.
Splendid Sinner, The (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—Mar. 24; A-132; R-281; C-284.
Spoiled Girl, The (Girls You Know Series) (Kleine-Edison-Flagg)—Mar. 13; R-1757; C-1758.
Spooks (Gen. Film-Ebony).
Spotted (Mutual-Strand)—Apr. 30; C-897.
Spying the Spy (Gen. Film-Ebony)—C-1037.
Square Deal, A (5 parts) (Mutual-Star)—June 10; R-1614; C-1616; A-1760.
Square Deal Man, The (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart; Reissue).
Stained Face, The (No. 15 of The Bull's Eye) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—May 18.
Station Content (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 16; A-1763; C-1892; R-1889.
Stenographer, The (One of the Girls You Know Series) (Kleine-Edison-Flagg)—Mar. 27.
Stepping Some (Universal-Star)—June 15; C-1892.
Still Alarm, The (Pioneer Film-Selig).
Stolen Keyhole, The (Universal-Nestor)—Apr. 22; C-1892.
Stolen Orders (8 parts) (M. Weissberg-Brady)—R-1754.
Story of the Glove, The (Vitagraph-Drew; Reissue)—May 6.
Straight and Narrow (2 parts) (King Bee)—June 15.
Strange Animals from Many Climes—The Crimea (Pathe)—May 12.
Street of Seven Stars, The (6 parts) (De Luxe Pictures, Inc.)—R-1472; C-1474.
Strength of the Weak, The (Vitagraph-Blue Ribbon)—May 13; A-1038.
Strike Breeders, The (No. 5 of The Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare-Wharton).
Struggle Everlasting, The (Arrow Film-Harry Rapf)—A-437; R-Vol. 35-92; C-Vol. 35-99.
Superintendents (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Cartoon)—May 19; C-1474.
Swat the Fly (Cartoon and Ditmars Animals) (Educational Films Corp.)—C-1616.
Sweden, Timber Transportation and St. Flour and Aurillac, Picturesque France (Pathe)—Apr. 7; C-285; R-234.

T

Tail of a Cat, The (Universal-Star)—Apr. 20; C-435.
Tail of a Pig, The (Fox-Mutt and Jeff)—June 2.
Tarzan of the Apes (8 parts) (First National Film)—R-Vol. 35-1002; C-Vol. 35-1006; A-594.
Tempered Steel (7 parts) (First National Petrova Pictures Co.)—A-1189.
Their Breezy Affair (Christie Film Corp.)—R-1473; C-1474.
Their Neighbor's Baby (2 parts) (Triangle-Keystone)—Apr. 21.
There Goes the Bride (Universal-Star)—June 8; C-1892.
Three Fives, The (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Judge Brown).
This Is the Life (2 parts) (Jester Comedy Co.).
Tidbits of Travel (Educational Films Corp.)—May 1.
Tiger Man, The (5 parts) (Artcraft)—Apr. 1; A-135; R-586; C-589.
Tiger of the Sea, The (7 parts) (Ernest Shipman).
Today in Samoa (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—June 10.
Tonga Isles, The (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—June 24.
To Hell with the Kaiser (Screen Classics, Inc.)—A-1762.
Tonsorial Artists (Fox-Mutt and Jeff Cartoon)—May 26; C-1892; R-1889.
Toys of Fate (7 parts) (Metro-Screen Classic, Inc.)—R-1330; C-1333; A-1337.
Trail to Yesterday, The (5 parts) (Metro)—May 5; A-900; R-1187; C-1188.
Training Women Sharpshooters, Our Bone Relations; A New Use for a House Boat; Cartoon by "Me und Gott" (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 1.
Trap, The (5 parts) (World)—Apr. 15; R-429; C-435; A-437.
Treachery at Sea (No. 5 of Boy Scouts to the Rescue) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—May 18.
Treasure of the Sea (5 parts) (Metro)—Apr. 22; A-595; R-896.
Trinidad, British West Indies (Pathe)—Apr. 21; C-747; R-843.
Triumph of the Weak, The (5 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 13; R-1185; C-1188.
Triumph of Venus, The (5 parts) (General Film Victory Film Co.)—R-Vol. 35-1556; C-Vol. 35-1560; A-1041.
Trooper 44 (5 parts) (Ernest Shipman-E. I. S.).
Troubled Waters (Crystal Film Co.).
True Blue (7 parts) (Fox Standard)—May 5; R-1034; C-1037; A-1192.
Truthful Tulliver (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart; Reissue).
Tucson Jennie's Heart (2 parts) (Gen. Film-Broadway Star-Wolfville)—R-1757; C-1757.
Twenty-One (5 parts) (Pathe)—Apr. 7; R-430; C-434; A-593.
Twins, The (Educational Films Corp.)—C-896.
Two Gun Gussie (Pathe-Rolin)—May 19; C-1037.
Two-Soul Woman, The (5 parts) (Universal)—May 11; R-894; C-897; A-1040.
Two Tough Tender Feet (Paramount-Mack Sennett)—June 17.
Tyrant Fear (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Apr. 29; R-742; C-746; A-751.

U

Unchastened Woman, The (5 parts) (Kleine-Rialto-De Luxe)—R-1891.
Unclaimed Goods (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—Apr. 15; A-439; R-588; C-589.
Uncle Sam's Stamp Factory; Grizzly Bear Pets; Cartoon by Wallace Karlson (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 8; R-384.
Under the Stars (No 10 of Son of Democracy) (2 parts) (Paramount-Benjamin Chapin)—Apr. 15.
Under-World Allies (No. 14 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 9; C-1475.
Under the Yoke (5 parts) (Fox)—June 9; A-1618.
Unfaithful (2 parts) and The Marriage Bubble (3 parts) (Triangle—Mar. 31; R-Vol. 35-1702; C-Vol. 35-1706; A-132.
Universal Current Events No. 45 (Universal)—Mar. 16; S-142.
Universal Current Events No. 46 (Universal)—Mar. 23; S-442.
Universal Current Events No. 47 (Universal)—Mar. 30; C-434; S-442.
Universal Current Events No. 48 (Universal)—Apr. 6; C-590; S-600.
Universal Current Events No. 49 (Universal)—Apr. 13; C-747; S-756.
Universal Current Events No. 50 (Universal)—Apr. 20; C-897; S-1044.
Universal Current Events No. 51 (Universal)—Apr. 27; C-1037; S-1044.
Universal Current Events No. 52 (Universal)—May 4; S-1196; C-1334.
Universal Current Events No. 53 (Universal)—May 11; C-1334.
Universal Current Events No. 54 (Universal)—May 25; C-1475.
Universal Current Events No. 55 (Universal)—June 1; C-1616.
Universal Current Events No. 56 (Universal)—June 8; C-1758.
Universal Current Events No. 57 (Universal)—June 15; C-1892.
Universal Current Events No. 58 (Universal)—June 22.
Universal Current Events No. 59 (Universal)—June 29.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 62 (Universal)—Mar. 15; R-Vol. 35-1650; S-140.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 63 (Universal)—Mar. 22; S-142.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 64 (Universal)—Mar. 29; S-142.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 65 (Universal)—Apr. 5; R-80; S-291.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 66 (Universal)—Apr. 12; R-234; S-598.
niversal Screen Magazine No. 67 (Universal)—Apr. 19; R-384; S-598.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 68 (Universal)—Apr. 27; R-531; S-903.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 69 (Universal)—May 4; R-687; S-904.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 70 (Universal)—May 10; S-904.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 71 (Universal)—May 17; S-1045.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 72 (Universal)—May 24; S-1045.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 73 (Universal)—May 31; S-1340.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 74 (Universal)—June 8; R-1558.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 75 (Universal)—June 15.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 76 (Universal)—June 22.
Universal Screen Magazine No. 77 (Universal)—June 29.
Untold Secret, The (No. 8 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—Apr. 28; C-590.
Up in the Air (Educational Films Corp.)—C-1474.

Up Romance Road (5 parts) (Mutual-Star)—June 24; C-1892; R-1890; A-1896.
Up She Goes (Mutual-Strand)—Mar. 26; C-284.
Up the Road With Sally (5 parts) (Select)—April; R-588; C-590; A-752.

V

Vial of Death, The (No. 16 of The House of Hate) (2 parts) (Pathe-Astra).—June 23.
Vengeance (6 parts) (World)—May 20; R-1186; A-1190; C-1334.
Vengeance and The Woman (No. 15, The Reckoning) (2 parts) (Gtr. Vitagraph)—Apr. 1; C-130.
Venus Model, The (6 parts) (Goldwyn)—June 16; A-1620.
Viligantes, The (Bear State Film Co.).
Viviette (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—June 9; R-1614; C-1616; A-1619.
Voice of Destiny, The (5 parts) (Pathe-Diando)—June 23; C-1892; R-1889; A-1894.
Von Rintelen, the Destroyer (No. 4 of The Eagle's Eye) (2 parts) (Foursquare-Wharton).
Vortex, The (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 7; A-134.

W

Waiter's Wasted Life, A (2 parts) (Fox-Sunshine)—Apr. 7; R-587; C-589.
Wales, Picturesque (Pathe)—Apr. 28; C-590; R-1131.
Wales, Picturesque—Langollen—and Picture Spots in England (Pathe)—Apr. 28; R-687.
War Garden Hints; American Rifles and Riflemen; Cartoon by Bray Studio (Paramount-Bray)—May 20.
War Garden Hints; Building the Liberty Hospitals (Paramount-Bray)—June 3; R-1558.
War Garden Hints No. 2 (On Paramount-Bray Pictograph)—June 24.
Way Up in Society (Gen. Film-Diamond)—C-1616.
We Should Worry (5 parts) (Fox-Special)—June 16; A-1336; C-1892; R-1888.
Western Blood (5 parts) (Fox-Special)—Apr. 14; A-437; R-742; C-746.
What She Did to Her Husband, and Almost Lucky (Crystal Film Co.).
What the Ice Age Left (Educational Films Corp.)—May 8.
What the Wind Did (Mutual-Strand)—June 4; C-1474.
What's in the Trunk? (Crystal Film Co.).
When Greek Meets Greek (Vitagraph-Drew)—June 24.
When Men Betray (6 parts) (Graphic)—June 3; R-1614; C-1616; A-1899.
When Slippery Slim Met the Champion (Gen. Film-Essanay).
When Two Play a Game (Vitagraph-Drew)—June 17.
Where the Sun Sets Red (Gen. Film-Rancho).
Which Woman? (5 parts) (Bluebird)—A-1762; C-1891; R-1890.
Whirlpool, The (Select)—June 30.
Whispering Chorus, The (5 parts) (Artcraft)—Mar. 25; A-Vol. 35-1869; R-128; C-130.
Whispering Wires of War (Pathe)—Apr. 14; C-434; R-531.
Whistles and Windows (Vitagraph-Big V)—Apr. 22.
White Man's Law, The (5 parts) (Famous Players-Lasky)—May 6; R-745; C-897; A-898.
Whither Thou Goest (Foursquare).
Who Is to Blame? (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 19; A-1190; R-1332; C-1334.
Who's Your Wife? (Universal-Nestor)—May 27; C-1892.
Who's Zoo (2 parts) (Universal-L-KO)—May 22; C-1334.
Who Killed Walton? (5 parts) (Triangle)—Apr. 14; A-438; R-589; C-590.
Whose Baby Are You? (Universal-Star)—May 11; C-897.
Whose Wife? (Christie Film Corp.)
Why—the Bolsheviki (5 parts) (Export & Import Film Corp.)—A-1039.
Widow's Camouflage, A (Gen. Film-Clover).
Wild Animals of the Yellowstone (Universal-Finley)—R-234.
Wild Babies (Educational Films Corp.—Ditmars')—May 6.
Wild Goats and Sheep (Educational Films Corp.-Ditmars')—Apr. 22.
Wild Women and Tame Lions (2 parts) (Fox-Sunshine)—June 2; R-1615; C-1616.
Winning of Beatrice, The (5 parts) (Metro)—May 20; A-1190; R-1330; C-1333.
Witch Woman, The (5 parts) (World)—Apr. 8; A-132; R-281; C-285.
With Hoops of Steel (5 parts) (W. W. Hodkinson-Paralta)—Apr. 29; A-902; R-1035; C-1037.
With Neatness and Dispatch (5 parts) (Metro)—Apr. 15; A-439; R-745; C-897.
With the Drifters and Mine Sweepers in the Danger Zone (Britain's Bulwarks No. 5) (Pathe)—June 9; C-1616.
Wolfe Lowry (5 parts) (Hiller & Wilk-W. S. Hart; Reissue).
Wolves of the Border (5 parts) (Triangle)—May 12; A-1041; R-1187; C-1188.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 1, Caught in the Web) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 8; R-282.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 2, The Open Switch) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 15.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 3, The Speeding Doom) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 22.
Woman in the Web, The No. 4, The Clutch of Terror) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—Apr. 29.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 5, The Hand of Mystery) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 6.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 6, Full Speed Ahead) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 13.
Woman in the Web, The No. 7, The Crater of Death) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 20.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 8, The Plunge of Terror) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—May 27.
Woman in the Web, The No. 9, The Fire Trap) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 3.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 10, Out of the Dungeon) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 10.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 11, In the Desert's Grip) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 17.
Woman in the Web, The (No. 12, Hurled to Destruction) (2 parts) (Vitagraph)—June 24.
Woman of Redemption, A (5 parts) (World)—June 24; C-1892; R-1890; A-1897.
Woman's Honor, A No. 1 of The Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—Apr. 6; C-131.
Woman's Scream, A (No. 4 of the Lion's Claws) (2 parts) (Universal-Special)—Apr. 27; C-590.
Women in the World of Work; Hawaii; The Beautiful; Cartoon by Earl Hurd (Paramount-Bray)—Apr. 15.
Women in the World of Work; Scenic Gems of America; Beauty to Order, Cartoon by Wallace Carlson (Paramount-Bray)—June 17.
Wooing of Coffee-Cake Kate (Gen. Film-Clover)—R-745; C-896.
Wrong Flat, The (2 parts) (Jester Comedy Co.)—R-1333; C-1333.

Y

Yellow Ticket, The (5 parts) (Pathe-Astra)—June 2; R-1471; C-1475; A-1479.
Yellowstone Park, A Day at, and Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance—England (Finley Nature Studies No. 12) (Universal-Special)—Apr. 6.
Yesterdays in Samoa (Paramount-Burton Holmes)—June 17.
Yosemite in Winter (Pathe)—June 9; C-1475; R-1558.
Yosemite Valley (Lincoln & Parker)—R-531.
You Can't Believe Everything (5 parts) (Triangle)—June 23; A-1899.
Youthful Affair, A (Metro-Drew)—Apr. 8.

If you haven't received yours as yet, communicate with your nearest Universal Exchange, for a copy of the huge Advertising Campaign book on the "LION'S CLAWS." It shows you how to put across this big serial thriller for 18 solid weeks of big business.

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO., Largest Ask to see the first three episodes. Ask to see the photographic album containing scenes and action, then book before your competitor beats you to it. It's the biggest serial by miles now on the market. Also if you haven't played "THE RED ACE," "THE BULL'S EYE" and "THE MYSTERY SHIP" serials ask for facts and figures immediately.

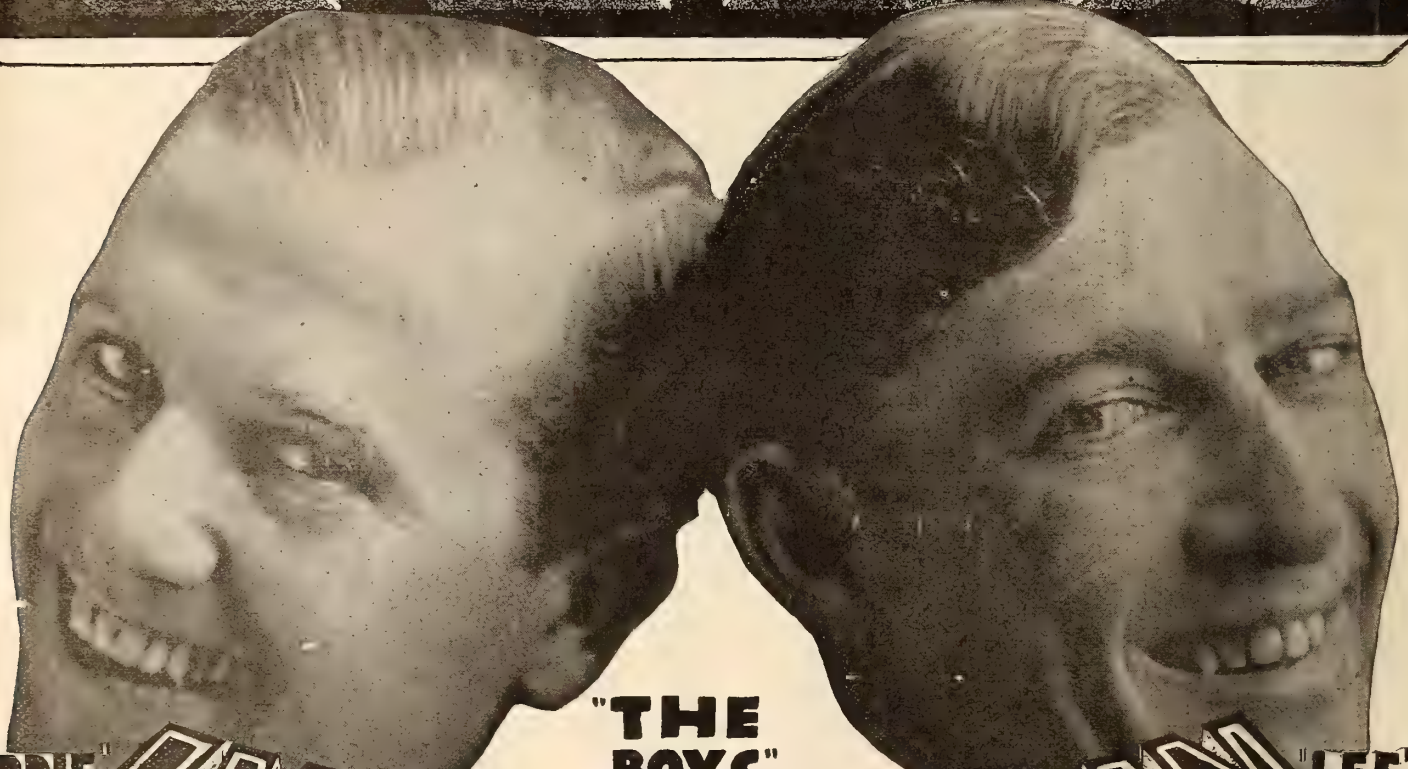
Film Manufacturing Company in the Universe, Carl Laemmle, President, 1600 Broadway, New York

SOON



"EDDIE" "THE BOYS" "LEE"

LYONS-MORAN

STAR COMEDIES

TO SHAKE THE WORLD WITH LAUGHTER

FIRST RELEASE

"A PIGSKIN HERO"

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO., Largest Film Manufacturing Co. in the Universe, Carl Laemmle, President, 1600 Broadway, New York

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC.

1600 BROADWAY N.Y.

"THE KAISER" The Beast of Berlin

New York over "The —The Beast

WITH the Broadway Theatre's first showing of Rupert Julian's super-sensation, now property of Jewel Productions, blasé New York went wild.

At last, red-blooded Americans have before them a picture—no, a revelation, that sets them boiling with rage, fighting mad. At last, Americans see the evil thing they are battling against. At last, they know they have good right to be mad.

"Thank God!" says Burr McIntosh, "little old New York finally got up nerve enough to publicly call the Kaiser just what he is, 'The Beast of Berlin.'"

A Picture not of battlefields but of one man's murderous, treacherous, lecherous soul.

A Drama of mad, ruthless ambitions. A shocking expose of the secret instincts of the wickedest human being in all history.

An absorbing, thrilling, dramatic Story that reaches the pinnacle of artistry through its daring conceptions and opulent settings. Photographic effects such as the world has seldom seen.

At the very first showing at The Broadway, men and women stood up and cheered like mad. The New York American said:

"Polite playgoers became an orgiastic mob."

They'll do the same thing in your theatre if you'll only give them the chance.

Get the full money-meaning of this.

Here's a marvel of a Picture that will pack your house to the fire-limits day after day after day.

Here's a Picture that will pull in more people and more money than you ever took in before on any single day. A Picture that will keep on taking it in for a bigger number of days. A Picture that will get you a new record-net-profit.

Furthermore, "The Kaiser—the Beast of Berlin" will be sold alone, without conditions requiring you to book

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS
INC.
1600 Broadway, New York

All you can use of the Strongest Publicity that brains can turn ou

Went Wild

KAISER of Berlin"

some additional and inferior feature in order to get the thumping profit in this one.

THE BEST CRITICS IN THE BUSINESS SAY:

"Masterful screen production. It is the moving picture stupendous."—MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

"It is a picture worthy of the history-making age that produced it. It moves one to tears. It brings a prayer to one's lips. Will be a furore all over the country."
—BILLBOARD.

"From a patriotic standpoint, this film should prove a bear and it ought to bring down the house anywhere. There are great advertising possibilities in this picture. Taken as a whole it should prove a big money-maker."
—WID'S.

"A Picture to make your blood boil—every American Exhibitor should book it. Never yet has a document been written, not even President Wilson's forceful address to Congress in which he declared war on Germany, that will drive home this fact more convincingly. Grips you like a vise from beginning to end. The Picture is a Masterpiece. Will raise the roof of the theatre."
—MOVING PICTURE NEWS.

"A remarkable and wonderful picture. Conveys powerful message for every true American. The picture wrung round after round of applause from the Critics. Worked audience into tremendous pitch of enthusiasm."
—N. Y. TELEGRAPH.

"Stirring. Received tumultuous applause from people who packed the theatre. Polite playgoers become orgiastic mob."—N. Y. AMERICAN.

Now — get on the wire to your nearest Jewel Exchange, or the Home Office, just as soon as you've read this last sentence and nail down this smashing super-sensation of 1918 for the biggest net profit you ever put in the bank.

But do it now if you want a real clean-up. You haven't a minute to lose. Act! And act quick!

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS
INC.
1600 Broadway. New York

Newspaper Ads—Posters—Lobby Displays—Special Player Cuts—Heralds—Slides

WARNING!

NO sooner had the trade learned that "The Kaiser, The Beast of Berlin," is the most sensational success of recent years than several producers dug up some of their old pictures and gave them names similar to "The Kaiser, The Beast of Berlin." This was done for the sole purpose of getting a little extra money by confusing the mind of the exhibitor.

Don't let any one confuse you!

The one and only "Kaiser picture" that has set New York wild with excitement and has made the people STAND UP AND CHEER LIKE MAD is to be secured through the JEWEL OFFICES and nowhere else. The title of this picture is

"THE KAISER"

"The Beast of Berlin."

Don't accept an imitation. Book the genuine through any of the following Jewel offices:

TOWN and STATE	ADDRESS
Atlanta, Ga.	111 Walton St.
Baltimore, Md.	Balt. Film Ex.
Boston, Mass.	60 Church St.
Buffalo, N. Y.	35 Church St.
Butte, Mont.	52 East Broadway
Cleveland, Ohio	112 Prospect St.
Chicago, Ill.	220 So. State St.
Cincinnati O.	402 Strand Thea. Bldg.
Cleveland, O.	850 Prospect Ave.
Dallas, Texas	1900 Commerce St.
Denver, Colo.	1422 Welton St.
Detroit, Mich.	63 Elizabeth St.
Des Moines, Iowa	918 Locust St.
Indianapolis, Ind.	113 W. Georgia St.
Kansas City, Mo.,	Boley Bldg., 12th and Walnut Sts.
Los Angeles, Cal.	822 So. Olive St.
Memphis, Tenn.	226 Union Ave.
Minneapolis, Minn.,	717 E. Hennepin Ave.
New York, N. Y.	1600 Broadway
New Orleans, La.	914 Gravier St.
Oklahoma City, Okla.,	116 W. Second St.
Omaha, Nebr.	1122 Farnam St.
Philadelphia, Pa.	1304 Vine St.
Pittsburgh, Pa.	938 Penn Ave.
Phoenix, Ariz.	117 North Second St.
Portland, Ore.	401 Davis St.
Salt Lake City, Utah,	56 Exchange Place
San Francisco, Cal.,	121 Golden Gate Ave.
St. Louis, Mo.	2116 Locust St.
Washington, D. C.	327 Ninth St.

IN CANADA

Toronto, Can.	106 Richmond St.
Montreal, Que.	296 St. Catherine St.
Calgary, Alta., Can.	407 Eighth Ave.
Winnipeg, Mant.	40 Atkins Bldg.
St. John, N. B.	37 Union St.
Vancouver, B. C.	711 Dunsmuir Ave.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, Inc. Home Office, 1600 Broadway, N. Y.

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies
POLICE
"That Night!"
—a lot happened
so much in fact and so fast that you couldn't tell it all in a book let alone in one page—
—suffice to say that the party was very, very inurbane, tumultuous, in fact inclement, discordant, as it were——but be that as it may—it will be "some night" for exhibitors —the night they show this glorious revel of mirth—
Paramount Pictures
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES
Paramount Pictures

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

"THAT NIGHT"

with

"CHARLIE MURRAY"

Wayland Trask

and

Mary Thurman

produced under the personal direction of

MACK SENNETT

the man the slapstick and the girl idea into a gold mine for you.

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Be a 100% Exhibitor

SHOW all the Artcraft Pictures. Take advantage of all the prestige back of this trade mark.

TRADE MARK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Every time you add another Artcraft star to your program, you add to the standing of your theatre. You add to your profits and you establish as yours the high ideals and uniform standard that the public instinctively associates with Artcraft Pictures.

TRADE MARK
Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ARTCRAFT for March

In The Order

MARY PICKFORD in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley"

CECIL B. DeMILLE'S, "The Whispering Chorus"

MAETERLINCK'S "The Blue Bird"

BOOK ALL

The Ultimate in Artistic Merit

THE talents of the greatest stars in the world are combined in the making of Artcraft Pictures. The public knows this.

"He shows the best pictures made," is what they say about the exhibitor who books all the Artcraft Pictures.

That's good will that you can cash at the bank.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

PICTURES and April
Of Their Release

WILLIAM S. HART in "The Tiger Man"
ELSIE FERGUSON in "The Lie"
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "Mr. Fix-It"

OF THEM

The Ultimate in Box Office Value

GREAT pictures can't be made with cheap workmen. Artcraft Pictures are great pictures, not cheap pictures. But they are pictures that the exhibitor shows at a good profit.

Artcraft Pictures are known everywhere as the best pictures and their drawing power is enormous. The theatre that shows all of them is the most prosperous in the community.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

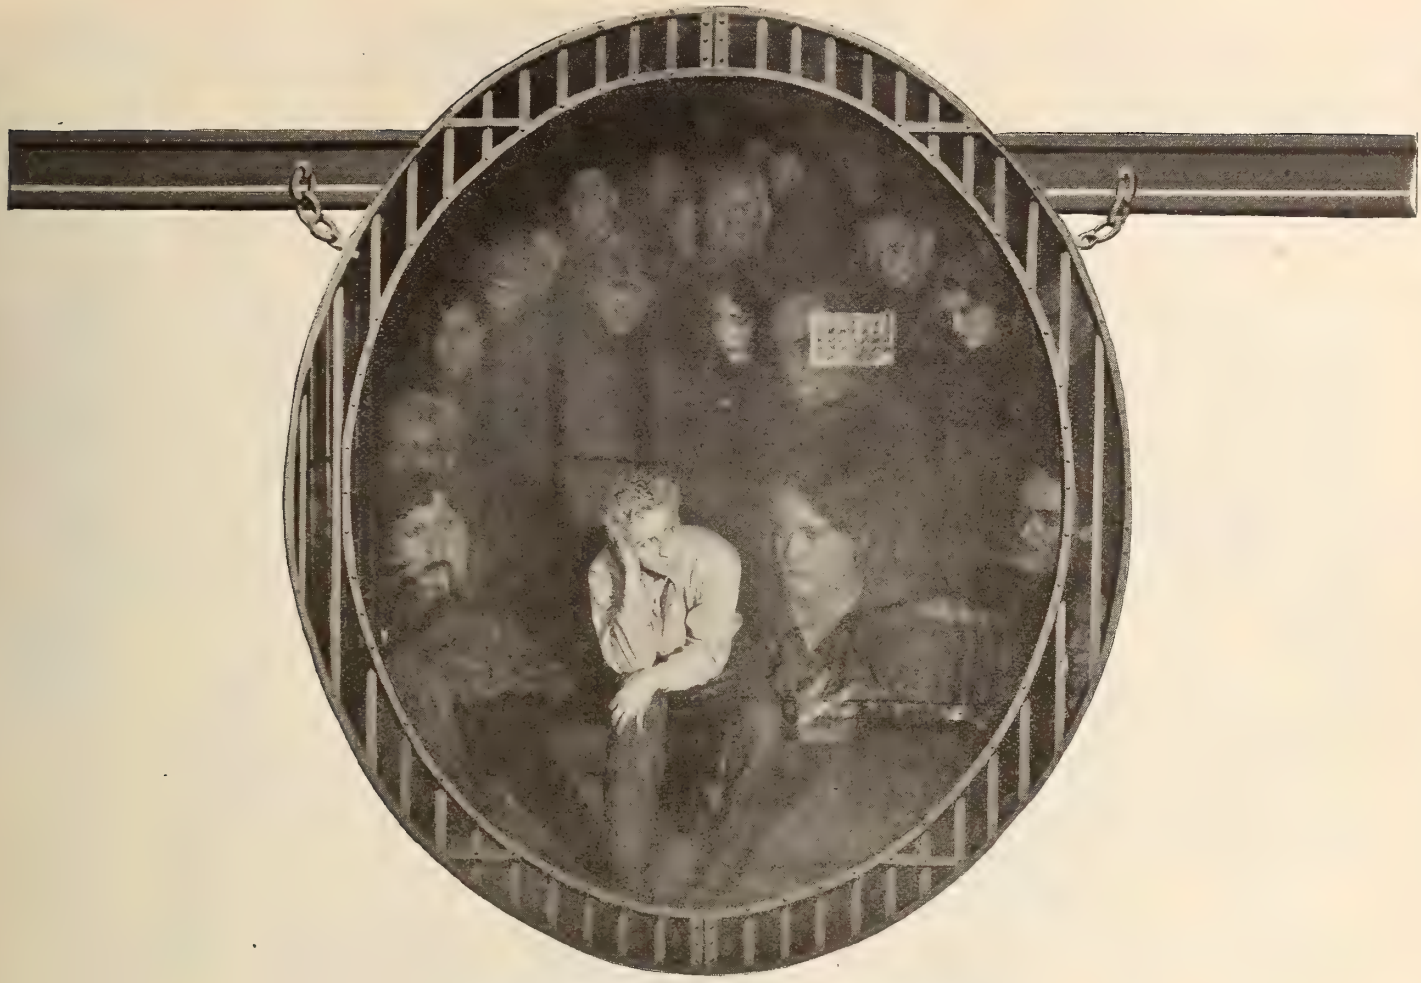
A Flawless Gem is the Theatre that shows All the Artcraft Pictures.

IT is conducted by an exhibitor who gives his patrons the motion picture masterpieces—all of them. It is the theatre of distinction in the community, the theatre where everybody goes.

The public knows the high standard of Artcraft Pictures. The theatre that shows all of them adopts as its own this standard.

"It's the best theatre—because it shows all the Artcraft Pictures."

That's the way the public judges.



JESSE L. LASKY presents

CECIL B. DE MILLE'S

PRODUCTION

"The Whispering Chorus"

By Jeanie Macpherson, from the story by Perley Poore Sheehan

An ARTCRAFT Picture

"THE WHISPERING CHORUS" is the first of Artcraft's four Cecil B De Mille Star Series Pictures, produced personally by the Director-General of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

The story is a splendid instrument upon which Mr. De Mille's genius has played—a vital theme of unusual appeal.

"The Whispering Chorus" is made of the voices that speak to every soul the voices that guide toward right or wrong. John Tremble heard the voice of Temptation and followed it into the depths of degradation, until the voice of Self-Sacrifice caused him to give his life that happiness might come to the woman he loved

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

STANDARD
PICTURES
THE BLINDNESS of DIVORCE
STAGED BY FRANK LLOYD
THE DEVIL IN

WILLIAM FOX PRESENTS

The BLINDNESS of DIVORCE

From the celebrated New York stage success

300 nights in New York
12 months in London
One year in Paris —

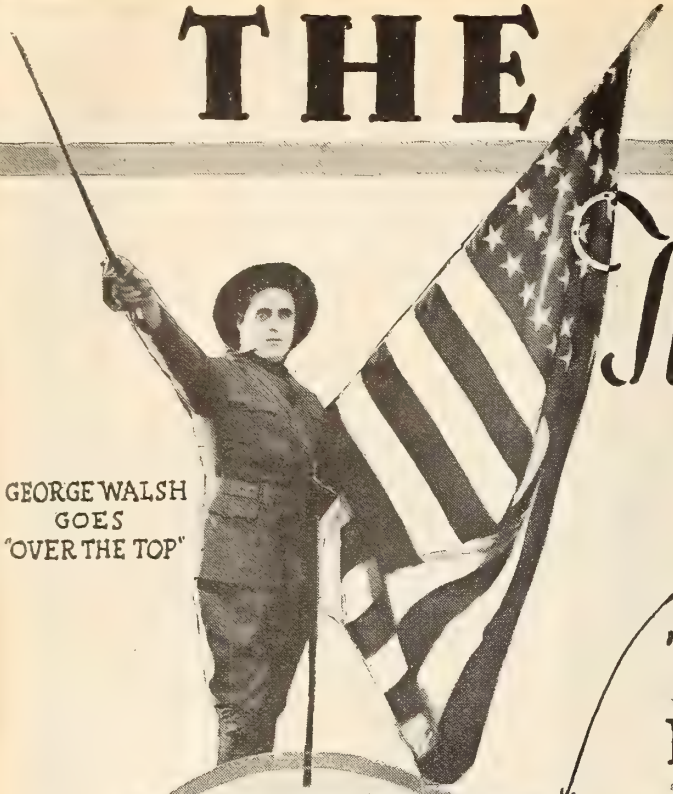
FOX
FILM CORPORATION

HIGH SOCIETY

THE YANKS

WILLIAM FOX presents

The PRIDE



GEORGE WALSH GOES "OVER THE TOP"

TANKS IN ACTION

THE RAPE OF NORTHERN FRANCE

NEW PRINTS NOW READY

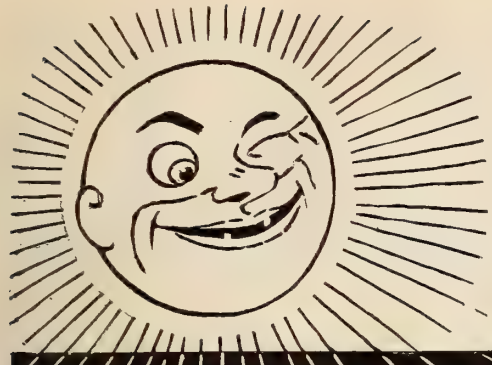
CAN BE BOOKED INDIVIDUALLY

FOX

FILM CORPORATION

Battle of Verdun

CHASING



WILLIAM FOX
Presents
HENRY LEHRMAN'S

SUNSHINE COMEDIES

MEN IN DIFFICULTY
ANIMALS IN EVERYTHING
GIRLS IN MORE—OR LESS
FUN IN ALL—ALL IN FUN

"Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells"
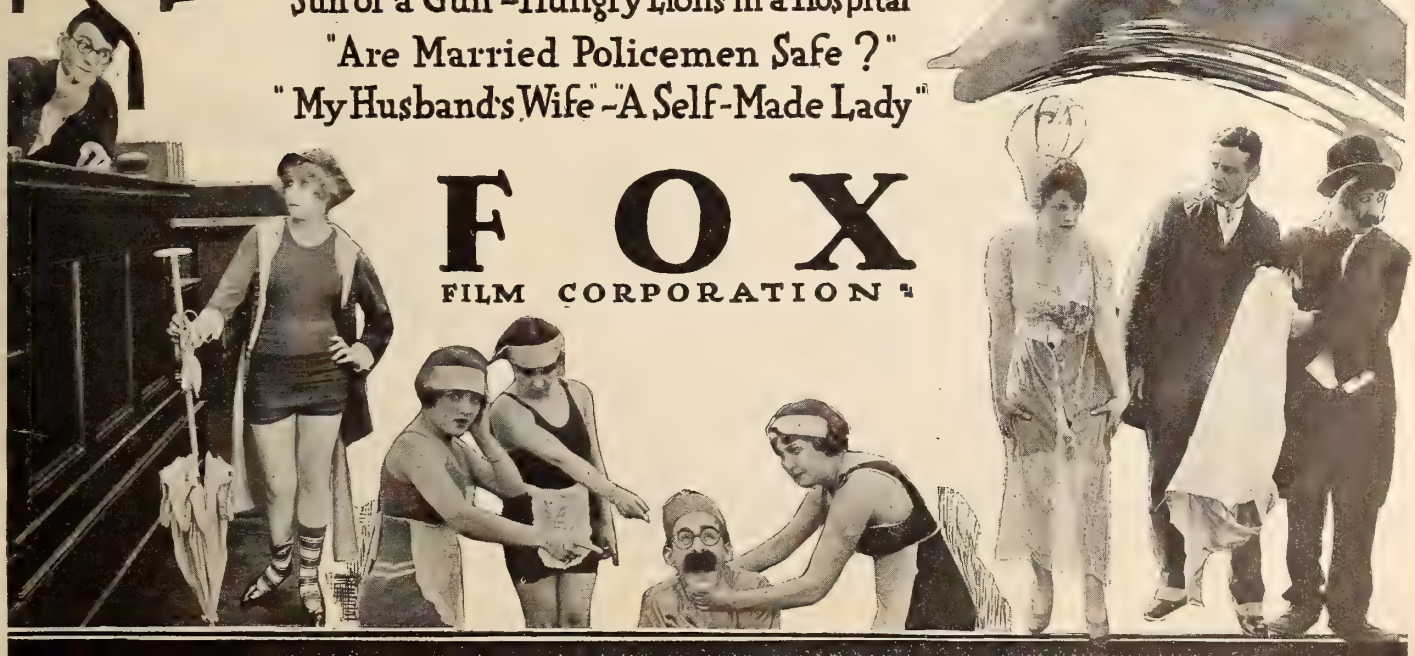
"A Milk Fed Vamp"—"His Smashing Career"
"Damaged-No Goods"—"Shadows of Her Past"
"Sun of a Gun"—"Hungry Lions in a Hospital"
"Are Married Policemen Safe?"
"My Husband's Wife"—"A Self-Made Lady"

FOX
FILM CORPORATION



TRIANGLE

Still More Proof

We have told you from week to week of the new Triangle policy—better pictures, better service, fair and square business methods, every possible effort to help the exhibitor make money.

Whether or not this new Triangle policy has been a success can best be judged by what exhibitors have to say. The following are excerpts from just a few of the letters that we have recently received. Read them over:

"The pictures have always been good and far above the standard of anything I could have bought of any other company."

Ideal Theatre,
Centralia, Wash.

"I think Triangle is the only distributing concern that is backing the exhibitor with REAL assistance instead of hot air and high-sounding phrases. I am boosting Triangle and it brings results. You have the best program service on the market today."

W. C. Sellmer,
Bandon, Oregon.

"You seem to be one of the very few film companies who act as though there might be an honest exhibitor once in a great while. You are to be congratulated on your stand on the war tax and the exhibitors over the country should long remember you."

J. R. Thompson,
The Sequoyah Theatre,
Tahlequah, Okla.

"I must say that the last two months have been good for me. I have had a remarkable success with the Triangle. My Sunday business has doubled what it used to be."

M. Nielson,
Colonial Theatre,
Eureka, Cal.

"I am a new Triangler and proud to be. Program is the real sure thing, and certainly does help when you do not have to pay the war tax."

John Shirk,
Pictureland Theatre,
Kokomo, Ind.

"We have been using your program two a week for the last five months with great success and our treatment by your Philadelphia branch during that time has been very satisfactory."

W. V. Massey,
Masonic Theatre,
Beverley, N. J.

"It is a pleasure to recommend Triangle pictures as well as your service."

A. B. Cook,
Majestic Theatre,
Jackson, Miss.

TRIANGLE

"We are running Triangle features five nights a week and also all your comedies. I have nothing but praise for the all-round, square-deal treatment that Triangle is giving us."

Edward Walz,
Majestic Theatre,
Easthampton, Mass.

"I have fooled away a lot of money trying to get something better, but the truth is that Triangle is the one that brings in profit and pleases our people."

W. S. Patterson,
Swetland Opera House,
Mayville, N. Y.

"I wish to add that I cannot see how any exhibitor can possibly get on these hard times without Triangle and Keystones on his program."

J. D. Snively,
Mgr. Gem Theatre,
Oilton, Okla.

"Have been showing Triangle current releases and Hart and Fairbanks reissues exclusive seven days' service for several months with tremendous success. Triangle program made it possible for us to raise the regular prices. Excellent service—fine lobbies."

Dreamland Theatre,
Oklahoma City, Okla.

"For consistency and general all-round excellence, Triangle has been our one best bet. Triangle productions are steadily increasing in quality and trade-mark strength, and the story values are such as to offset the drawing powers of any particular star."

Majestic Theatre,
Tulsa, Okla.

"I find that Triangle film is one of the cheapest in the long run and best all-round pictures that I have ever used since taking over the management of the Majestic Theater."

Majestic Theatre,
Wellington, Kan.

"We have always found the Triangle pictures a drawing card and our patrons have always been highly pleased with all your films as well as your treatment of us as exhibitors."

Orpheum Theatre,
Wimbledon, N. D.

"While business was very dull about six months ago, your company graciously made me a reduction in the film rentals; and for this reason I raised the film rentals voluntarily because I am now making good money."

Xydias Theatres Co.,
Hattiesburg, Miss.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

S. A. LYNCH, - - - President FRED KENT, - - - Treasurer
R. W. LYNCH, - Vice-President Y. F. FREEMAN, - - Gen. Mgr.

WORLD-PICTURES

WORLD-PICTURES present

SIR JOHNSTON FORBES-ROBERTSON

in The Ideal Film

"Masks and Faces"

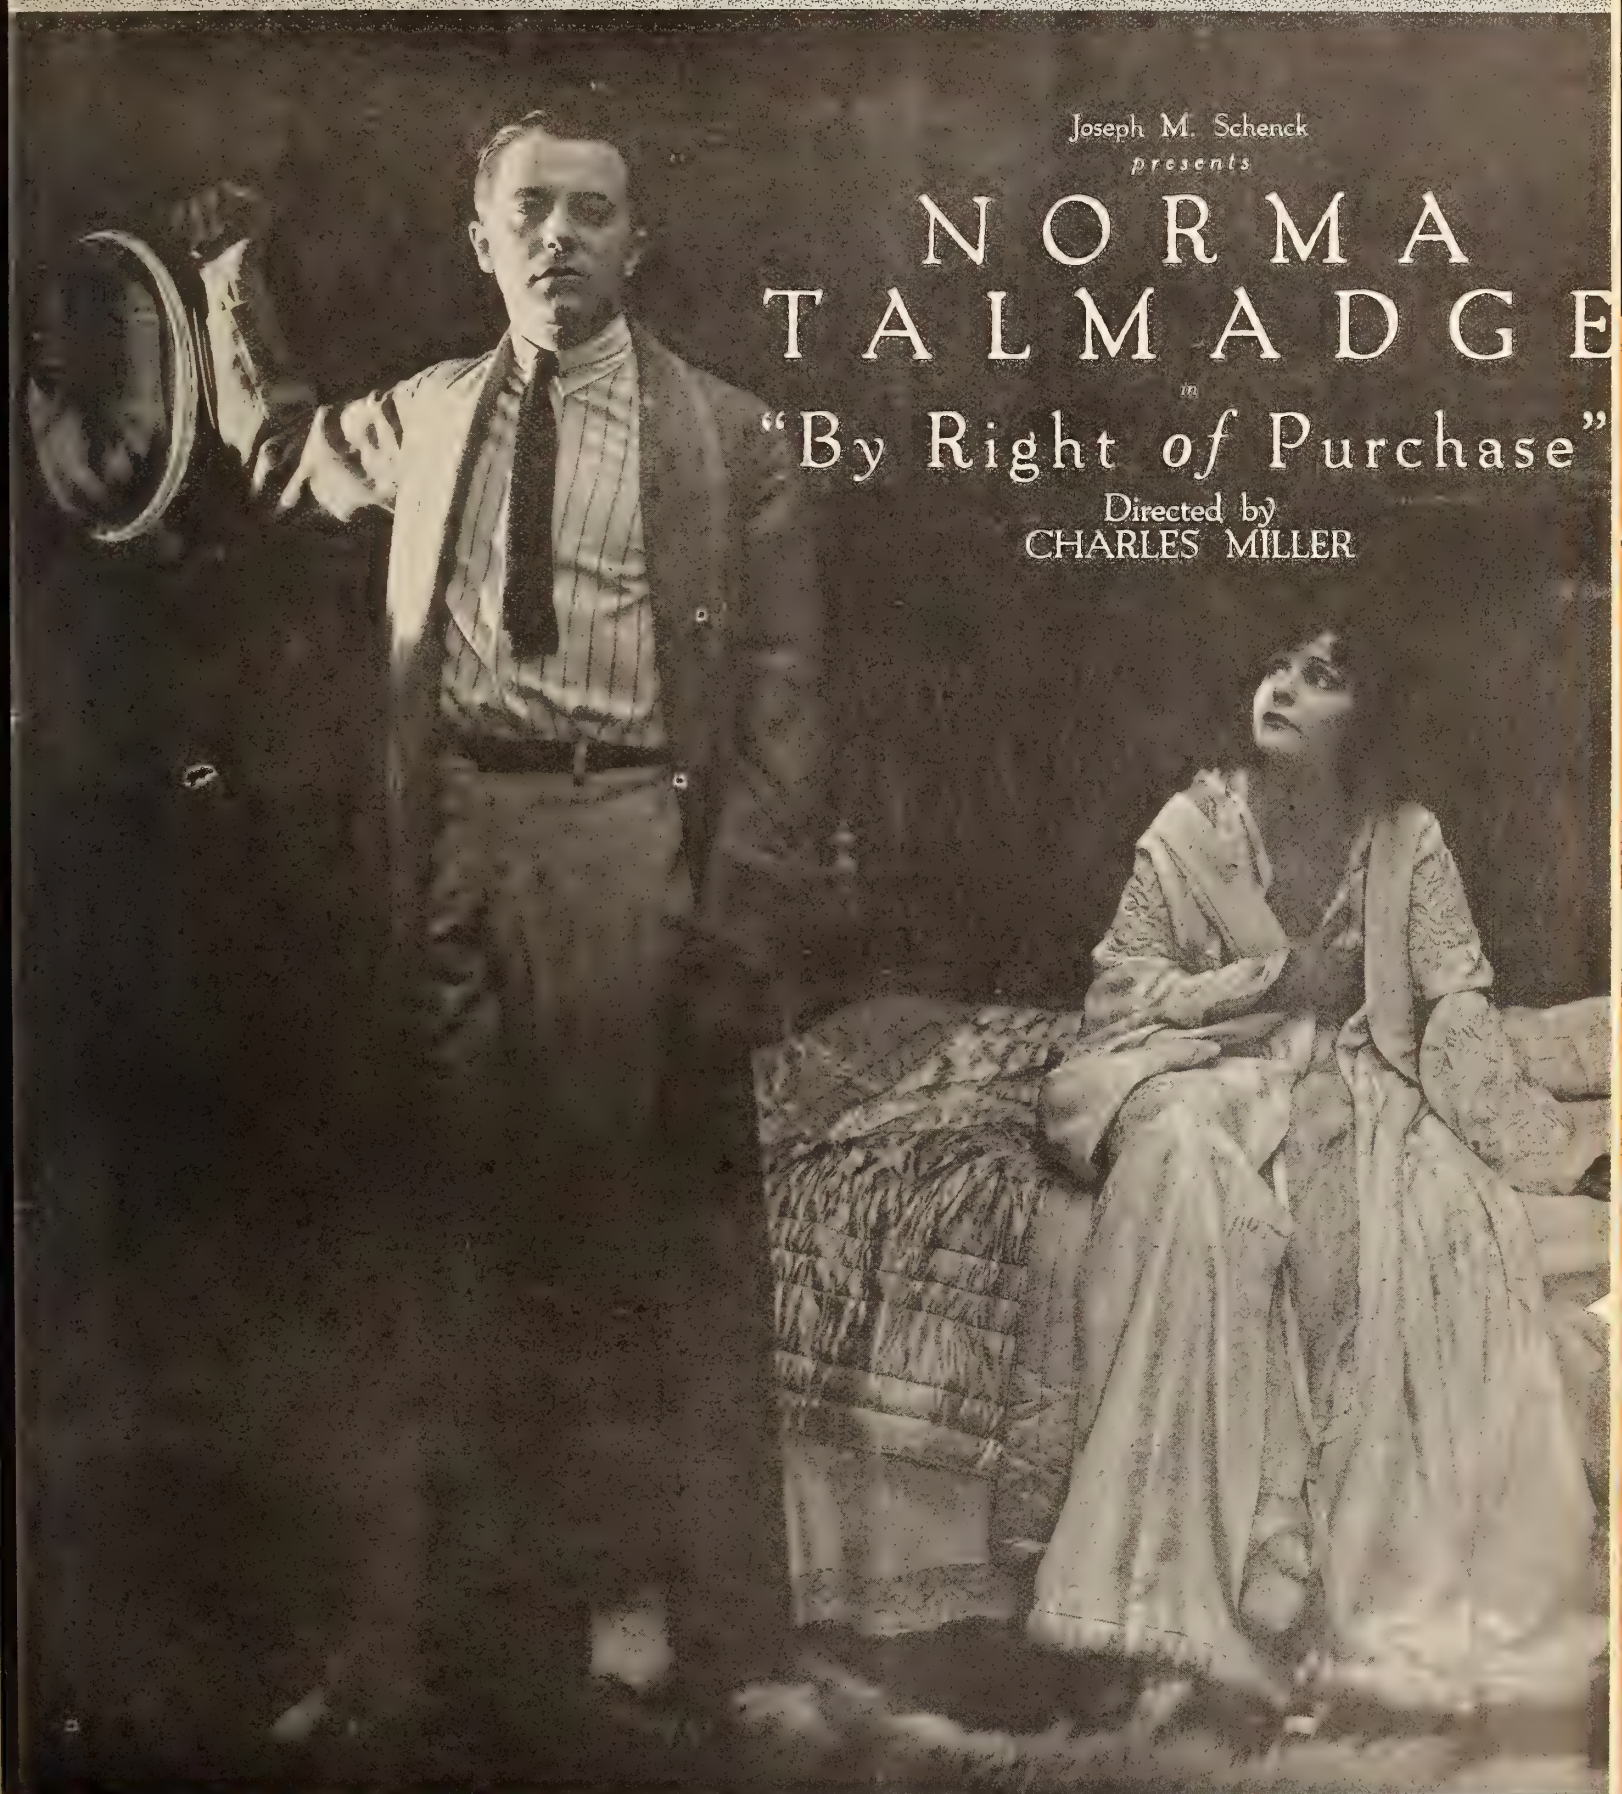
Story by CHARLES READE

WITH THE MOST REMARKABLE CAST EVER ASSEMBLED FOR THE STAGE OR SCREEN

CAST INCLUDING

George Bernard Shaw	Mary Brough
Gerald du Maurier	Gerald Ames
Weedon Grossmith	Lottie Venne
Irene Vanbrugh	Nigel Playfair
H. B. Irving	Lyall Swete
Sir John Hare	Renee Mayer
Sir James Barrie	Lillah McCarthy
Dennis Neilson Terry	Dion Boucicault
Gertrude Elliott	Sir George Alexander
Henry Vibart	Ben Webster
Donald Calthrop	Lilian Braithwaite
J. Fisher White	Stella Campbell
Mabel Russell	Viola Tree
Winifred Emery	C. M. Lowne
Sir Arthur Pinero	Helen Haye
Gladys Cooper	Sir Squire Bancroft

SELECT SP PICTURES



Joseph M. Schenck
presents

NORMA TALMADGE

in

"By Right of Purchase"

Directed by CHARLES MILLER

Distributed by
SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

A Selexart Production

"Carmen of the Klondike"

Written by
MONTE M. KATTERJOHN

Directed by REGINALD BARKER

What New York thinks today
the American Nation thinks tomorrow!

And New York does think this:

"Carmen of the Klondike"
is the greatest picture of the year!

Book it at once from any of the following exchanges:

NATHAN HIRSH,
Pioneer Film Corp.,
126 W. 46th St.,
New York City.

D. M. VANDAWALKER, Jr.
Doll-Van Film Corp.,
Consumers' Bldg.,
Chicago, Ill.

SOL. L. LESSER,
All Star Features Distributors, Inc.
191 Golden Gate Ave.,
San Francisco, Cal.

HARRY F. GRELLE,
Supreme Photoplay Productions,
1201 Liberty Ave.,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

HENRY L. DOLLMAN,
Doll-Van Film Corp.,
Merchants Bank Bldg.,
Indianapolis, Ind.

M. R. ROSENBERG,
De Luxe Feature Film Co.,
2014 Third Ave.,
Seattle, Wash.

LEON D. NETTER,
Masterpiece Film Attractions,
405-6-7 Sincere Bldg.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

BENJAMIN S. COHEN,
Foursquare Pictures, Inc.,
1735 Welton St.,
Denver, Colo.

J. J. ALLEN,
Famous Players Film Service, Ltd.
12 Queen St. East,
Toronto, Canada.

STATE RIGHT DISTRIBUTORS, Incorporated
418 Longacre Building, New York City

A Selexart Production

"Carmen of the Klondike"

Written by
MONTE M. KATTERJOHN

Directed by
REGINALD BAKER

A tale of the forbidding North;— where raw-boned and two-fisted pioneers combat the elements, and wrest from the snow-clad hills
the pure gold that builds great cities far back of their ranks;—
where men are as yet untainted by hypocrisy;—
where they work hard and play hard, and pawn their lives for their loves!

Featuring
CLARA WILLIAMS

! A Tremendous Sensation !

"This is the second 'Flame of the Yukon' you have been looking for."

WID'S

STATE RIGHT DISTRIBUTORS, Incorporated

418 Longacre Building, New York City

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

J. Warren Kerrigan in

Directed by OSCAR APFEL

"The Turn of a Card"

Written by FREDERIC CHAPIN

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Jimmy Montgomery Farrell is born lucky.
He is also born honest.
That's why luck sticks to him.
He plays and wins, because he is lucky.
And he wins when he doesn't play, because he's honest.
With that system Jimmy comes out ahead every time.
At cards, money comes rolling Jimmy's way.
If it is bad money, he's lucky enough to spot it.
If it is good money, he's lucky enough not to keep it.
Yet he never gambles. (Only a loser gambles.)
But there are other things Jimmy wins,
He wins respect, He wins a friend, an oil well, an estate,
a lawsuit, a villian's curses, a widow's blessings.
And at last, Jimmy wins the biggest stake in the whole world;
the true love of a real girl! (He's that lucky.)
Thus proving, one may be lucky at cards and lucky in love!

! You don't have to be born lucky if you book this picture !

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

6 WEST 48th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

Foreign Distributor: Inter-Ocean Film Corporation.

Canadian Distributor: Globe Films, Ltd.

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
"HODKINSON SERVICE"
AT ALL GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

New Releases:

Louise Glaum in "An Alien Enemy" substituted for the regular Kerrigan release,

Bessie Barriscale in "Within the Cup,"

Henry B. Walthall in "Humdrum Brown,"

J. Warren Kerrigan in "The Turn of a Card."

Coming Releases:

"Blindfolded," with Bessie Barriscale,

"The Snap Dragon," with Louise Glaum,

"With Hoops of Steel," with Henry B. Walthall.

Already Released:

"A Man's Man"—Kerrigan
"Madam Who?"—Barriscale
"His Robe of Honor"—Walthall

THE MASTER BUILDER

THIS MAN, W. W. HODKINSON, has done more to benefit the exhibitor than any other individual in the industry. And his newest development—the "Hodkinson Co-partnership"—will prove to be a most wonderful profit-producer for the exhibitor who is fortunate enough to be able to avail himself of Hodkinson Service.

The exhibitor has W. W. Hodkinson to thank for the passing of the "Nickelodeon"—for it was he who opened the first ten-cent theatre. That was in 1907.

It was W. W. Hodkinson who insisted that better pictures must accompany better prices of admission and better theatres. And longer runs followed as a natural result.

In 1913 W. W. Hodkinson began his fight against "Producer Dominance". In 1914 he organized a national distributing organization as a direct result of the expansion of his efforts. He retired from the Presidency of that Corporation when he found that the methods of the producers did not accord with his broad-visioned plans to benefit the exhibitor.

Today W. W. Hodkinson, Master Builder, is taking up his building just where he left off. What he plans to do—and is doing—is interestingly told in a Folder just published. As you value your future, you should read it. It tells you how Mr. Hodkinson can help you—how he can increase your prosperity.

This is not idle talk. Send for the Folder and be convinced. It will tell you a story that will amaze you with its breadth, fascinate you with its possibilities, and convince you with its sincerity.

Write now—before you turn this page.

W. W. HODKINSON CORPORATION

Hodkinson Service
At All General Film Exchanges

527 Fifth Avenue
New York, N. Y.

Goldwyn Pictures

She Chose Death Instead of Dishonor

ONLY a beautiful, brilliant, stormy woman; only a great emotional actress could have played this role. You have both in Mary Garden.

In this story she makes the greatest sacrifice of all, but wins a redemption that all the world will envy.

Every exhibitor in North America knows how this magnificent star established new box-office records in her first Goldwyn production, "Thais."

Now comes a more sensational, more daring and even greater production, which means capacity business for your spring opening.

Mary Garden in The SPLENDID SINNER

by Kate Jordan — Directed by Edwin Carewe

A costly and wonderful production that goes to all Goldwyn contract customers at their regular rental prices. Not available to any exhibitor who does not hold a Goldwyn franchise. Released everywhere March 24.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

Madge Kennedy In Her First Romantic Melodrama

AN entirely different kind of story filled with action, adventure and daring—with a splendid element of comic mystery.

There is no screen star who could give this unusual melodramatic romance the amusing and wonderful "twist" that this nationally-popular girl gives in every joyous reel of

MADGE KENNEDY in The Danger Game

by Roy Somerville Directed by Harry Pollard.

The amazing and exciting drama of a girl who could be called "the world's most beautiful burglar." Exhibitors will be delighted with this novel story because it will make your audiences talk as few pictures have done in months. A new idea in screen stories; a new type of work for a girl star. You can back this production to the limit with your local advertising. Released April 7.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

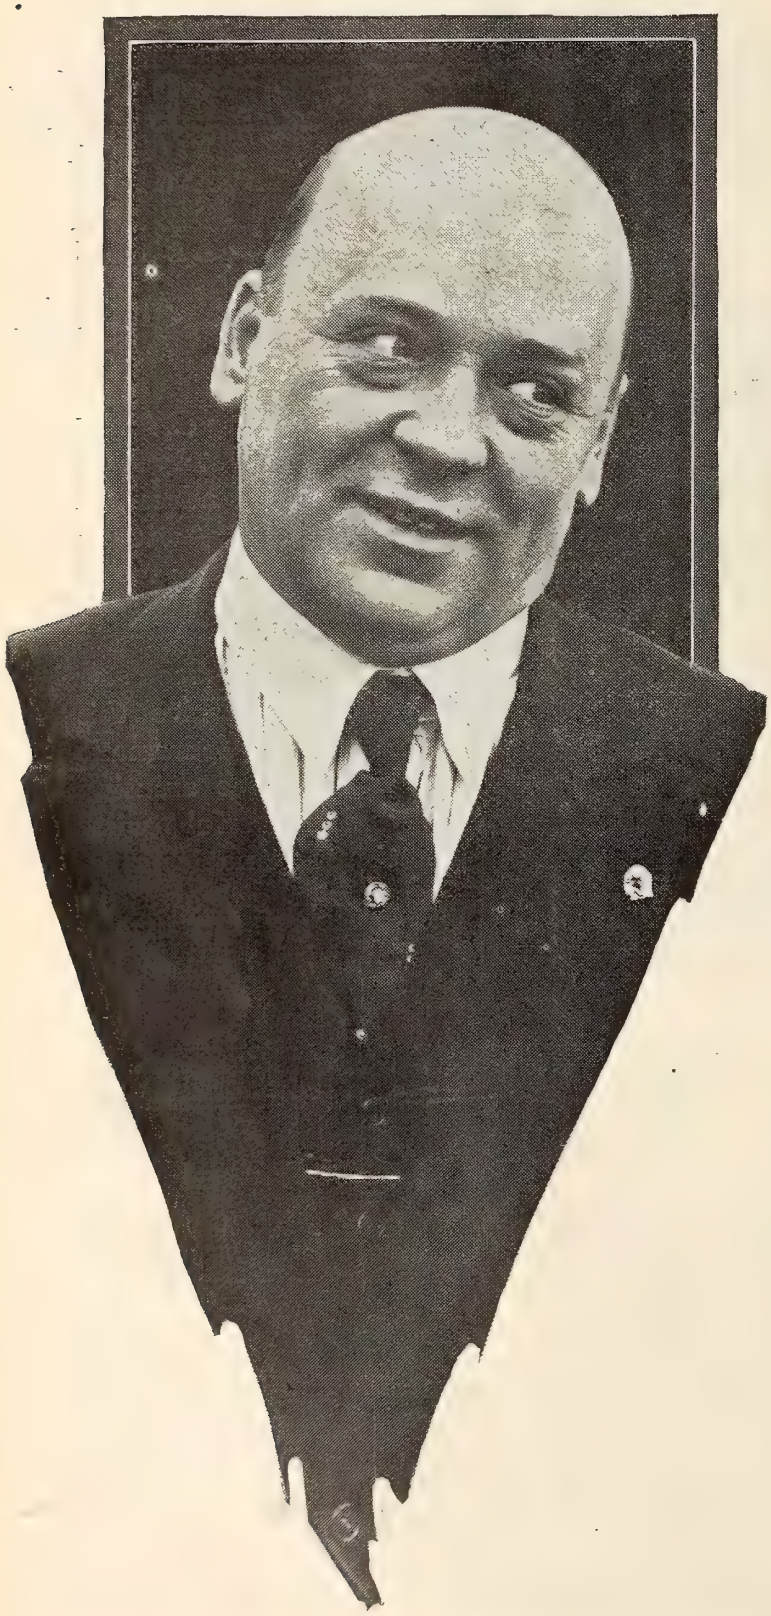
16 East 42nd Street New York City

CAPITOL COMEDIES



Add Another Feature To Your Box-Office

YOU and your audiences will like the clean, wholesome fun in

CAPITOL COMEDIES

built around the cheerful personality of

"SMILING BILL" PARSONS

whose pleasing smile and radiant good nature will attract audiences to your theatre.

"Smiling Bill" Parsons is a human comedian—funny because he brings to the screen the comical every-day happenings in life—no slapstick; just genuine, healthful amusement.

These entertaining and profitable comedies can be booked exclusively through the offices of

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

A FLOOD of advance bookings are pouring in from every part of North America for the production that all exhibitors agree with us in hailing as the greatest box-office attraction of 1918. Have you telegraphed for your booking?

EVERY Rex Beach picture has an audience of millions awaiting it from the day of its first release. Rex Beach is the one author who always tells a compelling story and never sacrifices a story to satisfy a star's whims.

REX BEACH'S

Screen Classic of the Great Southwest

HEART OF THE SUNSET

Directed by Frank Powell

Now Ready for Immediate Release

A magnificent seven-reel Rex Beach production wonderfully directed and with the greatest cast ever assembled to picturize a celebrated American novel. Released singly to all exhibitors. You have the word of Rex Beach himself that this is his biggest and most remarkable screen drama.

"Heart of the Sunset" can be booked at once, but only through the offices of

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Now a "First National" Attraction

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

Herbert Brenon presents

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson

supported by a notable cast in Passing of the Third Floor Back

by Jerome K. Jerome

For Release in April

"The One and Only"

Released April 8th

Charles Chaplin

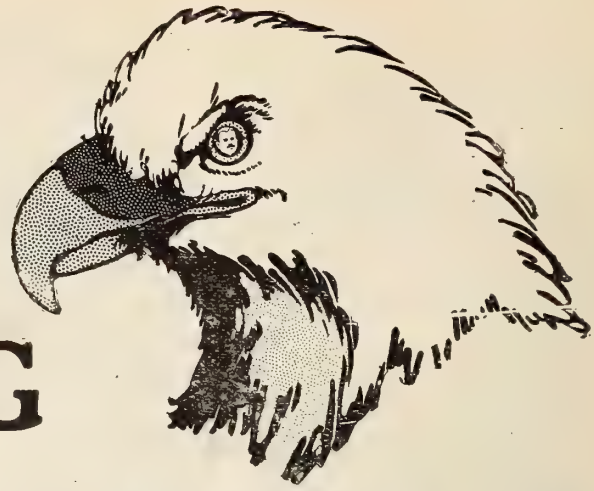
In His First "Signature Protected" Million-Dollar Picture

A DOG'S LIFE

A "FIRST NATIONAL" ATTRACTION

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

Foreign Rights Controlled by
WM. VOGEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.
Longacre Building, New York City



EAGLE YEZING A GERMAN DISTRICT

ASTOUNDING proof of the puerile weakness of the statement that "'The Eagle's Eye' might prove too great a contrast to the thoughts and opinions of German patrons" comes from the most thickly populated German and Austrian district in the United States.

* * * *

This district centers at East 74th Street and Second Avenue, New York City. Mr. Schawger, proprietor of the Bohemian Annex, 334 East 74th Street, booked "The Eagle's Eye."

* * * *

The night the first episode, "The Hidden Death," was shown, the lobby of the Bohemian Annex was packed to overflowing before the box-office was opened. The crowd struggling for positions in the long line was made up almost entirely of registered "enemy aliens," unnaturalized Germans and Austrians, still subjects of their Kaiser and Emperor. Within fifteen minutes after the sale of tickets was started, the Bohemian Annex was packed. And the lobby was still jammed—with a throng of late comers.

* * * *

Surprised by the unexpected number of aliens clamoring for admission, the management requested the cooperation of the police to maintain order. Reserves were sent to the theatre. Within the theatre there was doubt and apprehension. Would these former disciples of Kultur and Hohenzollernism remain passive at the sight of the nobility of their Fatherland, the honored and titled emissaries of their ruler revealed in their true characters as arch plotters and conspirators, possessed of fiendish ingenuity? Would they sit quietly, while before them, on the screen, was enacted, by these leaders from their native lands, the crimes against American lives and American property of which they stand convicted by the facts furnished by Chief Flynn for the production of "The Eagle's Eye."

* * * *

Or, would they, in their first disbelief of the truth of these pictured facts, cast discretion and self control to the winds, and demand that the picture be stopped?

* * * *

"The thoughts and opinions of German patrons" was about to be put to the crucial test. It was to be submitted to undeniable evidence of the startling, diabolical depravity of the men who had commanded their reverence and respect as leaders in intelligence, tact, fairness and humane practices. What would be the result?

* * * *

The first episode was started. The audience remained silent when the pictures of Chief Flynn and the Capitol appeared on the screen. Then came a noticeable stir throughout the house, when the characters of Ambassador von Bernstorff, revered of German diplomats, and his intimate associates, Captains von Papen and Boy-Ed, and Dr. Albert, were shown. The management watched closely for the first indication of a storm of protest as von Bernstorff and his colleagues were shown plotting their murderous parts in the sinking of the Lusitania. But a strange, almost unnatural quiet succeeded the first general stirring by hundreds of forms.

* * * *

The episode finished. The still, hushed atmosphere continued. The program ended; the audience arose and departed. There was but little talking as they filed out . Their silence was more eloquent than the most tumultuous applause. The crowd waiting anxiously in the lobby and on the street surged in, to take their places. Again the program was repeated. Again a throng of German and Austrian subjects departed, silent and thinking. And when the house closed for the night, the question persisted:

* * * *

"What did that silence mean?"

* * * *

Last Tuesday the second episode, "The Naval Ball Conspiracy," was shown. In this Chief Flynn reveals the startling facts of how Imperial German spies attempted to dynamite the Hotel Ansonia, New York, and kill 800 officers of the American Navy, attending a Naval Ball there.

* * * *

For a second time the lobby of the Bohemian Annex was jammed before the box-office opened. Many who had witnessed the first episode were recognized in the line. And many new faces were seen. Business for the day was beyond all expectations. Again the audiences were quiet, interested and thoughtful.

* * * *

Today "The Eagle's Eye" is booked in three other theatres in that district. They are: Claremont Theatre, 74th Street and First Avenue, little more than a block from the Bohemian Annex; the Yorkville Heights Theatre, 78th Street and First Avenue, and the Superior Theatre, 81st Street and First Avenue.

* * * *

FOUR THEATRES, WITHIN A RADIUS OF EIGHT BLOCKS IN A THICKLY POPULATED GERMAN AND AUSTRIAN DISTRICT, ALL PLAYING TO CAPACITY BY REFUSING TO CONSIDER THE POSSIBILITY OF "A CONTRAST TO THE THOUGHTS AND OPINIONS OF THEIR GERMAN PATRONS" IN SHOWING

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

By

WILLIAM J. FLYNN

Recently Retired

CHIEF OF THE U. S SECRET SERVICE

Produced by THE WHARTONS with the Popular Screen Stars

KING BAGGOT and MARGUERITE SNOW

Book Through Your Nearest

FOURSQUARE EXCHANGE

Atlanta, Ga.	73 Walton St.	Kansas City, Mo.	1120 Walnut St.
Boston, Mass.	16 Piedmont St.	Los Angeles, Cal.	514 W. Eighth St.
Buffalo, N. Y.	47 W. Swan St.	Minneapolis, Minn.	16 North Fourth St.
Chicago, Ill.	207 So. Wabash Ave.	New York, N. Y.	729 Seventh Ave.
Cincinnati, O.	301 Strand Theater Bldg.	Philadelphia, Pa.	1325 Vine St.
Dallas, Tex.	1911½ Commerce St.	Pittsburgh, Pa.	127 Fourth Ave.
Denver, Colo.	1735 Welton St.	San Francisco, Cal.	191 Golden Gate Ave.
Detroit, Mich.	304 Joseph Mack Bldg.	Seattle, Wash.	2014 Third Ave.
Cleveland, O.	312 Sloan Bldg.	St. Louis, Mo.	301 Empress Theater Bldg.

CANADA FOURSQUARE-SUPERFEATURES, Ltd.

Toronto, Ontario.	59 Victoria St.	Winnipeg, Manitoba.	215 Phoenix Block
Montreal, Que.	204 St. Catharine's St., W.	St. John, N. B.	19 Market Square

For further information address THE WHARTONS' Publicity and Supply Department, 1476 Broadway, New York.

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE

THE BIG FOUR

WM. S. HART DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS NORMA TALMADGE FRANK KEENAN

Are the stars you can depend upon in the list of Triangle features that S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., announce have been sold for the following territories:

MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT, RHODE ISLAND, MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE and VERMONT, to Boston Photoplay Company, 195 Pleasant Street, Boston, Mass.

EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA and SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY, to Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA and WEST VIRGINIA, to Quality Film Company, 404 Ferry Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

WASHINGTON, OREGON, IDAHO and MONTANA, to De Luxe Feature Film Company, 2014 Third Avenue, Seattle, Wash.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, MARYLAND, DELAWARE and VIRGINIA, to Superfeatures, Inc., Sidney B. Lust, 1209 E Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

MINNESOTA, NORTH and SOUTH DAKOTA and WISCONSIN, to Friedman Film Corp., Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA and NEVADA, to Sunset Film Corporation, Julius L. Lazarus, Pres., San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal.

ILLINOIS and INDIANA (Talmadge and Keenan Re-Issues), to Central Film Corporation, 110 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, NEBRASKA, TEXAS, OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS, GEORGIA, FLORIDA, ALABAMA, S. CAROLINA, N. CAROLINA, MISSISSIPPI, LOUISIANA and TENNESSEE will be handled by the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., through the Triangle Exchanges, in the following cities: Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

Regarding Territories Not Closed as Yet, Apply for Detailed Information to

HILLER & WILK, Inc.

1475 Broadway, New York

Selling Agents for the S. A. LYNCH ENTERPRISES, Inc.

We keep the pot a Boiling

BILLY WEST KING-BEE COMEDIES

The Hobo
The Roque
The Chief Cook
The Candy Kid
His Day Out
The Orderly
The Stranger
The Slave

The Funniest Ever Released
(TWICE A MONTH)

KING-BEE FILMS CORPORATION

LOUIS BURSTEIN
PRESIDENT & GEN'L. MGR.
L.L. HILLER
TREASURER

NAT H. SPITZER
SALES MANAGER
LONGACRE BUILDING - NEW YORK

SOLE FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVE
J. FRANK BROCKLISS
729 SEVENTH AVE. N.Y.C.

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER
ANNOUNCES
THE ENGAGEMENT OF
MABEL JULIENE SCOTT
NILES WELCH
TO STAR
IN

RECLAIMED
BY RICHARD FIELD CARROLL

SUPPORTED BY
ANDRES RANDOLF

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER PRODUCTIONS INC.
BROKAW BLDG. 42ND ST. & BROADWAY
TELEPHONE BRYANT 486-7

OTHER APRIL RELEASES

ANN MURDOCK in
"THE RICHEST GIRL"
April 8

MARGARITA FISHER in
"THE PRIMITIVE WOMAN"
April 15

WILLIAM RUSSELL in
"HEARTS OR DIAMONDS"
April 22

SCREEN TELEGRAM
The News Reel De-Luxe
ISSUED TWICE-A-WEEK

AT EXCHANGES
of the
MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

Startling Originality—Something New and Different

In

MARY MILES
MINTER'S

Forthcoming
Release

"A BIT of JADE"

From the Studios of
AMERICAN FILM
COMPANY, INC.

*Available
April First at* MUTUAL EXCHANGES

Supporting—

BILLIE RHODES

in

STRAND COMEDIES

100 per cent quality

In first class Theatres Everywhere

Booking at Mutual Exchanges

"Little Talks with Foreign Buyers"—No. 6

By

President

"PARALTALK"

PARALTA Plays are the "pick of the pictures." They are the "guaranteed program"—their quality and drawing power is guaranteed under a unique plan that we will be mighty glad to tell you about on inquiry. The result is that in picking Paralta Plays for its foreign customers, the Inter-Ocean is giving them a chance for big profits. For there is no greater mistake than the assumption that the foreign picture patron fails to discriminate. You, the FOREIGN BUYER, know how little ground there is for such a feeling. The foreign picture goer, as YOU know, is every bit as particular about what he sees on the screen as the American picture patron. He believes in the best! A mediocre cinema show leaves him disappointed, and tends to lose that cinema his patronage. Inter-Ocean is so "close" to the foreign field that it knows the tastes of audiences in all sections of the globe, and how to cater to that taste. IT CAN BE DONE THROUGH STARS LIKE BARRISCALE, KERRIGAN, WALTHALL AND GLAUM IN GUARANTEED PARALTA PLAYS. Paralta is just another reason why Inter-Ocean are the "largest distributors of films in foreign fields." All the leading foreign buyers are doing business with us, because they have found it pays to have an American representative who can pick winners like Paralta Plays and the others on our list.

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN, PRES. & GEN'L MGR. — 220 W. 42ND ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields.

READY FOR WORLD SALE—52 World Films a year, featuring Ethel Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell, and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year, featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Glaum; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "To-day," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," "The 13th Labor of Hercules," the sure fire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.*

Gaumont News

Released Tuesdays

TWICE WEEKLY

Gaumont Graphic

Released Fridays

First release Tuesday March 26

Wire for name of Exchange serving your Territory

Gaumont Co.

PARIS NEW YORK LONDON

Broncho Billy Revivified

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Essanay's famous dramas of the hills and plains, featuring the popular film hero, Broncho Billy, already have proved the great demand for these western thrillers. If you have not already arranged your booking dates, you still have a chance. New process photography, 1000% better.

SHOW ONE EACH WEEK

"Broncho Billy's Leap"
"Broncho Billy and the Rattler"
"Broncho Billy's Close Call"
"Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter"
"Broncho Billy's Indian Romance"
"Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need"
"Broncho Billy's Wild Ride"
"Broncho Billy's First Arrest"
"Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child"
"Broncho Billy's Last Deed"

Perfection Pictures
The Highest Standard in Motion Pictures

Essanay

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

George Kleine System
Distributors

Essanay

presents

A Chaplin Jingle

"CHASE ME CHARLIE"

A British version of Charlie Chaplin's funniest films—taken from the famous Essanay-Chaplin comedies. Screen time one hour.

George Kleine System,
Distributors

Perfection Pictures

State Rights Buyers:— Don't overlook this Series!

The first of our Series of five great BESSIE BARRISCALE Superfeatures

SATAN'S PAWN

5 reels

Adapted from Molnar's famous Play "The Devil"

The all star cast includes

BESSIE BARRISCALE
EDWARD CONNELLY
CLARA WILLIAMS
RHEA MITCHEL
ARTHUR MAUDE

PRODUCED BY THOS. H. INCE

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO.
71 WEST 23rd St. NEW YORK
PHONE GRAMERCY 3027

ANNOUNCING
"OUTING-CHESTER PICTURES"
FIFTY-TWO (52) SINGLE REEL TRAVEL-SCENICS
WITH HUMAN TOUCHES, OF UNEXPLORED GARDEN SPOTS OF THE WORLD, PORTRAYING HAZARDOUS EXPEDITIONS AND THE INTIMATE LIFE OF QUAINT PEOPLE PRODUCED IN CO-OPERATION WITH
"OUTING"
THE REPRESENTATIVE OUTDOOR AND SPORTING MAGAZINE
OF AMERICA
UNDER THE PERSONAL DIRECTION OF
C. L. CHESTER.
FOR PICTORIAL BEAUTY AND ORIGINALITY OF SUBJECTS, THIS SERIES HAS NEVER BEEN EQUALLED
ONE A WEEK COMMENCING
APRIL 22ND 1918.
THE FIRST TWENTY (20) SUBJECTS
ARE READY. THEY HAVE BEEN PRONOUNCED
"AN ENTERTAINMENT UNTO THEMSELVES"
"WORTH ALONE THE PRICE OF ADMISSION" FOR DETAILS OF METHOD OF DISTRIBUTION COMMUNICATE WITH
JESSE J. GOLDBURG
SOLE SALES AND EXPLOITATION REPRESENTATIVE
TIMES BUILDING NEW YORK CITY.
BRYANT 447
P.S. THERE WILL BE LISTED IN "OUTING MAGAZINE" THE FIRST RUN HOUSES CONTRACTING FOR THE SERIES AND EXCHANGES HANDLING THEM, IN ADDITION TO WHICH EVERY ISSUE OF THE TRADE PUBLICATIONS WILL CARRY ADVERTISEMENTS DURING THE ENTIRE YEAR.
THESE RELEASES ARE BEING EXPLOITED AS FEATURE PRODUCTIONS.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

Membership in This Exhibitors' Cooperative Body Means Protection and Insurance

Put Your Business on a Sound Basis by Joining

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

You face rising war costs—uncertainty of supply—cut-throat competition—burdens of film waste and of unscientific distribution—the ups and downs of a market in which YOU, playing a lone hand, may be caught in a squeeze and pinched severely.

WE INVITE YOU TO POOL YOUR BUYING POWER FOR THE COMMON GOOD. Buy reasonably, cooperatively, wisely. Demand excellence in the pictures, moderation in the price—as wholesale purchasers you can secure both. Cut costly overhead, expensive exchanges, superfluous prints—get down to WAR-TIME ECONOMY in the distribution of films, just as in the operation of your houses.

THAT IS UNITED THEATRES INSURANCE, AND IT WILL REDUCE YOUR RENTALS FROM 30 TO 50 PER CENT.

Write today to Dept. W

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 Broadway, New York

FRANCIS FORD

BACK AGAIN

AND READY TO RELEASE TO STATE RIGHT BUYERS
HIS FIRST PRODUCTION

"BERLIN VIA AMERICA"

BY ELSIE
VAN NAME

WITH EDNA
EMERSON

FRANCIS FORD PRODUCTION CO. INC.

1476 BROADWAY, N.Y.

TO CONTENTS

Adolfi, John G., Joins World Pictures.... 72
Advertising Essential..... 74
Advertising Essentials..... 74
Advertising for Exhibitors..... 83
Advertising Aids for Busy Managers..... 132
Anderson, Carl, Promises Splendid Plays.. 69
Artcraft Wins in Hart Suit..... 71
Astor Market Becomes Symphony Theatre.. 63
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 72

Baltimore, Film News in..... 119
Boston Exposition, Pushing Plans for..... 65
Brooklyn Exhibitors Hold Regular Session. 66
Buffalo Exhibitors Aid Sunday Move..... 62

Carolinas Plan Co-Operative Booking Agency..... 64
Chicago News Letter..... 95
Cincinnati Theaters Feel No Slump at All. 122
"Claim, The" (Metro)..... 130
Critical Reviews and Comments..... 128

"Daughter of France, A" (Fox)..... 128
Detroit's Adams Theater Turns to Films....123

Earl, Edward, Is Guest at Dinner..... 67
Exhibitors are Smiling, Says Goldwyn Man. 76

Facts and Comments..... 55
"Fast Company" (Bluebird)..... 128
Favorable Outlook for Sunday Option Bill.. 62
Film Division in New York..... 99
F. I. L. M. Club Has Successful Dinner.... 69
First National's New York Franchise Sold.. 69
Foreign Trade News..... 78
Francis, Alec. B..... 77

"Girl Who Wouldn't Quit, The" (Universal)..... 129

Hart to Aid Liberty Bond Campaign..... 67
"Hillcrest Mystery, The" (Pathe)..... 129
"Home Trail, The" (Vitagraph)..... 129
How It Is Done at the Strand..... 73

"Innocent's Progress" (Triangle)..... 129

Jardon, Dorothy..... 74
Jensen & Von Herberg Open Strand Theater. 127

Kansas City Filmdom, Recent Doings in.. 125

Lang, Phil, and Kalem Part at Last..... 99
Lasky Enthusiastic Over Griffith Picture.. 71
"La Tosca" (Paramount)..... 130
"Life or Honor?" (Ivan)..... 129
Local 110 I. A. T. S. E. Under Fire..... 95

McCormick, Director of Indianapolis Circle. 75
Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 106
Mark, Mitchell H., Dies in Buffalo..... 68
Mastbaum, Memorial to, Planned..... 68
Metropolitan Not for Rothaphfel..... 64
Minneapolis Convention May 7, 8 and 9.... 65
Moore, "Willie," Wins French War Cross.. 66
Motion Picture Exhibitor, The..... 65
Motion Picture Educator..... 80
Motion Picture Option Bill, The..... 56
Motion Picture Photography..... 88
Music for the Picture..... 89
Mutual Exchange Now in Mecca Building... 70

Nashville Expects to See New Theaters... 121
"Nancy Comes Home" (Triangle)..... 129
"Naughty, Naughty" (Paramount)..... 128

Oregon Offers a Good State Rights Field.. 127

Patriotic Film Bureau Formed on Coast.... 126
Pennsylvania, Big Rush for Licenses in... 120
Perfect Review, The..... 57
Picture Theaters Projected..... 118
Projection Department..... 85

Rambles 'Round Filmtown..... 91
Religious Film Concern Formed..... 72
Rembusch Calls a Meeting..... 74

Schenectady Houses Closed on Sunday..... 58
Sherrill and Noble to Stage Spectacle..... 61
Short, Florence. 73
Spokes from the Hub..... 79
State Rights Department..... 100
Sunday Shows in Quebec, Lost Chance for.. 77

Tennessee Convention April 9 and 10..... 65
Texas, Business Outlook Improved in..... 124
Three Scenario Writers for World..... 73
Toronto Exchangemen Uncover Queer Situation. 77
Trimble, Larry, Visits Spokane..... 82

Unlocking Secret Doors..... 57
Universal Makes Safety First Subject..... 72

"Whispering Chorus, The" (Artcraft)..... 128
World Cuts Out "Friends" in Casting..... 66

Zecca, Ferdinand, An Old Timer..... 99
Zukor Gives Plan for Liberty Loan Drive.. 59

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS & CARBON ACCESSORIES.
National Carbon Co..... 147
Speer Carbon Co..... 149

CHAIR & SEATING MFRS.
DuPont Fabrikoid Co..... 151
Steel Furniture Co..... 142

ELECTRICAL & MECH. EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 152
Exhibitors' Supply Co..... 140
Fidelity Electric Co..... 138
Moving Picture Mch. Co..... 142
Porter, B. F..... 134
Swaab, Lewis M..... 140
Typhoon Fan Co..... 134
United Theater Equip. Co..... 155

FILM EXCHANGES.
Film Exchange, The..... 142

LENS MFRS.
Bausch & Lomb Opt. Co..... 149

LOBBY DISPLAYS.
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 138

MFRS. OF INDUSTRIAL PICTURES.
Duhem M. P. Co..... 138
Empire City Film Laboratories, Inc..... 142
Erbograph Co. 151
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 140
Ford Optical Co..... 143
Gunby Bros. 140
Rothacker Film Mfg. Co..... 135
Velasco & Puig..... 138

MFRS. OF MOVING PICTURES.
Clune Producing Co..... 140
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....3, 48-49
Famous Players-Lasky Corp., Colored Insert, 11-15
First Nat'l Exhibitors Circuit, Inc.....36-37
Francis Ford Product. Co., Inc..... 53
Fox Film Corp.....16-23
Gaumont Co. 47
Goldwyn Pictures Corp.....32-35
Goldburg, Jesse L..... 51
Harry McRae Webster Productions, Inc.... 42
Haworth Pictures Corp..... 142
Hiller & Wilk..... 40
Inter-Ocean Film Corp..... 46
Jester Comedy Co..... 149
Jewel Productions, Inc.....7-10
King-Bee Films Corp..... 41
Mutual Film Corp.....Colored Insert, 43
Paralta Plays, Inc..... 30
Pioneer Film Corp..... 44
Select Pictures Corp..... 27
State Rights Distributors, Inc.....28-29
Triangle Distributing Corp.....25-25
United Picture Theaters of America..... 52
U. S. Exhibitors' Book. Corp..... 45
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....2, 4-6
Wharton Releasing Corp.....38-39
World Film Corp..... 26
W. H. Productions Co..... 50
W. W. Hodkinson Corp..... 31

MISCELLANEOUS.
Anti-Censorship Slides 153
Automatic T. S. & C. R. Co..... 140
Bioscope, The 138
Cine-Mundial 152
Cinema, The 152
Classified Advertisements. 143
Cusack, Thos., Co..... 147
Eastman Kodak Co..... 152
Franklin Import & Export Co..... 153
Keller Printing Co..... 152
La Cinematografia Italiana..... 140
Moore, Wm. N..... 140
M. P. Directory Co..... 153
M. P. World..... 154
M. P. World Circulation Coupon..... 151
M. P. World Publication..... 145
National Lamp Works..... 141
National Ticket Co..... 136
Our-Boys-in-France Tobacco Fund..... 135
Robinson, T. H..... 140
Rojas Randall & Co., Inc..... 153
Solidhed Tack Co..... 138
Stone, A. 136

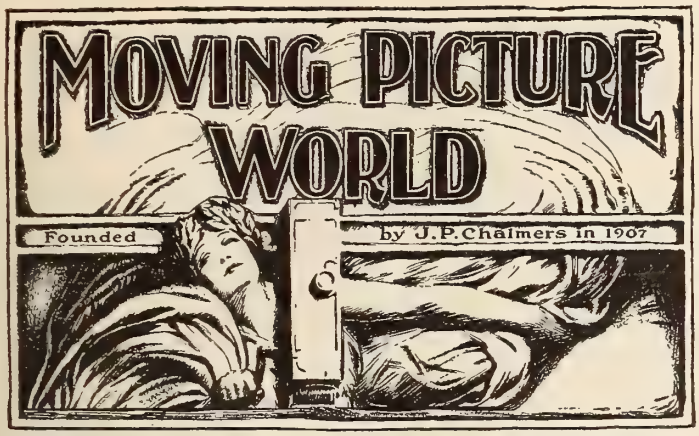
MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Bass Camera Co..... 142
Burke & James, Inc..... 151

MUSIC & MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photoplayer Co..... —
Lyons & Healy..... 142
Marquette Piano Co..... 153
Sin, Clarence E..... 136

PROJECTION MACHINE MFRS.
Enterprise Opt. Mfg. Co..... 136
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 156
Precision Machine Co..... 139

PROJECTION SCREEN MFRS.
Gold King Screen Co..... 140
Minusa Cine Screen Co..... 142

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD



Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

516 FIFTH AVENUE, AT 43D STREET, NEW YORK CITY

(Telephone, Murray Hill, 1610, 1611, 1612, 1613.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
James L. Hoff.....Managing Editor
A. MacArthur, Jr.....Advertising Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—610-611 Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4640.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Cuba, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time should be allowed for change.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—One dollar for twenty words or less; over twenty words, five cents per word.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-third Street, New York, and not to individuals.

CINE-MUNDIAL, the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 516 Fifth Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American and Spanish-speaking market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, April 6, 1918

Facts and Comments

IN the issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD dated March 23 we made some general observations concerning the several so-called co-operation plans that are now being presented to exhibitors. In these remarks we instanced the case of an exhibitor in Iowa who reported the efforts of a solicitor of one of the co-operative schemes to sell him something at half price. Louis F. Blumenthal, one of the officers and promoters of the United Picture Theaters, writes to say that the scheme reported by the Iowa exhibitor has nothing to do with the proposition in which he and Mr. Ochs are interested and requests that the MOVING PICTURE WORLD note the fact. We do so with pleasure.

*

Right on top of Mr. Blumenthal's protest comes one from Tom Hamlin, secretary of the Associated Theaters, Inc., in which he says we surely cannot be referring to his proposition and writes: "Possibly the main intent of the editorial was directed at a new proposed national exhibitors' proposition fathered by Messrs. Ochs and Seelye. Of course an organization cannot be very co-operative if three or four men own 51 per cent. of the stock, because then it appears to me that it is merely another scheme to exploit the exhibitor." Regarding his own organization Mr. Hamlin assures us that "it is absolutely co-operative and that all our principal stockholders, directors and officers combined only hold 14 per cent. of the capital stock and at this time they are all holding the limit permitted under our constitution, so consequently the future of democracy for the large and small exhibitor is assured in the Associated Theaters, Inc."

*

Well; you will remember that Mark Twain once said "It is a difference of opinion that makes horse races."

* * *

BY wire the Sage of Shelbyville, Ind., has projected himself into the conservation controversy with most alarming suddenness. He sees a general uprising, a universal demand for some co-operative plan of distribution and suggests that a general conference of the trade be held for the purpose of crystallizing sentiment on this momentous subject. The call to a talkfest is printed elsewhere in this issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD. We have a great and abiding respect for the altruism of Mr. Rembusch and wish him success in his rather precarious undertaking.

* * *

OUR observations concerning the condition of the condition of the State Right market and one of the reasons why it was not more active has attracted some attention among producers of state right pictures. A number have intimated that they were doing just the thing we said they should do to make their campaign complete. Hiller & Wilk have written the MOVING PICTURE WORLD at length, agreeing with the criticisms we expressed. We print their letter in full on another page. The writers admit that the distributor is a factor in the success of the State Right plan and that they have urged upon buyers the need for advertising, but with little success. It is evident that co-operation between the producer and buyer must be induced by other means.

* * *

DEATH has eliminated another important factor in the motion picture business. This time it is Mitchel H. Mark, one of the pioneer exhibitors and head of the interests which gave to New York and the world, for that matter, the finest example of picture theater known until recently—the Strand theater of this city. His first venture in the amusement line was in Buffalo in the very early days of the moving picture show. From a humble beginning he developed into a considerable factor in the business. While the institution which he builded will probably endure for some years to come, his guiding hand will be missed, together with the smiling countenance and pleasant manner so well known to his familiars. His passing is a distinct loss.

* * *

WE have some real information for exhibitors who are interested in the Liberty Loan drive—and that means all of them. Elsewhere is printed the announcement made by Adolph Zukor, chairman of the committee which has the work in hand, that there will be trailers and posters for every motion picture exhibitor in the land. The trailer will carry a personal message from Secretary McAdoo to the people urging them to buy, and buy and then buy some more Liberty Bonds. The motion picture industry will play a more important part in the coming drive than it has before, says Mr. Zukor, and now it is to the industry to prove its power. Are you preparing to do your part?

The Motion Picture Option Bill

By Sam Spedon.

NOW that the Motion Picture Option Bill, for the showing of motion pictures on the first day of the week, Sunday, has been introduced before the New York State Senate and Assembly, and will have a hearing before the joint committee of both houses at Albany, on Wednesday, April 3, no time should be lost in bringing every influence and pressure to bear upon the codes committee to secure a favorable report and insure its becoming a law.

Leave No Stone Unturned.

It is desirable that everyone connected with the industry should reach by letter, telegraph or personally the legislative representative of his district. Still more desirable is it that everyone should try to get their friends and neighbors to get in touch with their representatives, voicing their sentiments in favor of Sunday pictures and local option and requesting their representatives' support. Petitions should be circulated by the exhibitors and the indorsement of the bill obtained from all civic and tax-payers' organizations, also the indorsement of all labor organizations and women's clubs. As this bill recommends that the showing of motion pictures be left to the option of the people in each community, these indorsements and petitions will serve to show that the industry is anxious to leave it to the people to say whether they want Sunday pictures or not.

Every member of the industry should attend the hearing at Albany on Wednesday, April 3. A large representation is desired. Representative persons of other interests will be welcome. Prominent churchmen, leaders of women's organizations and other civic associations should be induced to go along and lend their support.

Many Angles to Be Presented.

There are many angles to be pointed out in presenting arguments in favor of the Motion Picture Option Bill. First and foremost the showing of motion pictures on Sunday gives the masses the necessary relaxation, after six days of labor, without interfering with their religious observance of the day. It furnishes every family a wholesome and clean enjoyment in which they can participate as a unit, in each other's society, without being separated and seeking pastimes according to their own inclinations. The big angle to which we must direct attention is the war angle. As the battle "over there" becomes more intense, so do our minds. The more time we have to think about it, the more anxious everybody becomes. We want relief, diversion from the terrible strain and there is no more rational way of getting it than by having our mind diverted by a good picture. It not only furnishes diversion, but it is elevating and educational. The news reels that show the many activities of the war, such as shipbuilding, Red Cross work, aeroplane and military manoeuvres, etc., etc., are encouraging and inspiring.

Helping Win the War.

Let us not forget the great value of motion pictures to the Government at this time, as a means of Liberty Loans, War Saving Stamps and other propaganda for universal democracy and peace. Think of the source of revenue the motion pictures have been to the Government during the past year and will be during all succeeding years of the war. No industry has delivered a greater percentage of returns and no industry has given more liberally of its products and its privileges than the motion picture theatres. They have been a close second with the press in assisting the Government in all its work.

Let the People Choose.

There is a reason, many reasons, why the people in most communities want motion pictures on Sunday and the question of the legality of their showing on the first day of the week should be settled once and for all in New York State; at least it should be left to the people of the different towns and cities whether they should have them or not.

Will Pass on Its Merits.

Notwithstanding it was intimated, even by some in the industry, that with sufficient funds the Motion Picture Option Bill might become a law, every member of the Allied Committee repudiated this suggestion and voted unanimously that not one cent would be contributed to a "slush fund." "If it does not pass on its merits, it will never pass at all."

The Screen a Power for Good.

Everybody concedes the power of the screen for good. It is recognized as the universal newspaper printed in a "universal language," which all can read. It is the desire of the motion picture industry to use it for good and for that reason it should not be prostituted to any other purpose. It is admitted that it is the greatest medium of amusement, entertainment and education the world has ever known. Realizing this, it should be used not only for these purposes; it should be used in molding public opinion in matters political and make itself felt in shaping the destinies of those who seek political preferment regardless of the will of the people.

For the information of those who will see their representatives, we append this list of the Codes Committee:

Senate Codes Committee.

Dist. Senator.	Politics. Postoffice.
43—Charles D. Newton, Chairman.	Rep.—Geneseo, Livingston Co.
10—Alfred J. Gilchrist,	Rep.—294 Ridgewood Avenue, Brooklyn.
24—George A. Slater,	Rep.—Port Chester.
9—Robert R. Lawson,	Rep.—24 Woodbine St., Brooklyn.
29—George B. Wellington,	Rep.—17 First St., Troy.
6—Charles F. Murphy,	Rep.—292 Clinton Ave., Brooklyn.
13—James J. Walker,	Dem.—6 St. Luke's Place, New York City.
20—Salvatore A. Cotillo,	Dem.—235 East 116th St., New York City.
19—Edward J. Dowling,	Dem.—125 Broadway, N. Y. City.

Assembly Codes Committee.

William Duke, Jr. Chairman.	Rep.—Wellsville, Allegany County.
George R. Fearon,	Rep.—614 Gurney Bldg., Syracuse, Onondaga County.
Alexander Taylor,	Rep.—115 Franklin St., Buffalo, Erie County.
George T. Davis,	Rep.—Willett Block, Rome, Oneida County.
Edmund B. Jenks,	Rep.—Whitney Point, Broome County.
Wilfred E. Youker,	Rep.—310 Kenmore Place, Brooklyn, Kings County.
Harold C. Mitchell,	Rep.—165 Broadway, New York City, New York County.
William J. Fallon,	Rep.—Mamaroneck, Westchester Co.
A. Edgar Davies,	Rep.—Parker Building, Schenectady, Schenectady County.
Edward A. Johnson,	Rep.—17 West 132nd St., New York City, New York County.
Caesar B. F. Barra,	Dem.—61 Park Row, New York City, New York County.
Earl A. Smith,	Dem.—81 Fulton St., New York City, New York County.
Joseph A. Whitehorn,	Soc.—791 Broadway, Brooklyn, Kings County.

The Perfect Reviewer

LET us begin with a small fable.

Once upon a time a young man slipped an engagement ring on his best girl's finger, whereupon she demanded the name of his favorite dessert.

"Lemon pie," he replied.

"Goody!" she exclaimed. "After we're married I'll make you a lemon pie every day!"

The moral of the fable is simple: The bride-to-be lacked judgment. The application of the moral will appear later on.

Let us now deal with facts.

Until a certain trade publication installed its "Exhibitor to Exhibitor Review Service" no one in the moving picture business had any suspicion that there was another man reviewing photoplays who knew it all—and admitted it. Up to advent of this second "fount of all knowledge" one of the guides offered to the exhibitor by the publication in question was the department in which the theater man might read five or ten different opinions on the merits of a picture and take his choice between "Hart a sure bet" and "These kind of pictures are not wanted," or endeavor to reconcile "Mary has never equaled this one" and "Mary's best picture" with "Not a story people can get excited over" and "Too morbid for my people."

All this is now changed.

By the aid of this perfect prognosticator's intuition, prescience, clairvoyance and fore and hind-sight, the exhibitor will now be able to sit in his office, take one glance at the headlines of the these *n*th degree reviews and know precisely how all his theater patrons are going to receive the pictures commented upon by this Diagnostician Extraordinaire.

Think of how the recipient of so remarkable a service will have the laugh on a friendly exhibitor in another city who does not enjoy the same inestimable advantage and telegraphs his more fortunate brother exhibitor:

"Played so-and-so to a packed house. Audience delighted. Be sure to book it." With what supreme satisfaction will the subscriber to the new service wire back: "Quit your kidding. That picture can't do business. P. S. H. says so in his review."

Let us now put some of these Daniel-come-to-judgment reviews to the lemon pie test.

Against "Wild Youth," the Blackton-Paramount picture made from Sir Gilbert Parker's novel, the following P. S. H. indictments have been returned: "This picture will not be liked, as the prevailing feature throughout is nothing but brutality. * * * The story is based on the marriage of a seventeen-year-old orphan to an old man, which fact will prejudice the spectator against it from the start. * * * To show such an event on the screen is distasteful to the public."

In the same issue the publication's common or Eastern variety of reviewer states that "Mr. Parker's theme lends itself to the screen as if it had been written for it." Reviews in the other trade papers are equally favorable. The picture is excellent mental fodder, of the good, wholesome roast beef order and will be relished by every one with a normal appetite, if roast beef is not served too often on the amusement menu.

"Love Me," a Paramount-Ince picture, is headlined by P. S. H., "Dorothy Dalton's Best." It is by no means Dorothy Dalton's best picture. The subject is anything but new and the star is hardly the type for so ingenuous a heroine. To carry out the gastronomic method of comparison, the picture belongs to the lemon pie grade of intellectual food and many will find it to their taste. But who wants lemon pie every day?

"The Cross Bearer," a World picture, is headlined in the publication's "Clear, Crisp Box Office Appraisals," "Cardinal Mercier Dramatized with Little Effect." After contending that the picture has many impossible situations, this opinion is expressed:

P. S. H. on "The Cross Bearer":

"We doubt the wisdom of showing on the screen an impersonation of the Pope. I am afraid it will offend the Catholic element. This picture will not appeal to an intelligent audience."

What the Catholic Clergy of Baltimore say:

Cardinal Gibbons.—I saw it and was much pleased.

The Rev. William J. Ennis.—It is strongly expressive of Catholic patriotism, and we as representatives of the Jesuit Order in Baltimore heartily approve.

The Rev. Joseph W. Renard.—It is a wonderful picture and will, I am sure, find favor with American Catholics.

And several others in the same vein.

By the way, is P. S. H. a one or a two man power reviewer? His mixing up of the ambiguous "we" with the intimate "I" leaves the matter somewhat in doubt.

Unlocking Secret Doors

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

THE wide-open door of exhibition beckons in a friendly way to all who know how to dramatize feeling and thought for the screen. The exhibitor, while human enough to have his own personal prejudices, is primarily a public entertainer, and he knows that the public taste is for variety. In catering to that taste he exacts only meritorious performance of what will suit the great mass of people. By meritorious performance he means one free from those weaknesses which can be easily avoided, which spoil the effect of stories which would not otherwise be a disappointment both to himself and his audience. That is practically all the exhibitor exacts of what he shows on the screen.

What locks the front doors of production?

Is it theatrical convention? Is it custom? Is it prejudice? Is it pull? How is it that so many feeble and flickering lights manage to get into the studios, where they illuminate nothing? The big financiers do not want worthless factors in their organizations. They are after products that pay, and they are willing to risk both time and money to keep abreast of every possible human advance in thought and feeling. They are well aware that competition is bound to become sharper and more persistent as new elements appear, and it is no longer possible to down these new elements by force. Liberty of thought is what the world is fighting for.

Liberty of production is sorely needed.

Freedom for the biggest and best makers of plays must come from themselves, from within—no great restraints are imposed from without. With a marvelous number of human aims at work in our new politics and our new society, with great changes quietly taking place which we did not deem possible a few years ago, with our people trying to readjust their lives and fortunes to meet a great and pressing emergency, is the projection machine to throw no light upon what is passing among us, or only what is mistakable in its final clearness?

The influence of moving pictures is not decreasing.

They are still a powerful factor in the daily lives of millions. People love them in spite of what is unlovable in them. They love the art itself as never before, thanks to the finest examples now being shown. What jars them most is the hollowness of theatrical trickery and those lapses of time which seriously break concentrated attention. What is meant by trickery is the use of time-worn devices like the fatal letter, the villain's dying confession of the crime, the overheard conversation, the curtain on two lovers kissing, and the creaking mechanism of ancient stage structure.

How rare is that intensity which causes our hearts to sharply respond, which marks every great dramatic impulse, every great interpretation of life!

Here and there a bright flame leaps up and discloses some interesting wide expanse never before clearly viewed. Even those critics who are urged into glossing over the unsatisfactory and the inadequate know there is a vast difference in stories they attempt to level by complacent comment. No deadlier enemy has the exhibitor, the public and the producer himself than a reviewer of that kind. No surer method could be taken for criticism to eliminate itself completely from the confidence it must deserve in order to hold.

Lack of discrimination is one of the locked doors.

Lack of discrimination in the studios, however, is the leading cause, that of the press an evil effect. No trurer friend has the exhibitor, the public, the producer himself than the critic who stands out bravely for constant, tenacious effort to improve an art people have learned to profoundly enjoy. They enjoy best the drama which is less played than lived before their eyes. It is on this account that the player of strong human personality has been brought into prominence. Yet to be at his best the interpreter must have something effective to interpret.

It is to be found in a silent poetry wrung from life itself.

No matter what section of life is unfolded, whether intense or amusing, it should be addressed first to liberal and intelligent audiences and through them filter into the mass mind. Neither studidity nor complacence ever advanced any art of expression. It is the intelligent audience which reports the success of a play and makes it widely popular among those incapable of swift judgment. Such audiences have made the success of many a product denied just recognition by men paid to exercise discrimination between what is fine and what is false.

How many directors understand character progression?

In pure melodrama we are scarcely introduced to human character. There is only action and intrigue for its own sake, an ancient convention which came near destroying interest in stage performance. Now the main action rises out of character, and character is never left where it was found, as in old-fashioned plays we grew tired of years ago, the unchanged villain and hero. With that no longer effectual in any form of dramatic story, it is not to be wondered at that good actors came to the front by leaps and bounds, for they incorporated what directors left out of the play.

Thus producers came near being owned by the actors.

Hart enforced the reform of the Cave Man under woman's softening and refining influence, Pickford the sweetening effect of gentle or bright girlhood, Fairbanks the contagion of good cheer. Vividly, sometimes entrancingly, the idea of character progression was presented by interpreters who went beyond the story and dragged it along with them simply because they had unlocked one of the secret doors of success, that of character conversion. That success was misleading when it focused attention upon the actor to the extent of having no plays built upon ideas.

It opened one secret door and closed another.

Plays may illustrate something, beautify something, attack something, ridicule something, but they drop to the inanity of next-to-nothingness as a creaking vehicle to carry some self-sufficient star. Most unfortunately for the star, quite as well as for the average hopeful audience, that is what misunderstood success leads straight to. Plain ordinary egotism, intended to keep us cheerful during adversity, becomes so inflated under sudden success that it cannot keep down to earth. The interesting peculiarities of this or that performer, however entertaining at first, may pall from constant repetition. It is the intelligent interpreter's role to interpret conversion, progression and variety of character rather than to perpetually reassert one personality.

There are many other unlocked doors in this new art.

When more of them are opened moving pictures will help to make us understand each other a little better than we do. In their own democratic way they will make us more gentle and tolerant, more liberal in judgment, when there is intelligence back of them. Thus they will gradually rise to higher planes—it is our business to help them along—until they assume their rightful place among the older sister arts.

Schenectady Houses Closed on Sunday

Mayor Not Opposed to Opening, But Desires Court Order for His Own Protection.

Albany, March 24.

NO ATTEMPT was made today to open the motion picture houses of Schenectady. The Mayor of the city openly stated that he was not opposed to the houses opening, but that he desired first a court order to protect himself, and until that court order was granted he would advise proprietors of the houses not to attempt any opening. Unsuccessful efforts were made to secure an injunction. The district attorney of Schenectady County made the statement that if the houses attempted to open there would probably have been no interference, but that there was a desire on the part of the proprietors to meet the authorities half way that undoubtedly an agreement satisfactory to all persons could be reached.

The Bergstrom case, the outcome of which has been watched throughout the State, occupied the attention of the Court of Appeals in Albany last week. The court handed down a decision permitting the withdrawal of an appeal of Victor Bergstrom of Schenectady, convicted some time ago of operating the Majestic theater, of which he is manager, in that city ,on a Sunday.

The substitution of Gustavus A. Rogers of New York was made as cousel for Bergstrom some weeks ago. The move of the New York interests in substituting Mr. Rogers was made with the idea of preventing a possible adverse decision which would have closed all New York theaters on Sundays.

The recent decision of the court permitting the withdrawal of the appeal does not affect the local question. The third department of the Appellate Division in the Bender case of Albany held that moving pictures are theatrical exhibitions and as such are prohibited by the law, although they were not in existence when the law was enacted. The second department of the Appellate Division held an opposite opinion in the Henleb case, Justice Gaynor writing the opinion. Neither case was revealed by the Court of Appeals. In the second department trial courts are bound by the decision as of the highest court deciding the question and Sunday movies are legal. They are illegal in the third department for the same reason. The first and fourth departments are bound by neither ruling and picture houses may remain open Sundays, until there is a conviction sustained by the higher courts. C. L. GRANT.

VITAGRAPH WINS ANITA STEWART SUIT.

Supreme Court Justice Cohalan, who heard a suit of the Vitagraph Company of America against Miss Anita Stewart to restrain her from appearing for any other moving picture company during the existence of a contract with the Vitagraph Company, handed down a decision March 23 granting the injunction. The contract really expired on January 31 last, but because Miss Stewart refused to act for the plaintiff for twenty-nine weeks before the term expired she is enjoined from acting for any one else for twenty-nine weeks after the end of the term.

Zukor Gives Plan for Liberty Loan Drive

Says That Motion Pictures Will Play a More Important Part in the Campaign for the Third Loan than in Previous Drives--Exhibitors and Producers Continue to Express Enthusiastic Approval

ADOLPH ZUKOR, chairman of the committee appointed by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry to co-operate with the Treasury Department of the Government, at his office, March 22, announced the details concerning the activities of the motion picture industry in connection with the third Liberty Loan drive.

"In the third Liberty Loan campaign," said Mr. Zukor, "the motion picture industry will play a more important part than it has evidenced in previous drives. Careful preparation of plans in collaboration with Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo has made this possible. Every motion picture theater in the country regardless of size or locality is involved in this new campaign.

"Seventeen thousand five hundred trailers have been prepared. These films will be sent to every motion picture theater throughout the land. The trailer runs fifty feet and opens with the new Liberty Loan flag followed by a view of Secretary McAdoo at his desk writing a message to the people on the new loan. Next comes a close-up of the message followed by a close-up of the Liberty Loan button, which concludes the film. The message which will be flashed on the screens by this film reads:

"We must support our gallant sailors and soldiers. We must make them swift victors in their fight with the Kaiser. We can do it if we at home do our duty with the same quality of patriotism that animates our men in the trenches. The least duty we can perform—and we should be eager and happy to perform it—is to lend our money, every available dollar we have and can save, to our government in order that our gallant sons may be supplied with all they need to save America. No true patriot will fail to buy United States Liberty Bonds.

WILLIAM G. McADOO.

"With this film there will be distributed 100,000 posters, five to each theater and twenty to each exchange. These posters have been prepared under the suprvision of our committee in collaboration with the Government and present striking illustrations of great patriotic appeal. They are the creations of such artists as Howard Chandler Christy, Louis J. Dresser, Franklin Booth, H. H. Green and Harry S. Bressler.

"In making this announcement, I personally wish to urge exhibitors everywhere to put this material to the best possible use, running the film at every show, not merely as a trailer, but separate and apart from any other film, thus giving it added distinction. These films are presented to exhibitors gratis. They are not to be returned, but may be kept by those who receive them. Both film and paper will be mailed direct to the theater by the Government, and it is urged, should be used through out the entire duration of the forthcoming campaign.

"As a result of this concerted action on the part of exhibitors everywhere in the United States the power of the screen will be evidenced in one gigantic thrust. 'The Big Push' on the other side is now underway, and it is up to every person at home to put his shoulder to the 'Big Push' which starts here on April 6 and which will mean new muscle behind that wallop which must lay the Kaiser low. The motion picture industry is fortunate in having such a wide scope in which to help Uncle Sam, and every person connected with it should realize the particular opportunity afforded us to further prove the importance of the screen in assisting the Government in its great work."

Exhibitors Taking Hold With Vim.

There is plenty of evidence that the exhibitors of the country are taking hold of the Liberty Loan drive with a vim. From letters and from the reports of correspondents it is quite likely that there will be more than a "Liberty Loan Night" in thousands of theaters during the weeks of the drive. In other words they caught the plan suggested by the Moving Picture World the first time and are preparing to go it several better. We are sure that Uncle Sam will have reason to be distinctly proud of the efforts of his picture men. Here are a few straws which show how the wind blows:

Baltimore Will Celebrate April 6.

The moving picture is to play no mean part in the big patriotic celebration which is to mark Saturday, April 6, in Baltimore as one great big Liberty Day, which will long be remembered by all the inhabitants of the Monumental City.

It is understood that on this day there will be a half holiday. A great parade of 20,000 soldiers from Camp Meade will be one of the stirring events and then the great Maryland Liberty Loan Cantonment show, "Over There," will be open at the Fifth Regiment armory.

Bernard Depkind, Jr., supervising manager of the Parkway theater interests, has been working like a Trojan in an effort to make the moving picture program which will be given at the "Over There" show one of the big drawing cards of the event. He has been to New York in an effort to obtain Ambassador Gerard's story, "My Four Years in Germany," for the event. Besides this, Harry Lewy, a member of the Wizard Theater Company, with his assistant, J. Aler Barry, formerly with the Fine Arts Company, of Los Angeles, has been working with the Civic League of Baltimore in making a moving picture entitled, "How the Jonses Did Their Bit," which will also be used at the Fifth Regiment armory.

This is what a few of the Baltimore exhibitors have said regarding the Liberty Loan night:

Arthur B. Price, manager of the Rialto theater, Linden avenue at North—It is a foregone conclusion that the Rialto will be happy to be made a part of the Liberty Loan publicity campaign, and this theater will do all it can to aid this worthy cause. We will urge, through the use of slides, that our patrons buy these gilt-edged bonds of the Government.

G. Horton Gaffney, proprietor of the New Pickwick theater, 115 North Howard street—Anything that can be done at President Wilson Praises Exhibitors.

ADDRESSING William McCormick Blair, director of Four-Minute Men, President Wilson expresses his appreciation of the work being done by moving picture men in the following terms:

The motion picture theaters of the country are rendering so substantial a service in aiding the Four-Minute Men as spokesmen of the national cause that I would not willingly fail to acknowledge the debt the country owes to these theater managers. Their response to requests has been hearty, and their co-operation is most helpful.

Will you please convey to them my appreciation of their aid in giving this exclusive privilege to your speakers?

Cordially and sincerely yours,
WOODROW WILSON.

This letter will be read by 25,000 Four-Minute Men throughout the United States and its dependencies during the week.

What we have done we have done and we thank the President for his kind words; but just watch our smoke!

the New Pickwick to aid the cause of the Government will be done willingly. We will use slides to promote the sale of Liberty Bonds, and probably add some other feature to help.

George Benjamin, manager of the Red Moon theater, 20 West Baltimore street—Sure, we will run slides to help the Liberty Loan.

On Sunday, April 7, Louis A. DeHoff, manager of the New theater, plans to give a big entertainment to help the W. S. S. drive, and while the plans are not quite completed, it is understood that the general plan is to have each person who attends the performance buy a thrift stamp as a ticket, which will, of course, be the property of the buyer.

On this same date Bernard Depkin, Jr., also plans a big entertainment to be held under the auspices of the United Service Club, of Baltimore, and a voluntary collection to be taken up for the enlargement of this club, which is for the soldiers and sailors who come to Baltimore on leave.

These two entertainments will, in reality, be the big Liberty Nights of the two best known and most prominent of Baltimore's film men, who on all occasions do their utmost to aid the Government in its fight for freedom and democracy.

Large Plans in Philadelphia.

L. D. Beggs, vice-president of the Central Market Street Amusement Company, of Philadelphia, and chairman of the Liberty Loan Advertising Committee, together with Frank W. Buhler, general manager and director of this company's chain of theaters, addressed the members of the Exhibitors' League and United Exhibitors' Association on March 19 in behalf of the new Liberty Loan drive. Mr. Beggs outlined the part which the exhibitors are to follow and expressed the importance of strictly adhering to the plans.

Several copies of a thousand foot reel and hundreds of trailers boosting the next Liberty Loan drive, made under the direction of Frank W. Buhler, have been distributed among the exchangemen, who have promised their hearty co-operation, and will see that all of their customers are supplied with these films.

An important point brought out by Mr. Beggs, who has extensive financial interests in Philadelphia, during his appeal to the exhibitors in asking them not to neglect to show the "Liberty" pictures was the fact that if "Uncle Sam" was not given the proper support in this drive so that the amount of the next loan would be assured, that drastic steps to raise funds would be taken, which would cause much concern.

Mr. Buhler, who is sub-chairman of the Committee and who has already indorsed the Liberty Loan Night as suggested by the Moving Picture World, appealed to the exhibitors to show their patriotism by running the Liberty pictures as often as possible as a duty to their government. Mr. Buhler is now completing arrangements whereby all of the theaters under his direction will have a Liberty Loan Night.

National Organizer Rodgers Approves.

Editor Moving Picture World, New York, N. Y.

Dear Sir: I was very favorably impressed with your article on the Third Liberty Loan and heartily indorse the publicity you are giving it. I know you voice the sentiments of every true American and I know you will have the co-operation of every moving picture theater in the United States.

I have just completed a tour from New York to California and along the Mexican border, and I have had an opportunity to judge of the patriotism of the exhibitors. Every one of them is willing to assist in every possible way, and you are to be commended for using the columns of your paper in such a forceful manner, showing the moving picture men their patriotic duty.

We are in this war; it is our war, and we are going to help the President and the boys "over there" to win it.

I strongly favor the suggestion of setting aside one night a week to be known as Third Liberty Loan Night, until the amount asked for is over subscribed.

Really neither the President nor Mr. McAdoo should be obliged to ask the American people to subscribe for the Third Liberty Loan bonds. It is the patriotic duty of the American people to subscribe for them as fast as they are issued; for what better security can a man ask than the stamp of the U. S. A. on the face of a bond?

I know you will find the screen of every moving picture theater in the United States at the disposal of the government.

DAVID G. RODGERS,
National Organizer, M. P. E. L. of A.

Jones, Linick & Schaefer Strong for the Drive.

Aaron J. Jones, of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, Chicago, when interviewed regarding the Third Liberty Loan drive in moving theaters on April 6, stated that he was heart and soul in the movement and that his Orpheum theater, State street, will be used in the most attractive manner possible to promote the success of the loan. He heartily complimented the Moving Picture World on its suggestion.

Peter J. Schaefer, of the firm of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, has been appointed one of the members of the bond committee of theatrical managers in Chicago, and will sell bonds during the Third Liberty Loan drive. The other members of this committee are Harry J. Ridings, manager Cohan's Grand Opera House, and Harry Powers, owner of the Powers theater. Dramatic theaters and moving picture theaters are placed in the same class under this committee.

Peter J. Schaefer is most enthusiastic over the big loan drive and his firm confidence that the Chicago picture theaters will support it to a man, with patriotic spirit and zealous effort. He is a strong supporter of the Third Liberty Loan movement suggested by the Moving Picture World.

"You Bet," Says Linton, of Little Falls.

W. H. Linton, an exhibitor of Little Falls and Utica, N. Y., was asked by our representative if he were preparing for a "Liberty Loan Night" and replied: "You bet! That is a splendid idea of the Moving Picture World and I am going to make it a big night, Four-Minute Men, special music and everything that goes with it. I haven't yet decided whether I will set aside a certain percentage of my receipts or devote the proceeds to the purchase of Liberty Bonds, but I am going to have a Liberty Night and do it right."

Saginaw Strong for It.

Saginaw, March 14, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World, New York City.

Dear Sir: Permit me to state that the suggestion as made in the editorial columns of your valued paper appeals to me greatly, and further permit me to indorse wholeheartedly your plan of a "Liberty Loan Night" in every motion picture theater in this good old U. S. A.

Extensive plans are being made by myself to make this a memorable occasion in the City of Saginaw, and through the co-operation of the various committees arrangements are being made to have prominent speakers who will deliver stirring speeches, with special music for the occasion. Appeals will appear upon our screen, and a program composed largely of patriotic features of the kind that should arouse plenty of patriotism.

I should be pleased to do even more than outlined and hope that I may, and you may rest assured that I will use every means and all facilities at my command to make it successful. Every effort will be put forth to fill our entire 1,600 seats, and if every patron in attendance that night does not do his bit it will not be because we have not done ours.

The idea is one that should receive the consideration of every motion picture exhibitor, whether large or small, and should be accepted as an obligation by them, because of the fact that the screen today is one of Uncle Sam's strongest allies.

With best wishes for the continued success of Moving Picture World, I beg to remain,

Sincerely yours,
A. J. MOELLER, Manager Franklin Theater.

Peterson Strong for the Cause.

Belle Fourche, S. D., March 18, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World, New York City, N. Y.

Dear Sir: Regarding the "Liberty Loan Night" I hope every theater in the United States will follow out the plan. It is a splendid undertaking, and I believe will do more to advertise the Loan issue and start it off with a bang than all the slides and newspaper advertising could do during the entire time it will take to raise the money called for.

For myself I can state that we are going to have one of the biggest and most patriotic shows on April 6 that has ever taken place here. I placed the plan before the Commercial Club and they are back of it; so are the schools; in fact, the entire town is. I have booked "Draft 258" for the night; there will be a large chorus and speakers. So with so much enthusiasm we expect to oversubscribe our share in a short time. One of the principal things I am working on for that night is a film leader which will contain the names of all the boys who have enlisted or been drafted from here, also the amount of money subscribed to Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., War Saving Stamps, Liberty Bonds, in fact cover the many organizations.

On April 14 of last year a Patriotic Day was held here, which consisted of speeches, parade, and several stunts that went to show that we were in this war to the limit. I had pictures taken of the day's happenings to keep and show for history. Every year we will add to it, so that in years to come the people can see what this town has done.

I hope every theater in the United States will fall in line for the "Liberty Loan Night," as it will do untold good for the cause and will help the theater more than anything else. We will give ten per cent. gross to Y. M. C. A. and buy bonds with the balance. LEO PETERSON.

Woodstown, N. J., on the List.

Woodstown, N. J.

Editor Moving Picture World, New York.

Dear Sir: Your movement for a "Liberty Loan Night" will certainly be heartily responded to by every exhibitor in the business. Kindly count our house in, and we will watch your columns for information as to when and how we can secure reels and advertising for it, and work up our night in unison with local efforts to secure subscriptions.

E. W. HUMPHREYS.

Selig Says Splendid Plan.

Chicago, Ill., March 19, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World, New York.

Dear Sir: I think your plan for the Third Liberty Loan drive on April 6 a splendid one. It should receive the hearty cooperation of everyone in the motion picture industry.

I am deeply interested in the success of the Third Liberty Loan and shall be glad to cooperate in every way possible. I should like to see this loan surpass its predecessors both in magnitude and in the patriotic spirit with which it is supported.

THE SELIG POLYSCOPE COMPANY.
W. N. Selig, President.

Congratulations from Rothacker.

Chicago, March 21, 1918.

Dear Sir: I heartily and unqualifiedly congratulate you on your enterprise and patriotism as indicated by your plan to inaugurate a Liberty Loan Night in every motion picture theater in the United States.

Yesterday it was my privilege to participate in the meeting of the Liberty Loan Committee of this district who are dependent to a great extent upon the motion picure industry to force the next drive to a successful conclusion. At this meeting your plan was discussed and commended.

I believe that I voice the sentiment of our industry when I say:

"Don't just buy a Liberty Bond—buy Liberty Bonds; buy all you can, and then buy some more.

"Don't just sit and say: 'Business as Usual'—get out and do; and if you do it right, you will enjoy the privilege of giving more to our Government than usual."

The man who doesn't do more than his bit right now isn't worth a Trumpeter's Toot; the motion picture industry today has the opportunity of a lifetime to give and to do and to help win the war.

It is up to us to "carry on."

Yours truly,
ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO.,
Watterson Rothacker, President.

Canadian Exhibitor Sends Best Wishes.

Halifax, N. S., March 9, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World, New York.

Dear Sir: With reference to your plan asking that all theaters co-operate in a "Liberty Loan Night" to be given in all the moving picture theaters in the United States, I think it is a good idea, and, while you omitted the mention of Canada, I might tell you that our recent Victory Loan was a great success, and was helped along in no small way by the theaters of Canada co-operating with "slides," donating their space in the daily press, and speakers.

Trusting you will be successful, and with best wishes, I I remain, Yours very truly,

J. M. FRANKLIN.

Strong Appoints Brandt Brooklyn Chairman.

Benjamin Strong, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, has appointed William Brandt, of Brooklyn, chairman of the exhibitors' activities on the Third Liberty Loan drive in his borough, under S. L. Rothapfel, general chairman for New York. Mr. Brandt was the author of the "Liberty Loan Night" resolution which was adopted by the recent convention of New York State exhibitors.

GOOD IDEA FROM THE STRAND.

The Strand Theater, New York, started the third Liberty Loan drive the week after the Moving Picture World published the editorial on the Liberty Loan question. During the week of March 3rd a full page story appeared in the Strand Theater program. Another story was published in the Strand Theater program during the week of March 10th, which we reproduce as a suggestion to managers:

Help Them Fight.

You are sitting in a comfortable theater enjoying a good show. Wouldn't you enjoy it even more if you were the owner of one or several Liberty Bonds? Wouldn't it bring the great world war home a little closer? Wouldn't you say to yourself when you get home, "I'm helping the boys fight; I'm backing the President; I'm making the world safe for democracy"?

Perhaps you did subscribe to the first and second loans, perhaps, with the high cost of living and keen competition nowadays you are having a hard time making buckle and strap meet. But just think how insignificant your troubles and hardships are when compared with what the boys "Over There" are suffering and enduring in order that you may live, comfortable and warm and protected in your own home.

Way down in your heart you may be sick and tired of the cry on every side, "Save and help the government!" But what would happen if everybody should get sick and tired and decide to throw up the whole job? There wouldn't be any government to work and save for. There wouldn't be any great power to build ships, man them and send guns and still more guns to keep the enemy away from this side of the Atlantic.

That is why it is up to you, each one of you, personally and individually to draw in the lines a little closer; to save and help and make sacrifices. The very least you can do is to loan the government your money.

The Third Liberty Loan will open on April 6th, the first anniversary of our entry into the war. No more appropriate occasion could have been selected for a great money drive. The loan will be larger than either of the first two, and that means that every man, woman and child must buy bonds. It means that you must subscribe to the limit of your ability. Lay your plans to do this now by cutting down on all petty extravagances. Prepare!

Sherrill and Noble to Stage Spectacle

President and Producer Will Aid Tampa's Liberty Loan Commitee Inaugurate Drive.

PLANS to make the big Liberty Loan rally at Tampa, Fla., April 7, one of the most novel and one of the biggest affairs of its kind in the country received a big impetus when President William Sherrill and Director Jack Noble, of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, whose company is in the Florida city producing "The Birth of a Race," notified Albert Thornton, director of the loan for Hillsboro County, that they will stage a magnificent pantomime showing the German outrages in Belgium.

Director Noble, who has charge of the production of the big spectacle people here, is one of the best-known in filmland, and his letter offering to undertake the direction of what promises to be a spectacle of no mean proportion is welcomed by Director Thornton. Commenting on Mr. Nobles' letter agreeing to undertake the task, Mr. Thornton said: "That's the kind of spirit that will make this Liberty Loan drive the biggest success on record, and more—that same spirit will win this war yet."

The entire expense of the spectacle is to be borne by the Frohman concern. Moving pictures of the show are to be taken and presented to the Liberty Loan Committee for such use as it sees fit.

ROTHAPFFEL IS LIBERTY LOAN CHAIRMAN.

S. L. Rothapfel, manager of the Rialto and Rivoli, has been appointed chairman of a committee to organize Greater New York exhibitors in a publicity drive for the Third Liberty Loan. Hamish MacLauren, head of Mr. Rothapfel's regular publicity department, will be an important factor in promoting the Liberty Loan campaign.

Favorable Outlook for Sunday Option Bill

New York City Senators Reported Solidly Behind Proposed Measure--Mayors' Amendment Is Incorporated

Albany, March 19.

PROVIDING up-state Senators and Assemblymen stand by their word the Motion Picture Option Bill will be acted on favorably in the Legislature of this state between now and the middle of April, when the session is slated for final adjournment. New York City is behind the bill to a man. Word has gone forth that Governor Charles S. Whitman will sign the bill if it reaches his hand. Every effort must now be made to prevent the bill from being buried in committee. At a meeting of the Allied Motion Picture Committee of New York State, held in this city today, reports from those who had been named to get in touch with Senators and Assemblymen since the meeting of a week ago were heard. In the main they were favorable.

There are twenty-three Senators from New York City. Outside of New York ten Senators, according to the reports of this afternoon, are favorably disposed to the bill. Nothing definite could be learned as to the attitude of three Senators. One stands open to conviction, while two have as yet not been sounded out in the belief that it was inadvisable until after the bill has been introduced. No reports were forthcoming from seven senatorial districts, including that of Elon R. Brown, majority leader of the Senate, and one of the powers in the upper house. The remainder of the fifty-two were non-committal.

Today's meeting of the committee was an enthusiastic one, with Rochester, Buffalo and Syracuse represented. No time was lost in getting down to business. Eliminating the legislators in Greater New York, as it is generally understood that they will favor the bill, Chairman Manheimer called upon each of the captains in the remaining senatorial districts to state what he had learned as to the attitude of his representatives.

One Senator was quoted as being open to conviction, yet favorably inclined, but desirous of first seeing the attitude of the three large cities in his district. W. A. Zeiser, of Schenectady, outlined what was being done in that city in the way of securing ultimate favorable action on the bill by the Senator and Assemblymen. Post-cards are being used as showing the trend of public sentiment to the legislators. Other cities about the state will follow Schenectady's example.

Newspapers were reported in several sections of the state as being editorially favorable to the bill.

Some consternation came when it was ascertained that the bill had as yet not been introduced in either Senate or Assembly. Steps were immediately taken by the appointment of a committee to get the bill under way. Explanation was made at the executive session as to the reason for the delay and the apparent failure up to the present time of Senator Gilchrist of Brooklyn to introduce the bill in his body and of Assemblyman Blakely to follow the same procedure in the lower house.

The afternoon's meeting adjourned at four o'clock with the understanding that it would reconvene at eight o'clock this evening and that during the interval those present would interview their respective Senators and Assemblymen and carry the work on. Meanwhile Frederick H. Elliott, secretary of the committee, was to see Senator Elon R. Brown in an endeavor to gain his assistance in behalf of the bill.

One thing is certain: There is no "slush fund" behind the bill as it stands today. It will stand or fail solely on its merits. The committee is firm in the belief that there is almost a universal demand for Sunday movies in this state, and that if the legislators act as representatives of their respective communities and that if political influence is not brought to bear to bury it in committee the passage of the bill is assured beyond doubt.

Announcement was made at the opening of the evening session that a change had been made in the wording of the bill as the result of a letter from the State Conference of Mayors, which reached Secretary Elliott today. In its amended form the bill now reads as follows:

> Section 2154.—Notwithstanding the provisions of this article or any other general or local act it shall not be unlawful to exhibit motion pictures on the first day of the week after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, in city, town or village, if an ordinance shall not have been adopted by the common council or other legislative governing body of the city, town or village prohibiting such exhibitions on such day and after such hour; and the adoption of such an ordinance is hereby authorized.
>
> Nothing herein contained, however, shall prohibit the common council or other local governing body from authorizing motion picture exhibitions at any hour after 2 o'clock in the afternoon on such day.

The evening session revealed the fact that Senator Gilchrist had eluded the committee which had sought him out at the capitol late in the afternoon for the purpose of further requesting him to introduce the bill in the Senate as he had promised to do a week or so ago. The members of the committee ran into Senator Gilchrist in the corridors of the capitol and were requested to wait his return in his office. The committee waited a full half hour, and then inquiring at the elevator learned that the Senator had left the building. It was decided to hold the session over for another day in the hopes that a committee, which will visit the capitol Wednesday morning, will be more successful, and that the bill will be introduced by Senator Gilchrist or some one else without any further delay.

In connection with the evening session W. H. Linton of Utica and Little Falls said that the Trades Assembly of the former place had adopted a resolution favoring Sunday pictures. Schenectady announced that a few days ago a paper had been circulated in the General Electric works in getting the sentiment of the men on the Sunday movie proposition, and that in one room where eighty men were employed that seventy-six signed the paper as being in favor.

There will be another meeting of the committee here next week.

Among the members of the allied committee present were: Benjamin Apple, Troy; Louis L. Levine, Brooklyn; Henry Cole, New York; Louis Buettner, Cohoes; John L. Mynderse, Schenectady; Rudolph Sanders, Brooklyn; George Roberts, Albany; Frank X. Shay, Schenectady; Morris S. Silverman, Schenectady; Frank N. Barhydt, Troy; Walter M. Powers, Albany; Charles McCarthy, Hoosick Falls; F. Frayne, Schenectady; John J. Walker, Schenectady; S. Suckno, Albany; S. I. Berman, Brooklyn; W. A. Zeiser, Schenectady; W. H. Gray, Schenectady; William Fait, Jr., Utica; W. H. Linton, Little Falls; Fred Elliott, Albany; Linton & Lertson, Herkimer; John Manheimer, Brooklyn; Sydney S. Cohen, New York; Charles L. O'Reilly, New York; Max Spiegel, Schenectady; William Hilkemeier, Brooklyn; A. J. Stockhausner, Brooklyn; W. C. Hubbard, Rochester; J. Greenstone, Rochester; Henry Cornell, Syracuse; David Dohan, Binghamton; Benjamin Bernstein, Albany; L. Minken, Albany; Charles Cranids, Brooklyn; L. S. Bolegini, New York; S. E. Dillon, Cortland; A. E. Hamilton, Portchester.

C. L. GRANT.

Sunday Option Bill Is Introduced.

The Motion Picture Option bill was introduced in the Legislature on March 21, Senator George F. Thompson, of Niagara, handling the bill in the Senate and Assemblyman Clarence Welsh, of Albany, in the lower house. The bill gives permission to every locality to authorize Sunday motion picture shows at any hour after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, making the bill a purely home rule measure, the authority being left entirely with each individual locality.

Buffalo Exhibitors Aid Sunday Move

Committee Appointed That Will Fight to a Finish for the Bill—Other Cities Represented.

Buffalo, March 19.

NINETY-NINE per cent. of the exhibitors of Buffalo and surrounding territory have indorsed by sentiment and cold cash our movement for Sunday shows. The Buffalo film exchanges also have given their moral and financial support to this campaign," said Harold B. Franklin, chairman of the Buffalo Exhibitors' Committee for Sunday Opening at a meeting of exhibitors and exchange men at the Majestic Theater, Buffalo, March 19. A fight to the finish is being waged by the committee in favor of the bill to be introduced at Albany to legalize moving picture shows on Sundays after 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

This committee is composed of the following: Harold B. Franklin, chairman; J. A. Schuchert, treasurer; Thomas E. Sullivan, executive secretary; Earl L. Crabb, Strand and Victoria Theaters; Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome; George C. Hall, Maxine Theater; A. C. Hayman, Cataract Theater, Niagara Falls; Jules H. Michael, Academy and Regent Theaters; Ira M. Mosher, Palace Theater; J. A. Schuchert, Elmwood and Columbia Theaters.

Exhibitors, big and little, made a fine showing at the session. Every exchange in the city also was represented. The commitee which called the meeting is launching a powerful propaganda in favor of the Sunday opening bill. A vote of confidence was tendered the committee at the conclusion of the session.

"If the exhibitors do their little bit now, you will have Sunday pictures and the trouble will be ended," said Mr. Franklin in his opening address, outlining the purposes of the Sunday opening measure. "Our committee does not represent any individual association or organization, but is truly representative of the exhibitors and has only one purpose—to get the Sunday opening bill over. This measure will be supported to the fullest extent. We must organize to fight a powerful opposition."

Systematic Propaganda Begun.

Chairman Franklin then stated that the committee had been appointed to start a systematic propaganda to make Sunday shows a reality and settle this question once and for all. He next called upon Henry C. Price, counsel for the committee, to address the meeting. Mr. Price outlined the decisions handed down by the Appellate division, one in favor and one against Sunday performances. He was positive the decision pending in the Court of Appeals would be against the exhibitors.

"New York, Rochester, Albany, Syracuse and Buffalo are forming committees," said Mr. Price, "and are impressing upon the exhibitors the vital necessity of the passage of the law by which the moving picture theaters throughout the state may be opened Sunday after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Twenty-five to thirty-five per cent. of the receipts of the exhibitors come through Sunday performances. Throw away these receipts and where are you at? The big Sunday business makes up the deficiency during the rest of the week.

"If you cannot open Sundays," continued Mr. Price, "there will be no way to make up the deficiency. Don't let the little fellow ride along and have the big fellow carry the burden. If the little fellow has to close on Sunday, he might as well take his key and throw it away. Therefore he should fall into line for his own preservation. Without Sunday shows it would be impossible to keep in business. Not only the big houses, but the smaller ones, will benefit from this movement.

"Our committee will not stop until the last ring of the bell," said Mr. Price. "Rochester is ably represented at Albany in this campaign. Buffalo and vicinity therefore cannot lie down when something so vital must be done."

Mr. Price said the local committee had been working two and three hours a day, as a body and as individuals. The members had enlisted the support of all the Buffalo newspapers in behalf of the measure. Powerful editorials favoring the bill had already been written in this city. He impressed upon the exhibitors the necessity of lining up the western New York legislators in behalf of the measure.

"We must line up all of western New York with the eastern part of the state," said Mr. Price. "Without western New York the bill cannot be passed."

"Is there anybody here who doesn't want Sunday opening?" interposed Chairman Franklin, at this juncture. Profound silence for a moment followed this question. There was no reply.

Rochester was represented at the meeting by I. M. Salyerds, A. A. Fenyvessey, E. A. Wolf and A. Tischoff. Mr. Salyerds told the Buffalo exhibitors how the Sunday campaign was being conducted in Rochester. He said the Flour City exhibitors had responded generously to the call for financial support and that the film men there had hired an attorney and sent a delegation to Albany "to see the thing through."

"We must work as one big family," said Mr. Salyerds. "We shall go back to Rochester and tell of the good work being done in Buffalo."

After the meeting moving pictures of the film men were taken outside the theater by a representative of the Mutual Screen Telegram. McGUIRE.

Astor Market Becomes Symphony Theater

Aubrey M. Kennedy Heads Corporation With Purpose of Featuring Orchestral Music and Pre-Release Features.

Aubrey M. Kennedy will enter the exhibitors' field as the president of the Kennedy Theaters, Inc., which will open a motion picture house to be known as the Symphony theater, at Broadway and Ninety-fifth street, May 1.

It will be unique in theater style and construction, in that it will have no balcony or gallery, the seating arrangements being 1,200 on the orchestra floor, with a mezzanine tier of boxes accommodating 300 more. The interior will be 75 by 150 feet, though the entire ground plan, including executive and other offices, will cover a plot 150 by 200 feet, and will have a Broadway frontage of an entire block.

The theater will replace the skating rink which has been in operation in the former Astor Market for some time. Construction work began March 25. The orchestra floor will be of the amphitheater style, a gradual curve from the front row to the rear of the house giving an elevation that will make every seat a place of advantage. Smoking will be permitted in the boxes and chairs especially suited to the comfort of the patrons will be provided.

Associated with Mr. Kennedy, as his general manager, is Charles I. Cole, one of the best known theatrical men in America. Mr. Cole was identified with the Pantages theater enterprises from the time they consisted of but one theater and continued with them until he had built the twenty-second house for this famous circuit. The policy of the Symphony theater will be presentation of pre-released pictures and the finest operatic music and novelties. One of the features will be a fifty-piece orchestra.

Aubrey Kennedy has made his name familiar in the industry through his several connections with prominent firms, his latest association being with Goldwyn, as general manager of productions. Thomas Healey, the famous restaurateur, lately attempted to make the Ninety-fifth street property successful as an ice-skating resort. Initially the structure was built by Vincent Astor to provide a marketplace for the upper West Side, but the venture was entirely unsuccessful.

NATHAN NOW MANAGES THE BROADWAY.

Al Nathan has become manager of the Broadway theater, New York, for Carl Laemmle, bringing to the famous old Broadway playhouse a long and successful experience that should mean much to it. Mr. Nathan has been manager of the Superba, Los Angeles, and the Alhambra, San Francisco, since settling on the Pacific Coast about eight years ago, and he made decided changes in these houses, bringing them to the list of successful theaters.

He has had considerable experience, both back and ahead, with many theatrical companies as manager, business manager, and press agent with many of the Askin-Singer attractions and with Harry H. Frazee.

Mr. Nathan has only had the Broadway theater a week, but already shows innovations which are but the forerunners of many novelties he will introduce.

NORTH CAROLINA LEAGUE MEETING CALLED.

The fourth monthly meeting of the North Carolina Motion Picture Exhibitors' League is called to convene at the Hotel Selwyn, Charlotte, on Wednesday, April 3, the notice having been mailed this week by President Percy W. Wells urging a full attendance. The North Carolina League is the only State organization in the United States which holds a monthly meeting of all its members, this having been inaugurated at the semi-annual convention held at Raleigh last December, owing to the ever-changing conditions due to the war and tax situation.

At the April meeting Lee A. Ochs and Louis F. Blumenthal, of the United Picture Theaters of America, Inc., will explain their proposition in detail with the hope of enlisting cooperation and placing their product through the Carolina Cooperative Booking office.

Mass Meeting of Greater New York Exhibitors.

The exhibitors of Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn will meet at Wurlitzer Hall on Wednesday afternoon, March 27, at 2 o'clock. Final arrangements will be made to send a delegation to Albany on April 3, at which time the motion picture option bill will come before the codes committee of the State Senate and Assembly for a joint hearing.

Carolinas Plan Co-operative Booking Agency

Organizations Formed by Exhibitors With Percy W. Wells as President--Will Start Business Soon

AT A MEETING held at the Selwyn Hotel, Charlotte, N. C., March 11, final details and plans of operation for the Carolina Co-operative Booking Agency were perfected and application was made for a charter for the organization, which will provide that it may engage in the business of selling, renting, leasing, manufacturing and buying motion pictures, supplies and equipment in the States of North and South Carolina, as well as operating, building or leasing theaters and do any and all business allied to the operation of theaters, film distributors and supply and equipment dealers.

Percy W. Wells, of Wilmington, now president of the State League, was elected to head the new organization. C. L. Welsh, of Salisbury, was named vice-president, and Henry B. Varner, secretary of the State League and chairman of the national legislative committee, was elected secretary and treasurer. A board of directors was named as follows: H. R. Mason, Goldsboro; O. R. Browne, Raleigh; R. D. Craver, Charlotte; P. W. Wells, Wilmington; C. L. Welsh, Salisbury; H. T. Drake, Fayetteville; H. B. Varner, Lexington.

The following statement was given to the press upon adjournment by President Wells: "The object of the association is to provide efficient and satisfactory booking facilities and to protect both the operators and the film manufacturers in financial matters, it was explained. While this organization was described as cooperative in its working, it has been incorporated.

"Plans of the association include the establishment as soon as is possible of offices here. Officers of the association said probably more than $250,000 annually would pass through these offices, representing sums paid by member shows to the film manufacturers for film service."

President Wells Outlines Plan.

Mr. Wells later gave the Moving Picture World representative a full outline of the working plans of the office, which provide for a unique system for handling such films as the board of directors may see fit to lease for the circuit. He declares that there has been and will be no antagonistic attitude toward any film distributors or manufacturers; that the purpose of the organization will be to secure equitable prices for all service handled; will undertake to guarantee to the distributors and exchanges a certain number of days' rental from its members without interruption; will guarantee to the exchanges prompt and full payment for all service, and will be in a position to take up direct through its head office the matter of placing any product upon the entire circuit.

Propositions will be made direct to such exchanges as the organization desires to do business for, stating number of days and towns in which service will be used, number of days in transit on the circuit and the net price the office will pay for this service; the distributors will be invited to take up such matters with the office manager and endeavor to arrive at a satisfactory basis for the distribution of their product without recourse to the board of directors, who, however, may be called together at any time by the manager of the office to settle any disputes or grievances.

Authority is vested in the office to execute blanket cancellations of service used by all its members at any time the directors cannot satisfactorily adjust any differences that may arise; or for failure of exchange to arrive at satisfactory rental basis so that the members of the circuit may profitably handle their product. Each member assigns this right exclusively to the booking office upon joining.

Mr. Wells stated further that it was not the purpose of the booking office to attempt to handle the entire film business of its members. It may be that they will only handle one to two days' booking per week at the beginning; later, however, its activities will be enlarged to embrace the entire service to be used by all its members, who will then handle no pictures not secured through the office. This, however, stated Mr. Wells, will take some time to arrange. Mr. Wells is negotiating with several of the best known exchange managers in the South who are acquainted with the Carolina territory and hopes to be able to announce within the week the appointment of a manager for the office, which it is hoped to have in active operation soon after the March meeting of the State League.

It was learned further that the organization has asked for and received a proposition from R. D. Craver relative to taking over the supply house which he operates at Charlotte and run it upon the same plans. Mr. Wells further stated that the office would open with a representation in every principal city in the State.

President Percy W. Wells is collecting data from the members of this newly-formed organization as to programs used in their various theaters at the present time, with prices which are being paid in the various towns for the different classes of film service. His investigation so far has disclosed the startling fact that there is a wide diversity in the prices being got by distributors in different sections of the two Carolinas, prices being neither based on population nor capacity of theaters, but principally by taking into account the strength of the opposition in the different towns. The data Mr. Wells is collecting will be placed in the hands of the manager of the Charlotte office as soon as a suitable man is secured for the position, and upon it will base the propositions to be submitted to such of the distributors as are to be included in the line-up to be handled through this office.

Other Co-operative Plans Incomplete, Says Varner.

Mr. Varner has returned to Lexington, N. C., from a business trip to Washington and New York, going to the latter city to investigate the several new booking propositions promulgated within recent months with the object of aligning the Carolina Co-operative Booking Office with any organization which appeared to be good for the exhibitors of North Carolina. Mr. Varner was in conference in New York with Louis F. Blumenthal, of the United Picture Theaters of America, Incorporated, also C. C. Pettijohn, of the Golden-Pettijohn direct-to-exhibitor organization, and with representatives of the W. W. Hodkinson group.

Mr. Varner, while optimistic over the outlook for great good to the exhibitors through some such plan of distribution as is being promulgated at the present time by several groups of distributors and producers, believes that all plans promoted so far are incomplete and will take time to develop into safe and sane propositions.

Metropolitan Not for Rothapfel

Plan to Introduce Pictures in Famous Opera House Suddenly Announced and as Precipitately Abandoned.

FILMDOM had a real flurry during the week ending March 23, when S. L. Rothapfel's name was associated with a rumor, that got into print, hooking up the Metropolitan Opera House with motion pictures. The story "broke" in the middle of the week, the intimation that David W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World" would be the attraction being given secondary importance to the announcement that the Metropolitan would be added, for the summer months, to the chain of local theaters directed by Mr. Rothapfel.

By Sunday morning's papers it was demonstrated that it was the Griffith production that most appealed to the Metropolitan Opera House Company, and when Mr. Griffith discovered that he would be compelled to wait a New York presentation at the Metropolitan until May 15, he declared everything off—and announced that "Hearts of the World" would open at the Lyric theater Easter Sunday night. The following statement was issued from the Metropolitan for publication in the morning papers of Sunday, March 24:

"The only motion picture which the Metropolitan Opera House conditionally and informally considered to be shown was D. W. Griffith's great war film, 'Hearts of the World,' which is to be given in London under the auspices of the British Government and which is of such importance as propaganda that it is believed it would have the official support of the United States Government.

"As this film is of such great propaganda importance Mr. Griffith cannot delay its presentation in New York until May 15, the earliest date on which the Metropolitan Opera House is available. Therefore all arrangements for its presentation at the Metropolitan have been withdrawn and no motion pictures will be shown at this house this summer."

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

Minneapolis Convention May 7, 8 and 9

Entertainment Committee, Headed by B. B. Watson, and Convention Committee Headed by Dan Eselin, Appointed.

MEMBERS of the Northwest branch of the Exhibitors' League met on Wednesday, March 20, at the Loeb Arcade offices, Minneapolis, and discussed matters pertaining to the forthcoming annual convention here. At a meeting of the members March 13 it was decided to hold the convention on May 7, 8 and 9. The place for the holding of the convention was not decided upon, but it is expected that the Hotel West will be chosen. In the absence of President J. G. Gilosky and Vice President H. P. Greene, Daniel W. Chamberlain presided at the meeting.

The following committees were appointed: Convention committee, Dan Eselin, chairman; C. H. Hitchcock, George Granstrom, Billy B. Watson, D. W. Chamberlain, W. G. True, Al Steffes, Oliver A. Rowe and Henry Martin.

Entertainment committee: Billy B. Watson, chairman; Perry Hayes, O. A. Lee, Edward Hinz and A. L. Hill.

Al Steffes was appointed to look after the publicity for the convention and Perry Hayes was appointed to supply badges for all delegates.

The Northwest body has opened permanent headquarters in Rooms 357 and 358 Loeb Arcade, Minneapolis, where Miss Edling, assistant to Secretary Clyde H. Hitchcock, is in charge.

On Tuesday, March 19, the exchangemen's club made two attempts at a meeting at the Hotel Radisson to decide just what sort of entertainment will be provided for visiting exhibitors this year. The exchangemen's entertainment committee has been ready to display its plan to the exchange men for several days, but due to the fact that not enough film executives have got together to date to pass upon the plans, action has been postponed. It is expected that a big cabaret entertainment will be provided for the exhibitors this year and the public excluded from all festivities. Heretofore the public could attend either grand ball or cabaret and this plan did not meet with favor.

President J. G. Gilosky, of the Northwest Exhibitors' Corporation is expected back from a two months' visit in California on Saturday, March 23.

Tennessee Convention April 9 and 10

Practically Every Exhibitor in State Now a Member—Important Matters Will Be Discussed.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Tennessee will hold its first annual convention on April 9 and 10 at Nashville. The Tennessee Exhibitors have just completed a membership campaign and practically every exhibitor in the state is now enrolled as a member of the organization.

Some matters of great importance to all exhibitors will be taken up for discussion at the convention and every exhibitor in Tennessee is urged to be present.

The present officers of the league are Charles H. McElravy, president, and J. F. Duthie, secretary.

Tony Sudekum and Bill Wasserman, of Nashville, are great boosters for this organization, as is also Frank Dowler, of Chattanooga. In east Tennessee George Keys, of Johnson City, is enthusiastic over the organization and is boosting for the convention in that part of the state.

Pushing Plans for Boston Convention

National Leaders May Attend—Headquarters Now at 177 Pleasant Street.

A DRIVE to get the six New England governors and President Wilson to attend the National Exposition of the Moving Picture League of America, to be held in Mechanics Hall, Boston, in July, is already under way.

Samuel Grant, general manager of the Boston exposition, is getting the ground work plans for the big event well in hand. It will be only a week or so before he will have a detailed statement to make of the scope and arrangements for this gathering. Mr. Grant is about to turn his office, at 177 Pleasant street, into a general exposition headquarters, and will have the office placarded on the outside so that all exhibitors, exchangemen and moving picture men coming into "Filmland City" in Boston will quickly be attracted to the exposition headquarters.

There have been some minor delays in getting the working organization of the exposition into line. These details are now practically settled, and within two weeks the "Booming Boston" Committee will be on the job and there will be things stirring in an exposition way.

"I am assured that all the allied interests of the moving picture business are coming to the exposition and will do a big part in making the exposition a success," declared Manager Grant in an interview.

"The big drive is about to start, and when it does the moving picture interests will know that we are to have the biggest exposition ever. One of the first things will be a dinner of the financial promoters of the exposition, known as the Boosters' Club. This get-together will be in the nature of a general discussion of the details of the exposition work, and after that there will be nothing but pushing forward to make the exposition a big success.

"I am sure that we will have the six governors of the New England states in attendance at the exposition, and we are also striving for the attendance of President Wilson. I believe we have the influence and the incentive to attract the President to this big gathering. He is a well-known admirer of the moving picture as the best known means of spreading propaganda, and I believe, in recognition of the great work done by the moving picture industry since the war broke out, that he will recognize the exposition and attend it. I am sure that every man in the moving picture business earnestly hopes this will be true.

"Mechanics Hall is going to make a wonderful assembling place for the moving picture interests, and with the great floor space we have there I am anticipating a wonderful display."

Joseph DiPesa, a well-known Boston press agent, has

Coming League and Other Exhibitors' Conventions

(Secretaries Are Requested to Send Dates and Particulars Promptly)

Tennessee Exhibitors in Annual Convention at Nashville, Tenn.....April 9 and 10

Northwest Branch Exhibitors League at Minneapolis, Minn.....May 7, 8 and 9

Clyde H. Hitchcock, 357 Loeb Arcade, Minneapolis, Minn.

National Exposition Moving Picture League of America at Boston.....July been made publicity manager of the exposition, and will handle the exposition work for the Boston and New England newspapers. The selection of Mr. DiPesa for this important work is a popular one.

Brooklyn Exhibitors Hold Regular Session

Following Transaction of Routine Business Former President William Brandt Is Given Gold Watch.

THE Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Brooklyn held its regular meeting at the Duffield theater on Saturday midnight, March 16. Before the regular order of business the members listened to the presentation of the policies of the United Pictures Theaters of America, Inc., by one of its salesmen. Then followed an address by the president of the Theater Employees and Operators' Union of Brooklyn and Long Island on a new schedule of wages to be referred to the operators' committee of the Exhibitors' League and decision submitted to the union.

The heads of the Prudential Film Delivery Company were on hand to settle upon some way to secure more prompt delivery of shows. The main fault in delays and non-delivery was attributed to the several distributing companies, who did not have the shows ready when called for, and in other cases were so poorly and carelessly packed confusion and wrong deliveries were the result. It was agreed between the exhibitors and the Prudential that the distributing companies be notified and requested to correct these faults and in the future to see that all shows be properly packed and emergency shows be furnished when they had not been returned from previous showings.

During the regular executive session the principal subject of discussion was co-operative action in matters of law and legislation and the contribution of funds to defray necessary expenses involved. Every member was asked to contribute at least $25 and a committee appointed to solicit a like amount from all exhibitors in Brooklyn whether members or not.

"This is a small amount as compared to the amounts we would lose if adverse legislation was put into laws," said President Rudolph Sanders. "Every exhibitor would go out of business or lose ten times if he did not help those who are willing to stand up for the exhibitors and see that they get consideration by the enactment of proper laws."

Just before the close of the meeting John Manheimer, in well chosen words, presented William Brandt, president of the league during the year 1916 and 1917, with a gold octagonal-shaped watch in appreciation of his work for the organization.

World Cuts Out "Friends" in Casting

Management Lays Down New Rules for Directors—Important If True.

RIGID new rules for the casting of World-Pictures have recently been laid down by the management in the interest of increased efficiency and the making of bigger and better pictures. Hereafter no directors will do the casting for any World-Pictures. All casting will be done in this manner:

When a story is accepted by the scenario department and the continuity has been written and O. K.'d a conference will be held by the production department managers, scenario editor and general manager as to which star shall be assigned to the principal role. When this point is determined the work of casting the remainder of the players will be given to the casting director, whose selections will be approved in another conference.

Every part in a picture will be filled on merit only. The past record of every candidate for a position will be looked up, screen tests will be made and the candidate will be given a trial rehearsal in several scenes of the play before a final decision is reached. In this way it will be thoroughly determined in advance of the actual filming of a picture whether or not all the players are entirely suited to their various roles.

The beauty of this arrangement is said to be that primarily it assures perfect casts. World-Pictures realize that balanced casts where every actor is an artist in his particular role go far toward making a picture and so in this end of productions, as well as in the selection of stories, World-Pictures are doing everything possible to give exhibitors the greatest box office value for the money they put into World-Pictures.

Another thing that this new arrangement does is to eliminate all studio favorites. There will be no friends or friends' friends in the casts. Nobody will be played in a picture simply because he or she is a friend of some one.

"Willie" Moore Wins French War Cross

Sergeant in Famous Irish Regiment Awarded Medal for Bravery Under Heavy Bombardment.

THE film industry has its Cross of War medallist. It was not bestowed on one of the heroes of the public, a matinee idol, on one whose name was known around the world. It was pinned on the breast of a lad who for over seven years has been known to all New York film men —a quiet, likable youngster who has been among them since his knickerbocker days—Sergeant William J. Moore. He was so small when he entered the employ of the Atlas Company in 1910 that naturally he was called "Willie," and Willie he remained up to the day the Sixty-ninth New York marched away from its armory early in 1917.

Sergeant William J. Moore.

The news of the decoration of Sergeant Moore had to every man in the trade a personal interest—for practically every one around Film Row knew him—and all are proud of him, for his own sake and for the credit he reflects on the trade of which he was a part.

The work for which Sergeant Moore received honor at the hands of the French Army was performed on the night of March 7 in the Luneville sector, during a terrific bombardment when the Germans hammered the American front with 250-pound trench mortar bombs. The sergeant was one of fourteen to be honored by the French, ten of them from New York. The presentation was accompanied by elaborate and impressive ceremonies, in attendance being two French and two American generals.

Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, with which concern the sergeant had last been employed in a civil capacity, has written the following letter to the mother of the young man:

"In the newspapers this morning I have read of the honor that has been paid to your son, William J. Moore, to whom has been presented the Croix de Guerre. In reading the article you can imagine the pleasure it gave me to recall that your son up to the time of his enlistment with the American forces was connected with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

"It is difficult to congratulate him over the seas, but I take this first opportunity to extend to you my sincere congratulations, knowing full well the great pride that must be yours that such an honor should be paid to your son."

Willie Moore joined New York's Sixty-ninth in 1915. With that regiment he went to the Texas border in 1916—the Sixty-ninth being held there until late in February of 1917—and came home a sergeant. When he went away last summer he was a member of Company A of the 165th Infantry, the number given to the Fighting Irish regiment when absorbed by the army.

"Willie" Moore went from the Atlas company in 1910 to the Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Company. Other companies with which he was connected were the Exclusive Supply Company, All Star, the Itala, Harry Raver, and the Paramount.

The unit of which Sergeant Moore is a member recently was honored by being reviewed by the Secretary of War. Mr. Baker assured the owners of the French decoration that permission to wear the medals would be obtained for them —that they need not send them home.

Surprise Testimonial Dinner to Edward Earl, Hotel McAlpin, New York, March 21, 1918.

Edward Earl Is Guest at Dinner

A Hundred Friends of Popular Head of Power Company Give Him Testimonial Banquet.

THE friends and associates of Edward Earl, president of the Nicholas Power Company, gave him a dinner at the Hotel McAlpin on the evening of March 21. At 8 o'clock a hundred men and women sat down to an elaborate spread in the Green Room. On the speakers' platform there were seated John A. Morrison, James S. McDonogh, Arthur J. Lang, P. A. Powers, Richard T. Greene, G. Warren Landon, toastmaster; Seldon Bacon, J. H. Hallberg, Will C. Smith, H. T. Edwards, Frank H. Richardson and George V. Tucker.

Mr. Landon made a distinct hit as toastmaster. The standing vote of thanks given him by the diners at the close of the speaking program was a well-deserved tribute to one who had contributed so materially to the enjoyment of the evening. The speakers were Messrs. Morrison, McDonogh, Richardson, Powers, Smith and J. Robert Rubin. All bore testimony to the many qualities of the guest of the evening that had made for his success and for a steadily accumulating host of friends. Miss Betty Knauer sang three songs and aroused marked enthusiasm.

At the close of the speaking the toastmaster presented to Mr. Earl a tablet on which was inscribed: "Presented to Edward Earl by his friends and associates, March 21, 1918—Hotel McAlpin, New York." In the upper left-hand corner was an emblem of a projector, labeled "Nicholas Power Company." Opposite was an emblem of a binding machine, inscribed "National Binding Machine Company," of which concern Mr. Earl is president. At the bottom in the center was a four-leafed clover, with the inscription, "Enos Richardson & Company," a jewelry concern of which Mr. Earl is vice-president.

Mr. Earl responded briefly to the presentation, expressing his gratitude to his friends for their presence and for the kind things that had been said and for the physical symbol of their regard.

Following the dinner the room was cleared and dancing was enjoyed until 1 o'clock.

The committee in charge of the arrangements were Arthur J. Lang, chairman; Alfred D. Bell, Louis Fendrick, C. W. Pearce, F. H. Richardson, G. Warren Landon, W. T. Morton and H. T. Edwards. They were the recipients of many compliments for the successful way in which they had provided for the entertainment of the evening and for the opportunity they had furnished for doing honor to the guest of the evening.

"EDDIE" HARDIN JOINS CUSACK.

The Thomas Cusack Company, outdoor advertising specialist, is erecting an office building at Broadway, Fifth avenue and Twenty-fifth street, and announce a new department for handling bill posting and painted and electric sign advertising for motion picture companies.

The manager of the department is Edward Hardin. Mr. Hardin, who originated the idea of exploiting big films through the use of bill posting, will be the Cusack Company's exclusive motion picture representative. He has handled all of the largest campaigns in outdoor advertising put out by film producers since he demonstrated that this method of publicity brought quick and sure returns. Known throughout the trade as "Eddy" Hardin, he has the reputation of always working and giving his clients the enthusiastic service which assures the success of a campaign through intelligent handling and clever follow-up.

Hart to Aid Liberty Bond Campaign

Noted Delineator of Pioneer Types Will Make Two Weeks' Tour of Western Cities.

A PERSONAL request from Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo has been received by William S. Hart, the star in Artcraft pictures, urging the noted delineator of western types to give his aid to the third Liberty Loan Drive which starts April 6. The lengthy letter is a personal one from Mr. McAdoo and Mr. Hart has gladly promised to devote a portion of his time about April 15 to this patriotic duty. Bill Hart feels that by the middle of April he will have completed the film upon which he is now engaged and be able to devote probably two weeks to an extensive tour of the western cities and in each deliver a brief but stirring talk in behalf of the bond issue.

William S. Hart.

He will appear at Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, then Salt Lake and a number of other cities. In these communities the star will speak at the civic auditorium or similar places and will probably atract enormous crowds who will later be impressed by his speeches and invest in bonds. At smaller towns where a protracted stop would be impossible, the train will be held up for twenty minutes or more while Hart speaks from the observation platform.

The signal honor accorded Mr. Hart by Secretary McAdoo is an indication of the splendid popularity of the man who is doing more than any other probably to preserve the spirit of the great west, so rapidly passing away, on the picture screen.

Mitchell H. Mark Dies in Buffalo

Famous Theater Man, Pioneer in Moving Picture Business, Was Born in Greenville, N. C., in 1862—Opened First Film Show in Buffalo

MITCHELL H. MARK, president of the Strand Theater Corporation in New York, died at his home in Buffalo, March 20, at 3.30 o'clock in the afternoon, after a brief illness.

Mr. Mark was one of the best-known men in the theatrical business. He was a pioneer of motion picture exhibitors, having given the first public motion picture presentation in this country in a little theater which he opened at Ellicott Square, Buffalo. This diminutive place of amusement, twelve feet wide and fifty feet deep, had less than a hundred seats in it. Mr. Mark was also the originator of penny arcades in New York and other cities.

Mitchell H. Mark was born in 1862 in Greenville, N. C., where Henry C. Mark, his father, was a prosperous business man; but the paternal country stores, six in number, and the cotton plantation of 1,000 acres could not hold the boy. The father declined to countenance his plans to follow the call of a greater ambition. In 1877, with $5 in his pocket, good clothes on his back and an extra good appetite, Mitchell Mark landed in the great metropolis. All day he tramped Broadway in search of a job. Later in the day he walked into the wholesale hat store of Young Brothers and demanded work. He landed a position and the first week his pay envelope contained $4.50.

Mitchell H. Mark.

He had a marked bent for original publicity, and when later he opened a hat store on Seneca street, Buffalo, he cleaned up every spring and fall by throwing what hats were left from the top of his roof into the crowds on the street. He was associated in these old Buffalo days, as he was at the time of his death, with Moe Mark, his brother. The Mark firm advertised with humanitarian methods, feeding the kiddies with ice-cream bi-weekly during the summer and forming a bread and coffee line for the unemployed in the winter.

In 1893 he dropped every dollar he had in the purchase of a real estate bubble between Niagara Falls and Tonawanda. It was not long, though, before he was on his feet again. One day some men who wanted to get to California offered to sell to him a store full of photographs. The success of this small venture set him thinking along a new line which later made him famous—moving pictures.

Shortly before his death Mr. Mark had closed negotiations and made all arrangements for the new Strand Theater which is to be built in Brooklyn at the corner of Fulton street and Rockwell place.

Mr. Mark had interests in more than 30 motion picture theaters. In Buffalo he was connected with the Strand, Academy and Regent and was the sole owner of the Victoria, which he built at a cost of $250,000. He also built and for a time operated the Palace theater in Buffalo.

He also had other enterprises, being president of the Mitchell H. Mark Realty Company of New York, and a member of some manufacturing concerns, notably those turning out wire motor car wheels.

Though he spent much of his time in New York, Mr. Mark was prominent in Jewish charitable and religious circles in Buffalo. He was a member of Temple Beth Zion and was much interested in the Jewish fresh air camps. He gave largely to charity and was a man of high moral character.

In the motion picture industry he labored long and hard to raise the moral standard of photoplays and worked with several boards of censors. He did much to popularize the use of pictures in schools and colleges for educational purposes.

Mr. Mark is survived by his widow, Estelle B. Mark, and two daughters, Mrs. Max Spiegel of New York and Winifred of this city. His brother, Moe Mark, lives in Lynn, Mass. A sister, Mrs. William A. Rosenthal, lives in Buffalo.

Funeral services for Mitchell H. Mark were held at the family home, No. 527 Richmond avenue, on the afternoon of March 22. Burial was in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Rabbi Louis J. Kopald, of Temple Beth Zion, officiated both at the home and the cemetery.

These friends and associates acted as an escort from the home to the cemetery: Solomon Ginsburg, Marvin M. Marcus, Frederick Ullman, Rudolph J. Seidenberg, Hugo Wittman, Jacob G. Joseph, Louis Weiner, Saul Tumin, Arthur J. Block, Eugene L. Falk, Walter Hays, Edward L. Hyman, Myer Epstein, of New York, George Ticknor, of Syracuse, Joseph Levinson and Morris Scharaff, of New York.

The Strand, Victoria, and other moving picture theaters in which Mr. Mark was interested, were closed for a time in honor of his memory.

Memorial to Mastbaum Planned

Friends of Late Leading Film Man Will Build in His Memory a Home at Eaglesville Sanitorium.

MANY friends of the late Stanley V. Mastbaum among exhibitors and exchangemen in the motion picture industry in Philadelphia and New York met last week and decided to raise funds for a fitting memorial for the man who was such a conspicuous figure in the film world and in social and charitable circles. It was decided that this memorial should take the form of a small building on the grounds of the Eaglesville Sanitorium, which institution is devoted to the care of unfortunates afflicted with tuberculosis.

The following committee was appointed to arrange the details and secure the necessary subscriptions, many hundreds of dollars being subscribed at this first meeting: Lawrence D. Beggs, chairman and treasurer; Abe L. Einstein, secretary; Albert Greenfield, Abe Sablosky, Charles Segal, John McGuirk, J. D. Cunningham and George R. Meeker.

The late Mr. Mastbaum, during his life, evinced the deepest interest in affairs at the Eaglesville Sanitorium, and his purse was always open to aid those compelled to go there for treatment for consumption. Due to his generosity many cases of the disease were cured, and the committee felt, after considering many suggestions for a memorial to him, that the erection of a small building would be just what he would approve.

LIEUTENANT LONG TRANSFERRED TO EAST.

Word comes to the effect that 1st Lieutenant Walter Long has been transferred from Fort MacArthur to Fort Monroe, Virginia. Prior to his enlistment Walter Long was one of the most successful "heavy" actors in the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. He appeared as the executioner in "Joan the Woman" and in a similar role in "The Woman God Forgot." He will be remembered also for his work as Gus in "The Birth of a Nation." Also he appeared with Mary Pickford in the heavy role of "The Little American."

Long is a powerful man, an ideal type for a soldier, and will no doubt give a good account of himself.

"THE KAISER" ENGAGEMENT EXTENDED.

"The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin" engagement at the Broadway theater has been extended another week owing to the success of Rupert Julian's screen expose of the German Emperor and his barbarian hosts. Manager Al Nathan of Carl Laemmle's Broadway theater has succeeded in buying out the present week from another attraction, previously booked, in order to extend the run of "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," and this may be its last week if other weeks cannot be obtained at this house.

James C. Bradford, conductor of the Broadway Theater Symphony Orchestra, has increased his orchestra for the extended engagement, and provided a new musical program.

First National's New York Franchise Sold

Mark Realty Company, Owner of the Strand, Takes Over Rothapfel Interest.

LAST week a deal was consummated between the members of the Mark Realty Company, owners of the Strand theater, New York, and the executives of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit whereby the associates of the late Mitchel H. Mark secured an interest in the New York franchise of the former organization, giving them the first-run rights on all features released by the First National, including the Charlie Chaplin comedies. The interest that has changed hands is that formerly controlled by S. L. Rothapfel.

Moe Mark.

The Strand, with a seating capacity of 3,500, is the largest high-class motion picture house in the East, and is considered an ideal theater in which to give First National attractions their initial showing, not only from the esthetic point of view, but for the practical reason that the greatest number of patrons can be reached in the shortest space of time.

The negotiations leading up to this deal were carried on quietly for some time between the First National chiefs and Moe Mark, Walter Hays, Max Spiegel and Eugene Falk, executives of the Mark Realty Company. Mitchel H. Mark, prior to his death, had expressed his approval of the arrangement, but was too ill to take part in the negotiations.

Max Spiegel.

Under the provisions of its charter the First National Exhibitors' Circuit is obliged to lease its New York franchise to exhibiting interests of the highest standing. In closing with the Mark corporation it is believed that the most desirable possible ends have been achieved. Judging from the many congratulatory messages that have reached First National headquarters this opinion is general throughout the circuit.

Since its opening on April 11, 1914, the Strand has maintained a uniformly superior level of motion picture entertainment, allied with musical art, and has represented an ideal in the field of exhibition, toward which hundreds of other owners and managers have striven. The Strand was the first high-class house in the world to feature Charlie Chaplin, and in securing first-run rights for the new series of comedies the same progressive policy that has built up the huge clientele of big theaters is in evidence. The rental figure that the Strand has agreed to pay for the Chaplin product has not been divulged as yet, but it is understood to top anything on record in the field of comedy.

Carl Anderson Promises Splendid Plays

Head of Paralta Plays Returns from Coast—Tells of Great Studio Plant.

CARL ANDERSON, president of Paralta Plays, Inc., returned from Los Angeles Tuesday, March 19. He has been spending a number of months there over plans for the new Paralta studios.

Mr. Anderson left for the Coast in October, and during his stay at the studios was responsible for many important developments in the Paralta organization. Louise Glaum was engaged as a star in Paralta Plays, and her first production, "An Alien Enemy," was completed under the direction of Wallace Worsley.

In speaking of the development of the Paralta Studios and the Western organization, Mr. Anderson said: "It is indeed gratifying to watch the phenomenal development of this organization, which is still not a year old. We started with Bessie Barriscale and J. Warren Kerrigan as our only stars. All of the productions which these two favorites have made proved of exceptional worth.

"Since signing the contract with Henry B. Walthall a few months ago, we have made three productions in which he will be seen as the star and which promise to be great box-office attractions. In securing Louise Glaum, I believe that we have added one of the most popular artists.

"When I arrived at the coast our new studios had been just started. These are now nearing completion and will be most complete. They cover one of the largest tracts of ground used by any producing organization."

Before leaving for the coast Mr. Anderson engaged Jesse Hampton, brother of Ben Hampton, as business manager of the Western organization. Mr. Hampton took up his duties as one of the western executives before Mr. Anderson returned East. The remainder of the Western personnel will be as it was before with the exception of Robert Kane, vice president of the organization, who is now serving as an officer in the army.

F. I. L. M. Club Has Successful Dinner

One Hundred Men Listen to Speeches on Waste and Economy in Manufacture and Distribution.

OVER one hundred men, representative respectively of producers, distributors and exhibitors, were present at the dinner given at Healy's on Wednesday, March 20, by the F. I. L. M. Club. I. E. Chadwick, president, acted as toastmaster. He outlined the purposes of these monthly dinners, showing the benefit that must needs come from practically open forum discussions as regards the various needs or ills that are apparent in the progress of the industry

P. A. Powers, president of the Universal Film Exchange, was the first speaker of the evening. While showing various wasteful and uneconomic processes in the business of the distributor and exhibitor, by no means did he spare the producer, but rather showed the multifarious leakages which go toward increasing the cost of product, as well as decreasing the value.

Lesley Mason showed where the real waste lies. He pointed out that a hundred and fifty thousand dollar picture may be made economically, whereas a fifteen thousand dollar one may be wasteful, and vice versa. He said overproduction is not an overproduction of good pictures, but rather of promiscuously photographed film. He reiterated the impression of the known fact that the moving picture proposition is pre-eminently an artistic product, to be marketed on a business-like basis, and the feeling that if those interested in the production end would concentrate their efforts to build artistically instead of in quantity there could not possibly be an overproduction in the market.

Other speakers of the evening were William L. Sherrill, Harry L. Reichenbach, L. Lawrence Weber and Charles B. Hoy.

BERTRAM BRACKEN ENGAGED BY PARALTA.

Paralta Plays have just enlarged the directorial staff of their California studios by the engagement of Bertram Bracken. Mr. Bracken will start work immediately at Paralta on the fourth Walthall picture, and is now conferring on the scenario. It is an Alaskan story from the pen of Monte M. Katterjohn.

Mutual Exchange Now in Mecca Builaing

New York Office Has 6,500 Square Feet of Space and Up-to-Date Equipment

THE New York exchange of Mutual Film Corporation is now established in its new quarters on the tenth floor of the Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway, one of the principal film buildings in New York City. The exchange occupies about two-thirds of the entire tenth floor, or approximately 6,500 square feet.

The plans for the new exchange were drawn up by G. B. Svenson, Mutual's construction engineer, who personally supervised the work, and the result is a model exchange in up-to-date equipment and lay-out. Mr. Svenson, who has made an exhaustive study of film exchange problems, has incorporated in the arrangement and structure of the exchange some novel ideas, which make for convenience and safety.

M. J. Sullivan, the newly appointed New York manager, assumed charge February 18, and has inaugurated some advanced methods of film display and exploitations. The general arrangement of the offices is such that he can keep in close touch with all his employees and can give his personal attention to exhibitors.

As you enter the office you find a spacious reception room, on the walls of which are hung oil paintings of Mutual stars. On one side of the room is the executive office, the manager's office, the assistant manager's office, bookkeeping department and the billing department. On the other side of the room is the feature booker's office, a private sales office and the cashier's office. The executive office is handsomely decorated. The walls are lined with quarter-sawed oak wainscoting the height of the partitions and handsomely furnished.

In the rear of the office are two doors, one leading directly to the film department and the other leading to the waiting room, used by the film messengers. The cashier's office has direct connection with the film messengers' waiting room, which is a convenient arrangement and saves a great deal of time to the messengers in making their payments or getting their bills.

In the film department every precaution has been taken to prevent accidents and eliminate fire hazards. In this department are three film vaults equipped with the latest improvements, one examination room and one large shipping room. The doors to the film vaults are equipped with thermostat closing devices. When the temperature in the film and shipping rooms reaches 200 degrees the doors of the vaults automatically close. Each vault is equipped with four sprinkler heads, pressure relief vents and other requirements recommended by the Fire Underwriters and the Bureau of Fire Prevention.

The exhibition room is equipped with two machines, which guarantee uninterrupted screening of pictures, and has a seating capacity of twenty. It is easily accessible from the sales room.

Probably the most radical difference from the ordinary exchange is in the location of the film and poster departments. These are in the rear and away from the elevator and entrance hall, but ingress and egress are afforded through a long corridor leading from the main entrance hall to the rear of the building. This arrangement has the advantage of relieving the congestion in the main hall ordinarily caused by film messengers and porters, and eliminates a great deal of noise and crowding at the entrance of the office portion, while giving free and open passage to the exhibitors entering the sales offices and booking department.

Safety first was the principal object in the arrangements of the new quarters. Easily accessible exits are provided, and the quarters in general are so constructed as to guarantee the very best service to the exhibitor.

MARSHALL NEILAN AT WORK IN EAST.

Marshall Neilan, who has been in the limelight by reason of his direction of the recent Artcraft pictures starring Mary Pickford, has arrived in New York to take charge of the production of the George M. Cohan picture for Artcraft, which is an adaptation by Anita Loos and John Emerson from "Hit the Trail, Holliday," and has already commenced work at the Fifty-sixth street studio of the Famous Players-Lasky. He was accorded an enthusiastic reception by the studio employees.

At the time that the motion picture rights were secured for the well-known play and George M. Cohan agreed to appear in the title role it was stipulated that the motion picture company would assign its best talent to the production, and Marshall Neilan was the man agreed upon as the director and Anita Loos and John Emerson as the scenarioists.

WHARTON PLAYERS GIVE STAGE PERFORMANCE.

In addition to portraying the activities of German spies and plotters in America through the roles in "The Eagle's Eye," King Baggott, Marguerite Snow and other actors in the serial are also taking to the "stage" in the efforts to help win the war. The vehicle is "Salomey Jane," which is being presented in Ithaca, where the production of the "Eagle's Eye" is being made at the Wharton studios, and the benefits of the performance are being turned over to the War Chest Fund of Tigo County.

General Salesroom of New Mutual Exchange, Mecca Building, New York.

Lasky Enthusiastic Over Griffith Picture

Back From Coast, Producer Says it is the Greatest Production in History of Motion Picture.

JESSE L. LASKY, vice president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in charge of productions, has returned to New York from California, where he has been active in the supervision of western filmings of Paramount and Artcraft pictures. Mr. Lasky is the first motion picture man to reach New York since the eventful showing of D. W. Griffith's new film masterpiece, "Hearts of the World," which has set the entire Pacific Coast agog, and his enthusiasm over this production has for the time being even overshadowed in his mind the activities and plans of his own organization.

"'Hearts of the World' is absolutely the most wonderful photo production the history of the motion picture has ever known," said Mr. Lasky. "The film is positively gripping. You sit for three hours leaning forward, alternately holding your breath, heaving sighs of relief, gritting your teeth, smiling through tears, cursing, praying, cheering and choking back sobs.

"In describing the wonders of this cinema words are inadequate. I delayed my trip east just to attend the premiere, and I want to say it proved one of the greatest evenings of my life.

"Not one of the thousands who witnessed that showing was quite the same man the next day. He grew in stature. He knew that from now on he will be forced, early and late, to preach and work for the gospel of freedom. He now knows as never before what it is to be an American!

"The big audience at Clune's Auditorium time and time again leaped to its feet and burst into roars of applause. For the last three minutes the work of the director had everyone on his feet cheering himself hoarse. Never in the history of amusements has a subject so stirred its audience.

"In regard to the film industry at large, I have never been more confident, never more satisfied. Despite the world conditions or the frequent rumors and calamitous mutterings through underground channels to the effect that the film industry was experiencing vicissitudes, I have noticed no such tendency—at least so far as the interests with which I am allied or concerned. There was never a more consistent demand for good pictures.

"I have come East, according to my custom, to spend six weeks in New York, familiarizing myself with the developments on the Atlantic side of the continent, and primarily, to arrange for the influx of stars to the West. While this is nothing in the nature of a general exodus from the East, it does mean that a number of prominent stars including Fred Stone, our newest screen acquisition, will go to the coast during this spring and summer, owing to the nature of the productions selected for them and because of climatic conditions.

"As to the productional activities in California, I am pleased with the advance that is being made all along the line.

"While I am on this subject, I wish to say I feel greatly pleased with the activities of our stars in behalf of the Government and this campaign for the raising of the needed funds. Miss Pickford will go East shortly on such a campaign, while Douglas Fairbanks will handle a certain territory. In the East Marguerite Clark is also to assist the drive and thus four stars of Artcraft and Paramount are to give their assistance to the great cause, as William S. Hart has also been assigned his part of the great work.

"So, to sum up, I may repeat that there is every reason to be gratified by conditions. Whatever untoward effects may have been experienced by other concerns, and of this I have no personal knowledge—I am able to state authoritatively that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is making no policy changes of moment; that we have been able to obtain our supplies regularly and that we have experienced no lessening of demand for our product."

JOINT COMMITTEE PLANNING MOVIE CARNIVAL.

Plans are progressing for the big movie carnival in Seattle, Washington, which the Northwest Film Board of Trade and the Washington Theater Managers' Association intend to hold late this spring. A joint committee of the two organizations has been appointed, and they have already enlisted the support of several officials of the film companies for the success of the affair. The skating Arena and the Hippodrome across the street from it are to be used for the festivities. At least four or five of the most prominent film stars in the county will grace the ball, which will be the final act in the big show. The first will be composed of a mammoth convention of several hundred exhibitors and film men of the Northwest.

Artcraft Wins in Hart Suit

Circuit Court of Appeals Affirms Decision Declaring Player Was Free to Sever Triangle Connection.

A FINAL decision favoring Artcraft Pictures Corporation, in the suit brought against that organization by the Triangle Film Corporation in the William S. Hart case has been handed down by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. This is the third decision in the litigation over the services of Hart.

The initial decision, won by Artcraft, was given out by Judge Martin T. Manton, in the United States District Court, New York City, last August, when the application of the Triangle for a preliminary injunction restraining the defendant from making or distributing motion pictures featuring Mr. Hart, was refused. Mr. Hart's contract with Triangle called for Thomas H. Ince's supervision of productions in which the star appeared and when Mr. Ince severed his connections with Triangle, the star's contract was no longer binding, which decision was last week verified by the Court of Appeals.

In the early part of December, Artcraft again won out, when Supreme Court Judge Goff handed down a decision which denied the application of the New York Motion Picture Company for an injunction pendente lite, restraining the defendant from distributing the first William S. Hart production entitled "The Narrow Trail," and vacated the temporary stay granted pending the argument of the injunction. This second suit was a local action and temporarily held up the showing of "The Narrow Trail" at the Rialto theater.

The final appeal was brought before Circuit Judges Rogers and Hough and District Judge Learned Hand. The decision handed down by the Court of Appeals is final.

PARSONS TO GIVE WHOLE TIME TO ADVERTISING.

Under the regime of Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., P. A. Parsons as advertising manager, will have charge of all Pathe advertising, while Tarleton Winchester, formerly serial publicity manager, has been made publicity manager. Harry Lewis has been appointed manager of the Pathe art department.

Mr. Parsons, well known in the motion picture world, will devote his time and attention to advertising, being in complete control of that branch of Pathe's activities. The Pathe advertising in the newspapers and other mediums has become of such importance that Mr. Brunet deemed it best to separate the advertising and publicity departments. Mr. Parsons has been with Pathe for five years.

Mr. Winchester will have charge of all publicity matters emanating from the House of Pathe. He has been connected with this organization for almost two years, having been successively editor of Pathe Sun, which combined with it special sales and publicity work, and serial publicity manager.

BATES AND PENFIELD—"FEDERAL NEWS SERVICE."

Roderick C. Penfield, formerly editor of Harper's Weekly, for many years connected with the editorial staffs of the Evening Mail and the Sun; Wilbur Bates, who was for nearly ten years general representative for Klaw & Erlanger, and two other prominent newspaper men, whose identity will not be made known until the expiration of their present contracts with New York newspapers will enable them to take an active part in the new enterprise, have organized the "Federal News Service" to furnish special news and pictorial features to a large list of leading journals throughout the United States and Canada.

THOMAS BEDDING REPEATS LECTURE.

The lecture by Thomas Bedding, F. R. P. S., on "The Art of the Motion Picture," which he gave before the members of the Motion Picture Directors Association on January 3, was repeated to the members of the Cinema Camera Club on February 26. It was delivered a third time at the American Institute of Graphic Arts on March 20.

Mr. Bedding is at present in charge of the publicity bureau of "My Four Years in Germany," the Gerard photoplay which is achieving so much success at the Knickerbocker theater, New York.

BILL RUSSELL ENGAGES CARL STOCKDALE.

William Russell, of the William Russell Productions Company, has engaged Carl Stockdale, whose recent good work with the American Film Company has brought him much praise. Mr. Stockdale was with Mr. Russell in "In Bad" and "The Midnight Trail."

Religious Film Concern Formed

Its Home Is in Kansas and Its Chief Promoter Declares Its Work Will Be Crusade Against Vice.

ACCORDING to the Wichita Beacon, the Palestine Film Company, Ltd., has been launched in Wichita, Kan., by Daniel J. Killen, of Nebraska, a former state senator who, with his associates, feels that the time is propitious for the production of high-class moral and religious pictures. The new company has been incorporated for $1,000,000 and has taken over the Wonderland Park at Wichita on which it is said a studio will be built to be ready for production by August 1 next.

It is reported the price paid for the park, which is fifteen acres in extent, was $40,000, and plans for a studio have been made which call for an expenditure of about $100,000. It is said Wichita and Eastern capital has been interested in the venture and that the plan has the approval of religious writers and workers throughout the country. Mr. Killen is reported to have said that the directors of the corporation will be chosen from among the leading church and business men of Kansas, that the stockholders of the company will be public-spirited people from all over the United States, and that ministers from various denominations will be on its board of censorship. It is said the reasons why the enterprise was located in Wichita were that everybody in Kansas is a booster; it is centrally located and has good railroad facilities; it has a good climate for picture making, and is the most Christian state in the Union.

Mr. Killean says: "The Palestine Film Company, Ltd., has not gone into this enterprise blindfolded, or without accurate knowledge of the subject in hand.

"It has personally interviewed thousands of ministers of every denomination throughout the entire world and has spent nearly five years investigating the possibilities that await a company that will produce pictures suitable for church extension work.

"Our work is a crusade against vice in all its devious forms that will be far-reaching, and the deciding factor in an educational propaganda for the advancement of purity in our home life and the stimulating of religious thought and right living conditions."

In addition to the production of pictures, the company expects to give the people of Kansas the advantage of the finest sacred concerts and lectures that money can procure. These concerts and lectures are to be given on alternate Sundays and absolutely free of charge.

Universal Makes Safety First Subject

Ten of the Leading Players Appear in "Careless America," Filled With Automobile Stunts.

TO make America safe for the careless pedestrian and the careless automobilist, ten stars, prominent in the moving picture field, consented to appear in extra-hazardous scenes contained in "Careless America." This production, which is in two reels, has just been completed by Universal and is being assembled under the supervision of Harry Levey, manager of the Industrial Department.

The players who will endeavor to impress upon the minds of the public the dangers which constantly surround the average individual are Mildred Harris, Herbert Rawlinson, Kenneth Harlan, Ben Wilson, Betty Schade, Kingsley Benedict, Neva Berber, Laurence Peyton and Albert Roscoe.

In the two reels are crowded ten sensational stunts, the like of which are usually reserved for the final punch scenes of serial episodes. Automobiles plunging across chasms, diving off cliffs, smashing into crowds, hurtling over docks —these are a few of the stunts performed in the course of the picture.

Every Secretary of State in the country has already endorsed the Universal production and 6,200 chiefs of police have undertaken the task of seeing that "Careless America" is given the widest circulation in their communities. Because of the "safety first" nature of the film, no charge is to be made to theaters which present it.

SWETT RETURNS FROM LONG TRIP.

F. W. Swett, traveling representative of Nicholas Power Company, has just returned to New York after an absence of two years on the road. He reports conditions in general as much more favorable than during the past summer and fall. He has come to New York to acquaint himself with the improvements and changes in Power's equipment preparatory to a trip of inspection to all army cantonments wherein Power machines are installed.

John G. Adolfi Joins World Pictures

Famous Director Signs Contract to Direct Pictures in Which Barbara Castleton Is Featured.

JOHN G. ADOLFI, the famous director whose most recent big picture is "Queen of the Sea," which he wrote and directed for the Fox Film Corporation with Annette Kellermann as the star, has signed a contract with World-Pictures and will shortly begin the direction of a production for the World, in which Barbara Castleton will be starred.

Mr. Adolfi comes to the World with a record of achievement in the filming of entertaining, interesting box office successes. While "Queen of the Sea," which has not yet been released, is his most recent big picture, he has directed scores of other big productions, having been in the industry almost from the start.

John G. Adolfi.

Though young in years Mr. Adolfi may be considered a veteran of the silent screen. His technique and skill has advanced each year and he is considered one of the most certain producers of box office drawing cards now directing pictures. The announcement of his connection with World-Pictures will be noted with interest by all exhibitors and his first World picture will be eagerly awaited.

Mr. Adolfi began his career with the Biograph company. He was associated with David W. Griffith in some of the latter's big productions. An interesting fact in connection with the filming of "The Birth of a Nation" is the fact that Mr. Griffith used some of the scenes that Mr. Adolfi was taking for another production in "The Birth of a Nation."

From this concern he went to the Universal and then to Fox, directing big pictures for both these concerns. Mr. Adolfi was with Fox for over three years. He will take his first World scenes in Washington.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of March 24 at New York's Principal Motion Picture Houses.

THE RIVOLI—"Love Me," a Thomas H. Ince directed picture written by C. Gardner Sullivan and starring Dorothy Dalton, shared honors at the Rivoli the week of March 24 with Official Italian War Pictures showing a combined naval and aerial attack on an Australian stronghold. The usual Animated Pictorial and other additional features were also shown.

THE STRAND—Pauline Frederick in a screen version of Sardou's "La Tosca" was the chief attraction at the Strand. Frank Losee plays Baron Scarpia. The drama is one of great power. The third episode of "The Depths of the Sea," a new comedy, and the Strand Topical Review completed the screen program.

THE RIALTO—"The Whispering Chorus," an Artcraft picture made from the story of Perley Poore Sheehan and directed by Cecil B. De Mille, headed the list of screen attractions at the Rialto. Kathlyn Williams, Raymond Hattan, Elliott Dexter and Tully Marshall have the principal roles. "Those Athletic Girls," a Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy, furnished the fun.

EIGHTY-FIRST STREET THEATER—First half of the week, Bessie Barriscale in "Within the Cup" and the last installment of "The Eagle's Eye." Latter half, Mae Marsh in "The Beloved Traitor," and a new number of Chapin's "The Son of Democracy."

BROADWAY—"The Kaiser."

KNICKERBOCKER—"My Four Years in Germany."

LYRIC—"Woman and the Law," Fox feature.

How It Is Done at the Strand

A Discussion of Methods Which Have Actually Been Worked Out Successfully.

By Harold Edel, Managing Director.

LIGHTING. What an important feature it is, both in the film itself and in the theater showing the film. It is surprising how little the extensive uses of lighting are put to, even in some of the larger Broadway theaters, both motion picture and theatrical. The average theater uses plain footlights, stagelights and spotlights and lets it go at that. Experimenting with lights is one of the most pleasant parts of my preparation of a show. With my head electrician, I study new effects, try out new ideas and attempt all kinds of electrical acrobatics, some of which are very often sadly humorous. However, it is only by actual experimenting that we can arrive at a suitable result.

After I have my show planned and carefully outlined, I arrange on paper what I think will make effect lighting. My head electrician does likewise and then we compare notes and try them out. Some times a radical idea works out highly effective, other times it is all wrong, but with a variation leads off to a new idea and so on. I have spent many hours trying out new lights and effects, but the results easily warranted this time and effort.

An idea that always helps to put over a singer is as follows: The number is started with the regular stage lighting. The lights are gradually dimmed and a "baby spot" coming up from the foot-lights shines on the singer's face. As the other lights become dim, the little spot becomes bright and finally the end of the song is sung with a dark stage with only the face of the singer visible to the audience. By changing colors of the "baby spot," this can be made more effective.

In any part of the overture where a solo is rendered a small spot is always placed on the soloist, even if the solo is of short duration. Different lighting on the back drop is also usually effective for a singer or other soloist. With a good drop and a careful study of lights upon it, many different effects can be brought out, including beautiful sunsets, sunrises, twilights, moonlight nights, stormy scenes, etc.

Upon conclusion of the overture, solo, or any other number in fact, a sudden switching on of all lights in the house, with the conclusion of the final note, always helps to put it over with a smash. Occasional dimming and brightening of other indirect lights throughout the house bring about a different atmosphere. The more different and harmonious lighting schemes you can inject into your show the better the general results will be, for nothing helps to bring out the variety of your bill more distinctly than changes in lighting.

At the Strand we have two panels next to the screen, one on each side. In these panels, by means of special projectors, we present suggestions in lighting which are suitable to bring out the action of a scene in the picture. For instance, in "Carman of Klondike" the big fight scene is staged in the open in the midst of a terrific storm. With the rain pouring down upon the combatants we carried out the idea of the storm further in the panels where rain effects were projected. Then again in another recent picture scenes of an interior of a log cabin were shown with the lightning flashing outside the window and the rain beating against the pane. By synchronizing the lighting on the panels with that in the film as it flashed outside the window, and projecting a down-pour of rain in the panel, it brought the audience apparently right into the room with the players, the edge of the screen acting as the wall of the cabin and the panels representing the exterior on both sides.

In trying out light effects, as well as other bits in connection with the staging of a bill, it is always advisable to have as many of the theater attaches, from the house manager down, in various parts of the house, to see the results from all angles. I have received valuable suggestions on several occasions from young ushers, who take as great an interest in putting over new ideas as I do. By making them feel that they are at all times a part of the creative force of the theater they become more interested in its general welfare than if they were constantly impressed with the fact that they are small cogs in the wheel.

BOV TO ENTER GOVERNMENT WORK.

John Bov, formerly connected with the technical department of the American Film Company at the laboratory at Chicago, has been selected for the governmental staff of motion picture men and will soon join the film service of the government at New York.

Three Scenario Writers for World

Hubbard, Clifton and Smith, Men of Experience, Sign Long Time Contracts.

LUCIEN HUBBARD, noted scenario writer, has just signed a long term contract with World-Pictures and has already started work. Mr. Hubbard, who is a former newspaper man, has recently been associated with the Diando Company in the preparation of the story and continuity for "The Wolf-Faced Man," a serial to be released by Pathe.

While Mr. Hubbard's specialty is continuity work, he has a number of original stories which have been successful. Among them are "The Angel Factory," produced by Astra; "The Awakening of Ruth," produced by Edison; two of the O. Henry series and others.

"Scenarios are not written—they are re-written," declares Wallace C. Clifton, scenario writer, who has just signed a long term contract with World-Pictures.

"I rewrite my scenarios not once or twice, but six and seven times and even more, if necessary," continued Mr. Clifton. "It is only by rewriting that the best results are obtained. I have yet to see a story so good in its first draft that it cannot be made many times better by careful and thoughtful rewriting."

Hamilton Smith, who has had a varied and highly successful career in motion pictures, has also joined the scenario department of World-Pictures, having signed a long time contract. He is now engaged, in association with Mr. Hoyt, in the preparation of a story for Madge Evans. Mr. Smith has been writing scenarios for the past seven or eight years. He began with the Kalem company and for some time was associate editor of that concern. Then he did special work for Metro.

Florence Short

THAT Florence Short, who is barely out of her teens, could manage to win such an enviable record both upon the stage and in the silent drama in so brief a period is a matter of surprise only to those who do not know her personally. To youth all things are possible, and when youth is backed by keen intelligence and an abundance of stage traditions from a long line of theatrical ancestry it forms a combination that simply must "arrive." Possessing all these attributes, together with a dark radiant beauty and charming personality, Miss Short came into her own.

Florence Short.

Friends and admirers are legion who recall her splendid work as Passion in "Experience" in the original production. Later she was with Henrietta Crosman and in other New York productions, but her advent and instant success in pictures have won for her an added host of friends who were quick to appreciate an intelligently capable artist in what is commonly known as vampire roles.

Now through ten episodes of the new United States Secret Service serial, "The Eagle's Eye," Miss Short's portrayal of Madam Stephan, an imperial German agent, is a characterization at once impressive and skillfully drawn. It should win for her higher honors in screendom.

WILLIAM FOX GUEST OF THEATER CLUB.

William Fox, the film producer, and Virginia Pearson, noted screen star, were the guests of honor at a meeting of the New York Theater Club, of which Mrs. Belle de Riviera is president, in the Hotel Astor, March 19. Mr. Fox was the principal speaker.

Jane and Katherine Lee, the Fox "Baby Grands," presented an original skit.

Advertising Essential

Hiller & Wilk Reply to Moving Picture World Criticisms of State Right Publicity Methods.

TAKING up the subject of State Right advertising methods which were criticized editorially in the Moving Picture World of March 30, Messrs. Hiller & Wilk, distributors of State Right subjects, express their approval of the World's position in the following letter:

"New York, March 21, 1918.

"Editor Moving Picture World,
"New York City.

"Dear Sir:—The criticism published on page 1791 in the March 30 issue of the Moving Picture World is a well-merited one. The open market needs just such fair and frank criticism. It will be due to this sort of wholesome constructive consideration that these faults will be rectified with a resulting betterment of conditions in the field in general.

"The ignorance that producers have with regard to the demands of the open market is appalling. Many of them feel that the open market is a dumping ground for their poor pictures while others are afraid that the number of poor pictures in the open market will make it impossible to find a market for their unusual ones.

"As to the neeessity of advertising their product, that seems to be quite an unnecessary item of expense. Many of them feel that their work is done when they show their sample print. They are generally coming to realize that the distributors of their pictures are, to a greater or lesser degree, factors in their success, and more attention is being paid today than ever before to the need of helpful advertising ideas to make the marketing of their product a success. The task has been a hard one, but gradually things are becoming better along this line and the faith that the believers in the open market have had is more and more justified as the days go by. Producers and directors who are capable of making unusual pictures are investigating with great care the possibility of the open market. As these men go into the field, the publicity problem will adjust itself quicker because these men are aware of the necessity of calling for the keenest brains in the advertising field to augment the work they have done in the productions.

"We have constantly urged on the producers we represent the need of advertising more generally and more widely and more efficiently, but we have had to convince them that the state right buyer would do his share. In supporting their efforts, too, many times we have urged the value of this advertising upon buyers only to find our suggestions being acted upon in a half-hearted manner. Were all the operators in the open market to realize the great truth that advertising is as essential as any one factor toward making pictures a success, there would be a greater number of superior pictures offered through this method than there are today.

"The burden therefore rests on distributor as well as producer. It is a mutual problem, and we can see evidences that the proper spirit of co-operation is surely taking the place of the 'don't care' spirit which has existed. The inevitable result of the growth of this finer spirit will be greater stability in the open market and with that—the greatest need of all, great pictures. HILLER & WILK."

Rembusch Calls a Meeting

Secretary of the American Exhibitors' Association Wants Exhibitors and Producers to Discuss Co-operation Plan.

THE Moving Picture World is in receipt of a telegraphed communication from Frank J. Rembusch, National Secretary of the American Exhibitors' Association, which reads as follows:

"The question of close co-ordination between producers and exhibitors, through some co-operative plan of distribution or booking agreement, or both, is now receiving the earnest consideration of the entire industry. Many conflicting propositions are being offered, consequently neither producer or exhibitor can benefit, even though all may favor general principles therefor.

"To obtain the best thought and crystallize general sentiment a general conference of all exhibitors and producers will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York city, beginning Monday noon, April 8. All exhibitors and producers, without regard to affiliations, are invited to attend. No special invitations are being issued.

"All plans for better protection, greater economy and closer affiliation between exhibitors and producers can be presented and will be considered. Every state and large city is requested to send a representative and all individual exhibitors and heads of producing companies are requested to be present. As there has never before been held a general meeting between producers and exhibitors we believe that much good can be accomplished in general conference."

Dorothy Jardon

DOROTHY JARDON, whose debut in Grand Opera as "Carmen" is scheduled for the Fall of 1918, and who has been studying for her operatic debut under America's greatest teacher, has arranged with Ed. Rosenbaum, Jr., Publicity Director of the King-Bee Films Corporation, to act as her personal and business manager for a term of three years.

Dorothy Jardon.

Miss Jardon is a most striking beauty of her type in this country according to Harrison Fisher and other famous artists for whom she has posed.

Gifted with a remarkable voice, a superb figure, intense dramatic instinct and unusual intelligence, there is every reason to believe she will be one of the year's greatest screen sensations.

Mr. Rosenbaum has secured a story that fits Miss Jardon's personality perfectly. It was written by a well-known playwright who has refused many offers to write for other stars, but his admiration and friendship for Miss Jardon were such that he readily consented to supply a story for her screen debut.

Mr. Rosenbaum expects shortly to announce the name of the company that will star both Miss Jardon, also Nora Bayes, in the near future. It is rumored that Wall street capital will back these two stars in a series of pictures.

PUBLICITY BOOK FOR "THE LION'S CLAWS" OUT.

The new Universal serial, "The Lion's Claw," has been well provided for in the way of publicity by Advertising Manager Nat G. Rothstein's Complete Advertising, Poster and Publicity Campaign Book. This is indeed a most complete and satisfying compendium of everything needed by the exhibitor in exploiting the new thriller serial. It contains complete, ready-to-use advance teaser campaign ads, the opening ad, with follow-up episode ads, and all the help an exhibitor who has much to think of needs.

The book contains thirty-six pages and has pictures of all the posters and cuts available, of which the supply is particularly rich. Then there are sensation-making write-ups for use in the daily papers and ideas to excite interest in the coming attraction, as well as to keep the excitement while it continues. The amount of work on this help to exhibitors is astonishing both for the timeliness of the material used and for the extent of it. The first episode of the new serial will be released April 6.

SOL BERMAN WITH JEWEL.

Sol J. Berman, widely known throughout the New York territory, has been appointed sales manager of Jewel's New York office. Although originally from the Middle West, Mr. Berman spent the last few years in charge of important exchanges.

It was with the World Film organization that Mr. Berman made his bow as a metropolitan exchange manager. After a period with that company he was sales manager of Branch A, Bluebird. Berman then went to Select, paying particular attention to its New York office. His next affiliation was with Brenon Pictures.

A special campaign on "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," now playing a successful run at the Broadway Theater, is receiving the immediate attention of the newest addition to Jewel organization.

McCormick, Director of Indianapolis Circle

Something About Young Man Who Has Reputation for Wearing Out S. R. O. Signs

S. BARRET McCORMICK, managing director of the Circle Theater, Indianapolis, is one of the younger American exhibitors. Utilizing unique ideas, shrewdly appropriate to the various films he has selected for exploitation, Mr. McCormick has put over so many successful campaigns at the Circle that a brief resume of his methods should prove of value to exhibitors striving for maximum returns on their efforts.

Many will contend that in the Circle Mr. McCormick has been provided with one of the four most beautiful motion picture theaters in the United States as a setting for his activities; also that his backers, Messrs. Robert and Herman Lieber, are business men of unusual breadth of vision who give their managing director every encouragement to produce the best shows that money and ingenuity are able to devise.

S. Barret McCormick.

While there is no gainsaying the force of these arguments, the fact remains that Mr. McCormick has so frequently turned lukewarm successes into S. R. O. attractions by clever advance work, making officious censors and various other handicaps work to the advantage of the Circle that his own system of management must be given due credit.

During a recent visit to New York, Mr. McCormick explained in a few sentences his method of work.

"At the Circle we strive, first of all, to create an atmosphere appropriate to each distinctive feature shown. This is done not only by especially designed stage settings and lobby displays, but throughout our newspaper and general advertising we aim to follow a style that will hook up with the theme of the play. For the exploitation of Bryant Washburn in 'Skinner's Dress Suit,' for example, we used practically a different language from that employed in putting over Mary Garden in 'Thais.'

"The first story, you will remember, was a typically American comedy, telling of the trials, tribulations and final triumph of a young clerk, who found his real opportunity in life by accidentally disporting himself in swell raiment, purchased beyond his means. The humorous angles of this rollicking tale were played up in such a way as to appeal to the personal problems of the Indianapolis folks—who are, by the way, about as typically American as any class of people you will find—and the generous space we used in the local newspapers to drive home our points brought the people out to enjoy Skinner's adventures in much the same mood that they would go to the home of a friend who had recently won a fortune against odds to hear him tell about it and incidentally drop a few practical tips for their own benefit.

"'Thais,' on the other hand, is an exotic classic, appealing to the imagination, and with a star of the prestige of Mary Garden in a role that had already made her internationally famous, our method was to key all advertising and publicity to bring out these facts in as striking a manner as good taste could dictate. I am a great believer in short, snappy sentences in advertising, highly colored and even frankly poetical in cases where verbal embroidery will stimulate interest in the production. 'Thais' was billed successfully in this manner; and just recently we did a record business with Theda Bara in 'Cleopatra' by following the same method, despite the efforts of the local board of censors to prevent us from showing the Siren of the Nile in all her historic splendor. Acceding to the personal wishes of the mayor, we cut out certain scenes, but treated the matter in a semi-humorous manner in our newspaper copy, by making Cleopatra say, in reference to the deletion of the final scene with Anthony, 'Now I can fully realize what Shakespeare meant when he said "That was the most unkindest cut of all."' The result was capacity audiences at every performance."

S. Barret McCormick is a native of the west, and before entering the field as an exhibitor was a special writer on the staff of the Rocky Mountain News of Denver. One of his editorial colleagues on the News in those days was George Creel, now official publicist of the United States Government. Mr. McCormick was an exhibitor in Denver prior to his engagement as managing director of the Circle theater, some eighteen months ago. While he is not officially connected with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, his keen business judgment is frequently sought by Robert Lieber in deciding policies that are put up to the directorate of the circuit.

Lucille Satterthwaite

THE little town of Waynesville, N. C., has lost for an indefinite period one of its most attractive inhabitants. Miss Lucille Satterthwaite is missed on the tennis courts and bridle paths, where until a year ago she was a popular figure, being a great lover of the outdoor life. But naturally, having followed the line of sports her home town provided, and becoming almost expert in all of them, she longed for the big city, with other fields to conquer. Her reasons for coming to New York and how to get here were things to be thought of, so she watched for an opportunity.

Lucille Satterthwaite.

About this time the Photoplay Magazine conducted a beauty contest, offering to the ten prettiest girls selected an opportunity to enter the moving picture business. Miss Satterthwaite submitted her photograph, and, to make a long story short, was one of those selected and called to New York. In March, 1917, she made her debut in World Film pictures, playing a part in "A Modern Othello." This picture was followed by engagements with the Selznick, Goldwyn and Fox companies. Miss Satterthwaite has just finished "American Buds" for the Fox company, in which she played one of the leading roles.

A slightly built girl of five feet and five inches in height, of the brunette type, with a mass of dark brown hair over hazel eyes, and just tipping the scales under the lightweight class, make Lucille Satterthwaite a mighty attractive type for motion pictures.

SCHICK OF TRIANGLE ENLISTED.

Charles J. Schick, company clerk for Director Raymond Wells, has been the cause of adding a new star to the Triangle big service flag which floats over the Culver City studios. Schick has enlisted in the ordnance department of the Federal service and has left the Triangle for a special course at the University of California.

Exhibitors Are Smiling, Says Goldwyn Man

Situation Summed Up By Jake Lowrie, Quoted as Saying "We're Not Coming Back, We're Back"

EXHIBITORS all over the country are smiling again. No better proof is needed that the motion picture industry has fully recovered from the recent slump, which for a time threatened dire things. Whether because of the war tax or a depression in business, first class motion picture theaters which in normal times boast capacity business played to so many empty seats for four or five months that an exhibitor without a complaint was a rarity.

Now things are changed, according to a Goldwyn traveling publicity representative recently returned from a tour that brought him into close contact with showmen in every section of the East and Northwest and a part of the Southwest. Boson, he found, was the first big eastern city to outlive the slump.

"We're not coming back, we're back," replied Jacob Lourie, the big Goldwyn exhibitor in the Hub, to the publicity man's query. Similar conditions were noted at Providence, Lowell, Springfield and Brockton. Lynn and Portland are just convalescing, their full recovery being retarded by labor troubles.

Buffalo is at its theatrical best now, the new Curtiss plant and several other new war plants bringing thousands of young men and women to the upstate metropolis. "Business was never better," said Michael Shea, of Shea's Hippodrome, where Mabel Normand in "Dodging a Million," did a record business recently.

It was in the Northwest that the Goldwyn representative found the greatest wave of motion picture prosperity, conditions in Minneapolis making some of the large exhibitors forget there ever was depression. There, as in many other large cities, the slump was not without its compensations. It drove a lot of fly-by-night exhibitors out of business and removed their cheap store shows which had long been eyesores.

Finkelstein & Rubin, owners of a chain of theaters in the Twin Cities, reported prosperity for all their houses. Their statement was borne out in part at their New Garrick theater, St. Paul, where "The Auction Block" played to tremendous business the week the Goldwyn man spent in the Twin Cities. A trip to Rochester, Minn., revealed that prosperity did not pass up the smaller places in its sweep.

Of all Northwestern states, Wisconsin had the hardest time in wrestling itself from the grasp of the slump. It was not until the middle of February that the motion picture boom made its appearance there. La Crosse and Oshkosh, which suffered most, were the first cities in Wisconsin to note a change for the better.

Theaters in St. Louis had worn an air of prosperity weeks before the Goldwyn man put in an appearance. Here, too, a number of padlocked store shows revealed where the slump had put in its work. Further evidence of the cinema boom the Mound City is enjoying is the recent decision of the management of the New Grand Central theater, the Goldwyn first-run house, to run continuously instead of giving four shows a day, as heretofore.

A week's sojourn in Ohio helped to prove that motion picture prosperity was general all over the country. Cleveland felt the boom soonest, just as it had felt the slump first four months before. Eighteen of the twenty-one big exhibitors in the Forest City reported exceptionally good business. Cincinnati is doing well. Many of the big exhibitors there say the slump never touched them. MacMahon and Jackson, owners of Gifts theater, report that while trade journals announced depression everywhere, there was no noticeable falling off at their house.

There was a peculiar situation in Pittsburgh. Apparently only the smaller houses felt the slump there. Complaints from the higher-priced houses were few and far between. Harry Davis, head of the Davis circuit of theaters, said he had experienced no falling off worth being concerned about and that his spacious Lyric theater had done remarkably well since last summer.

Despite what Cincinnati and Pittsburgh think about it, there was a marked depression elsewhere, but that exhibitor smile, so prevalent everywhere now, is proof that the slump has done its worst. Motion picture producers have every reason to hope the smile will never come off.

Norka Rouskaya

THAT motion pictures continue to attract the artists of the stage is again evidenced by the latest recruit from the ranks of the footlights. This time it is Norka Rouskaya, the young woman who has captivated Europe and South America with her talent. Miss Rouskaya is indeed a find. Aside from her beauty and musical and dancing art, she is an actress of ability in spite of her nineteen years.

Norka Rouskaya.

Miss Rouskaya was born in Switzerland, and before crossing the Atlantic performed in the principal theaters of France and Italy. Her success in South America was sensational, and in some of the republics, such as Peru, she became a popular idol. Miss Rouskaya is making no secret of her ambition to win fame on the screen. In fact, the lure of the silent drama culminated in the decisive step of canceling all her contracts in Havana, Panama and other Latin-American capitals for no other purpose than to reach New York, the Mecca of the cinematographic art, as soon as possible. Her friends predict she will rival our prominent emotional actresses. Miss Rouskaya is a young woman of culture, speaks four languages, including English, and her artistic temperament has been cultivated and developed to a high degree.

An exotic, although exceedingly attractive face and winning personality, will be the gain by producers of American motion pictures as soon as Miss Rouskaya makes her local debut before the camera.

McDONALD GOES ABROAD WITH Y. M. C. A.

John J. McDonald, an assistant of Sales Manager A. Schmidt in the home office of General Film Company in New York, has resigned to accept a position as a war secretary and physical director for overseas service in the Y. M. C. A. He will leave at an early date for France to take charge of the recreation work at one of the huts back of the American trenches or in one of the foreign training camps. Mr. McDonald will have the rank of civilian captain, and is well qualified to act as coach and instructor in boxing, football, baseball, wrestling and other army sports. Mr. McDonald is a graduate from the efficiency department of the American Druggists Syndicate. He was also physical instructor at Captain O'Brien's police civil service school.

"O. HENRY" LETTER SELLS HIGH.

The tremendous increase in popularity of the name "O. Henry" is reflected in the record breaking price of $810 paid last week by a New York collector for an autographed 1,200-word letter written by "O. Henry." Although "O. Henry," or William Sidney Porter, died nearly eight years ago, his stories and his personality enjoy a greater measure of interest and approval today than at any time during his career. The "O. Henry" vogue during the last few years has been remarkable, part of this tremendous revival in interest undoubtedly being due to the series of O. Henry pictures distributed by General Film Company.

Toronto Exchangemen Uncover Queer Situation

Find One Exhibitor Who Had Signed Contracts for 269 Features, Some Days Being Filled Six Times Over.

ALMOST extraordinary state of affairs with regard to the value placed upon booking contracts by a number of Ontario exhibitors has been discovered as a result of an investigation on the part of managers of Toronto exchange offices. The latter were finding that out-of-town exhibitors were rejecting film shipments too frequently. Pictures were being returned without being used quite regularly by a comparatively large number of theater men and the exchange managers came to the conclusion that it would be wise for them to compare contracts. The move proved to be an eyeopener. It was found that numerous exhibitors were treating solemn agreements as "scraps of paper."

In one glaring instance it was discovered that an exhibitor had signed contracts for 269 features for the next few months. This was apparently enough to serve him for the next two years. He had six different features booked for Mondays and Tuesdays of every week for three months. He was actually selecting one of the six features for his show and was returning the other five to Toronto without even a "Thank you." An emergency meeting of Toronto exchange managers was called and he was asked to put in a personal appearance. He did so and explained that he had left the management of his theater to various employees because of other business interests. He declared he did not realize the state of his theater business. He found it advisable, however, to straighten out his affair immediately. Other instances could be given. In other cases, the exchange managers stopped sending reels so that the exhibitors soon found that they could not put on a show. In the majority of these cases the situation soon righted itself.

Another inconvenience which Toronto exchanges have been suffering was the result of a growing practice of exhibitors in some section of the province of working an exchange business on their own account. Instead of returning the reels to the proper exchange, the exhibitors started to trade shows between themselves. In short order the exchanges lost all trace of their property. A shipment of reels was sometimes on the missing list for weeks. Eventually they were returned to Toronto from unexpected sources. Later, it frequently happened that an exhibitor would complain to a Toronto distributor that a shipment was a repeater—namely, a show had been sent to him on a previous occasion. The office books were examined and there was no record that the pictures in question had gone to the complaining exhibitor. Inquiries then showed that the reels had been received from an exhibitor in a neighboring city.

It was actually discovered that some exhibitors were charging a nominal sum for the rental of pictures which they were passing on to the next man. This practice was stopped, however, when the exchanges announced that such cases would be reported to the Ontario Government and the offending exhibitors would be required to take out an exchange license costing $150 per year.

In practically all booking contracts issued by Toronto film renting companies now a clause is inserted requiring four weeks' notice for the cancellation of an agreement. This acts as a protection for all parties concerned.

In addition, the Toronto exchange managers have been having their regular troubles as well.

EXCHANGE APPOINTMENTS BY GENERAL FILM.

John R. McIlheran, of Dallas, for eight years prominently identified with film exchange interests of the southwest, has been appointed manager of General Film's Dallas exchange. For several years he had been in the employ of the Consolidated Film and Supply Co., of Dallas, as manager of its New Orleans and El Paso exchanges and more lately as manager of the Bluebird feature department of the Dallas office. For more than a year he was assistant manager in the Mutual Dallas exchange.

F. Flarity, whose appointment as manager of the Albany General Film exchange was announced recently, has been transferred to Buffalo, to succeed E. J. Hayes, resigned. He has been succeeded at Albany by C. R. Osborne, another well known exchange man, who resigned as manager of the First National Exhibitors exchange at Boston to return to General Film. Previously he had been employed as a salesman out of the General Film Boston and Wilkes-Barre exchanges.

Lost Chance for Sunday Shows in Quebec

Theater Men Fail to Hold Together and Lord's Day Alliance Put One Over Them.

THE moving picture theaters of Quebec have been forced to close on Sundays because the exhibitors did not stick together in their fight with the Lord's Day Alliance. Arthur Drapeau, proprietor of three theaters in Quebec, held out until the last and finally pleaded guilty to violating the Lord's Day act when he saw that he was not being given the support of fellow-exhibitors for a test case. The Quebec City theaters only recently opened their doors on Sundays when the Court of Appeals decided that a local Sunday Observance Act was not legal. The moral uplifters got busy, with the result that Sunday business has been suspended.

Alec B. Francis

WILLIAM GILLETTE once played a butler, so why not Alec B. Francis? the photoplay public will ask itself when they see Mr. Francis in Goldwyn's newest production starring Mae Marsh. The transformation will occur in a forthcoming production regarding which there is secrecy, and as with the case of Gillette the suave and polished Francis will essay a part of his own choosing. Asked to explain why he chose to step from the high estate he enjoyed in "The Cinderella Man" with Mae Marsh, Francis declared that he was not abdicating at all. In fact he believes he is playing the best part he has had for a long time.

Alec B. Francis.

"It is not the length of a part or the number of scenes in which I appear that causes me to say I will or I will not undertake a part," said Francis. "It is the significance of it and the influence of the character on others in the play. This decides me—nothing else. The part of the butler in Miss Marsh's new photodrama is quite as good, from the actor's standpoint, as my last part—her father in 'The Face in the Dark.'

"The fact that I am a servant does not imply that the character of the butler is an uninteresting one. Too often the servants we see in plays conceal drama far more moving than that enacted by their superiors. Servants are more than automatons devised to serve as background and as living advertisements of their employer's wealth. When I am fortunate enough to find a servant who stands for more than a figure in livery, believe me I cannot be cast too quickly to play him.

"So it is with the old butler in the Mae Marsh photodrama. He is a human character, overflowing with quick sympathy and human nature and the opportunity to be of aid to the girl played by Miss Marsh comes early in the play, followed by a sort of hovering watchfulness as long as she remains among people who do not understand her. The old butler is a vivid character, too, for all his quiet unobtrusiveness."

KELLY GOES TO TEXAS FOR GENERAL FILM.

Among General Film's recent additions to the sales department is that of the well-known James B. Kelly, known for years to the motion picture exhibitors of the southwest. Mr. Kelly becomes special representative for General in Texas, with Dallas as his headquarters, to handle the organization's feature releases and short subjects in an intensified campaign.

More recently Mr. Kelly was sales manager for the Consolidated Film and Supply Company in Atlanta, in which city he was active during the last seven years. Before that he was with General Film Company in the New Orleans territory. He departed from New York March 18 after a conference with General Film executives to undertake his new work.

Foreign Trade News

By F. G. Ortega.

ACCORDING to Cine-Mundial's agent in Uruguay, the number of cinematographic and theatrical performances given in Montevideo (the capital of the republic) during 1917 amounted to 16,537 and 1,528 respectively. A grand total of 4,300,000 persons attended the theaters during the year.

* * *

While Sarah Bernhardt was appearing in Havana about a month ago, an enterprising renter dug out an old copy of "Mothers of France," her latest screen production which was distributed in this country through the World Company, and made quite a hit with the exhibitors.

* * *

Among the important film renters and exhibitors in Brazil, with offices in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo are the following: Zieglitz & Castello, Pan-American Film Service, Empreza Pinfildi, Cia. Cinematographica Brasileira, De Luxo Films, Agencia Sestini and Empreza J. R. Stana. All these dealers are buying film and supplies from the United States and Europe.

* * *

The production of films in Argentina during 1917 shows an increase over 1916 in the number of subjects and some advance in technique, but little else. Severo Norsa, our correspondent in Buenos Aires, reviewed the year's activities among the local producing companies in the April issue of Cine-Mundial and arrived at the conclusion that the trouble lies in the lack of competent directors. All present signs bear out the contention that some years must elapse before the Argentinian producers can offer any real competition to foreign manufacturers.

* * *

George Walsh, Douglas Fairbanks and Franklin Farnum are among the most popular screen comedians in Argentina. All their productions shown in South America have been successful.

* * *

The following companies have furnished the bulk of the programs shown in Uruguay during the past six months: Paramount, Fox, Rex, Pathe (New York), Pathe (Paris), World, Vitagraph, Metro, Mutual and Triangle. Excepting Pathe Freres, who released a few of their French-made pictures, the "Caesar" was the only European house to meet with any marked success, and this was due to its Bertini productions.

* * *

Watch the Portuguese section of Cine-Mundial. It is conducted by Pedro Caruggi and Gastao Tojeira, editor of "Civilita Latina," a daily paper published in Sao Paulo, and associate editor of "A Rua," another daily of Rio de Janeiro, respectively. It also includes some news letters from Portugal. The section is acknowledged to be the most complete monthly cinematographic review of the Portuguese-speaking world available at the present time, so much so that it is reproduced verbatim by most of the motion picture magazines published in Europe.

* * *

Cine-Mundial's agent in Havana reports that the local exchanges are about to organize a protective association.

* * *

Audrian & Medina, of Havana, are acting as distributors for Cuba of the Motiograph projectors. Their office is located at 78 Neptuno street.

* * *

Santos & Artigas, of Havana, have begun an attack on Dr. M. Zeno Gandia, representing the Medal Film Company of New York, through their house organ. This is a good sign. It shows that the Medal, distributing Pathe, Metro, Essanay and Triangle pictures on the Cuban market, has already become a local factor to be reckoned with.

Among the Exporters.

Joseph Lamy, of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, advise that negotiations have already been started in Latin America for the sale of "Beatrice Fairfax," the serial produced about a year ago by the International Company.

Mr. Lamy also reports the following sales made by the Piedmont Pictures Corporation during the past two weeks: "Jimmie Dale" (serial) for Argentina and Brazil; all the Ivan productions for Argentina and the Pacific Coast of South America; "Shame" (Noble), "Sins of Ambition" (Ivan) and several Selburn comedies for Great Britain.

* * *

Sydney Garrett, of the Bengar Film Corporation, has closed a deal for all of Scandinavia whereby practically a half million feet is involved. The product sold comprises thirty of the Selig Company's back releases, including "The Crisis," "The Spoilers" and "The Garden of Allah." The terms of the contract also call for a steady consumption of forthcoming Selig productions. At the same time, Mr. Garrett disposed of "Blue Jeans" and "Revelation, two Metro plays, and "Lest We Forget," to the same buyers for the same territory.

* * *

Jacobo Glucksmann, New York representative of Max Glucksmann, of Argentina, advises that the next steamer sailing from this port to Buenos Aires will carry over 300,000 feet of Triangle films. Mr. Glucksmann recently secured the rights on all Triangle productions for Argentina, Uruguay, Chile, Peru, Paraguay and Bolivia, and this is the first shipment to be made after the contract was signed.

* * *

Charles E. Elsner, 54-56 Stone street, New York, has recently started in business as an exporter of films. Mr. Elsner was formerly connected with other motion picture concerns trading with foreign countries, and he has a thorough knowledge of the Latin American markets. His firm will sell on its own account and also act as buyer for foreign importers on a commission basis.

* * *

J. Parker Read, Sr., representing Miles & Manheimer, of New York, is about to sail for South America with several copies of "Tarzan of the Apes."

* * *

William Vogel, of William Vogel Productions, Inc., reports that contracts on the First National-Chaplin pictures were closed last week for Scandinavia and Spain and Portugal. John Olsen & Co., of Copenhagen, secured the rights for Scandinavia, and the Guarin-Ibero-American Corporation, of Barcelona and Madrid, will exploit the pictures in Spain and Portugal.

* * *

Bidwell & Larrain, of Santiago, have joined the First National Exhibitors' Circuit and will exploit all the pictures produced or controlled by this organization, with the exception of the Chaplin series, throughout Chile and Bolivia. The deal was closed a few days ago through David P. Howels, who is handling the First National pictures in foreign markets. We understand that Bidwell & Larrain are also negotiating with William Vogel for the rights on the Chaplin series in their territory.

Inquiries from Abroad.

The addresses of these firms may be obtained from Cine-Mundial, 516 Fifth avenue, New York. We do not assume responsibility as to the standing of the inquirers, and the usual precautions should be taken in all cases. All inquiries are received direct by the Moving Picture World and Cine-Mundial, the Spanish monthly edition of the Moving Picture World. Please mention number when writing.

14. A firm in Brazil is in the market for films and moving picture supplies of every description. This firm covers northern and southern Brazil.

19. A man in Caracas, Venezuela, is in the market for new and used film.

21. A firm in Brazil is in the market for motion picture outfits, machines, etc.

22. A man in Tepic, Mexico, is in the market for moving pictures for advertising purposes.

23. A company recently established in Havana, Cuba, is in the market for films.

24. A man in Mérida, Yuc., Mexico, is in the market for a modern projection machine.

25. A firm in Santo Domingo wishes to get in touch with reliable exporter of new or used film.

26. A man in Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, is in the market for second-hand films.

27. A man in Camagüey, Cuba, is in the market for electric lighting devices, such as dimmers, gelatine, spot lights, lamps and wire.

Edward S. Abeles has been engaged by Metro to play Rosedale, the Wall Street broker, in "The House of Mirth." Mr. Abeles is at present in the cast of "Oh, Lady, Lady," at the Princess theater, New York. He will work at the Metro studio under Albert Capellani's direction in the daytime, appearing in the Princess theater production in the evening and matinees.

Spokes from the Hub

By Marion Howard

LAST evening I saw a picture (released in January), but for some unknown reason not seen here earlier, and I'd like to know why in heaven's name exhibitors are not showing this everywhere. Title: "For Freedom of the World," with that splendid young actor E. K. Lincoln and handsome Barbara Castleton, ably supported. It is a great picture all through, especially in depicting patriotism and what a mother the hero had! Her name was not listed on the title, but she was beautiful to look at, and was given some fine lines. What got me strong was the final picture, where the soldier's mind was restored through the strains of our national anthem played by a Canadian band in his honor, he having enlisted under their colors before America got into the War game. It was a fine bit of detail. About every angle of doing one's bit in war time is shown in this picture and real soldiers are in it. Splendid for the young folks to see.

* * *

Alice Brady has an excellent part in "The Spurs of Sybil," and it is well directed, too, to say nothing of having in the cast two such capable players as John Bowers and John Davidson, the latter seen here recently in the flesh in "Mme. Sand." The title has little to do with the working out of the plot since she won no spurs but did get a dandy husband. Iseth Munro (queer name) is some beaut, and what a picture she presents in the gambling den! How we did laugh over the eccentric female and her menagerie bequeathed to her naughty son. "Served him right," my neighbor said, "for he was such a cad of a villain."

* * *

One same day at the Fenway I saw Harry Morey in "The Desired Woman," a play with some new angles and a fine vehicle for the star. Florence Deshon is a little beauty with some semblance of soul back of those eyes. Two of the Vitagraph beauties are in this—Eulalie Jensen and Julia Swayne Gordon—and what a wonder child they have in Aida Horton, who plays the boy so artistically. Good dramatization by Will Harben, author of so many "good sellers." The fine Italian hand of Paul Scardon shows here. Well, the ending was not happy for the man, who goes off with the evangelist preacher in an effort to redeem himself.

* * *

"The Thing We Love" went strong here with appreciative theatergoers and it was good again to see Kathlyn Williams, who plays opposite "Wally" Reid. Lot of suspense in this and spy business minus the horrors of war. Lou Tellegen has done quite a good bit of work, and isn't Tully Marshall some villain! Will you ever forget the "Smiley Baby" with the refugees?

* * *

Such a treat we had in "Persuasive Peggy," the new Mayfair picture, with Peggy Hyland, always good! The play's simplicity and little lessons on "how to be happy though married" were cleverly unfolded. It was none too long to please the house and the comedy touches were new and worth while. On the same program at the Park I saw "The Brass Check," a mighty good picture for Bushman and Bayne, and how the house laughed over the insane asylum frame-up to hold the quartet of schemers in a padded cell with a real lunatic who thought he was the Kaiser. The outdoor snow scenes were superfine and pictured the country about Mr. Bushman's Maryland estate.

* * *

There was an interesting happening the other night at the Park theater when the orchestra (an unusual one, by the way) played for the benefit of Lotta Crabtree, way down in Florida, a clear connection made for her benefit. As you know, she owns the Park and much other property and is a devotee of the pictures.

* * *

What a dandy picture "Hidden Pearls" is with the incomparable Japanese star, to say nothing of real Hawaiian scenes and natives. Beulah Marie Dix belongs to the Hub, or did before she got into the screen game, for now her name is known all over the land. Good dramatic story with suspense, stunts galore and Lasky trademark. James Cruze had a splendid part and looked it. It was advertised that the funeral of the late Queen "Lil" was in this picture; if so, somebody cut it before it reached the Exeter theater.

* * *

"Blue Blazes Rawden" had one big feature apart from the work of the star, W. S. Hart, who so ably directed the picture. That was the mother, sympathetically played by Gertrude Claire, whose little touches meant so much to the big man who had nearly lost his soul, but found it in time to repent as he went down the long trail. Here we get a picture minus the Western cowboy stunts and also see Maud George doing a good bit—naughty, but effective.

* * *

"Our Little Wife" is unusually good, and has a theme out of the ordinary, besides being a clean-cut comedy. Walter Hiers made up as Nero in the studio scene was some sight. William Davidson as the doctor, one of the trio of dejected lovers, played the part fairly straight, and does not Marguerite Marsh look like Mae! Madge Kennedy holds the stage centre for pure unadulterated fun, with never a bit of suggestiveness. Much to the delight of the women, she displays stunning gowns. I can imagine the fun the company of screen honeymooners had in that railroad yard, used "under cover" in order to get the effect of boarding the right train. There were one or two slips there, also when the doctor took the bride's pulse, which he located on the wrong side of the wrist.

* * *

Well, I am getting a bit tired of the pictures Harold Lockwood has been in of late, for he deserves better, and how I miss his former pal—the customery enemy, Lester Cuneo, and their fist fights. "Broadway Bill" is a howling melodrama, but the dear things in front want to see him again in "glad rags," and they never want to see his bare feet in such a condition. A woman back of me said, "Good Lord, who would have thought that handsome chap had such awful looking feet." Nothing pretty in display of feet, Mr. Director, especially with chilblains (not blisters, as the critics called them). A mere man next to me said, "What a shame to waste all that whisky on the sole of any soul." We want more of the old-time Metros like "The River of Romance." Glad to see that May Allison has returned to the fold.

* * *

Now that was a mighty fine compliment paid the Drews by Mr. Rothapfel and everyone worth while who cares for clean comedies with the domestic flavor must agree with him in his protest against their withdrawal from the picture play. We have too few players of that type of whom we feel perfectly sure, for there is nothing far-fetched or commonplace in anything they do. Aren't the publicity men wonderfully made—some of them, as in the case of a certain New York one, who puts me in the class of "prominent society girls?" To you who know me, how does that read? It has been my privilege to have lived some time—long enough to recall the plays of the early seventies. There are more things needing censorship than the screen.

* * *

The other day I went calling at an exchange or two and found Manager George M. A. Fecke ensconced in the new World Film building on Broadway (formerly Pleasant street) and recently dedicated with ceremonies. He was in a reminiscent vein and proved vastly entertaining as a man of affairs who has kept pace with events. The building is commodious, covers much space and there is an air of hospitality at the very door. We discussed World Film pictures pretty generally and he told me that "His Royal Highness" was to be done over for a better climax—good idea.

* * *

Best Metro picture seen in months is "The Shell Game," with a strong cast and a good plot, not new, but well developed in the hands of Henry Kolker, Joseph Kilgour and Emmy Whelen. The house displayed keen interest all through, and it had an unexpected turn of events at the very close. George D. Baker has given something here to interest the most blase theatergoer. There are one or two slips, including mixed brand of nuts, but these are forgiven. Caught a glimpse of Charles Fang, erstwhile cook on the Olympic for the late Admiral Dewey. Then, too, the Biltmore rink in action was a good introduction and a young fan said that Henry Kolker skated better than he danced. All Back Bay theatergoers saw this at the Exeter last week and about the same ones went to the Fenway to see the Lincoln pictures being run weekly. How the kids howled over the Jury scene arrayed by young Abe, the birds and animals serving. What a human picture this is! It will be stronger, too, as time goes on, for Lincoln's memory will never fade.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and MARGARET I. MACDONALD

TO THE READERS OF THIS DEPARTMENT.

IT IS the wish of the Moving Picture World to serve the highest possible interests of the Educational moving picture. For this purpose it desires to come into intimate touch with ALL the readers of the Moving Picture Educator—the educational department of the World.

TO EVERY READER—Will you kindly write to the Moving Picture World expressing yourself as interested in the educational department, no matter in how small a degree. Please say if you are connected with a School or Church, Institution, College or Y. M. C. A. or any other organization. If a moving picture exhibitor alike interested, this means you also. If you have a large interest kindly express it, commend or criticize as you desire; state its help or its lack. If it supplies any need, say how you can be further aided in any way. We do not ask you to be brief, write as extensively as you desire. We want to know you and your desires, and to ask you to help us to make the EDUCATOR a reality in deed as in word.

Write at once: The Moving Picture Educator, Moving Picture World, 516 Fifth avenue, New York.

Interesting Educationals

Two Travel Subjects, Four Industrial, and One Scientific Subject.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

"The Valley of the Dordogne" (Pathe).

ANOTHER half-reel of the "Picturesque France" series, in tints. This follows the course of a beautiful river, which runs between mountains, past various old and modern towns and hamlets. Interesting architecture, bridges, goat herds and pastoral scenes generally are found in this entertaining subject.

"A Day in Honolulu" (Paramount-Bray).

This is the second of the Hawaiian series appearing in the Pictograph and will be found in the 112th release. It opens with views of the city of Honolulu taken from the edge of a cliff. From these views a good idea can also be had of the surrounding country with its luxuriant tropical growth. A pretty sunset scene is included which is partly explanatory of why this island is called the "paradise of the Pacific." There are also scenes showing the natives at work and at play. Distinctive types, dances and religious ceremonies are also noted.

"Making That Panama Hat" (Universal).

An unusually interesting industrial picture in which we see the women of Java, Dutch Indies, making Panama hats will be found in the 65th release of the Screen Magazine. These hats are made from the leaves of the stemless screw-pine from which the young, narrow leaves are stripped for the purpose. Boys and young girls are also employed in this industry, which can be plied in the great out-of-doors; and sometimes self-sacrificing sisters work so that their brothers may go to school. Closeups of these people at work serve to give the spectator a good idea of just how these useful and durable hats are made.

"The Manufacture of Window Glass" (James Ramsey).

An interesting illustration of how window glass is made is encompassed in this picture, which was recently exhibited on the program of the Rialto Theater, New York City. In it we are shown the mixing of the ingredients, the melting, and then the blowing of the glass into cylindrical form. This is an interesting process which is accomplished by the powerful lungs of strong men. Some interesting closeups of these men at work are shown in the picture. Then there is the flattening of the glass between rollers made for the purpose and finally the cutting of it into various sized panes.

"The Making of Russian Caviar" (Educational)

The manufacture of Russian caviar as illustrated in this picture gives an unusually clear idea of the industry. The opening scenes give an accurate idea of sturgeon fishing off the coast of Russia. Then we see the removal of the eggs from which caviar is made, and the pressing of them through sieves made for the purpose. From one huge sturgeon shown in the picture 200 pounds of roe was taken. The canning of the best grade caviar and the sacking of the low grade is also shown.

"The Birth of a Liberty Loan Bond" (Paramount-Bray).

The manner in which the Liberty Loan Bond is made is shown in the 112th release of Pictograph. First comes the engraving from the original, and from which duplicate originals are made to insure against any possibility of the slightest imperfection in the plates due to wear. The bonds are then printed on large sheets and cut apart. Each sheet is subjected to careful examination by experts so that no flaw goes by undetected. This subject is a timely and most patriotic one.

"Making a Newspaper" (Universal).

The fourth instalment of "Making a Newspaper," a series which has been appearing in the Screen Magazine, will be found in the 65th issue. In this number we see how the great presses turn out thousands of completed newspapers every hour. We learn among other things that when a roll of paper runs out no time is lost in putting another in its place. We also learn one of the more important things which is that the tons of paper that were previously wasted every year are now rescued and made useful by means of a new machine which deftly splices odd ends. The transportation of the papers to the circulation room and also to the newsboys and wagons waiting for them is also included.

"The Horse in Action" (Pathe).

A second half-reel instalment of this subject. This gives a further analysis of the horse in action. It shows various equines jumping hurdles. The movements are pictured eight times slower than normal, and some novel and surprising effects are obtained. The subject is certain to please.

Woman's Club Interested in Films

Civic Department of Elizabeth, N. J., Woman's Club Provides as Special Feature of Meeting Talk on Moving Pictures.

THE Woman's Club, of Elizabeth, N. J., like many other organizations of its kind, has its different departments and committees devoted to various deserving causes. Among these is a committee to which is entrusted the supervision of the moving picture film as it affects the town of Elizabeth. At a meeting of the Civic Department to which the latter belongs, held on the afternoon of March 14, the subject chosen for discussion was "Motion Picture Betterment." An address was given by Margaret I. MacDonald, of the editorial staff of the Moving Picture World, in which she covered briefly the evolution of the moving picture. Points made by Miss MacDonald were that the method of presentation of subjects on the screen regulates their appeal, that the moral standard of film productions is largely upheld by the personalities of the film players, that the "big idea" of the youth of our nation is idealized for them by their favorite screen players, their thoughts being biased in favor of heroic action through the heroism displayed in the characters of the people portrayed on the screen. The inadvisability of presenting sex problems on the screen was also touched upon, and the propaganda play which too often appears in a false guise and serves more as a financial asset to the producer than what the title would infer. The aid of the National Board of Review and also of the press, especially the Moving Picture World, in improving the standard of film production, was brought to the attention of the meeting. The advisability of forming an affiliated committee for better films to co-operate with the exhibitor was discussed when the speaker gave as her opinion that the moving picture today is more in need of supervision than censorship, and that the exchange man and not the exhibitor is the man most often at fault when programs fail to meet with the approval of the people. Another important point made during the afternoon was that considerable of the existing pessimism regarding the moving picture is created through the frequent ringing in of out-of-date material as fillers-in on programs or substitutes for promised subjects which fail to put in an appearance.

W. L. Brind Lectures With Film

Jersey City Club Enjoys Series of Educational Films, Including Zoological Subjects.

THE Jersey City club at Clinton and Crescent avenues, Jersey City, enjoyed on Thursday evening, March 14, an exhibition of films of educational and scientific character. These films belong to a collection with which W. L. Brind, well known in the film world and also in the field of zoological experiment and research work, is about to commence a lecture tour. Mr. Brind's talk on the subjects presented was a pleasing and instructional adjunct to the evening's entertainment.

The subjects covered during the evening were "The Fresh Water Aquarium," "Beautiful Goldfish," "My Friend, the Ant," "Denizens of the Deep," "All About Bees," "Aquatic Plant Life" and "Birds of the Oronoco." The first six subjects have already been reviewed in these columns and are of unusual interest; nor are the last two mentioned lacking in individual attractiveness. "Aquatic Plant Life" covers not only the various kinds of submarine growths, but also deals with plants which grow in and under bodies of fresh water. One of these plants placed under the microscope is found to have a circulatory system within its stem by which its juices are in constant circulation.

This series of films constitutes a good evening's entertainment, and we can readily recommend it as such. Information concerning the films and lecture can be had from W. L. Brind, 449 West 206th street, New York City.

Ida Tarbell in Interview

"Are Men Happier Than Women?" Answered in Universal Screen Magazine in Manner Which Inspires Thought.

THE DEBUT of the screen interview is about to take place, and having seen the first attempt at such a thing in No. 66 of the Universal Screen Magazine we will tell our readers a little about it. The interview takes the form of a story with a moral, as would be expected. Ida Tarbell is first introduced and then her interrogator, who puts the question, "Are Men Happier Than Women?" The answer is contained in a few brief episodes in the domestic life of a young couple showing the man going to business and working all day long at the same thing, with no variety whatsoever, but nevertheless working with a will and uncomplainingly. The woman performs her household duties, each of which is different, grumbling at her lot in spite of the fact that she can occasionally take an afternoon off to attend the matinee, while the man, so the picture tells us, can get an afternoon off to attend a baseball game only when his mother-in-law or some other "near relative" dies. And so the story of the woman's lack of realization of the freedom of her domestic existence against the slavery of that of the man who has no hope beyond his office desk is exemplified. The inspiration to be gained from the picture is for the woman who does not realize the privilege which is hers in providing sunlight and happiness in the home of the laborer.

The stories for these interviews are being supplied by Martha E. G. Anderson, and judging from the first of the series she is to be congratulated.

Coming to the Point

Visualization of the School Text Book More Nearly an Established Fact Than Ever Before—Lincoln & Parker Leads the Way.

WE ARE not going to tell any tales out of school, but are merely going to state that an interesting story about the Lincoln & Parker Company, producers of educational films and portable film projectors, is due for publication in the near future. It may not be out of the way to go so far as to say that they are soon to be counted among our New York producers. We would like, however, to tell our readers something about this progressive organization which may be of real use to them, and at least a matter of enlightenment. This is with regard to their manner of presenting educational films in schools. They have certain series of films for which they charge reasonable prices. A series of 60 reels in United States geography, for instance, costs in the neighborhood of $85. Other series such as Physiology and Hygiene, Domestic Science, Agriculture, World Geography, Nature Study, English Classics, Civics and Physics are to be procured in sets of from 25 to 40 reels each, and sent to schools using them as the reels are required.

An interesting point about the distribution of these films is that the Lincoln & Parker Company have solved the question of the use of the film in class-room work in this way: they send with each reel of film a pamphlet covering the subject which the reel illustrates. This also includes a list of questions on the subject as presented in the film which the teacher puts to the children after the reel is run. This method causes the children to concentrate more thoroughly and also inspires interest and a spirit of competition. They also learn to observe more closely; and the film method of teaching when possible certainly makes the lesson period more attractive.

We are much interested in this branch of the industry for which there are large possibilities. It might be well for educators to remember also that the portable machine manufactured by the Lincoln & Parker Company will accommodate a standard width film.

Quick Action by War M. P. Committee

Liberty Theaters in Training Camps to Exhibit Latest Productions One Week After First Run in Neighboring Towns.

AT A conference between Malcolm L. McBride, of the Federal Commission on Training Camp activities, and P. A. Powers, chairman of the War Camp Motion Picture Committee, held in New York on Wednesday, March 13, it was decided that a part of the time of the Liberty Theaters in the training camps should be set aside for motion picture entertainments at which the latest films should be shown. It is not intended that these entertainments shall conflict in any way with the exhibitions of the same pictures in the community outside the camps, as they will not be exhibited in the Liberty Theaters until after the first runs in the neighboring towns. Special rates are to be made for these camp shows. It is expected that the plan will be in operation within a week.

The plan is this: The managers of the Liberty Theaters will be placed in posession of the lists of pictures selected by the National Board of Review from the productions of the different companies, together with the addresses of the co-operating exchanges and the names of those in charge, and the special rates named by the co-operating companies. This will enable them to go to the exchanges and arrange for the pictures they wish. The War Camp Motion Picture Committee has sent a letter of instructions to the co-operating exchanges, and the Federal Commission on Training Camp Activities is sending to the managers of the Liberty Theaters one explaining the plan of the new service.

Newman Travelogue at Rivoli

Scenes in Hawaii Include Lepers' Island and Remarkable Views of Kilauea as Well as Interesting Types.

ONE OF the best enjoyed educational pictures of recent weeks was exhibited at the Rivoli Theater, New York City, commencing March 10. This was the first of a series of travelogues photographed by Newman and presented interesting and attractive scenes in Hawaii. The forbidden island of Molokai, behind whose rugged shores lepers under the supervision of the United States Government are segregated, is shown. A May Day scene where the children of Hawaii dance as do the children of our own land is interesting, and is followed up by closeups of types of children appearing at the festivities, including Portuguese, Chinese, Japanese, English, American, Scandinavian, Korean and various half-breed types. Then there are wonderful views of the crater of Kilauea, some of which have been taken in the interior and some of which have been taken outside of the rim and which show the boiling lava being thrown high in the air and congealing as it falls. The scenes in which the infantry and cavalry of Hawaii are shown in training and in review are also of special interest. These pictures give us probably the most accurate idea of modern Hawaii of any pictures of these islands that have been exhibited.

Color Films at 81st Street Theater

Douglass Natural Color Method Pleases Representative New York Audience.

DURING the early part of the week of March 10 a collection of color pictures made by means of the Douglass natural color method were exhibited at the 81st Street Theater, New York City. This collection included views of the various points of interest in the Yosemite National Park, a California Dahlia farm, and scenes at a bathing beach where gaily-dressed young women disported themselves. There were also closeups of Mary MacLean, Louise Huff and other screen favorites which exemplified the capacity of this method for recording accurate color values.

The audience was much pleased with these pictures and applauded the various numbers that seemed to demonstrate best the capacity of the Douglass color method.

Ditmars Series at Strand

Octopus, Devil Fish and Sea Turtle Give Fine Exhibition of Pugilistic Accomplishments in First of Series.

ONE OF the most interesting of zoological films which has recently been exhibited was seen at the Strand Theater, New York City, during the week of March 10. It constituted one reel of film and belonged to a series photographed by Raymond L. Ditmars, entitled "The Depths of the Sea." Closeups of the Devil Fish and of the Octopus are intensely interesting. These unlovely creatures are seen in deadly battle, after which one of them attacks a sea turtle and drags it to the very doors of its cave before being obliged to relinquish its hold. We are also privileged to see this same turtle feeding glutinously on small fish which it severs easily with the sharp edges of its jaws.

The next number of this series will deal with the electric fish, one of the most remarkable of sea freaks.

Educational Notes.

Official pictures of the American troops in action "at the front," as released under the authority of the Washington Bureau of Publicity through the Red Cross, may be obtained together with official French War Pictures through the Red Cross Bureau of Moving Pictures. Whatever patriotism may have been inspired hitherto by pictures from the war zone together with pictures of American preparations, these pictures of "Our Boys" going "Over the Top" in the land "somewhere in France" shown only as "Over There," these pictures will prove a thousand times more attractive than their predecessors. In the first series there is the first picture of wounded Americans being carried from the trenches to the ever ready assistance of the waiting Red Cross, whose omnipresent activities give a thrill of satisfaction to us at home for the self-denying efforts we have made to cause the Red Cross of America to be the greatest humanitarian agency in the world; everywhere where pictures are shown these patriotic pictures should be seen.

* * *

A correspondent writes:

"The Moving Picture World and Educator certainly does help me. How would I be able to know that I could obtain such and such a reel from such and such a concern on any particular educational topic I was searching for were it not for your paper and the pamphlets it issues? You may say for me that the educational department of the Moving Picture World is for this work what Pools Index is for the magazines. This comparison should tell the full story for we know what this famous Index is for the searcher in current literature."

Semi-Annual Catalogue Now Ready

Third Edition of Half-Yearly List of Educational and Selected Films Available for Distribution.

The third edition of the semi-annual catalogue of Educational and Selected Films issued by the Moving Picture World is now available to applicants at the rate of 20 cents per copy. This catalogue covers the period between July 1 and December 31, 1917, and contains beside a full classified list of educational pictures, the names of works of literature that have been adapted to the screen during this period, and of a number of pictures of mixed character suggested for the family group, children's matinees and Sunday exhibitions, approximately 1,500 different pictures.

Attention is also called to the fact that the Moving Picture World publishes in its columns a similar list of films every three months with a view to aiding the exhibitor and others interested in the presentation of high class moving picture programs.

E. H. DUFFY IS BADLY HURT.

E. H. Duffy, manager of the Chicago branch of the Mutual Film Corporation, was severely injured in an automobile collision at Lawrence and Western avenues, Chicago, Saturday night, March 16. The taxicab in which Mr. Duffy was riding was smashed into by another taxicab and badly damaged. He was taken to Ravenswood hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from a broken collar bone and painfully lacerated hip.

Larry Trimble Visits Spokane

May Produce for Washington Motion Picture Company—Has Praise for New Studio at Minnehaha Park.

THERE arrived in Spokane March 13 from New York to confer with the Washington Motion Picture corporation, Lawrence ("Larry") Trimble. The well-known director was accompanied by Philip E. Rosen, a recognized expert in photography and electrical devices.

"The main thing that attracted me to Spokane was what I have learned from C. J. Ward, Tyrone Power and many of my friends who have traveled through this country," said Mr. Trimble. "Since my return from England, a litle over a year ago, these friends have urged me to come out to this part of the world.

"I have seen the principal studios in America and Europe and have directed in many of them, but I was amazed to see the extremely well-laid plans of the new plant of the Washington Motion Picture corporation here in Spokane. It is not designed for temporary use, but has been so constructed that instead of being held to limitations of a small enterprise it can at almost a moment's notice accommodate anywhere from three to six companies working at the same time."

"The arrival here of as prominent a director of moving pictures as Larry Trimble is another big accomplishment in putting Spokane on the map of the motion picture world," said C. J. Ward, general manager of the Washington. "That Mr. Trimble has come here at our invitation confirms the statement that our corporation proposes to do big things in this business. Following further conference with Mr. Trimble we will be ready to make important announcements in regard to our stories, leading women and the cast that will support our star, Mr. Power, in the feature photoplays to be produced at Minnehaha Park by the Washington Motion Picture corporation."

The great outdoor stage at Minnehaha Park has been completed and the stage floor is receiving its coat of waterproofing paint. The other buildings will be painted a steel gray to correspond with the exterior of the new building recently finished and which is now receiving its final coat of paint.

A miniature motion picture theater for testing out films has been located in the laboratory of the manufacturing building in close proximity to the chemical and developing departments. Work will start in a few days on a large concrete vault with steel doors and fireproof construction.

Spokane's Commercial Film Starts Business.

With its capital stock all paid in and none offered for sale, its equipment purchased and installed and chemical supplies in stock the Allied Film Corporation of Spokane has started business. Its offices are at Washington and First. The equipment now ready for use includes a spacious darkroom and laboratory, with winding reels, developing and fixing tanks, and all required facilities, to include a projection machine, which is to be installed shortly.

The company has received eight large studio arc lights which will supply light in any building for interior scenes and in making pictures of industries. "We are not contemplating making dramatic pictures," said Charles Dreyer, the manager. "Our field is limited entirely to commercial work, news and educational features. For this class of picture there is a national demand and we already have a market for a quantity of this work.

"In the commercial line we will make motion pictures for various corporations, for advertising purposes, and have contracts for several such features."

Mr. Dreyer has been cameraman for some of the largest producers and is also an expert in laboratory work. His specialty in recent years has been scenic features.

RUTH ROLAND GOES WITH DOUGLAS FILM.

Ruth Roland has been engaged as the feature for the Douglas Natural Color Film Corporation. Miss Roland has left Los Angeles for San Raphael, where she will commence work on her first picture immediately. She will wear many beautiful and expensive creations.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Business Graphs.

EVIDENTLY Philip Wright Whitcomb, of the London Triangle, has been giving his attention to graphs lately, for we clip from one of the most recent issues of the Triangle booklets to come over here a suggestion that, to quote Mr. Whitcomb's own words, "is so simple that it almost looks foolish." Possibly to some it still will look foolish, but read the suggestion:

> On a big sheet of paper rule little squares, one for each hour that your theater will be open during the next four weeks. Black in the squares when your theater is generally all full. Then during the next four weeks forget these black squares and give every bit of your attention to ways of filling the others. Mark progress on the paper.

If you read System or publications following the lines of that leader, you know that graphs are responsible for the advance of Big Business, and the graphic presentation of facts will work just as well with the small business. The main point is to get at your facts. Probably some Exhibitors cannot tell positively just what their slack hours are. In that case, give four weeks to finding out. You probably will not have to rule up paper. Your stationer can get you "scale paper" in various rulings. He may know it better as "quadrille ruled" paper, but tell him you want it with quarter inch rulings, and fairly large sheets. Suppose that your capacity is three hundred. Then let each third of a square represent one hundred people. You do not have to be painfully exact, but be roughly correct. Your house opens at two thirty. It is, of course, empty. By three o'clock you have sold two hundred tickets. Black in two-thirds of the first square. At four o'clock count again. If you run on the straight show system, you will not need to do this if you empty your house at the end of each performance, but if you run the feature twice in the afternoon and twice in the evening, then you will find it useful to know how many come for the first showing and what proportion of the matinee receipts come from the second showing. In a few weeks you will have an absolute history of your business that can be read at a glance.

Then commence to figure. Monday you get more at the early than the late matinee. Why? See if you can find a reason. Perhaps the out of town people come in to shop and drop in to see the show after their morning in the stores, but the town people are busy with washing, and do not come in for the second show. There is no use trying to coax them from the tubs. Perhaps you can repeat the shorts and by putting the feature on a little late get the school crowd with a special after-schoool matinee. In the same way you can take the other peaks and depressions, one after the other, and can come gradually to the point where you are doing a maximum business practically all of the time.

Your bookkeeping, no matter how elaborate, cannot show you all the facts at a glance. Only a graph will do that. Start now to make a set of graphs. Make them day by day and keep them. Note on the sheet the weather, the attraction, the prices and the opposition. In time you can know your house so well that you can feel a slump in business coming and head it off. One of the largest concerns at Coney Island has a record of the business for every hour of every business day for more than twenty years back. Every cash register is read every hour and entered up, and the dishonest cashier stands no chance at all. He must live up to his "book," or he is watched and caught. You have less to fear from dishonesty, but unless you know your theater's book you cannot watch its business intelligently.

Mr. Whitcomb has given us some capital ideas, including the form for our new Advertising Aids department, but no idea he has brought out is more valuable to the man who will faithfully follow it than this graph system.

Go to Hill.

The Hill theater, Newark, N. J., is working a variation of the Raffles stunt. All you have to do is to remark to total strangers "Go to the Hill often. I tell my friends and neighbors about the Hill. Why don't you?" If you happen to have the good fortune to address "Mr. Hill" or his sister, "Miss Hill," you get a new five dollar bill. The house has rearranged its program to start with Wednesday and stop Monday, bringing the Garfield Day to the bottom of the program. The house gives eleven reels for five and ten cents and pays the war tax out of that. It seems to be a Newark habit, but it is a vicious thing to ask a man to sit through two five-reel features and keep his interest in the pictures.

Toronto Advertising.

Toronto is one of the best show towns of Canada and it is interesting to look over the advertising of the leading houses. A friend sends in an issue of the Sunday World, which issues a theatrical section of eight pages. The picture advertising is relegated to the three rear pages, the drama and vaudeville houses taking precedence. It would seem that if a Toronto Exhibitor has the price of a cut he wants to get it as black as he possibly can. The advertisement of the Strand is typical of several. It splits the week and shows either half on the page of an outline book. Using nothing smaller than eighteen point (approximately) the lettering shows up fairly well, but the paper does not give a very good impression, and the result is more a white against a gray background, and a ... ...ould have a very black ground if the letters are to show up properly. The Regent also uses reverse cuts, but this backs against the cut shown. The Allen uses a regular Paramount layout mat in which an excess of space is given to a rather meaningless cut of Miss Pickford in The Little Princess; the one in which she stands beside a dog. With the added matter the cut drops three tens. The Regent takes five nines and the Strand also uses five nines to get a narrow margin of white.

The Park and Doric, evidently sister houses, each gets three and a half inches single column type. The ads are rather poorly set, the top bank being too black. There is not a line of light face in the entire space. It is all bold and as a result the display lines are detracted from by the blackness of the rest of the type. Better composition work would give a better display with the same space and copy. The Madison does better with two sixes. Once more the printer sets it all in bold face, but there is too much space to permit him to do his worst, and the house gets a fairly good showing. At that, the lower division is too evenly spaced. The names of the two stars should be slightly drawn away from the title of the play, and the reduction by six points in each name would have given a little more open layout. "Big and black" seems to be the slogan of the Toronto printer. It's wrong.

About the best of the type displays is that shown in the Oakwood shown in the strip reproduction, which also offers the Rialto and

Shea's Hippodrome. The Hipp is about the best of the reverse cuts, but it is seldom that a reverse cut can be made to work as well in the newspaper as a straight line cut or line and halftone. The Hip should send to the Buffalo house for some examples of Harold B. Franklin's work. With nothing like the same space, he gains a much more valuable display. It is seldom that black cuts give good results and this is particularly true in the case of amusement advertising where the gloomy black is scarcely calculated to attract the man who is looking for entertainment and not for an undertaker. Take those cuts with the same amount of white space and with black lettering and the results will be much better, but the trouble is that when an advertiser uses type he loads too much into his space instead of realizing that sometimes white space means more than black ink.

Goldwyn Advertising.

Some interesting samples are sent in by the publicity department of Goldwyn. We regret that we are not able to use them all, for the average is high. Three samples represent the advertising of as many Goldwyns by the Strand, Seattle. All three are good, but that for Thais is so much superior to the others that it does not stand in the same class. Here the entire space is devoted to the play, with an appropriate reference to the orchestra. This permits the open display, and a lack of elaborate explanation drives in the two bits of description, which are held together by the diagonal lines. This is four fifteens against three twelves for the others, but the same general effect could be achieved in the other displays with less text. This could also be done with the same copy set in smaller type in part. Printers will not realize the display value of white space. They must be argued with and educated.

Another pair of advertisements show the efforts of two houses to play up For the Freedom of the World. In the display on the right the excessive use of all capital lines is almost fatal in the side panels.

At best there is too much to read, and this being the case, no one will labor through twenty lines of all-caps. The display on the left tells almost as much, and certainly tells all that is necessary to sell the play. The title is much better played up with the emphasis upon the

"FOR THE FREEDOM of the WORLD"
Showing All This Week at the Temple
"The Photoplay of the Hour"
IRA M. LOWRY PRESENTS
FOR THE FREEDOM OF THE WORLD
A PATRIOTIC LOVE STORY
SEE
GRAND OPERA HOUSE 3 DAYS STARTING SUNDAY
"ROARING LIONS AND WEDDING BELLS"
WILLIAM S. HART

two words that mean something. These make the first impression before the title is picked up as a whole. Probably the art work was more expensive than that on the other advertisement, but the results will more than pay the difference between the two bills.

The last example shows two cuts practically the same, but not quite They are the work of Mrs. Joseph Grossman, whose husband runs the Standard in Cleveland. It takes but a glance to see that one of these cuts is much more distinct than the other. It is not that it is better printed, but because a few broad lines of black throw the profile of the star into high relief instead of letting it sink into the tint of the ground. The hair has also been touched up a little and high lights added to the dress. It is about an even break between the two types of lettering. Both are decidedly good, but those few splashes of black make all the difference in the matter of attraction. It pays to give especial attention to the work of the artist in these little matters and it must be remembered that you are to judge by the effect in print and not on the drawing. You must learn to know about how much of the value you will lose in reproduction or you are apt to find yourself with a poor cut. We do not know whether or not Mrs. Grossman uses it, but it is well to remember that art stores can supply you with paper ready stippled or lined, to use as backgrounds. This is printed on a chalk surface. To get solid black, you paint it in, and to get white you erase these parts with a knife. The paper is rather expensive, but it will save considerable time in getting up work.

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be indorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Operators' Notice.

I am about to make a trip as follows:

Starting April 5 or 6 to Chicago via Albany, Schenectady, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Toronto, Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit and Battle Creek, returning via Ft. Wayne, Bucyrus, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Trenton in the interests of the industry. It will be a pleasure to stop in any city on this route and address operators and exhibitors. My subject will be "The presentation of the silent drama upon the screen," which will include all things allied with projection, but will deal particularly with the terrific waste everywhere present in the practice of today.

It will be necessary that I hear either from operators or exhibitors at once if they desire me to stop. I will make short side trips from the proposed route if necessary. All I ask is a representative meeting of operators and exhibitors. There will be no expense to you except such as may be incurred in making the local arrangements.

F. H. RICHARDSON.

From the Far Northland.

W. B. Allen, Edmonton, Alberta, which is about 400 miles north of the northern boundary of Montana, sends in one of the most attractively gotten up banquet-ball programs I have seen to date, and speaks thusly:

> Well, Brother Richardson, quite some time has elapsed since your visit to this section of the misused world, and naturally things have changed considerably. Hence, thought you might like to know just what the boys are doing, or at least that we are still alive. Notwithstanding the lack of letters from us, Local 360 is very muchly alive, with no intention of crawling into that much talked of hole. The boys have not yet ceased talking about the lecture on projection by one F. H. Richardson; also all hope to see the day when we may hear another. I tell you, if there were a few more Richardson's scattered around the country things would be very much better. All the operators and most of our managers have taken advantage of the tips you gave us, but there is one manager who still insists upon decorating the side walls of his theater with those blinding wall bracket lamps and highly illuminated signs; also a gilt frame surrounds his screen, all of which improves his screen result—I don't think. However, that is his business (Not so! It should also be the business of the Board of Health of your city, since those conditions make for eye strain and permanent injury to the collective eyesight of the community; also it makes for unpopularity of the whole industry, hence is the business of all of us.—Ed.) and not mine. With regard to operating rooms and equipment, I do believe we have as good a line-up as any city of our size, and better than many larger ones. All our theaters use two motor driven projectors and D. C. through G. E. rectifiers, rotary converters, ordinary inter-pole generators or Hallberg motor generator. In all but one case the pictures are well lighted. Projection, as a whole, averages good. Most screens are metallic surface, semi-reflective type, though we also have the canvas and plaster. They are all black bordered, except the one before named as gilt bordered. The theaters all use Power's 6-A or 6-B, and I hear no kick whatsoever on their performance.
>
> I am in the Monarch, projecting a 17-foot picture at 131 feet, with two 6-A's, pulling 55 amperes through a Hallberg 30-70 ampere motor generator, which, by the way, is one little bird of a machine. It has put in 4,000 hours on a six-day-a-week, 12-hour-per-day run, without having five cents expended in repairs. Even the brushes have not been renewed. I consider that as very good. What do you think? (Very good indeed. 333 twelve-hour days at 55 ampere output, which must mean a heavy overload jolt at least five times an hour, without any repairs is an excellent performance. Nothing phenomenal, you understand, but very good just the same.—Ed.) Also we have a G. E. Rectifier, its tube painted black, for emergency. It also is in the O. K. column. I have discarded the ballast resistance on the control panel of the Hallberg, and have installed some heavier, more substantial resistance made from heavy German silver composition wire. These coils have a little less resistance than the original, and the way I have it arranged allows of perfect change-over. I also have a dissolving device on the projectors, manipulated by a lever, which works like a charm. On top of upper magazine I have a fool-proof signal; also a glass in the door (should be glass with wire in it.—Ed.), also another glass in top of magazine with a light over it, which allows me to see what is going on in the magazine at all times. My revolving shutter carries a 70° main blade, and is nine inches from the lens, which is a Gundlach-Manhattan 1 7/16 inch effective diameter, and 7-inch E. F. (Too small for light conservation. 1¾ or 2-inch would be better.—Ed.). My lamphouse I have mutilated terribly by removing the whole top, including screen, replacing same with a hood 5 inches high, fitting lamphouse top snugly and connecting to outer air with 4-inch stove pipe. (Wish more operators would practice that kind of "mutilation."—Ed.) My re-wind is what we call a "Richardson ten-minutes-to-the-thousand-foot rewind." It is driven by ¼ H. P. induction motor. There is heavy tension on the reel. Intend to use friend Marshall's automatic switch. It is a good idea. Thanks, friend M. Call again! Well, brother, I have covered more space than I intended, and haven't said all I intended, but will sit down and give some one else the floor. First, however, don't forget to republish the questions. There are a lot of the men just waiting for them and saying nothing. Personally, I would like to see you start a series of questions on optics, starting at the foot of the ladder, thus giving us greenhorns a chance to catch up. Will you supply address of publisher of "Optic Projection." Would like to get a copy. Hope this finds you well and working hard.

As to your last remark, why I am quite well, and here was yesterday's go-round, which is fairly typical, except that I do usually get to bed earlier, or would you call it later? Hoisted my manly form out of bed at 8:30 a. m. Draped the scenery on my person, removed one day's growth of stubble from friend chin, partook of the morning repast, answered God knows how many phone calls, wrote six or seven letters and a cuppla pages of Mss., boarded a B. R. T. (Brooklyn Rotten Transit) train, and met committee from Local 306 at Municipal Building in Manhattan to arrange for permits to use 400 amperes of current for the Grand Ball, February 14. Called on manufacturers of an acid intended to stop dust from forming on cement floors. Back home for lunch. Wrote letters and Mss. Went twelve miles to West 23rd street to witness demonstration of new gasoline electric generating set for Mazda lamp at 5 p. m. Back home at seven. More writing until nine. Layed down 9 to 11. Up at 11. Ate lunch and went 15 miles to headquarters of Local Union 306 to meeting of ball committee. Through committee meeting 3 a. m. Home and in bed at 4:30 a. m. Nothing to do till tomorrow.

And there you are. Wish nothing more upon me, friend Allen, or I'll pull Pikes Peak up by the roots and bang you over the bean with it! Your letter is interesting. It shows progressiveness and up-to-datedness. Well do I remember the men of your far northland city; also I would like to meet you all again. The manager who has the gilt border, side lights, etc., is simply defying all rules of modern practice. But I know a man in Iowa right now who insists on splitting out rails and making rail fences, because his father did it. He is of the type who never learn or progress. This manager doubtless claims it is no one's business how he does things. "It is MY theater," I fancy I hear him say. Yes, that is a fact. Also my home is MY own, but if I burned it down I would be jailed! Why? Why, because such an act would endanger public safety. Well, friend manager, your gilt border is endangering the popularity of the industry by rendering less valuable to the public those performances you give in your theater; also it and your side lights are injuring the eyes of the theater going public of your city. You are intrusted with the art of very great artists, whose reputation depend upon what the public sees upon the screen. If your screen result is unnecessarily marred you have worked a personal injury to every one of the artists (actors) without even the shadow of an excuse, except your own stubbornness in refusing to conform to accepted, modern practice in matters of this kind. You are not, in any right sense, a free agent, friend manager. You owe a duty in many directions, and your very act in accepting the management of a theater, be it large or small, automatically carries with it an acceptance of the responsibility attached. Side lights are bad; also there is no earthly excuse for them in or under any possible circumstances. The same thing can be done in a far better way. Light colors or gilt right up against the picture is an abomination. Better paint that arch dead black, friend manager. It will be better for you, for your operator, for the producing companies, and for your own audience. My very best to the men of Edmonton. We are in the Eskimo class ourselves this winter. Glad to hear from you again, Brother Allen. We'll see about the questions, but don't see how I can find room for them. How do you like that 10 minutes-to-rewind stunt?

A Daisy.

Bert Martin, Castle Gate, Utah, writes as follows:

> The fuel company (a mining company for which he works, as I understand it.—Ed.) has two new halls which will not open until next month; one at Castle Gate and one at Sunnyside. A third will be built at Clear Creek the coming summer. The operating rooms are built after your own idea. I was asked to supply plans for same and just copied your idea from the Handbook. And believe me, they are daisies, both of 'em. All concrete, outside and in—all the comforts of home. It will be a pleasure to project pictures from such rooms as these. Throw is 75 feet. They made a bull in the screen end of the house which will limit the picture size to 7.5 feet high. Stage opening should and might have been 1.5 feet higher. Dimensions of halls are 60 x 120 feet. One has a 20 and the other an 18 foot ceiling. No shortage of coal here and we are now getting all the empty cars we can fill. Some miners are earning more than $300.00 per month. Even boys are earning what was big money for a skilled man just a short time ago. Had our first snow January 7—never known to be so late before.

You must have shipped all your winter weather over here. We're having just one danged snow storm after another, and when it isn't snow it's the sleetiest kind of sleet. Yes, a ten foot picture (7.5 high is 10 feet wide) is a bit small for a hall of that length. However, there will be advantages. Defects in film, including rain, won't show so badly and there will be decidedly less tendency to flicker at a given light intensity. But the long focal length lens required for a ten foot picture at 75 feet makes for some light loss. This, however, is more than compensated for, so far as screen brilliancy is concerned, by reduced screen area. Glad you like the operating room plans. They represent what an operating room ought to be. If more architects used them there would be fewer inconvenient, freakish operating rooms. It costs but little more to build the operating room right than to build it wrong. I made a couple of trips down from P. V. Junction to Castle Gate when I was on the Salt Lake, P. V. Division of the D. & R. G., away back, about 1890.

Outrageous Current Charge.

A small-town exhibitor in Iowa is paying what seems to be pretty nearly a record charge per k. w. He says:

> Page 236, Jan. 12 issue, under heading, "Serious Mistake," brings up a question I have had in mind for some time, viz.: We are using 110 volt a. c. through two old rheostats, the amperage capacity of which is to me unknown, nor have we any means of measuring the amperage at the arc. Throw is 65 feet and we get a good light when carbons burn right, which is not always the case. After all, though, a. c. is very unsatisfactory for projection purposes, but with business suffering under war conditions I do not feel we are justified in making an expensive installation, such as a motor generator set. Have been advised to put in an economizer, which it is claimed will steady the current and, when current is taken on meter basis, reduce the monthly charge. We get current from the Malvern Light and Power Co., which is a part of a large corporation operating in western Iowa. When we took hold of the show its flat rate was $20 per month, running six days per week. We have gradually reduced to five, four, and then three days, per week, the latter only temporarily during the severe weather we are having. We are putting on the best pictures we can get. Our patronage (a limited one) demands less shows per week, but we get the best possible pictures, making the shows we do give really worth while. Have had the matter of running only half time up with the light company, but don't seem to get very far. They have never complained of the amount of current we have used under any condition, hence could not be losing money even on the six-day run. But they will make no reduction when only half as much power is used. In order to give you an idea I attach five of our monthly bills. Rates have been changed from 15 to 17 and from 9 to 11 on house and store patronage, although they make a 4½-cent rate for pumping water for the city, and for some electric stoves they make a 4-cent rate. Looks to me like the whole structure is built on the theory, "what the traffic will stand." I made one error: Our rate is $20 per month for eight and $25 per month for four months—$250 per year. Their claim is that they must build to take care of maximum consumption, should it at any time all come on at once, hence must have interest on this over-plus of equipment. Would prefer my name be not used. Think this matter will interest very many small-town men similarly situated.

An average of the bills sent, which in each case give K. W. consumption (though, if there is no meter, I do not see how they got it), is 14½ cents per K. W. The highest bills figure out 17¾ cents per K. W., which is pretty nearly a record, so far as I know. The lowest is 11 cents. What the light company claims as to necessity for maximum power house machinery and line installation is quite true. That is a well known and recognized principle as applied to electric charges. But it by no means follows that the consumer who contracts for a given service and afterward reduces its consumption by one half, or by any other material percentage, should be or can justly be charged the full sum as for its former maximum consumption. Such a proposition would be utterly ridiculous and nonsensical. It is a well recognized principle in the basing of charges for electric service that the large, steady consumer (as your city pumping) shall be given a very low rate; also current for stoves usually enjoys a comparatively low rate. House and store and theater lighting is relatively high for this reason: suppose a house to have 15 40-watt incandescent light, requiring a total of 600 watts. Now these lights may not all be burning at one time once in six months, but the company must, nevertheless, be able to carry them all at any time. As a matter of fact more than one-third of them will seldom be in use at one time, the power house equipment and transportation lines for the rest of that capacity remaining idle. It is right that this kind of installation should pay a reasonably increased rate as against an installation which uses current in constant amount for twelve or 24 hours every day in the month. Do you get the idea? But this is easily carried to excess either way, and your company is taking an unreasonable stand in your case. Either their charge was too low or is now too high, and I can conceive no circumstances under which a large power company would be justified in charging 17¾ cents per K. W. I would suggest that you tell Mr. Company Manager that unless he gives you a meter and a rate not in excess of 12 cents you will install a Universal isolated plant of your own. You can do it (See Universal Adv., page 431, January 19 issue), and produce your own d. c. at saving enough to pay good interest on the investment. If your light company sees that you mean business it will most likely be willing to listen to reason. By installing an economizer you will effect a large saving in wattage as against rheostats. Would strongly advise that you remit $4.00 for a handbook and study up on these matters. Information on economizer and rheostats alone should be worth the price of the book to you.

Lenses Little Understood.

Harry Miller, Norwich, Conn., orders question booklets and writes an interesting letter as follows:

> Have been following the lens matters in the department and have found that in the great majority of cases the practical operation of the lens system is but little understood. Taken from the same viewpoint as the stereopticon, the ideal condenser would be one a little larger in diameter than the size of the film picture, which would mean 1½" diameter. For stereopticon projection the condenser must have diameter sufficient to cover the slide opening, and 4.5" is as small as can be used successfully. And now as to the projection lens: There are many different types, each having certain defects, the anastigmat being more free from them than any of the others. There are spectacle, single meniscus, single achromatic, rapid rectilinear and anastigmat. The last named is mostly used where extreme sharpness is required. Its chief fault is an inclination to show flare spots, due to the number of its surfaces setting up disposition to excessive reflection. But the main purpose of my letter is to explain what the various types of lenses really are. The spectacle lens is a double convex piece of glass, similar to a pocket magnifying glass. (Can't see it, Brother Miller. (My own spectacle lenses are meniscus—concave on one side and convex on the other.—Ed.). The single meniscus is a concavo-convex lens, with different radi of curvature on either side. It has all defects, but gives a soft, pleasing definition, and for this reason is much used by advanced (I don't call those out-of-focusers advanced; I call 'em plain nuts.—Ed.) pictorial photographers; also they are used in many of the leading studios. The single acromatic lens consists of two pieces of glass cemented together, so made that the green, red and yellow rays are brought to a focus at about the same point as the violet. This lens is also partially corrected for spherical aberration, but has all the other faults, except that it seldom shows flare. Some lenses of this type cost in the neighborhood of $40.00 (In normal times, I presume you mean.—Ed.). The rapid rectilinear consists of two achromatic lenses mounted the same as ordinary projection lenses. They are corrected for chromatic and spherical aberration (only partially for chromatic.—Ed.) and for distortion, but have curvature of field and anastigmatism; also are apt to show flare. The true anastigmat is corrected for all optical errors, but is apt to show flare. It is impossible to correct all errors absolutely. The result of optical lens error is to cause the image of a point to appear as a circle. This circle is known as the circle of confusion. The best possible correction, and the one regarded as ideal, is to reduce this circle of confusion to 1/200 of an inch in diameter. There are two other types of lenses, viz.: the periscopic, consisting of two single meniscus lenses, mounted after the fashion of the rapid rectilinear, which gives microscopic definition over a small angle, but requires a long focal length as compared to plate area, and the apochromat, which is the highest type of anastigmat (Apochromatic means without aberration.—Ed.) Neither of these two types is met with today, except in process or microscopic work. Below is a table of types of lens and their speed at which they give sharp definition, the same being taken from the book on photography, by Paul Anderson. Spectacle and meniscus lenses F 16, Single Achromatic F 11, Rapid Rectilinear F 8 to F 11, Anastigmat varies from F 4 to F 6.8. All this has been written from the standpoint of the pictorial photographer, but one who is also an operator, hence is able to understand many things which puzzle the average operator. Now it has always been my idea, and the idea is a practical one, too, as is proven by its use in camera lenses of some types, that projection anastigmat lenses of F 7 opening, fitted with an iris diaphragm so arranged that it could be set from the outside by the operator, would be a big improvement on present lenses. Such a lens, made in diameters such as are in use today, would probably cost between $50.00 and $75.00; possibly more. Given the demand, the lenses could be had. The real trouble would be to induce managers to put up the price. Some would, but probably the great majority would not. Many thanks to you for the help the department and Handbooks have given me. I had all three editions, but now the first two are entirely worn out.

I have printed this largely to aid discussion in lens matters. Frankly I do not myself know very much about lenses of different types, except as to those actually used in projection. As to the adjustable diaphragm, why, I am decidedly in favor of it and have already advocated something of the sort in the department on several occasions. The new thing is Brother Miller's proposal of an F 7 diameter. Seems to me that is very muchly something else again. "F 7" means a diameter of 1/7th of the focal length of the lens. For a four inch E. F. lens it would mean only a $4 \div 7 = .57$ of an inch diameter and for an 8 inch E. F. lens the diameter would be only two inches. My own suggestion would be what is commonly referred to as a "half-size" lens, with such a diaphragm as Miller suggests. As before remarked, I am merely printing this letter to bring out discussion. Friend Miller seems to me to be rather close to wrong in several points, though his error consists considerably in what he did not say rather than what he has said. I think very likely Brother Deutch, Poughkeepsie, will attend to Friend Miller's dropped stitches.

Substitute for Arc Lamp.

J. Edwin Walker, manager Strand theater, Charlottesville, Va., says:

> We would like to ask what is the best substitute for the carbon lamp? Do you regard the new Mazda lamp as satisfactory for perfect projection?

I do not. Perfect projection of a picture of theatrical size (12 feet or more wide) calls for a very powerful, very penetrating light, in order that the finer shades of photography may be brought out in its full value. Much of this is lost with an illuminant less powerful than a high amperage arc lamp, handled by a competent projectionist who knows how to get and make use of the full value of the light such a light source provides.

And right there is the "rub." Given a careful, competent projectionist and 25 amperes of d. c. or 50 amperes of a. c. the arc lamp will give better results than the Mazda can possibly accomplish at the present stage in its development. The fact is, however, that a large number of projectionists (operators) are either downright incompetent, of mediocre ability, careless or just plain lazy, and this very materially alters the situation. Such a man will not utilize the full value of the light source at his disposal. He will most likely have an inefficient optical system, or an efficient optical system inefficiently arranged, hence will be wasting a large proportion of the light and have but weak screen illumination. Or he will have recurring discoloration on the screen, or "ghosts." In short, while he has the means for brilliant, even, steady screen illumination, he does not know how to, or is too careless to or lazy to make proper use of it, and under these conditions the Mazda will improve the general screen result.

To sum up: If you have a competent, wideawake, careful projectionist, and are able to use 25 or more amperes d. c. or 50 or more amperes a. c., then my advice is: stick to your arc lamp. It will cost you somewhat more, but you will get it back, with good interest, at the box office. On the other hand, if you cannot have such a projectionist, or if your a. c. is less than 60 cycle, or you cannot use 25 amperes d. c. or 50 amperes a. c., or if your supply voltage fluctuates largely, than get a Mazda and a good voltage regulator. You will then have a comparatively weak illuminant, but it will be steady, without discoloration or variation in the light. But let me warn you: Get an automatic voltage regulator, and make its seller guarantee such automatic regulation to be within .5 of an ampere either way from normal, else your lamp replacement bill will probably be very high.

Of What Use?

B. Ludisher, whose suggestion for change-over sign I printed and replied to in February 9 isue, refuses to sit down, darn 'im. After I had carefully put him out the front door he comes trotting in the back with the suggestion that when there is no sub-title at the posterior (get that, it's music) of a reel of film he just winds back until he reaches one and tacks the remaining film onto the next reel. Says, anyhow, it's better than punch marks, and asks why I don't start a league against punch marks.

Don't take any large amount of stock in leagues of that sort, brother. If a man won't do right without belonging to a league, he won't do right simply because he does belong to one. Your suggestion of fining each member who offended by punching films in the sum of one dollar brought a smile. In the firstly place I'd have to maintain a detective bureau to find out which particular member did the damage, then I would need a strong-arm band to do the collecting. Your league idea would be all right, friend Ludescher, if it were not for the fact that it won't work. Outside of that it is a peach. Yours truly has an abundance of work and trouble without starting any of those league things. The sub-title idea is, of course, very much better than nothing; but I still maintain that the only really feasible plan is the incorporation of the change-over signal in the negative film itself or the invention of a competent, cheap mechanical or electrical signal.

Comes Back.

I am told that my old friend W. G. Woods, who for years led the operators of San Francisco, but who some four or five years ago dropped out of active work, has been elected business agent of the San Francisco local. If this is true I am indeed glad to know it, for Woods is a good man. Just what has become of former Business Agent Dolliver we do not positively know. The rumor is, however, that he has been drafted into a larger field by the I. A. If he has, I will be more considerate than has he, and say that I am glad of his advancement, for Dolliver also is a good man. In fact there are many men of more than ordinary ability in the San Francisco local.

My congratulations to Brother Woods. He is one of the old, reliable wheel horses. Local 162 is to be congratulated upon his re-entry into the active field.

What It Meant.

In January 26 issue I printed a clipping from a French paper asking for a translation. Several have arrived, the first being from John Nagle, New York City. The item, it seems, reads: "The celebrated motion picture expert, Mr. Richardson, is visiting all principal cities in the United States, lecturing on better projection. Everywhere he is received with high acclamation, which proves that great interest is attached to this question. Mr. Richardson would do well to come to France."

Um, not so bad, after all. Really I had an ingrowing idea that the French editor might be taking my name in vain, but it seems he was handing me a verbal bouquet. Friend Nagel adds the following footnote to his translation: "You see, old friend (I call you so because your book and department is my friend), pretty soon you will be known all the world over. Well, you well deserve it." For which kind thought I sincerely thank you, Brother Nagel.

Extension Shaft.

Saul S. Harris, General Manager Gem Amusement Company, Little Rock, Ark., writes asking whether or not the Nicholas Power Company puts out an extension shutter shaft long enough to allow placing the shutter blade seven inches from the end of the standard shutter shaft, so that the blade may cut the light ray at the dissolving point.

Yes, the Power Company supplies such a shaft, where desired, at an extra charge. I would again call attention, however, to the fact that merely setting the shutter at the dissolving point gives no advantage. It is the fact that at this point a main blade of minimum width may be used, which constitutes the advantage. If your shutter gives no travel ghost at any other distance from the lens, then you can move it out to the dissolving point of the light ray and trim off some of the metal and still have no travel ghost. Use a pasteboard pattern when trimming the blade down, substituting it for the regular metal blade. Trim down until you get just a faint travel ghost both ways, and then trim down the main blade of the metal shutter until it is just a little wider than the pasteboard pattern. Again I would call the attention of machine manufacturers to the necessity for and entire practicability of an adjustable blade shutter.

Spot Lamp Operation.

A. B. Doepke, Chicago, Illinois, writes:

> I would appreciate information necessary to properly operate a spotlight for theater work. Our throw is approximately 70 feet, at an angle of about 20 degrees. We will use 110 volt a. c. (1) Will a spotlight operate satisfactorily with this current? (2) What size and kind of carbons would you recommend? (3) Approximately how many feet of resistance wire will be necessary, and of what gauge?

In the first place, if you are going to operate the spot in Chicago, you will do well to be certain you will not run foul of the spot lamp operators' union. There is a union covering that kind of work, you know. If you have a union motion picture projectionist it is possible this phase is covered by arrangement between the two unions. I mention this to warn you of possible difficulties. Secondly, you will, I think, not be allowed to operate any other than a spot lamp which has been approved by the proper city department, which means that if you build a home-made affair it will have to be approved, which approval it might not be possible to secure. (1) Yes, a competent spot lamp operator can get excellent results with a. c., but the novice would probably have considerable trouble and secure decidedly indifferent results. (2) Either two half inch cored or a ⅝ cored above and ½ inch cored below, the best combination to be determined by actual trial. (3) Cannot give you this with any degree of accuracy, because resistance of a foot of any given gauge of resistance wire varies greatly with different kinds of resistance wire. Refer you to Chicago Stage Lighting Company, who can fix you up with a suitable rheostat, but strongly recommend that you buy a standard spot lamp, which same is a self-contained device, containing everything necessary, all ready to hook up to the service wires. The getting of good results is largely a matter of carbon set. The spot on the screen is a somewhat out-of-focus photograph of the carbon crater. The problem is to so set the carbons that the crater will be round, or as nearly as possible so, for the round crater gives a round spot. It is however, very difficult to get a round spot with a. c. owing to shortness of arc and consequent interference of lower carbon tip. I would recommend the use of National A. C. Special or Speer Alterno carbons for this work, as they are presumed to give a longer arc—a highly desirable thing since it lessens lower carbon tip interference.

How About the Yellow Car?

L. M. Adler, President Local Union 279, Houston, Texas, orders set of question booklets and says:

> The boys have by no means forgotten your visit to Houston. They join with me in best wishes to you for a prosperous year. Will send names of our roster of officers for coming year soon.

Nor have I forgotten the good time you gave me, brothers of Houston. By the way, give my regards to the yellow car and its driver. Send on the names. My best to you all.

Projection Experience

There isn't an operator's booth in the universe in which this carefully compiled book will not save its purchase price each month.

Buy It Today
$4 the Copy, Postpaid

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

For Managers and Operators
By F. H. RICHARDSON

The recognized standard book on the work of the operator. Complete descriptions and instructions on all leading machines and operating equipment.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Schiller Bldg. Chicago, Ill. | 516 Fifth Avenue New York City | Wright & Callender Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

To save time, order from nearest office.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY, F. R. P. S.

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be indorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Graduated Light Filters.

It is well known that when photographing a landscape, the amount of light reflected from the deepest shadow of the subject, especially in the near foreground, is very small in proportion to the light received direct from the lighter or sky portion of the picture. Even in the case of open sea and sky, where the difference is less accentuated, there is still a great disproportion in the amount of light proceeding from the higher and lower portions of the subject. Now the scale from the highest light or transparency to the deepest capacity of an ordinary negative is far too limited to represent adequately these extremes of light and shade, and it is more or less impossible to obtain a representation of both clouds and foreground of printable density on one film without resorting to some of the methods of control adopted by a few expert photographers in the development of special after treatment of the negative. Such processes not only call for some considerable skill but are the essence of uncertainty.

If we examine an average landscape negative by transmitted light we find that, although the clouds are fairly visible to the eye, they are generally unprintable, because the process of printing is still more limited in its range of graduation, and incapable of rendering even so wide a scale as the film used for taking the negative. If the exposure of the positive film is sufficiently prolonged to print out the details of the clouds, the foreground of the picture will be very much over-printed, and the details choked up.

One of the earliest attempts to overcome the difficulty consisted in placing a piece of tinted glass in the printing machine so as to dull the printing light in the thinner parts of the negative, and in this way effecting a certain amount of compensation or equalization; but it cannot be said that this method was a satisfactory one.

Later attempts were made to attain the desired end by means of lens shutters, so devised as to give a greater exposure to the foreground of the picture than the sky portion; with these, however, it was extremely difficult to forecast the result obtainable with any degree of certainty.

The introduction of color-sensitive film and isochromatic screens or light filters effected a very great improvement in landscape work. For instance, where deep blue sky and white fleecy clouds are included, the isochromatic plate and filter reproduce the clouds as the eye sees them, namely, as white against a dark background; but something in the nature of a foreground shutter is still necessary before clouds and foreground can be obtained of printable density in the same negative.

In order to attain this end experiments were made with neutral-tinted graduated wedge screens, used in conjunction with the yellow orthochromatic filter and obtained excellent results. In the first experiments the graduated screen was placed immediately in front of the film, but in addition to the disadvantage of the necessarily large size graduated plate, it was found that better results were obtained with the graduated filter in front of the lens. The graduated filter is simply a modification of this combination whereby the same end is attained with the single filter which has proven successful in practice.

The graduated filters are intended for landscape work, seascapes, Alpine views, snow-capped mountain scenery, etc., and for this class of work they form the only practical means of securing perfect representations of clouds of printable density, with correct foreground exposure on one and the same film.

They are made in oblong form and consist of a gelatine film which is incorporated with a permanent yellow dye of precisely the same nature and composition as used in orthochromatic filters; but instead of being evenly tinted, they are graduated from almost clear glass at the bottom to a full tint at the top. The film itself is balanced between two pieces of optically worked glass, and the whole bound together with special binding of great durability.

By means of the stock pattern fittings they may be attached to almost any type of camera.

The accompanying diagram illustrates the filter in position in front of the lens, and shows how the filter acts in obtaining the desired effect.

The front lens admits a pencil of light of the width AB from the sky, and one of the width CD from the foreground; the stop in the lens, however, cuts off a portion of both pencils, and the effective pencils are, therefore, only of the width AE and FD, as shown by the shading.

The light reaching the plate from the sky, therefore, passes through the top or darkest portion of the filter, and the light from the foreground passes through the lower or lighter portion of the filter.

The metal fitting having been attached to the front of the lens-hood as previously described, the view is focussed and the filter inserted (densest part uppermost) in the spring guides provided for the purpose.

Where short exposures are essential and when ordinary film is being used, the filter should be raised to its fullest extent in the fitting, to allow the lower or lightest portion to cover the front surface of the lens glass. In this position the lower half of the lens surface is covered by the clear glass portion, and the upper half by the yellow portion of the filter.

If the focussing screen is now carefully examined it will be seen that the lower half (sky) of the picture is distinctly yellow in appearance; whereas the upper half (foreground) is more or less clear, and that by slightly raising or lowering the filter in its fitting, or turning the fitting on the lens, the edge of the yellow tint can be adjusted to follow the contour of the horizon.

The graduated filter is also invaluable in landscape work where trees run up into the sky portion of the negative; instead of the snow effect generally obtained, owing to the excessive top light, the filter automatically cuts down the glare and secures correct rendering in this difficult type of subject.

No increase of exposure is necessary when using the filter in this position.

When using panchromatic film the central part of the filter should be used in order to secure orthochromatic correction in both foreground and sky. The increase in exposure for the filter in this position is approximately three times.

The best possible orthochromatic correction is obtained when the filter is lowered to its fullest extent in the fitting, so that the deepest tint covers the lens surface; but the filter can only be used in this position when the exposure will permit, the increase being approximately five times.

Setting the Camera Near the Ground.

In taking close ups of objects near the ground or floor the wide spread of the legs necessary with the standard sized tripod is so great that the required stability is not attainable. Where a "baby" or short-legged tripod is not at hand a low box may often be utilized and an ordinary ⅜th inch stove bolt, with a nut screwed on for a stop, can be used instead of a tripod screw to fasten the camera to the box through a half inch hole bored in the wood of the box. If the titling top on the tripod is a detachable one it may be first fastened to the box in the same manner, thus allowing the camera to be tilted to the desired angle. If the tilt is not detachable, box and camera together may be blocked up to the required angle with bricks or pieces of wood taking care to do it so that there will be no play or wobble when the camera is operated.

Army to Teach Aviation Photography at Syracuse.

An aviation photographic school where several hundred army aviators are to be taught in the use of the camera and the kodak, including their repair and upkeep, is to be established at Syracuse, New York.

Men are to be sent there from camps and aviation fields for training and new recruits are to be mobilized there.

The aviation photgraphic school is to be under the Signal Corps of the United States Army. It is reported that the school will be laid out at once and training begun as soon as the men can be mobilized.

*Copyright, 1918, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by GEORGE W. BEYNON.

Notice.

QUESTIONS regarding music, addressed to this department, will receive a carbon copy of the department's reply by mail, when 4 cents are enclosed. Special replies by mail on matter which cannot be answered in this column $1.00.

Atmosphere in Music and Performance.

WHEN music is characteristic of a specific clime, type of people, custom or peculiar condition it is called atmospheric. We have the characteristic music of Japan, China, Russia, Scotland, Ireland, Germany, France, Scandinavia, Italy, Spain and the Orient. We also have tribal music which is distinctly atmospheric—American Indian music, negro melodies, chanty songs of the French-Canadian, Hawaiian music, and many numbers characteristic of South America.

There are usually three forms of music peculiar to each nationality—viz., Song, Dance and Classic numbers. The dance form is probably more profuse and also more aboriginal in its treatment, because the other forms are colored somewhat from outside musical influence. It is only natural that a composer should subconsciously use the style, form or bits of melody from the masters whom he has studied. This detracts from the distinctiveness of the composition, and for the same reason causes the atmosphere to deteriorate in the same ratio.

The national air is not always atmospheric, though by constant use is closely associated with the country which it represents. The Portuguese hymn has nothing peculiar to the country itself, and is used throughout the world under different names. The English national anthem has been traced to Prussian origin, and is sung by us to different words. The "Marseillaise," though born in France, has become widely known and sung by the Socialists, Anarchist and Nihilist in every land. Thus it has lost its atmosphere in a measure.

On the other hand, the national hymn of Russia could never signify anything not Russian, and though certain composers are bringing forth a new one it, too, will be atmospheric beyond question. Japan, America, Spain, Greece, Sweden have typically atmospheric music for their national airs. Italy has made no definite selection for symbolic purposes, but Garibaldi's Hymn brings the people to their feet and receives recognition and respect.

You cannot rely on a number by reference to its name. Neither can you feel sure of its character by noting the composer. Names mean nothing as far as musical analysis is concerned, for Tschaikowsky wrote "Capriccio Italien" in imitation of Verdi. He also wrote some wonderful Oriental music; while his songs partake of the flavor of many countries. Yet his Russian depictions have never been equalled in the portrayal of the down-trodden peasant. Among the many composers who have consistently written in the atmosphere of their own country we have Verdi, Wagner, Dvorak, Grieg, Debussy, Ippolita Ivanow and Valverde of today.

We also have those composers who make a study of foreign types and conditions and write more or less successfully characteristic numbers. Arthur Farwell has demonstrated his ability in arranging the Indian melodies of America, while many have essayed Oriental music with a considerable success.

Peculiar conditions bring forth music that is typical of the people living under them. We have East Side music, the Apache dance, characteristic Christmas carols, patriotic numbers dealing with historical events, college songs, circus music, and many others. These may vary greatly in form and melody, but breathe the atmosphere of the peculiar conditions under which they find origin.

Then again we have music which is characteristic of periods of time. The Civil War brought forth some new songs, such as "Dixie" and "Seeing Nellie Home." The French Revolution gave birth to many folk songs, which even yet are remembered and sung by the bourgeois.

Coming down to the practical side of this question we find that there is a volume of atmospheric music to be obtained. This fact should not be overlooked by the orchestra leaders in picture theaters, and a special classification should be made of characteristic music. Many pictures come to a house where the musical director is endowed with but a small library, and 75 per cent. of the picture receives an American setting when it deserves all Russian or all Spanish. The leader should do some research work and not depend on the standard numbers that are well known. Songs make excellent themes, and dance music played according to the action of the picture is intensely atmospheric.

In setting (for example) a Russian picture care should be taken to gain variety. Don't place several Andante numbers in rotation. It is better to repeat one if necessary and follow with an allegretto or waltz movement. If the locations, conditions and types are all Russian throughout see to it that the setting be all Russian. The public is awake and expect it.

Going further and speaking to the exhibitor.

Taking it for granted that the feature has been well set with all Russian music, why not make the entire performance permeate Russian atmosphere? Have the singers sing, in costume, Russian songs; choose a typical Russian overture, such as "Prelude," by Rachmaninoff; book your topical review and scenic with this idea before you, and note the remarkable drawing power of such a show. This is not a new idea, but one which is being worked in one of the foremost theaters in the country. Recently the writer was struck most forcibly by the way this plan was "put across." It gives continuity, good publicity and a freedom from that "variety-hall-lighting-change" idea. The following sample program may be suggestive:

1. OVERTURE—Prelude .....Rachmaninoff
   Theater Orchestra.
2. PICTORIAL REVIEW:
   Showing Russian Soldiers Entraining, Cossacks Riding, Kerensky Addressing People, Russian Fleet Manouvering, etc.
3. SONG—"Longing" .....Rubenstein
   Sung by Miss Jane Jones.
4. SCENIC—The Caucasis Mountains.
5. BARITONE SOLO—"Wanderer's Song".....Tschaikowsky
   Sung by Bertram Brown.
6. FEATURE—"The Fall of the Romanoffs."
7. ENTR'ACTE—"Kol Nedrei" .....Bruch
8. COMEDY.

It is hardly possible to choose a comedy that will fit the situation, but that is somewhat negligible because its function is to send the patrons away happy.

To carry the idea to its fulfillment the ushers could be costumed as Russian peasants, soldiers or Cossacks, as deemed wise. The lobby display should bear out the general idea, while a Cossack upon a white horse, for street parade purposes, would gain considerable attention.

In this age of specialists we must devote our entire efforts in one direction. Atmospheric performances are different, attractive and fascinating. With proper publicity they are sure to increase the reputation of the theater and its box office receipts.

Music at the Broadway.

We visited the Broadway, where they are running "The Kaiser—The Beast of Berlin," with no anticipations of enjoyment, and, as usual, received a pleasant surprise. Blessed are they who expect little for they shall receive much.

We found our old friend, James Bradford, in charge of the music, with his former associates gathered about him in the orchestra pit. The return of the Broadway orchestra to its first love creates for that theater a decidedly different atmosphere and again places it in the foreground musically. Mr. Bradford's wide experience and pleasing personality makes for good music at all times.

The performance opened with the playing of the Star Spangled Banner, immediately followed by the overture, "Il Guarany," by Gomez. There was conveyed a feeling of unpreparedness in this number, and the cut of eight bars preceding the first lento movement changed somewhat the character of the selection. However, it was well received by the immense audience and withal was a creditable performance.

Then came an educational film interpreted orchestrally by the use of a medley of light popular airs, known as "Shoo-fly" stuff, but not played that way. The idea of fitting in this manner an educational dealing in varied subjects is decidedly pleasing. The only criticism we have to offer would be to suggest changing the music at the change of the subject. From the care of a furnace to mounted constabulary is a decided change and should be so indicated in the music.

The feature is one of the strongest we have seen, admirably adaptable to music, and its continuity lends itself to long selections, which means a smooth performance. There was no attempt at absolute synchrony, yet, in view of the length of the scenes, one did not notice the changes of tempo.

It is one of the best musical settings we have heard in many a day. The music was good. The theme for the Kaiser—"Processional March," by Schwarwenka, was most appropriate. Such fine things as Valkyrie music by Wagner, "Imploration of Neptune," from the Phedre Ballet, by Massenet; "Symphonic Poem," from Francesca di Riminy, by Tschaikowsky, and as a finale, the "Bacchus Processional," by Delibes, were most effective and fitting. We felt that the Ride of the Valkyrie was played a bit too slow for dramatic effect, but the music throughout was most impressive and carried the situations splendidly.

The touch of atmospherical effect as the picture closed was good. A soldier and sailor appear at each side of the stage, trumpet in hand, and join in the playing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," finishing precisely with the picture. We heard many comment favorably upon this little artistic touch. It is a fitting finish to a fine feature.

Mr. Al Nathan, former manager of the Superba theater at Los Angeles, California, and the Alhambra, in San Francisco, is now presiding over the destiny of the Broadway. He is strong for good music and has a keen insight regarding the needs of the public. "Jimmie" and he should make a team that will be heard from.

Musical Suggestion Synopsis.

ACCIDENTAL HONEYMOON, AN (Rapf Productions—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Valse Lento. Suggest "The Way of Love"—Cremieux, "Dodola"—Frey, or "Doucement"—Roberts.

This is a good comedy where the following numbers can be used to advantage. "Forgotten"—Cowles, "Last Night was the End of the World"—Von Tilzer, "On the 5.15," "Love, Here is My Heart"—Silesu, and "Sweethearts"—Herbert. The entire setting should be light and there is needed a few pastorale and rustic pieces. Cue sheets can be obtained from Ivan Film Exchange.

ALIEN ENEMY (Paralta Plays—Six Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andante. Suggest "Intermezzo"—Bizet, "Tendre Aveu"—Schutt, or Twilight"—Ayer.

Dramatic music will play the predominant part in this good war-time picture. At T.—"Officers of The Golden Butterfly"—The Prussian National Anthem is needed while the Stars and Stripes by Sousa can be used at T—"Beneath Autumn Opal Skies." There is a direct cue—T.—"We've Come to Can the Kaiser," and the music required is the Battle Hymn of the Republic, once through. During the picture the American flag appears frequently, and we suggest that your cornet (muted) sound out the first measure and a half of the Star Spangled Banner. If the instrument is missing have the pianist attend to it at every appearance of the flag. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Paralta Exchange.

AMERICAN BUDS (Fox—Six Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Moderato. Suggest "Basket of Roses"—Albers, "Dainty Daffodils"—Miles, or "In Poppyland"—Albers.

The music should be light in the main, but there is a patriotic feeling throughout the picture requiring a bit of marshal stuff. Catch the bugle call at cue T.—"The Morning Call," and the march in the fifth reel. For the latter we would suggest "Pershing's March," by Watt. At cue D.—"Kids Playing Guitars," have some Hawaiian selection ready. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Fox Exchange.

BLINFOLDED (Paralta Plays—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andante. Suggest "Elysium"—Speaks, "Awakening of Spring"—Bach, or "Love's Longing"—Frontini.

This picture deals with the denizens of the underworld, opening with semi-misterioso stuff and continuing dramatically to T.—"After the Release." During the robbery scene we would suggest the use of the first movement of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony. In the third and fourth reels pastorale numbers and bright pieces will fit admirably. During the fifth reel have "La Forza del Destino" by Verdi ready, as it is dramatic throughout, closing with the theme. Note pistol shot effect after T.—"Midnight Finds Peggy, etc." Cue sheets can be obtained from the Paralta Exchange.

BLUE BIRD, THE (Paramount—Six Reels)—No theme necessary.

This feature is the picturization of Maeterlinck's masterpiece and, owing to its allegorical nature, requires a peculiar setting. Everything must be fantastic, such as "Les Syphides"—Cussans, "Dance of Fire and Water"—O'Neill, "Petite Suite"—Debussy, "Entr'Acte"—Hadley, "March of Life and Death"—Humperdinck, and "Arabesque No. 1"—Debussy. Get the cue sheet, if possible, because there is little possibility of fitting the picture without it. Cue sheet can be obtained from the Paramount Exchange.

DEBT OF HONOR, THE (Fox—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andante. Suggest "Serenade"—Titt'l, or "To a Star"—Leonard.

The picture has two atmospheres, the earlier one being a fairy story, and the latter a war-time patriotic episode. It would be wise to select oriental music for the first portion in order that there may be a distinct comparison with the later stuff. You will need a few misteriosos and one agitato. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Fox Exchange.

DEVIL'S WHEEL, THE (Fox—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Plaintive Andante. Suggest "Narcissus"—Nevin, "Reverie"—Corelli, or "Eventide"—Shytte.

The location is in France and the music should hold French atmosphere. Choose from such composers as Massenet, Bizet, Berlioz, Faur, or Chaminade. Many misteriosos and agitatos are required and the picture opens dramatically. Note the Apache dance in the second reel, which must be repeated later in the same reel and again in the last reel. Catch the big fight in the fifth reel and close with the theme. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Fox Exchange.

KAISER, THE (Jewel Film Co.—Seven Reels).

See MUSIC AT THE BROADWAY elsewhere in this department.

MATINEE GIRL, THE (Perfection Pictures—One reel).

This is a comedy requiring light music, but not of the slap-stick variety. Use comic opera selections and a bit of a love theme might be used with effect. No cue sheets are available.

SHELL GAME, THE (Metro—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andantino. Suggest "Rosemary"—Elgar, "Moonbeams"—Keiser, (Norwegian Folk Song"—Borch.

You will need light music for this comedy-drama. Catch the popular one-step at T.—"Then followed a week of gayety"—and the hurry following immediately afterwards. You will need "Home, Sweet Home," and "Ben Bolt" almost immediately after the opening of the picture and a few bars of "Rigoletto Opera" selection at cue T.—"A Caruso Night." Cue sheets can be obtained from the Metro Exchange.

SPLENDID SINNER, THE (Goldwyn—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andante. Suggest "Love Theme"—Lee, "Claire de Lune"—Thome, or "Dream of the Flowers"—Cohen.

Dramatic music is mostly required for this setting. Catch all the violin solos and use "The Song of the Soul," by Breil, if possible. At cut T.—"Britishers Enlist Today"—you can use "Over There" played pp. with fine effect. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Goldwyn Exchange.

WANTED, A MOTHER (World—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Valse Lento. Suggest "Destiny Waltz"—Baynes, "Heartstrings"—Vecsey, or "Innamorata"—Marchetti.

This is a juvenile picture and calls for a predominancy of light music. Some Italian slum music is needed and a couple of pathetics. Cue sheets can be obtained from the World Film Exchange.

WHISPERING CHORUS, THE (Paramount—Six Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andantino. Suggest "Russian Romance"—Friml, "Summer Nights"—Roberts, "Visions"—Tschaikowsky.

Big stuff is required for this picture. There is a religious phase that calls for hymns such as "Nearer My God to Thee," "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" (cello solo, if possible), "Home, Sweet Home," and "In the Gloaming" as a finish. You will need also a Chinese selection and the Wedding March. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Paramount Exchange.

WOMAN AND THE LAW (Fox—Seven Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Dramatic Andante. Suggest "Last Dream of a Virgin"—Massenet, "La Melancholic"—Prume, or "Meditation"—Delmas.

This is a dramatic picturization of a famous murder trial and must be fitted accordingly. Possibly a Spanish theme could fit better than those suggested, but it must be dramatic. Open the picture with Spanish atmosphere and continue light until the fourth reel. The music from this point is dramatic and pathetic with a heavy agitato in the fifth reel. Close with the theme. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Fox Exchange.

Comparative Table of Tempo-Marks.

CLASS I.

INDICATING A STEADY RATE OF SPEED.

Larghissimo, molto largo
Largo (broad, stately)
Largamente
Larghetto
Grave (heavy, dragging)
Lento (slow)
Adagissimo
Adagio (slow, tranquil)
Adagietto
Andantino

} Group I.—General signification of terms is SLOW.

Andante (moving, going along)
Moderato
Allegretto
Allegramente
Allegro (brisk, lively) (con moto, vivace) (agitato, Appassionata)
Presto (rapid) (con fuoco, veloce)
Prestissimo

} Group II.—General signification of terms is FAST.

CLASS II.

INDICATING ACCELERATION.

Accelerando (with increasing rapidity)
Stringendo
Affrettando
Incalzando — (swiftly accelerating, usually with a crescendo)

Doppio movimento (twice as fast)

Piu mosso
Piu moto
Veloce — (a steady rate of speed, faster than preceding movement)

CLASS III.

INDICATING A SLACKENING OF SPEED.

Rallentando
Ritardando
Allargando
Tardando
Slentando
Strascinando — (gradually growing slower)

Molto meno mosso (d = d del movimento precedente) (half as fast)

Ritenuto
Meno mosso
Meno moto — (a slower rate of speed, slower than preceding movement)

Calando
Deficiendo
Mancando
Morendo
Sminuendo
Smorzando — (growing slower and softer)

Leaders' Service Bureau.

Suggestions Answered—Suggestions Offered.

Q. "What distinguishes an orchestral organ from a pipe organ? Have either a place as a component part of an orchestra?"

A. "The orchestral organ is one of recent invention, manufactured specially for the handling of pictures. It has all of the traps attachments and has the same effect as piano and drums together. The quality is by no means so fine as that of the pipe organ. Both have a place in orchestral work."

Q. "Is piano ever used in a symphony orchestra?"

A. "Yes. A piano is frequently used in a symphony orchestra, especially in such things as Liszt's Second Rhapsody. It is also used in the absence of harp for the arpeggios and cadenzas."

Rambles 'Round Filmtown

With WALTER K. HILL.

FULFILLING in part the purpose to give publicity to the reports of scouts who are swarming all over the country in the interest of Universal's "Secret Service" we star this week a series of decoded messages that have come to Hal Sidney, chief of staff. The Rambler explained in the first announcement of this important exposure of these most important documents just how the original messages have come into our possession. We get them from the "Junk Man."

Such reports as our experts have thus far been able to decipher and decode are given below, the cipher dispatch being first printed with the result of decoding following immediately under the cryptic telegrams. The series is apt to run for some time, as "Big You" has dispatched a large force into every part of the country to find out how the public like Universal productions, and, if not, to discover what kind of pictures are most in demand.

*

Original: "Making return voyage immediately swimming slowly toward Los Angeles. Important."—H. H. Van Loan, Honolulu.

Decoded: "This public wants Fox features; favor Theda Bara, but 'The Grand Passion' is for Kellermann's diving. What's lowest quotation, 'The Price of a Good Time.' Send more expense money."

Delayed in Transmission: "Have discovered Los Angeles. Important."—H. H. Van Loan.

Decoded: "Now I know 'The Price of a Good Time.' Send more expense money."

*

Original: "Lacking Los Angeles. Important."—Phil Mindil, New Orleans.

Decoded: "Lacking 'The Price of a Good Time.' Send more expense money."

*

Original: "Trotzky making faces, inform owner, otherwise suffer consequences. Important."—Bob Doman, Moscow, Russia.

Decoded: "Notify Rupert Julian exhibitors here want 'The Kaiser, Beast of Berlin.' Have leased theater; ship printing covering latest title. Could use some food. Send more expense money."

*

Original: "Dear firm sticking important."—Phil Mindil, New Orleans.

Decoded: "Dear firm, I am still with you. Send more expense money."

*

This one came as a "straight" message from Eddie Mullen, Holyoke: "They like Douglas Farnum better than Franklyn Fairbanks in this town. Send more expense money."

*

Another "straight" wire from Rose Schulsinger, Bridgeport: "I am up here getting publicity for Lee Kugel's 'Old Lady No. 23.' Thought I would drop you this one to say World Pictures are better than I thought they were when I worked for Universal. Yes, indeed. Much better."

* * *

"Half the secret of Doris Pawn's life lies in everything being 'quite interesting' to her. The smile which she wears in the morning among the trees remains with her all day long."—Fox Publicity.

"Quite Interesting"—for the Trees.

* * *

"The Triangle-Keystone comedies have lost another beauty. Gloria Swanson, famed for the hearts she has broken in slap-stick romances, will hereafter appear in five-reel comedies."—Triangle Talks.

The Old Slap-Stick Put to New Use.

Signs of Welcome Spring.

Since Old Sol has been in evidence sufficiently to warm the neighborhod of 729 Seventh avenue, business on the "Curb Market" has picked up. Fliers in re-issues, Bulls in features and Bears in Job lots have been made with loud acclaim and much to the annoyance of office-holders in said building. The prayer of the "brokers" is offered daily that the contractors will hurry the completion of the new subway. More room is needed in which to gesticulate, operate and articulate.

* * *

Lewis Willoughby, an English actor, makes his American debut. — Metro Publicity.

The legitimate stage has nothing on the screen.

* * *

Wurra, Wurra. Also Walla, Walla.

(By Young Knockin'var.)

A short-horn reviewer
"Has come out of the West";
Of all the good guessers
This guy is the best.
He boweth to no man,
Not even to Wid;
At prognostication
He's one candy kid.

* * *

Farmer Jerry Wilson is doing his spring's work. The ice having failed in the former Astor Market the building will now be converted to motion picture uses by Thomas Healy, the famous restaurateur, and Aubrey Kennedy. When alterations are complete the place will be opened as the Symphony theater, with a large orchestra featured. Mr. Wilson is doing the publicity.

* * *

The Lone Star of Texas.

James B. Kelly left New York last week to start a special sales campaign for General Film Co. in Texas, where he is known to every showman. He is a recent addition to General Film's staff, having just given up a position in Atlanta with another company to take on the new work.

"Smiling Jimmie" is not only known as one of the most popular film salesmen in the Southern territory, but is one of the most resourceful men in the film game. It is recalled that about eight years ago Kelly was on a trip in Texas when he became stranded in a remote town through failure of remittances to get to him from the branch headquarters. Kelly was flat as the proverbial pancake.

Little it worried him. Before entering the film game Kelly was a performer on the spoken stage. Turning to one of his exhibitor friends he secured an emergency engagement to do a "single turn" at each performance, and in a couple of days had sung and danced himself out of town on chair car de luxe.

* * *

"'The Whispering Chorus' to 'The Song of Songs' will be well worth listening for in Paramount pictures," declares Pete Schmid.

* * *

Harry Raver, governor of the Showmen's League, New York branch, put across a most successful and enjoyable "smoker" for carnival folk at the meeting room, Sixth avenue, near Forty-fifth street, last week as a preliminary to the benefit performance to be held at the Hippodrome, April 21. The American Society of Magicians will share interests in the unusual entertainment that is being arranged by Mr. Raver and Harry Houdini.

Worst Class in Spelling: Stand Up!

"Maurice Riskin flops himself into the chair of assistant editor of Progress-Advance. It is said he has gained an enviable reputation."—The Rambler, March 30.

Dear Mr. Hild: In re your ad,
Beg leave to say it made me mad.
Perhaps you meant to praise this pote—
But all you did was get his goat.

Next time, old top, say what you will:
Say I'm a crab; say I'm a pill;
Call me a boob; term me a fright—
But Kindly Get My Name Spelled Right.
—Morrie Ryskind.

* * *

He's Waiting to Fly to France.

Meanwhile, Ben Grimm may be addressed care of Moving Picture World. Ben had legions of friends when he was reviewing pictures for the World. Months ago he volunteered to serve his country's colors, and despite the fact that his home is in Hoboken, Ben's country is struggling to make the world safe for women, children and Democracy. Ben's human—immensely so—and the Rambler happens to know that he likes to hear from "The Gang." Drop him a line, lads, and we'll forward it to the soldier-reviewer.

* * *

Reviewed by Jesse L. Lasky.

"'Hearts of the World' is absolutely the most wonderful photo production the world's history of the motion picture has ever known. The film is positively gripping. You sit for three hours leaning forward, alternately holding your breath, heaving sighs of relief, gritting your teeth, smiling through tears, cursing, praying, cheering and choking back sobs."

* * *

Jack Medor Loses His Grippe.

We are pleased to state that Jack Medor, of Metro's Educational Department, has recovered from his hard cold plus high fever and is back at work.

* * *

Ray Gallager, who started film life as J. Stuart Blackton's secretary, and lately represented G. F. in Albany, will hereafter look out for the Brooklyn interest of the United Picture Theaters of America, Inc., which definitely locates Brooklyn in this country.

* * *

When Jerry Beatty Was No. 1.

John Cunningham, who spells, and insists upon having others spell, his Flinn with an "i," showed his first press agent propensities back in the dark ages, when, as member, treasurer and ballyhoo for the redoubtable Crescent Athletic Club, he put over a series of articles under the heading of "Tricks of Basket Ball Players." Strange to relate, the newspaper man who swallowed this dope hook, line and sinker (terms used exclusively in basket ball), was none other than Jerome Beatty, now associated with Flinn at the Famous Players-Lasky office. Shortly after this incident the A. A. U. stepped in and raised a question as to the professionalism displayed by the Crescent aggregation, but John C. Flinn soon convinced them that the members were receiving no fees for their efforts, in fact at that moment he was wondering what was the shortest walking distance from Frisco to Evanston, Ill.—From "Unsuspected Biographies" in Paramount Pep.

* * *

From Triangle's Blarney Stone.

O. O. McIntyre, the New York humorist, writing a story about his friend, Jack Conway, Triangle director, described him gaily as "an Irish cyclone with a hyacinthine artistic sense." Conway, reading it, mused. "The first is intended for flattery," he decided, "but I don't know whether the last is a knock or a boost or a happy ending."

Metros Lynch a Genial Hero.

"Pop" Lynch, the genial elevator operator at the New York studio of Metro, proved himself a hero the other day when he found the wallet of a prominent star. According to "Pop" he found it very near the Metro studio and it contained lots of bills of Irish green and several diamond rings—with real "rocks," not shamrocks. "Pop" refused to accept any reward when he returned the wallet, but pressed his luck by marching in the St. Patrick's Day parade.

* * *

Blackton Once Refused to Sign Louise Huff.—Trade Paper Headline.

Now his sins of omission rise to haunt him.

* * *

The Boss Shows Him How.

Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corp., was present at the making of a "Fatty" Arbuckle comedy at Long Branch, Cal., during his recent visit to the West Coast. Perhaps the fact that "The Boss" was watching the job unstrung Mr. Arbuckle's nerves, more or less, but at all events one scene, in which the latest type of Los Angeles trolley cars was used, became distressingly maltreated.

Mr. Arbuckle, experienced though he is in picture making, proved to be the most reckless of all the actors in handling the particular scene. Shifting his weight from foot to foot, Mr. Lasky watched proceedings until, ultimately, he became utterly out of patience. Impulsively Mr. Lasky up-spoke:

"If you'll permit me, Mr. Arbuckle, I'll show you how to do it," said "The Boss," cleverly concealing his really acute attack of temperament.

"I'll be very thankful to you if you will," said Roscoe agreeably.

"To do so properly we must change clothes," said Mr. Lasky. And it was no sooner said than done. The result is pictured in the accompanying still, obligingly furnished by Pete Schmid for the use of The Rambler in illustrating, so as to make clear the skill and poise of Mr. Lasky as a picture actor.

It were better here to switch to Mr. Schmid's own story, originally written to go with the cut.

"'The Boss' grabbed the controller and Arbuckle grabbed his hat. The movements were simultaneous. But the movement of the car was not. In the instant that the 'juice' delayed in flowing through the veins of the impatient trolley car the photographer, who had been 'planted' to surprise Mr. Lasky (see illustration) took a shot at 'The Boss.'

"The developed plate proves that a corking good actor was spoiled to make a moving picture magnate. Tense desperation, keen determination and a distant look of immediate will to do something is registered in Mr. Lasky's face as he grips the controller. The contrast is clearly marked when one gives a look at Arbuckle in his attitude of distress as he holds his Stetson safe from harm. It will be noticed that Roscoe has gripped his hat so tightly that he has broken his left wrist—the skill of the 'First Aiders' being shown in the bandage so cleverly applied."

It is said that after the car had returned from its perilous journey around the Peteschmid Mimeograph Mr. Lasky brushed the dust from his borrowed raiment, handed the outfit back to Mr. Arbuckle and said:

"There. That is the way to do it."

And Mr. Arbuckle, actor like, applauded.

* * *

Rambles' Round Filmtown

It Seems War Will Soon End.

Beverly Bruce has signified her intention of going to Scotland to produce on the original ground and water Sir Walter Scott's immortal "The Lady of the Lake." The Vitagraph Company "did" it in one reel with Florence Turner and Tefft Johnson in the long ago, but it is Miss Bruce's purpose to give as much footage as possible to the picture. Adhering to the original text as far as practicable and photographing it among the beauties of the Scotch lakes and hills, Miss Bruce believes that there is enough "meat" in the tale to warrant a picture long enough to provide a full evening's entertainment for meatless days.

Don Likes to See Himself Drown.

Don Likes, who plays in the William Fox pictures, once had the novel experience of seeing himself drown. In one of his picture, Mr. Likes fell from a narrow bridge into a river, and was rescued only after he had completely lost consciousness. The camera got the entire scene. In the studio projection room a few days later the player sat comfortable back in his chair and watched himself going down three times.—Fox Publicity.

X. Y. Z., Box 79, Times Square Station.

The Times recently printed an advertisemen bearing the above signature and the following text: "Wanted—At not to exceed $50,000. We are arranging to have produced for us twelve great motion pictures—one a month for a year.

"It is easy to find stars, but extremely difficult to get stories or plays that are well enough known to fill every theater on the first night.

"Good enough to crowd the house for from three to six nights more. We need seven more.

"If you know of plays or stories like this and their terms of sale, let us hear from you. No manuscript of new or unknown pieces will be either read or returned."

Somewhere concealed in the foregoing Confession of Faith in the Well Known Industry there is a "wheeze"—but The Rambler confesses he is utterly flabbergasted, whatever that is.

It would be interesting to be informed on the five X. Y. Z. has selected, even if he never gets the seven more. Certainly twelve plays that "will fill every house on the first night" would be worth whatever twelve times $50,000 amounts to in money. Because, forsooth (apologies to a craftsman in another column in Rambles, late issue), there are said to approachingly close to some 20,000 houses.

And why the shot at Stars, with scads of $300-a-week actors so utterly out of work on the West Coast that they can't pay their 1917 income tax? Easy to find stars, indeed! Much harder, it seems, to find plays to fit a Star good enough to fit a $50,000 scenario twelve times a year.

Somehow The Rambler has a "hunch" that X. Y. Z. is none other than Julius Singer, gone stark mad, and into the production branch of the Fifth Industry. What's YOUR guess?

* * *

Ministers Believe in Motion Pictures.

A party of graduate ministers from McCormack's Theological Seninary, in Chicago, receiving a few finishing touches to their education, recently visited the plant of the American Film Company. They were taken through the factory and shown the technical work of the motion picture.

"What relations should the minister bear to the exhibitor in his community?" asked one of them—and the discussion was on. It brought out the fact that nearly every one of them was an ardent movie fan and expected to utilize the influence of the pictures in their coming pastorates.

"Get acquainted with the pictures and with the exhibitor," advised Richard R. Nehls, general manager of the company. "Make the motion picture help you in your new work."

* * *

"You see it's like this," said a beautiful girl who had called upon Charles Sarver, the World Film scenario editor. "I've been reading all these articles about the high cost of making pictures and I know that the companies are anxious to get good stories that can be produced without an enormous expense. So this idea I've got is for a great picture that can be produced with but very little cost."

"Can this be true?" said Mr. Sarver.

"I just know my idea is good and it will make a great picture," the girl declared intensely. "Now, the first scene is laid in the Garden of Eden, and——"

This statement fairly jolted Mr. Sarver out of his chair. He waved her away.

"That's enough!" he cried. "That's enough."

"But this bright spring morning you ought to care——"

"No, no!" cried Mr. Sarver, "not this morning or this afternoon or this Eve." And then as the young lady faded reluctantly away, he added, "I don't care Adam about it."

She Seemed Abel to Raise Cain.

R. F. D. Film Promotion Pays.

Harry Weiss, of the Central Film Co., Chicago, which maintains the First National Exhibitors' exchange in that city, believes in combining business with pleasure.

Each year about this time Harry gets out his trusty gasoline chariot, stocks it with all the necessary impedimenta of up-to-the-minute salesmanship and sets forth upon a tour of his territory. Through Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Southern Wisconsin he speeds from city to city and from village to village, enjoying the exhilarating springtime air and only pausing before the most prosperous motion picture houses along the road to sign up the local exhibitor for a run of one or more of the big features that he handles.

If all the signs hold true this will be an early spring in the middle west, they say, and what with the new Chaplin comedies, the screen version of Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson in the "Passing of the Third Floor Back" and the "Fall of the Romanoffs" to furnish inspiration for his selling-talks, Harry should have the most prosperous outing that his speedometer has yet registered.

Last year he frequently averaged bookings of $1,000 per diem. This high figure shows what can be accomplished by the canny joy-rider who is not tied to a railroad schedule during these uncertain times.

* * *

Ruth Stonehouse, one of the prettiest of West Coast defenders, has been seen of late picking her way along the edges of Times Square. It is reported that the screen queen said to a friend the second day she was here:

"My goodness, but New York will be a nice town if they ever get the cover on."

* * *

Willard Holcomb has transferred his typewriter from "Chu Chin Chow" to the publicity department of William Fox. St. Patrick's Day was the date that returned this brilliant writer to the celluloid game. How about a few Ramble paragraphs, Willard?

* * *

For John Semler's Scrap Book.

The Jester Comedy studios now possess an official mascot. In the making of "The Recruit," the first of the Jester Comedy series, it was necessary to use a dog in the finale.

Tommy Regan, the official scout of the company, secured the services of a dog, that apparently had no name, home or pedigree—he was just a plain dog. After the picture was finished the dog was returned to the locality where he was found and the incident was forgotten. Several weeks later the dog turned up at the studio, refused to leave and has now been duly installed (plus bath and collar) as the official mascot with the said Tommy Regan as its Chief Maid in Waiting.

* * *

Exposing the "Zit" Trust.

General Manager International Film Service.

Theatrical Advertising Manager Evening Journal.

Advertising Manager Hearst's Magazine, Good Housekeeping, Motor, Harper's Bazar, Motor Boating, and Cosmopolitan.

General Manager Campbell's Studios.

General Manager Hearst's Moving Picture Aspirations.

* * *

Clara Kimball Young's several motors have already been shipped to Hollywood, as the star did not wish to take chances with the delays in freight transportation. Her chauffeur will be in the service group which will accompany Miss Young on the special from Chicago, and which will also include her butler and other servants from her New York home, which the star will then close for the several months covered by her absence in the West.

Who Will Watch the Gas Meter?

Rambles 'Round Filmtown

Jess L. Goldburg makes so good as a "Four Minute Man" that the stage manager makes him "take a bow" when he speaks in theaters where vaudeville acts are shown. Applause from the audience is a contributing factor that is never overlooked by good showmen.

* * *

Morgan Jones, who is playing in support of May Allison in the Metro picture, "Social Hypocrites," recently posed as the "American Husband" for Leone Bracker's new Food Conservation poster, which the noted artist is painting for the Government.

Most of the Ilk Are "Posers."

* * *

Toto Du Crow has been cast as Manuel, the half-breed servant in "Treasure," Edith Storey's next starring vehicle under the banner of Metro pictures. Du Crow is an ideal type for the part. A circus clown for years, Du Crow is also a veteran in motion pictures.

But He's a Full-Breed Artist.

* * *

Very properly and logically Catherine Calvert will follow "A Romance of the Underworld" with "Marriage," as her second Frank A. Keeney picture.

* * *

Thomas Holding Olga Petrova.

Here we show Mr. Holding in the very act. It is a pictured incident in the final scene of Mme. Petrova's third production, "The Life Mask." Thomas, it will be observed, is an osculation slacker. He is wasting an excellent opportunity while painstakingly trying to impersonate a man in the act of collecting. It is tantalizing to behold the sublime faith Mme. Petrova has in his abilities to correctly, indeed, precisely, gauge the distance to the obvious destination. It is annoying to discover how clumsily he has betrayed her confidence in his astuteness. She has waited with closed eyes—an evidence of blind faith in her leading man's skill—that a clear photograph of a good job may be obtained. The result is only a sample of photography plus electrotypign. "The Life Mask" will be distributed by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. Charles Wisner Barrell, publicist of the F. N. E. C., and a fiend for correctness in detail, may be expected to declare for a retake.

P. S.—Did you ever see a photograph of Mme. Petrova disclosing to view the right side of her charming profile? To the Rambler's gaze she invariably turns her left cheek. We shall ask Bert Ennis about this.

Cum One, Cum Awl, to Pathe Club Bawl!

(By William Lord Wright.)

Dear Tom North: Them Winter days with fats an' leans and meatless ways jest git my goat—but now I sing and dance and shout, fer it is Spring! And April sixth, day and date when I sure do resuscitate! Hotel McAlpin is th' bower an' seven P. M. th' proper hour!

Think I'd be a common dub an' miss th' dash ov Pathe Club? Them wines! Them eats! Them gals! Them ale—an' funny jokes from Mister Kale! You bet yer life I'll be on hand, all dolled up and feelin' grand! Ready to lead th' grand perade, make a speech, sip lemonade, or hear th' Adenoids Sextette puff, an' groan, an' growl, an' fret as they sing lilt or roundelay or "End Ev a Perfect Day."

Ferget th' date? Say, Tom, ole boy, in this ole world there ain't much joy, and when the real stuff happens round jest count me right in on th' ground! So here's to every gol-derned dub at the dinner of th' Pathe Club. An' may th' Gawd ev Laughter bless this gatherin' in informal dress.

Informal dress? Say, Old Scout, rather en miss this annual bawl I'd jest wear errings an' a shawl!

Well, so long, Tom, till April six! Jest count me there all primed ter mix. I'm learnin' to dance that Banty Stop, th' Gander Glide an' th' Roast Squab Hop. So be there, active members awl, fer Spring hes came—farewell to Fall!

* * *

Steps in "Innocent's Progress."

Tessie Fayne was a girl who justly deserved and fully earned the great happiness that, ultimately, came to her through stress and rain via Triangle photoplays. F. S. Beresford has the right idea for "movies with punch," as will be observed in perusal of the here-following specifications. Separating Mr. Beresford's scenario into the more vital epochs we find that Tessie made the transition from drudgery to the happy ending in fourteen hurdles, taking every jump neatly and clear of the brush.

Theatergoers who seek the screen with nerves attuned to thrills and sensations will find "Innocent's Progress" an exciting pilgrimage; to wit:

1—Living with her crabbed aunt and grandparents, orphaned Tessie was the family drudge and very unhappy.

2—When a neighbor's girl, who worked in a candy store, fell ill and Tessie was asked to substitute behind the soda fountain, Tessie started for New York. The crabbed aunt saw $5 coming in and Tessie saw herself going out.

3—The town rascals would have flirted with Tessie, but they didn't look good to her. The real good looker was Arnold Fuller, leading man of the troupe of actors who stayed a week at the Opera House and changed the bill every night. Arnold made an impression on Tessie and gave her his "Permanent Address."

4—Life was never again the same to Tessie when her term at the candy store ended with the recovery of the girl for whom Miss Frayne was pinch-hitting. She revolted at drudgery and "skiddooed" to New York.

5—When she called at Mrs. Quinn's rooming house, to find Arnold Fuller at the address he had given her, the landlady sent her at once to Arnold's room. There the girl was confronted by Mrs. Fuller, who presented Tessie with a large hunk of her mind.

6—Tessie ran down stairs, humiliated. Out into the rain she tore and proceeded until she became hungry. In the restaurant where she tarried for a bite to eat a thick-lipped, red-faced man spoke to her offensively. The stranger offered to pay her check, but Tessie, defended by the waitress, was content to eat the cheapest fare—coffee and cakes—paying for same from her own frugal store of coin.

7—Out again, Tessie tore into the same rain. For shelter she stops in a doorway, but a policeman makes her move along. As she staggers through the rain and night a dark figure emerges from the mouth of a darker alley and grabs her. Tessie breaks away and runs some more.

8—When the poor girl is about to drop to the wet sidewalk from utter exhaustion—she had, by this time, ran several miles in the rain—an automobile drives up beside the curb, and Carey Larned, clubmen, comes to the rescue.

9—Carey is one of those regular gentlemen who have brought luster to the good name of New York City. He takes Tessie to his apartments and turns his spare bedroom into a bower for her shelter. Carey has a bad cough.

10—Oline Humphreys is a libatious friend of Carey's who frequently comes to Larned's bachelor home to sleep off the effects of things he drinks before and after Mayor Hylan has shut the old town up for the evening. Out of the wet night comes Oline, soaked without and soused within, and makes his way to the room he is accustomed to using as a refuge and retreat.

11—Seeing Tessie in a pair of pajamas far too large for her, Olin tries to squeeze them down to proper size. Tessie, from within, feels the pressure from without, cries loudly and Carey Larned comes down the communicating hall to her rescue. By first knocking him out and then kicking him ditto Carey rids himself and Tessie of Oline Humphreys, the drunken pajama presser.

12—The next noon, which was bright and early for Carey, word was sent to Madeline Carson that she was invited to come and chaperone a country girl for a few years. Carey had loved Madeline in other days and just for spite Madeline had married another fellow. Her grudge didn't last long, for she was now a widow and very sorry because Carey's cough was no better.

13—Carey goes to Coffeyville, Kan., for his cough, returning with it in two years. Tessie had attended a "finishing school" and it was now time to finish Madeline, who has so tenderly chaperoned the country girl. Therefore Madeline went out to do some shopping, stepped in front of a taxicab she was trying to hail, and was killed.

14—Because it would be unlucky to leave Carey and Tessie to wed in the preceding paragraph, this one is added to say that Carey's cough was improving when Tessie's happiness hove in sight with the fade-out.

* * *

Handsome Jack Mulhall is going into a picture with Mae Murray as her leading man, and then becomes a serial athlete for Universal. The Mae Murray Bluebird will be called "Danger—Go Slow," a title that will have no influence on Mulhall, the serialist.

* * *

Starting Another Controversy.

Three paragraphs that, we hope, will lead to spirited debate come in the run of material sent out from Lee Kugel's World-Picture department; to wit:

The long distance record for traveling to get one scene for a picture is now held by Montagu Love and Barbara Castleton. Travers Vale, director of "The Swami," in which Mr. Love and Miss Castleton appear, found it necessary to take one scene that could only be made in St. Augustine, Florida. Eighty-four hours elapsed from the time they left the New York studio until they returned.

*

There are many Japanese actors working in pictures, but World Pictures claim the credit of having the only regular Chinese motion picture actor. He responds to the name of I Qung and is supporting Kitty Gordon in "Her Great Moment."

*

Harry O. Hoyt, who holds the record as a moving picture scenario writer with 600 stories to his credit, has written "The Beloved Blackmailer" for World Pictures.

Rambles 'Round Filmtown

Joe Earle, so long and favorably known on these screens as Vitagraph's vampire, writes to a member of The World staff of her experiences in England, where she is successfully employed in the legitimate drama. Among other appetizing morsels she ate all of her "meat-tickets" in one day. "Now I must go meatless," she adds, "unless I meet someone with a pound of steak."

* * *

Isn't Louisville the Jealous City?

Having heard so much about the Fifth Industry and motion picture promotion in general, Louisville, which is still in Kentucky, despite the recent action of the State Legislature, in endorsing the National amentment, has decided to have a picture promotor of its own if the right man can possibly be obtained. Ludlow F. Petty and W. H. De Forester constitute a committee of two and they are nationally circulating their desire to locate a promoter of film companies.

The Rambler is of the opinion that if the Louisville appeal were made direct to the trade in New York City several promoters could be found who might well be spared from our "midst." Doubtless the success of picture promotion in this neck of the woods has centered the interest of Messrs. Petty and De Forester on the whole field of picture promotion, for they seem to be well posted. They speak familiarly of the Dixie Film Co., the Indiana Producing Co. and the Calnay Cinema Corporations, all names of firms that have come into more or less prominence throughout the country.

One is led to believe from what they say that the Louisville committee consider James Calany (or Kalany) the most desirable man they could get their hands on, and to be sure the right man gets into the right place they are circulating the photograph of the individual they desire. If any reader knows Mr. Calany (or Kalany), or has any idea where he may be found, they will confer a favor upon Ludlow F. Petty, Chief of Police, or W. H. De Forester, Chief of Detectives, Louisville, Ky.

* * *

Julius Lewis, after six years of service, has left the Universal's supply department, of which he has been the head, and will engage in selling the commodities he has been buying.

* * *

Ohio Girls Who Flirt Must Pay.

There's a theater in East Palestine where a soldier can't pay for a ticket. It is a moving picture house operated by Mr. and Mrs. Ford Henry. Every night the seaboard army trucks, which carry war supplies from the west to the Atlantic coast, come into the town, where they stop for the night. Between two and three hundred soldiers are there every evening.

Mrs. Henry, who sells the tickets, has made a rule that these soldiers may not pay to see her show. Even if the soldiers come to the theater accompanied by girls of the town Mrs. Henry won't take their money, but politely suggests that the girls pay for the tickets.

* * *

Famous Sayings in Filmtown.

"Jewish Luck beats Christian Science."—Julius Singer.

"L-KOs are not to be laughed at."—Abe Stern.

"What, Ho! The sun shines."—Tom North.

"Man arrived ahead of the ape."—"Tarzan" Reichenbach.

"Beauty is not necessarily fatal."—Pete Schmid.

"I know how the Emperor of Germany feels toward the King of Prussia. I'm opposition to myself."—S. L. Rothapfel.

Hoffman's Movable Fireside.

M. H. Hoffman, of Foursquare Pictures, is a happy man these days, for he is not only spending several days each with the respective exchange managers of his organization in cities in the Middle West, but is likewise close to the heart of his family during his spare moments.

The plot is this: Mrs. Hoffman and one small Hoffman "hopeful," who is only five, are traveling with the husband and father in his tour of the country. Little Miss Hoffman, now fourteen, and busy with her school studies, did not take the trip. Very reluctantly she remained at home in charge of Mrs. Hoffman's sister. She writes to her father and mother and small brother, however, each evening after returning from school.

Mr. Hoffman admitted that it was hard enough to remain away from his family on his frequent trips, and not be thinking incessantly of them, and missing them terribly during the long evenings, so he solved the problem for the present tour, which is to last for a considerable time, by taking those members of the family with him who could leave home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman and Master Hoffman have visited Toronto, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, St. Louis and Chicago during the past three weeks. Their next stops are to be Kansas City and Denver, and then proceed to California. Mr. Hoffman reports that he is doing far better business than he could have done if he had not had such cheer.

* * *

Congratulations to C. Reed Hamilton.

Mrs. L. G. Underhill, of New York, announces the engagement of her daughter, Harriette, to C. Reed Hamilton, of New York and Pittsburgh. Miss Underhill, as film reviewer for the New York Tribune, has become recognized and widely quoted as an authority on motion pictures.

* * *

Lichtman Plans Better Service.—Trade Paper Headline.

Somebody must have complained.

* * *

Not Even Arms Go to Waste Out West.

"We need a new greenhouse," said the landscape gardener out at the American Film Company Studios in Santa Barbara, Cal., "but we cannot get the glass for it."

"What's the matter of all those 8 by 11 still plates that are cluttering up the garret over the engine-room," returned the Efficiency Expert of the studio. "I'll bet there are hundreds of them that have been taken of the successful stars and tremendous 'punches' in our pictures during the past twelvemonth."

So it came about that Hooverization set in. It took 5,200 plates for the greenhouse. Oddly enough the figures exactly coincide wtih the salary of a common ordinary moving picture press agent of the garden variety, for an averaged year.

* * *

Viola Dana plays a little girl of ten years old in the early scenes of her new Metro picture "Breakers Ahead." So well did Miss Dana represent her character that one morning the watchman at the studio took her for one of the inquisitive children which frequent the studio gate and refused her admittance.

She Must Make-Up for Work at Home.

* * *

"It is about time the word 'crook' ceased to be a praise-word in the film business."—Triangle Talks.

Thus damning with faint praise.

* * *

This Week's "Fade Out."

We like to have this department used as a repository for such material as press agents would not themselves let into print if they were editing a newspaper. To this effort we invite the attention of the craftsmen who are shaping public mind to a celluloid bent. Slip the dope to

THE RAMBLER.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., Under Fire

Picture Operators' Officials Charged with Glaringly Inequitable Practices Against Chicago Exhibitors and Exchanges.

A MEETING of unusual importance to the film industry in Chicago was convened at headquarters of Chicago Local, M. P. E. L. of A., Masonic Temple, Tuesday, March 19, at 1 o'clock P. M. The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the Chicago Film Managers' Association, Chicago Local, M. P. E. L., of America, and Chicago Local, M. P. T. O. Association. No gathering of film people held in the city on local questions, has exceeded the number present during the proceedings, there being over 200 present, all told

The meeting was called to order by Louis F. Jacobson, attorney for Chicago Local, M. P. E. L. of A. He opened with a few remarks, stating that the film men present have no quarrel with union labor, that they are not opposed to collective bargaining or to the betterment of the conditions of the people who work in moving picture theaters. He drew attention to the fact that last fall the exhibitors granted a material increase in salaries to moving picture operators, which will be in effect for a period of five years from that date.

Not long afterward, the chairman stated, officials of Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., began to make demands on exhibitors which were not only in violation of agreement, but at the present time they are making, or endeavoring to make, exactions which are unwarranted and, in part, confiscatory.

The following abuses were charged against the Moving Picture Operators' Union, Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., by the chairman:

1. That operators are changed at will, without notice to theater owners.

2. That it has been decreed by the officials of the Union that all advertising slides run in picture theaters must first be ordered from the offices of Local 110, said slides to be made by the National Slide Company, which has its offices at the headquarters of Local 110; also that before such slides are given out they must bear a union label, placed by the officials on these slides; also that when any advertising slide does not bear this label, the operator in any theater will refuse to run it, under instruction from headquarters.

3. That a man by the name of Shafrank, who has been made an honorary members of the operators' organization and who has a desk in headquarters of Local 110, and who does business under the firm name of the National Advertising Company, has issued orders that no commercial film or slide shall be run by any union operator unless it bears the union label, and that no money paid for such slide or film advertising shall be received by the exhibitor, unless such amount is shared equally with the operator—or, practically, with the union. He is also charged with having threatened with violence certain moving picture theater owners in case they failed to comply.

4. That two men named Kelliher and Shea, are also operating from union headquarters, and working with the sanction and co-operation of the officers in organizing the Theater Janitors' union. So far as is known by exhibitors, these two men are the only members of the said Janitors' union.

5. That Fred Havill, vice president of Local 110, has proposed that every film exchange in Chicago shall pay him $3 each, per week, so that he may inspect the projecting machines in Chicago theaters, for the alleged purpose of preventing films from being spoiled or damaged. Every machine inspected by Mr. Havill and declared out of condition must be sent out for repairs. For this purpose a repair room for machines has been installed at the headquarters of Local 110 to make such repairs. If an exhibitor in any case fails to comply with Mr. Havill's order, the operator assigned to that theater shall be immediately called out.

6. That all film shipping cans in exchanges shall bear the union label, and that these cans shall be made under the supervision of a man appointed by Local 110.

7. That the latest action of Local 110 against exhibitors is the attempt to organize the cashiers and ushers of picture theaters by union officials.

8. That the Chopin theater, at Milwaukee avenue and Division street, just built, was ready to open about the close of the week of Monday, March 11, and that the owner requested the union to send operators. He was told that he must pay for the privilege and a sum of $1,200 was demanded. This amount has since been scaled down to $600, on the refusal of the owner to pay the original sum. It is understood that a similar policy will be exercised in the future on the owners of all new theaters opened.

After the reading of the foregoing charges enumerated by exhibitors, exchange representatives, a vaudeville manager and a slide manufacturer, it was resolved by the meeting that the vaudeville managers of Chicago and the slide manufacturers be invited to join in the movement. This has since been done and the name Allied Amusement Association has been adopted to represent the various interests involved in the actions of Local 110, I. A. T. S. E.

A committee representing each of the interests involved has been named with power to act and handle the situation. The composite committee has been given full power to levy protection for the interests of the Allied Amusement Assocation.

Another meeting will be held Friday, March 22, at League headquarters in the Masonic Temple, at 1 o'clock P. M., when the reports from the various committees will be read.

The detective agency of Shippy, Hunt & Dorman, of Chicago, has been employed to look after the interests of the Allied Amusement Association.

Lee Ochs in Chicago

Holds Successful Meeting in Hotel Sherman—Declares He Will Not Be a Candidate for Re-election.

LEE OCHS, president of the United Pictures of America, Inc., held a well attended meeting of exhibitors in the Louis XVI Room, Hotel Sherman, Friday, March 15, the session lasting from 11 A. M. until 1.50 P. M.

The chief object of the meeting was to explain the plan of the United, which was done by Mr. Ochs in an address which lasted about forty minutes. After the address he invited those present to question him concerning points on which they were not fully enlightened, and his replies apparently were satisfactory to the interrogators.

Mr. Ochs pointed out in his address that exhibitors in the five classes included in the plan of the United could save from 25 per cent. to 50 per cent. of the present film rentals.

Mr. Ochs made a positive statement from the platform during his address, that he would not be a candidate for re-election at the coming convention of exhibitors, to be held the second week in July at Boston. He also advised all members of the M. P. E. L. of A. and of the M. P. T. O. Association to boost for that convention and to attend in as large numbers as possible. It is timely at this point to state that the Chicago Local of the M. P. T. O. Association, as well as Chicago Local M. P. E. L. of A., were well represented at the meeting.

The sales already contracted for by United in Chicago and adjoining territory are far above expectations, it is said. Mr. Ochs announced that several important exhibitors had signed up at the meeting.

While in Chicago, Mr. Ochs received a telegram from C. S. Seelye, vice president and general manager of United, from Detroit, stating that Jake Wells, of Virginia, who has a string of theaters in the south, had signed up for all his houses. Mr. Ochs, accompanied by his wife, left for Indianapolis Sunday night, March 17.

Among the Chicago exhibitors present were the following: Joseph Trinz, of Lubliner & Trinz, Covent Garden theater; H. A. Gundling, Bryn Mawr and Regent; F. L. Dittmar, Model; W. P. Clement, Jackson Park; R. M. Power, Irving; Morris Reingolt, Vision; A. Gordon Francis, Hyde Park; Alfred Hamburger, president Hamburger Theatrical Enterprises; Jacob Cooper, Twentieth Century; Louis Vahler, Karlov and Howard, also Princess, of Peoria; August Zilligen, Jr., Rosewood; M. Wells, Vista; L. Siegel, Vernon; L. Johnson and F. C. Paar, Triangle; M. Dreifus, Grove; S. Fitchtenberg, Gem; Peter J. Schaefer, Orpheum; Tony Arado, New Era; James E. Coston, Harvard; Mrs. M. McFadden, Lincoln; John Bobeng, Crown and Armitage; A. Karzas, Woodlawn; Clyde R. Bates, Jefferson; Verne R. Langdon, Hub; Thomas A. Murray, Thalia; John H. Frundt, Clermont; William Rohe, Liberty and Ideal; Charles Bugg, Bugg; William E. Heaney, Madison Square, Crawford and Virginia; H. E. Newell, Plaisir; Robert R. Levy, Revelry; F. W. Hartman, Aristo; Charles Fetcher, Lexington and Drexel; George M. Laing, Virginia; M. Krska, Robey; C. Abrams, Acme; Louis H. Frank, Halsted; H. Lutz, Wallace, and H. E. McDorman, the Francis.

The following owners of theaters in adjoining cities were present: W. D. Burford, Aurora theater, Aurora; John Bodkin, Strand, Star and Triangle, of Evanston, and Star, of Chicago; Joseph Hopp, Majestic, Rock Island; Dee Robinson, Princess, Peoria, and Jos. Schuertzleve, United, Minneapolis.

There were also present: David G. Rogers, national organizer, M. P. E. L. of A.; Louis F. Jacobson, League attorney; C. W. Bunn, Chicago manager, United Pictures, Inc.; William J. Sweeney, national secretary, M. P. E. L. of A., and J. S. Edwards, Sr., district manager of the United, Kansas City, Mo.

Eugene Duffy, Branch Manager, Badly Hurt.

Eugene Duffy, manager of Mutual's Chicago branch exchange, and Thomas Greenwood, formerly booking manager in Triangle's Chicago office, were seriously injured Saturday evening, March 16, at Lincoln and Lawrence avenues, this city. They were returning home in a taxi when their machine was run into by another taxi-cab, which was running at reckless speed. Mr. Duffy was thrown through the glass window of his cab and sustained a fractured hip, a broken collar bone and other minor injuries, while Mr. Greenwood's nose was broken in two places and one of his legs badly crushed. Both were removed to the Ravenswood Hospital, where later an X-ray picture was taken of Mr. Duffy's injuries. The fractured bones of his hip were set on Tuesday, March 19. The surgeons state it will be a long time before Mr. Duffy will be in condition to leave the hospital. Mr. Greenwood's injuries were of minor character and he will be able to be out in a few days.

Mr. Duffy has a wide circle of friends in the business who regret his accident exceedingly, and they are in high hopes that his severe hip injuries will not leave him permanently crippled.

"The Unbeliever" in High Favor.

Nate Erber, manager of the Lincoln Square theater, Decatur, and the Palace, Danville, is at present visiting a number of large cities in the interests of "The Unbeliever," the seven-reel Edison production which is now being released through the George Kleine System. Mr. Erber left Chicago Monday evening, March 18, for St. Louis, to address an audience of city officials and members of the Chamber of Commerce at a private showing of the film in the Missouri Athletic Club, Tuesday. After leaving St. Louis, he will visit Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, making frequent trips to Decatur and Danville to oversee the management of his theaters.

Mr. Erber became so enthusiastic about "The Unbeliever" after seeing it at a private presentation in Chicago, that he offered his services to exploit it, as he believes it should be exploited.

M. H. Hoffman Reports Great Success of "The Eagle's Eye."

M. H. Hoffman, president of Foursquare Pictures, Inc., who has been making a tour of the exchanges of that organization throughout the country, came into the city March 18 from Detroit. Mr. Hoffman declared himself as being well pleasude with the business done by the Chicago office. He left for Cleveland Tuesday, March 19, for a trip which will embrace Cincinnati, another visit to Detroit and the return to Chicago. Mr. Hoffman is especially gratified with the success of the company's new serial, "The Eagle's Eye," which is in great demand throughout the country.

J. S. Edwards, Kansas City, a Visitor.

J. S. Edwards, Sr., recently appointed district representative of the United Picture Theaters of America, Inc., at Kansas City, Mo., was present at the recent meeting of that organization in Chicago. He is one of the old-time exchange men who has been in the business from the start. He was part owner of the old Yale Exchange, Kansas City, with A. D. Flinton and others, for four years, before it was sold to the General Film Company. He was then appointed manager for the General in Kansas City and held the position for four years. He was afterward district manager in the same city for three years, with Pathe Exchange, Inc., and later held a similar position with Paramount for four months. Mr. Edwards is still a young-old man with lots of pep and enthusiasm. His son, J. S. Edwards, Jr., who is following his dad's footsteps, has been manager of Pathe's Kansas City branch office for four years, and is the oldest manager, in point of service, now with that organization.

Essanay Soon to Produce Two Great Features.

Essanay will soon engage in the production of "Young America," with a specially selected cast, and this will be followed in due time by "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." In each of these a separate cast will be employed, the players to be selected in New York and brought on here. In selecting players for the various types of characters, the greatest care will be exercised, and the departure will doubtless result in a greater display of art and in increased favor for features of the Essanay brand.

C. R. Seelye Visits Chicago.

C. R. Seelye, vice president and general manager of United Picture Theaters of America, Inc., arrived in the city Sunday morning, March 17, from Detroit, and left the same night for Indianapolis to join Lee Ochs, president of the organization.

Ruth Stonehouse Visits Parents Here.

Ruth Stonehouse arrived in the city last week and is visiting at the home of her parents. It is about two years since she left the Essanay forces, on Argyle street, to join Universal and afterward Triangle in Los Angeles. On her way she visited her husband, Joseph Roach, who is now training at Camp Lewis, Wash. After a brief stay in Chicago she will go on to New York.

Maud Moore Clement Goes to Los Angeles.

C. A. Frambers, president of the Photodrama Club, Chicago, informs me that Maud Moore Clement, secretary of the club, has just recovered from a severe illness and will soon leave for Los Angeles to resume her scanario writing. She expects to locate there permanently.

Thee meetings of the Photodrama Club have been discontinued for the duration of the war and Mrs. Clement has been made several offers by producers in the west. She has written quite a number of dramatic plays, and as a writer for the screen she has been quite successful. Mrs. Clement was the author of the winning script of the Edison-Dramatic Mirror contest.

Max Goldstine Secures Orchestra Hall.

Max Goldstine, manager of Famous Players-Lasky Company, has been lucky enough to secure Orchestra Hall for the exclusive showing of Artcraft and Paramount pictures during the summer months. Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" will be the opening feature of the season, which will begin Monday, May 6.

JAMES E. EWENS EXPECTS SOON TO BE IN FRANCE.

James E. Ewens dropped into the Screen Club in infantry uniform and told a World reporter that he expects soon to be on his way to France. Brother Screener Ewens has been marvelously set up by his recent training and is physically competent to handle any tough job that comes his way. It was his picture experience that gave him the privilege of being in the officers' school. With all the others in the draft he was given a chance to command first a squad and then a platoon. He had been the right hand man of Director Emil Chautard for three years and had assisted him in handling the mob scenes in many pictures. Chautard is an artist to his finger tips; but not being born to the English tongue lacked something in getting punch into large groups of players. Language lagged too far behind the knowledge of what was wanted. So Ewens was relied on to furnish the direction in scenes with crowds. This gave him much experience in handling bodies of men and it naturally showed up in the way he conducted the drilling of a platoon. The company commander noticed it and in choosing individuals to try for commissions Ewens' ability attracted favorable attention.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE KILLS SUNDAY BILL.

The bill to legalize motion picture exhibitions on Sunday in the State of Kentucky, introduced by Representative Lazarus, was killed in the House of Representatives at Frankfort on March 18, by a vote of thirty-six to fifty-six.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. HARLEMAN

Premiere of "Hearts of the World"

Griffith's Great War Picture Given Initial Presentation at Clune's Auditorium.

GRIFFITH'S stupendous war drama, "Hearts of the World," was given its premiere presentation in Los Angeles at Clune's Auditorium, Tuesday, March 12. Never in the history of "legitimate" drama or motion pictures has a production been given such a reception as was given this marvelous picture by a brilliant and critical audience.

It is hardly necessary to state that the Los Angeles photoplay colony was present. So were many of the dignitaries and department heads of the city administration. No grand opera premiere has ever seen a more brilliant and distinguished audience. A great many soldiers were of course present, including a number of French and English officers. To them the picture would be of particular interest. Thousands of people were clamoring for admission on the outside, but there was not a seat to be had when the curtain went up.

A Los Angeles premiere of an important film production is always a great event. Particularly so if the picture is made here and many of the local players have taken part.

We have never seen such a reception as given this picture. It was one continuous ovation from start to finish. When the last scene faded out the audience stood up and cheered themselves hoarse—calling for Griffith to come out and make a speech. The producer emerged from behind the curtain. He spoke a few words of thanks. He would have said more, but was overcome with emotion.

Dustin Farnum Company Starts Production.

As announced a few weeks ago, Harry Sherman, well known feature film exploiter, has started in Los Angeles a producing company, Sherman Productions, Incorporated, to make western pictures starring Dustin Farnum. "The Light of the Western Stars," by Zane Grey, has been selected as the first vehicle for Mr. Farnum. Roy Clements, well known director and scenario writer, has been engaged during the past few weeks in dramatizing the book and putting it in scenario form, in collaboration with Charles Swickard, who will direct the Farnum pictures. Mr. Swickard is a feature director of long experience, having formerly been connected with the Thomas H. Ince forces.

Roy Clements.

Winifred Kingston, who has appeared in many roles with Mr. Farnum, will be the leading woman.

The company has left for Tucson, Arizona, where they will be able to secure the settings necessary to the depiction of this thrilling story of the southwest.

Mr. Sherman now holds a contract for all of Zane Grey's books that have not been sold for motion picture rights and for all his future works and intends to star Dustin Farnum in all of them. Included among these are "The Roaring U. P. Trail," which is now having a tremendous sale.

Zane Grey has written to the effect that he will come to California this spring to remain for some time in order to be present during the production of his stories.

The motion picture rights to "The Wolf Breed," by Jackson Gregory, have been purchased by Mr. Sherman for the second production. "The Man in the Open," by Roger Pocock, has also been purchased by Mr. Sherman.

"I really believe that I own some of the greatest western stories ever written," stated Mr. Sherman to a representative of this paper. "With the organization that I have now perfected I feel sure that we shall make the very highest type of productions. Mr. Farnum is not under contract to make any certain number of pictures a year and we are not going to rush our work but will spare no effort or expense in turning out productions which measure up to the top notch standard."

It is Mr. Sherman's intention to dispose of these pictures on the state right basis.

Goldstein to Have New Trial.

After having denied a motion for a continuance of the Robert Goldstein trial on March 12 Federal District Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe reversed his decision and granted a continuation until Tuesday, April 2. This court action was not taken until after Attorney J. H. Ryckman of the defense had filed a motion asking that another judge be named to try the case. Ryckman submitted a typewritten affidavit charging Judge Bledsoe with being biased and prejudiced against the defendant, Goldstein.

A conference between the court and the attorneys resulted in a compromise providing for a withdrawal of the motion for change of venue and agreeing to a continuance of the trial until April 2. Goldstein, who was in court, showed the effects of prison life. Since last November he has been incarcerated in the Los Angeles county jail.

Baker Takes Charge at Metro Studio.

George D. Baker, well known Metro director, has arrived in Los Angeles and has assumed the post of director general of the Metro west coast studios in Hollywood.

Joseph W. Engel, treasurer of Metro Pictures Corporation, is in charge. Clifford P. Butler, newly appointed studio manager, takes care of cast, setting, locations and similar details, and Albert Shelby Le Vino, head of the scenario department, selects and writes stories or scenarios.

As one of his first efforts in the west Mr. Baker will direct Edith Storey, Metro star. Frank Reicher, who directed Miss Storey in "The Claim," and is now directing her in "Treasure," will direct Viola Dana in her next Metro production, which is now in preparation.

Joseph M. Schenck on the Coast.

Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Comique Film Corporation, which is the producing organization of "Fatty" Arbuckle's comedies, is in Los Angeles for a brief stay. Mr. Schenck is accompanied by his wife, Norma Talmadge.

While Mrs. Schenck is visiting her sisters, Constance and Natalie, and their mother in Hollywood, Mr. Schenck is enjoying "roughing it" in the wilds of San Gabriel Canyon, where Fatty Arbuckle is producing a comedy. Mr. Schenck's visit will extend a week or ten days.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

The Yorke-Metro Film Corporation, which produces the Harold Lockwood features under the direction of Fred J. Balshofer, is back again in Los Angeles. After an absence of a little over six months, which was spent in the East, the company returned here Saturday, March 9, coming from Jacksonville. The Yorke party included Wiley J. Gibson, business manager; William E. Edwards, Jr., assistant director; Antonio Gaudio, cameraman; John B. Clymer, scenario writer; John Schonberger, violinist; Harry H. Poppe, publicity representative; Pauline Curley and William Clifford.

* * *

Reginald Barker, who is now directing the Thomas Dixon picture, "One Woman," is contemplating becoming an independent producer. The action of George Beban, Dustin Farnum and Sessue Hayakawa in forming their own companies has prompted Barker to plan a similar move.

* * *

Paul H. Dowling, publicity director of the Paralta studios, was called into active service in the Naval Reserve on March 9. The day before he went he was given a farewell dinner. The climax of the evening was the presentation of a platinum wrist watch, suitably inscribed. "Pat" Dowling is one of the most popular and capable publicity writers on the Coast.

* * *

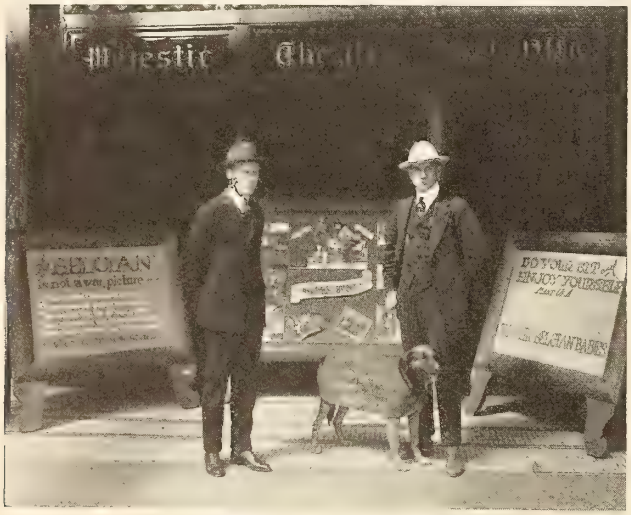
Sam Comer, assistant to Purchasing Agent L. H. Buell, of the Triangle Culver City studios, has enlisted in the Signal corps at the aviation camp at San Diego.

* * *

Universal City was saddened by news that Franz Jensen, who had come to the "Big U" lot as a cameraman from New York, had been found dead in bed in his apartments in Hollywood on March 10.

* * *

This is a picture of W. A. Bishop, district manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, on the left, and Harvey E. Gausman, field manager, on the right, who presented "The Belgian" at the Majestic, Los Angeles, beginning the week of March 17, under the auspices of the Belgian Relief Committee, Chamber of Commerce.



W. A. Bishop and Harvey Gausman.

* * *

A suit involving the business affairs of the Cabrillo and Plaza Theaters, the two big moving picture houses adjoining each other on the Plaza, San Diego, was begun in the superior court on March 8 by the Plaza Amusement Company against R. E. Hicks, who has been the president and business manager of the company since its institution, it being the owner of both of the theaters. It is charged in behalf of the amusement company and its stockholders that the defendant, Hicks, obtained a lease upon the Cabrillo Theater and then conspired to injure the business of the companion theater adjoining, with the alleged object of making the lease he held upon the Cabrillo more valuable.

* * *

Gilbert P. Hamilton, Triangle director, has filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court giving his liabilites as $44,921.83, of whch $38,236.20 are unsecured. His assets are $1,599, of which $1,284.50 are alleged to be exempt. The greater part of his debts arise from a stockholders' liability, the petitioner owning 16,000 shares of the capital stock of the Problem Motion Picture Company, 10,000 shares of the Century Film Company and 14,000 shares of the Albuquerque Film Manufacturing Company.

* * *

The Red Star benefit entertainment given at the Majestic Theater March 15 under the auspices of the Polytechnic High School drew a packed house. The benefit was the first attempt of the Polytechnic High School students to raise money for the purchase of a Red Star Ambulance to be donated for service in France. The affair was a great success. Charles Murray, as master of ceremonies, amused the audience with his humorous introductions. The program consisted of fifteen numbers, in which appeared Mary McLaren, Lillian Gish, Mr. and Mrs. Billy Mason and other moving picture stars.

* * *

Here is Myron H. Lewis seated in his office at the Paramount Exchange in Los Angeles. Mr. Lewis has for five years been local branch manager of the Progressive Motion Picture Company, and when appointed to his present position held the unique record of being the youngest film exchange manager in the United States. He is still in the twenties.

Myron H. Lewis, Branch Manager Progressive Motion Picture Company.

* * *

The return of William Farnum, the William Fox star, to California, was regarded as a most happy event by everybody in the West Coast Studio at Hollywood and certainly so by Frank Lloyd, his director, who has been preparing the way for his appearance.

Mr. Lloyd had everything ready for Mr. Farnum to begin work, and this photograph was taken on a set in the studio when the star began looking around at the place in general and at the sets that had been made for his new picture in particular.

William Farnum and His Director, Frank Lloyd.

ANOTHER MARYLAND BILL AGAINST THEATERS.

On Monday, March 11, another drastic bill against the interests of the moving picture theaters of Maryland was introduced at Annapolis by Delegate Roy M. Custer. In this bill it is provided that moving picture theaters shall provide seats for all ticketholders under penalty of from $10 to $100, and in another bill, which was introduced by the same person, it will be unlawful to smoke in moving picture theaters.

MONG OBTAINS RARE PRINTS OF LINCOLN.

William V. Mong, noted character actor, who has been seen in many recent Triangle productions, has added several rare prints to his wonderful collection of Lincoln portraits. They are copies of photographs made by Brady, for whom the President frequently posed, and Mong, who has long been a student of everything pertaining to Lincoln, counts them among his cherished possessions.

Film Division in New York

Branch of Committee on Public Information with C. S. Hart in Charge.

THE Film Division of the Committee on Public Information, of which Charles S. Hart is director of distribution, has just opened offices in New York at 110 W. 40th street. The committee has a rich fund of information relating to the war and its numberless activities that can be conveyed to the public by means of the motion picture. The films picturizing this information are being made continuously by the Government and most of them can be had through no other source. Therefore the industry, and especially the exhibitors, are vitally interested in the announcement of this new office. In an interview Mr. Hart said:

"During the past two weeks, since becoming engaged in this work for the Government, I have found everywhere the finest spirit of co-operation by producers and exhibitors and everywhere a willingness to do anything which can possibly assist in giving the people throughout the country a better idea of what the Government is doing with their money. It is my belief that pictures can do this more effectively than any other medium.

"The plan now under way is such as to enlist the aid of all; manufacturers, distributors and especially exhibitors. It is upon the exhibitors we must depend for patriotic loyalty and support in getting these films to the public, and the Government knows that it can depend upon this loyalty and co-operation from exhibitors and producers.

"The plan of distribution will be announced very shortly. It is unnecessary to state that it will be based on the usual Government method of giving everyone an opportunity to serve. Certainly there is no monopoly on patriotism and no percentage but one hundred per cent.

"In addition to the pictures taken at the front a number of others are now ready."

Phil Lang and Kalem Part at Last

Scenario Editor at Post for Seven Years—Has Been Production Manager.

PHIL LANG, who carries the unique distinction of having been scenario editor for one company for seven years, announced this week that he finally has closed his desk at the Kalem office.

Mr. Lang became the Kalem editor in 1911. After four years of energetic service he was made vice-president, an office which he later surrendered prior to his departure for California, where, as editor and production manager, he supervised Kalem's four companies on the coast. He still, however, held the scenario reins for the eastern company. When Kalem discontinued production last year, Mr. Lang returned to the New York office, where he has been engaged in numerous executive duties.

Phil Lang.

It is said of Mr. Lang that he had a great deal to do with originating the modern continuity, and that he perfected the smoothness of screen story telling in the days when pictures were for the most part episodic and jerky. He has developed a score or more of expert writers on his staffs and throughout the country, and has been signally successful in bringing famous fiction writers and dramatists to an understanding of screen requirements. When the Kalem Company produced features, Mr. Lang in person prepared many of the important scenarios.

Files of the Moving Picture World bear eloquent testimony of Mr. Lang as an educator, and his various articles on plot and continuity have shown the way to more than one ambitious writer.

While Mr. Lang has made no announcement regarding future plans, it is to be inferred that he will interest himself in scenario work—a field in which he has so long been prominent. Of late he has put his clear-cut style into fiction, numerous stories from his pen appearing in Smart Set, the Munsey publications and other magazines.

Ferdinand Zecca an Old-Timer

New Production Head of Pathe Was In at the Birth of the Motion Picture Drama.

IN furtherance of the Pathe policy of quality production, Ferdinand Zecca, one of the pioneers of the motion picture art and inventor of many of the present-day methods of production, has come to America as director general of productions for Pathe Exchange, Inc. Mr. Zecca will supervise all of the Pathe productions in America.

More than twenty years ago Mr. Zecca, realizing the great opportunities of development of the new art, turned his attention from the phonograph to the motion picture. Charles Pathe, who up to that time had devoted all of his attention to the talking machine, also turned to the animated picture. Mr. Pathe and Mr. Zecca were the first to realize the possibilities of elaborating on this simple form of animation, and in 1900 they made the first motion picture drama.

Ferdinand Zecca.

"The Little Story of a Crime," the picture was called. It was 150 feet in length and it contained three sub-titles—the first time a sub-title had been used. The first exhibitors who received prints returned them indignantly. They complained they were paying for motion pictures, not for literature, and it required considerable persuasion before they would even show them. The innovation made a decided impression with the public and that first "feature" had a widespread sale, followed by a demand for more productions of the same kind. That was the beginning of Mr. Zecca's success. Soon after he was made Supervisor of Productions with control over the Pathe Studios in Europe, which position he maintained until he came to America.

In those early days Mr. Zecca wrote his own stories and his own scenarios. He put up his own sets, painted them, directed the actors, turned the camera and then printed the film by hand, two feet at a time, using a jeweler's glass to make sure that the positive and negative perforations were in register. From this beginning Mr. Pathe and Mr. Zecca perfected the modern printing machine. Mr. Zecca is a master of the technical problems of the business and is an expert on lenses.

Since America came to the front ranks of motion picture producers, Mr. Zecca has made a careful study of our output. He is of the opinion that the greatest fault today is with the scenario.

"My principal aim will be to get, first of all, a good, strong story. We will spend as much time as is necessary in the preparation of the scenario," said Mr. Zecca.

LIEUTENANT KAUFMAN HONORED.

The esteem with which Albert Kaufman, now a lieutenant, is held by the employees of the eastern studio of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, of which he was the general manager previous to his enlistment, was evidenced last week by the presentation of a gold tablet, 4½ inches wide and 8½ inches high, appropriately illustrated, and on which was engraved on one side: "To Albert Kaufman from his associates of the Famous Players as an expression of their sincere and enduring esteem."

State Rights Department

Conducted by C. S. SEWELL

Merit Film Corporation Buys Several Productions

Secures Greater New York Rights to "The Struggle Everlasting," "An Accidental Honeymoon," "Life or Honor" and Gaumont "News" and "Graphic."

THE Merit Film Corporation have purchased the rights for Greater New York for the Gaumont News and Gaumont Graphic, and announce the first release dates to be Sunday, March 31, and Thursday, April 4, respectively, and regularly thereafter on each Sunday and Thursday; further, that, due no doubt to the reputation of Gaumont's efficient news service, a number of big bookings are already on record for this addition to their service. A strong feature of these releases is the exclusive views from "over there."

The Harry Rapf productions, "The Struggle Everlasting," with Florence Reed, and "An Accidental Honeymoon," featuring Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein, have also been secured by Merit Film Corporation for Greater New York, and trade showing will be held within a short time. Another feature production secured by this concern for New York is the Ivan Film Production's latest release, "Life or Honor."

Contracts secured by the Merit Film Corporation have enabled them to release a new production every two weeks, and they announce that within a short time they will be in position to release a production each week.

Adolph P. Reiben, in charge of Brooklyn and Long Island territory, reports that the prospects are fine for a successful film drive with their products. Mr. Reiben has gained an enviable reputation as an energetic film salesman and an up-to-date business man. His qualifications enable him to be of great service both to buyer and seller, and to center their confidence in himself.

Eagle's Eye Aids Liberty Loan

Trailer Showing Uncle Sam, with Appropriate Sub-titles Urging Audience to Buy and Help Win War.

EXHIBITORS are finding the pictures of Uncle Sam incorporated at the end of each episode of "The Eagle's Eye" a potent factor in aiding the third Liberty Loan drive.

The Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District has sent a following letter to the Whartons:

"On behalf of the Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District may I express my gratification and appreciation for the very effective publicity which you give the campaign in your new serial, 'The Eagle's Eye.' The picture itself will undoubtedly do much to bring home to all who see it the realities of the war and a conception of the task ahead of us, and Uncle Sam's specific appeal for the Liberty Loan between the reels should help greatly to crystallize emotions and feelings into action." The picturing of Uncle Sam has nothing to do with the action of any chapter in "The Eagle's Eye." He is shown by means of appropriate subtitles in an appeal for purchases of Liberty Bonds and Thrift Stamps.

Such subtitles as "Buy a Thrift Stamp and Shorten the War," "Help the Kaiser Lose His Job," "Buy a Liberty Bond," "Buy a Liberty Bond and Drive a Nail in the Coffin of Imperialism," "Let Your Money Work for Humanity," "Buy Thrift Stamps and Liberty Bonds" break the action and visualize the appeal.

The exhibitor has the option of whether or not to run this trailer, but the demand has caused the Foursquare exchanges to attach it to the ending of each episode.

M. H. Hoffman Writes from Missouri.

M. H. Hoffman, who left New York several weeks ago on a trip to establish close relationship with exhibitors, announces from Kansas City, where he is stopping before going to Dallas, that his journey is yielding satisfactory results, and that, while his extensive traveling is partly to co-operate with Foursquare exchange managers, it is also largely to ascertain the wants of exhibitors and to take measures to supply those wants.

Mr. Hoffman further states, "To work to the fullest advantage requires constant maintenance of 'the point of contact' between the home office and exhibitors. It has been a matter of gratification to discover that the men whose progressiveness is most pronounced agree with me in those fundamentals which I consider form the foundation for successful motion picture distribution. Excellent productions at reasonable rentals, and the providing of co-operative service, which constitute the Foursquare aims, all meet with the approbation of exhibitors whose desire it is to push ahead. Everywhere I go enables me to realize that the methods of reckless methods of distribution are passing, and those of us who have contended that the exhibitors are our best friends are finding that analysis to be the correct one."

Francis Ford Film on State Rights.

Having finished his first production, "Berlin via America," Francis Ford announces that he is considering offers for territorial allotments on this thrilling story by Elsie Van Name. Since the announcement that he has become an independent producer, Mr. Ford has received many inquiries from state rights buyers, theater men who in the past have played many of his productions, and fans among whom he has long been a favorite. Mr. Ford, in addition to his duties as producer and director, himself enacts one of the principal characters in the story, an aviator in the army of the Huns who is not all he appears to be.

Edna Emerson plays opposite Mr. Ford in the role of a real American girl "doing her bit."

The story is said to contain an element of mystery which is not cleared up until the final big scene; then, too, the sweet love theme which runs through the play has its final answer, and over all hovers a spirit which today is world-wide in its effects—the spirit of patriotism.

Offers have already been received for various territories throughout the country, and announcement of franchises will be made later.

Scene from "Berlin via America" (Francis Ford).

"Romance of the Underworld"

Keeney's First Production Based on Paul Armstrong's Play—Starring Catherine Calvert—Deals with Criminal Phase of New York Life.

THE screen version of "A Romance of the Underworld," which is to be the first release of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation, differs considerably from the Paul Armstrong play from which it is taken. Whatever changes have been made are said to be essential to the effectiveness of the film presentation of the story. Mr. Keeney promised to make the screen version "more thrilling than the play."

Doris Elliott, a beautiful girl brought up in a convent, suddenly finds her life transplanted into the underworld in New York. She goes to live with her brother. Her guileless nature sustains a shock when it is revealed that he is a member of a gang subservient to an unscrupulous political boss, and that he is a purveyor of drugs to "dope" fiends.

The revelation is brought about by Thomas McDonald, a lawyer, who is determined to expose the boss, Michael O'Leary. O'Leary runs across an unsuspecting girl friend of Doris', Mamie Bronson, and makes an appointment to meet her at an opium den in Chinatown, promising she will find her brother, Benny, who has fallen a victim to drugs. She goes, and is drugged and ruined by O'Leary. She finds her brother, and tells him her story.

Later, O'Leary attempts to force his attentions upon Doris. Her brother, Richard, attempts to shoot O'Leary. The boss holds Doris in front of him, and retreats. Suddenly he seizes a poker, and strikes Richard on the head, knocking him to the floor. Then there is a shot, and O'Leary falls dead.

Richard is cared for by friends who rush in. Doris, believing her brother killed O'Leary, takes the revolver and sits by the corpse until the police rush in. She is placed on trial for her life; then comes a thrilling court scene. Doris is defended by McDonald. He endeavors to console her, but her case appears hopeless. Suddenly a new witness appears, and the trial is brought to a startling ending.

Gerard Picture for State Rights.

Subsequent to the announcement contained in our last issue to the effect that no decision has been reached as to the method of exploitation of "My Four Years in Germany," based on Ambassador Gerard's experiences, it was decided that this picture will be released on a state rights basis, and already a number of bids have been received for this production, which is enjoying a successful run at the Knickerbocker theater, New York, at advanced prices.

Definite announcements as to the allotment of territory will be made in later issues.

Hirsh Buys "Still Alarm" from Selig.

Nathan Hirsh, of the Pioneer Film Corporation, has purchased the negative for "The Still Alarm," which was produced by Selig. With the exception of New York State and northern New Jersey, which he will retain, the remainder of the territory will be disposed of on state rights basis.

Mr. Hirsh says there is a call for strong melodramatic productions, and that exhibitors are making their wants known at the exchanges, and are puzzled as to why some of the famous melodramas which were so successful are not produced in pictures; their main argument being that these plays would come to them with previous advertising that made them a success, at the same time offering their patrons a new type of picture and story.

Simmonds Speaks About W. H. Productions Reissues

Makes First Statement Regarding Company's Policy and Methods and Announces a Series of Shorty Hamilton Two-Reel Pictures.

JOSEPH SIMMONDS, president of W. H. Productions Company, makes his first statement to the trade since the inception of W. H. Productions Company last November.

"The general consensus of opinion is that the film industry is unstable in that it is different from any other industry," says Mr. Simmonds. "The same basic principles applied by Ford, Woolworth, and Sears Roebuck can be successfully applied to the film industry.

"It is a well-known fact that the motion picturegoing public has increased largely within the past two years, so that the productions we are now releasing were never seen by the new film fans.

"The lover of literature when he wants the best does not go to the nearest Joseph Simmonds.

book store and secure a copy of the latest story, and from the fact that it is the latest feel content that it must be the best. The teachers of theology do not search for any treatise superior to the bible. Thus might be likened the William S. Hart and other subjects which the W. H. Productions are distributing. They are classics of screen drama.

"In the W. H. Productions Company features the prints are new; the tintings are the most modern obtainable. In fact everything possible has been done to make them new from every view point. There are from two to four prominent screen stars in each of our features.

"We intend to do a large business at a small margin of profit, so that the public can be made a part of our organization. We are creating in the minds of the independent exchangeman and the exhibitor a desire to come to the W. H. Productions Company for the best, because they are assured of good treatment, good pictures, and fair prices. We will not advertise one thing and try to sell another. Each of our productions is chosen with care.

"It is likewise regrettable that a certain self-appointed critic and would-be scribe should allow himself to be influenced by desire for recognition by sensational methods. In a very crude way this scribe called exhibitors fools for booking reissues. We believe that any man with red blood in his veins resents being called a fool. Many of the biggest exhibitors of the country, men of tested ability, keen foresight, and business acumen are featuring W. H. Productions reissues, and are playing them under appropriate titles given them by W. H. Productions Company, and are getting dollars out of their box offices and satisfying their patrons.

"It does not seem possible that these men who employ good judgment and showmanship in the conduct of their business would like to be considered fools in giving the public what it wants.

"We are now about to release a series of five Bessie Barriscale features, and also a series of eighteen two-reel Shorty Hamilton pictures. We are reconstructing each one of these in their entirety, so that when they go to the public they will be as modern, as interesting, and as new as it is possible to make them. In fact in giving these productions their new main title in all of our advertising matter there will be a caption stating that it has been adapted from the original productions, because a number of exhibitors have advised us that such patrons who have originally seen these features, upon recognizing the title, would want to see them again."

Scrantonia Adds to Activity

Will Produce Six and Seven-Reel Features—De Barge Is President and General Manager.

THE Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation, which has announced for release six one-reel comedies featuring Charlie Fang, the Chinese comedian, will also commence producing six and seven-reel photoplays to be released by way of the state rights market through Jesse J. Goldburg.

Negotiations are pending for the purchase of the Crystal Palace at Rocky Glen, Pa., situated six miles from Scranton. This is said to be the largest glass inclosed structure in the United States.

Mr. De Barge, the vice-president and director general of the Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation, was born in Antwerp, Belgium, and educated in the "Adene Royal," at Antwerp. He then went to Paris and studied dramatic art for three years, after which he was engaged by Pathe P. Freres at Paris, and continued in their employ for several years, and was later engaged as director by the British Colonial Pictures Company in London. Upon completing this contract Mr. De Barge came to America and worked for the old Imp and Biograph Companies, after which he returned to Amsterdam, Holland, and entered the dramatic field in Louis Baumester's Company playing in stock.

Returning to America, Mr. De Barge was engaged by the Famous Players, and supported among other stars Mary Pickford. Donald Brian, and Pauline Frederick. He then directed the productions of the French Art Pictures Corporation, producing among others "Mother's Fate" and "The Ten Commandments."

Before joining the Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation, Mr. De Barge was connected with the Sidney Olcott Players in the production, "The Belgian."

Good Booking for King-Bees.

Three prominent photoplay houses in New York have just booked the King-Bee comedies, the Seventy-Seventh street and the One Hundred and Tenth Street on two-day schedules, and Fox's Star theater on a four-day schedule.

Many Foreigners See Flynn Serial "The Eagle's Eye"

Bohemian Annex in Heart of New York's "Little Germany" Shows First Two Episodes to Crowded Houses.

EXHIBITORS who may have held "The Eagle's Eye" was "too contrary to the thoughts and opinions of German patrons" will find the experience of Mr. Schwager, of the Bohemian Annex, enlightening. Mr. Schawger's theater is in the heart of New York's "Little Germany." Police registration records show that the immediate territory served by the Bohemian Annex at 334 East Seventy-fourth street contains a greater percentage of "alien enemies" than any other section of New York, which probably means that there are more Austrians and Germans there than in any other place in the country.

Despite the fact that it might be expected that such a clientele would not care to see Count Von Bernstorff, Captains Von Papen and Boy-Ed, and others who represented their countries in the United States exposed as villains the Bohemian Annex played to capacity houses at each showing. The night that the first episode depicting the sinking of the Lusitania was shown the street in front of the theater was so jammed that the police reserves were called.

Contrary to expectations the crowd remained orderly. Those who did not succeed in getting inside for the first showing waited patiently for the second, or third show. As proof that "The Eagle's Eye" was the attraction almost the same crowding of the street attended the showing of the second episode, "The Naval Ball Conspiracy," and many left immediately after the serial was shown.

The manner in which the audience viewed the picture was an interesting study. Some of the younger auditors applauded heartily. The older folks, however, regarded the revelation with stolid silence. They seemed to have come for enlightenment rather than for entertainment.

As a result of the packed houses in the Bohemian Annex three other houses in the immediate vicinity within eight blocks have booked "The Eagle's Eye." The Claremont theater, at 74th street and First avenue; the Yorkville Heights theater, at 78th street and First avenue, and the Superior theater, at 81st street and First avenue.

Steiner Takes Another Trip

Also Tells About Entering Comedy Field After Many Years' Experience in Other Manufacturing Branches.

WILLIAM STEINER, about to start on his second tour of the United States on behalf of the Jester comedies, is enthusiastic over his venture into the comedy field. In speaking of his new undertaking he said that he only wished that he had entered the comedy field many years ago.

As Mr. Steiner puts it, "Here I have been manufacturing film of every description but comedies for the past twenty-three years. Up to a few months ago if one mentioned the word 'comedy' I felt as if I wanted to fight, but now it is different. The work I find very interesting and to my liking. With Twede-Dan as my comedian, I have a find. Not alone is he an unusual comedian with a style that is original and all his own, but he possesses a dramatic touch that is not often found in a man doing his class of work. My first trip was practically one of jollification, and before I knew it I was back in New York with the entire country, excepting the District of Columbia, disposed of for the Jester comedies, featuring the mirth-maker, Twede-Dan.

"Up to the present time the first two releases, 'The Recruit' and 'His Golden Romance,' are enjoying success throughout the United States, and are appearing in a number of the week-stand, first-run houses.

"The third of the Jester comedies, 'All "Fur" Her,' to be released in April, stands up in quality to the first two, and work has been completed on the May release, 'The Wrong Flat,' which is now in the process of its final cutting.

"I have already secured my stories for the following seven, which will complete the first year's output. It is my intention to have all these comedies on hand ready and completed, with paper and advertising matter, so that they will be in the hands of the various exchanges far in advance of their release month.

"And one more thing to which I attribute the success of disposing of the Jester comedies is the 'show-you' policy that I have inaugurated. I want everyone to see them first and then decide whether they are suitable or not."

Novel Scenes in "His Daughter Pays."

In the forthcoming release of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation, "His Daughter Plays," based on the play, "La Baccarat," Gertrude McCoy plays the role of a Salome dancer, and in a cabaret scene she is assisted by a troop of Turkish dancing girls.

These girls and many others also appear in a scene which the producers say is one of Oriental splendor. A large swimming pool is used, and the girls perform many aquatic feats. Another scene shows a large ballroom in which over one hundred couples are dancing at one time. While this scene was being filmed at the Kalem studio it was necessary to place the camera several feet outside a doorway in order to get enough room, and the studio is said to be one of the largest in New York City. The set for still another scene in which the cast is shown playing baccarat is said to be almost an exact duplication of the famous European resort, the Monaco, situated near Nizza.

Release dates for "His Daughter Pays" will be forthcoming within the next two weeks.

Gaumont "News" and "Graphic"

These News-Reels Available on Receipt by Exchange—Will Not Be Held for Definite Release Date.

IN connection with the announcement that the Gaumont news reels will be issued on state rights basis the Gaumont Company calls attention to the fact that these issues will be released on the dates of shipment from the factory, and that shipments will be made from New York every Tuesday and Friday morning. As soon as the reels are received by the buyers they will be placed on exhibition. This means that there will be no stale news in the News and Graphic. This will obviate the holding up of the showing of the news until a set release date for each issue even though the news reel might be received by the exchange several days in advance. The first issue of the Gaumont News will be shipped on Tuesday, March 26, and of the Gaumont Graphic on Friday, March 29.

The Gaumont Company further states that the demand for news on the screen has become so insistant that no theater which tries to please its patrons can afford to omit the news reel from its program, and that until they entered the independent field state right buyers were unable to offer their patrons any pictorial news service. At this historic period it is said that more newspapers are being sold than ever before due not only to the ever increasing education of the masses, but to the people's desire to keep posted about war happenings.

Telegrams and letters received by the Gaumont Company indicated such a demand that representatives were sent to interview a number of representative buyers, with the result that the greater part of the country has already been contracted for.

Braddon Joins Webster Productions.

John D. Braddon, formerly with the William Fox forces during the production of "Les Miserables" and other big feature films, has been engaged by the Harry McRae Webster Productions, Inc., as technical director for "Reclaimed," a seven-reel feature by Richard Field Carroll, now in preparation, starring Niles Welch and Mabel Julienne Scott.

Scene from "The Scholar" (King Bee).

Webster Producing "Reclaimed"

Well-Known Director Making a Seven-Reeler Based on Story by Richard Field Carroll—Niles Welch and Mabelle Julienne Scott Featured.

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER, president of Harry McRae Webster Productions, Inc., producing the seven-reel feature, "Reclaimed," by Richard Field Carroll, author of "Kismet," is well known for his activities both in connection with the stage and motion pictures.

While connected with the stage he managed Virginia Harned in a repertoire of her greatest successes. The following season he took over the Empire theater in Columbus, Ohio, and installed a stock company. The excellence of his productions soon brought him a lucrative offer from B. F. Keith as managing director of the Chestnut Street theater, Philadelphia, and as director of his Providence house. He afterwards took over the Park theater in Philadelphia, where he installed his own company.

Harry McRae Webster.

Mr. Webster wrote, and in conjunction with Mr. Frank Henderson, of Jersey City, produced "Lieut. Dick, U. S. A." It was at this time that George K. Spoor and G. M. Anderson, of Essanay, persuaded him to enter the film industry, and gave him the management of their Chicago studio, and it is said that the following screen stars made their first pictures under his supervision: Francis S. Bushman, Beverly Bayne, Bryant Washburn, Lenore Ulrich, Dorothy Dalton, Louise Glaum, Ruth Stonehouse and Dorothy Phillips.

It was during the time that he was with the Essanay that he evolved the first moving picture stock company. Later he was associated with the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., directing King Baggot. His independent productions during the past three years were respectively, "The Victory of Virtue," with Gerda Holmes and Wilmuth Myrkle, and "The Devil's Playground," featuring Vera Michelena, soon to be released.

Last winter he produced for the Monmouth Film Corporation, of which he was president and director general, the "Jimmie Dale Alias 'The Grey Seal'" series, written by Frank L. Packard, and starring E. K. Lincoln. This was a 32,000-ft. picture, and was released through the Mutual Film exchange.

Snappy Advertising Campaign for Rapf Productions

Issues Exploitation Book for "The Struggle Everlasting"—Also Trailer and Other Novel Aids.

STATE rights men who buy territory on "The Struggle Everlasting" from Harry Rapf will not only receive a print or two of the picture and paper and cuts, but Mr. Rapf has also planed a live-wire exploitation campaign on this picture, which he will carry direct to the exhibitor through the state rights buyers, and not only assist the exhibitor in properly advertising his picture, but help him get the most money possible out of the showing of "The Struggle Everlasting."

"I have issued an exploitation book," said Mr. Rapf, "that the smaller exhibitor who has to map out his own campaign will know what to do and how to do it. The exhibitor who has a staff to handle his publicity and advertising knows, in most cases, just how to handle a picture, but the small exhibitor needs assistance, and this is the man I am trying to help. I want to see exhibitors make money on my pictures, because that is the only way I can come back and sell them another. I have spent a great deal of time and money in producing 'The Struggle Everlasting,' and I want to see exhibitors cash in on it.

"With Florence Reed, Milton Sills, Irving Cummings, Wellington Playter, and others it can honestly be referred to as an all-star cast without stretching one's imagination. The story is strong and gripping, and staged in a spectacular manner."

One of the advertising novelties issued by Mr. Rapf consists of a trailer to be used by exhibitors from five to six days prior to showing of the picture until day of showing, introducing the star with a scene of the picture, and calling attention to a few of its big scenes. This trailer is furnished free of charge, and affords the exhibitor advertising right in his own house without a cent's expense. An attention compelling one-sheet is also issued, both being now ready for immediate shipment. With these advertising helps, Mr. Rapf feels exhibitors can create considerable interest in the coming of "The Struggle Everlasting." There will also be a trailer attached to "The Struggle Everlasting" announcing the coming release of Mr. Rapf's other state rights picture, "The Accidental Honeymoon," with Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein.

More Bookings for Tarzan

Eighty-one Prints Now Engaged for First Five Weeks—Dates Contracted for as Far Ahead as September.

"TARZAN of the Apes," the forthcoming release of the First National Exhibitors, in its positive form has been delivered to the various branches and exchanges of that concern, and within the past week over seven hundred days of bookings have been accepted. According to Mr. Williams and Mr. Schwalbe, of the First National, not in their many years in the film business has a picture created the response as that accorded "Tarzan."

Since announcement in our last issue, Loew's Stillman at Cleveland, Globe at Boston, Hippodrome at Dallas, and Zoe theater at Houston, Texas, have engaged a print for first run. Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, wired for a print in order that he could screen it for the purpose of deciding as to whether he would run it for an indefinite engagement at his new house in Pittsburgh.

The Hippodrome at Buffalo booked to show this picture for periods of one or more weeks, and Harry Crandall's new house at Washington, D. C., will open with "Tarzan."

Of the ninety prints issued by the National Film Corporation through the First National circuit, it is said that but nine remain unbooked for the first five weeks following release date, and bookings have already been consummated for such distant dates as June and July in Sheridan, Wyo.; Macon, Mo.; Des Moines, and Omaha, with August and September bookings recorded at Bayonne, Montclair, Caldwell, N. J., and Grand Island, Neb., and other smaller cities.

The picture as turned out in its final state by Watterson R. Rothacker's laboratory contains thirteen hundred scenes, of which but two hundred and eighty feet are titles. There are two hundred and seventy-one hand-colored scenes, and one hundred and ten decorated title cards were used in the printing.

Mr. Rothacker, himself, came to New York, and in company with Isidor Bernstein of the National; J. D. Williams, and Harry Schwalbe and Harry Reichenbach studied the picture for several days before going back, and upon his return to Chicago gave the work on Tarzan his personal attention. The prints have been reduced in length from nine thousand feet as shown in New York to seventy-two hundred feet for general release.

Strong Cast Supports Petrova

Includes Thomas Holding, J. Herbert Frank, E. J. Radcliffe, W. J. Carlton, Edith Hinkle, Helen Walton and Matilda Brundage.

IT was announced from the offices of the Petrova Picture Company that "Tempered Steel," in which Madame Petrova has been working, is now finished and ready for assembling and cutting. This picture was written expressly for her by George Middleton, author of the Broadway success, "Polly with a Past," now playing at the Belasco theater nightly. The production has been made under the direction of Ralph Ince, and photographed by Harry Harris and his assistant.

The leading role of Lucille Caruthers is interpreted by the Polish star, while opposite to her, in the part of Richard Sheldon, is Thomas Holding, who was also in the leading male character of the three former Petrova productions. The "heavy" role is held down by J. Herbert Frank, well known for his appearances in support of Clara Kimball Young, Marguerite Clark and other leading players. Prominent also is E. J. Radcliffe, who has to his credit forty years of experience on the stage, and is making his screen debut with Madame Petrova. The feminine contingent is well represented in the persons of Edith Hinckle, Mrs. Helen Walton and Matilda Brundage, all of whom have been seen in screen successes of the leading feature companies. A peculiar touch of sentiment is loaned to the appearance of William T. Carlton, famous for many years as manager of the Carlton Opera Company and well known as a singer of tenor roles. This is Mr. Carlton's first time in pictures.

"The Great Star" is scheduled for release through the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit during the latter part of April, following the publication of the third Petrova picture, "The Life Mask," on March 14.

Parrott to Direct King-Bees.

Charles Parrott, formerly director of Keystone comedies, is now director general of the King Bee Billy West comedies.

Mr. Parrott has been in California for several seasons and has directed several successful comedies in recent years, including the burlesque on "A Fool There Was," "Chased Into Love," "His Bomb Policy," "Bing, Bang," etc.

Mr. Parrott was formerly a vaudevillian and won considerable success as an Irish monologist. He is now working on his first King Bee comedy, to be released May 1.

Foursquare Pictures to Give Bonuses to Employes

Official Announces Extra Recompense to Exchange Managers and Salesmen to Stimulate Distribution of Their Products.

PROGRESSIVE methods are always welcome, and it is announced that Foursquare Pictures, distributors of "The Eagle's Eye," "The Bar Sinister," "The Cast-Off," and other features have established a system of bonuses for their exchange managers and salesmen.

"This plan," said P. V. R. Key, "is the result of the decision to make it personally advantageous to every member of our branches to secure the widest possible distribution of Foursquare films. From the beginning it has been the purpose of our organization to build for permanence. There will be first figured out the reasonable gross income which a photoplay should bring. A division of all bookings in excess of this amount will be made in a way that will give to the exchange a percentage in addition to which they are entitled in the distribution of the feature. In a sense such a plan will make every person who secures a contract a sharer in excess profits.

"This move," continued Mr. Key, "is one of several which our executives have in mind for the benefit of Foursquare Pictures and for its exchange managers and their subordinates. Mr. Backer has long held that a profit-sharing arrangement is one of the surest means of enlisting the fullest enthusiasm in an organization, but it was not until Mr. Wildberg joined Foursquare and explained how bonuses in his own manufacturing industries had worked out so satisfactorily that this procedure was agreed upon." Mr. Hoffman, who is in the West, reports that the idea is being enthusiastically received.

Kunsky Praises "Mickey."

J. H. Kunsky, one of the most prominent exhibitors in the country, and a keen judge of picture values, saw "Mickey," and made the following statement:

"It is marvelous. It is the greatest photoplay I have ever seen. It runs the gamut of every human emotion.

"'Mickey' is the perfect photoplay. It is different, and the most notable characteristics in this production are the absence of bloodshed, battle scenes, and sex problems. It is a big, clean picture that will appeal to everybody, and I predict that 'Mickey' will have a wonderful career throughout the entire world.

"I wish to convey my thanks to the Western Import Company for the opportunity extended to me in seeing 'Mickey,' and trust that I may also have the opportunity to play 'Mickey' in my theaters."

Drummond Buys More Pictures.

W. E. Drummond, President of the Special Features Company, Knoxville, Tenn., is now in New York, and expects to remain for several days, during which time he anticipates closing contracts for territorial rights to a number of state right productions. He has already secured rights to Pyramid Comedies and "Modern Lorelei" for Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi and North and South Carolina, during this trip.

Connelly's Work in "Satan's Pawn."

The first Bessie Barriscale production released by W. H. Productions Company, "Satan's Pawn," points out the evils of the much abused phrase, "platonic friendship." Edward Connelly, who appears as satan, was also cast in the role in the stage production, "The Devil," from which the picture is adapted. His interpretation is that of a dual character visible in the human flesh and invisible in the environment. The story tells of the association of a former sweetheart who is married to another with the artist whose services have been secured to paint her portrait. Though respected for their good character they feel the force of satan and his invisible influences. The invisible satan is made felt by association in tempting and alluring environment, while the physical devil is that of acquaintances and friends who assist them in their clandestine meetings.

Ann Dearing in Gerard Picture.

Considerable attention has been focused on Ann Dearing, who occupies the unique position of portraying the only prominent female role in "My Four Years in Germany," and being the only woman mentioned in the cast of this picture which is based on Ambassador Gerard's book and experiences in Berlin while representing the United States Government.

Miss Dearing, who plays the part of Aimee Delaporte, the mysterious unknown woman, comes of an English family well known in connection with the stage; this is only her second appearance in moving pictures. She acts intelligently, and is ambitious to make a career for herself in pictures.

"Life or Honor" Shown to Trade.

On March 21 a trade showing of the latest Ivan Film Production, "Life or Honor," featuring Leah Baird, James Morrison, and Violet Palmer, was held at Loew's New York Roof theater, and it is announced that it was attended by a large audience who greeted the picture with much applause, there being a number of remarks by buyers that it was a distinct deviation from former Ivan productions. The production was directed by Edmund Lawrence, which is in accordance with the policy adopted by I. E. Chadwick since he became head of the concern, and the next release is being produced by Francis J. Grandon, who has directed a number of productions in which prominent screen stars have appeared, including Olga Petrova.

Title of Fourth Petrova Picture Changed.

The title of the fourth production of the Petrova Pictures Company starring Madame Olga Petrova has been changed from "The Great Star," and this picture will be released under the caption, "Tempered Steel." This new title is said to be peculiarly appropriate as the story, which is from the pen of George Middleton, author of "Polly With a Past," one of the season's stage successes, deals with the terrific nerve strain and suspense which the leading character undergoes in her struggle to work out her own destiny in the face of strong parental opposition.

King-Bee Claims a Record.

Julius Singer, manager of the Bee Hive Exchange, handling the King Bee Billy West comedies exclusively in Greater New York and New Jersey, is authority for the statement that this brand of comedies is played in two hundred and seventy-five of the three hundred and eighty moving picture theaters in Greater New York. That is an average of almost 80 per cent., and is claimed to be a record for an exchange that is not yet four months old, handling comedies, while the King Bee Film Corporation, making the pictures, will not be a year old until May 1.

Eltabran to Handle Jesters.

Mr. William Steiner, of the Jester Comedy Company, has disposed of the rights of the Jester comedies for North Carolina to the Eltabran Film Company, of Charlotte, North Carolina.

With this sale the only territory left open on the Jester comedies is the District of Columbia.

Wharton's Talk of Serial

Issues Statement Regarding Chief Flynn's Patriotic Picture.

WHARTON Releasing Corp. advises that the showing of the first episode of "The Eagle's Eye" has had an unexpected reaction; letters have been received by them, as well as the Foursquare Exchanges, demanding to know if the facts in regard to the sinking of the Lusitania are actually true. These letters indicate the amazed outbursts of people who have been astounded by the revelations of Imperial German perfidy. Circular letters have therefore been sent to Foursquare exchange managers and exhibitors booking the picture which reads:

"The entire twenty episodes of 'The Eagle's Eye' are based upon actual facts of twenty of the greatest conspiracies conceived by the Imperial Gorman Government's spies and plotters in America. Many of the episodes deal with plots that were frustrated by the alertness of the Secret Service, and in these not only are the facts as they occurred shown, but the results which the Imperial Germans planned to accomplish by the crimes are also pictured.

"Only the actions of the fictional characters are not based upon actual fact, and even these follow lines which are indicated by evidence, but for which actual proof was not obtained. As an instance of this: It has never been actually discovered as to exactly which means was used in communicating the plans for the torpedoing of the Lusitania. The first episode of 'The Eagle's Eye,' which deals with this Imperial German outrage, accordingly shows every means the spies here possessed of communicating with Germany."

Nilde Babette of Jester Comedies.

Nilde Babette, appearing as leading comedienne opposite Twede-Dan in Jester comedies, while a new comer to American-made films, is not new in the film art, as she has appeared in many pictures made in France and Italy, and also has acted on the stage in Paris. Miss Babette has only been in this country for a few months, but is fast becoming Americanized, and what little she has seen of America thus far she proclaims as most charming. She has seen a great deal of the war in Europe, and has several brothers in the French Army and a number of sisters with the French Red Cross.

Miss Babette has formed a knitting circle, and regularly sends to the boys "over there" many of the things most needed. Besides being an accomplished actress she is a crack rifle shot and an expert horsewoman. Her debut in pictures in America was in "The Recruit," and she will be seen in all the forthcoming Jester releases.

Private Premiere for "The Life Mask."

Following the custom established with the initial Petrova production, "Daughter of Destiny," a special private premiere will be given to the third picture, "The Life Mask," which will be shown to the reviewing press April 1. This screening will be held at one of Broadway's largest photoplay theaters, and will be followed by a luncheon tendered to the members of the various moving picture trade journals by the Petrova Picture Company.

"The Life Mask" was written by the anonymous author of the famous story, "To M. L. G." It is a melodrama, and a new type of vehicle for the display of the Polish star's emotional talents. The production was directed by Frank Crane, who produced the Goldwyn feature, "Thais," with Mary Garden, and was made at the Petrova studios, New York, and at Miami, Florida. It is said to contain many beautiful examples of photography together with several unique camera effects.

Sales of the Week

Activities in the State Right Market During the Past Seven Days.

RIGHTS to Jester comedies featuring Twede-Dan have been secured by the Eltabran Film Company, Charlotte, for the state of North Carolina.

* * *

Merit Film Corporation has secured the rights for greater New York to the news reels issued by the Gaumont Company, "Gaumont News" and "Gaumont Graphic."

* * *

Olsen & Co., Times building, New York, have purchased from Frohman Amusement Corporation rights to all of their productions except "My Own United States" for Denmark, Holland, and Sweden.

* * *

Harry Rapf Productions have sold rights for greater New York for "The Struggle Everlasting" and "An Accidental Honeymoon" to Merit Film Corporation, as announced in article in another column of this issue.

* * *

Rights to the Jewel productions, "The Doctor and the Woman," "The Price of a Good Time," and "The Co-respondent," for Africa have been sold by the Renowned Pictures Corporation to the African Film Trust.

* * *

Ivan Film Productions announce the sale of Greater New York rights to "Life or Honor?" to the Merit Film Corporation.

* * *

King-Bee comedies featuring Billy West will be handled by the Bee-Hive exchange, recently formed in Seattle, Wash., for the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana.

* * *

Wisconsin Film Company, Toy building, Milwaukee, has purchased from W. H. Productions Company rights to Wisconsin for five Bessie Barriscale features which they are handling.

* * *

Globe Feature Film Company will handle Sterling Pictures Corporation productions in the New England States.

Trade Showing of "Moral Suicide."

The premiere public presentation of "Moral Suicide" produced by the Graphic Film Corporation under Ivan Abramson's direction was held on Tuesday last at the New York Roof theater

For his theme Mr. Abramson, who is the author as well as the director, has taken the story of a man who falls victim to the charms of a beautiful siren of the adventuress type, and the subsequent fight that ensues between his daughter and this woman for the destruction or salvation of his soul. The different emotions that prompt the action of the two women and the conflicting spirits that cause the father to turn from one to the other are depicted. John Mason is seen as the father, Anna Luther as the daughter, and Leah Baird as the adventuress.

Seattle to Have Bee-Hive Exchange.

In accordance with a deal just completed, Mark Goldman will be the manager of a new exchange to be located in Seattle, to be known as the Bee-Hive exchange, which will handle the King-Bee Film Corporation's Billy West comedies exclusively in the states of Washington, Idaho, Oregon, and Montana

Mr. Goldman recently left for Seattle carrying sixty prints of the King-Bee two-reelers, and upon arrival will engage a staff of salesmen and office assistants for this exchange.

Exhibitors' Aids on "Crucible of Life."

An exploitation campaign is now being prepared by General Enterprises in the interests of their production, "The Crucible of Life," produced by Captain Lamber, and featuring Jack Sherrill, Grace Darmond, and Frank O'Connor. This production lends itself readily to effective advertising, as it deals with the work of the German spy system, and contains scenes of the war and scenes of patriotic interest.

A press sheet will be issued containing a special musical score written by W. J. McKenna, and the musical publishing firm of F. B. Haviland will supply exhibitors with a complete orchestration of "My Broken Rosary," forming the dominant theme of the score on request. An elaborate line of lithographs ranging from two styles of one-sheets to a magnificent patriotic twenty-four-sheet stand is being prepared for "The Crucible of Life" by the Greenwich Lithograph Company. Cuts suitable for magazine and newspaper use will be furnished together with slides, heralds, and a complete line of accessories.

Wisconsin Film Buys Barriscales.

Wisconsin Film Company, Toy building, Milwaukee, has purchased the rights for the state of Wisconsin to the entire series of five Bessie Barriscale features, which are being marketed by the W H. Productions Company. This purchase is in addition to the W. S. Hart reissues of the W. H. Productions Co. which the Wisconsin Film Co. are already handling for this territory.

Gordon Handling Sterling Pictures.

N. H. Gordon, of the Globe Feature Film Company, has closed a contract with Sales Manager H. R. Ebenstein, of Sterling Pictures Corporation, by which his exchange becomes affiliated with this organization handling productions under the "sterling system."

The initial release for New England territory, where this exchange operates, will be "The Hypocrites," the George Loane Tucker production, which will be released on April 1. Mr. Gordon advises that he is an ardent admirer of the technical skill and artistry of George Loane Tucker, and that the theaters of New England are already requesting advice as to trade showings and other information regarding this release.

Pioneer Handling "Carmen of Klondike."

Pioneer Film Corporation, who control the New York State and northern New Jersey rights to "Carmen of the Klondike," announce that following a simultaneous showing at two neighboring Broadway houses in New York, the Strand and the New York, this production has been booked for seventy days over the Marcus Loew Circuit, to be followed by other large circuits, and that they have ordered fifteen prints, with indications that five more will be needed. In addition five prints are being used from their Buffalo office for bookings in western part of New York State.

This production, which is the first one marketed by State Right Distributors, Inc., features Clara Williams, and is a story of Alaska written by Monte Katterjohn and directed by Reginald Barker.

Serial Shows Hun Raids on Cotton.

In one of the episodes of "The Eagle's Eye" will be shown how the agents of the Hohenzollerns used the cotton boll as an instrument of destruction.

Germany wanted cotton badly. In one of the papers taken from the portfolio of Dr. Heinrich Albert it is shown that Germany sought to corner the entire cotton output of the United States. Having been stopped from receiving cotton by the cordon of battleships which Great Britain had thrown across its lane of shipping, Germany made up its mind that if it couldn't get cotton no one cuold get it, and if anyone did get it, it should be a Frankenstein that would destroy them.

The result was that cotton formed the basis of many a crime in which Boy-Ed, Von Papen, Albert, and even Johann Von Bernstorff, Imperial German Ambassador to the United States, were involved—crimes that ran all the way from arson to murder, and even to slow torture of the ill and injured.

What the Pictures are Doing

Reports from Exhibitors and Exchange Men Regarding State Right Features.

TWO of the leading houses in Ithica ran the initial episode of "The Eagle's Eye" on the same night to packed houses, a majority of the audience remaining to see the serial over again. William Dillon, owner of one of the houses, states it represents an entirely new phase of serial photodrama, and gives information that every American should know.

* * *

Sydney Samson, assistant manager of Foursquare exchange, who is making a tour of New York State, advises that in Albany, Troy, Schenectady and other points showing the "Eagle's Eye" have attracted large attendance, and that exhibitors who hesitated to book this serial are eager for later installments.

* * *

H. Gainsborg, manager of New York Foursquare exchange, advises that Foursquare features are proving their worth to exhibitors, and that the "Cast-Off," featuring Bessie Barriscale, is being booked by numerous exhibitors.

* * *

Colonel Fred Levy, of Big Feature Rights Corporation, recently visited New York and attended a showing of "Tarzan of the Apes." After studying the unique promotion mediums and viewing a performance he declared it would be a big money maker for exhibitors.

* * *

B. K. Bimberg announced that he has shown William S. Hart in "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain" at his Standard, Schuyler and Broadway Photoplay theaters, New York City, to capacity crowds, and calls attention to the fact that this was immediately after a week's run of this picture at the Eighty-First Street theater, and has requested an early date for the second Hart reissue handled by W. H. Productions, "The Bandit and the Preacher."

* * *

Magnet Film Exchange announce that the first W. H. Productions-Mack Sennett Keystone reissue, "The Small Town Bully," is being booked heavily throughout New York.

* * *

King-Bee Films Corporation announce that Fox's Terminal theater, Newark, N. J., has made what is claimed to be a record by running three King Bees, "The Slave," "The Rogue," and "The Orderly," seven days each, a total of twenty-one consecutive days.

Steiner Completes Cliffside Studio.

Work on the reconstruction of Mr. William Steiner's studio at Cliffside, N. J., where the Jester Comedies and other pictures are made, has been completed. With the new improvements Mr. Steiner announces he is in position to manufacture anything in the way of motion pictures, from a one-reel to a ten-part feature.

A special housewarming was held on Friday last to celebrate this event. Covers were spread for some two hundred guests, and a great jollification was held, followed by dancing on the new studio floor.

W. H. Announces Shorty Hamiltons.

W. H. Productions Company announce that they intend to reissue to the independent exchange men on a state rights basis a series of sixteen Shorty Hamilton two-reel Western comedy-dramas featuring this popular player.

A further and more detailed announcement will be made later.

"Old King Sol" to Wait.

Lou Burstein, president of the King-Bee Film Corp., announces that the production of their first five-reeler entitled "Old King Sol" has been postponed indefinitely; that the King-Bee Company will confine itself to making two-reelers only.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

Wide Variety of Subjects in Coming Triangle Pictures

THE keynote of variety which has been a basis of the Triangle schedule has been struck in the new plays, which include, in addition to society dramas and Western subjects, a modern play with an Oriental setting and several "crook" plays by the well-known romancer of the New York underworld, John A. Moroso. During the past week three new pictures have been started, and five companies worked steadily on their various productions.

Following her recent appearance in "The Love Brokers," Miss Rubens is cast as a seeress in a new romantic drama entitled "Judith," which Gilbert P. Hamilton is directing. Little Pauline Starke, who has recently been featured in "The Shoes That Danced" and "Innocent's Progress," will have a leading role. Edward Peil will support Miss Rubens. Peggy Pearce, of the Triangle Keystone beauties, has been given her first dramatic role in this production. The cast also includes Lillian Langdon, Anna Dodge, Iris Ashton, Myrtle Rishell, Alice Crawford, Walt Whitman, Lee Hill, Lee Phelps, and Ward Caulfield.

"Her Decision" is the working title announced for Director Jack Conway's drama, the second picture which has been put into production during the past week. This marks the third dramatic appearance of Gloria Swanson. J. Barney Sherry has a featured role, and Darrell Foss and Ann Kroman are included in the supporting cast. The plot for this play is based on a girl's sacrifice to save her sister.

Director Raymond Wells has started work on "Mlle. Paulette," comedy-drama in which an attractive actress and a scion of wealth play the leading roles. A summer camp in the mountains in the vicinity of New York provides the locale for this story. Claire Anderson is seen in the title role. Wallace MacDonald is the leading man. Others in the cast are George Hernandez, George Pearce, Walter Perry, Anna Dodge, and Dot Hagar.

The filming of "An Honest Man," William Desmond's vehicle, which is being directed by Frank Borzage, is nearing completion. Desmond is seen as a knight of the road who is something of a sleight-of-hand performer. Mary Warren is again seen as Desmond's leading woman. Ann Kroman and Graham Pette are included in the supporting cast.

With another week of good weather, Director Cliff Smith expects to have the Roy Stewart Western subject, "Paying His Debt," completed and in the film editing department. In this play Stewart essays a dual role for the first time since joining Triangle nearly a year ago.

Triangle Director Thomas N. Heffron expects to finish the filming this week of "The Lonely Woman," from the story by John A. Moroso, a tale of the tragedy which lay buried in the heart of a woman in a little hamlet close to the shadow of the walls of Sing Sing. Belle Bennett is seen in the featured role, and is supported by an exceptionally strong cast of Triangle players.

Warlike Touch in Telegram.

The progress of the war at home as well as in the trenches is graphically told in Issues 6 and 7 of Screen Telegram, released by the Mutual Film Corporation March 20 and 24. The extent of America's preparations is shown in pictures from many sections of the United States. At Atlanta the governor of Georgia and the mayor of Atlanta plowed up a city park to plant war gardens. At Racine, Wis., they are making thousands of tractors for France. At St. Louis an armless veteran of Verdun is training teachers to teach wounded American soldiers. At St. Paul a huge statue of Germania was razed. Detroit pigeon raisers are training pigeons to carry messages to the trenches. The school children of Denver are learning to knit, and the troops in the Southwest are receiving great consignments of knitted wear from the Red Cross.

"Over There" the American troops are entering the trenches, pictures showing their departure, the operation of trench kitchens, and the training of hospital units for trench duty are shown. In Morocco the native troops are being trained for duty in France. Official French war films show Italian and French engineers operating a trench digger and throwing up wire entanglements in preparation of the threatened Austrian advance.

Lloyd Finishes Divorce Picture.

Work has been completed in the west coast studios of William Fox on the standard production, "The Blindness of Divorce," and it is scheduled for an early April release. "Social conditions as they exist today, with particular emphasis on the divorce evil, are graphically shown in this new picture," says an announcement from the Fox offices.

In the cast are Charles Clary, Bertha Mann, Rhea Mitchell, Nancy Caswell, Bertram Grassby, Marcus Robbins, Willard Louis, Fred Church and Al Fremont.

Goldwyn's Initial Selexart Release Is "Blue Blood"

THE production chosen by Goldwyn for its first Selexart release is "Blue Blood," a powerful drama starring Howard Hickman. As the initial production of a group of three Goldwyn offers it is with confidence that "Blue Blood" embodies all that exhibitors and public want. It is a story of the desires, ambitions and ultimate end of thousands of Americans today. Effectively produced, with a wealth of fine photography and clever titles it offers to the accomplished players chosen for its interpretation every opportunity a good actor needs in order to drive home a strong lesson.

Howard Hickman, in the role of Spencer Wellington, scion of an old family, does the finest acting of his career. He portrays the depravity which often curses the owner of blue blood in a way that leaves nothing to the imagination. The young man, wth incipient paresis, which later causes him to indulge in all the excesses of a diseased brain, is a screen portrait which will not soon be forgotten.

With startling fidelity to life, "Blue Blood" proves that ownership of an old name does not necessarily imply that its possessors are either strong in character or in distinguished ancestry. That it is a fallacy to suppose that because a man's immediate forbears are well known he is himself worthy of respect is graphically brought out in this play. Spencer Wellington (Howard Hickman) is shown to be descended from the scum of London's slums, yet he is looked upon as a true scion of distinguished ancestry until the audience is shown what manner of men were his forefathers.

That "Blue Blood" is the forerunner of two other Selexart productions equally meritorious and calculated to please popular taste is Goldwyn's guarantee. These are "Honor's Cross," featuring Rhea Mitchell, and "Social Ambition," with Rhea Mitchell and Howard Hickman.

"Blue Blood." "Honor's Cross." "Social Ambition."

Scenes from the Three Selexart Subjects to Be Released by Goldwyn.

Double Quartet of Stars in Paramount April Issues

FOR April the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation presents an array of drawing cards disclosing the latest screen accomplishments of eight of the famous Paramount stars. Male and female luminaries share honors in this schedule, there being four of each sex on the release chart—Marguerite Clark, Billie Burke, Dorothy Dalton and Vivian Martin and Sessue Hayakawa, Wallace Reid, Jack Pickford and Charles Ray. Two of the productions come from the Thomas H. Ince plant.

The initial Paramount release will be Sessue Hayakawa in "The Honor of His House." Staged under the direction of William C. DeMille and written by Marion Fairfax, the eternal triangle in this photoplay receives a twist that transforms it. Florence Vidor supports the Japanese actor, others in important parts being Maym Kelso, Forrest Seabury and Tom Kurahara. This film will be released on April 1.

April 8 will mark the release of pictures starring Jack Pickford and Wallace Reid. Jack's new photoplay is an adaptation from the story by Harry Leon Wilson, "His Majesty, Bunker Bean." Julia Crawford Ivers has caught the spirit of the story and William D. Taylor scores a triumph in staging it. Louise Huff, in the part of "The Flapper," appears opposite Jack, the supporting cast including Hart Hoxie, Jack McDonald, Frances Clanton, Peggy O'Connell, Gustav Seyffertitz and Edythe Chapman.

Wallace Reid's appearance will be in "The House of Silence," by Margaret Turnbull, and offers a thrilling drama in which a wealthy clubman is called into a mysterious house where a murder has been committed. Staged under the direction of Donald Crisp, the film discloses Ann Little in the supporting cast, together with Adele Farrington, Winter Hall, Ernest Joy, H. A. Barrows and other well known film players.

Marguerite Clark and Vivian Martin are the stars to appear on March 15. Miss Clark's vehicle is "Rich Man, Poor Man." This subject by Maximilian Foster, the noted novelist, has had wide publicity. J. Searle Dawley staged it. In the cast are Richard Barthlemess, George Backus, Frederick Warde, J. W. Herbert, Donald Clayton, William Wadsworth, Ottola Nesmith, Mary Davis and Augusta Anderson.

Vivian Martin's picture is "Unclaimed Goods," by Johnston McCulley, scenarioized by Gardner Hunting. In this film the star appears as a Western girl, the daughter of a sheriff who passes through the experience of being shipped as an express package to a mining town. Rollin S. Sturgeon directed. The cast includes Harrison Ford, Casson Ferguson, George McDaniel, Carmen Phillips, Dick La Reno and George Kunkel.

"Playing the Game," Charles Ray's photoplay, directed by Victor L. Schertzinger, is marked for April 22. The story, by Julien Josephson, has to do with a young Easterner who as a result of riotous living is compelled to fly to the plains where romance and many exciting events await him. Doris Lee appears oposite Mr. Ray.

The final releases of the month, on April 29, are Billie Burke in "Let's Get a Divorce" and Dorothy Dalton in "Tyrant Fear," an Ince production. Miss Burke's play, the scenario of which was written by John Emerson and Anita Loos, offers a satire on the ease of sundering the marital knot. Charles Giblyn is the director. The cast includes John Miltern, Pinna Nesbit, R. La Roque, Armand Kalise, Helen Tracey, Wilmuth Merkyl and Cesare Gravina.

"Tyrant Fear" is expected to prove one of Mr. Ince's best film offerings of its kind. The story of the Canadian wilds is filled with strong dramatic situations. R. William Neill directed. In the supporting cast are Thurston Hall, Melbourne MacDowell, William Conklin, Lou Salter and Carmen Phillips.

Chambers Sketching for De Luxe.

Charles Chambers, artist and illustrator, is making the sketches for the interior scenes of "The Street of Seven Stars," the Mary Roberts Rinehart story in which Doris Kenyon will appear at the head of her own company A number of the scenes of the story are laid in the Latin Quarter of Paris. Mr. Chambers spent several years in the quarter during his student days, and is thoroughly familiar with the surroundings.

Among the most important of the sets is a grand salon that was once occupied by a former empress, but which degenerated into a pension housing three aspiring American artists; a coffee house, which was the headquarters of the artists and students; a doctor's club, where the attendants of a famous clinic congregated; a dance hall, and the establishment of a celebrated modiste. Elaborate drawings of each of these interiors are being made by Mr. Chambers from which the sets will be made and furnished by B. D. Carber, who has just been engaged as technical director of Miss Kenyon's productions.

Miss Kenyon Returns from Lake Placid.

Miss Kenyon and ten members of the De Luxe cast have returned from Lake Placid, where some of the exteriors of "The Street of Seven Stars" were filmed. While at Lake Placid the members of the company were the guests of the Lake Placid Club. More than two hundred members of the club entered into the spirit of furnishing realistic and artistic atmosphere for the picture. All of the participants were garbed in regulation skiing, skating, and coasting costumes. Amazing skiing jumps were made before the camera.

Miss Kenyon's daring work on the skis elicited the admiration of spectators. John B. O'Brien, who is directing "The Street of Seven Stars," declares the scenes taken at Lake Placid are notable.

"House of Mirth" in the Making.

After two months of searching the country for actors capable of interpreting the many complex characters in the story and planning sets that would do justice to the elaborate background depicted by the author, Metro has begun the production of Edith Wharton's great novel, "The House of Mirth." Every member of the company is a well known stage and screen player. The difficult role of the heroine, Lily Bart, is the only part that has not yet been cast. More than ten women stars have been under consideration for this character, and Metro will decide on one shortly. The scenario of the book has been prepared by June Mathis and Albert Capellani. Mr. Capellani will also direct the picture.

Henry Kolker will pay Lawrence Selden. Joseph Kilgour is cast as Augustus Trenor-Dorset. Edward Abeles has been engaged to play the important role of Simon Rosedale, the Wall Street broker. Mr. Abeles is at present in the cast of "Oh, Lady, Lady," at the Princess theater. Lottie Briscoe, a screen favorite, will play Gertie Farrish, the girl who performs the unusual feat of living within her means.

Shurtleff Off on Trip.

E. C. Shurtleff, general sales manager for the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, left on March 22 for an extended trip covering Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis and Chicago. Mr. Shurtleff plans to be away until some time after the first of April in a big campaign to speed up the sales of Hodkinson Service throughout the central and middle west. Before leaving, Mr. Shurtleff stated he was optimistic concerning the business being signed up by the branches of Hodkinson Service.

"My trip," said Mr. Shurtleff, "will be one not only of inspection, but I also intend to do some real intensive sales work in each territory, bolster up any of our weak spots which, fortunately, are not many, and also outline to many of our most representative exhibitors the Hodkinson copartnership plan, which is now developing in first-class shape."

"She Couldn't Grow Up"" (Mutual).

There is a touch of satire on the late lamented coal situation in "She Couldn't Grow Up," Billie Rhodes' Strand-Mutual comedy which is scheduled for release April 2. The comedy opens in "the frozen East," with a glimpse of shovelers digging their way through five-foot drifts. The second scene is the interior of a freezing apartment, its occupants huddling on top an extinct radiator. The "atmosphere" for the opening scene was imported from Chicago, where a Screen Telegram cameraman took the shot during one of the January blizzards.

Billie Rhodes is supported in the comedy by Cullen Landis, and Eugenie Forde, the latter having recently joined the Strand-Mutual Company.

Scene from "She Couldn't Grow Up" (Mutual).

Scene from "Queen of the Sea" (Fox).

Brabin Found War Conditions on Pacific Coast

CHARLES J. BRABIN, who has just returned from the Metro Hollywood studios in California, where he has been directing "Breakers Ahead," starring Viola Dana, tells some interesting stories of conditions on the Coast which have arisen through the rigid war regulations that are in force there.

The first incident was a rather amusing one. The Metro Company had chartered the beautiful yachtlike tug America to transport the company to and from the locations every day in taking the seacoast scenes.

Every morning, although they had been going the same route for weeks, a Government patrol boat drew alongside, and a grizzled old officer boarded the tug.

"Get 'em out—line 'em up!" he would command gruffly to Director Brabin. After this official business was completed to his entire satisfaction, however, he would drop his gruff manner and whisper in the director's ear, "Now let's see you make some scenes—something with Miss Viola in it."

Another incident had rather a more serious aspect and nearly made Government prisoners of the entire company. One evening they were a little late in returning from location, and as it was getting dark they came across the bay with their flarelights blazing, which was distinctly against regulations. A gun fired across their bows made them stop in double quick time, as a Government patrol boat came alongside.

"Do you know you have every gun in the forts and on the battleships in the harbor trained on you?" shouted the voice of the commander of the Government boat. It was only when the special permit issued by General Murray, who is commander in chief of the Presidio, was shown to him that they were allowed to proceed on their way.

Another scare due also to war conditions, and which might have had a disastrous ending, happened one morning when the tug was taking the company to a location across the bay. There was a heavy fog coming in from the sea, and the America was going at a rather high speed. Suddenly, dead ahead, the lookout saw a floating mine. The engines of the tug were at once reversed, but the momentum of the boat was such that she crashed right into the mine.

"The fear and horror of every one aboard the tug when we thought we were rushing to certain doom may well be imagined," said Mr. Brabin, "and equally our blank amazement when we hit the mine and nothing happened. It was an anti-climax for which we were not prepared, and ended in hysteria for many of the women.

"After our senses had returned to us sufficiently to inquire about the matter we were told that the mines were not contact mines, but were controlled by electric current from the fort.

"However, this sobered us all for the day, and brought home to us as nothing else could have done the realities of war. We are taking it seriously now, and cooperating with the Government and its regulations in every possible way."

Gladys Hulette in Five Reeler

Pathe Program for Week of March 31 Is Well Balanced.

GLADYS HULETTE and Creighton Hale in a five-reel feature and Pearl White in a strong serial episode stand out in the Pathe Program for the week of March 31. Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale appear in "Mrs. Slacker," produced by Astra, written by Agnes C. Johnston. This picture marks the first appearance of these popular players as co-stars, and "Mrs. Slacker" makes an ideal combination of principals, with Paul Clerget, the French artist, also in the cast.

Pearl White appears in the fourth episode of "The House of Hate," entitled "The Man from Java," produced in two reels by Astra, under the direction of George B. Seitz.

"On the Jump" is a one-reel Rolin Comedy. It is one good, long laugh from start to finish.

Pathe Educational and Travel split reel in colors is "The Valley of the Dordogne, France" and "The Horse in Action," the latter having been taken with famous Pathe ultra-camera.

Hearst-Pathe News numbers 28 and 29 complete the program.

Allegory in "Wild Youth."

If Pan and his woodland rout peeped from behind a copse at Busch Gardens, Pasadena, recently and beheld the Denishawn dancers disporting on the broad lawns they no doubt felt that the earth had grown young again and that they must see to it that they were not displaced by these mortal revelers upon their preserves.

No Olympian scene could have equaled or surpassed in beauty the natural investiture afforded and which was used by J. Stuart Blackton, producing "Wild Youth" for Paramount, as a background for certain allegorical scenes in the picture.

It will be recalled that in "The World for Sale" the symbolic idea was employed when the Gypsy, Jethro Fawe, played the violin. His music conjured up visions terrifying, seductive, beautiful, as the case might be. This idea has been carried a step further in "Wild Youth" by the producer in symbolizing allegorically the victory of youth and love against the abortive efforts of old age to claim the latter. The atmosphere of the esthetic dance, the combination of charming effects of grace and beauty amid scenes of sylvan splendor will lend to the picture an enchantment that would be unattainable otherwise.

Scene from "Wild Youth" (Paramount).

Edison's "Wall Invisible" Pleases at Private Showing

A PRIVATE showing was given at the Edison studio on March 16 of the new Shirley Mason picture, "The Wall Invisible," which had been completed last month under the working title of "Aliens." Having been edited to six thousand feet and provided with most of the subtitles the feature needed but a few touches here and there to make it ready for release, and those who were present at the showing were able to form a good idea of its appeal.

Miss Mason's acting in the role of Kiku-San, the Japanese heroine, pleased everyone, and several of those present expressed the opinion that the new Edison offering would create a sensation. It is quite different from anything Miss Mason has previously done, being tragically dramatic in a number of the situations, though the comic spirit has not been neglected. The most striking characteristic is the action continuity, there being no waste of footage, but the whole moving forward with the unity, speed and logic of real drama.

Mr. Durning, the director, was complimented on the artistic sets, the invention of stage business, the smooth working-out, and some clever and novel lighting effects. Next to the star, Matt Moore's acting stood out in the role of the young American who marries an alien wife, individual hits being scored also by Miss Hawley, Frank O'Connor, and T. Tomomoto, the Japanese actor. A pleasing incident was the presence at the showing of J. S. Dawley, the former Edison director-in-chief, of whom Bernard Durning was a favorite protege.

What Fox Is Doing

Activities at the Eastern and Western Studios.

"Blue-Eyed Mary" is the title for a new picture which June Caprice is making in the eastern studios of William Fox. This is the working title of the production. It is described as a "sprightly adventure in the field of love." The scenario is by A. Francis Crowley and the direction by Harry Millarde.

"Brave and Bold" is the title of the new play George Walsh is making in the eastern studios. It is adapted from "Four-Forty at Fort Penn." The adaptation is by Perley Poore Sheehan and the direction by Carl Harbaugh. It is described as a mile a minute action story and is said to show Walsh in one of his best characterizations.

In the western studios "Confession" is the title of a new play which Jewel Carmen is making. It is an eventful story of an interrupted honeymoon. The bridegroom is accused of murder almost as he leaves the altar. Just when he is to be placed in the electric chair his bride saves him and the real murderer confesses to the crime.

"Her One Mistake" is the title of a new picture in which Gladys Brockwell is starred. It is being made in the western studios, and is described as a dramatic story of the unwritten law. Edward Le Saint is directing this picture.

"Fires of Hate" is the working title of a new play which Virginia Pearson is making in the eastern studios. The scenario is by E. Lloyd Sheldon and the direction by Edmund Lawrence. It is an up to the minute theme dealing with the history-making events in Russia.

Jane and Katherine Lee also are at work in the eastern studios on a play in which they save their aunt, a wealthy widow, from fortune hunters and crooks and finally manage to marry her off to the man worth while.

HODKINSON STARTS BOOKLET CAMPAIGN.

THE W. W. Hodkinson Corporation has announced a campaign for the informing of the exhibitor of the principles, ideals and benefits of the Hodkinson copartnership plan. The propaganda is taking the form of a series of folders with a limited amount of reading matter, dealing with the one point only. The first booklet of the series is entitled, "The Man Whose Dreams Came True," and, of course, deals with W. W. Hodkinson.

In the first booklet something is told of Mr. Hodkinson as a man, and the fact is pointed out that the prophecies and assertions made by Mr. Hodkinson some years ago in reference to the future of the business under certain conditions which were at that time considered to be merely dreams have been fulfilled.

The second booklet of the series is entitled, "The Master Builder," and gives in detail the achievements of Mr. Hodkinson to date. The purpose is to show why he has a claim for the confidence and support of the great body of exhibitors.

The third booklet of the series will detail the copartnership plan itself, and the title of the booklet, "The Copartnership Plan," indicates this.

ASTRA TO MAKE "HANDS UP."

Pathe Serial from Pen of Willets to Be Made in California.

THE first serial the Astra Film Corporation will produce for Pathe on the Pacific Coast is "Hands Up," from the story and scenario by Gilson Willets, novelist and traveler, who has been engaged on Pathe productions for many months.

"Hands Up" will be produced in Astra's California studios under the superintendence of L. J. Gasnier, president of Astra. It will be directed by James Horne. This is the second serial released by Pathe for which Mr. Willets is responsible. "Mystery of the Double Cross" was adapted for the screen from Mr. Willets' novel, "The Double Cross."

Mr. Willets is the author of twenty other books besides the "Double Cross," among them "The First Law," which has been adapted for the screen, and which will be released as a Pathe Play starring Irene Castle. In addition to his books Mr. Willets is a prolific magazine writer, and over a thousand different articles from his pen have been published in the periodicals.

As a screen writer Mr. Willets has many successes to his credit. Among them are the first motion picture serial, "The Adventures of Kathlyn," and the special features, "The Thundering Herd," "The Lily of the Valley," "I'm Glad My Boy Grew Up to Be a Soldier," and "I Hear Her Calling Me."

Mr. Willets published his first book at twenty-one. While still a youth he was editor of Current Literature, and, in search of literary material, traveled in all parts of the world. Among his exploits are traveling for three months through India in famine and plague time, making a long sledge journey through Northern Russia, Finland, Lapland, and Sweden, and crossing Northern Mexico on horseback His article in Leslie's Weekly entitled "The Rape of Niagara" started the country wide agitation which prevented Niagara Falls from being despoiled by commercial interests.

Won't Insure Picture

Agents Declare Big Lobby Drawing of Kaiser Is 100 Per Cent. Risk.

AN effort made by Jewel Productions, Inc., to insure the enormous painting of the Kaiser, used as part of the lobby display at the Broadway theater, where "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," is being shown, has proved fruitless. According to the agents who place the insurance for that organiaztion every insurance company writing this form of insurance has declined the business on the ground that it is a 100 per cent risk.

Poster Used for Lobby Display.

The painting in question is 7 feet high by 4½ feet wide. It is done in oil, and the object of the artist responsible for this conception of the Kaiser's true character was to bring out vividly the corruption and evil for which he stands. The left side of the face is done in green, while the right side of the face is in red. The background is black and white.

Daring Subject for Next Fischer Picture.

Critics and fans alike enthuse over Margarita Fischer's comedy-dramas produced for Mutual. This sprightly ingenue has become a "habit" with the public that likes snap and life in their amusement, and exhibitors are alive to the fact that she has a large and growing clientele.

Bookings on the Fischer comedy-dramas indicate that she is a consistent drawing card. The next production of this star will be "Primitive Woman," scheduled for release by Mutual April 1, and is based on a story world-old in subject, treated in a daringly original way.

Universal to Try Out English Scheme of Trade Shows

UNIVERSAL is to introduce the English system of localized trade showings in bringing its newest serial, "The Lion's Claws," to the attention of exhibitors throughout the country. A whirlwind campaign has already been carefully mapped out by the sales and advertising departments of this film company. The first six episodes of the serial have gone forward to all exchanges, together with instructions.

The English system of trade showings consists in dividing each territory into a number of sections, the largest town in each section being made a trade showing center. A salesman, equipped with the picture to be presented and samples of all advertising matter that goes with it, is sent to each center and invitations to attend the showing are issued to exhibitors in the region served by the particular exchange.

Universal plans two improvements on the British system of localized trade showings. The first consists in refunding to all exhibitors booking "The Lion's Claws," as the result of their visit to the trade showing center, the amount of their railroad fare. The second is an offer of a five per cent. discount to all exhibitors who desire to do business on a pay-in-advance basis.

Drews' Dramatic Venture Settling Down to Long Run

NOW that Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, co-stars in Metro-Drew comedies of domestic life, have made a tremendous success of their dramatic venture, "Keep Her Smiling," the John Hunter Booth play presented by Richard Walton Tully, Metro has no less than seven stars playing on the legitimate stage in and around New York. The Drews opened in New Haven recently to record business. This, in conjunction with the success of other Metro players similarly engaged, disposes of the contention that screen appearances injure the box office prospects of dramatic stars. The contrary has been definitely shown during the present season.

Mr. and Mrs. Drew will be kept busy outside of New York for some time, going to Detroit, Buffalo, and Boston, and then expect to settle down comfortably for an indefinite stay on Broadway. "Keep Her Smiling" is Mrs. Drew's first appearance on the dramatic stage, but so popular has she become in Metro-Drew comedies that there is not a city or town in the country where she will not be instantly recognized and welcomed, having become familiar to theatergoers by reason of her appearance as co-star with her famous husband in one-act classics such as "His First Love," "The Patriot," "Help Wanted," "Twelve Good Hens and True," and "The Model Cook."

Some of Metro's stars at present playing in New York on the dramatic stage are Mme. Nazimova, Ethel Barrymore, Lionel Barrymore, Emily Stevens, and Edmund Breese.

U-City Cuts Cost in Two

That's the Claim Carl Laemmle Makes for His Big Western Plant.

GRATIFIED at the reception accorded Universal's invitation to producers to avail themselves of the picture-making facilities of Universal City, Carl Laemmle has just issued a statement in which is asserted that those manufacturers who have already moved into its West Coast studios are assured of a saving of at least 50 per cent. in production overhead.

Mr. Laemmle bases his figures partly upon the present cost to the average producer of all materials that enter into the making of a picture; his organization's ability to get these materials at lower prices because of its quantity purchasing capacity; the extra overhead incurred by those producing units maintaining separate establishments, etc.

"I think a saving of 50 per cent. on overhead a conservative estimate," declared Mr. Laemmle in outlining the possibilities for economical production at Universal City. "As a matter of fact it is my belief that our organization may shortly be able to effect an even more substantial saving for the producers who are now in our studios.

"Its equipment makes Universal City an ideal place in which to produce motion pictures. There is every conceivable kind of a manufacturing plant right on the ground, and, thanks to this equipment, we can turn out anything from a perfect copy of the Venus de Milo to a big city on mighty short notice.

"One of the big advantages of Universal City is that we are a law unto ourselves—a separate community in fact, as well as in name. Busybodies cannot interfere with us, as is now the case in Hollywood. Therefore, by virtue of its ready accessibility, its freedom from petty annoyances and its facilities for turning out pictures quickly and economically, Universal City is the ideal location for all producers who want a studio in which they can turn out their pictures in peace."

Meighan in Blackton Film.

Thomas Meighan will appear in one of the principal roles—that of Sir William Farrell—in "Missing," which J. Stuart Blackton is producing for Paramount from Mrs. Humphry Ward's famous novel with a war background.

Thomas Meighan came west with Wallace Reid, another Paramount favorite, a few weeks ago to take the leading male role in "M'liss" supporting Mary Pickford, star in this new Artcraft film.

Big Settings in "La Tosca."

"La Tosca" has been elaborately staged by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, involving the construction of massive settings. Important scenes take place in the Vatican and in the Cathedral of St. Andrea, reproductions of which were built in the studio. Copies of the magnificent paintings which adorn the walls of the palace of the Pope and the famous church were secured from a private collection in New York for use in the photoplay. The scenes with the priests and the Pope are impressive, and were handled in a reverent manner.

"La Tosca" is a Paramount release of March 25. Exterior scenes in harmony with the architecture of the period were secured at Ft. Marion, St. Augustine, and other southern Florida points.

At Famous Players Studio

AT the Fifty-sixth street studio of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation the famous death scene in "Fedora" was taken last week, and considerable interest was manifested in dramatic circles in Pauline Frederick's interpretation of the part. This is considered one of the most difficult roles in the history of the drama, and was created by Sarah Bernhardt and played later by Mrs. Bancroft and Mrs. Patrick Campbell in England, and Mrs. Fiske in America.

Extensive preparations have been made to receive George M. Cohan, who is to produce his own play, "Hit the Trail Holliday," under the direction of Marshall Neilan, for Artcraft release.

Marguerite Clark is finishing the last scenes of "Rich Man, Poor Man," under the direction of J. Searle Dawley.

The film for the Billie Burke picture, "Let's Get a Divorce," has been assembled and is being cut and titled. Anita Loos and John Emerson wrote the scenario.

Elsie Ferguson has returned from Moosehead Lake, Me., where exteriors for "A Doll's House" were taken in the snow and pine woods, under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, who is in charge of the production.

Trianglers in Red Cross Benefit.

Darrell Foss, well-known Triangle leading man, who is a talented musician, and Maud Wayne, one of the Triangle beauties, are rehearsing a banjo act which they will put on at a series of Red Cross benefits. Their first performance will be at the Venice (Cal.) Auditorium. Other Triangle acts on the program will be furnished by Walter Perry, who will do a monologue, and a sketch by William Dyer, Rae Godfrey, Frank McQuarrie, and Charles Dorian.

Fox Again Active in Fund Drive

This Time It Is Knights of Columbus Work and He's Succeeding as He Did in the Jewish Campaign.

WILLIAM FOX is taking a most active and energetic part in the campaign of the Knights of Columbus to raise $2,500,000 for use among our soldiers and sailors at home and abroad.

Mr. Fox has allied himself with the team for this work headed by Nicholas F. Brady. Since the beginning of the Catholic drive on March 17 Mr. Brady and his colleagues have been leading in the amount of subscriptions turned in day by day, with only one or two exceptions. The money collected through the efforts of Mr. Fox has been responsible, to a great extent, for the team's premier position.

Mr. Fox himself contributed $5,000 to the fund and has been particularly busy in getting donations from his own stars and directors, although he has not spared prominent members of other organizations in the photoplay and theatrical world.

As was the case when he was working on behalf of the Jewish War Relief and the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, Mr. Fox has again taken a suite of rooms at the Claridge Hotel and is making his headquarters there. Mr. Fox was a colonel in the drive for the Jewish Federation and his team alone secured more than 15,000 new members, outdistancing its nearest rival by many thousands.

New Features for Big U

Company Will Issue a "Special Attraction" Every Two Weeks.

ON April 8, Universal will issue the first of a new series of big features under the title of "Special Attractions," these subjects will be released at the rate of one every two weeks. Present plans call for the appearance of such players as Dorothy Phillips, Harry Carey, Priscilla Dean, Mae Murray, Mary MacLaren, and Herbert Rawlinson in the new series of productions, and enough pictures to provide releases through to November have already been completed.

As announced by Universal the first four features to be released as special attractions will be "The Risky Road," featuring Dorothy Phillips; "The Scarlet Drop," featuring Harry Carey; "The Two Soul Women," featuring Priscilla Dean, and "The Bride's Awakening," featuring Mae Murray. The first will be issued April 8; the second, April 22; the third, May 6, and the fourth, May 20.

According to Carl Laemmle the motive for the action of his company in abandoning the one-a-week feature idea, as embodied in the old Butterflies, is its desire to take the new particular productions out of the program class.

Jewel's "The Kaiser" Enters Wisconsin Loyalty Fight

THE full weight of "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," is to be thrown back of the loyal forces that are waging an energetic battle to bring about the downfall of La Follette and his cohorts in Wisconsin.

The manner in which this picture is arousing audiences in New York City, where its original two-week run at the Broadway theater has been extended indefinitely, has prompted Jewel Productions, Inc., to take steps to hasten its release in Wisconsin. It is confidently believed that "The Kaiser" will do its share towards extinguishing the twin fires of Kaiserism and Kulturism.

Word has already gone forward to the managers of the Chicago and Minneapolis Jewel offices, both of which do business in Wisconsin, that "The Kaiser" is to be given immediate circulation throughout that state. These offices are to work hand-in-hand with the local American Defense Society branches. The parent body of the latter organization has already communicated with the secretaries of the local bodies, and has instructed them to give those exhibitors booking the picture the fullest co-operation.

Scene from "The Trap" (World).

Hodkinson Outlines Views as to What Makes Service

"It is a very different proposition to sell a service rather than a program." So asserts the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation in a statement just issued by their home office. "Service, one of the most abused words of the present day, particularly so in the motion picture business, has lost a great deal of its significance to the exhibitor. There are several companies selling programs. In other words, they are renting pictures without any real value other than the pictures themselves.

"In the selling of service something beyond the picture is implied. In other words, the exhibitor is led to believe he is getting something that will be of value to him in his reselling of his product.

"Hodkinson Service, which we chose to describe what we had to sell, in spite of the abuse of the last word, guarantees the exhibitor a consistent product, not for this week only or for next week, but for the entire length of his contract, which covers one year.

"In other words, we say to the exhibitor, 'When you buy Hodkinson Service you are in the same position as a retailer who places on his shelves a quantity of stock sufficient to last him the entire season and upon which he can figure a certain definite profit because he knows the quality of each piece of the goods is consistent.'

"The producers of Hodkinson Service are aiming at making a consistently good product rather than producing one or two spectacular successes. We feel, and they feel also, that the need of the motion picture exhibitor today is a dependable product and one that can be depended upon throughout the entire year, rather than product upon which he can make an abnormal amount of profit this week and drop down at a loss next week.

"In view of the above, we figure we are using the word 'service' advisedly and, moreover, our exchanges, the General Film Company's branch offices, are under the jurisdiction of trained film men and give the exhibitor every sort of additional service he may desire.

"All our business dealings are being conducted upon a dignified and business-like basis, with perhaps a noticeable lack of the usual blaring of trumpets that camouflage the announcement of any new film plan or enterprise.

"It is most gratifying to note the steady progress that is being made by our organization, because this progress is based primarily upon the education of the exhibitor to the truth and value of our theories and ways of doing business, and we feel that future results will more than substantiate our present statements."

Lehrman Has Two Funmakers Ready.

"A Self-Made Lady" and "The Waiter's Wasted Life" are the titles of two new Sunshine comedies which Henry Lehrman has made for William Fox.

An announcement from the Fox offices is that "A Self-Made Lady" is uproariously funny and replete with mirthful stunts. There are thrills, ridiculous situations and clean wholesome fun. There is nothing coarse or vulgar. A swimming tank is used to speed up the fun.

Following "A Self-Made Lady" the release will be "The Waiter's Wasted Life." This, it is claimed, also is calculated to chase away the bluest blues.

Teachers See Chapin Film.

The enthusiasm aroused by the Paramount Benjamin Chapin series, "The Son of Democracy," is well illustrated by the action of the Superintendent of Public Instruction in San Francisco, who arranged for a private showing of the first four chapters of the film for the teachers and principals, who were invited to attend the exhibition at the Imperial theater.

After the performance the teachers were enthusiastic in their commendation. The underlying note of patriotism, so appropriate during the present time, was the subject of special comment.

Many of the largest theaters in the country have met such success with the first subjects of the series that they are now advertising "The Son of Democracy" as the main attraction during the showing, in spite of the fact that it is only two reels in length.

Uncle Sam Buys Simplex.

The Precision Machine Company, Inc., announces the installation of a large number of its Simplex Projectors in various encampments in the South and Southwest.

Among the training camps which recently began to use the Simplex machine for the entertainment of the soldiers are those at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Camp Bowie, Camp Beaureguard, Camp Wadsworth, Camp Doniphan, and Camp Cody.

Mutual's Offering April 1

Mary Miles Minter Leads in "A Bit of Jade"—Directed by Edward Sloman.

MARY MILES MINTER in "A Bit of Jade" heads the Mutual schedule of releases for the week of April 1. The production was made under the direction of Edward Sloman, and is based on a story by Mildred Carl Graham, scenarioized by Karl Coolidge.

There are striking scenes of the interior of a Hindu temple, some beautiful views of mountain scenery, and night scenes of a midnight lark of college girls in boys clothes. Miss Minter makes a charming picture dressed in her brother's best sport suit.

The tenth and eleventh issues of Screen Telegram are released April 3 and 7.

Billie Rhodes is scheduled for release in a Strand comedy, "She Couldn't Grow Up," released April 2.

Peggy Pearce Also in Drama.

Peggy Pearce is another of the Triangle-Keystone girls who has recently been cast in a straight dramatic vehicle. She has been selected to play an important role in a forthcoming Triangle production in which Gloria Swanson, until recently a Keystone funmaker, will be featured.

"The Lie" Will Be Released April 8.

The next Artcraft picture starring Elsie Ferguson to follow "The Song of Songs" is "The Lie," which will be released on April 8. Charles Maigne adapted this subject to the screen from the big stage success of the same title written by Sir Henry Arthur Jones.

"Salome" in Cutting Room.

The problem of cutting the enormous amount of film used to screen the massive pageantry and broad dramatic scenes of "Salome" is now being taken up by William Fox. The picture is a Theda Bara super-production made under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards, who had charge of "Cleopatra."

Theda Bara in "Salome."

The cinema version follows closely the Bible story told by Josephus, the famous Jewish writer, in his book, "The Antiquities of the Jews and the History of the Jewish Wars." It illustrates, with spectacular vividness, the various steps in the thrilling historical drama.

"Fighting Bill" Farnum at Best in "Rough and Ready"

EVERYBODY knows "Smiling Bill" Farnum, but in "Rough and Ready," the latest Fox de luxe film featuring this favorite screen star, his admirers will see "Fighting Bill" Farnum at his best, or worst for his opponent. The latter is that fighting Frenchman, Alphonse Ethier—the only screen double of the Gallic ring champion, George Carpentier—and together with William Farnum puts up what is claimed to be the greatest "rough-and-tumble" battle ever screened. Those spectators versed in Marquis of Queensbury, or even the old London prize ring rules, will be apt to cry "Foul" at various exciting places when viewing this thrilling film, but for their benefit it should be explained that the mill is fought under the old "rough-and-tumble" ring rules which have prevailed on the American frontier from the earliest days down to the comparatively modern period of the gold strike in the Klondike, where the principal scenes of this red-blood picture of primal manhood are laid.

In 1850 the then young firm of Harper & Brothers published an anonymous book entitled "Georgia Scenes," depicting "characters and incidents in the first half century of the Republic," illustrated with rare old etchings on steel plates. In a chapter captioned "The Fight" the anonymous author describes in gory detail a battle between two Georgia champions which might have been the director's script for the fight between William Farnum and Alphonse Ethier in "Rough and Ready." Only in the latter the villain who has the inevitable "yellow streak" breaks the only rule against the use of weapons. Otherwise "everything went" in the old-fashioned "rough-and-tumble," including kicking, biting, hair-pulling, and "gouging"—all which these modern gladiators pull in this picture just to prove that the primal American has not deteriorated during the centuries, but is just as "Rough and Ready" as in pioneer days, which should be warning to the Hun on "rough stuff." The American Indian was not a nice fighter, but American pioneers put him under the sod permanently by adopting his own style of warfare, and that the talent and tradition still survices is proved in the "Rough and Ready" film.

Even the dirk or the "scalping knife," when pulled by "dirty fighters," has been turned against the user with deadly effect, as in this film. Farnum starts in for "a fair fist fight" in the fashion of the "Rough and Ready" Yukon, but when the Frenchman pulls a knife he gets it where he lives.

Kleine Consolidates Mid-West Offices.

Owing to the discontinuance of weekly features the Kleine offices at Indianapolis and Cincinnati have been consolidated, the new headquarters being located at 111 East Seventh street, Cincinnati. G. F. Brett will be in charge. Hillard T. Snowden, who has been the booker at the Indianapolis office, will assume the position of assistant manager. Miss Tressie Davis, who has been secretary at Indianapolis, will assume the same position at Cincinnati. Mr. Eliades, cashier and bookkeeper of the Indianapolis office, will be bookkeeper at Cincinnati, and Mr. Callahan, shipping clerk of the Indianapolis branch, will assume the same position at Cincinnati. Charles W. Tyler, who is at present with the Mutual Film Corporation, will become the Indiana and Kentucky traveling representative March 18.

Since starting the distribution of superfeatures the exhibitors in Indiana and Kentucky have taken to the idea with the result that the bookings have been very heavy on "Uneasy Money," "Brown of Harvard," "Men Who Have Made Love to Me," and "The Unbeliever." "Broncho Billy" reissues are reported a landslide in this territory.

Edith Storey Only Woman in Cast.

In the role of Margaret Elkins in "Treasure," her Metro picture, Edith Storey has the unusual distinction of being the only woman in the cast. "Treasure" is now under production at Metro's West Coast studios. Teeming with action and replete with situations of gripping intensity, "Treasure" also offers opportunities for deft characterization. The heroine matches her wits against those of strong men, and wins in a thrilling quest for gold given up by the sea aboard the wreck of an old merchant trader.

Most of the exteriors, of a dazzling beauty and picturesqueness, were photographed on Santa Catalina Island. This locale is in striking contrast to the financial maelstrom of New York, where the action of "Treasure" begins.

Government Thanks Metro.

Metro has co-operated with the Surgeon General of the United States Army and the Commission on Training Camp Activities by providing the studio and producing facilities for the making of "Fit to Fight," a Government moral hygiene picture recently reviewed in the Moving Picture World. Maxwell Karger, Metro production manager, recently received official thanks from Major William F. Snow, representing the Surgeon General's office, in which great satisfaction was evidenced with Metro's co-operation with the military authorities.

"Fit to Fight," which was written and directed by Edward H. Griffith, of the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, presents a striking lesson of the perils of immorality. The picture, which is in three reels, is not for general distribution, but will be shown at training camps, on shipboard, and at all United States Naval and Military stations here and abroad. The story is convincingly told in a straight from the shoulder manner.

Ritchey Gumshoeing for the Best.

Will M. Ritchey, who is editor-in-chief of the scenario department of the American Film Company studios at Santa Barbara, has been gumshoeing about the literary market for stories from the very best authors available.

"We have some material for our 1918 pictures that will give the various stars of the American Film Company the most brilliant possible vehicles," says Mr. Ritchey. "President Hutchinson has given directions to spare no expense in the procuring of the best stories to be found. We think we have found some corking good ones for the coming year. Among our notable writers will be William Hamilton Osborne, Albert Terhune, and Stephen Fox, writers whose names insure good stuff. We will spare neither expense nor efforts to obtain further stories which will equal in quality those for which we have already contracted for the coming year."

"Social Hypocrites" Released April 8.

May Allison makes her bow as a Metro star in her own right in "Social Hypocrites," which will be released April 8. This screen version of Alicia Ramsey's stage play, "Bridge," was written by June Mathis and Albert Capellani, and directed by the noted Frenchman. Miss Allison is supported by a strong cast.

The leading role of Leonore Fielding in "Social Hypocrites" fits the Metro player. Leonore is the daughter of Colonel Francis Fielding, of the Coldstream Guards, who, in his youth, was falsely accused of cheating at cards.

The settings built for the staging of "Social Hypocrites" are noteworthy. Director Capellani, himself, designed the settings, which were executed by Technical Director Edward J. Shulter and his staff. The director spent a week browsing in scores of antique shops in order to get just the old fashioned furniture and properties he desired to dress the set with accuracy.

Great Little Actress Is Mislaid.

The youngest actress in motion picture comedy plays the latter half of the title role in "Bill's Baby," a Capitol comedy starring "Smiling Bill" Parsons, soon to be released by Goldwyn as the first of a batch of twenty-six two-reel laughmakers to be produced by the National Film Corporation, with Parsons as the chief funster.

Unfortunately the identity of the little actress whose pictures place her age at about three is forever lost through the negligence of a director who didn't realize when he engaged her that he was dealing with an important figure in the play. So she's just Baby—but she's some baby!

Hamlin With Producers and Exhibitors.

Thomas J. Hamlin, secretary and general manager of the Associated Theaters, Inc., of Minneapolis, is one of the stanch supporters of the Producers and Exhibitors' Affiliated. He has allied himself with them, and his organization is one of the units which have been completed and are now ready to release pictures under the direct booking plan.

Ebony Comedies Will Feature Capable Cast of Negroes

STARTING April 2 with the first release, General Film Company will begin the distribution of a series of one-reel comedies produced by the Ebony Film Corporation, of Chicago, to be known as the Ebony comedies. These subjects, which feature a capable company of negro actors, will be issued weekly for an indefinite period, the first half dozen negatives being already finished.

The Ebony comedies feature the inimitable native humor of the American negro. Several releases were given audience try-outs in New York last week, and they satisfied General Film officials of their entertainment value. This is the first successful attempt to film comedies of this character, it is believed. At any rate the excellence of the work done by the Ebony players and the perfect photography which eliminates any obscurity in facial expression promises a great novelty in these subjects.

The tremendous success scored by the negro and black face comedians of the legitimate stage is expected to be repeated in the film world by the Ebony comedies, inasmuch as each subject is packed with clever laughmaking stunts. The comedies are expected to be booked by motion picture exhibitors for a regular place on the daily program much as the inevitable colored act is on the vaudeville program as a sure-fire number.

The following subjects have been announced for release: "A Black Sherlock Holmes," "Spying the Spy," "The Porters," "A Milk Fed Hero," "Busted Romance," and "Spooks." The first release is a highly amusing burlesque on the well known detective of fiction fame in which the hero and his Dr. Watson meddle in a Governmental matter and are forced to move at a lively clip in order to keep out of the impending clutches of trouble.

All of the Ebony releases are new ones. The company made a number of releases about two years ago which scored popularity as state rights subjects, but this was at the experimental stage of production, and the present releases are of a highly developed order warranting wide distribution.

Bray Makes Novel Film

By Means of Drawings Shows Relationship of Man and Lower Species.

THE importance of the animated drawing as a means for transferring to the screen things which cannot be photographed in the usual way is further demonstrated in the 113th release of Paramount-Bray Pictograph, "the magazine on the screen," wherein L. M. Glackens of the Bray Studios, Inc., makes clear through these processes the relationship between man and the lower species of vertebrates.

Taking the elephant and the ape as examples, Mr. Glackens demonstrates the similiarity of their bony structures to that of man, and by certain rather simple changes proves one of the contentions of Darwin that all animal life originated from the same source. While much has been read of this theory this is the first time such an exposition has been made in easily understandable and visible form.

Such subjects as "Our Bone Relatives" are examples of the tremendous field of really informative material which the Bray Studios, Inc., have tapped and given to the public through Paramount-Bray Pictograph and explain why their release is considered one that justifies its high place among single reels.

Bert Lytell Finishing in Arizona.

The exterior scenes for Bert Lytell's initial Metro All-Star Series picture, "The Trail to Yesterday," are nearing completion at Tucson, Arizona, and the star and his company will soon leave for the West Coast studios in California, where the interiors of this picturization of Charles Alden Seltzer's popular novel will be staged. June Mathis wrote the scenario and Edwin Carewe is directing the production, which is a thrilling story of the plains and ranches.

"Humdrum Brown" a Success.

Reports from exchanges in all parts of the country which are handling the Paralta company's productions have been pouring in during the past week and confirm the fact that Henry B. Walthall's second Paralta play, "Humdrum Brown," which was released March 15, is proving a big success. This picture is of particular interest to motion picture followers, and especially to Mr. Walthall's admirers, because it shows that actor in a part different from any which he has ever delineated upon the screen.

Scene from "With Neatness and Dispatch" (Metro).

Metro's "With Neatness and Dispatch" Has Strong Cast

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN and Beverly Bayne are supported by a cast of stellar rank in the forthcoming Metro All-Star Series picture, "With Neatness and Dispatch," a screen version of Kenneth L. Robert's story of the same name. June Mathis and Luther Reed prepared the scenario, and Will S. Davis directed the production.

Frank Currier, Metro's sterling character actor, appears as Police Commissioner Roger Burgess, whose nephew, Paul Donaldson (played by Francis X. Bushman) is the hero of the story. Hugh Jeffrey is cast as Police Inspector Corcoran, who assists Geraldine Ames, the heroine (played by Beverly Bayne), to find a crook to "do a little job—with neatness and dispatch." Ricca Allen, who is often a member of Metro casts, plays Aunt Letitia Judson, the guardian of the Ames girls, who believes that all men are bad.

Stylvia Arnold, who plays Mary Ames, the sister of Geraldine, makes her first appearance in a leading role in this picture. Walter Miller plays John Pierce, the fiance of Mary Ames. Miller is well known as a screen actor, having been long identified with hte Biograph Company. Adella Barker plays a "butleress."

Arthur Housman is cast as Burns, the crook-chauffeur. Housman is an old Edison player, and played much for Metro. John Charles is seen as the real "Slim" Keegan, the crook whom Bushman as Paul Donaldson is mistaken for, and which starts the picture's complications. Sidney D'Albrook plays Daly.

Many Fox Contracts for "Mut and Jeff"

STRIKING proof of the value of trade-paper advertising has just been made available by the Fox Film Corporation, following its campaign for putting Bud Fisher's Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons on a contract basis. One month ago William Fox had not even contemplated taking over this interesting series of productions. Today he not only is world distributor of the Fisher pictures, but he has a larger number of signed and sealed contracts than have ever been obtained in the history of the industry for a feature of this sort.

This success was achieved, according to Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, chiefly through trade-paper publicity.

"The ink was not dry on the contract," he explains, "before we began formulating plans for a smash. We realized that we had a feature that, while small from standpoint of length—they run only about 500 feet, you know—really was a whale of its kind; hence advertising was certain to pay.

"We went to it, taking page space in all the principal trade publications. Cut-outs, special lobby stands, booklets, broadsides, letters, news stories, and a dozen other forms of auxiliary publicity were employed. At first we merely announced that Mutt and Jeff had joined Fox. But even that bare announcement, with a statement of first releases, brought a quantity of inquiries which reflects great credit on the pulling power of the publicity mediums employed. Our most sanguine expectations were exceeded. Our third page advertisement is running this week, and already we have enough signed contracts to put the series of pictures on a substantial financial footing."

Two Big Simplex Installations.

Three Simplex Projectors were purchased by Sid Graumann for his million dollar theater located at Third street and Broadway, Los Angeles, which opened last month.

Another leading picture house opened recently in the East and using Simplex Projectors is Harry Davis' Grand opera house, on Fifth avenue, between Wood and Smithfield, in the downtown section of Pittsburgh.

Magnificent Cast Plays World's "Masks and Faces"

ALMOST brilliant array of histrionic ability is presented in "Masks and Faces," the Ideal film released by the World Pictures Corporation on May 6. This play was enacted in London by the flower of the English-speaking stage.

The entire craft earnestly desired to do something worthy of the profession in alleviating the distress growing out of the world's war, so "Masks and Faces," with its marvelous cast, came into being as a picture.

George Bernard Shaw, Sir Arthur Pinero, Sir John Hare, representing a committee of the Academy of Dramatic Art of England, decided to present a play on the screen that would employ the largest number of stars possible. To accomplish this they decided on "Masks and Faces," a drama of Charles Reade's and Tom Taylor's.

Reade afterward wrote a novel based upon the play and called it "Peg Woffington." The novel is the richer of the two in incident and has accordingly been made the groundwork of this picture.

The immortal role of Triplet was assigned to Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, that of Peg Woffington to Irene Vanbrugh, Ernest Vane to Dennis Neilson Terry, Kitty Clive to Lillah McCarthy, Colly Gibber to Dion Boucicault, Mabel Vane to Gladys Cooper, Sir Charles Pomander to Ben Webster.

Donald Calthrop and Gerald Du Maurier are cast for Lovell and Hunsdan, Pomander's servants; Mrs. Triplet is played by Winifred Emery, and Colander by H. B. Irving. Lyall Swete, who recently staged "Chu Chin Chow" in New York, played Soaper.

Viola Tree, who was last seen in America in support of her father, Sir Beerbohm Tree, with Stella Campbell, daughter of Mrs. Pat Campbell, Gertrude Elliott, wife of Forbes-Robertson and sister of Maxine Elliott, were cast as members of Rich's Company; the three most famous child actors of England, Fabia Drake, Joan Buckemaster and George Rowson, are seen as Triplet's children. Nigel Playfair portrays Rich's theatrical manager.

Others in the cast are Henry Vibart, J. Fisher White, Helen Haye, Mabel Russell, Weedon Grossmith, Gerald Ames, Mary Brough, Phyllis Hart, Lottie Venne and Renee Mayer.

George Bernard Shaw appears in the introduction.

The history of "Masks and Faces" in itself is a romance as fascinating as any of Dumas, Scott or Balzac. It was first acted at the Haymarket theater, London, on November 20, 1852.

Scene from "Chase Me Charlie" (Essanay).

Kleine to Issue Built-Up Five-Part Essanay-Chaplin

ESSANAY has completed a five-part Chaplin comedy which will be released through the George Kleine system April 6. This is comprised of several of the Essanay-Chaplin comedies. The best scenes from all are taken out and put together to form one comedy.

It is said by those who have seen the film that the various parts harmonize. It is practically a new story with the continuity assisted by new sub-titles. The film was made up in London and is a British verison of the Chaplin comedies.

The sub-titles are in verse form and the comedy is a Chaplin jingle, although the main title is "Chase Me, Charlie."

Prints already are being shipped to the various George Kleine offices. Exhibitors who have viewed the picture state that as compiled it forms the essence of all the funniest Chaplin situations. In fact in the making of the film Essanay announces that great care was taken to select none but the scenes in which there were the swiftest action and the drollest situations.

Rothacker Personals.

Among the recent visitors at the Rothacker studio, Chicago, were Charles Urban, of New York City; Ben Friedman, of the Friedman Enterprises, Minneapolis, and P. L. Thomson, advertising manager of the Western Electric Company, New York City.

John Hahn, assistant secretary of the Rothacker organization, is confined at home on account of illness, and upon his recovery expects to spend a week or ten days at French Lick Springs.

E. A. Bertram, formerly of the advertising department of Burke & James, has joined the Rothacker organization as assistant to Mr. Hahn.

Brace Grenelle, formerly of the Rothack camera department and now a member of the United States Government Cinematographic Division, recently visited the Rothacker organization, and is now on his way to New York City, where he will report for further Government service.

H. J. Aldous, secretary and treasurer of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, recently spent a day at the Eastman Kodak Company plant at Rochester and a day at the studios of the Wharton Releasing Corporation at Ithaca.

Watterson R. Rothacker has returned from New York City, where he went on a special mission, the purpose of which was to confer with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit and with Harry Reichenbach in regard to the technical work on "Tarzan of the Apes," which big subject was printed at the Rothacker laboratory. Before his return from New York, Mr. Rothacker stopped off one day at Ithaca to view the production of "The Eagle's Eye."

Ed Blackburn, of the sales department of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, is now on a special business tour covering Illinois and Iowa.

Hulette and Hale Co-Star.

Comedy, pathos and thrills are attractively blended in the five-reel Pathe feature, "Mrs Slacker," released by Pathe for the week of March 31. Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale are presented as co-stars in this comedy-drama of American life, from the pen of Agnes C. Johnston. They are supported by Paul Clerget, the French pantomime artist, and Walter Hiers.

"Mrs. Slacker" was produced under the direction of Hobart Henley, who has succeeded in creating many novel scenes and picturesque effects. The photography is exceptionally good.

"Ruggles" Making a Hit.

Reports from exhibitors show that Taylor Holmes' last release, "Ruggles of Red Gap," is making a bigger hit than any of his pictures. His forthcoming release, "A Pair of Sixes," written by Edward Peple, which will be released as a George K. Spoor special, April 1, is said to be even a stronger production than "Ruggles." It has an unusually strong cast, including Maude Eburne, Robert Conness, Alice Mann and Edna Phillips Holmes.

Blue Ridge Dramas Ready

First Ned Finley Production for General Is "The Return of O'Garry."

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the release schedule for the Blue Ridge Dramas produced by Ned Finley for General Film Company. "The Return of O'Garry," the first of the series, will be released on April 13, a week later than originally planned, and other subjects will follow every second week. Three of the Finley films have already been completed, and the company is making arrangements to return to Bat Cave to resume its work on other releases. Each subject will be a drama of virile type, two reels in length.

"The Return of O'Garry" is a stirring tale of the Northwest in which Ned Finley returns to the screen in the role made famous in his O'Garry pictures produced several years ago by Vitagraph. Marion Henry is featured with him in heroine roles. The action revolves around the attempt of the Royal Mounted officer to break up the operations of a gang of cattle rustlers which has established itself near the American border.

"Mountain Law" and "The Raiders of Sunset Gap" will be among the forthcoming Blue Ridge Dramas.

Snakeville Comedies Renewed.

Intensive treatment has been given the ten Snakeville comedies reissued by Essanay through General Film, with the expectation that they will duplicate their former popularity. New film, new titles, new tints and careful editing have made these single reel laugh subjects with Western settings most acceptable as program adjuncts in any sort of theater. The comical adventures of "Slippery Slim" are well remembered by show men, and a most consistent group of releases has been assembled for this new edition.

Demand for Broncho Billys.

The Broncho Billy dramas which the Essanay Company placed on the market through the George Kleine exchanges March 1 are reported to be doing an unprecedented business. Already there has been a call for more prints.

Essanay is releasing these one-reel subjects in blocks of ten and several hundred exhibitors have arranged to take the entire number, running one each week as they are released.

These subjects have been selected from the Broncho Billy films, only the best of those produced being released. Essanay has found that there is an increasing demand for western plays. The western dramas featuring Jack Gardner have been in unusually strong demand.

Franklyn Farnum and a Few Co-Stars in "Fast Company," a Bluebird Production.

Soldiers in Beach Film

Regulars Put Real Stuff Into "Heart of the Sunset."

A BAND of cavalrymen stationed at Eagle Pass, Texas, plays an important part in "Heart of the Sunset," a splendid picturization of Rex Beach's famous story released through Goldwyn. About fifty sharpshooters, among their number some real horsemen and crack shots, were pressed into service through the courtesy of their commanding officer, who gladly consented to help Director Frank Powell out of a predicament resulting from his failure to gather enough Texas cowboys for several big scenes in the picture.

That no band of cowboys could have accomplished what the gallant border defenders did in the way of riding and shooting is amply attested by the filmed results. The sharpshooters never went after a horde of snipers or a force of treacherous Villistas with more determination than they showed in their mad dash into the enemy's lair to rescue the heroine and the man who had come single-handed to her defence.

That most of the cavalrymen lost track of the fact that it was for picture purposes only was no doubt due to the location. Director Powell, with an eye to realism, had chosen a spot on the southwestern Texas border that had been the scene of engagements between American troops and Mexican bandits.

"My failure to get cowboys for the big scene was a blessing in disguise," said Director Powell. "Those cavalrymen surely led us a merry pace. The cameramen and I had an awful time keeping up with them. No wonder sniping has become a lost art down that way, with that band of sharpshooters to defend the border."

"Night Riders" Nearly Finished.

Production of "The Night Riders," Viola Dana's newest vehicle in the Metro program, is well along at Metro's West Coast studios. The drama is a simple but deeply moving story of Kentucky, with its quaint folk and their primitive loves and hates. It possesses the novelty, however, of being a tale of the blue grass without the semblance of a feud basis. The theme, instead, in the struggle of the rude mountaineers to overthrow the tollgates and win free roads from the unscrupulous and avaricious owner of the monopoly.

Miss Dana has been surrounded by a cast which includes George Chesebro, who plays opposite her; Clifford Bruce, Russell Simpson, Monte Blue, and Mabel Van Buren.

Scene from "The Vortex" (Triangle).

Two Marriage Dramas Are Listed by Triangle March 31

TWO marriage dramas are listed on the Triangle March 31 card. "The Unfaithful," a two-reeler featuring Dorothy Dalton, deals constructively with domestic problems, while "The Marriage Bubble," also released the first part of the week, is an amusing play of matrimonial scheming and woman's wit, with William Desmond in a hurricane of dual personalities. A Wall Street story, "The Vortex," featuring Mary Warren and Joe King, is the concluding release of the week.

"The Unfaithful," by Lambert Hillyer, presents the situation of a neglected wife who professes infidelity in order to assist her husband to write a book on matrimonial difficulties. Robert McKim, Charles Gunn, and Charlotte Vermont are included in the cast of "The Unfaithful."

Woman does the proposing, according to "The Marriage Bubble," W. Carey Wonderley's story, which affords William Desmond a dual role in which he plays both drinker and gentleman through a maze of amusing complications which finally clear the road for a romantic love affair. A comedy fire scene is a notable feature of this production. In this dual role William Desmond makes his second appearance on the Triangle March program, having played the title role in "The Sea Panther." Ann Luther, who appeared in Keystone comedies before going into dramatic work, is cast as Alice. Maude George is Fidele, and Florence Dagmar is Lucille Spinney. Walter Edwards is credited with the direction.

Jealousy is the theme of "The Vortex," Norman Sherbrook's Wall Street story of love and intrigue released for the second part of the week of the 31st. Mary Warren is Joan Meredith. Joe King is Van Cleefe. George Hernandez appears as Lew Herford. The cast also includes Myrtle Rishell, who made her first Triangle appearance in "Nancy Comes Home," R. P. Thompson, Eugene Burr, and Wilbur Higbee.

The Busch Gardens at Pasadena, one of California's greatest show places, were used by Director Gilbert P. Hamilton in filming many of the scenes in this picture. Night "shots" in these gardens are said to be an attractive feature of this production.

Much of the action in Herman Raymaker's new comedy, "A Playwright's Wrong," takes place within a motion picture theater. A specially constructed picture theater was built for this photoplay. Throughout the filming of this story there were few moments when Raymaker's troupe was not playing to a big audience composed of directors and performers who were off duty. Billy Franey, Maude Wayne, Dora Rodgers, Ward Cualfield, and Milton Sims were given opportunities to show their skill in straight comedy work. The laughs that they drew from the crowd convinced them that their work "went over."

Clover Comedy Players of the National Film Corporation at Denver. Allen Curtis Directs Bud Duncan, Dot Farley and Kewpie Morgan.

"Bud" Duncan Starts Off.

"The Wooing of Coffee Cake Kate," the first of the new series of Clover comedies being produced by the National Film Corporation, is released this week by General Film Company. This is a lively one-reel comedy in which "Bud" Duncan, Dot Farley, and "Kewpie" Morgan return to the screen in a clever burlesque on Wild West society. "Rip Roaring Rivals," another of those farcical love triangles into which the peppery Duncan injects himself as a wild and woolly cowboy, will be released on April 9, Dot Farley, as usual, being seen in her ludicrous vampire role.

Scene from "Twenty-One" (Pathe).

Bryant Washburn Makes Pathe Debut in "Twenty-One"

PLAYING a double role in which he not only hands himself money, but actually fights with himself, Bryant Washburn makes his debut with Pathe in "Twenty-One." The story, by George Randolph Chester, was produced by the Anderson-Brunton Company, and directed by William Worthington. The camera work sets a high mark in what can be done in double exposures. The story is one that will appeal to American audiences.

Bryant Washburn, the third of the same name, is a Chicago boy, having been born in the Windy City, April 28, 1889. Mr. Washburn made his entry into theatrical life as head usher of the old Chicago opera house, and later became treasurer of the same theater His first part on the stage was in a stock company at Lake Brady, Ohio. After many years work in other companies he was given the lead in Eugene Walter's "The Wolf," and later played with George Fawcett in "The Remittance Man." Mr. Washburn has been a motion picture player for six years, and among his more important features are "The Blindness of Virtue," "The Breaker," "The Prince of Graustark," "Skinner's Dress Suit," "Skinner's Baby," "Filling His Own Shoes," "The Man Who Was Afraid," and "The Fibbers."

"Twenty-One" will be released April 7.

Cinema Tale for George Walsh.

George Walsh is the star in the special feature release of William Fox for the week of March 31. "There are a novel beginning and an unusual climax in this motion picture," says the announcement from the Fox offices.

James Marcus plays the part of the director. Others in the cast are Doris Pawn, Ralph Leslie, A. Burt Wesner, Don Likes and Clyde Hopkins. The scenario is by Randolph Lewis and the direction by Paul Powell.

"'The Kid is Clever' is full of pep and speed," says the announcement. "It gives George Walsh a chance to do some of the athletic feats that have made him such a big favorite with moving picture patrons. It is a big laugh from start to finish."

"Western Blood" Is Finished.

A strong cast supported Tom Mix in "Western Blood," which has just been finished in the west coast studios of William Fox. In the cast are Victoria Forde, Frank Clerk, Barney Furey and Pat Chrisman.

The story revolves around cowboys in dress suits. The story of "Western Blood" is by Tom Mix himself and the scenario and direction by Lynn Reynolds.

Bradford Had Baseball Career.

Gardner Bradford, who writes the scintillating titles for Triangle pictures, was a baseball magnate before he harkened to the lure of the screen. He was the promoter of a league which once flourished in Vermont.

Russian Film for General

"Why—the Bolsheviki," a Spectacular Production, Gets National Distribution.

WHY, the Bolsheviki," a highly dramatic production de luxe dealing with the historical motive for the present day upheaval in Russia, is the most recent feature release to be given national distribution by General Film Company.

Steps will be taken at once to give this film a presentation in four leading cities, following which an introduction will be undertaken in other territory until the whole country is covered. The arrangement includes the United States and Canada, except the local New York territory. A lavish display of advertising aids in keeping with the character of the production is available, with five-color posters in twenty-four, six, three, and one-sheet selections; colored 22x28 and 11x14 lobby display stills; black and white 8x10 stills; a three color window card; slides, and cut electros of all sizes, besides heralds. The picture is controlled by the Export and Import Film Co., Inc.

"Why—the Bolsheviki," according to General Film officials, forms a colorful, spectacular show, and this includes story, photography, acting, costumes, thrills, scenery, stagecraft, tinting, and outlay generally. No effort is being made to exploit the stars, who are all of foreign fame, the picture being distributed solely upon its merit as an entertainment.

Durham Has Italian Role.

Louis (Bull) Durham, who gives a realistic portrayal of an Italian of New York's underworld in Triangle's "The Finger Print," studied the varied types of Gotham's east side long before he became a motion picture actor. During his career as a pitcher for the New York National League Club, Durham spent much of his spare time exploring the highways and byways of the big city.

Chaplin and Pup Portray Two Tramps in "A Dog's Life"

THE initial subject in the series of eight laughmakers that Charlie Chaplin is doing for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit has been completed. "A Dog's Life" will be ready for release early in April. The story with which Chaplin inaugurates production under his own management was selected by a process of elimination, after half a dozen scripts had been rehearsed and found wanting for one reason or another. Finally Chaplin himself hit upon the idea of utilizing as his chief support a homeless, unkempt white mongrel that had sought refuge in the studio one day. The shivering, neglected cur furnished the novel note of pathos that the little comedian believes absolutely essential to the type of screen humor that he has made all his own, so a story was built about the pair—Charlie as a tender-hearted vagrant and the dog ah his only friend.

In order to prevent imitators from stealing a march upon him, the narrative of the adventures that befall this knight of the road and his brindle-nosed retainer will be kept secret until the picture is released. Exhibitors can be assured, however, that the scenes depicted show Charlie under circumstances that oblige him to display all of his versatility. From the moment at the opening of the story when he is aroused from profound slumber in a fence-corner by the aroma from the wares of a passing hot dog vendor until his final triumph over a gang of cabaret crooks in a resort to which he and the dog have wandered on the trail of a beautiful, innocent-eyed young singer, there is no occasion when the action does not make full demands upon Charlie's powers of expression.

The human members of the cast are headed, as usual, by Edna Purviance in the role of the cabaret singer. Harry Lauder is said to have suggested the actual title of the comedy to Chaplin during his recent visit to California by remarking in his dry Scotch manner that Charlie was now "leadin' a dog's life" in his palatial studio at Hollywood.

The production will probably run well over two thousand feet, but will be distributed in the standard two-reel manner.

Scene from "A Dog's Life" (First National).

Washburn Leads Pathe

Chester Story Starts Off Week of April 10—Other Features.

BRYANT WASHBURN in "Twenty-One," a Pathe play in five parts, and a most amusing Harold Lloyd comedy, top Pathe's program for April 7. "Twenty-One" is a lively story by George Randolph Chester. In it Bryant Washburn has a double role. He plays the part of "Jimmy Mufferton," a mollycoddle, until he reaches the age of twenty-one, and of Dave Carey, a vigorous young pugilist. Upon reaching manhood Jimmy is freed from the bondage of his aunt's apron-strings.

"Spies Within" is the title of the fifth episode of the Pathe serial, "The House of Hate." It opens with the Hooded Terror trying to choke Pearl Walden, played by Pearl White, to death in the deserted boat-house on the Hudson. She is saved by the timely arrival of Harvey Gresham, the role played by Antonio Moreno, and the latter's chauffeur, who engage in a spectacular battle with the Hooded Terror. The Hooded Terror overcomes both men and runs away.

"Follow the Crowd" is the title of Harold Lloyd's one-reel comedy, produced by Rolin and released by Pathe. It is a smashing, laugh-producing series of startling incidents, dealing with Billie Boulder's adventures in the sanctum of the "Red Handers."

A split-reel travel and educational is made up of Picturesque France (St. Flour and Aurillac) Pathe colored, and scenes from Sweden, Pathe colored.

Hearst-Pathe News No. 30 is released on this program.

Ochs and Seelye Still on Trail.

The visits of President Ochs and Vice-President Seelye to Middle Western cities have resulted in large accessions to the membership of United Picture Theaters of America. Branch Manager C. W. Bunn signed up fifty Chicago theaters in mid-March following the Ochs visit and the latter's addresses to the exhibitors of the Chicago territory.

From Chicago Mr. Ochs paid flying visits to Cincinnati and St. Louis and then visited the Southwest with stops at Memphis, Little Rock, Dallas and New Orleans. C. R. Seelye is organizing branch offices in these same cities, putting men in charge who are thoroughly acquainted with the needs of Southwestern exhibitors.

In New York the efforts of Arthur S. Abeles, Eastern representative, and Aaron Corn, city sales manager, are lining up additional metropolitan houses. Another live Eastern center is Boston with Stanley Hand in active charge. Messrs. N. I. Filkins in Buffalo, Joseph Schwartzbine in Minneapolis, C. S. Edwards in Kansas City and Gilbert Heyfron in Montana likewise report great activity.

Scene from "Passing of the Third Floor Back" (First National).

Forbes-Robertson Has Favorite Role as the Stranger

THROUGH an arrangement with L. Lawrence Weber, who controls Herbert Brenon's production of "Passing of the Third Floor Back," starring Sir Johnston-Forbes Robertson in the role of the Stranger, the screen version of this dramatic classic will be released by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Since its original American production, nine years ago at the Maxine Elliott theater, Jerome K. Jerome's play has been given by Sir Johnston in practically every city of importance throughout the United States and Canada, and ranks first among his many stage creations by popular choice.

Over two months were spent in filming the story of the changes wrought in the lives of the mean-spirited and scheming members of the gloomy Bloomsbury lodging house by the mysterious occupant of the third floor back.

Sir Johnston made a special trip from England to America for the purpose of appearing in this picture. The Stranger is his own favorite role, and he entered into his contract to reproduce it on the screen with real enthusiasm, declaring at the time that he would rather have his production of the "Passing of the Third Floor Back" given permanency than any play in his entire repertoire.

Herbert Brenon assembled a notable cast in support of the famous English actor, including Molly Pearson, in the part of Stasia, the slavey, which he created in the original production at the Maxine Elliott theater; Alfred Hickman, Gemaine Bourville, Ketty Galanta, George Le Guere, Sydney Goldin, Agusta Haviland, Ben Graham, Grace Stephens, Robert Fisher, Thornton Bastion, Ricca Allen, and Dora Mills Adams.

In putting on this interesting study of human frailty redeemed by love and understanding there has been no effort to sacrifice any characterization, no matter how humble, in order to build up a dominating part for the star. The result is an evenly balanced ensemble that brings out every phase of the play's lesson with remarkable power and realism.

Harry Cohn, General Manager Song Hits in Photoplays, Inc., with Two of His Interpreters, Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury.

American Studios Busy.

Spring activities at the American Film Company studios since the William Russell Productions Company has resumed work and the Minter and Fischer companies are busy on their spring pictures have almost overwhelmed the tailors and the modistes in Santa Barbara with orders for spring work.

A call for two hundred well-dressed men and women went out from the studios last week. Promise of a steady job was given for those who would qualify, which means that a lot of extras are going to be used in the coming pictures. New sets promising some unusually beautiful pictorial effects are being made, and the landscape gardener, mindful of the need of exteriors, is putting a lot of extra work on the grounds, which are admitted to be among most artistic of the Western studios

"Les Miserables" Going Big.

Reports from all sections of the United States, according to the Fox Film Corporation, indicate that "Les Miserables," the William Farnum de luxe production, is doing a business for exhibitors closely approximating that being done by "Cleopatra" as a road attraction. "Les Miserables" was released as a Standard picture February 10, and since then William Fox has received a large number of congratulations from exhibitors who have shown the big feature. There have been no reports whatever, it is said, of unsatisfactory business.

Thirty Houses Report Over $300,000 With "Cleopatra"

THE unusual record established by "Cleopatra," the Theda Bara superpicture, is being continued according to reports issued this week from the office of the Fox Film Corporation. Returns received by the company from the business done at thirty theaters shows a total in excess of $300,000. The average run has been about five days. The record of the showing at the Lyric theater, in New York City, is not included in the new statistics.

The Washington theater, in Detroit, still holds the record of total volume of business, the figures there being $31,063.75 for a run of three weeks, although it is expected that returns from Los Angeles, which have not been received in full, will exceed this. The picture was shown at Clune's Auditorium in the California city, and the total for three weeks, with the run incompleted, was only slightly below that of business done at the Washington theater.

Buffalo has done the greatest volume of business of the cities where the picture has been shown for only one week. "Cleopatra" was put into the Teck theater there and played to more than $17,000. Practically none of the cities from which reports are available have done less than $1,000 a day on the picture, and the average is materially higher than this. Runs have varied all the way from one day in some of the smaller cities to three and four weeks in the larger places.

New Pathe Serial on Way

George Larkin to Play Lead in Diando's "The Wolf Faced Man."

THE Wolf Faced Man" is the name of a Pathe serial on which work has been begun. It will be released some time during the coming summer. It is being produced by the Diando Company for Pathe from the story by W. A. S. Douglas and Lucien Hubbard.

"The Wolf Man" is a western serial and the story deals with the actions of a man who is disguised with a mask which resembles a wolf's head. It is a serial of thrills and mystery. The scene is laid in the West around 1870 and is replete with action and adventure. Some of the early episodes call for an Indian attack on an immigrant wagon-train, the burning of the wagon-train and a pitched battle between Indians and United States soldiers in which the Indians are routed.

George Larkin has been selected as the leading man for this serial. He is well known in pictures as one of the best "stunt" men before the camera. Among the others in the cast are Horace Carpenter, True Bordham and Frederick Malasta.

Stuart Paton will direct this serial and has been engaged for the last month in going over the script and picking out locations.

DeMille Stages Night Scene

In "The Whispering Chorus" He Puts on Crowded Shanghai Street.

WHEN Trimble, the central figure of the story embodied in "The Whispering Chorus," by Perley Poore Sheehan, which has been translated to the screen by Cecil B. De Mille from the scenario by Jeanie MacPherson, sinks lower and lower in the scales he drifts finally to China, and is picked up in an opium den somewhere in the heart of the city of Shanghai.

It is there that certain dramatic action occurs, and to enhance the realism of the scene and setting the wonderful Oriental street which Mr. De Mille has erected at the Lasky studio was utilized for a spectacular night view. It was a Chinese New Year celebration, and while fireworks of every description blazed through the pitch black sky and the "music" of a Celestial band kept time a great, lumbering beast of a dragon in myriad hues, spitting fire and steam, wound its devious way through the street, crowded by some three or four hundred almond-eyed aliens, gathered from the local Chinatown and elsewhere. Cecil B. De Mille generaled the whole outfit with admirable skill, and it was no small task considering that nine-tenths of the crowd could not understand English.

The street was a beautiful piece of scenic work, designed by Wilfred Buckland and his corps of assistants.

Screen Telegram Commended.

Exhibitors who have booked the Screen Telegram, the new Mutual news-serial, the first issues of which were released March 3 and 7, are delighted with the subject matter and photography. The third week of issues of the Screen Telegram will be released March 20 and 24.

One of the most interesting subjects shown in the Telegram of March 13 was the monster parade of Polish patriots in Chicago, in which 35,000 Poles of Chicago, greeting Ignace Jan Paderewski, the world-famous pianist and special ambassador of a free Poland, made a remarkable demonstration.

The renowned artist and patriot posed especially for the Screen Telegram, and is shown in a close-up writing the new Polish anthem, the music of which he is now composing.

Picture Theaters Projected.

SHEFFIELD, ALA.—M. A. Lightman has taken over Liberty theater.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—C. A. Dickinson succeeds E. J. Cooner as manager of Columbia theater.

CORNING, CAL.—Moving picture theater will be opened here shortly by F. W. Rodgers.

CORONADO, CAL.—Silver Strand theater has reopened under management of Broadway Amusement Company of San Diego.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—Miller's theater is being erected on Main street, near 8th. House will have seating capacity for 2,500 and cost $500,000.

OAKLAND, CAL.—Ackerman & Harris have taken over Macdonough theater.

SELMA, CAL.—New theater will be erected here by C. F. Unger.

WILMINGTON, DEL. — Brandywine Amusement Co., 2030 Market street, has plans by W. F. Hance, 204 W. 24th street, for moving picture theater and store building, to cost $20,000.

AUGUSTA, GA.—New Wells theater on Broad street has opened.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Oliver C. Hammond, 4615 Woodlawn avenue, has plans by Alfred Anis, 155 N. Clark street, to convert hall building, 75 by 122 feet, into theater and stores. Improvement will cost approximately $50,000.

CHICAGO, ILL.—John A. Sanders has leased to Genevieve Gartner the theater in building at 3723-27 West 12th street.

POLO, ILL.—Harry Postal has purchased Star theater from F. C. Perry.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.—Fourteenth Street theater, at 14th and State streets, has been leased by H. L. Curry.

LA SALLE, ILL.—J. E. Armstrong has purchased Colonial theater from A. H. Heaton.

PERU, ILL.—Nickellete moving picture house has been leased by Samuel Schlosser.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—Midway theater is being erected on East Lake street. House will have seating capacity for 2,000.

HARTFORD, IND.—Lawrence Hipskind has disposed of his interest in Orpheum theater to his partner, Charles Clark.

KNOXVILLE, IA.—Olympic theater has changed hands.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—J. S. Shortley of Seattle, Wash., has purchased Princess theater from Jacob E. Schlank.

WICHITA, KAN.—Wichita Theater Company has been formed to erect new Wichita theater.

LEXINGTON, KY.—William James has purchased Ada Meade theater and appointed Howard Feigley as manager.

CALUMET, MICH.—John D. Cuddihy has leased Calumet theater.

DETROIT, MICH.—C. B. Whitney, care Wheelock & Shank, 64 W. Randolph street, Chicago, is having plans prepared for an eight-story theater, store and office building.

DETROIT, MICH.—Abraham Charfoos and Morris Toprofsky have purchased interest of Egerton Ireland and Grant Hess in Countess theater, 1370 West Fort street.

ITHACA, MICH.—E. L. Struble is new manager of Genesta theater.

ARGYLE, MINN.—W. R. Hiller succeeds Albert W. Smith as manager of Lyric theater.

EDEN VALLEY, MINN.—Carson & Hornbeck have disposed of their moving picture business to J. H. Steinke.

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—Gem theater, owned by A. E. Longenecker and recently destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt.

RED LODGE, MONT.—Roman theater, erected on 13th street by Steve Roman, has opened.

ALLEN, NEB.—E. Kepford and R. O. Brownell have purchased the Rex theater.

DAVID CITY, NEB.—W. W. Hughes has purchased Lyric theater.

OMAHA, NEB.—J. W. Rachman has sold Grand theater at 16th and Locust streets to J. E. Kirk.

SUPERIOR, NEB.—Empress theater has been leased by E. C. Preston.

DEMING, N. MEX.—New Majestic theater on Gold avenue has opened.

GALLUP, N. MEX.—New Park theater has opened under management of W. E. McCoy.

ROSWELL, N. MEX.—C. G. Salter has taken over Princess theater and renamed it the Liberty.

NEWARK, N. Y.—Orpheum theater will soon reopen under new management.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Bofan Amusement Company, lessee, have plans by S. B. Eisendrath for an open-air theater on roof of theater at 623-27 Eighth avenue, to cost $30,000.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Alhambra theater, to cost $250,000, is being erected at Halsey street and Knickerbocker avenue.

COLUMBUS, O.—Neal Neth succeeds William James as manager of Broadway theater.

MIAMI, OKLA.—Dr. V. V. Grant and J. D. Yeargain are reported promoting erection of theater.

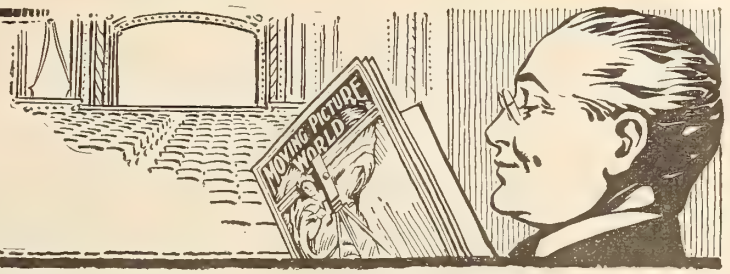
OKEMAH, OKLA.—Wilson Brothers have leased Jewel theater.

OKMULGEE, OKLA.—Theater building will be erected at East 7th street and So. Grand avenue by F. A. Young.

WEATHERFORD, OKLA.—George Remund has purchased Bungalow theater from Sims & Cooper.

DUQUESNE, PA.—A. N. Berg, of Berg Amusement Co., McKeesport, will erect moving picture theater with seating capacity for 850.

Trade News Brevities



Among Film Men in Baltimore Last Week

Mutual Closes Its Local Branch—Interesting Notes from Theaters and Exchanges—Personal Jottings of the Trade.

By J. M. Shellman, 1902 Mt. Royal Terrace, Baltimore, Md.

Mutual Closes Baltimore Office.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The Baltimore branch of the Mutual Film Corporation, formerly at 412 East Baltimore street, was closed on Friday, March 1, and it is understood that the business which was formerly conducted from this office will now be taken care of at the Washington, D. C., branch, now under the management of Victor L. Abbey. This office has been in operation in Baltimore for several years. C. E. Eiseman, who managed the exchange, prior to its closing, for about eight months, is a live wire and will prove a valuable addition to any company who acquires his services. It is understood that he now has several prospects under consideration.

Camp McClellan Picture Operator a Baltimorean.

When Mrs. Annie Odenhall, of this city, recently visited Camp McClellan, where three of her sons are now stationed, she was duly given the seat of honor in the regimental moving picture show most every night that she was there, for one of her sons, Nathan, operates the projection machine.

Fremont Theater Changes Hands.

The Fremont theater, 615 North Fremont street, Baltimore, has now changed hands, having been bought from W. A. Kroh, who has owned it for the past three years, by Austin Schmidt and R. W. White.

Arthur B. Price with Metro.

Arthur B. Price, the prominent and popular pioneer film man of Baltimore, has now resigned as representative of Triangle in the Baltimore territory, to become associated with Metro. Mr. Price accompanied Harold Lockwood and his new leading lady, Miss Lyle, from Washington to Baltimore on Sunday, March 3, when they were en route from Palm Beach to New York.

Two Big Features for Baltimore.

For Holy Week, beginning March 25, Charles E. and John T. Ford, co-proprietors of Ford's opera house, Baltimore, have booked the Fox photodramatization of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," with William Farnum as Jean Val Jean.

During the week beginning March 11, Harry A. Henkel ran for his patrons at the Baltimore Academy of Music, the new colored motion pictures produced by the Technicolor Motion Picture Company. Dr. C. A. Willat, producer of the film, "The Gulf Between," as well as the method of taking the pictures was in Baltimore to witness the initial presentation before the public.

A New Maryland Picture Corporation.

A number of the exhibitors of Baltimore have formed a company which will be known as the Variety Pictures Corporation. Milton Caplon, manager of the Clover theater, will be president and general manager, and J. Louis Rome, manager of the Broadway theater and counsel for the Maryland Exhibitors' League, will be the attorney for the company. This concern with an authorized capital of $25,000 is to bring state rights pictures and comedies to Baltimore. The offices of the company will be located at 210 North Calvert street.

Theater at Waynesboro Sold.

Waynesboro, Pa.—The "It" theater, in this city, for some time owned by John Karper, has changed hands, having been purchased by Watson & Daley of Hagerstown, Md. The management of the "It" was assumed by Watson & Daley on March 16. After extensive repairs and improvements they will add a program of vaudeville to the moving pictures.

Blue Mouse Management Again Changes

Although Max Coverlerchuk is still the owner of the Blue Mouse theater, 28 West Lexington street, Baltimore, the management has again changed. "Big Ben" Abrams, who piloted the affairs for a few weeks after resigning as Baltimore representative of the Hofman Foursquare, has now become associated with the First National Exhibitor's Circuit. Joesph Boylin, who it is understood is a new comer in Baltimore's film circles, has now been placed in charge of this house.

Busy at Baltimore Film Exchange.

Peter Oletzky, manager of the Baltimore Film Exchange, which handles the Universal output, is enthusiastic over the business that he expects on the new series of big 6 and 7 reel productions, one of which will be released every other week, beginning the first part of April, by this company.

Two Benefit Meetings in Baltimore.

Through the courtesy of E. M. Krogman, manager of the Garden theater, Lexington street at Park avenue, Baltimore, an entertainment was given by the children at this house on Sunday night, March 10, under the auspices of the Red Cross and $315 was collected for the benefit of this organization.

On Sunday afternoon, March 10, through the courtesy of George A. McDermitt, manager of Loew's Hippodrome theater, a monster mass meeting was held in the interests of food conservation and about 2,500 attended the gathering at which many patriotic addresses were made.

Censor Board Appointment Ratified.

The appointment recently made by Governor Harrington of Maryland, of Clarendon I. T. Gould, to be the minority member of the State Board of Motion Picture Censors, was confirmed on the afternoon of Friday, March 8, by the Senate of Maryland.

Personal Items of Baltimore People.

Mr. Allen, who was formerly associated with the Pittsburgh office of Pathe, is understood to be handling the Vitagraph productions in the Baltimore territory at the present time.

S. Feldstein, who was formerly located at the Clarksburg, W. Va., office of Universal, is now associated with the Baltimore Film Exchange and states that he will shortly bring his wife and daughter to Baltimore from New York, where they now reside.

Wallace High has now become the Baltimore representative for Sidney B. Lust of Washington, D. C. Mr. High was associated with the K. E. S. E. for about one year prior to his present connection.

L. A. DeHoff, manager of the New theater, has engaged J. M. Shellman to turn out his weekly program and announcement card. Mr. Shellman for some time handled all the publicity work for Bernard Depkin, Jr., supervising manager of the Parkway interests, operating the Parkway, Strand and McHenry theaters. He has also been on the staff of the Moving Picture World since 1916.

Harry C. Weaver, assistant treasurer at the Academy of Music, has been very ill for the past two weeks with pneumonia. He has been an employee at this playhouse for over 20 years.

Harry A. Henkel, manager of the Academy of Music, has booked the official United States Government motion pictures, which give completely the activities of the American boys in France for the week beginning March 25.

On Tuesday afternoon, March 19, Mrs. Frederick C. Schanberger, wife of the manager of the Maryland and Auditorium theaters, died at her apartments in the Mt. Royal from pneumonia.

Clarksburg Theater to Open.

Clarksburg, W. Va.—On Monday, May 6, it is understood that the beautiful new moving picture theater which is being constructed in this city by Jack Marks, will be thrown open to the public and will be known as the City Opera House. Invitations have been sent out by Mr. Marks, and the event is planned to be a notable event. The total cost of the theater, including the land, was $135,000. The seating capacity is 1,400 and there is a large balcony. The projection room is to be one of the finest and best equipped in the country, measuring 18 feet square and having installed two of the latest model Simplex machines. The stage including the equipment cost about $7,000, and of this amount, $1,000 was expended on an exquisite asbestos curtain. The music will be by orchestra as well as organ. The main floor has three aisles and there are about six exits on this floor besides the entrance. The throw to the screen is approximately 115 feet. The exterior view is one of imposing beauty, having a handsome iron wrought marquee suspended from the walls, over which rises an archway with a cut glass latticed effect. Three double doors are under the marquee which open into a marble trimmed lobby. The general color scheme will be green. Lee Byers will be the operator and the program will take in the Universal program.

This splendid house will be a credit to its owner and to the city of Clarksburg, where it is situated.

Big Rush for Licenses in Pennsylvania

State Industrial Board's New Code Governing Operators of Projection Machines Brings Many Applicants to Local Boards.

By F. V. Armato, 144 North Salford Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

HARRISBURG, PA.—Promulgation by the State Industrial Board of the new code of rules for operation of moving picture machines using inflammable films has caused a rush for licenses in a number of counties. The code provides no operator can be less than eighteen years old. He must have a license from a local board or bureau created by law or ordinance to issues licenses or else have made application to the Department of Labor and Industry and been licensed after an examination.

George Meeker Adds Bit to Liberty Loan Reel.

George Meeker, of the Stanley Co., has contributed "Kaisey at the Bat," produced as a part of the Liberty Loan Reel, being a burlesque on the famous poem, "Casey at the Bat."

Government Wants War Films in Small Theaters.

Carroll S. Trowbridge, special representative of Capt. G. M. Baines, who is in charge of the official Government pictures, is now in Philadelphia offering special inducements to the smaller houses on the "Battle of the Arras," "The Battle of the Somme," "Retreat of the Germans," and other war films. Mr. Trowbridge, who is making his headquarters at the Pathe exchange, states that the proceeds derived from the rental of the films will be turned over to the war relief funds.

Norman Johnson Gets King's Palace Theater.

Haddonfield, N. J.—The King's Palace in Haddonfield has recently been acquired by Norman Johnson of the same town. This theater, which was formerly open six days each week, has closed down to four days weekly at fifteen and twenty cents admission prices. Goldwyn, Paramount and Artcraft pictures are being shown here with good results.

Exhibitors Attend Theater Party.

Members of the Exhibitors' League of Philadelphia and the United Exhibitors' Association attended a theater party Thursday, March 22, which was given for the benefit of the war relief funds. Afterward they enjoyed a luncheon at the Walton Hotel. "The Land of Joy," at the Forrest theater, was the attraction which was seen.

Installs a Mighty Organ.

Lebanon, Pa.—J. A. Jackson, of the Theatorium, Lebanon, recently installed a magnificent organ which is considered one of the largest in this state.

Allen May Join Metro Forces.

Allen May, formerly of the World and Foursquare, has joined the Metro at Philadelphia as special representative.

Opens Picture Show in Arnot.

Arnot, Pa.—H. H. Roberts, a prominent merchant of Arnot, recently opened the Arnot, the first motion picture theater to venture forth in this mining district. The house contains 385 seats and has been constructed to meet the requirements of an up-to-date theater.

Masterpiece Film in New Offices.

The Masterpiece Film Attractions, Philadelphia, will remove from its present location at 1225 Vine street to 1235-37 Vine street, where it will have better accommodations for greatly increased stock of film. B. Amsterdam and L. Korson report excellent business. Ben Harris will be in charge of the new shipping department.

General Film Office Moves.

Announcement is also made by the General Film, now at 1308 Vine street, that they will remove to 1225 Vine street.

North Carolina Trade Letter

By D. M. Bain, Wilmington, N. C.

Marx S. Nathan Looks for Good Business

WILMINGTON, N. C.—Marx S. Nathan, manager of the Great Atlantic Feature Film Company of this city, reports good bookings for "The Conquest of Canaan" and "How Molly Made Good," throughout the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama, these films getting their share of the business and playing to very encouraging business. Mr. Nathan, who has just made a hurried trip over the territory, reports a number of important bookings, and is very optimistic as to outlook for spring and summer business throughout the South. The winter, which has been the most severe in 25 years, has not served to dampen the morale of the showmen, in fact Mr. Nathan says a number of the most important exhibitors are booking better pictures and longer runs in anticipation of heavy patronage which the warm weather will bring.

The Great Atlantic is less than two years old and is the only exchange in Eastern North Carolina, serving the states of Virginia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. Mr. Nathan announces negotiations under way for several other big features for his company.

Change of Policy by Craver Enterprises.

Greensboro, N. C.—The Craver Amusement Enterprises which purchased the Isis theater from W. D. MacAdoo several weeks ago announce that after alterations to that theater the vaudeville formerly running at their Piedmont theater will be presented at the Isis.

STRAY NOTES FROM SEATTLE.

By J. S. Anderson.

Hodkinson Entertained in Seattle.

At the weekly meeting of the Northwest Film Board of Trade on March 11, W. W. Hodkinson, of Hodkinson Service, Inc., distributors of Paralta Plays, was entertained. Mr. Hodkinson addressed the meeting, congratulating the members on the co-operative spirit of an organization composed of men engaged in a business where the competition was as keen if not keener than in any other line.

Mr. Hodkinson spent about a week in and around Seattle, part of the time being devoted to a fishing trip. He declared that he was very favorably impressed with the city, both as a motion picture center and as a pleasant place to live.

Exhibitor E. Oswald Dies.

Bremerton, Wash.—The motion picture fraternity of Washington was saddened this week by the death of E. Oswald, who, with Jack Rantz, owned and operated the Dream and Rialto theaters of Bremerton. Mr. Oswald returned from a six-weeks' stay in the hospital in time to help plan and to be present at the opening of the fine new Rialto on February 6, a description of which appeared in a recent issue of the Moving Picture World. He never fully regained his strength and had to be taken to the hospital in Seattle again on March 8, where he died two days later. He leaves a wife and young son.

New Theaters and Changes.

Yakima, Wash.—Fred Mercy's big, new motion picture theater was opened with elaborate ceremony on March 12.

Spirit Lake, Idaho.—H. Krech has opened a new motion picture theater here.

Midvale, Idaho.—Tom Lydston has sold his theater to H. J. Rodgers and Morris Keithly.

Condon, Ore.—J. W. Sparks has bought the American theater here.

News from Maritime Provinces

By Alice Fairweather, "Standard," St. John, N. B.

Fine Program at the Imperial.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—Last week's program at the Imperial theater would be hard to surpass anywhere. The first two days the feature was Lina Cavalieri in "The Eternal Temptress," Wednesday and Thursday, Clara Kimball Young in "Shirley Kaye" and Friday and Saturday, Jack Pickford in "Tom Sawyer." With a singer and a violinist and a good orchestra, as well as scenic and comedy reels, including the Drew Comedies and the Mack Sennett comedies, the line-up was certainly a very fine one and St. John people need not complain of not seeing up-to-date pictures.

Carl Stowe Takes Over.

Carl Stowe, the new manager of the Lyric and Unique theaters, has taken over his duties. He was formerly manager of the Gem theater in Fredericton. F. G. Spencer is at this writing in Halifax looking after "Damaged Goods" at the Academy there.

The Lyric has been donated for a war-time lecture on Tuesday morning.

Arch Mason Buys Middleton House.

Wolfville, N. S.—Arch Mason, of the Opera House, Wolfville, has purchased the theater at Middleton, N. S. This house closes on Wednesday nights, as that is Prayer Meeting Night in the town.

What Exhibitors Are Doing.

At the Opera House the two serials, "The Mystery Ship" and "Who Is Number One?" are both proving popular.

Though at first stating that he would not run serials, the manager of the Nickel has found that they are called for and is showing Helen Holmes in "The Lost Express."

At Joggins Mines, N. S., F. J. Burt has had to close his theater on account of the smallpox epidemic. Meanwhile the schools and churches remain open.

N. W. Mason, of New Glasgow, and his partner, Mr. McConnell, passed through St. John on their return from a Boston visit.

Boston News Letter

By Robert N. Howe, 80 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

Arthur Selma Will Conduct Lowell Theater.

LOWELL, MASS.—Arthur Selma, who has been associated with various booking offices in Boston and is well known in theatrical circles, has accepted the management of the Strand theater in Lowell. He succeeds James Carroll, who has gone to Washington as manager of Poli's theater in that city. The Owl theater in this city has changed management and a new policy may soon be announced.

Kaiser in Boston Attracts Attention.

Boston newspapers gave an unusually large amount of reading space to the first showing in New England of "The Kaiser—the Beast of Berlin" at the Globe theater in Boston. This feature film is released through the American Feature Film Company in New England territory and a number of companies have been started out to tour New England. The picture opens a three-days' run in Fall River April 14, and in Lawrence a week's run in the same week.

Every Boston newspaper had a reviewer at the opening performance. Their reports of the first showing of the film showed that at times the audience was upon the verge of rioting. Subsequent showings of the film showed the audience in a similar frame of mind, indicating that the first-night audience was not a "planted one" to gain publicity for the picture.

Pine Tree State News Letter

By John F. Flanagan, 151 Park View Ave., Bangor, Me.

Chester Benjamin Painting a Stage Scene.

MARS HILL, Me.—Chester Benjamin, operator at Hussey's theater, Mars Hill, is an artist. He is painting a scene for the stage, which is an exact duplicate of Maine street, Mars Hill, showing the theater and business blocks. It is a fine painting, and will be used on Hussey's stage when finished.

Henry Gordon Becomes Exhibitor.

East Millinocket, Me.—Henry Gordon, until lately connected with the Kalem Company, in which he played heavies with George Larkin in "Grant, the Police Reporter," scenes, has bought the Municipal theater at East Millinocket.

Mr. Gordon, while in the Maine woods, liked the country so well that he has decided to locate here. Previous to his entrance into moving pictures Mr. Gordon played on the legitimate stage in "Peg 'o My Heart," "Stop Thief," and had his own act in vaudeville; also was with the Universal Film Company before playing with George Larkin in his daredevil stunts in "Grant, the Police Reporter," taken at Jacksonville, Fla.

Exhibitor Harry Gordon.

Mr. Gordon says that if any of his old friends want some great trout fishing let them take a trip up to the Maine woods and visit him at his camp, which is quite convenient to his new home, and he will convince them that the old New York plank steaks have nothing on the venison steaks he is enjoying on his sojourn in Maine.

C. H. Seymour Takes in Auto Show.

Houlton, Me.—C. H. Seymour, proprietor of the Bijou theater, Houlton, was a visitor to the Boston Auto Show. Mr. Seymour is also Houlton agent for well known makes of cars, and his trip to Boston gave him some new ideas for auto show at Houlton, in which city he is a prominent figure.

Snow Drifts Still Linger.

Bangor, Me.—Film salesmen in Maine are having experiences found nowhere else this winter. Blizzards, snowdrifts, cold weather compel them to go many nights without sleep, except what they are able to get on the cushions of cold trains. On a ten-mile trip one man was held up by a blizzard and snow drifts, and was forced to walk over a mile.

Nashville Expects to See New Theaters

Great Government Ammunition Plant up the River Will Bring Multitudes and Plans Are Forming to Provide More Amusements.

By J. L. Ray, Nashville, Tenn.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—With the coming of new capital and thousands of new citizens into Nashville, as a result of the Government's huge munitions plant now being constructed at Hadley's Bend, a suburb of this city, amusement men are flocking to this section with all kinds of plans looking to the erection of moving picture and vaudeville houses.

In addition to the Crescent Amusement Company's $100,000 house to be erected on Fifth avenue, north, there are reports of Marcus Loew having secured options on the old Parthenon theater property on Church street, plans as outlined calling for the erection of a moving picture house on the site, including the adjoining property. Loew has been active in this territory for more than a year, having erected houses in Memphis, Chattanooga, Birmingham, Atlanta, and other nearby cities, and it seems but natural that he should enter Nashville at a time when so much prosperity is at hand.

Further reports have it that a prominent Nashville theater owner has arranged to purchase the Orpheum theater of Nashville, a legitimate house, and remodel it to such an extent that pictures can be shown at popular prices. The Orpheum is one of the largest houses in the city and would make an admirable moving picture theater.

While nothing has developed of a definite nature, it is a certainty that some new money will enter the Nashville amusement field within a short time.

Fifth Avenue Theater Dolls Up.

At the Fifth Avenue theater decorators and painters have been busy touching the handsome lobby up in preparation for the "spring drive." Foliage has been strewn about the overhead trellis work, and Japanese lanterns hung at intervals along the way, lighted by electric globes from within. It has been the policy of the Fifth Avenue to redecorate its lobby for years in the spring, but the scenic artist seems to have outdone himself this time.

Building 100-Seat Theater.

Piedmont, Ala.—Plans have been drawn up and final arrangements made for the construction of a modern moving picture house here with a seating capacity of 100 persons. The building will be of brick and sheet metal, dimensions 26x80, with a small stage and full-size screen. The total cost will be approximately $2,000, including electric lights, etc. Wooden floors will be installed with tar and gravel roof. C. N. Thompson is the owner, and work has already begun.

Toronto News Letter

By W. M. Gladish, 1263 Gerrard Street E., Toronto, Ont.

An Attractive Theater Calendar.

TORONTO, ONT.—Manager Ben Cronk, of the Allen theater, Toronto, has been issuing small pocket calendars which bear the names of the attractions for the current and next months at the theater. The calendars possess the usual appearance of a "date guide," with the addition of the names of the productions in red ink across the spaces for each week. On the reverse side of the card are pictures of Elsie Ferguson, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, and Marguerite Clark, together with several descriptive sentences about the theater. The cards are treasured.

Walter Green, formerly publicity manager of Regal Films, Limited, has been appointed assistant manager of the Allen theater.

A recent distinct hit at the Allen theater was the first issue of Mutual's "Screen Telegram." The first release made a fine impression among local film critics.

City Theater Advertises in Nearby Village.

The Beaver theater, West Toronto, has been conducting a rather interesting advertising campaign in "The Guide and Enterprise," the newspaper of Weston, Ontario, which is a town a few miles from Toronto. By this means the theater has attracted local patrons.

Cut-Throat Competition in Montreal.

Montreal.—Competition between certain Montreal theaters has apparently become so keen that a number of houses are offering "Double-header Programs" consisting of two regular features and news weeklies, and comedies thrown in for good measure. Double bills have been presented at the Regent, Moulin Rouge, St. Denis, Tivoli, and other theaters during the past week or two. On the other hand the Imperial theater adopted a policy of changing programs three times a week starting with the week of March 11 rather than increase the size of its bill. Several new theaters are said to have made the difference in the Montreal situation.

Newspaper Issues Photoplay Calendar.

The Toronto Daily News sprung a neat surprise on local film fans on Saturday, March 16, when it came out with a Photoplay Calendar as a regular feature of its dramatic section. This calendar contained thumb-nail announcements for each day of the following week for twenty-seven of the leading picture theaters of Toronto.

Cutting Out Scenes in Ontario.

A discussion arose in Toronto a few days ago as to whether a theater manager had the privilege of editing or censoring pictures which were booked into his theater. A number of local managers have been guilty of cutting up the films. One manager admitted that he had just cut out a scene in one reel, but it happened to be a view of a Christmas tree celebration somewhere in England. He declared that it was rather late in the day for Christmas pictures, and that the exchange should have eliminated the scene before it left its office.

Hospital Theater at Newmarket, Ont.

A moving picture theater is being prepared at the military hospital at Newmarket, Ontario, for the benefit of soldier-patients in that institution who are more or less permanently disabled. The theater is similar to those already built as part of convalescent hospitals in other centers of Canada.

MORE MAINE NEWS ITEMS.

Livermore Falls Theaters Sold.

Livermore Falls, Me.—Fred Mason, manager of Dreamland and Bijou theaters, Wilton, has sold his interests to Messrs. Darrington and Harrington, who will assume management at once. Mr. French has taken over the Dreamland theater in Houlton from H. T. French. He has been in the moving picture game from its birth, and formerly had a theater at Westbrook. Mr. Mason has also had many years experience with road shows.

L. F. McFayden Managing Woodland Theater.

Woodland, Me.—The Woodland Labor Union has appointed L. F. McFayden as manager of the Opera House at Woodland, succeeding F. F. Thomas.

New Show at Monticello, Me.

Monticello, Me.—Messrs. Wellington and Bunker, of Monticello, have opened Grange Hall, a moving picture house in that town.

Cincinnati Theaters Feel No Slump at All

War Conditions Prove Not Unfavorable to Picture Shows—Do Good, Patriotic Service and Get Popular Appreciation.

By Kenneth C. Crain, 307 1st Nat. Bk., Cincinnati, O.

CINCINNATI, O.—The optimism of the exhibitors who, from the first, declared their belief that the war would do no harm to the business of the moving picture theater has been fully justified in Cincinnati. A survey of the past few months, dating from the time when the ten per cent. war tax on amusement admission charges was imposed, proves that in spite of the accompanying handicaps of bad weather and unprecedented business conditions, such as the recent "heatless" holidays, attendance at the theaters has continued at a remarkable rate, and that it is still continuing. Save for the fact that the theaters were compelled to close on one day a week it is safe to say that the current year up to date would have shown record-breaking figures for the exhibitors, large and small.

The exhibitor of good pictures has found that he is performing a function of high value to the community, that he is appreciated, and that as long as he keeps his programs up to the mark he has no reason to fear for lack of business.

"Remaking of a Nation" Going Well.

Arrangements for the exhibition here and elsewhere over Ohio of the Camp Sherman (Chillicothe) moving picture showing the training of the National Army soldiers under the name of "The Remaking of a Nation" are progressing rapidly and satisfactorily, with the hearty cooperation of all branches of the film business. Horace Y. Barnes, civilian aide to Major General Glenn, commanding at Camp Sherman, is handling much of the work, and Chambers of Commerce in various cities are also lending aid.

Film Stars to Work in Bond Drive.

The announcement that such famous moving picture stars as Marguerite Clark, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, and others will aid in the forthcoming drive for the third Liberty Loan is of more than ordinary interest in Cincinnati, as local people, especially in moving picture circles, recall the highly successful appearance of Marguerite Clark in Cincinnati during the second campaign. Cincinnati has gone far "over the top" of her allotment in both of the previous campaigns with the aid of the exhibitors and others, and if the same thing does not occur in the coming campaign it will be very surprising.

Show for Youngstown Newsies.

Youngstown, O.—A local newspaper made arrangements with the management of the Liberty theater, the city's newest and one of its largest moving picture houses, for a special performance for the youngsters who sell the papers, and at nine o'clock on the given morning several hundred boys, and some few girls as well, gathered and marched to the theater. Warren Kerigan in the film dramatization of the Peter B. Kyne story, "A Man's Man," with a comedy, furnished the program, which was hugely enjoyed by the newsies.

Dayton News Letter

By P. J. G., Dayton Correspondent.

Mark Gates to Join Miami League.

DAYTON, O.—Mark Gates, who is to be managing director of the new Dayton theater when opened within the next few weeks, spent quite a bit of time last week making acquaintances at the rooms of the Miami Valley Exhibitors' League in company with the Moving Picture World's correspondent, who had the pleasure of introducing Mark to some of "our own." Mr. Gates also met several salesmen who happened to be present at the time of his visit (not to forget H. H. Thomas). Mark Gates and Al Kinzeler are two men after my own heart, nothing uppish about these "fellows," and they occupy prominent positions in the local film world. With the support of Mark Gates the league will be improved to a great degree, and a union of Mark Gates and Al Kinzeler would make perfect harmony in the doing of the many big things promised by the league for the coming year.

Mark Gates.

Gustave Kinzeler Once More an Exhibitor.

Gus Kinzeler has at last returned to the ranks of exhibitors and is now at the Wyoming theater, Dayton, O. Gus formerly managed the Elite theater now managed by his brother Al. After leaving the Elite Gus worked for several exchanges as road salesman, the last concern he worked for being the Kleine System. Gus is true to a friend no matter how low his position, and he is always ready to boost the other fellow. Gus made many friends while at the Elite in North Dayton and he will do the same at the Wyoming, which he hopes to develop into one of Dayton's leading suburban theaters.

I visited the Wyoming last week and found it one of the best suburban houses I have yet seen. On the night of my visit good business was in evidence, with Gus standing at the door wearing his famous prosperity smile and greeting the customers in the way he can do it. Gus is very popular throughout the entire state and he received many messages wishing him success in the new enterprise.

Long Time Contracts Not Favored.

That long-term contracts are not desirable is the opinion of Dayton's most prominent managers. The writer called on every exhibitor in Dayton and found only one who came out as in favor of the long-term contract. As most of the managers did not wish to be quoted no names will be given, but the exception to the rule was not found in one of the downtown houses. The writer had been informed from time to time of the attempt of one of the larger distributing companies to put in effect a binding contract for a long term (five years) and decided to satisfy the demand and make a canvass. Many of the managers volunteered the opinion that if such long-time contracts were the rule competition would end and prices would rise. Another manager ventured that stars may weaken, drawing power may wane and, in short, an entire program may die a sudden death.

Louisville News Letter

By Ohio Valley News Service, 1404 Starks Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

Charles Scott Transferred to Open Another Camp Theater.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Aubrey Stauffer, New York manager and composer, has been named manager of the Liberty theater at Camp Taylor, Louisville, succeeding Charles Scott, formerly of the Ben Ali, of Lexington, Ky., who has been transferred to open a new theater at another camp. The Liberty theater at Camp Taylor is also open to the public, as it is on an open thoroughfare, and people are given a chance to see a $1.50 show for fifty cents, including good boxing matches, etc., as well as a military orchestra. As fifty cents is a good price for many of the soldier boys to pay the admissions of civilians are welcomed, as it aids in holding down the cost of operating the theater, and insures better shows.

Good Business in Louisville.

Good weather throughout the greater part of March has resulted in good business at the Louisville theaters, including suburban houses as well. Good attractions are drawing big crowds. A leading exhibitor, in discussing the proposed daylight saving plan, said that he believed that it would be of benefit to the picture houses, as it would enable working men to get home and get cleaned up at an earlier hour, thus permitting them to get to the theaters more frequently than when it was almost dark by the time that they finally deposited their dinner pail on the kitchen table.

M. P. Foster Takes Horse Cave Theater.

Horse Cave, Ky.—M. P. Foster, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., where he had picture theater interests, has leased the Horse Cave opera house from Dr. H. B. Thomas, and will run pictures and vaudeville in the future. Mr. Foster believes in high class stuff, as was evidenced by his refusing to allow one of the booked vaudeville performance to play in the house after taking it over, paying its expenses and putting on pictures instead.

J. R. Miller Takes Lease in Mt. Sterling.

Mt. Sterling, Ky.—Lewis Judy and Marvin Gay, formerly operating the Paramount theater, who sold their lease and later discovered that they were still under contract for pictures, forcing them to open the Liberty theater in order to fill the contract, have turned their lease on the Liberty house over to J. R. Miller, who will continue the operation.

Plans for New Dixie Theater.

Franklin, Ky.—The Dixie theater has leased the building formerly occupied by C. H. Hargis & Co., and will remodel the property and move at an early date. The new building is much larger than the old one, and will have a greater seating capacity. Clarence Bunch is manager of the house.

Women's Orchestra Popular.

Pineville, Ky.—The Gains theater has been employing a female orchestra of three pieces composed of a pianist, violinist, and snare drum operator. This orchestra has proven very popular.

STRAY KANSAS CITY NOTE.

Personal Interest Marks Goldwyn Selling Letters.

The Kansas City Goldwyn office does not as a rule boast of the volume of business attained, but the condition of affairs at the end of the last fifteen days is worthy of comment. Through the efforts of H. C. Robertson and Frank Gehring, salesmen, a total number of thirty contracts were landed. These contracts were placed in Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. Perhaps all the credit for this business should be given to the two mentioned salesmen.

The sales method in this office is to send the exhibitor a letter telling of the pictures offered for use. If the response is encouraging the first letter is followed by a personal visit by a salesman. In this way the proposition is "softened up" for the salesman, and as a rule he makes the best of his opportunity. Many times contracts are closed without ever a visit from the salesman, but the salesman has made a study of the exhibitor, his theater, his town, and knows what he wants. Consequently, when the salesman writes the exhibitor he does not fill up the letter with the useless circular type line of talk, but tells what Goldwyn has to offer the exhibitor himself and not the exhibitor anywhere. Psychology coupled with good business judgment go a long way in landing a film contract, and that is followed out in this office.

Cleveland News Letter

By M. A. Malaney, 218 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.

Many Leading Film Men in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, O.—Cleveland theater managers wondered why ten well-known moving picture "big guns" came to Cleveland within a few days during the week ending March 16.

They thought there was something of unusual importance doing, but found that each of these men came for his individual purposes and business, and the fact that all came within a week was merely a coincidence.

Among those who were in the Forest City were Marcus Loew, owner of the Stillman theater, Cleveland; C. E. Shurtleff, general manager of Paralta Plays; Lee Ochs and C. R. Seelyee, of the new United Theaters Corporation; Joseph Shirball, district manager for Metro; W. C. Bachmeyer, Cincinnati Metro manager; Al Lichtman, of Artcraft; James Steele, district manager for Lasky-Famous Players; M. H. Hoffman, of Foursquare, and Frank Rembusch.

Mr. Skirball made final arrangements for opening a Metro exchange, which will be located on the fourth floor of the Sincere building. Mr. Ochs and Mr. Seelyee appeared before the Exhibitors' League in the interests of their proposition; Mr. Loew conferred with Manager Kuhn, of the theater, and E. Mandelbaum, former manager; Messrs. Lichtman and Steels conferred with Mr. Gerrich, their local manager; Mr. Shurtleff outlined his plan of exhibitors' co-operation with Paralta Plays, and others were here on business which they did not care to discuss.

Charles A. Seltzer Novels to Be Filmed.

Charles Alden Seltzer, well-known Cleveland author, whose specialty is Western stories, announced that two of his recent novels have been accepted for moving picture production.

They are "The Vengeance of Jefferson Gawne," which will serve for a starring vehicle for William S. Hart, and "The Trail to Yesterday," in which Bert Lytell will make his first appearance on the Metro program.

These are not the first of his novels to be made into picture plays, as he has had several others produced, some by Selig.

Operator Gets High Salary.

The United States Coal Company, which recently built a picture show for its employees at Bradley, Ohio, has the highest salaried machine operator in the world.

At least that is what it claims, and the company evidently is right, for the operator is a man named McDowell. He formerly was a $5,000 a year coal salesman.

Detroit's Adams Theater Turns to Films

New House Has Been Playing Dramatic Stock—Will Show High Class Features for Week Runs—Many Long-Run Houses.

By Jacob Smith, 710 Free Press Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

DETROIT, MICH.—John H. Kunsky announces that the new Adams theater on West Adams avenue, facing Grand Circus Park, and which has been playing dramatic stock since it opened last fall, will adopt a new policy of high-class feature pictures, starting Easter Monday. The grade of pictures and the price and policy will be the same as that of the Washington theater. The changing over of the Adams policy gives the John H. Kunsky Enterprises three theaters facing Grand Circus Park which will have feature pictures on a continuous policy for an entire week. With the Adams into pictures, Detroit now has the following theaters playing pictures an entire week: Majestic, Woodward and Willis; Broadway-Strand at Broadway, near Gratiot; Adams, on West Adams avenue; Washington, at Washington boulevard and Clifford; Madison, at Broadway and Grand Circus Park, and Drury Lane, on Woodward near Witherell street.

Madison Theater Tries New Scheme for Soloists.

The Madison theater, Detroit, is trying out something new in the way of soloists that is proving not only popular, but looks as if it will become an important factor in musical circles. Church soloists are being engaged for the matinees only, new soloists being selected each week. Naturally, each soloist has a following, and it is resulting in increased business at the afternoon shows. Next season Mr. Kunsky plans these musical events on a much larger scale. At the regular evening performances, the Madison has Herbert Waterhouse, a noted vocalist who has appeared with the Metropolitan Opera Co. and in recital. He is causing quite a stir in Detroit, and especially in musical circles.

F. M. Shafer Will Conduct Liberty Theater.

Fred M. Shafer has been apointed manager of the Liberty theater, Detroit, to succeed Alvin H. Smith, resigned. Mr. Smith was recently an exhibitor in Fort Wayne, Ind., and in the past has been affiliated with some of the largest theater circuits in the country.

Glenn A. Cross to Manage New Battle Creek House.

When Glenn A. Cross, of Lipp & Cross of Battle Creek, was in Detroit the other day he stated that the new Berry theater in the food city would open around the first of September. It will be for pictures and will be managed by Mr. Cross. The seating arrangement is ampitheater, on the order of the Majestic theater, Detroit.

C. C. Pippin Covering Territory for Vitagraph.

C. C. Pippin, recently with Pathe and formerly with George Kleine, is now with Vitagraph in Michigan covering territory outside of Detroit.

Prohibition May Bring More Theaters.

With the coming of prohibition in Michigan the first of May, the outlook for theater business is better than ever. The Woodward Theater Co., now operating the Woodward, Comique, Grand Circus Park, Rosebud and LaSalle theaters, with a new one soon to open at Henry and Woodward, is planning to secure new locations, especially near the downtown section, where there is heavy traffic. These proposed theaters may operate with a long continuous policy from about 9 A. M. to 11 P. M. with prices at five and ten cents. The present theaters now operated by the Woodward Theater Company are conducted on these "long daily grinds" and are making money. There will be many good corners available when the saloons go out of business, and Henry S. Koppin, president of the company, who is a real estate man, has already secured options on some of these saloon locations with a view of altering them into theaters seating around 300.

Managerial Changes in Three Exchanges.

It does seem as if more changes are made in the managerial staffs of Detroit exchanges than any other large city in the country. The latest are the appointment of F. W. Gebhardt as manager of the Pathe, C. G. Kingsley as manager of Metro, and the resignation of R. A. Perry as manager of the Allen Film Co.

Mr. Gebhardt succeeds Eddie Fontaine at the Pathe office, the latter going to Boston where he will be under C. W. Perry, formerly of Detroit, Mr. Gebhardt comes direct from Cleveland, where he was assistant manager for Pathe, previously being salesman out of the St. Louis Pathe exchange.

Mr. Kingsley was formerly here for Fox and Bluebird, and for a while was in Indianapolis for Fox. He succeeds George Montgomery, who has resigned.

Jack Cairn Again An Exhibitor.

Jack Cairn, formerly salesman for Mutual, and previously an exhibitor, has returned to the theater end by leasing the Duchess theater at 343 Grand River avenue, which he is renaming the Band Box. He is making extensive alterations and improvements to the theater.

Wisconsin News Letter.

By Sarah H. Madison, 623 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Censors Bar Fox "Cleopatra" to Children.

APPLETON, WIS.—Objections made to the appearance of Theda Bara, in "Cleopatra," at the Appleton theater, led to the appointment of a temporary censorship committee which barred children from the film. The committee also made the recommendation, "We furthermore wish to condemn the form of suggestive advertising used prior to production of plays of such or any other character and therefore wish to call the attention of the theater authorities to henceforth cease using such methods." Outside the scenes objected to the committee felt that scenery and acting called for favorable comment. The committee was composed of eight women, four business men, the mayor and the chief of police.

STRAY PORTLAND, ORE., NOTES.

By Abraham Nelson.

With the Road Men.

Jack Lannon, of the Greater Feature Film Company, of Seattle, was a recent visitor in Portland, placing his Christie Comedies and the Mack Sennett-Keystone-Mutual reissues.

W. H. Rankin, special representative for Pathe, has been sojourning in the territory booking the Pathe Plays in the key towns of the state.

Ed I. Hudson, traveling representative for Goldwyn, and Louis Amacher, of the L. J. Schlaifer Attractions, were in from trips through their territories and report excellent sale for their respective products.

Albert Eden, manager for the Fox Film in these parts, was a visitor from Seattle and came just in time to bump into the censorship difficulties. While the trouble was not due to any acts of his nor directly to his product, he put in considerable time helping to get the matter straight.

J. S. Woody was in Portland cooperating with the Majestic in exploiting "The Marionettes," which was shown there the week of March 9.

Business Outlook in Texas Much Improved

Rains and Better Prospects—Arthur Clare Signs for Dallas Hippodrome and Makes a Good Thing—Pictures That Succeeded in Dallas.

By Douglas Hawley, Times-Herald, Dallas, Texas.

DALLAS, TEX.—Things look better in Texas. The smallpox situation is improving with the advent of warmer weather and spring days. They've had some more rains down in the coast country, and everything's on the make with the fellows feeling better.

We had a piece in the paper a couple of weeks ago about Arthur Clare and the Hippodrome "come-back." This Clare has gone and done another stunt. In connection it must be remarked that Fox's "Cleopatra," with Theda Bara, ran two weeks and a day at the "Hip," and did eight thousand. But to get back to Arthur Clare, some three months ago the Interstate's Majestic burned. The Interstate secured a short-time lease on the local opera house. Plans for rebuilding the Majestic went by the board because materials have gone kiting in price. They tried to lease the Hippodrome, but couldn't agree on terms. Also they tried for a long lease on the opera house, with the same result.

Clare, while the dickering was going on, signed up for five years for the Hip, and now he's got 'em on the hip. The Interstate people finally signed for three years on the opera house, and the latter management has already "come in" to Clare for bookings they would have shown, but for the vaudeville lease on their own house. As a result the Hip went over to two minstrel performances during the week beginning March 18. These will be followed by "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," the filming of the Ferguson impeachment trial at Austin, and later the big First National Corp. of America release, "Tarzan of the Apes."

"Amarilly," with Pickford, did good business at the Queen during the week ending March 16, and "The Submarine Eye" did fairly well at the Old Mill. Beginning March 17 local releases included Charles Ray in "The Family Skeleton" and Mabel Normand in the Goldwyn, "Dodging a Million," at the Old Mill; Clara Kimball Young in "Shirley Kaye" and the Foursquare, "Bar Sinister," at the Queen; Belle Bennett in the Triangle, "A Soul in Trust," and the Kleine, "Brown of Harvard," at the Washington; Peggy Hyland in the Fox, "Debt of Honor," at the Jefferson.

Sam Schwartz Impatient.

"Say, I wanner get that 'Sunset Trail' just as soon as it comes," said Sam Schwartz, of the Aztec theater, Eagle Pass, Texas, who was in Dallas last week. There's a reason. Mr. Schwartz was one of the "actors" in the making of the Rex Beach film in and around his own border country. The man from the border says things are more promising.

John McIlhern Heads General Office.

John McIlhern is the new Dallas manager for the General Film Company, Dallas. Mr. McIlhern is a Dallas man, than whom there is none better acquainted or better liked in the territory. He was formerly with Universal.

C. R. Sealey Expected in Dallas.

C. R. Sealey, organizer of the United Theaters Corporation, is expected in Dallas soon. Considerable interest is taken here in the Sealey proposition.

New Sign Over Paramount Offices.

S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., is the new sign on the Paramount branch window at Dallas. The corporation controls some eleven states for Paramount and Artcraft productions, and the presumption is that Mr. Lynch wants to "go on his own" a bit.

Bert King Visits Dallas Vitagraph.

Bert King, Vitagraph branch manager at New Orleans, recently visited J. B. Dugger, Dallas branch manager. Vitagraph salesmen out of Dallas headquarters have been called for a conference on March 24 to see and talk the campaign for the new serial, "The Woman and the Web."

Company at Strawn Operates Show.

"Yes, they run a picture show too, and employees pay for admission tickets with their 'script'." said A. C. Buchanan, assistant general manager of Texas and Pacific Mining and Mercantile Company, Strawn, Tex., when he was in Dallas booking some new stuff recently. The concern operates the coal mines and pretty nearly everything else in and around Strawn out west of Dallas.

"Dad" Spooner Back to the Stage.

"Dad" Spooner, dean of dramatic stock companies in Texas, has harkened to the call. "Dad's" closed the Crystal theater at San Angelo and gone to Los Angeles to get back into the "legit," it is said. Spooner has been operating the Crystal for some months. San Angelo now has only one moving picture theater.

Des Moines News Letter

By J. L. Shepley, 615 Locust St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Majestic Made Beautiful.

DES MOINES, IOWA.—Manager William O'Hare has completely redecorated the Majestic theater, Des Moines, and it is one of the handsomest theaters in Iowa in its new dress. The color scheme is old rose, ivory and green, and the seats have been covered with new white slip-ons. Mr. O'Hare is changing his stage setting for every picture. For instance, in the showing of Mary Pickford in "The Little Princess" the stage was set to resemble a nursery. In "The Spreading Dawn," Mr. O'Hare decorated with a tent on one side of the stage, while on the other were cannon and other military effects, all carefully lighted to bring out the full value. Each setting is atmospherically correct, and adds much to the enjoyment of the pictures.

William Riley Hatch Will Return to Pictures.

Wm. Riley Hatch, who has won a name for himself in motion pictures through his appearance in several Fox subjects, as well as Herbert Brennon's "The Lone Wolf," visited Des Moines last week as a member of the company presenting "A Gypsy Trail." Mr. Hatch was interviewed by the motion picture editors of the local papers, and stated that he expected to return to the screen at the conclusion of his present theatrical tour.

A. H. Blank Gets "Raffles."

On his return from New York last week, A. H. Blank announced the purchase of the John Barrymore picture, "Raffles," for Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, and Kansas. Mr. Blank also announced that four prints of "Tarzan of the Apes" would be ready for immediate booking in his territory, release date being set for April 2.

Garden Theater's New Stage Set.

The Garden theater, Des Moines, has installed a handsome new stage setting and Minusa screen. The set is in the form of a wood scene, with a court interior. A handsome pictorial drop curtain covers the screen when not in use. In the center of the stage a large flower bed has been placed, with carefully selected growing plants.

F. H. Graaf Designs Attractive Souvenir.

Estherville, Ia.—F. H. Graaf, of the Grand theater, Estherville, has gotten out a most attractive souvenir of his theater, confectionery store, and cafeteria, all of which are housed in the same building. The four half-tone illustrations show the front of the house and full views of the interior of the theater, the candy store, and the restaurant. Mr. Graaf illustrates each picture with an appropriate four-line verse. It is a very neat little souvenir, and local exchange men very much appreciate it.

Sam Goldflam Goes to Kansas.

Sam Goldflam, who has been acting as Iowa representative for the A. H. Blank Enterprises, has been transferred to Kansas, and will cover the larger cities in that state. F. R. Martin has been transferred to Iowa territory.

Cecil Theater Now Like Japanese Garden

Mason City, Ia.—Manager Tom Arthur, of the Cecil theater, Mason City, has redecorated his handsome theater to resemble a Japanese garden, the walls being covered with bamboo, Oriental colored umbrellas, and tapestry. The lobby lights are hung with prettily colored Japanese lanterns, and the stage setting shows a picture of the Fujiyama volcano in the distance, with palms and other effective accessories. The girl ushers are attired in prettily colored kimonos, and Manager Arthur's innovation has caused a great deal of talk and interest among his patrons.

Visitors at Des Moines Exchanges.

Visitors to the Des Moines exchange during the past week included F. A. Bronn & Son, Riceville; Richards & Son, of the Royal theater, Panora; A. H. Hildebaugh, of Bayard; J. E. Lippert, of the Plaza theater, Dyersville; Mrs. Ruth Cota, of the Cota theater, Waukon; J. H. Black, of the Majestic theater, Ft. Dodge; George Peterson, of the Grand theater, Story City; G. S. Ferguson, of the Opera House, Nemaha; Van Wiley, of the Lyric and Gem, Boone; H. E. Tesmen, of the Star theater, Newton, and J. E. Benton, of the Grand and Comet theaters, Albia.

Minneapolis News Letter

By J. L. Johnston, 719 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

Colburn Theater Taken by R. & F. Enterprises.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Ruben & Finkelstein have taken the Calhoun theater, Lake street near Hennepin avenue, and are said to have practically completed arrangements whereby the New Garden theater, Hennepin avenue near Seventh, comes under their control shortly. The addition of these two theaters to the R. & F. circuit brings the total number of Twin City houses in the chain up to an even dozen. The Calhoun is the first neighborhood house to be taken over by Ruben & Finkelstein, all of the other theaters being centrally located in Minneapolis and St. Paul. J. S. Woodhouse, formerly manager of the Lagoon theater, Minneapolis, has assumed charge of the Ruben & Finkelstein publicity and advertising department and is also looking after the bookings for the Calhoun. Mr. Woodhouse is assisted in his publicity work by Miss Grace Polk, former local newspaper writer. J. F. Cohen, owner of the Lagoon theater, has taken over the active management of the theater since Mr. Woodhouse resigned. Pallma's jazz band will continue to be a Lagoon feature.

Committee Plans Entertainment of Connecticut Visitors.

Exchangemen of Minneapolis met at the Hotel Radisson Friday, March 8, to plan entertaining visitors to the exhibitors' convention here in May.

S. A. Louis, Charles Stombaugh and Sann Donnelan were appointed as a committee on entertainment of visitors.

R. L. Hewitt Succeeds in Hard Territory.

Please observe the photo of Minneapolis' second oldest permanent exchange manager, reproduced herewith. R. L. Hewitt, of the American Standard Corporation exchange, is the man. Mr. Hewitt came to Minneapolis almost two years ago to succeed William Merrill, John Wolf, L. J. Schlaiffer and Harry Rowe as manager of the Unicorn Film Service exchange. Today Mr. Hewitt occupies the same desk and the same office he first entered, though the Unicorn exchange has been taken over by the American Standard Corp. Mr. Hewitt came to Minneapolis from Chicago, where he was assistant manager for Metro. Mr. Hewitt is now exploiting several five and six-reel features and comedies throughout the Northwest. His only rival for the honor of being the longest on one exchange job locally is Harry Graham, of the Perfection exchange. Mr. Graham came to Minneapolis one month ahead of Mr. Hewitt. Mr. Graham's picture will appear in this column.

R. F. Hewitt.

Lyle Losie Now in Flying Corps.

Word received from Lyle Losie, formerly connected with the Supreme exchange here, shows him to have shifted from Camp Custer, Mich., to Fort Worth, Texas, where he is in training for the flying corps.

With the Minneapolis Exhibitors.

Following a big billboard advertising campaign and some clever newspaper and herald advertising campaign, Manager Branham of the Strand enjoyed a good business with "Empty Pockets" despite unfavorable weather. Mr. Branham used a teaser campaign on a large scale in the three local dailies, gave away tickets admitting red-headed girls to the theater upon payment of war tax on Monday and Tuesday, March 11 and 12, and he also distributed bookmarks and original heralds printed in two colors in advance of the film showing. Mr. Branham will follow "Empty Pockets" with Taylor Holmes' "Ruggles of Red Gap" and Petrova's "Daughter of Destiny."

Manager Julius Johnson, of the New Garrick, has booked Goldwyn pictures for Minneapolis first run. Mr. Johnson is also displaying the Pathe news, Bruce scenics, Christie comedies and Finley nature series picture in addition to his features.

Recent Twin Cities Visitors.

Among the out-of-town visitors to Minneapolis recently were: Mrs. Brinkman, Rex theater, Bemidji, Minn.; Harry Hartman, Palace theater, Mandan, N. D.; Manager McLaughlin, Unique theater, Rice Lake, Wis.; Manager Crosby, Empress theater, St. Charles, Minn.; Val B. Valleau, Broadway theater, Albert Lea, Minn.; Bill Rezac, Princess theater, Hibbing, Minn.; J. Romans, Rex theater, Virginia, Minn.; Manager Heath, Royal theater, Wells, Minn.

Recent Doings in Kansas City Filmdom

Interesting Changes Among Local Exhibitors and Distributors—Many Items About Theaters and Managers Through Middle West.

By Kansas City News Service, 115 Railway Exchange.

Garden Theater Bought by Two Exchange Men.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Fred Meyn, shipping clerk of the local Pathe office, and Morton Van Praag, booker at the same office, recently bought the Central Garden theater at Fourteenth and Central, Kansas City, Kansas, and have resigned their positions at that office to manage their theater. The theater has been closed for some time, but the "exchangemen-exhibitors" have had considerable success during the few days that the theater has been running. Their successors have not yet been chosen.

J. E. Foland Around Again.

J. E. Foland, Pathe salesman in northern Kansas, is now again on his feet and ready for business after an illness of several weeks, during which time he was operated upon.

R. H. Fairchild Gets K. C. Territory.

R. H. Fairchild, formerly traveler for the General Film Company in Oklahoma, has been assigned to the Kansas City territory. With the addition of a half dozen new houses the city salesmanship for Kansas City has become a position of greater importance, and it is needless to say that the competition for this business has become particularly keen.

Phil Ryan Leaves for Eastern Trip.

Phil Ryan, general manager of the Standard Film Corporation, left March 15 for Chicago, Ill., to attend to the installation of E. Mordue, the new manager of the Chicago office of the company, who succeeds F. B. Rogers, who recently resigned to take the management of the Chicago Pathe office. While there he will also reorganize the sales department of the office. Upon the completion of this work he will go to New York City to buy some new pictures for the company.

C. S. Edwards Takes a Vacation.

C. S. Edwards, who for many years has been interested in the moving picture industry in Kansas City, has left the Kansas City Feature Film Company to take an indefinite vacation.

John Kiltz Joins K. C. Feature Film.

John Kiltz, formerly manager of the Kansas City Mutual office, has been added to the salesforce of the Kansas City Feature Film Company. He will do local and special work for the present.

Howard Jameyson Expects Call Soon.

Howard Jameyson, formerly assistant manager of the local Pathe office, is now doing special road work while awaiting his call to report to an aviation school.

Theater Notes from Kansas.

Camp Funston, Kan.—Construction of the new Liberty theater here is progressing rapidly. When completed the new building will cost $27,000, and will seat 3,000.

Baxter Springs, Kan.—J. G. Tinsdale, of the Elite theater, has leased a plot of ground at the corner of Military avenue and Cedar street, and will erect a large airdome.

Waverly, Kan.—J. M. Bailey has moved the picture show from its former location to the A. O. U. W. building, where it has much more space.

Parsons, Kan.—S. D. Newton, owner of the Elks theater here, is making an effort to lease his building to the owner of a chain of theaters in Oklahoma.

El Dorado, Kan.—Chas. Parten will purchase a lot here on which he will erect an airdome. Mr. Parton operates the Erie theater.

Caney, Kan.—A new front is being installed at the Strand theater.

Scattered Middle West Theater Items.

Garden City, Mo.—E. H. McClintock, of El Dorado Springs, has leased the picture show of George Walker.

Dunnegan, Mo.—A $10,000 fire occurred here recently. The opera house was one of the buildings destroyed.

Joplin, Mo.—Fire March 10 caused damage to the extent of $1,000 at the Delphus theater here.

Pierre, S. D.—Conrad Hammerstein has sold the Crystal theater to Geo. B. Wycoff, of Gettysburg.

Hot Springs, S. D.—Mrs. Ruth Wright has purchased the lease of the Grand theater, and will conduct the moving picture show.

Parker, S. D.—H. Wheeler has purchased the Idle Hour theater, and has taken possession. Moving pictures will be shown.

Williston, N. D.—W. W. Boardman has taken over the management of the Lyric theater.

With Exhibitors Through the Southwest.

Tulsa, Okla.—The Rialto theater has been remodeled at an expense of over $30,000, and is now ready to be opened to the public.

Wapanucka, Okla.—J. O. Hunt is the owner and manager of the handsome new theater here, the Magnet.

Delaware, Okla.—Ed. Green has sold his interest in the Nusho theater to O. D. Wenger, of this city.

Elreno, Okla.—Al Derry has purchased the Jewel theater from Almon E. Tinkelbaugh. Mr. Derry will remodel and paint the theater within a short time.

Buffalo, Okla.—Dr. H. H. McKeown has leased the lower floor of the Odd Fellows' building, and will open a picture show therein.

Clinton, Okla.—L. L. Cooin will add one story addition to his theater building here. Addition, 25x110 ft. J. W. Mann, architect.

Elk City, Okla.—W. T. Yoder, manager of the Quality theater, has gone to California to enter the employ of the Universal Film Co.

Fort Sill, Okla.—The War Department, Washington, D. C., will erect a Liberty theater at Camp Doniphan.

Hemphill, Tex.—Fire on Feb. 27 destroyed the picture show here.

Dallas, Tex.—A recent fire destroyed the Select Pictures exchange here.

Denison, Tex.—The Brookston Airdome theater was destroyed by fire Feb. 26. The fire did an aggregate damage of $12,000.

Amarillo, Tex.—A certificate of dissolution has been filed by the Amarillo Grand Opera House Company.

El Paso, Tex.—Actual construction on the Ellanay, El Paso's proposed new motion picture palace, will begin April 1. The theater will cost $45,000.

Austin, Tex.—The Hancock opera house suffered a fire loss of between $5,000 and $10,000 March 6. Work of rebuilding has started.

Clovis, N. M.—Hardwich Brothers will erect a $35,000 picture theater here. Carl Boller & Brothers, 541 Ridge building, architects. Seating capacity, 1,200.

Minoqua, Wis.—Plans have been made by Architect A. H. Rantz for the new opera house that is to be built here.

Cheyenne, Wyo.—R. V. Davis, formerly of Denver, will be the new manager of the Atlas theater.

Radcliffe, Iowa.—M. O. Butler has taken over the picture business here, and will have charge of it hereafter.

Grand Junction, Iowa.—Fred Hughart has disposed of the Eagle theater to J. M. Wiggins.

Patriotic Film Bureau Formed on Coast

California Film Men Appoint Committee to Distribute the Council of Defense Motion Pictures to Local Audiences.

By T. A. Church, 1507 North Street, Berkeley, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The California State Council of Defense has organized a film bureau at the suggestion of officials of the Federal Government, the object being the economical distribution of Government films illustrating war work in its various phases. Charles P. Watson, of the Bureau of Public Information, arrived here recently from Washington, and at his suggestion a meeting of film exchange managers was held a few days ago in the offices of the Progressive Motion Picture Company in the Phelan Building. Mr. Watson attended this gathering and explained the objects of the plan, which met with the approval of all those present. Local film men agreed to co-operate to the fullest extent in securing a wide distribution of the films in question and offered their services without any idea of profit. A committee was appointed to handle this matter, this being as follows: Herman Wobber, manager of the Progressive Motion Picture Co.; Meyer J. Cohen, manager of the local branch of the George Kleine System, and Sol L. Lesser, president of the All Star Feature Distributors, Inc.

Following the naming of the committee of film men Sol L. Lesser and Meyer J. Cohen conferred with A. H. Naftzger, Mortimer Fleischacker and William Sproule, of the State Council of Defense, and it was decided to recommend to Governor William D. Stephens that a Bureau of Films be added to this body, and that Sol L. Lesser be made head of this division. The recommendation has been adopted and the appointment confirmed. A publicity campaign is planned to reach all districts, and this will be handled by Meyer J. Cohen. All the appointees serve without pay. The first of the subjects to be released was shown recently at Photoplayer Hall by Mr. Watson, this being entitled "The Remaking of a Nation."

"The Unbeliever" Viewed at Hotel St. Francis.

The Colonial ballroom of the Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco, was the scene of a brilliant gathering on the evening of March 14, when a special pre-view of "The Unbeliever," produced by the Edison studios with the co-operation of the United States Marine Corps, was given under the direction of the officers of the corps. The room was filled with army and navy officers, state and city officials, and men and women prominent for their interest in civic affairs. Admittance was by invitation only. Music was furnished by an orchestra from Mare Island, and an added feature was a short talk by Private Collinge, a Canadian bomb-thrower, who lost an arm in the great war. Meyer J. Cohen, of the George Kleine System, told of the organization of a bureau of films on the part of the State Council of Defense and what was expected to be accomplished. The feature picture, which was enthusiastically received, was followed by a shorter subject, "The Star Spangled Banner."

Seating Concern Moves to Film Building

C. F. Weber & Co., who make a specialty of seating facilities, have taken over the entire fourth floor of the Easton Building at 985 Market street, San Francisco, Cal. This building is also the home of the Greater Vitagraph, the Duhem Motion Picture, the Select Pictures, the Goldwyn, the Pathe, and the Rudolph Wurlitzer company.

Goldwyn Official Visits Coast.

F. B. Warren, one of the vice-presidents of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, is in San Francisco, on a tour of inspection of the western branches. He came direct from Chicago, and after a stay here will visit Los Angeles before visiting the Northwest. It is rumored that a Goldwyn studio will be erected in California, and Mr. Warren's visit doubtless has something to do with this project. John W. Rankin, of the editorial department of this concern, is also here, having come from Dallas, Tex., for a stay of a few days. He handles publicity work in the territory west of Denver.

Select Manager Finds Business Good.

H. H. Hicks, manager of the San Francisco branch of the Select Pictures, recently completed an automobile trip through the interior valleys from Redding to Fresno, and found conditions in good shape, booking a large volume of business. The recent rains have been of immense benefit, and exhibitors are enjoying the best business in many months.

Joe Cohen Visits the Mainland.

Joe Cohen, of the Consolidated Amusement Company, Honolulu, T. H., arrived in San Francisco recently on a business trip and has booked considerable service. One of the first contracts signed by him was for fifty Pathe Gold Rooster features and all Pathe colored scenics. He brought with him one thousand feet of volcano pictures taken by R. J. Baker during the recent eruption of Kilauea.

Alhambra Theater Redecorated.

The Alhambra theater, San Francisco, has been redecorated under the direction of Manager Robert Drady, and other changes are planned to make of it a high-class moving picture theater. Business has been showing a steady improvement here of late, house records having been set during the recent showing of "Wild Women," featuring Harry Carey, and Canadian war pictures with a lecture by Private Collinge.

Emmick Closes Big Deal.

E. H. Emmick, head of the Peerless Film Service, San Francisco, has returned from a business trip to the Los Angeles branch, and while away purchased the Clune Film Exchange with productions which include "Ramona," "Eyes of the World" and "The Clansman." The local exchange is now releasing the two-reel Keystone comedies recently purchased, in addition to the regular Christie releases.

Lesser to Distribute Gaumont News.

While a formal announcement has not been made at this date it is understood to be settled that the Gaumont News will be distributed in California, Arizona and Nevada by Sol L. Lesser, the first release to be dated March 26. The Pacific Coast organization of the Gaumont company has not been affected by the recent change in the distribution of the weekly, Eugene W. Castle of this city, who has been with the concern for four years, remaining as head of the Pacific Coast Division, while Blaine Walker will continue at Los Angeles.

Nat A. Magner Home from the Orient.

Nat A. Magner has returned from a six-months' trip to the Orient, where he went to place the Selig productions, and his observations on conditions in the Far East will shortly be presented to the readers of the Moving Picture World in an exclusive interview. Offices are being opened by him in the Pacific Building.

"The Planter" Under Investigation.

Oakland, Cal.—Mayor John L. Davie recently instructed the chief of police to witness a showing of "The Planter," featured at the Kinema theater with great success, to ascertain whether or not the picture contains objectionable parts, as charged by Ramon P. De Negri, consul-general for Mexico, who has filed a formal protest. The engagement at the Kinema was not interefered with by the filing of the protest.

Prominent Organist Dies.

William E. MacClymont, organist of the Strand theater, San Francisco, died in a local hospital after a short illness. He was formerly organist of the Holy Trinity Church, New York, and had been in California but a short time.

Universal Company Visits Truckee.

Truckee, Cal.—A company from Universal City arrived here recently to film scenes in "Silent Smith." The late snowfall has been very heavy and ideal conditions are prevailing for the making of pictures. The company consists of Elmer Clifton, director; Leigh R. Smith, assistant director; Monroe Salisbury, Ruth Clifford, Betty Shade, Art Lee, Captain Smith and wife, V. E. Miller, Bub Morris, William Howard, Tom Brooker and J. Scott. Other companies are expected soon.

Jewel Theater Closed Again.

The Jewel theater, San Francisco, is again dark and a meeting of creditors is to be held shortly at which the future policy of this house will probably be decided upon.

Brodsky Returns to the Orient.

Benjamin Brodsky has returned to Japan, after having made a stay of several weeks in San Francisco, and plans to make a number of feature pictures, having taken a company with him for this purpose. The party includes two scenario writers and a galaxy of screen stars headed by Gloria Swanson.

San Francisco Briefs.

Louis R. Laurie, of the Rialto theater, has left for Chicago, owing to the death of his mother.

L. W. Thompson, representing the Mutual exchange, is covering the Nevada territory, being one of the first to visit exhibitors there this year.

Recent visitors have included Theodore Keech, Liberty theater, Fresno; Nick Turner, Grass Valley; C. F. Woods, Grass Valley; L. Frietas, Stockton; I. D. Stanford, Lyric theater, Chico; F. McAlpine, Empire theater, San Jose; John Daly, Chico, and Frank Atkins, Marysville.

Charles Moser has purchased a one-half interest in the Mission and Lyceum theaters, Twenty-ninth and Mission streets.

Jed Hensley, formerly shipping clerk for Pathe at Denver, Colo., has come to this city and will affiliate himself with the local branch.

W. A. Cory, who recently disposed of the Cory theater in this city, has moved to Los Angeles, where he has opened a poster exchange.

Northern California Notes.

Turlock, Cal.—Charles Bailey has sold the Turlock theater to A. A. Richards, of Lodi.

Oakland, Cal.—L. E. Lund has completed improvements at the Broadway theater, including the installation of two new projection machines.

Taft, Cal.—Samuel Orloff has disposed of his interests in the Rex theater.

Oakland, Cal.—L. V. De Lorme, assistant to H. L. Beach, of the Chimes theater, is back on the job again after a siege with the measles.

Seattle News Letter

By S. J. Anderson, East Seattle, Wash.

Northwest Film Board Plan an Employment and a Service Bureau.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The recent regular meeting of the Northwest Film Board was held on Monday instead of Tuesday, March 12, so as not to conflict with the municipal elections. The new plans were brought up for discussion, and adopted at this meeting. One was the organization of an employment bureau. This bureau will investigate the records of various film employees, and will keep on file a list of the applicants for positions in exchanges. The other plan was the preparation of a mammoth mailing list by co-ordinating the lists of all the members of the Board of Trade. Addressographs will be made of this list, so that addresses can be printed of the entire list at the rate of 20 cents a hundred. The other was that a service bureau for the benefit of exhibitors. The duty of this bureau will be to help exhibitors with their own side of the business.

Rancher Has His Own Show.

Julius T. Harrah, rancher of eastern Washington, was in Seattle recently booking film for his own private motion picture theater in Harrah. These pictures are intended for the entertainment of Mr. Harrah and his employees, but sometimes, so he declares, his audience consists of one, himself. Yet this fact does not deter him from getting the best and newest pictures on the market. He was booking Goldwyn productions on this trip.

A. F. Wakefield Passes Aviation Tests.

A. F. Wakefield, president of the Theater News Service, Inc., has volunteered for the aviation corps, and has passed his final tests. He expects to be ordered to an aviation training camp immediately. Mr. Wakefield has conducted the Theater News Service for several years, and is widely known among exhibitors and film men of the Northwest.

H. A. Johnson Company Moves.

The H. A. Johnson Company, supply dealers, have taken the former location of the Theater Supply Company on film row. This company's stock has been bought by a Portland firm. The Johnson store was already located in the new film row building. The present address of this concern is 2006 Third avenue.

Son Born to John Danz.

John Danz, owner of the Colonial and High Class theaters, anounces that he has new general manager for his entire interests. This new official is just three weeks old, but his father already feels assured of his great success.

Bert Lubin Visiting Seattle.

Bert Lubin, special representative for Screen Classics, Inc., which are being distributed through the offices of Metro, has arrived in Seattle, and expects to spend some time in this territory booking the three pictures now completed under this brand, i. e., "Lest We Forget," starring Rita Jolivet; "Revelation," starring Nazimova, and "The Legion of Death," starring Edith Storey.

Harry Lustig, Metro special representative, has closed a contract with the Apollo theater, Tacoma. He reports lots of activity around his office.

Oregon Offers a Good State Right Field

Beaver State Theaters Take to the Independent Film Offerings, Says State Right Man—Comments on Portland Showmanship.

By Abraham Nelson, 601 Journal Building, Portland, Ore.

PORTLAND, OREGON.—That the state rights game in Oregon looks exceptionally well is the opinion of C. O. Hawxhurst, of the Deseret Film Company, of Salt Lake, after giving this part of the country a trial. On other trips to Oregon, says Mr. Hawxhurst, he found exhibitors favoring the independent pictures, but never have they been so alive to the big ones as they are at this time.

Mr. Hawxhurst commented on the big way Portland exhibitors put over their pictures and said that the prestige of photoplays over other forms of amusement in the Rose City was undoubtedly due to the progressive methods of the theater men. He recently completed the showing of Clune's "The Eyes of the World" at the Star, where the production had a successful eight-day run at 25 cents admission. The records for receipts and attendance at that theater were broken during the run, he said. The picture returns to Salt Lake for its third showing and then comes to Seattle.

Boy Ushers Scarce in Portland, Ore.

There is a scarcity of boys for ushers' positions, says J. C. Stille, manager of the People's and Star theaters. For this reason Mr. Stille intends to replace the remainder of his male usher staff entirely by girls. The use of girl ushers in Portland dates back to the time of the old National theater, now the Strand. The Columbia has used them satisfactorily for several years and the Liberty and Majestic theaters are using them to advantage.

Special Showing of Lincoln Cycle Film.

Oregon City.—W. A. Long, owner of the Star theater, held a private showing of "The Son of Democracy" for the members of the school board, the teachers, ministers of the city and the G. A. R. He reports a big attendance and not a dry eye in the house, especially among the old men of the G. A. R., who turned out in goodly numbers.

Nickel Houses Still on Top.

That five-cent theaters in Portland are holding their own with the advent of super-de-luxe features at fancy prices is indicated by the fact that Sam Fleischman, of the Rex, has purchased a new Cadillac eight. The Rex is showing five reels for a nickel, is a nice clean house and has one of the best locations in the city.

F. R. Durand with Jack Lannon.

F. R. Durand has become connected with Jack Lannon, of the Greater Features Company of Seattle, and is working the Portland territory. He is working hard on the Mack Sennett Keystone Comedies and the Christies.

J. B. Sparks Gets Theater at Condon.

Condon—J. B. Sparks, of the Star theater, Heppner, has purchased the good will of the American at Condon. He bought the property some time ago and indications were at that time that the former owners of the American were going to continue in business even if forced to move.

Service Film Office Enlarged.

The Service Film Company is enlarging its quarters to take care of additional stock and a spacious balcony has been installed. Manager W. A. Stone reports good business of the new de luxe Motiographs, recently having placed two with Dr. Cram at the Arcade in Walla Walla, besides numerous others.

Astoria, Oregon, Booming.

B. J. Sperry, traveling representative for the Progressive Motion Picture Company, Portland, recently returned from a trip to Astoria, where he reports business booming. In fact, Astoria is now one of the best picture towns in the state, says Mr. Sperry.

C. W. Meighan, at the Crystal, Astoria, is reported to be doing fine business and is remodelling that theater, adding about 200 seats.

Progressive News Notes.

B. Rubin, formerly booker for Progressive in Seattle, has been employed in a similar capacity in Portland to fill the vacancy created by the enlistment of Leon Barnette in the shipyard service.

Harry Hunter, formerly traveling representative for Progressive, has been promoted to assistant manager under C. M. Hill.

Herman Wobber, western manager for Paramount, and D. K. Shanks, auditor, were recent visitors in Portland, en tour of the coast.

Film Row Briefs.

G. A. Metzger, Northwest manager for Universal, Portland, has been confined in a hospital, following an operation, but is doing nicely and expects to be back in the harness soon. Vern Schubach is temporarily in charge of the office, Sol Baum being in Seattle.

Marcola, Ore.—R. L. Garretson now conducts the theater here.

Madras, Ore.—Geo. T. Pierce has gone to war and has sold his house to a Mr. Davis.

Portland—Dean Collins, publicity expert for Universal, recently sent out a questionaire about "The Red Ace" and received a ninety per cent response.

Recent film row visitors in Portland were W. W. Kofeldt, Pathe; Art Kolstadt, Hood River; C. W. Searls, formerly of Albany.

Free Pictures for Hotel Guests.

The Oregon Hotel, Portland, announced in the press that it was going to furnish free picture shows to the patrons and their friends. The plan was tried out on the evening of March 8 in the big dining room of the hostelry. Several well known subjects were shown. Theater managers do not look with favor on the move by the hotel and have indicated that they will protest to the exchange furnishing the film.

Jensen & Von Herberg Open Strand Theater

New Seattle House Began on March 9 with "Headin' South"—Is the Fifth Theater of the Company in Seattle.

By J. S. Anderson, East Seattle, Washington.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The Strand theater was opened on March 9 under the managership of Jensen and von Herberg, after remaining closed since the first of the month for redecoration. The new managers gave the house a good send-off by showing on its screen the latest Fairbanks release, "Headin' South." A line three blocks long waited for admission on the morning of the opening.

This is the fifth motion picture theater opened in Seattle by this concern, the eighth in the Northwest, and every one of them has been a success. They began a little over four years ago by taking over the Alhambra, a theater which had been a failure both as a legitimate house and as a motion picture theater. By consistent advertising and good shows they soon made a success of it, and in a short time acquired the Mission, a theater built for motion pictures. By the middle of 1914 they had become very ambitious and planned a new theater that should be bigger and finer than anything yet in existence in the entire Northwest. The result of their plans was the Liberty, opened in October, 1914, the success of which has become proverbial throughout the country.

Within a year the company had decided to surpass themselves by building another finer and bigger theater, this, in spite of the fact that all the motion picture men of the city declared that Seattle had all the motion picture theaters it could support. Taking in new capital they organized the Greater Theaters Company and built the Coliseum, which has been declared by film officials from New York to be one of the finest and most beautiful motion picture theaters in the entire country.

Last spring they opened the new Rialto in Butte, and they also operate the Columbia and the Liberty in Portland.

Critical Reviews and Comments

Upon Current Productions

"THE WHISPERING CHORUS."

Seven-Part Artcraft Screen Version of the Story By Sheehan Makes Powerful Drama.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

JEANIE MACPHERSON prepared the scenario of "The Whispering Chorus," a seven-part screen version of the story by Perley Poore Sheehan, produced by Cecil B. De Mille for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. The picture will cause people to think. The subject is a powerful one, and in the hands of a director less capable than De Mille might easily have become repellent. No detail necessary to a clear understanding of several gruesome episodes has been omitted, but the keen artistic sense of the man responsible for the production of the picture lifts even these portions of the story above the merely sensational and dignifies them with a moral force that makes sin and suffering and human frailty fit subjects for a photoplay.

The shallow mind will not relish the story, more's the pity! but the most superficial observer will be aware that he is looking upon a truthful reflex of life and, long before the finish, will realize that the souls of the men and women before him on the screen are being tried as in a furnace. Should he find nothing of interest in such a spectacle there are still garish cabarets where his sort of entertainment is to be had.

This is a realistic age and most persons do not give much thought to allegory, but it is used to fine effect in "The Whispering Chorus." The title refers to the good and the bad impulses of the mind of man that keep constantly whispering to him when anything of moment is to be decided These counselors are visualized at certain intervals in the picture, and their treatment is weirdly effective.

John Trimble, a young married man, robs his employer and runs away. While hiding on an island he drags the body of a drowned man from the water and changes clothes with him. Later, he is mistaken for his own murderer. His wife marries again. During a visit to his mother Trimble is taken by the police. He is tried and sentenced to be executed. Realizing that if he tells the truth he will wreck his wife's happiness and cloud the life of the man whom she now idolizes, Trimble finds strength to go to his death with sealed lips.

Baldly stated, the story is only so much melodrama. The author's knowledge of the human heart and the skill with which he has put together his chain of events turn his work into a moving tragedy that is touched to beauty by an act of unselfishness and noble sacrifice.

It is hardly necessary to set down the obvious fact that without the co-operation of a thoroughly competent cast the director of "The Whispering Chorus" could not have achieved the high standard reached by the picture. The names on the program disclose a long list of representative players. Chief honors go to Raymond Hatton for his acting of John Trimble. He is not very impressive until after Trimble's sudden departure from home. From then on his performance grows in power, and the deeper the emotion the stronger he portrays it. His are the greatest opportunities of the cast, and he never fails to take advantage of the fact. His acting in the drowned man scene and in the electrocution episode fully supplement the artistic insight of Director De Mille.

On the same level of excellence are the Jane Trimble of Kathlyn Williams, the George Cogeswell of Elliott Dexter, the Mrs. Trimble of Edythe Chapman, the H. P. Clumley of Tully Marshall, the Chief McFarland of Guy Oliver, the longshoreman of Noah Beery, and the Mocking Face of Gustav Seyffertitz. John Burton, Parkes Jones, W. H. Brown, James Neill, Walter Lynch and Edna Mae Cooper complete the cast. Alvin Wyckoff was the cameraman and has much fine photography to his credit.

IN THIS ISSUE:

The Whispering Chorus (Artcraft).
Naughty, Naughty (Paramount).
A Daughter of France (Fox).
Fast Company (Bluebird).
The Hillcrest Mystery (Pathe).
Innocent's Progress (Triangle).
Nancy Comes Home (Triangle).
The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit (Universal).
Life or Honor (Ivan).
The Home Trail (Vitagraph).
La Tosca (Paramount).
The Claim (Metro).

"NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY."

Paramount Presents Enid Bennett in a Laughable Comedy of Narrow Home-Town Life.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

AN advantageous starting point in being a story nicely balanced and harmonized has "Naughty, Naughty." It is by an author who knows how to write for the screen, supervised by a director of fine judgment, and interpreted by an attractive star with an unusually capable supporting cast straight through. Besides sparkling subtitles the story enjoys the added charm of varied characterization, many of the types furnishing amusement as individuals instead of all playing up to one big splash perpetually in the limelight. This gives the entertainment a delight of plausibility, homely naturalness, and direct simplicity of appeal. It is very homelike. It tells the story of a bright and unassuming girl who returns from a protracted visit in New York and rocks the old town folks until they are dizzy with new aspirations. She converts sour faces to an appreciation of beauty and love of wholesome pleasure, unmasks hypocrisy, and carries by stratagem a church meeting held to discuss the morality of dancing.

Enid Bennett always makes a sweet and girlish figure, and never more so than in the role of a village girl transformed by a metropolitan experience, yet without disagreeable affectation. The story is a very pretty one in theme and treatment. It is clean, high comedy, and suited a large audience at the Rialto so well that it was accorded a most cordial reception.

"A DAUGHTER OF FRANCE."

Melodrama of the War in France—Miss Pearson Wears Many Beautiful Gowns.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THE usual Fox offering has some peculiar and distinguished merit and this brand has gained a widely recognized popularity. Some of the recent Fox pictures have won the emphatic approval of critics and patrons all over the country. "The Daughter of France" is the weakest Fox five-reel film that this reviewer has seen in months.

It is an exaggerated melodrama, self-conscious and unconvincing, and fails to reach any exciting climax. It has some interesting characters and is set in a chateau of France when the Germans come. Virginia Pearson plays the lead and wears many beautiful gowns and well-made costumes till one begins to wonder whether she dressed so splendidly to show her hatred for the Huns, who insisted on being her guests at the chateau. I don't believe that many people will find a touch of real patriotism in the picture. It does show something of how the Boches behave in a chateau. Adrian Johnson wrote the scenario and the direction is by Edmond Lawrence.

"FAST COMPANY."

Franklyn Farnum Appears in Bluebird, with Original, Whimsical Plot.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS subject is a breezy, humorous type of photoplay in which Franklyn Farnum plays the role of a presumably high-bred youth who has been brought up in the dense shadow of his own family tree. The Van Huylers are snobs of the first rank, and Laurence Percival is utterly crushed in his early years by the magnitude of his own pedigree. He is unhappy in college and afterward, because the other young fellows insist upon treating him as a superior being.

But one fine day, while the old Van Huyler home is being torn down or repaired, a box is discovered which contains the confession of the original Peter Van Huyler. In this confession the founder of the great family admits that his real name is John O'Malley, and that he was born in County Kerry, Ireland. He made his wealth as a pirate on the high seas. This knowledge delights Laurence Percival, and he immediately reverts to type. He gets a suit of overalls and takes a job doing construction work. His father is, of course, angered, and his sweetheart pretends to go back on him. But in the end Laurence Percival makes good, and forever banishes the hoodoo that had hung over him. His father also capitulates, and together they burn the family tree.

This bright and original story was written by John McDermott and adapted to the screen by Eugene B. Lewis and Waldemar Young. Lynn Reynolds had charge of the direction. It makes a pleasing subject of the light comedy type, though slight in plot. Others in the cast are Fred Montague, Katherine Griffith, Juanita Hansen, Lon Chaney, and Edward Cecil.

"THE HILLCREST MYSTERY."

Irene Castle Appears in Pathe Play, Produced by Astra.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

DETECTIVE stories are always interesting when well handled, and this particular subject is one of the best screen adaptations of the kind shown in some time. It not only gives an intimate view of proceedings before the crime, but pictures the crime itself, and then the tracing down of the criminal. The identity of the latter is well concealed, considering how much is shown the observer. There is some additional excitement also from the fact that the situations bear upon present war conditions, the criminal and his friends being German spies at work in this country.

Mrs. Castle appears as Marion Sterling, daughter of a big shipbuilder. Her father has just determined to turn his great plant over to the Government, when he is suddenly murdered. Marion is beloved by Hugo Smith, her father's partner, but she, herself, loves the young secretary, Gordon Brett.

The tragic death of Mr. Sterling is brought about by choking, two arms appearing from behind the open front door during a rain storm. A detective named Barney Moffat is called in, and goes at once to work upon the case. His methods are unusual, and very effective. Gordon Brett is suspected of being the murderer, but the truth is brought out later in a dramatic way.

The details surrounding the crime have been carefully looked after, and the general atmosphere of the piece is excellent. J. H. Gilmour, Ralph Kellard, and Wyndham Standing are also in the cast.

TRIANGLE'S YOUTHFUL HEROINES.

Pauline Starke in "Innocent's Progress," and Myrtle Lind in "Nancy Comes Home."

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"Innocent's Progress."

YOUTHFUL heroines head the cast in the two Triangle releases reviewed this week. Pauline Starke is the featured player in "Innocent's Progress," a five-part picture found on a story by Frances Quillan, scenario by F. S. Beresford. The photoplay is out of the ordinary. It starts off after the fashion of the usual comedy-drama with an orphan heroine and follows her career from the time she runs away from the unjust gossip of a small town until she meets her wealthy hero. Fleeing at night from pursuit by a human vulture, the girl falls at the feet of the hero as he is about to enter his house and begs protection. She is taken in and goes to bed in the young man's room, clad in his pajamas, after the regulation program. Then a new and unexpected turn is given to the story that lifts it into a situation of real power.

The young millionaire is loved by a woman of his own walk in life. He is very fond of her, but does not return her love. He sends for her and puts Tessa, the orphan girl, in her charge. He has already been ordered west by his doctor to escape the white plague. Madeline, his old friend, realizing that he will never love her and that his interest in Tessa may lead to a stronger feeling, devotes herself to making the girl worthy of him and to stimulating her admiration for her benefactor. Two years later when Larned returns home, restored to health, it is to find that Madeline has been killed in an automobile accident, but that she has accomplished her purpose. Tessa has become all that any man could ask, and she and Larned find true happiness.

All of the incidents are not convincing in "Innocent's Progress," and there are too many tears shed in the pathetic scenes, but the unselfishness of Madeline is made very real and its appeal to one's better nature is strong and lasting. The three characters that carry the burden of the story are acted by Pauline Starke, Lillian West and Jack Livingston. Tessa, as Pauline Starke portrays her, is a reality. One believes in her always, a remarkable achievement, as Tessa's environment often renders this a difficult matter. The sincerity of the actress is only equaled by her ability to delineate character. Her art has the finish usually acquired only after years of practice.

Lillian West as Madeline and Jack Livingston as Larned share honors with little Miss Starke. The picture, skillfully directed by Frank Borzage and photographed by Pliny Horne, should have no difficulty in pleasing patrons of the screen.

"Nancy Comes Home."

There is a good moral in "Nancy Comes Home." Its author is B. D. Carber, and Robert Hill made the scenario. The production has one serious fault—the weakest member of the cast plays the most important part. As Nancy Worthing, a young society girl just home from boarding school, who is left to her own devices by her father and mother, Myrtle Lind is miscast. The character does not suit her personality and she lacks the art to conceal the fact. Properly played the picture would prove a diverting comedy-drama.

Nancy's father is too busy to take her any place, but gives her a roll of bills to spend. Her mother objects and confiscates the money. Determined upon having a good time, Nancy takes some of her mother's things and pawns them. She then persuades the chauffeur to accompany her to a cabaret, where a jealous man shoots his rival and Nancy's companion is accused of the crime. When matters are finally adjusted the chauffeur turns out to be a son of wealth and position and the happy ending has its place in the story.

George Pearce, Myrtle Rishell, Eugene Burr, Anna Dodge, Percy Challenger, Jack Gilbert and J. P. Wild are members of the cast. Jack Dillon directed the picture. Steve Norton was the cameraman.

"THE GIRL WHO WOULDN'T QUIT."

Universal Production Presents Lively Western Story, with Good Element of Mystery.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS five-reel offering, based on a novel by Doris Schroeder, opens up one of the most entertaining Western yarns shown in some time. The principal developments center about the theft of a chest containing bullion, accompanied by a double murder for which an innocent man is sent to the penitentiary. The crime and the events following it, in which the mystery is gradually cleared up, contain some excellent suspense.

Louise Lovely appears as the girl, Joan, whose father, Roscoe Tracy, is accused of the crime. The father and daughter were proceeding across country to a mining property to which Tracey had been appointed as superintendent. The double murder is shown to be committed by a man in a black hood who might be any one of several of the chief characters in the story.

It is rather obvious to the observer that Tracey is not really guilty, but the circumstantial evidence against him is overwhelming, and he is sentenced to prison for life. It is the unusual manner of working out the mystery that makes a strong appeal; the finding of the message in a canteen at sea, and subsequent rush of all concerned to get the chest. The scenes at the auction room where Joan's lover bids for the chest are well staged. Also the later scenes at the bungalow, where there is a general conflict in a rainstorm.

Philo McCullough, William Chester, Gertrude Astor, and others also appear.

"LIFE OR HONOR."

Seven-Part Ivan Production a Well Played Detective Story with Complicated Plot.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

MOST of the material in "Life or Honor," a seven part Ivan picture, is well enough in itself, but there is too much of it. This is especially true of certain portions of the comedy relief and the preparation for a fake spiritualistic manifestation. Judicious cutting would add greatly to the picture's value and leave a feature that the larger number of spectators would find decidedly entertaining. It has the very important advantage of being excellently played, and Edmund Lawrence has used good judgment in most of his direction. The story has to do with a mysterious murder, the hero being charged with killing his own father; but the suspense is frequently sidetracked and the finish is strung out after the old-fashioned line-up of the regular stage. "Life or Honor" can easily be made 50 per cent. better by lopping off the deadwood.

The story is complicated. J. T. Manly, a South Sea trader, has two sons. The mother of one was an American, the other boy's mother was a Filipino woman. The half-breed follows his father to this country and kills him for having deserted his mother. He bears a strong resemblance to his half-brother, and the young American is convicted of the murder.

A secondary plot involves a woman's honor. She is the sister of the girl who is in love with young Manly. Circumstances, innocent in themselves, bring a man to her bedroom on the night of the murder. This man witnesses the crime, but fear of compromising the wife of his friend keeps his lips closed. A retired detective, who is still famous, is induced by Manly's sweetheart to take the case, and the materialization of a number of spooks in the Filipino's bedroom forces him to confess.

The settings are in keeping with the requirements. James Morrison plays the dual role of the half-brothers, and the other members of the competent cast are Leah Baird, Violet Palmer, Harry Burkhardt, Edward Mackay, Ben Hendricks, Joseph Burke, Mathilda Brundage and Florenz Sottong. The camera work of Marcel Le Picard is entitled to much credit.

One point in the picture's favor should not be forgotten: the sex question has but little to do with the story.

"THE HOME TRAIL."

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Story of Early West Features Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

GEORGE H. PLYMPTON is the author of "The Home Trail," a five-part Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature directed by William Wolbert. The West in the early fifties is truthfully portrayed during the action of the picture, the story being of the reckless lives led by the men that struggled and fought on the frontier of civilization. A love romance furnishes the main motive, and the construction of the drama gives it a fairly firm hold on the interest of the spectator. The manners and customs of the time have a distinct appeal, and make the primitive existence of the period seem many generations behind the swift-moving events of today.

Tom Evans and Blackie are partners, Tom being range boss and Blackie a member of the same outfit in the cattle country. Both are wild and lawless until Tom falls in love with Clara, a young woman with more beauty than brains. The range boss and she are married, and Blackie's jealous soul at once starts to plan their undoing. His chance comes when the young wife begins to grow weary of the little home provided for her. Blackie, who pretends to be injured and has become a member of the household, prevails upon Clara to run away with him. Tom starts after the pair and during a fight between the two men the sinning woman is killed by Blackie. Her husband squares accounts with the murderer and eventually finds the real home trail when he marries Elsie, the storekeeper's daughter, a young girl who has always known and loved him.

Nell Shipman makes a real characterization of Clara and does her best work in the strongest scenes. Alfred Whitman is a satisfactory Tom, and Joe Rickson plays Blackie cleverly. Patricia Palmer is a very human Elsie. Hal Wilson, as Higgins, and S. E. Jennings, as the sheriff, complete the cast. There are a number of effective exteriors.

"LA TOSCA."

Paramount Version of Sardou's Play with Pauline Frederick an Elaborate Production.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THIRTY years ago, when Victorien Sardou wrote "La Tosca" for Sarah Bernhardt, that wonderful woman's display of tragic power in the character of the Italian opera singer gave the play a vogue quite beyond its own merits. It was put together by the French dramatist as a tour de force to furnish the great tragedienne a vehicle with which she might depict the soul of a woman tortured to frenzy until in a moment of righteous rage she slays the author of her misery.

The period of the play is early in the last century. "La Tosca" is introduced as a beautiful, light hearted Italian woman surrounded by admirers, courted by everyone for her artistic ability, and loving the painter, Mario Cavaradossi, with all the ardor of her Latin temperament. Life for the singer is only another word for happiness. Suddenly she finds that Mario and she are in great danger. The painter has helped Angelotti, a political prisoner, to escape, and Baron Scarpa, the dreaded Chief of Police, is aware of the fact. Events begin to move swiftly. The singer and Mario are arrested, and Tosca is forced to listen to the groans of her tortured lover until she reveals the hiding place of Cavaradossi. The prisoner swallows poison and dies, and Mario is thrown into a cell.

Pleased with his work Scarpa dines at ease, and sends for the singer. There is one way to save her lover's life. If she will agree the Chief of Police will arrange for Mario's escape. He will order him shot, but the guns will contain no bullets, and after the soldiers are gone the lovers can leave Italy. Tosca consents to give her honor in exchange for the safe conduct that will save the man she loves. As Scarpa turns to write the document the desperate woman catches sight of a knife on the table. The first embrace of the beastly Chief of Police nerves her arm, and she buries the blade in his heart. Snatching the paper from his nerveless fingers, Tosca turns to flee. As she reaches the door the half-crazed woman remembers that she is in the presence of death. A good Catholic, she pauses to put candles at Scarpa's head and a crucifix on his breast. Then she hurries away.

Arriving at the prison she shows her safe conduct to the officer in charge and is admitted. Mario is led out to execution. Tosca waits in an angle of the wall. The volley is fired. The singer rushes to her lover, and bends over him. He does not move, and there is blood on his breast. Scarpa has tricked her. Mario is dead. The agonized woman throws herself from the parapet of the prison.

The success of the operatic version of the play was a foregone conclusion. It contains the strong elemental passions to be found in all grand opera librettos. The picture version, prepared by Charles E. Whittaker for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, reveals how curiously the screen applies its own laws to the spoken drama. Adhering to the lyric rather than to the stage version, the picture, contrary to the spoken play, does not reach its strongest effect in the killing of Scarpa, but in the execution of Mario. On the stage the slaying scene is full of eloquent pauses, and the two people concerned carry it through with an intensity of suspense that requires little movement. The execution scene is full of life and motion, and the shifting action offers the shadow play a better medium. The interest never lags in the pictured "La Tosca," but the suspense is frequently sacrificed to explanatory detail.

Edward Jose directed the production. It is mounted with splendid effect, and its artistic merits of scene, costuming, and general ensemble are of a high order. Pauline Frederick plays Tosca with a just appreciation of her varying moods, and shows considerable tragic force. Frank Losee is a polished but vividly repulsive Baron Scarpa. Jules Raucourt as Mario, Henry Herbert as Angelotti, and W. H. Forestelle as Spoletti give well considered characterizations. The camera work by Ned Van Buren is in keeping with its importance to the artistic result.

"THE CLAIM."

Edith Storey Featured in Unsympathetic Role Which Demonstrates Her Ability.

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell.

CAST in an unsympathetic role for almost the entire length of the picture, Edith Storey demonstrates her ability and gives an excellent portrayal in "The Claim," the five-reel Metro production released March 18. This picture is based on a play of the same title by Charles Kenyon and Frank Dare.

"Blackie" Jerome, a gambler, deserts his wife and baby, and wins Kate MacDonald, whose brother forces him to walk over a cliff when he learns the truth. Belle arrives just after Jerome's death, and deserts her baby, being unable to take care of it. Kate and John adopt it. Several years later Kate has become a singer in a dance hall. Her ambition is stirred by a musician who tells her she has a wonderful voice. She determines to blackmail the MacDonalds, demanding $20,000 or the child. On seeing the child she is overcome, and takes it instead of the money. In the meantime, John has fallen in love with her voice. She realizes later that she is not a fit companion for the child, and returns it, but John will not let her leave, saying he knows real metal when he sees it, that he loves her, and the child needs its mother This plea finally wins her

The story is interesting, and there are many strong scenes, particularly when the mother first sees her child after being separated for many years; also where the child asks her mother to say prayers, and she realizes she no longer knows any. As "Belle," the mother, Edith Storey does some of her best work, bringing out well the contrast between the emotional scenes and the ones where she appears tough.

The other two principal roles, John and Kate MacDonald, are handled by Wheeler Oakman and Mignon Anderson, respectively. Mr. Oakman is entirely satisfactory, and Miss Anderson gives a fine performance of the sweet innocent girl who becomes the gambler's victim, the role being in marked contrast to the part portrayed by Miss Storey.

The production was adequately directed by Frank Reicher, who has introduced a novel effect by having the music appear in one of the panels of the piano while Edith Storey is singing Annie Laurie, the words being well synchronized with the movement of her lips.

Comments

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

NAUGHTY, NAUGHTY, March 25.—A laughable comedy of home-town life by Gardner Syllivan and Tom Ince, with Enid Bennett in an attractive leading role.

LA TOSCA (Lasky), March 25.—A five-part screen version of Sardou's famous play. Pauline Frederick has the title role. The production is elaborate. A longer review is printed elsewhere in this issue.

THE WHISPERING CHORUS (Artcraft), March 25.—A screen version of the story by Perley Poore Sheehan, this five-part feature contains powerful drama. It was produced by Cecil De Mille and is an artistic triumph. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

Fox Film Corporation.

A DAUGHTER OF FRANCE, March 24, —A five-reel picture telling an exaggerated melodramatic story with little effective plot construction. For a Fox picture it is astonishingly weak. A longer notice can be found elsewhere in this issue.

THE LEAK (Mutt and Jeff Cartoon Comedies).—A short reel of animated fun that is certain to be found enjoyable everywhere. Mutt overhears the president of the Water Company complain that millions are being lost by a leak under ground. He misunderstands and has visions of hidden gold. With a map of the buried treasure he gets Jeff to begin the digging. The result starts in and then gets worse.

Greater Vitagraph, Inc.

THE HOME TRAIL (Vitagraph), March 25.—Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman do good work in the leading roles of this five-part Blue Ribbon Feature. It is a fairly interesting melodrama of the early West and was written by George H. Plympton. It is reviewed at length on another page of this issue.

VENGEANCE—AND THE WOMAN (Vitagraph), April 1.—The last episode of the serial in which William Duncan and Carol Holloway have been risking their necks during the action of fifteen numbers is brought to a cheerful close by showing the hero and his wife still sound of limb and once more in possession of their infant son. There is a choice collection of exciting doings before all this takes place and a desperate attempt is made to lynch the abductor of the child. Lovers of the strenuous life—when led by others—have had no cause to complain during the telling of the serial.

Ivan Film Productions, Inc.

LIFE OR HONOR (Ivan).—A seven-part feature, this picture contains much interesting melodrama, but needs condensing. It is ably acted, James Lawrence playing a dual role. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

THE HILLCREST MYSTERY (Pathe Play), March 24.—A five-reel detective story featuring Irene Castle, supported by J. H. Gilmour, Ralph Kellard and Wyndham Standing. This is an unusually good example of the mystery story in screen form. It pictures the murder of a great ship builder, the murderer and his friends being German spies operating in this country. The dramatic unfolding of the story is strong. Reviewed at length elsewhere.

ON THE JUMP (Rolin-Pathe), March 31.—A comedy number featuring Harold Lloyd, Harry Pollard and Bebe Daniels. Harold appears in this as a bell boy at "Squirrel Inn." There are a lot of amusing knockabout situations which will bring laughter. The number is typically entertaining.

THE MAN FROM JAVA (Pathe), March 31.—Episode No. 4 of "The House of Hate." This introduces an interesting new character, known as Patch-Eye Peter, who tells Pearl he knows who the Hooded Terror is. Pearl goes to meet Patch-Eye at the dock and the Hooded Terror kills Pete. The number closes with The Terror bending over Pearl and Gresham coming to the rescue. The installment moves swiftly and grips the interest well.

THE VALLEY OF THE DORDOGNE (Pathe), March 31.—A scenic in tints of the "Picturesque France" series. This takes the observer along the course of a beautiful stream in France. Numerous hamlets, towns, cascades, goat herds and pastoral scenes in general are pictured.

THE HORSE IN ACTION (Pathe), March 31.—On same reel with above. This is another interesting installment, giving an analysis of horses jumping hurdles and the like. The action is slowed down, as before, giving some surprising effects. This is also in tints.

AMERICAN ARMS (Pathe).—A half-reel number showing the changes in American weapons since pioneer days. Guns used in various wars, including the Revolution, War of 1812, Civil, Spanish and the present war are demonstrated. This is instructive.

Triangle Film Corporation.

NANCY COMES HOME (Triangle), March 24.—This five-part picture is a comedy-drama of average quality, but the leading part is not well acted. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

INNOCENT'S PROGRESS (Triangle), March 31.—Pauline Starke is the star of this unusual story, which is excellently played by the entire cast. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

THE GIRL WHO WOULDN'T QUIT (Universal Special), March 25.—A five-reel Louise Lovely Production, the plot of which centers about the theft of a chest of bullion and a double murder. The crime itself and the subsequent clearing up of the mystery are pictured in a graphic and convincing manner, with a good element of suspense. Reviewed at length elsewhere.

PINK PAJAMAS (Nestor), April 3.—A comedy number by Al Santell, featuring Gertrude Astor, Dave Morris, William Rau and Gladys Tennyson. A quarreling married couple, a "nosey" janitor and a flirtatious artist are plot ingredients. The action is farcical and winds up with a chase over roof-tops. A very fair subject of the kind, attractive in settings and photography.

THE BULL'S EYE, No. 9 (Universal Special), April 6.—This number continues Cody's struggle on the cliff with Sweeney and his gang, after he has climbed up the rope. The burning rope and Cody's capture of Sweeney makes a good feature. The dynamiting of the bridge is another interesting development. The instalment continues the entertaining action of this serial very well.

THE LION'S CLAWS (Universal Special), April 6.—This is the first episode, in two reels, of a new serial, with a strong cast. Marie Walcamp, Alfred Allen, Thomas Lingham, Edwin August, Gertrude Astor and Frank Lanning appear. The story has a splendid opening for an out-door adventure subject. The scenes are laid in Africa, during the present war. A holy war among the natives, inspired by Mohammedans, gives a clue to the action. The settings are elaborate and pleasing. The number closes with the invasion of a camp by lions, one of which attacks the leading character, Beth.

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

FAST COMPANY (Bluebird), April 8.—A five-reel subject, written by John McDermott, featuring Franklyn Farnum and Juanita Hansen. Mr. Farnum plays the role of a youth who has been raised as a snob of high degree, much to his own disgust. His father is proud of their old Dutch ancestry, but it develops later, much to the son's delight, that his beloved ancestor, Peter Van Huyler, was really an Irishman, and a pirate at that. This utterly changes life for the hero. The story is a good subject of the light, humorous type, though rather slight in plot.

Advertising Aids for Busy Managers

IN THIS ISSUE:

A Bit of Jade (American).
The Blue Bird (Artcraft).
The Curse of Iku (Essanay).
The Honor of His House (Artcraft).
Humdrum Brown (Paralta).
Just a Woman (U. S. Booking Co.).
The Kid Is Clever (Fox).
The Landloper (Metro).
The Marriage Bubble (Triangle).
Mrs. Slacker (Pathe).
Rough and Ready (Fox).
The Splendid Sinner (Goldwyn).
The Tiger Man (Paramount).
Unfaithful (Triangle).
The Vortex (Triangle).
The Witch Woman (World).

"MRS. SLACKER."

Pathe Presents Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale in a War Drama without Battles—Written by Agnes C. Johnston—Directed by Hobart Henly and Produced by Astra—Released March 31.

Cast.

Susie Simpkins.....Gladys Hulette
Robert Gibbs.....Creighton Hale
His Father.....Paul Clerget

The Story: Susie Simpkins, a poor girl, lives with an uncle, a drunkard. While taking washing to the Gibbs mansion she learns that Robert, the son, is a coward. As a result of a terriffic beating from her drunken uncle, Susie leaves her sordid surroundings and tries to kill herself by jumping into a stream, but no sooner is she in the water than she changes her mind and struggles for life. Robert Gibbs happens to come plunging madly through the same stream, pursued by a bull dog. He unintentionally rescues Susie, when she clings to him. In consequence she thinks that he is a hero, and that her first judgment of him was incorrect. Intimacy develops between them. War with Germany breaks out. Robert marries Susie to escape the draft. She then learns the true reason for their marriage, and announces that she will fight for her country. She stumbles accidentally into a German spy plot, and this plot is the means of not only her proving to Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs, who have so strongly disapproved of her, that his son has found an excellent wife, but it also is the means of Robert, himself, becoming a man, and proving that after all he has good stuff in him.

Feature: Gladys Hulette as Susie Simpkins and Creighton Hale as Robert Gibbs.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Susie Simpkins Spy's a Slacker.
How a "Draft Marriage" Created a Hero.
He Hid Behind Petticoats to Serve His Country.
Saved from Death by a Slacker Hero.
Can You Tell a Slacker When You See One?
Taking Up the Slack in a Slacker.
She Married a Slacker and Made Him a Hero.
The German Spy System Gets a Jolt.
How Susie's Slacker Stumbled Into Spydom.
Thrilling Adventures of a Brave Slacker.
Love Makes a Hero Out of a Cowardly Slacker.
He Thought He Married to Avoid the Draft.

Stunt Suggestions: Boys may be sent through the streets carrying signs similar to this: "If we were men we would not be slackers. We know what happens to a slacker at the (name of theater) where 'Mrs. Slacker' is demonstrating." An advertisement in your paper that would cause comment would be this: Invite all couples who married to keep the bridegroom out of the draft to see "Mrs. Slacker" free of admission.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six-sheet, one 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 11x14, both in sepia and color. Also 22x28. Slide. Campaign book. Cuts.

"THE LANDLOPERS."

Metro-Yorke Presents Harold Lockwood in a Drama of Sociological Adventure, Adapted from Holman Day's Novel of the Same Title by Fred J. Balshofor—Photographed by Antonio Gaudio—Directed by George Irving—Released April 1.

Cast.

Walker Farr.....Harold Lockwood
Kate Kilgour.....Pauline Curley
Col. Simon Dodd.....Stanton Heck
Richard Dodd.....William Clifford
Etienne Pickerone.....Bert Starkey
Rose-Marie.....Gertrude Maloney

The Story: To prove his theory that any man, no matter what his social standing is, can obtain the full measure of joy out of life, Walker Farr, a wealthy young man, starts out penniless. In his travels he meets Kate Kilgour and her fiance, Richard Dodd, in their stalled motor, and gives them assistance, and in the town of Marion he hears that Richard is not Kate's choice. Farr later adopts the motherless Rose-Marie. Leaving the child at Mrs. Mallette's boarding house, Farr goes to work as a driver of an ice wagon to support her. The child dies as the result of a fever contracted from the drinking water, and an investigation by Farr reveals that Col. Simon Dodd, the uncle of Richard, who has charge of the water system, is responsible for the impure water. In consoling Zelie, a young woman of the neighborhood who has been aiding Farr in caring for Rose-Marie, Kate, who had supposed her to be the child's mother, learns the truth, and that the scandal concerning the foster parents of the child is without foundation. The agreement that Kate's mother had made with Richard that her daughter marry him in return for the $5,000 that he had loaned her is broken by Kate, who arranges a more business-like settlement of the debt, and who later becomes the betrothed of Farr.

Feature: Harold Lockwood as Walker Farr and Pauline Curley as Kate Kilgour.

Program and Advertising Phrases: A Millionaire's Adventure as a Tramp.
"Weary Willie" Walks Into Happiness With His Eyes Closed.
Masquerading Tramp Wins a Rich Bride On His Own Merits.
True Love Needs No Royal Raiment to Attract Heart Mates.
The Joy of Living and Loving Comes Unexpectedly.
Riches Put to Good Use in Serving the Distressed.
Back to the Land With Love and Happiness.
Dan Cupid in the Guise of Master Socialist.
The Millionaire Tramp Wins a Bride Rich in True Love.
Harold Lockwood Is Seen in His Best Role.
Pretty Pauline Curley a Most Winsome Heroine.

Stunt Suggestions: Dress a man in trampish apparel and send him through the streets. On his back have a sign reading, "Clothes Do Not Always Make the Man. See the Millionaire Tramp in 'The Landloper' at (name of theater) an Be Convinced." Place a large bottle on a table in the lobby. Attach a sign reading, "Take Warning. This Water Is Polluted. Contains Fatal Germs from the Supply That Changed the Affairs of 'The Landloper' in Which Harold Lockward Is the Star. Now Showing at This Theater."

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one, three and six-sheets. Lobby sheet, Press sheet. Filler sheet. Ten minute novel for newspaper work. Slide. Herald. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts.

"THE MARRIAGE BUBBLE."

Thomas H. Ince Presents the Triangle-Kay Bee Comedy, by W. Carey Wonderly—Picturized by Lambert Hillyer—Photographed by Chester Lyons—Directed by Walter Edwards—Released March 31.

Cast.

Marty Conrad, Peter Trenholm, William Desmond
Alice Trenholm.....Anna Luther Fidele.....Maude George
Lucille Spinney.....Florence Dagmar

The Story: The socially prominent Trenholms, on their last financial legs, place their hopes in an alliance with wealthy Lucille Spinney. Peter threatens to wreck the hope by imbibing too freely at the wrong time, and his sister arranges a party at which he is scheduled to propose to Lucille. Instead, he is confined to his room. Alice conscripts Marty, a stranger, who is Peter's double, and who agrees to impersonate Peter until he is sober. The plan works, but it is Alice, not Peter, who saves the family prestige.

Feature: William Desmond, who plays the dual role of Marty Conrad and Peter Trenholm, and Anna Luther as Alice Trenholm.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Double's Double a Social Schemer's Troubles.
Drink and Doubles Burst the Plotter's Bubble.
True Love Takes a Wild and Woolly Course.
An Uproarious Comedy Exposes Social Schemers.
Breaking Into Society With Troubles Doubled.
Love Runs a Race With Rum and Sees Double.
Drinking Produces Queen Effects When Love Sees Double.
Cleverly Complicated Love Plot Creates Uproarious Fun.
Bursting a Marriage Bubble Creates Double Trouble.
Dan Cupid "Sees Things" When True Love Meets John Barleycorn.
John Barleycorn and Dan Cupid in Close Competition.

Stunt Suggestions: Have a neatly dressed man walk the streets with a card on his back worded thus, "It was my double who caused all the trouble and burst 'The Marriage Bubble' at the (name of theater)." If the necks of whiskey bottles protruded from his pockets the interest in his progress would be greater. The feature does not adapt itself to many low-cost stunts.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art herald. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Slides. Electros and mats. Photos. Triangle Magazine. Press sheet.

"UNFAITHFUL."

Triangle Presents Dorothy Dalton in a Problem of Married Life—Story by Lambert Hillyer—Photographed by Clyde De Vinna—Directed by Charles Miller—Supervised by Thomas H. Ince—Released March 31.

Cast.

Evelyn Karge.....Dorothy Dalton
John Karge.....Robert McKim
Dick Hamilton.....Charles Gunn
Miss Morin.....Charlotte Vermont

The Story: Through lack of intimate knowledge, John Karge is unable to handle the problem of infidelity in his book of conjugal relations. His neglected wife, who has found friendship of Hamilton, discovers his difficulty, and plots with his secretary, Miss Morin, to help him by pretending unfaithfulness. At the suggestion of the secretary, Karge accuses his wife, and drives her from home when she admits her guilt. A gun-shot wound brings him to his senses, and a realization of his wife's sacrifice for the sake of his literary work.

Feature: Dorothy Dalton as Evelyn Karge.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Can Platonic Friendship Remain Platonic?
The Wife Plots to Help Her Husband's Plot.
Fate Oddly Untangles a Domestic Skein of Tragedy.
He Fell in Love With Another Man's Wife.
A New Angle to the Eternal Triangle.
When Suspicion Enters True Love Departs.
Keeping Faith With the Faithless Brings Happiness.
Happiness Comes When Love Had Almost Fled.

Stunt Suggestions: The subject does not readily lend itself to "stunts." Depend upon the advertising aids supplied by Triangle and use liberally of newspaper space.

Advertising Aids: Two styles one-sheets. One each three and six-sheets. Herald in rotogravure. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Slides. Electros and mats. Press sheet.

"THE SPLENDID SINNER."

Goldwyn Presents Mary Garden in Her Second Screen Appearance—Story by Kate Jordan—Directed by Hogo Ballin—Released March 24.

Cast.

Dolores Fargis.....Mary Garden
Hugh Maxwell.....Hamilton Revelle
Rudolph Von Zorn.....Anders Randolph
The Young Musician.....Hassan Mussalli
A Detective.....Henry Pettibone
Louise, a maid.....Roberta Bellinger

The Story: With half the world at her feet as the mistress of Rudolph Von Zorn, Dolores Fargis is made miserable by her conscience. She despises the man whose chattel she is, and when finally she breaks with him she seeks solace in the quiet of the country. Hugh Maxwell, a young physician, meets her, and falls in love with her. They are married, and not until Von Zorn confronts his former mistress does Maxwell know what manner of a woman he has married, and he leaves her. Dolores becomes a nurse in a French hospital which is under German guard. A wounded soldier entrusts her with dispatches he is bearing to the French. In a burst of feeling husband and wife recognize each other, and they are later arrested for conspiracy. By a splendid sacrifice Dolores enables her husband to escape over the lines.

Feature: Mary Garden as Dolores Fargis and Hamilton Revelle as Hugh Maxwell.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Mary Garden, "The Most Wonderful Woman in the World."
Mary Garden, International Celebrity of Operatic Fame.
The most discussed celebrity of the present day.
The operatic world's greatest gift to the screen.
Mary Garden, the incomparable queen of daring fashions.
Mary Garden, a name linked with sensations on and off the stage.
Mary Garden, greatest of all American-born primma donnas.
Mary Garden, the sensation of two continents.
Mary Garden, who was the incomparable "Thais" of the screen.
Draws the highest salary ever paid to a picture artist for any single engagement on the screen.
Garden and Goldwyn, a Combination that means screen perfection.
The most beautiful woman ever shown upon the screen.
The woman who made motion pictures an acknowledged art.

Stunt Suggestions: Because of her prominence, Mary Garden's name is attached to many articles of commerce. There is Mary Garden candy and Mary Garden perfume. Her operatic selections have been registered on phonograph records. Music bears her picture and name. Try and coöriginate your local shop-keepers, making window displays of "Mary Garden" candy and perfume; advertise her music with window displays, and take advantage of phonograph records. Everything must be done high class in keeping with the standing of the star and her artistic attainments.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six and one 24-sheet. Rotogravure one-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Coming and current slides. Advertising and scene cuts. Photographic line-cut copy for ads. Press book.

"THE WITCH WOMAN."

World-Pictures Present Ethel Clayton in a Story by Willard Mack—Directed by Traverse Vale—Released April 8.

Cast.

Marie Beaupre.....Ethel Clayton
Maurice La Farge, Louis La Farge, Frank Mayo
Dr. Cochefort.....John Ardizoni
Delaunay.....Jack Drumier
Andrea Montignac.....Louise Vale
Paul Martinet.....Robert Tansey

The Story: Marie Beaupre is a beautiful Alsatian girl, and Louis La Farge, a French artist, falls in love with her when he meets her in the mountains. Marie also falls in love with him, and some time later, when Louis deserts her, she is scorned by her relatives and friends when her secret is discovered. Marie is cast from her home, and forced to live in the mountains. Her mind is deranged by worry, and she becomes known as "The Witch Woman." Whenever anything happens that the mountaineers cannot explain they blame it on Marie, and curse her for it. A doctor who becomes interested in her case takes her to Paris, and succeeds in restoring her mentality.

Later Marie again meets Louis, and also his twin brother, Maurice. Many thrilling events follow, and all of the occurrences go to make a most interesting photo-drama.

Feature: Ethel Clayton as Marie Beaupre and Frank Mayo, who plays Maurice La Farge and his twin brother, Louis.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Ethel Clayton in Her Greatest Role.
A Tragedy of Love and Sacrifice That Touches the Heart.
A Gripping Story of Sacrifice and Enduring Devotion.
Great Love Sanctified by Endless Sacrifice.
Love Betrayed Becomes Love Glorified.
Witch and Woman With Heart of Gold.
An Unusual Photoplay Admirably Presented.
Beautiful Girl Cast from Home Attains Happiness.
Spectacular Sensations Provide Gripping Entertainment.
Love's Greatest Sacrifice Is Cast Aside.

Stunt Suggestions: It will be hard to couple the picture with "stunts." Dependance must be placed in the assistance the distributor provides for lobby display and newspaper work. Feature Ethel Clayton, a clever actress and great public favorite.

Advertising Aids: Free advance poster. Two styles each one and three-sheets. One six-sheet. Two-color heralds. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Slides. One and two-column cuts. Press book.

"THE CURSE OF IKU."

Essanay Present Tsuru Aoki, the "Japanese Bernhardt," and Frank Borzage in a Soul-Stirring Drama of Racial Pride—Distributed Through George Kleine System.

Cast.

Allan Carroll, III.....Frank Borzage
Omio San.....Tsuru Aoki

The Story: The action takes place in Japan fifty years ago. Yori, a Japanese prince, picks up Allan Carroll, a shipwrecked American sailor, and hides him in his home, as it is a crime for foreigners, except the Dutch, to land on Nippon's shores. Iku, an enemy of Yori, is apprised of the presence of Carroll. He raids his enemy's palace, and makes prisoners of Carroll and Yori. Both are sentenced to die, but Carroll escapes after killing Iku. The action then jumps to the present day, and when Iku, III, who comes to America to study its customs, learns that Allan, III, is the man he wants he seeks to avenge the death of his grandfather by taking Virginia Stanford, the fiance of Carroll, to Japan. Carroll follows. As a result of a fight between the American and the Japanese, Carroll kills Iku, III, and returns to America with his sweetheart.

Feature: Frank Borzage as Allan Carroll, III, and Tsuru Aoki as Omio San.

Program and Advertising Phrases: A Soul Stirring Drama of Racial Pride.
Love and Adventure in the Flowery Kingdom.
Beautiful Settings for Fascinating Screen Drama.
Odd and Bewitching Revelation in Screen Craft.
Big and Gripping Scenes That Thrill and Satisfy.
Tsuru Aoki, "The Japanese Bernhardt."
Romance of Japan Filled With Spirit and Action.
Real Japanese Gardens With Bowers of Flowers.

Stunt Suggestions: There is great opportunity for attractive lobby display in reproducing Japanese atmosphere by hanging lanterns and other Oriental decorations. Artificial flowers will add to the beauty. Your grocer or tea-merchant might be induced to display a special Japanese window, with hanging lanterns, etc.

Advertising Aids: One, three, six and 24-sheet posters in nine colors. Window cards in six colors. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x29. Black and white stills. Portrait photos. Mats. Two styles each one and two-column cuts. Announcement slides. Press book.

"ROUGH AND READY."

William Fox Presents William Farnum in a Spirited Story of the Western Wilds in Which He Proves Himself a Man Worth While—Directed by Richard Stanton—Released March 24.

Cast.

Bill Stratton.....William Farnum
Evelyn Durant.....Violet Palmer
Jack Belmont.....Alphonse Ethier
Estelle Darrow.....Jessie Arnold
Matthew Durant.....David Higgins
Ed. Brown.....Frank Newton
Bess Brown.....Mabel Bardine
The Siwash.....Franklyn McGlynn

The Story: Bill Stratton prevents an elopement between Bess Brown and Jack Belmont, and the unnerved woman is still weeping upon his shoulder when Evelyn, warned by Jack, comes upon them and refuses to listen to any explanation from the man she loves and her girl chum. Despairing, Bill takes to the open. There Evelyn comes to meet her father whom she believes to be a wealthy mine owner. The father, unable to face her and tell the truth, runs away and leaves the telling to Bill. Evelyn thinks his story trumped up to gain her sympathy, and turns to Jack, who plans to abduct her, after getting Bill out of the way, but Bill is not removed as easily as he planned, and in the end a Siwash puts a knife between Hack's ribs and leaves the lovers free.

Feature: William Farnum in another heroic role.
Violet Palmer as the girl.

Program and Advertising Phrases: A dashing, sensational romance of the North.
A "man's man" wins a woman's love.
See the terrific battle with the wolves.
Dance hall girl gives her life for man who was polite.

Stunt Suggestions: For window work try and arrange a display of compasses with, "Why does the compass always turn toward the North? It's because it is the point of greatest attraction. Most William Farnum photoplays are laid in the North, because it is the land of swift, elemental action. There is one at the (house and date). It's called 'Rough and Ready,' and you never saw Farnum in a more active part." For the lobby use the smaller display, and above a card, "In the studio they call these pictures 'stills,' but in 'Rough and Ready' William Farnum isn't still a minute. Do these pictures look like it? The play is even faster (date)."

Advertising Aids: Two styles each one, three and six-sheets. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Slide. Mats. Press sheet.

"JUST A WOMAN."

U. S. Exhibitors Booking Company Presents Charlotte Walker in a Screen Version of Eugene Walter's Stage Sensation—Made by S. & S. Photoplays, Inc., and Directed by Julius Steger—Released on the State Rights Basis.

Cast.

Jim Ward.....Lee Baker
Anna, his wife.....Charlotte Walker
Ned, their son,
Baby Volare, Cornish Beck, Paul Perez
Mary, the hired girl.....Anna Williams
Fred Howard.....Edwin Stanley
John Prentiss.....Henry Carvel
Elias Fox.....Charles Kraus
Judge Van Brink.....Forrest Robinson

The Story: Born to the lower walks of life, but with a spirit that moves her to fight for better things, Anna wins fortune through financing the invention of one of her young boarders, and insists as part of the price that her husband be placed upon the directory of the company. His fellow directors, finding that he stands for the rights of his former associates, seek for the weak joint in his armor, and find it in drink. This leads to women, and Anna, despairing, consents to a divorce with perjured evidence, but when she finds that she is to lose her child she creates a scene that ends in prison sentences for both for perjury. The story is taken up as the offenders are released, and the now penitent husband goes into the munitions factory to turn out the shells his soldier son will feed the cannon.

Feature: Charlotte Walker as Anna, Lee Baker as Jim, Forrest Robinson as the Judge.

Program and Advertising Phrases: The story of love outgrown and high ideals forgotten.
A Broadway sensation by the author of "The Easiest Way."
Friend of workingman ruined by fellow directors.
A tragedy of big business and easy money.

Stunt Suggestions: There is good controversial material here for newspaper work in the questions as to the propriety of divorce by collusion to get rid of a galling chain, and the action of the mother in attacking the legitimacy of her son in order to retain possession of him. Either will get you good newspaper space if you start the ball rolling with a few letters. For a lobby attractor use a card on which in large letters is the warning, "Do not help your husband." In letters small enough to make them come in to see it add, "Nine times out of ten the woman who advances her husband to wealth pays the penalty in the divorce courts. The newspapers have printed hundreds of such stories, and it is the theme of 'Just a Woman,' shown here (date). It is by Eugene Walter, and features Charlotte Walker." For window work display a dinner pail and a filled decanter on either side of a sign reading, "She was 'Just a Woman,' but she took her husband from the dinner pail class only to lose his love when he turned from that to the decanter. See the story of a woman's sacrifices at (house and date)."

Advertising Aids: Two styles each one and three-sheets. One style each six and 24-sheet. Photos, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. 8x10 Heralds in two colors. Cuts. Mats. Slides. Press Sheet and Music Cues.

"THE KID IS CLEVER."

William Fox Presents George Walsh in a Five-Reel Adventure Serial; Written by Randolph Lewis; Photographed by John Leezer; Directed by Paul Powell. Released March 31.

Cast.

Kirk White.....George Walsh
Jane Ogden.....Doris Pawn
Ramon Cortez.....Ralph Lewis
Stephen White.....A. Burt Wesner
Achilles Robusto.....Don Likes
Pendas Alvarez.....Clyde Hopkins

The Story: Kirk White is on the trail of adventure. To satisfy him for life his father arranges for him to take a sea trip with a motion picture company which guarantees to provide a thrill every minute of the voyage.

The film makers miss the steamer, but Kirk doesn't know it. He thinks a band of South American revolutionists are the players and considers all their doings on shipboard as mere fun. When attempts are made on his life and against Jane Ogden, a fellow passenger with whom he is in love, he considers the whole affair a huge joke.

Kirk finally realizes the truth when he is knocked unconscious by Ramon Cortez, leader of the band. He regains consciousness in a dungeon in Mexico. There are

HAVE YOU
AND HAVE YOU

Ever stopped to consider why a splendid film subject is sometimes killed in projecting to the screen?

Ever stopped to consider why a poor film subject has many times been improved in projecting to the screen?

The answers are—the OPERATING EQUIPMENT and the SCREEN. Watch your screen results and the box results will take care of themselves. CONSULT more thrills and more hairbreadth escapes until Kirk and Jane are rescued by a troop of United States cavalry.

B. F. PORTER, 1482 Broadway (on the Square), at Times Square, New York

Feature: George Walsh as Kirk White, The Adventurous Youth, and Doris Pawn as Jane Ogden.

Program and Advertising Phrases: A Complete Adventure Serial in Five Acts.
Enough Thrills In One Show to Last You a Week.
Get the Real Thrill and Tingle of Desperate Adventure.
When You See All His Stunts You'll Admit: "The Kid Is Clever."
Bandits and Desperadoes, Thieves and Cut-Throats Outclassed.
Here's a Way to Cure Your Boy of Wanderlust.
Adventures on Land and Sea End In Cupid's Triumph.
Love and Adventure Mixed With Thrills and Stunts.
Winning a Girl by Sheer Force of Daring.
Pretty Girl Bewitches Youth Into Wild Adventure.
The Call of Adventure Responds to the Appeal of Love.

Stunt Suggestions: Boys who like to "show off" as acrobats, tumblers and "cart wheel" experts might be secured to romp through the streets carrying advertising cards: "The Kid Is Clever" (name of theater). Their shouts and laughter would surely attract attention to their antics. Play up the thrills and "stunts" George Walsh furnishes in your advertising. "More Thrills Than a Fifteen Week Serial All in One Entertainment," etc.

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one, three and six-sheets. Lobby displays 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Slide. Mats and press book free.

"THE VORTEX."

Triangle Presents Norman Sherbrook's Story, Scenarioized by George Elwood Jenks; Directed by G. P. Hamilton; Photographed by Tom Buckingham. Released March 31.

Cast.

Lorimer Van Cleefe.....Joe King
Joan Meredith.....Mary Warren
Henry Meredith.....Wilbur Higbee
Albert Dunning.....Eugene Burr
Lew Herford.....George Hernandez
Hilda Herford.....Myrtle Rishell
Mr. Merkle.....R. P. Thompson

The Story: Van Cleefe, a Wall street millionaire, loves Joan Meredith, daughter of his business rival. But she spurns him in favor of Albert Dunning when she catches him in a compromising position with Mrs. Hilda Herford. Joan elopes with Dunning and, registering at a hotel as Mr. and Mrs. Rivers, await the arrival of the minister they summoned. While they are waiting for the minister, who has been unavoidably delayed by the breaking down of his auto, Van Cleefe, who has taken Mrs. Herford out for an automobile ride, stops at the hotel, sees Joan and Dunning and arrives at the worst conclusion. Joan suspects Van Cleefe's presence at the hotel with Mrs. Herford. Joan's father is losing heavily and Dunning leaves her. In order to save her father Joan offers to marry Van Cleefe, but he ignores her. News of his wife's conduct reach Mr. Herford and the killing of Van Cleefe is averted by Joan, who sacrifices her honor by confessing it was she who was at the hotel. An unexpected telephone call, which Van Cleefe answers, happens to be from the minister who was to have married Joan and Dunning. This incident clears the way to a happy reconciliation.

Feature: Joseph King and Mary Warren.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Popular Fiction Done In Clever Photoplay.
Disclosures of a Tell-Tale Hotel Register.
The Unflinching Finger of Scorn and Suspicion.
The Revelations of a Country Road House.
How A Good Girl Sacrificed Herself to Scandal.
Wrecking Motors and Ruining Reputations.
Bad News Travels Fast, But Truth Prevails.
Good Names and Fortunes In the Swirl of Wall Street.
Social Problems Solved in Gripping Episodes.
Selfishness and Averice Give Way Before True Love.

Stunt Suggestions: It is hard to couple this subject with street stunts. The assistance offered by the distributor must be depended upon for lobby display.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art heralds. Slides. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Electros and mats. Photos. Triangle magazine. Press sheet.

"THE BLUE BIRD."

Adolph Zukor Presents Maeterlinck's Classic, Directed by Maurice Tourneur, Scenario by Charles Maigen; An Artcraft Released March 31.

Cast.

Tyltyl.....Robin Macdougall
Mytyl.....Tula Belle
Daddy Tyl.....Edwin E. Reed
Mummy Tyl.....Emma Lowry
Gaffner Tyl.....Wm. J. Gross
Granny Tyl.....Florence Anderson
Berlingot.....Edward Elkas
Berlingot's Daughter...Katherine Bianchi
Fairy Berylune.....Lillian Cook

The Story: The story is a philosophical dissertation upon life, endowing all things with life and speech, and giving a glimpse into the hereafter. The obvious intention of the famous Belgian author, Maurice Maeterlinck, was to open the eyes of humanity to the beauties surrounding our every-day life, and to which we are blinded by familiarity. Two children, Mytyl and Tyltyl, typify the average person, and their pursuit of the Blue Bird is an allegorical representation of the restless quest of man for happiness. The good fairy, Berylune, leads the children through every walk of life, and they meet in personified form all the vices and virtues, as well as wealth and poverty. The cruel wars loom up in terrible form, and the commodities live and talk. Even the dead are brought back from the grave, and in the Azure palace the Unborn, in great multitudes, impatiently await their advent upon the earth.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Bluebirds Symbol of Happiness.
Great Stage Success Exceeded in Beautiful Photoplay.
Pictorially Beautiful Reproduction of Famous Classic.
Every Human Heart Will Thrill and Pulse With Delight.
Colossal Motion Picture Spectacle Supreme and Unequalled.
Photodrama of Brightest Sunshine and Happiness.
Herein the Whole World May Find Happiness and Sunshine.
The Century-old Struggle for Happiness Achieved.
Seeking Happiness Here You Will Find It.
Mammoth Photo-Dramatic Spectacle of Lavish Splendor.
Maeterlinck's Stirring Play in Moving Spectacle.

Stunt Suggestions: The vogue of bluebirds for decorating china, bric-a-brac, linens and all sorts of fancy novelties gives great opportunity to hook up with most of the stores in town. Window displays of bluebird novelties may be coupled with the offering. Your music store can feature the song, "Bluebird Bring Back My Happiness." Have "bluebird pie" in the lobby with "birds" numbered for admissions. Birds may be purchased at novelty stores or made from cardboard and painted blue. Artcraft has prepared a special newspaper campaign that should be used in creating interest. Make clear that this is a feature for both children and grown-ups.

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one, three and six-sheets. Rotogravure. Photos, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Ten cuts each of star and play, one to three columns wide. Advertising layout mats. Slides. Press book.

"HUMDRUM BROWN."

Paralta Presents a Story and Scenario by H. B. and M. G. Daniel. Directed by Rex Ingram. Released March 15.

Cast.

Humdrum Brown.....Henry B. Walthall
Alicia Boothe.....Mary Charleson
Grace Danforth.....Dorothy Love Clark
Carlos Tanner .....Howard Crampton
Cousin Kate.....Kate Price
John Fryeburg.....Joseph J. Dowling
Ed Danforth.....Joe Harris
Aunt Elvira.....Ida Lewis

The Story: In the little town of Fryeburg lives Hector Brown, who, on account of his uneventful existence, has earned the sobriquet of "Humdrum." He is a clerk in the Fryeburg Bank, and is engaged to Alicia Boothe. Through the villainy of Charles Tanner, president of the bank, and Edward Danforth, the husband of

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS
1544 BWAY.. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

Clara, Humdrum's sister, the bank is robbed and subsequently closed, and Humdrum, who has thereby been thrown out of a job, goes to the city, where, through the good offices of a detective friend, he secures a position as clerk in a hotel. A fortune is left to Alicia, and she entrusts it to Tanner to invest for her. Meanwhile Danforth, who has been arrested, has informed the authorities that the direction of the pilfering of the bank's funds was in the hands of its former president. Tanner escapes, but is finally caught by Humdrum, who turns him over to the officers. Alicia and Humdrum return to Fryeburg. Humdrum becomes president of the bank and later he and Alicia are united in marriage.

Feature: Henry B. Walthall as Humdrum Brown and Mary Charleson as Alicia Boothe.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Faithful Hearts Wait Patiently for True Happiness.
Intrigue, Jealousy and Crime Cannot Shake True Devotion.
Thrills and Sensations Abound. Excitement and Adventure Thrill.
Homely Story of True Devotion Spiced With Adventure.
Baffling Intrigue and Jealousy True Love Wins Out.
Constancy Finds Response In Faithful Waiting.
Sin Meets Its Downfall While Virtue Triumps.
Crime and Debauchery End In Just Retribution.
Humdrum Life Is Suddenly Awakened by Thrills of Excitement.
Gripping Story of Love, Adventure, Jealousy and Intrigue.
Every Element of Good Photoplaying to Grip Attention.

Stunt Suggestions: The advertising assistance offered by Paralta must be depended upon for lobby displays. The offering does not adapt itself to street displays.

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one and three-sheets. One six-sheet. Thumbnail and one-to three column cuts in electro or mats. Press book.

"THE TIGER MAN."

Thomas H. Ince Presents an Artcraft Production Starring William S. Hart. Based on J. G. Hawk's Story; Directed by the Star; Photographed by Joe August. Released April 1.

Cast.

Hawk Parsons.....William S. Hart
Ruth Ingram.....Jane Novak
Connor Moore, Indian Agent..Milton Ross
Rev. Luke Ingram.....Robert Lawrence
Sandy Martin, Sheriff...Charles K. French

The Story: Hawk Parsons, a bandit chief, is known as "The Tiger Man." A wagon train is halted, owing to lack of water, and the emigrants suffer great privations. Among these is Ruth Ingram, wife of a minister, who volunteers to go in search of aid. She encounters Hawk, who, after hearing her story, goes to the relief of the imperilled emigrants. The party is attacked by Indians, but the savages are driven away. Hawk falls in love with Ruth and takes her away to his cabin in the desert. She attempts to slay herself, then swoons, and this marks the beginning of Hawk's regeneration. He goes after a physician and, when her health is restored, he escorts her to a settlement where she rejoins her husband. He then gives himself up to the authorities.

Feature: William S. Hart as Hawk Parsons, "The Tiger Man," and Jane Novak as Ruth Ingram, the Minister's Wife.

Program and Advertising Phrases: William S. Hart's Latest and Best Picture.
Beautifully Pictured Legend of Frontier Days.
How a Tiger-Heart Was Tamed by Sacrifice.
Thrilling Story of the American Desert.
Thrills and Human Interest In Gripping Photoplay.
It's Hart. That's All. And That's Enough. Don't Miss It.
Typical Western Play With Thrills and Sensations Galore.
How a Faithful Woman Softened the Heart of a Desperado.
Artcraft's Super-Production Presents the Nation's Favorite.
Desperate Gun-Man Capitulates to Weak Woman.
Tiger-man of Tiger-heart Surrenders to Defenseless Woman.
The Old West in the Days of Gold Truthfully Reflected.
Radiant Purity Makes Willing Captive of Moral Monster.

Stunt Suggestions: A wagon converted into a "prairie schooner" driven through the streets carrying advertising banners on each side of the cloth canopy would afford an effective display. Pictures of tigers hung in the lobby might bear cards: "See the mate of this tiger—William S. Hart, 'The Tiger Man.'" Almost any "Western" stunt would apply to this subject. Take advantage of Hart's great popularity in every way you can.

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one, three and six-sheets. One 24-sheet. Rotogravure. Photos, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x29. Ten cuts each on star and production. Advertising layout mats. Slides. Press book.

"THE HONOR OF HIS HOUSE."

Paramount Presents Sessue Hayakawa in a Jesse L. Lasky Production, by Marion Fairfax—Directed by Cecile De Mille—Released April 1.

Cast.

Count Ito Onato.....Sessue Hayakawa
Lora.....Florence Vidor
Robert Farlow.....Jack Holt
Mrs. Proudweather.....Mayme Kelso
Mr. Proudweather.....Forest Seabury
Sato.....Tom Kurahara

The Story: Count Ito Onato, a Japanese scientist expertly versed in toxicology, is in love with Lora and becomes insanely jealous of Robert Farlow when he shows an interest in her. They go to the South Pacific and the steamship is wrecked, the only survivors being these two men and Lora. Count Onato becomes leader of the party, but his jealousy obsesses him. To prevent murder Lora is forced to choose between them, and she gives her hand to the count. The three are rescued and return to Japan, where Lora becomes Onato's wife. Farlow again enters their home and, maddened by jealousy, Onato poisons his wife only to learn that she is about to become a mother. He searches for an antidote in vain, and finally offers his blood by transfusion to save her life. Onato dies during the operation and Lora becomes the bride of Farlow.

Feature: Sessue Hayakawa as Count Ito Onato, The Toxicologist; Florence Vidor as Lora, and Jack Holt as Robert Farlow.

Program and Advertising Phrases; Gripping Story of the Orient Interestingly Told Amid Delightful Settings.
Pictures of the "Flowery Kingdom" Drawn by a Master Hand.
Thrilling Scenes of Shipwreck at Sea.
"A Man's Home Is His Castle, and He Has a Right to Defend It."
Defending the Honor of His House from Assault and Intrigue.
Gripping Story of a Great Domestic Tragedy.
An Exceptionally Good Picture Beautifully Photographed.
One of the Plays That Will Keep Paramount Supreme.
Cecile De Mille's Latest and Most Artistic Production.
Beauties of the Orient Reflected in Fine Photography.
Thrilling Chapters and Episodes in a Domestic Tragedy.

Stunt Suggestions: Here is a chance to transform the lobby into a Japanese bow-

PHOTOPLAYLETS
MAKE YOUR LOCAL MERCHANTS GLAD TO USE
SCREEN ADVERTISING
Exclusive Territory — Wonderful Sample Outfits — Helpful Cooperation — Investigate
ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO. 1339-51 Diversey Pkwy. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

HE'S gone across—
YOU "come across"!

Adopt a SOLDIER and Supply him with "SMOKES" for the Duration of the WAR!

YOU know that our fighting men are begging for tobacco. Tobacco cheers them. They need it. "Send more cigarettes." "We can't get half enough smokes over here." "A cigarette is the first thing a wounded man asks for." Almost every mail brings many thousands of such requests.

$1.00 a Month Keeps a Soldier Supplied—Will YOU Be a "BIG BROTHER" or a "BIG SISTER" to a Lonely Fighting Man?

Every dollar sends four 45c packages of tobacco. Mail the money and coupon right now.

"OUR BOYS IN FRANCE TOBACCO FUND
19 West 44th Street, New York City
Depository: Irving National Bank, New York

"I wish you all possible success in your admirable effort to get our Boys in France tobacco."
—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
Endorsed by

The Secretary of War	Lyman Abbott
The Secretary of the Navy	Rabbi Wise
	Gertrude Atherton
The American Red Cross	Theodore Roosevelt
	Alton B. Parker
Cardinal Gibbons	And the Entire Nation

"OUR BOYS IN FRANCE TOBACCO FUND"
19 West 44th Street, New York

GENTLEMEN: I want to do my part to help the American soldiers who are fighting my battle in France. If tobacco will do it, I'm for tobacco. (Check below how you desire to contribute.)

I enclose $1.00. I will adopt a soldier and send you $1.00 a month to supply him with "smokes" for the duration of the war.

I send you herewith ....., my contribution towards the purchase of tobacco for American soldiers. This does not obligate me to contribute more.

NAME.....
ADDRESS.....

er by the use of lanterns, artificial flowers and fancy adornments. If you have a Japanese costume send a man through the streets carrying a large umbrella (of the Japanese kind) with display card advertising the picture.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six-sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising layout mats. Slides. Press book.

"A BIT OF JADE."

Mutual Presents An American Film Co. Production Starring Mary Miles Minter. Directed by Edward S. Solman. Scenario by Karl Coolidge; From Mildred Carl Graham's Work of Fiction. Released April 1.

Cast.

Phyllis King.....Mary Miles Minter
Grayson Blair.....Alan Forrest
Cuthbert King.....David Howard
Mrs. Abigail King.....Vera Lewis
Rhi .....Alfred Ferguson
Lantz .....Clarence Burton

The Story: Phyllis King is at lunch in a restaurant when her brother, Cuthbert, asks her for a loan. In going out Cuthbert puts on the overcoat belonging to Grayson Blair, a collector of antique jewelry. Phyllis finds that she is unable to pay the bill and Blair comes to her assistance by settling it. At home Blair is surprised to find that the valuable necklace he had in his overcoat pocket is missing and believes that Phyllis is the thief. Phyllis finds the jewel in what she believes to be her brother's coat, and surmises that he bought it for her, but subsequently learns that it is the property of Blair. Phyllis decides to return it to Blair and goes to his city home after writing her brother to this effect. Cuthbert, puzzled, follows his sister and, accepting the worst, is about to attack Blair when the tangle is cleared up by the identification of the overcoat Cuthbert is wearing. Blair asks Phyllis to put the necklace on and then tells her there is a legend that the necklace will win for its owner the heart of the maiden who wears it.

Feature Mary Miles Minter as Phyllis King and Alan Forrest as Grayson Blair.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Dangers of a cafe flirtation.

Sixteenth century romance in twentieth century settings.

Happy fulfillment of a Hindu love legend.

Circumstances complicate and alter cases.

Fulfilling the Hindu's sacred pledge.

How the shifty Hindu fights.

Love and romance involving a jewel robbery.

Hearts stolen when pilfered gems are found.

College girls cavort in a midnight lark.

Collector of jewels becomes collector of hearts.

When is a boy a girl and when is a girl a boy?

Sensational episode spiced with romance.

An accidental crime ferreted out by Detective Cupid.

Teeming with excitement and suspense.

Brilliant in photography, appealing in theme.

Stunt Suggestions: Hook up a display of necklaces in your jeweler's window. Have an artistically painted card read: "'What maid shall wear these beads of jade shall marry 'ere the poppies fade' is the basis of the plot dainty Mary Miles Minter will unfold in 'A Bit of Jade' at (name of theater." Curiosity will be aroused by another card: "Pick out the jade necklace." Use the assistance Mutual provides for lobby display. Street stunts are hard to devise. A man in Hindu make-up passing advertising hand-outs would be one method.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Unmounted banner. One, two and three-column cuts and mats. Half-column cut. Cut, 4x4 inches. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Slides. Press sheet.

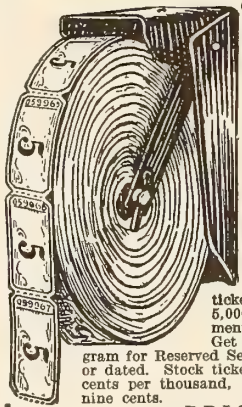
-maybe Stone has it

Here's a "Film Library" of Special Scenes.

When you want to "Flash In" a Fire, Explosion, Rough Water, Wreck, Collision, Submarine, Zeppelin, Sunset, Ship Arriving or Departing, Naval, Guns Firing, Shots Striking, War Stuff of Foreign or U. S. Action, Travel Scenes anywhere in the World, Scientific, Industrial, Insect, Animal or Bird Life, Magic, Colored or Non-Flam,

"MAYBE STONE HAS IT"
145 W. 45th St. New York

MOTIOGRAPH SERVICE
Pronounced by every user
THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.
574 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets 5,000 to 25,000 fifteen cents per thousand, 50,000 ten cents, 100,000 nine cents.

PRICES

Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand..... 2.50
Fifteen Thousand..... 3.75
Twenty-five Thousand..... 5.50
Fifty Thousand..... 7.50
One Hundred Thousand.....10.00

National Ticket Co., Shamokin, Pa.

WAR PRICES—Going Down

The well-known "Orpheum Collection" consists of melodramatic music almost exclusively, and is one of the best collections of agitatos, hurries, mysteriosos, short plaintives, etc., on the market. Particularly useful in serial pictures for bringing out the dramatic points. My last edition is printed from the same plates as the first, on a good quality of paper, and sells for these reduced prices: Piano (solo), 1st, 2d or 3d series, 35 cents each; Violin (1st, 2d or 3d series), 25 cents each; Cornet (1st, 2d or 3d series), 20 cents each; Flute, Clarinet, Trombone, Drums (1st or 2d series), 20 cents each.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1103 Grace St. Chicago, Ill.

Synopses of News Reels

Mutual.

Screen Telegram No. 4 (March 13).

Sacrifice Cars to War.—Official review of war workers shows what women of America are contributing in time and money to carry on the war to "Make the World Safe for Democracy."

Easy Money for John D.—Louisiana geyser spouts $20,000 worth of crude oil per day—pictures of the third largest producing field in the world.

1918 War Gardens Start.—City farmers at Houston begin work under direction of the National War Garden Commissioner. Fire interrupts garden makers.

Movie Hero Climbs Wall.—William Russell welcomed home by Santa Barbara populace after Eastern trip begins work on productions for his own company.

Repair Hun Destruction.—Official French war pictures show French engineers rebuilding roads in the regions of Alsace from which the Germans have been driven.

Walk Two Miles for Yarn.—Three Colorado knitters make hazardous trip over snow covered mountain to get material to continue their work for the soldiers.

Baby Crop Large as Ever.—Los Angeles does its bit against race suicide, and claims new fame as world's greatest nursery.

Paderewski Leads Poles.—Voices of 35,000 Poles raised in cry for "Freedom" as noted pianist, Ambassador of Freedom, writes new national anthem.

Screen Telegram No. 5 (March 18).

Where First Yanks Fell.—Official pictures from France show impressive ceremonies over bodies of first Americans killed in action. Scenes in the trenches where they fell.

Sunday Opens Up On Hell.—The Reverend "Billy," Baseball Evangelist, begins spring drive on old "Doc" Satan in Chicago. The arrivel of "Billy" and "Ma." Close up of Sunday.

Juggles Marbles With Toes.—University of California students begin strenuous Training for military life. Husky boys pick up pebbles with their tootsies to overcome flat foot.

Cry "No Beer—No Boats."—Six thousand ship builders at Toronto resent Provincial decree reducing percentage of alcohol in beer. Premier Hearst tries to explain.

British Primate Arrives.—The Most Reverend Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archibishop of York, and England's most distinguished cleric, attends service at Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Form Big Red Cross Band.—Combined bands of Fort Custer play on steps of Capitol at Lansing before Governor Sleeper as they start on state-wide Red Cross campaign.

"Doug" Stages Acrobats. Famous screen star walks on his hands across entrance of Grauman's new million dollar picture palace, Los Angeles, to celebrate first Screen Telegram.

Heavy Guns in Action. From "Somewhere in France" comes pictures of France's new artillery, bigger than the famous 75s, hurling immense projectiles against the Huns.

Learning How to Shoot. New York Athletic Club stages annual trap shoot at Travers Island, N. Y. Camera shot shows clay pigeon leaving trap and caught in maidair by marksmen.

Screen Telegram No. 4 (March 24).

The Noose for "Germania." Huge statue "Germania," which has stood for thirty years in front of a St. Paul building, is Exhibitors Everywhere!

Every minute the latest edition of your daily paper brings you a fresh and more convincing argument that the

SALVATION OF DEMOCRACY

is in the Hands of the

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

THE

Third LIBERTY LOAN Drive

Beginning April 6th

Must Be A Tremendous Success

Moving Picture Exhibitors have it within their power to do much toward putting the Third Liberty Loan across.

It is hoped that every exhibitor in the United States at least once during the drive which will last approximately three weeks, will devote a day at his theatre to the Liberty Loan sale campaign. A special program of patriotic pictures will help. Special decorations will help, and the local Liberty Loan Committee in each community will furnish "Four-Minute" Men to clinch the argument.

DON'T BE THE WEAK LINK IN THE CHAIN
PUT YOUR SHOULDER TO THE WHEEL

swung from its pedestal by its neck and razed.

Farms on "No Man's Land." Tractors at work on former battlefields of Northern France preparing them for crops. Thousands of tractors in construction at Racine, Wis.

Food Follows the Flag. Governor Dorsey of Georgia and Mayor Candler of Atlanta, clad in overalls, pilot plows over Atlanta's downtown park to prepare it for seeding.

Teaches Armless to Work. Louis J. de Rondeau, armless Frenchman, at Kansas City to instruct wounded Americans in the use of artificial limbs. Dresses with wooden hands.

Ready for Huns' Advance. Italian and French engineers operating trench digging machine and erecting wire entaglements in preparation for the threatened Austrian drive.

Teach Warfare to Moors. Picturesque Moroccan natives shown in their home training camps, enroute to France, and on their way to the trenches in French Official War Films.

Train Pigeons for War. Carrier pigeons raised and trained at Detroit bird farm for service on the battle fronts. Champion bird flies 530 miles in ten hours.

Caring for War Orphans. Scenes at a hospital near Evian, France, where children, left homeless by the war, are housed, nursed and educated by the Red Cross.

Flag for U. S. S. Recruit. Recruiting station at Union Square, New York, presented with silken colors by women of the Universal Sunset Club of New York.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

HEARST-PATHE NEWS NO. 22 (March 13).

Los Angeles, Cal.—The call to mobilize rings far and wide to our youth as to our manhood, and thousands of little volunteers respond. Subtitle: Boys from 20 lands now all sons of Uncle Sam.

On the Atlantic.—Victim of terrific gales that have swept the Eastern seaboard the American steamer Susquehanna is driven ashore.

Washington, D. C.—Relieve the freight congestion by using the Rural Express. The Government urges farmers to send products to the markets by fast auto service.

On the Western Front.—United in aim and action, British and French together man the batteries at places where the two fronts join into one.

Rheims, France.—What cares the Hun for sacred or historic landmarks, as he ruthlessly seeks to uproot the very foundations of civilization? Subtitles: Churches seem to be a special target for his airmen and batteries. One German aeroplane is captured intact.

Venice, Cal.—Here—here—women life savers! All the male life savers have gone to save Democracy, and so—. Oh my, even a drowning man would come 'round in a jiffy.

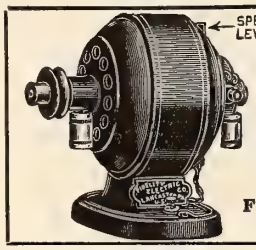
Boston, Mass.—Even machine guns take a back seat when this new centrifugal gun, firing 33,000 shots a minute, gets into real action.

Quantico, Va.—First to fire—among the boys that are the first to fight. Colors are presented to new artillery corps of the Marines. Subtitles: Major-General Barnett (left), head of the Marine Corps, reviews the men. One standard for all.

SOLIDHED POSTER TACKS

½ in., 25c. ⅝ in., 35c.
11/16 in., 50c. per 100
THE HANDY HAMMERLESS TACK
Solidhed Tack Co., 38 Murray St., N. Y.

OUR SPECIALTY IS TITLES
PLAIN and FANCY
Printed in Any Language
Write or Call
VELASCO & PUIG
145 W. 45th St., New York Phone: Bryant 6837



Moving Picture Machine Motor
$16.00
Alternating or Direct current complete with variable speed lever. Immediate delivery.
Fidelity Electric Co.
Lancaster, Pa.

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe—for authoritative articles by leading British technical men—for brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read
THE BIOSCOPE
The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation
85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.
Specimen on Application

PHOTO-GRAVURE PROGRAM
4 pages; size, 8½ inches long and 5½ inches in width. Picture covers nearly entire front page. 35 BIG NAMES. Write for specimens, $2.50 per thousand in any quantity desired.

New Colored Catalogue Now Ready

The Photo-gravure program is a real souvenir and will bring you more patrons.

LARGE HANDCOLORED PICTURES
Size 22x28 inches. Every prominent player.....75c. each
FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $2.50 to $35, framed.
THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 per thousand, of over 600 players.
PHOTOGRAPHS, size 8x10, of all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each.
LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11x14, all the prominent players, 20c.
GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, $10 per thousand.
SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 50c. each.
KRAUS MFG. CO.
220 West 42nd Street, New York
12th Floor, Candler Building

Cartoon (Magazine Section).—Making an Example of Him.

Food Will Fight Our Battles.—Sharing our wheat insures victory. U. S. Food Administration.

HEAST-PATHE NEWS NO. 23 (March 16).

Camp Logan, Tex.—Help them smile, smile! The army's largest band and the "Pep" squad, 1,000 strong, aid the girls sell Smileage Books.

Los Angeles, Cal.—"Gas" goes up again—this time it leaps high in clouds, but anxious automobilists, do not worry, it only goes in smoke.

Albany, N. Y.—The big drive is on—Empire capital invaded! Hundreds of British recruits captured by the invincible tank Britannia.

In Alsace.—Winter or summer, the current never stops. French batteries pour over snow-covered Alsatian hills in an endless stream.

Chelmsford, England.—Her whole manpower is mobilized by Britain for the final drive, and thousands of men are added to the nation's forces.

Yaphank, L. I.—"I wish I was as big as you," says little George Dewey, descendant of the hero of Manila, to the soldiers at Camp Upton.

An Atlantic Port.—Several hundred passengers and crew are imperilled when the big liner Kershaw goes ashore and is wrecked during a heavy fog.

Somewhere in France.—Frequently does France have to decorate her troops—not that honor is lightly given, but because her heroes are many.

Wheat Golden Grains of Victory! Send our Allies' share "Over There" to win for us! (U. S. Food Administration).

HEARST-PATHE NEWS No. 24 (March 20).

New York City.—All hail, loyal sons of Erin! Old Glory waves with the Shamrock Green as 6,000 Irish march in St. Patrick's Parade.

Ft. Montgomery, N. Y.—A bit of Klondike life right in good old New York—Alaskan dog teams race along here just as they do way up in the North. Jacques Suzanne, the arctic explorer, with his Siberian dogs.

Chicago, Ill.—Eyes of the Future—America need not fear a lack of daring airmen with her youthful aviators preparing to do their bit.

In Africa—France and her possessions are united in the common struggle. Moroccan "tiraille urs" respond nobly to mother country's call.

Midnight at Eleven.—Up an hour earlier, to bed an hour sooner—all clocks are to be set ahead one hour by the new plan to conserve daylight. Subtitles: How Uncle Sam sets the time; The Observatory at Washington is the official timekeeper. An astronomer carefully observes the stars as they cross the meridian at Washington, The Riefler Clock, the country's standard timepiece, is set automatically the instant the star crosses the meridian. A graphic record is made of the beats of the standard clock. At noon Eastern time a master relay flashes out the exact moment to all parts of the country, thus setting correct time.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Spring is here, and the milder weather brings out the Penn Varsity crew to begin practice for the season's water sports.

New York City—Ready for any emer-

Duhem Motion Picture Mfg. Co.
Expert Developing, Printing and Coloring

CAMERA OUTFITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED
CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE

985 Market Street San Francisco, Cal.

It Is Our Aim
"To Serve the Entire Motion Picture Industry"
For This Reason We Enjoy the Confidence of Our Readers—and, For This Reason
You Should Subscribe for / You Should Advertise in } THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Simplex

"The World will make a beaten path to his door"

That's what Elbert Hubbard said would happen if a man built a better Projector than his neighbor.

As a matter of fact, he didn't say Projector, but Mousetrap; but he might just as well have said Projector.

Anyway, Hubbard sometimes overlooked vital things. For instance, he didn't say a word about telling the World of your better Projector.

That's a serious shortcoming, for the World would know nothing of it. It wouldn't even know where your door was; so how could it wear a beaten path to your door?

But all joking aside, you can't blame us for taking that little remark of Hubbard's to ourselves.

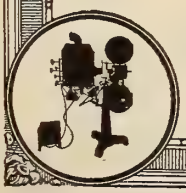
We build the Simplex; it is better; we tell the World about it; the World agrees with us; and now you ought to see the path to our door! (Figuratively speaking, of course.)

Really, it's getting "worse and worse." Again we added thousands of dollars' worth of equipment, and for all that, we've got to work day and night to keep up with the demand.

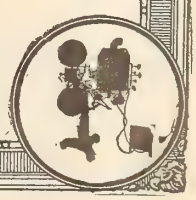
Nowadays you hardly ever hear of a good House opening up with anything but Simplexes. No wonder; who wants to take chances when he can have a sure thing?

By the way, the million-dollar Grand in Pittsburgh; the Grauman in Los Angeles; and the Knickerbocker in New York, showing Gerard's Four Years in Germany, none of these wanted to take chances. Like most others, they preferred to take the Simplex.

There can be only one reason why more and more Exhibitors want the Simplex



THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York



ONCE MORE

We call your attention to our long experience and excellent facilities for serving you when it comes to doing your DEVELOPING and PRINTING.

We are sure EVANS can please you better—much better in quality of work. Remember it costs you nothing to investigate. Why not do so now?

EVANS FILM MFG. CO., 416-24 West 216th St., New York City Telephone: Audubon 6881-2

gency—the Ninth Coast Artillery of N. Y. Guard demonstrates its preparedness in a street riot drill.

Camp Kearney, Cal.—Sunshine Division—is their name—the boys of the Golden State who will soon carry new rays of hope to the Allied army.

Do Your Bit—Join the army of the majority. SAVE! Use food substitutes.—U. S. Food Administration.

Universal Animated Weekly.

ISSUE NO. 14 (March 6).

"Kidding the Kaiser" is Great Game with Sailor Laddies.—The hard work of training for service in Uncle Sam's navy doesn't keep student blue-jackets from frequent outbursts of youthful joy and fun-making—Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Chicago, Ill.

New York Greets Archbishop of Old York.—His Grace, the Most Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of York, delivers the first of a series of messages from Great Britain to America, at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine—New York City.

Another of Uncle Sam's "Victory Ships" Completed.—The cry for "ships, ships, ships, to win the war," is answered at the Rolph Shipbuilding Yards, where the first of several barkentines is launched—Eureka, Cal.

Under Flag of David Jews Will Fight for Holy Land.—Battalion of volunteers from the ghetto leaves to join British fusileers for service in Palestine, where the six-pointed star of the Jews will proudly fly beside the Union Jack—New York City.

Uncle Sam's New "Over the Top" Guns Prove Their Worth.—The Browning automatic rifle, America's latest contribution to the war, is tested by Army experts in the presence of French and British officers—Washington, D. C.

Even Royalty Likes to "Play the Ponies" Now and Then.—King Alfonso, noted patron of sport, attends the races with the Queen and members of the Royal Family—Madrid, Spain.

Will Avenge Their Comrades, Victims of Cowardly U-Boat!—"Remember the Tuscania!" may well be the war cry of these officers of the Thirty-second Division, some members of which went to heroic deaths on the torpedoed transport—Camp McArthur, Texas.

Premier of Canada Here with Message for President.—Sir Robert Borden, Canada's civilian hero of the war, arrives for a conference with President Wilson—Washington, D. C.

British Prisoners, Like the Dead Returned, Arrive in "Blighty."—Permanently disabled "Tommies" exchanged by the Germans, because of their injuries, arrive home at last on the Dutch hospital ship "Sindoro"—Somewhere in England.

National Army Boys Ready for "Great Adventure with Pershing. — Governor Whitman, of New York, and Brig.-Gen. Johnson, Acting Commander of the Metropolitan Division, review the citizen soldiers only recently converted from civil life—Camp Upton, N. Y.

Cartoons by Hy Mayer.

CLUNE FILM PRODUCING CO.
Los Angeles, California
Producers of "RAMONA" (8½ reels) and "THE EYES OF THE WORLD" (8½ reels)
Harold Bell Wright's famous love story of adventure, of which nearly 2,000,000 copies have been sold, magnificently reproduced.
Available for state rights.

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th Street New York City

We Manufacture
Complete EXIT Signs
65 to 70 Cents in Quantity
Also Fire Escape Signs and Other Specialties
T. L. ROBINSON & CO.
105 W. Monroe St., Chicago

THE AUTOMATIC
TICKET SELLING and CASH REGISTER CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF
AUTOMATICKET MACHINES
and all kinds of Theatre Tickets
USED UNIVERSALLY
1735 BROADWAY N. Y. CITY

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan & Trust Bldg., Washington, D. C.

SWAAB
SIMPLEX MACHINE
Distributor
PENNSYLVANIA, NEW JERSEY, DELAWARE, MARYLAND
1327 VINE STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Repairing and All Supplies

EXHIBITORS SUPPLY CO., Inc.
Mallers Building, CHICAGO, ILL.
Exclusive Distributors
Simplex Machines
Illinois Indiana Wisconsin

We lead; let those that can, follow.
DEVELOPING—PRINTING
TITLES—TINTING—TONING
MANUFACTURERS AND SPECIALISTS IN MOTION PICTURE PHOTOGRAPHY
GUNBY BROS., INC.
145 West 45th Street New York City

ISSUE NO. 15 (March 13).

Old Glory will go into battle with the Marines. Major-General Barnett, Commandant of the Marine Corps, presents the colors to the newly-formed Eleventh Regiment of artillery, U. S. M. C.—Quantico, Va.

Marvelous steam gun fires 33,000 shots a minute. Levi W. Lombard completes invention of murderous weapon operating on the principle of a sling, the bullets from which pierce one-inch armor plate at hundreds of yards—Boston, Mass.

Californians revel on snow-clad mountain tops. Annual "fiesta of the snows" draws hundreds from the sun-lit valleys to frolic on the white-mantled summits of the Sierra Nevada—Truckee, Cal.

Sports continue in New Zealand, despite war. Although this great British colony has given thousands of her sons to the mother country, those at home keep a stiff upper lip and still engage in the favorite pastime, yachting—Auckland, New Zealand.

Cleanliness is next to Godliness in the Navy. "As we clean up our clothes, so we will clean up the Kaiser" is the way the boys of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station feel about the great modern laundry they operate—Great Lakes, Ill.

Divers recover treasure buried 'neath the waves. Six carloads of sugar sink when a barge springs a leak, outrivaling the famous hidden hoard of the notorious Captain Kidd—Baltimore, Md.

Bats and balls for Pershing's boys in khaki. Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington Baseball Club, heads fund which has "gone to bat" for contributions with which to buy diamond outfits for "Sammies" at home and abroad—Washington, D. C.

Messengers of war carry note to Mrs. Wilson. Invitation to attend Military and Naval Meet is sent Mistress of the White House by carrier pigeons released from the deck of the land battleship "Recruit" by Mrs. Whitman, wife of the Governor of New York—New York City.

"Boyce's Tigers" long to be at throats of Huns! Young men eager for military service drill under Captain Boyce, U. S. A., who already has trained thousand who preferred not to wait for the call to camp—New York City.

Banner of Liberty is raised over "Battleship Recruit." The Betsy Ross Sewing Party of the Universal Sunset Club hurries to completion its silken Stars and Stripes for presentation to Uncle Sam's wooden warship in Union Square—New York City.

Cartoons by Hy Mayer.

Universal Screen Magazine.

ISSUE NO. 62 (March 15).

Preparedness—Making an Aviator. Air supremacy means victory, military experts declare. Private parties maintain, at their own expense, an aviation school at Wilmington, Del. Aviators are trained here for immediate service with the Army.

Industry—The Making of a Newspaper. Few people know how a newspaper is produced. The Universal Screen Magazine presents a serial in three installments, showing every process. Watch for Installment

PERFECTION IN PROJECTION Gold King Screen
10 Days' Trial
No. 1 Grade, 75c.; No. 2 Grade, 50c.—Stretchers included
Try before you buy. Sold by all the leading supply dealers throughout the country.
Factory, ALTUS, OKLAHOMA

La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera
Official Organ of the Italian Cinematograph Union
PUBLISHED ON THE 15th AND 30th OF EACH MONTH
Foreign Subscription: 20 francs. per annum
Editorial and Business Offices: Via Cumiana, 31, Turin, Italy

Better Projection at Less Cost

Nearly every means of improving your projection means added cost. But here is a chance to better the screen illumination and save cost. NATIONAL MAZDA lamps give a steady, flickerless light. They make the illumination uniform from edge to edge of the screen. They do away with phantoms and shadows.

Besides all that, they make conditions in the booth more satisfactory. Once focused, NATIONAL MAZDA lamps require no further attention. They need no adjustments. They leave the operator "nothing to watch but the film." They lower the temperature and better the air in the booth. They prevent the heat-breakage of lenses. When NATIONAL MAZDAS are used, there are no more broken carbon jaws to contend with. Repair expense is reduced, and the consumption of current is cut two-thirds.

With all these advantages and all these savings, NATIONAL MAZDA lamps ought to interest every exhibitor. To get full information ask your supply house—or Nela Specialties Division, National Lamp Works of General Electric Co., 106 Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio.

NATIONAL MAZDA

THE WAY TO BETTER LIGHT

Two—How the Business and Editorial Departments Are Conducted.

Animal Friends—Darwin Was Wrong! Watch these dogs perform and you'll come to feel that they were more likely our ancestors than monkeys. They display a brand of marvelous intelligence.

Industry—What a Careless Hunter in the Woods Can Do. It costs the Government more than two million dollars yearly to protect the national forests from fire, but in the dry seasons the flames sometimes get beyond control.

Art—Miracles in Mud, produced by Willie Hopkins. "Mother's Liberty Bond."

ISSUE NO. 63 (March 22).

Engineering—Monster Concrete Bridge. In these days, engineers are seeking to build bridges which will be permanent. Concrete insures greater strength, solidity, lasting centuries.

Industry—The Making of a Newspaper, Part Two.

Screen Oddities—Mediumship Revealed! Come with us into spookland and see how the magic of the medium with the aid of spirits of the dead of long ago makes tables "Jazz" and jump and do the "tickle-toe." Hereward Carrington, psychic expert, demonstrates a few mediumistic tricks.

Preparedness — Making Democracy's Mouthpieces. In every part of the country great plants are turning out giant "Berthas' which will thunder defiance at democracy's enemies. A lot of your "Liberty Bond" money goes into these.

Art—Miracles in Mud, produced by Willie Hopkins. "The Stuff Our Liberty Army Is Made Of."

ISSUE NO. 64 (March 29).

Dangerous Occupations Putting the "Kibosh" on Crime. Valiant troopers of the New York State Police guard rural districts in splendid style, their work comparing admirably with that of the famous Canadian Mounted Police.

Screen Oddities—Cigar Box Ukeleles. Was old Bill Bailey's melodious ukelele fashioned from the box that once contained father's perfectos? Watch the work of this Greenwich Village expert and answer the question yourself.

Industry.—Making of a Newspaper. Part III. We have shown you how paper is made, how the news is gathered and made ready in the editorial rooms—now we will show you how it is put into type and prepared for the presses in the composing room.

Art.—Miracles in Mud, Produced by Willie Hopkins. "Phaunny Phaces."

Universal Current Events.

ISSUE NO. 45 (March 16).

Liner Runs Ahsore in Atlantic Coast Fog.—Passengers are taken off by breeches-buoy when the Coast Steamship Kershaw runs aground—crew remains on board despite danger of disaster.—Somewhere on the Atlantic Coast.

Uncle Sam's Winged Allies Will Brave German Guns.—A carrier-pigeon company, training the birds for service with Pershing in France, undergoes inspection, together with its collection of feathered messengers.—Houston, Texas.

"Pigeon-Express" Bears Message to Mrs. Wilson.—"Mercury," a "Military Flier" and pet of the United States Signal Corps, arrives at the Capital with a note from the people of New York to the mistress of the White House, making the 230-mile trip in five hours.—Washington, D. C.

Will Care for Comfort of Boys on Firing Line.—Field workers of the Knights of Columbus leave for France, where they will aid General Pershing by looking after the welfare of his boys.—An Atlantic Port.

Launch Vessel to Clear Sea of Mines.—Miss Agnes Schlegel, granddaughter of Commodore R. P. Forshew, christens the U. S. S. Lapwing, one of Uncle Sam's first mine sweepers to take the water.—An Atlantic Port.

Men in the Public Eye.—(Col. Melville E. Stone)—Here is the best-known newspaper man in the United States. As manager of the Associated Press, with war correspondents on every front, he keeps his hand on the pulse of events and insists that the various censors pass all news that is not of "aid or comfort to the enemy."

Behold! The Human Fly Unfurls a Banner in the Sky.—To heights untold, a Yankee bold, said he would climb and there unfold, the Stars and Stripes of Liberty, which fly in France to make men free!—Houston, Texas.

Making the Mighty Guns to Blast a Road to Berlin.—To crash apart the Kaiser's lines in France and make way for the boys with the bayonets tons of tempered steel are being converted into terrible engines of destruction.—Somewhere in America.

Help the Farmer and Help Beat Kaiserism!—Victory in the war depends upon food! Get behind the farmer or work with him! Industry has taken so much labor from the farm that there may not be enough to produce the food needed.

French Train Africans for Service in France.—Moroccan tribesmen learn the art of modern warfare from French veterans, preparatory to taking their places on the Western Front.—Fez, Morocco (Official French War Film).

One of the Many Heroes of the Great War!—General Guillemont is decorated for bravery with the medal of the Legion of Honor, presented by General Lecomte on the battlefield.

Cartoons from the World's Greatest Newspapers.

Watch for coming announcement of
SESSUE HAYAKAWA PRODUCTIONS
Haworth Pictures Corporation
H. W. Hellman Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS
BASS TESTED AND GUARANTEED
Motion Picture Cameras are the acme of good value. Whether you purchase a new Universal at a big saving or a used Universal at prices from $195 to $325, you are obtaining a camera of undoubted capabilities. USED MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS ALWAYS ON HAND
BASS CAMERA COMPANY
111 N. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.
M. P. CAMERA DEPT.

FOR SALE
Second-hand Motiograph
Used one month; a bargain
1917 model; price, $150.00
Also distributors of Richardson's M. P. Handbook, Hallberg's M. P. Electricity, Oil, Cement, Condensers and Parts
Moving Picture Machine Company
Binghamton, N. Y.

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL
HIGH Quality
LOW Price
and CAST IRON

Opera Chairs
Immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.
STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich. New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

We have for sale Twenty Million Dollar Mystery, 22 reels; Zudora, 18 reels; and Million Dollar Mystery, 46 reels. We also have a large stock of new and commercial film in all lengths for all parts of the globe.
Established 1908
THE FILM EXCHANGE
126 West 46th St., New York City

Bargains in Electric Pianos
25 Empress Electric Pianos having had use as demonstrators, etc., will be closed out this month. Splendid values. Former $600 instrument $385, and many others. Write at once for List. Sold on easy monthly payments.
Lyon & Healy, 50-75 Jackson Blvd. Chicago

Printing, Developing, Toning, Tinting
Titles
Domestic Foreign
Empire City Film Laboratories, Inc.
345 West 40th Street New York

MINUSA
Gold Fibre Screens
The only screen built to the specifications of the theatre in which it is to be used.
You'd naturally expect the world's largest producers of Moving Picture Screens to construct the best screen. We do!
Write and let us tell you about Minusa screens and send you samples.
Some sections still available to dealers
THE UTMOST IN SCREENS
MINUSA CINÉ SCREEN CO.,
Bomont & Morgan St. Louis, Mo.
SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

Classified Advertisements NOTE TERMS CAREFULLY

Remittances must accompany all orders for classified advertisements as follows: One dollar per insertion for copy containing twenty words or less. Five cents per word on copy containing over twenty words. Each word to be counted including names and addresses.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS:—The Publishers expect that all statements made in every advertisement will bear the strictest investigation

SITUATIONS WANTED.

CAMERAMAN, experienced, exempt, own outfit, seeks engagement studio, scenic, weekly. If no vacancy, will consider assistant's job with advancement. References, Schjerbeck, 17 Post Ave., N. Y. City. Phone St. Nicholas 8590.

CAMERAMAN—Married, good camera and accessories, excellent references, topical, commercial or scenic, two years staff cameraman on weekly. Do laboratory work, reasonable salary. Address R. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MANAGER (American) at liberty, fourteen years experience moving picture business, expert on Projection, good advertiser, can buy right, sober, reliable, will consider managing large house or circuit. Address Business Producer, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

EXPERT CAMERAMAN, with first class outfit, desires a position. A. C. Bushcott, 4711 Indiana Ave., Chicago, Illinois.

MECHANICAL ENGINEER, thoroughly efficient factory manager, long experience in film business, will welcome interview with first class concern on any proposition. P. W., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED, SALES MANAGER—We are making and selling advertising film in from 50 to 300 ft. lengths for retail merchants and project same in sixty Detroit theaters. We need a man who is capable of managing salesmen, and instructing them in the selling and suggesting ideas to the merchants. To such a man of proven worth we can offer a good proposition. Nelson Motion Picture Studios, 63 Elizabeth St., E. Detroit, Michigan.

THEATRE WANTED.

EXPERIENCED managed will lease or manage on percentage picture theater with 600 seats or over. Address Reliable, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

THEATRES FOR SALE OR RENT.

ONCE in a lifetime, a business proposition of unusual merit is placed on the market for various reasons which can only be told in person. We offer for sale one of the leading and most successfully conducted vaudeville houses in the United States; admission ten to thirty cents; annual business around one hundred seventy-five thousand, with net profit of about seventy-five thousand; this proposition is run entirely by hired help, as the stockholders are interested in various other lines; real estate, equipment, good will and business to be sold; price one-half million dollars; half cash will be accepted. LEWIS, "THE MOVIE BROKER," 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

8,000 opera chairs, including upholstered, excellent condition, 75 cents up. Wood folding chairs in stock. Atlas Seating Company, 10 East 43rd St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—About 300 motion picture seats. Inquire Herman Ellis, Perth Amboy, N. J.

EXHIBITORS—OPERATORS — PROJECTION EXPERT F. H. RICHARDSON SAYS "INSTAL 'AMBERLUX' LENS FILTERS." IMPROVE PROJECTION 100%. RESULTS GUARANTEED. PRICE WITH ADVERTISING SLIDE, $3.50. PARCELS POST PREPAID. W. D. WARNER, 8 EAST BROAD ST., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

TWENTY-FIVE guaranteed rebuilt motion picture machines, all makes, and hundreds of film subjects for sale cheap. Feature Film Company, St. Paul, Minn.

STUDIO EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Laboratory equipment, 2 Cooper-Hewitt stand lamps for title work, 110 D. C.; 1 water filter; 24 excellent arc lamps for industrial interiors; 2 new portable projectors, demonstrating machines. Will sell above cheap for quick sale. National Motion Pictures Co., 307 N. Pennsylvania St., Indianapolis, Ind.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

PATHE Professional studio camera, like new. Perfect mechanically. Bargain for quick sale. Address C. R. S., care East End Studios, 7405 Euclid Ave., Chicago, Ill.

EVERYTHING cinematographic, astonishing novelties, cameras, dissolvers, tripods, polishers, printers, prismaopticons, lenses, extraordinary facilities for mechanical work, repairing. Eberhard Schneider, 2d Ave., 14th St., N. Y. City.

SERVICE AND VALUE—Seven M. P. cameras sold in two days. Each shipped immediately. That's real service. Bass values brought the orders. SPECIAL BARGAINS: 400 Pittman Professional, Tessar f:3.5 lens, automatic dissolve. Price complete, $160.00. 400 ft. Improved U. S. Cam and shuttle intermittent. Krauss Zeiss Tessar f:3.5 lens. Metal magazines. Price complete, ready to use, $110.00. 400 ft. Pathe Professional, outside magazine, Tessar f:3.5 lens, with two extra magazines. Price, $400.00. 1916 model Universal M. P. Tessar f:3.5 lens. Condition like new. Price, $210.00. Bell & Howell M. P. Camera. Complete, with 2-in. Carl Zeiss Tessar, 3-in. Carl Zeiss Tessar, 7-in. Cooke Telephoto, one 200 ft. magazine, one 400 ft. magazine and tripod with case. Complete, $850.00. Slightly used Universal tripods at $47.50. Used Northern Lights at $45.00. One Dallmeyer f:1.9 Cine lens, 3-in. focus, at $75.00. One Carl Zeiss 2-in. Tessar f:3.5 in bbl. at $27.50. One 6-in. Dallmeyer f:4.5 Telephoto in bbl. at $50.00. WRITE TODAY TO THE HOME OF CAMERAS. AMERICA'S MODERN CAMERA EXCHANGE. BASS CAMERA COMPANY, Chas. Bass, President, 109 NO. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

"A REAL SNAP"————UNIVERSAL M. P. CAMERA F:3-5, 50 M M B & L TESSAR LENS, REGULAR AND TRICK CRANK, TRIPOD, 2 EXTRA MAGAZINES AND CARRYING CASE————$275.00, WORTH OVER $400.00. TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS EXCEPTIONAL BARGAIN————WRITE OR WIRE AT ONCE FOR OUR LATEST LIST OF NEW AND USED MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS, LENSES, TRIPODS AND ACCESSORIES. DAVID STERN COMPANY. In business since 1885. 1027 R. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

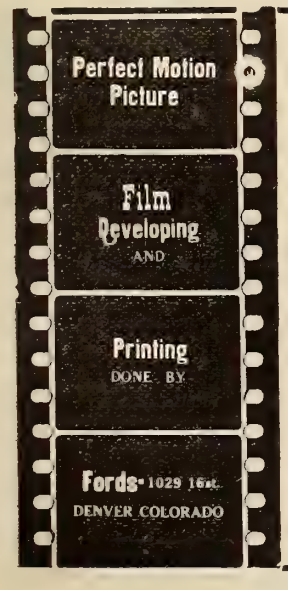
FILMS FOR SALE.

BRAND new print Uncle Tom's Cabin, original production five reels featuring Irving Cummings and the Celebrated Thanhouser Kid, approximately forty-six hundred feet, twelve cents foot, reasonable amount paper with same. Chicago Film Trading Co., 17 No. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FILM for sale, all subjects released by the Unicorn Film Co., consisting of one and two-reelers featuring Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett, Blanch Sweet, Billy West, Owen Moore, Francis Ford, and others; all in splendid condition, with reasonable amount paper; also single reel Keystone comedies. Chicago Film Trading Co., Shops Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

KEYSTONE comedies in excellent condition, $15.00 each reel; also one and two-reel dramas and comedies. Apollo Feature Film Co., 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

In answering advertisements please mention The Moving Pictur e World



Our experience and laboratory equipment assures you the best motion picture film developing, printing and the making of titles best that can be secured.

REASONS WHY

Are photographers by profession since 1881.

Developing and printing motion picture film since 1908.

Have dust proof laboratory especially fitted for this work.

Complete stock of fresh chemicals and Eastman's motion picture negative and positive film on hand at all times.

Bring or mail us your next motion picture developing order to convince you of our work and promptness.

DEVELOPING MOTION PICTURE FILM 1c PER FOOT

FORD'S 1029 16th St., Denver, Colo.

MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO

List of Current Film Release Dates

ON GENERAL FILM, PATHE AND PARAMOUNT PROGRAMS

General Film Company, Inc.

(Note—Pictures given below are listed in the order of their release. Additions are made from week to week in the order of release.)

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE.

The Moment of Victory (One of the O. Henry Series—Two parts—Comedy-Drama).
The Trimmed Lamp (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Schools and Schools (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
A Madison Square Arabian Night (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
The Rathskeller and the Rose (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
By Injunction (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
The Song and the Sergeant (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).

CHAPLIN COMEDIES.

Work (Two parts—Comedy).
A Woman (Two parts—Comedy).
The Tramp (Two Parts—Comedy).
His New Job (Two Parts—Comedy).

DUPLEX FILMS, INC.

Shame (Drama).

ESSANAY COMEDIES.

The Lie That Failed.
The Jazbo Sheriff.
The Snakeville Fire Brigade.
Snakeville's Sleuth.
Slippery Slim and the Fortune Teller.
Slippery Slim and the Green Eyed Monster.
When Macbeth Came to Snakeville.
Slippery Slim and His Tombstone.
Slippery Slim and the Impersonator.

ESSANAY SCENICS.

Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada.
Water Power of Eastern Canada (Scenic).
A Romance of Rails and Power (Scenic).
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelly.

HANOVER FILM COMPANY.

Camille (Helen Hesperia—Six parts—Drama).
The Marvelous Maciste (Six parts—Drama).

JAXON COMEDIES.

(Seventh Series.)

The Unofficial Maneuver.
What Occurred on the Beach.
An All Fools' Day Affair.
Beating Him to It.
Forced Into Matrimony.

JAXON FILM CORPORATION.

"A Daughter of Uncle Sam" (A One-Reel Episode of this Patriotic Serial released each week).

JUDGE BROWN STORIES.

(All Two-Part Comedy-Dramas.)

Marrying Off Dad.
The Preacher's Son.
Thief or Angel?
The Accusing Toe.
The Rebellion.
A Boy Built City.
I'm a Man.

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTOPLAY CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Monthly).

SELBURN COMEDIES.

(Piedmont Pictures Corporation)

Hubby's Holiday (Two parts—Comedy).
Too Much Elephant (One part—Comedy).
Wedding Bells and Lunatics (One part—Com.).
His College Proxy (One part—Comedy).

SPARKLE COMEDIES.

(Fifth Series.)

On the Love Line.
The Detective.
Smashing the Plot.
After the Matinee.
Double Cross.
The Best of a Bargain.

THREE C COMEDIES.

A Boarding House Battle.
Stealing a Sweetheart.
A Hash House Romance.
The Hod Carrier's Million.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 17.

The Beggar Woman (Five Parts—Drama—Russian Art Films).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 2—"The Tiger's Eye"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Fare, Please (Two Parts—Comedy—Rolin).
Here Comes the Girls (One Reel—Comedy—Rolin).
Picturesque France, The Cauterets (Colored—Travel), and Children's Dances (Colored—Educational) (Pathe Split Reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 24 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 25 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 24.

The Hillcrest Mystery (Five Parts—Drama—Astra).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 3—"A Woman's Perfidy"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Let's Go (One Reel—Comedy—Rolin).
Pests of Our Fruit Trees (Colored—Educational) and Picturesque France—Arcachon (Colored—Travel) (Pathe Split Reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 26 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 27 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 31.

Mrs. Slacker (Five Parts—Drama—Astra).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 4—"The Man from Java"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
On the Jump (One Reel—Comedy—Rolin).
The Valley of the Dordogne—France (Colored—Travel) and The Horse in Action—Part 2—Analysis in Motion (Colored—Educational) (Pathe Split Reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 28 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 29 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF APRIL 7.

Twenty-One (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama—Pathe).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 5—"Spies Within"—Two Parts—Astra).
Follow the Crowd (One-reel Comedy—Rolin).
Timber Transportation, Sweden (Colored educational), and St. Flour and Aurillac, Picturesque France (Colored Travel) (Pathe Split-reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 30 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 31 (Topical).

Paramount Pictures Corp.

KLEVER KOMEDY.

Jan. 28—He Got His.
Feb. 11—Adam and Some Eves.
Feb. 25—Some Professor.

PARAMOUNT-MACK SENNETT COMEDIES.

Mar. 11—Sheriff Nell's Tussle.
Mar. 25—Those Athletic Girls.
Apr. 8—Friend Husband.

PARAMOUNT ARBUCKLE COMEDIES.

Dec. 10—A Country Hero.
Jan. 20—Out West (Two parts).
Mar. 18—The Bell Boy.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP.

Paramount Features.

Mar. 11—The Family Skeleton (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Sunshine Nan (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Prunella (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Wild Youth (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Love Me (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—La Tosca (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—Naughty, Naughty (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—Honor of His House (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—His Majesty, Bunker Bean (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Apr. 8—The House of Silence (Five Parts—Drama).

Artcraft Pictures.

Feb. 25—Headin' South (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—The Whispering Chorus (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 31—The Blue Bird (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Tiger Man (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—The Lie (Five Parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT SERIAL.

Jan. 28—Who Is Number One? (Episode No. 14—"No Surrender"—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 4—Who Is Number One? (Episode No. 15—"The Round Up"—Two parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPHS.

Mar. 11—Subjects on Reel: War and the Motorcycle; Hawaii and Her Natives; Cartoon by Wallace Carlson.
Mar. 18—Subjects on Reel: Rose Culture; Uncle Sam's Coin Factory; Physical Culture Terpsichore; Cartoon; Hornets of the Sea by J. F. Leventhal.
Mar. 25—Subjects on Reel: Lumbering for Wartime; Hawaiians and Their Strange Customs; Women in the World of Work (interior decorating); Cartoon: Bobby Bumps, by Earl Hurd.
Apr. 1—Subjects on Reel: Training Women Sharpshooters, Our Bone Relations; A New Use for a House Boat; Cartoon by—"Me und Gott"—Bray Studios.

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES.

Mar. 11—The Alaska Cruise.
Mar. 18—A Summer Day in Skaguay.
Mar. 25—Over the White Pass.
Apr. 1—Down the Yukon.
Apr. 8—In Happy Honolulu.

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S-PARAMOUNT SERIES.

"The Son of Democracy."

Mar. 4—My First Jury (Fourth Release—Two Parts).
Mar. 11—Tender Memories (Fifth Release—Two Parts).
Mar. 18—A President's Answer (Sixth Release—Two Parts).
Mar. 25—Native State (Seventh Release—Two parts).
Apr. 1—Down the River (Eighth Release—Two Parts).
Apr. 8—The Slave Auction (Ninth Release—Two Parts).

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

Sure Fire Helps to Success

The CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO., publishers of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD and CINE MUNDIAL, the leading trade papers devoted to the Motion Picture Industry, are also publishers of the only library of practical text books dealing with the cinema art adapted to the every-day needs of those already engaged in the business or about to engage in it.

These text books, six in number, have been written by men carefully selected for their proven knowledge of the subjects to be covered, being almost without exception veteran members of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD'S editorial staff; entirely without exception these men are at present actively engaged in the motion picture business—they are not dreamers or theorists.

Each text book has been written to provide real help to the individual who reads it—consistent with the unswerving policy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD—a genuine "Dedication to Service."

Motion Picture Handbook

for Managers and Operators

By F. H. RICHARDSON

Third Edition

The most complete, exhaustive and instructive work ever published on the projection of moving pictures. Contains complete instruction with detail illustrations on all leading makes of American projection machines and practical information on wiring, lenses, carbon settings, screens, theatre equipment, etc., etc. 700 pages and over 300 illustrations, $4.00, postage paid.

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

A real help and business builder for exhibitors, theatre managers and owners. It tells all about theatre advertising, type, printing and paper, house programs, lobby displays, newspaper advertising, posters, heralds, etc., etc. 300 pages. $2.00, postage paid. P. S.—Mr. Sargent conducts a weekly department in this same style in the Moving Picture World, which contains many up-to-date business-getting ideas.

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG

An up-to-date work on the electrical equipment of picture theatres by a practical electrical expert. Contains chapters on electricity, D.C. and A.C. current, resistance and resistance devices, electric service, wiring, lighting, etc. Also contains practical suggestions and all necessary reference tables on wire sizes and capacity, weights and measures, heat units, etc., etc. 260 pages, illustrated. $2.50, postage paid.

Modern Theatre Construction

By EDWARD BERNARD KINSILA

Our newest book is one that will fill a long-felt want to those contemplating the building of a theatre. This is a very complete and exhaustive work by an architect with many years of practical experience in theatre and studio construction. Fully illustrated, with considerable data as to requirements, construction cost, building laws, etc. $3.00, postage paid.

Technique of the Photoplay

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Third Edition

Complete instruction in photoplay writing, including study of plots, how to obtain and how to develop; writing the synopsis; studio requirements; script preparation and marketing; technical terms; examples of actual scripts in facsimile typewriting, etc. 400 pages. $3.00, postage paid.

Screencraft

or the Making of a Photoplay

By LOUIS REEVES HARRISON

A comprehensive and thought-provoking treatment of the subject in a series of chapters, similar to a university course of lectures, by a successful writer of photoplays. Also contains a complete working scenario and several sample pages of manuscript. 150 pages; illustrated. $2.00, postage paid.

Any of These Publications Sent Promptly Upon Application to Chalmers Publishing Co.

Publishers of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill. — Wright & Callender Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Order from Nearest Office

M. P. HANDBOOK
MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY
PICTURE THEATRE ADVERTISING
MOD. THEAT. CONSTRUC.
TECH. OF PHOTOPLAY
SCREENCRAFT
(Check book or books desired)

Enclosed ..... Money Order will cover cost, as per prices in this adv.

Address.....

.....

.....

List of Current Film Release Dates

ON UNIVERSAL, MUTUAL, GOLDWYN, METRO AND TRIANGLE PROGRAMS

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Feb. 27—Number 13 (Topical)—02904.
Mar. 6—Number 14 (Topical)—02913.
Mar. 13—Number 15 (Topical)—02922.
Mar. 20—Number 16 (Topical)—02931.
Mar. 27—Number 17 (Topical)—02940.
Apr. 3—Number 18 (Topical)—02949.

L-KO.

Mar. 6—A Flyer in Folly (Two Parts—Comedy)—02912.
Mar. 13—Ambrose and His Widow (Two Parts—Comedy)—02921.
Mar. 20—Cooks and Crooks (Two Parts—Comedy)—02930.
Mar. 27—Sherlock Ambrose (Two Parts—Comedy)—02939.
Apr. 3—Gowns and Girls (Two Parts—Comedy)—02948.

NESTOR.

Feb. 18—Ship, Oy, Oy (Comedy).
Feb. 25—Watch Your Step (Comedy)—02902.
Mar. 4—At Sword's Point (Comedy)—02910.
Mar. 11—I'll Fix It (Comedy)—02920.
Mar. 18—Eddie Get the Mop (Comedy)—02929.
Mar. 25—Nothing But Nerve (Comedy)—02938.
Apr. 1—Pink Pajamas (Comedy)—02947.

UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION.

Feb. 18—The Flash of Fate (Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 25—Wild Women (Five Parts—Dr.)—02901.
Mar. 4—Nobody's Wife (Five Parts—Drama)—02910.
Mar. 11—Beauty in Chains (Five Parts—Dr.)—02919.
Mar. 18—Thieves' Gold (Five Parts—Drama)—02928.
Mar. 25—The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit (Five Parts—Drama)—02937.
Apr. 1—The Magic Eye (Five Parts—Drama)—02946.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Mar. 2—Issue No. 60 (Educational)—02905.
Mar. 9—Issue No. 61 (Educational)—02914.
Mar. 16—Issue No. 62 (Educational)—02923.
Mar. 23—Issue No. 63 (Educational)—02932.
Mar. 30—Issue 64 (Educational)—02941.
Apr. 6—Issue No. 65 (Educational)—02950.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Mar. 23—The Mystery Ship (Episode No. 17—"The Deadly Torpedo"—Two Parts Drama)—02934.
Mar. 23—The Bull's Eye (Episode No. 7—"Riding Wild"—Two Parts—Drama)—02935.
Mar. 23—Finley Nature Studies (No. 10—"Where Rolls the Oregon" and "Mosquito" (Educational Split Reel)—42936.
Mar. 30—The Mystery Ship (Episode No. 18—"The Fight in Mid-Air"—Two Parts—Drama)—02943.
Mar. 30—The Bull's Eye (Episode No. 8—"Dynamite"—Two Parts—Drama)—02944.
Mar. 30—Finley Nature Studies No. 11—"Wild Fowl Nurseries of Southern Oregon" (Educational) and "How Mr. Noodle Went to a Masque Ball" (Cartoon Comedy)—02945.
Apr. 6—The Bull's Eye (Episode No. 9—"The Flaming Crisis"—Two Parts—Drama)—02952.
Apr. 6—The Lion's Claws (Episode No. 1—"A Woman's Honor"—Two Parts—Drama)—02953.
Apr. 6—Finley Nature Studies No. 12—"A Day at Yellowstone Park" and "Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance—England" (Scenic)—02954.

UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS.

Feb. 16—Issue No. 40 (Topical).
Feb. 23—Issue No. 41 (Topical).
Mar. 2—Issue No. 42 (Topical)—02906.
Mar. 9—Issue No. 43 (Topical)—02918.
Mar. 16—Issue No. 44 Topical)—02924.
Mar. 23—Issue No. 45 (Topical)—02933.
Mar. 30—Issue No. 46 (Topical)—02942.
Apr. 6—Issue No. 47 (Topical)—02951.

Mutual Film Corp.

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Feb. 4—Issues No. 6 (Topical).
Feb. 11—Issue No. 7 (Topical).
Feb. 18—Issue No. 8 (Topical)—8W1.
Feb. 25—Issue No. 9 (Topical)—9W1.

STRAND.

Jan. 15—Burglars (Comedy).
Jan. 22—Their Little Kid (Comedy).
Jan. 29—Somebody's Widow (Comedy).
Feb. 5—Her Friend Brown (Comedy).
Feb. 12—Three Times and Out (Comedy).
Feb. 19—Miss Cinderella (Comedy)—8CST1.
Feb. 26—Up in the Air (Comedy)—CCST1.
Mar. 5—Waltzing Around (Comedy)—10CST-1.
Mar. 12—Finishing Mary (Comedy)—11CST-1.
Mar. 19—His Quaker Girl (Comedy)—12-CST-1.
Mar. 26—Up She Goes (Comedy)—13 C S T 1.
Apr. 2—She Couldn't Grow Up (Comedy)—14C-ST-1.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION.

Jan. 28—Beauty and the Rogue (American—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 4—Who Loved Him Best? (Goodrich—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 11—Jilted Janet (American—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 18—My Wife (Frohman—Five Parts—Drama)—8FAM5.
Feb. 25—The Midnight Trail (American—Five Parts—Drama)—9FR5.
Mar. 4—Powers That Prey (American—Five Parts—Drama)—10-FM-5.
Mar. 11—Ann's Finish (American—Five Parts—Drama)—11-F-F-5.
Mar. 18—The Girl and the Judge (Frohman—Five Parts—Drama)—12-F-T-5.
Mar. 25—No release this date.
Apr. 1—A Bit of Jade (American—Five Parts—Drama)—14-F-M-5.

MUTUAL.

Mar. 3—Screen Telegram (Topical)—1-T-1.
Mar. 6—Screen Telegram (Topical)—2-T-1.
Mar. 10—Screen Telegram (Topical)—3-T-1.
Mar. 13—Screen Telegram (Topical)—4T1.
Mar. 15—Screen Telegram (Topical)—5T1.
Mar. 20—Screen Telegram (Topical)—6T1.
Mar. 24—Screen Telegram (Topical)—7T1.
Mar. 27—Screen Telegram (Topical)—8 T 1.
Mar. 31—Screen Telegram (Topical)—9 T 1.
Apr. 3—Screen Telegram (Topical)—10-T-1.
Apr. 7—Screen Telegram (Topical)—11-T-1.

Goldwyn Distributing Corp.

GOLDWYN FEATURES.

Dec. 2—The Auction Block (Eight parts—Drama).
Dec. 16—The Cinderella Man (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Dec. 30—Thais (Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—Fields of Honor (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Jan. 28—Dodging a Million (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Feb. 10—Our Little Wife (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Feb. 24—The Beloved Traitor (Six Parts—Drama).
May. 10—The Floor Below (Six Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Mar. 24—The Splendid Sinner (Six Parts—Drama).
Apr. 7—The Danger Game (Six Parts—Drama).

GOLDWYN SPECIALS.

The Manx-Man (Seven parts—Drama).
For the Freedom of the World (Seven parts—Drama).

Metro Pictures Corporation.

METRO PICTURES CORP.

Feb. 4—Under Suspicion (Five parts—Dr.).
Feb. 11—Broadway Bill (Yorke—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 18—A Weaver of Dreams (Rolfe—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 25—Revenge (Rolfe—Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 4—The Shell Game (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Brass Check (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 18—The Claim (Rolfe—Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 25—Breakers Ahead (Rolfe—Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Landloper (Yorke—Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—Social Hypocrites (Five Parts—Drama).

METRO SPECIALS.

Nov. 15—Draft 258 (Seven parts—Drama).
Dec. 10—Blue Jeans (Seven parts—Drama).
January—The Legion of Death (Rolfe—Seven parts—Drama).
January—Revelation (Seven parts—Drama).
Lest We Forget (Eight Parts—Drama).

METRO COMEDIES.

Jan. 14—Why Henry Left Home (Drew).
Jan. 21—Their First Love (Drew).
Jan. 28—Under the Influence (Drew).
Feb. 4—Help Wanted (Drew).
Feb. 11—The Bright Lights Dimmed (Drew).
Feb. 18—After Henry (Drew).
Feb. 25—His Generosity (Drew).
Mar. 4—Before and After Taking (Drew).
Mar. 11—His Strength of Mind (Drew).
Mar. 18—Special Today (Drew).
Mar. 25—When a Man's Married (Drew).
Apr. 1—Gas Logic (Drew).
Apr. 8—A Youthful Affair (Drew).

Triangle Film Corporation.

TRIANGLE PRODUCTIONS.

Mar. 3—Shoes that Danced (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 10—The Hard Rock Breed (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Sea Panther (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 17—Faith Endurin' (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 17—The Answer (Seven Parts—Drama).
Mar. 24—Nancy Comes Home (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 24—Innocent's Progress (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 31—Unfaithful (Two Parts—Drama) and The Marriage Bubble (Three Parts—Drama) (Split Reel Feature).
Mar. 31—The Vortex (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 7—The Love Brokers (Five Parts—Dr).
Apr. 7—The Boss of Lazy "Y" (Five Parts—Drama).

TRIANGLE KOMEDY.

Mar. 3—A Discord in a Flat.
Mar. 3—His Hidden Shame.
Mar. 10—Wives and Worries.
Mar. 10—She Didn't Do It.
Mar. 17—A Social Shock Absorber.
Mar. 17—Caught With the Goods.
Mar. 24—Fork Over.
Mar. 24—A Janitor's Fall.
Mar. 31—A Good Elk.
Mar. 31—Her Bohemian Party.

KEYSTONE COMEDY.

Feb. 3—A Sea Serpent's Desire (Two parts).
Feb. 10—Wronged by Mistake (Two Parts).
Feb. 17—His Double Life (Two Parts).
Feb. 24—A Tell Tale Shirt (Two Parts).
Mar. 3—A Lady Killer's Doom (Two Parts).
Mar. 10—Did She Do Wrong? (Two Parts).
Mar. 17—Mud (Two Parts).
Mar. 24—A Safe Danger (Two Parts).
Mar. 31—A Playwright's Wrong (Two Parts).

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

THE THOS. CUSACK COMPANY

TAKES PLEASURE IN ANNOUNCING THE APPOINTMENT

OF

EDWARD HARDIN

AS

MANAGER OF THE MOTION PICTURE DEPARTMENT TO DIRECT NATIONAL CAMPAIGNS COMPRISING BILL POSTING, PAINTED BULLETINS and ELECTRIC SIGNS.

MR. HARDIN'S HEADQUARTERS WILL BE AT THE

New York Office - - Flat Iron Building

Telephone "2346 Gramercy"

SILVERTIP

Illuminate Your Screen With Artificial Daylight

A Simple Change of Carbons Does the Trick

The use of alternating current for motion picture projection has become very popular since the introduction of

WHITE A. C. SPECIAL MOTION PICTURE CARBONS

The use of the artificial daylight given by the White A. C. Specials necessitates absolutely no change in equipment. Simply a change of carbons, using these new carbons in the place of the old A. C. carbons and using the old lamphouse, lenses and screen.

The White A. C. Special carbons have been used in all parts of the country by critical operators and have met the requirements so exactly that they are now considered as standard. Claims made for these carbons are absolutely true, not a bit exaggerated; they give a pure white light, the nearest approach to daylight of any screen illuminant, and a quiet arc. If you have been getting poor results on alternating current, try these carbons and compare results with the old, roaring A. C. arc.

White A. C. Specials Are for Alternating Current Only.

FOR DIRECT CURRENT PROJECTION

The progressive exhibitor projects pictures that are distinct, that are without a flicker and that are not marred by negative ghosts, by using the

SILVERTIP NEGATIVE CARBON

The direct current carbon which gives the best light known to the industry.

Write for further information.

National Carbon Company, Inc.
Cleveland, Ohio

List of Current Film Release Dates

GREATER VITAGRAPH PROGRAM, FEATURE AND STATE RIGHT RELEASES

Greater Vitagraph Inc.

VITAGRAPH FEATURES.

Mar. 4—The Song of the Soul (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Desired Woman (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—An American Live Wire (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—The Home Trail (Five Parts—Dr.).
Apr. 1—Little Miss No-Account (Five Parts—Drama).

BIG V COMEDIES.

Mar. 4—Jumping Jacks and Jail Birds.
Mar. 11—Meddlers and Moonshiners.
Mar. 18—Tramps and Traitors.
Mar. 25—Stripes and Stumbles.
Apr. 1—Sleuths and Slickers.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES.

Feb. 4—Surprising Husband.
Feb. 11—Coals for the Fire.
Feb. 18—Sweets of the Sour.
Feb. 25—Their Godson.

DREW COMEDIES.

Mar. 11—Their First Quarrel.
Mar. 18—A Telegraphic Tangle.
Mar. 25—His Wife Knew About It.
Apr. 1—Following the Scent.

VITAGRAPH SERIAL.

Vengeance and the Woman.

Mar. 4—Episode No. 11—The Cavern of Terror—(Two Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Episode 12—The Desperate Chance—(Two Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Episode No. 13—"Sands of Doom" (Two Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—Episode No. 14—"The Hand of Fate" (Two Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—Episode No. 15—"The Reckoning"—Two Parts—Drama).

FAVORITE FILM FEATURES.

Feb. 18—The Mischief Maker (Two Parts—Drama) and Sonny Jim in Search of a Mother (One Reel—Comedy).
Feb. 25—Old Reliable (Two Parts—Drama) and "Stenographer Troubles" (One Reel—Comedy).
Mar. 4—An Officer and a Gentleman (Two Parts — Drama) and "Unlucky Louis" (One Reel Comedy).

Fox Film Corporation

FOX SPECIAL FEATURES.

Feb. 17—The Moral Law (Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 24—Six Shooter Andy (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Mar. 3—The Girl With the Champagne Eyes (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Debt of Honor (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 17—The Devil's Wheel (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 24—A Daughter of France (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 31—The Kid Is Klever (Five Parts—Comedy—Drama).
Apr. 7—A Camouflage Kiss (Five Parts—Drama).

FOX-LEHRMAN COMEDIES.

Jan. 20—Son of a Gun (Two parts).

FOX STANDARD PICTURES.

Feb. 3—The Forbidden Path (Six parts—Dr.).
Feb. 10—Les Miserables (Eight Parts—Dr.).
Feb. 24—American Buds (Seven Parts).
Mar. 17—Woman and the Law (Seven Parts—Drama).
Mar. 24—Rough and Ready (Six Parts—Comedy-Drama).

FOX SUNSHINE COMEDIES.

Jan. 6—Shadows of Her Pest (Two parts).
Feb. 3—Hungry Lions in a Hospital.
Feb. 17—Are Married Policemen Safe?
Mar. 3—A Husband's Wife (Two Parts).
Mar. 15—A Self-Made Lady (Two Parts).

MUTT AND JEFF ANIMATED CARTOONS.

Mar. 24—The Decoy (Half Reel).
Mar. 31—Back to the Balkans (Half Reel).

Feature Releases

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

Feb. 18—Her Body in Bond (Five Parts—Dr.).
Feb. 25—The Rough Lover (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 4—The Girl in the Dark (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Hungry Eyes (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Brace Up (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—The Wine Girl (Five Parts—Drama).

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT

Empty Pockets.
Charlie Chaplin's Forthcoming Comedies.
The Sign Invisible.
Tarzan of the Apes (National Film Corp.).
Fall of the Romanoffs (Brenon Productions, Inc.—Eight Parts).
A Dog's Life (Charlie Chaplin Picture).

Petrova Pictures Company.

The Daughter of Destiny (First Production—Seven Parts).
The Light Within (Second Production—Seven Parts).
The Life Mask (Third Production—Seven Parts).
Tempered Steel (Fourth Production—Seven Parts).

W. W. HODKINSON CORP.

(Paralta Plays.)

Jan. 15—His Robe of Honor (Seven parts—Dr.).
Feb. 15—The Turn of a Card (Seven Parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—Within the Cup (Seven Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 15—Humdrum Brown (Six Parts—Dr.).

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

The Man Without a Country (Six parts—Dr.).
The Co-Respondent (Six parts—Drama).
The Price of a Good Time (Seven parts—Dr.).
The Doctor and the Woman (Seven Parts—Dr.).
The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin.

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM.

Jan. 1—Uneasy Money (Essanay).
Jan. 10—Brown of Harvard (Selig).
Jan. 25—I, Mary MacLane (Essanay).
Feb. 11—The Unbeliever (Edison).
Feb. 25—Ruggles of Red Gap (Essanay).
A Pair of Sixes (Essanay—Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
The Curse of Iku (Essanay—Seven Parts—Dr.).

Montgomery Flagg One Reel Comedies. "Girls You Know" (Made by Edison).

Jan. 30—Superstitious Girl (3d release).
Feb. 13—The Artist's Model (4th release).
Feb. 27—The Matinee Girl (5th release).
March 13—The Spoiled Girl (6th release).

Essanay.

Mar. 1—Broncho Billy's Leap.
Mar. 8—Broncho Billy and the Rattler.
Mar. 15—Broncho Billy's Close Call.
Mar. 22—Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter.

SELECT PICTURES.

Dec.—Shirley Kaye (Five Parts—Drama).
Dec.—The Honeymoon (Five Parts—Drama).
Jan.—The Marionettes (Five Parts—Drama).
Jan.—Ghosts of Yesterday (Six Parts—Drama).
Jan.—The Studio Girl (Five Parts—Drama).
Jan.—Woman and Wife (Five Parts—Drama).
March—The House of Glass (Five Parts—Dr.).
March—By Right of Purchase (Six Parts—Dr.).
March—The Shuttle (Five Parts—Drama).
March—The Knife (Five Parts—Drama).

Special Releases.

Over There (Six Parts—Drama).
The Lone Wolf (Five Parts—Drama).
The Barrier (Seven Parts—Drama).
The Wild Girl (Five Parts—Drama).

WORLD PICTURES.

Mar. 4—Spurs of Sybil (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Wasp (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Wanted, A Mother (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 25—The Way Out (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Cross Bearer (Seven Parts).
Apr. 8—The Witch Woman (Five Parts—Dr.).

State Right Releases

ADVANCED M. P. CORP.

1493 Broadway, New York.

The Woman Eternal (Seven Parts—Drama).

AMERICAN-JAPAN PICTURES CORP.

15 William Street, New York.

The Land of the Rising Sun (10,000 feet—Issued complete or in series of 2,000 or 5,000 feet).

ARROW FILM CORPORATION.

Times Building, New York.

The Deemster.
The Eyes of the World.
Souls Redeemed.
Ramona.
Persuasive Peggy.
Weavers of Life.
To-Day (Seven Parts—Drama—Pathe).
Mad Lover (Six Parts—Drama—Pathe).

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

1600 Broadway, New York.

The Eagle's Wings.
Hell Morgan's Girl.
Mother O' Mine.

CENTURY COMEDIES.

1600 Broadway, New York.

Balloonatics.
Automaniacs.
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.
Her Bareback Career.
She Did Her Bit.
Oh, Baby!
What's the Matter with Father?

CHRISTIE FILM CORP.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Betty Wakes Up.
Their Seaside Tangle (Comedy).
One Good Turn (Comedy).
Thirty Days.
Nearly a Papa.
Cupid's Camouflage.
Mum's the Word.
The Night of His Life.
In the Dark.
Circumstantial Evidence.

W. H. CLIFFORD PHOTOFILM CO.

17 West 44th Street, New York.

Denny from Ireland (First Release of the Shorty Hamilton Series—Five Parts—Drama).
The Snail (Second of the Shorty Hamilton Series—Five Parts).

COMMONWEALTH PICTURES CORP.

Chicago, Ill.

The Frozen Warning (Drama).

CREST PICTURES CORP.

Times Building, New York.

The Lust of the Ages.
A Grain of Dust.

CRYSTAL PHOTOPLAYS CORP.

220 S. State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Mother Love and the Law (Drama).

EBONY FILM CORP.

Wrong All Around (One Reel—Comedy).
Some Baby (One Reel—Comedy).
Ghosts (One Reel—Comedy).
The Porters (One Reel—Comedy).

EPOCH FILM CORP.

Longacre Building, New York.

Birth of a Nation.
Intolerance.

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

The Eyes of the World

follow nightly the swift rush of events across the motion picture screen. Are those eyes tired from gazing at blurred images? Not in your house, if you use

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

They make pictures easy to watch, because they give perfect clearness, even to the edge of the screen, and make the most out of every detail of the film. As essential to good pictures as is the film itself.

Booklet on request. Let us quote on your requirements.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
566 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.

New York Washington Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), Microscopes, Stereo-Prism Binoculars and other High-Grade Optical Products.

SPEER

THE CARBON WITH

A REPUTATION

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS
for A.C. Work

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS
for D.C. Work

Have Proved Their Worth and Value

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

Full Information Supplied By Your Dealer
"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

MANUFACTURED BY

SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

WENT WILD O ER

JESTER SUPER COMEDIES

FEATURING

TWEDE-DAN

The International Mirth Maker

The following communication is from
R. M. (Bob) Savini of Atlanta, Ga.

I have just received a communication from Capt. Coon, 112th Field Artillery, Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., in which he states that he ran the first JESTER COMEDY, in the Camp, and the boys went wild over it. He is very well pleased with the first release and has booked all of them. Also wish to state that I have booked the Strand, Birmingham, Ala.; Alhambra, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Strand, Spartanburg, S. C.; Alamo, Gadsden, Ala.; Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala.; Folly, Savannah, Ga.; Arcade, Jacksonville, Fla.; and the Savoy, at Birmingham, Ala.—and I have only just started.

FEBRUARY
"The Recruit"

APRIL
"All 'Fur' Her"

MARCH
"His Golden Romance"

MAY
"The Wrong Flat"

ALL TWO PARTS—RELEASED MONTHLY

Booked on the "SHOW YOU" policy Through the following Exchanges:

For State of New York and Northern New Jersey—Photo Drama Co. (Ben Title, rep.), 220 West 42d St., New York City, N. Y.
For Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey—Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.
For Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia—United Business Association of Pennsylvania, Inc., 224 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.
For State of Michigan—The Strand Features, 94 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.
For Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin—Unity Photoplays Co., 207 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
For Minneapolis, Minn.—Standard Film Exchange.
For Omaha, Neb.—Standard Film Exchange.
For St. Louis, Mo.—Standard Film Exchange.
For Kansas City, Mo.—Standard Film Exchange.
For Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah and Southern Idaho—Swanson & Nolan Supply Co., Denver, Colo.
For California, Nevada, Arizona and Hawaiian Islands—Western F. F. Co., 180 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
For South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee—R. M. Savini, 63 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga.
For North Carolina—Eltabran Film Co., Charlotte, N. C.
For Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas—Foursquare Pictures, Inc., 1911½ Commerce St., Dallas, Tex.
For Louisiana and Mississippi—Foursquare Pictures, Inc., New Orleans, La.
For the New England States—R. D. Marson Attraction Co., 26 Piedmont St., Boston, Mass.

Foreign Rep's: ARROW FILM CORP., Times Bldg., New York

A few territories still open. Call or write for terms.

JESTER COMEDY CO.
220 W 42nd Street, New York
Telephone: Bryant 7691

List of Current Film Release Dates

EXHIBITORS' OPERATING CORP.
51 East 42d Street, New York.
The City of Purple Dreams.

EXPORT AND IMPORT FILM CO. INC.
729 Seventh Ave., New York.
Why the Bolsheviki.

FRANCIS FORD PRODUCING CO.
Berlin Via America.

FORT PITT FILM CORPORATION.
Lyceum Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.
The Italian Battlefront.
The Italian Stand on the Piave.

FOURSQUARE PICTURES.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
The Fringe of Society (Seven Parts—Drama).
The Eagle's Eye (Episode No. 1—"The Hidden Death"—Two parts—Drama).
The Eagle's Eye (Episode No. 2—"The Naval Ball Conspiracy"—Two parts—Drama).
The Eagle's Eye (Episode No. 3—"The Plot Against the Fleet"—Two parts—Drama).
The Cast Off (Thomas H. Ince Production).

FRANCO-AMERICAN FILM CORP.
126 West 46th Street, New York.
Birth of Democracy.

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORP.
Times Building, New York.
God's Man.
My Own United States.

FRATERNITY FILMS, INC.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
Devil's Playground (Seven Parts—Drama).

GAUMONT CO.
Flushing, L. I.
Gaumont News—Released every Tuesday.
Gaumont Graphic—Released every Friday.

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.
Longacre Building, New York.
Mother (Six Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).
The Warrior (Seven Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).
The Liar (Six Parts—Drama—General Enterprise Feature).
Crucible of Life (Drama).

JESSE J. GOLDBURG.
1105 Times Bldg., N. Y. City.
The Chinese Musketeer.
Feet and Defeat.
Cheerful Liars.
Fate and Fortune.
Parson Pepp.
The Ring and the Ringer.

GRAPHIC FILM CORP.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
Moral Suicide (Seven Parts—Drama).

HILLER & WILK.
Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman.
(The Following Are Keystone-Mack Sennett Comedies.)
The Village Scandal.
Saved by Wireless.
Fatty and the Broadway Stars.
Dizzy Heights and Darling Hearts.
His Wild Oats.
Waiters' Ball.
His First False Step.
Ambrose Cup of Woe.
The Following Are Frank Keenan Productions.
The Coward.
Stepping Stones.
The Phantom.
Honor Thy Name.
The Thoroughbred.
Jim Grimsby's Boy.
The Following Are Norma Talmadge Productions.
The Missing Link.
Martha's Vindication.
Children in the House.
Going Straight.
The Devil's Needle.
The Social Secretary.
Fifty Fifty.
The Following Are Wm. S. Hart Productions.
The Disciple.
Between Men.
Hell's Hinges.
The Aryan.
The Primal Lure.
Captive God.
The Patriot.
The Dawnmaker.
The Following Are Douglas Fairbanks Productions.
The Lamb.
Double Trouble.
His Picture in the Papers.
The Habit of Happiness.
The Good Bad Man.
Reggie Mixes In.
Flirting With Fate.
The Half Breed.

IVAN FILM PRODUCTION.
130 West 46th Street, New York.
One Law for Both.
Babbling Tongues (Six Parts—Drama).
Married in Name Only (Six Parts—Drama).
Sins of Ambition.
Two Men and a Woman.
Human Clay.
Life or Honor.

JESTER COMEDY CO.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
(Featuring Twede Dan.)
February—The Recruit (Two Parts).
March—His Golden Romance (Two Parts).
April—All "Fur" Her (Two Parts).
May—The Wrong Flat (Two Parts).

FRANK A. KEENEY,
1493 Broadway, New York.
A Romance of the Underworld.

KING BEE FILMS CORP.
729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y. City.
Feb. 1—The Stranger.
Feb. 15—His Day Out.
Mar. 1—The Rogue.
Mar. 15—The Orderly.
Apr. 1—The Scholar.
Apr. 15—The Messenger.

KLOTZ & SREIMER.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
Whither Thou Goest.

MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY, INC.
601 Candler Bldg., New York.
My Four Years in Germany.

ORO PICTURES CORP.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
Who Knows? (Six Parts—Drama).
Loyalty (Drama).

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS, INC.
Flatiron Building, New York.
Zongar (Drama).

PYRAMID COMEDIES.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
In and Out (Two Parts).
Love and Lunch (Two Parts).
Beach Birds (Two Parts).
Beauties and Bombs (Two Parts).

HARRY RAVER.
1402 Broadway, New York.
The Hand of the Hun (Four Parts—Novelty).
The Master Crook.

RENOWNED PICTURES CORP.
1600 Broadway, New York.
The Public Defender.
Naked Hands (Five Parts—Drama).
20,000 Leagues Under the Sea.

WILLIAM N. SELIG.
58 E. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
The Garden of Allah.
Beware of Strangers (Eight Parts—Drama).

FRANK J. SENG.
Times Building, New York.
Parentage (Drama).

S. & S. PHOTOPLAYS, INC.
1476 Broadway, New York.
Redemption (Six Parts—Drama).

ERNEST SHIPMAN ENTERPRISES.
17 West 44th Street, New York.
(See W. H. Clifford Photo Play Co.)

STATE RIGHT DISTRIBUTORS, INC.
Carmen of the Klondike (Seven Parts—Drama).

STERLING PICTURES CORPORATION.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
The Cloud (Five Parts—Drama).
The God of Little Children (Five Parts—Dr.).
A Mother's Ordeal (Five Parts—Drama).
Pride and the Devil (Six Parts—Drama).
Miss Deception (Five Parts—Drama).
The Law That Failed (Five Parts—Drama).
Great Bradley Mystery (Five Parts—Drama).
The Mystic Hour (Six Parts—Drama).
When You and I Were Young (Five Parts—Drama).
The Golden God (Five Parts—Drama).
(The Following Are Cartoon Comedies, Each 500 Feet in Length.)
Slick and Tricky.
Doctor Bunny's Zoo.
The Old Forty-Niner.
Mr. Coon.
Mose Is Cured.
Zippy's Insurance.
Zippy's Pets.
The Unknown.
Peg of the Sea (Drama).
I Believe (Cosmofotofilm—Seven Parts—Dr.).
Hypocrites (George Loane Tucker).
The Natural Law (France Films).
The Hypocrites.

SUBMARINE FILM CO.
1476 Broadway, New York.
The Submarine Eye.

TRIUMPH FILM CORP.
1476 Broadway, New York.
The Libertine.

U. S. EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CO.
Times Building, New York.
The Belgian.
Those Who Pay.
The Zeppelin's Last Raid.
Just a Woman (Steger Production).

VICTORY FILMS MFG. CO.
218 West 42d Street, New York.
The Triumph of Venus.

WESTERN IMPORT FILM CO.
71 West 23d Street, New York.
Mickey (Seven Parts).

W. H. PRODUCTIONS.
71 West 23d Street, New York.
(The Following Are Multiple Reel W. S. Hart Subjects, Released in Order Listed.)
"The Two Gun Man," in "The Bargain (Six Parts—Drama).
The Bandit and the Preacher (Five Parts—Drama).
The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five Parts—Dr.).
The Two-Gun Man in The Bargain (Six parts—Drama).
The Bandit and the Preacher (Five parts—Drama).
The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five parts—Dr.).
(The Following Are Two-Reel Hart Productions. Released in Order Listed.)
Dakota Dan.
Double Crossed.
The Last Card.
A Knight of the Trail.
A Square Deal.
Horns and Hoofs.
The Bad Man.
The Fugitive.
A Gentleman from Blue Gulch.
The Silent Stranger.
The Marked Deck.
(The Following Are Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies, Each Two Reels in Length.)
The Small Town Bully.
Friendly Enemies.
His Diving Beauty.
A Polished Villain.
His Bitter Half.
The Dynamiter.
A Desperate Scoundrel.
Soaked and Scorched.
A Farm Yard Romeo.
The Hula-Hula Dance.
(The Following Are Bessie Barriscale Productions.)
Satan's Pawn.

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

DU PONT AMERICAN INDUSTRIES

Seats That Stay Beautiful

Here is a theatre seat that will be beautiful after years of hard service because it is covered with Du Pont Fabrikoid, which does not wear shabby and is absolutely unaffected by water, grease, stains, dust or perspiration.

Du Pont Fabrikoid Co.
Wilmington, Del.
Canadian Factory and Office
New Toronto, Ont.

No. 248
Made by Wisconsin Cabinet & Panel Co.
105 W. 40th St.
New York

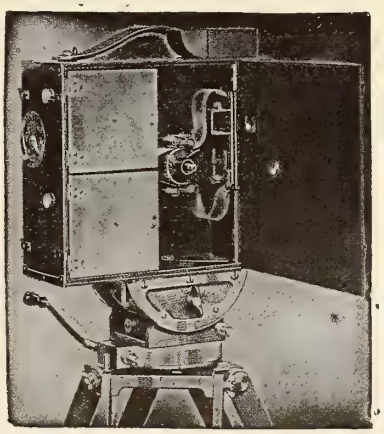
DU PONT

BIG ADVANCE IN M. P. PHOTOGRAPHY

Six great scientific improvements make the Universal Motion Picture Camera the choice of expert cameramen everywhere. Wonder-value at less than half standard motion picture camera prices! You want it.

UNIVERSAL MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

See how it increases your speed, improves framing, film transmission, focusing, eliminates static, etc. New automatic dissolve ready.



WRITE FOR CATALOG

Burke & James, Inc.
240 East Ontario St.
Chicago

Makers of Rexo M. P. Film

LABORATORIES and STUDIO

ERBOGRAPH COMPANY

LUDWIG G. B. ERB, President

Producers of
MOTION PICTURE FILMS

COMMERCIAL DEVELOPING and PRINTING

Telephone Audubon 3716

203 to 211 West 146th St., New York City

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs $4.80 less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS.....$1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
516 Fifth Avenue, New York

.....
.....
.....

Please fill in the name of your Theatre.....
Cut Out and Mail To-day—Now!

$7,000 MEISEL PRESS, $3,500

A fast specialty press capable of turning out 2,000,000 "movie" tickets per day. A fine opportunity to engage in a profitable line at a great saving in initial investment. Demonstration by appointment.

Keller Printing Company, 297-309 LAFAYETTE ST. NEW YORK CITY

THE CINEMA

NEWS AND PROPERTY GAZETTE

30 Gerrard Street, W. I. London, England

Has the quality circulation of the trade in Great Britain and the Dominions. All Official Notices and News from the ASSOCIATION to its members are published exclusively in this journal.

Yearly Rate—Postpaid, Weekly, $7.25
Sample copy and advertising rates on request.

Appointed by Agreement Dated 7/8/14 THE OFFICIAL ORGAN of THE CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN & IRELAND, LTD

THE CARBON THAT CHANGES A. C. TO D. C.

Noiseless operation, pure white light and a steady burning, has made the new National White A. C. Special Moving Picture Carbon the leader in the field.
It is absolutely unnecessary for you to invest a single cent in extra equipment to obtain excellent, low cost projection on alternating current.

A TRIAL ORDER WILL CONVINCE YOU

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade
300-302 Mallers Bldg. 5 S. Wabash Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre

WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

The film that first made motion pictures practical is easily identifiable by the words

"EASTMAN"

AND

"KODAK"

on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

CINE MUNDIAL

The Spanish Edition of the Moving Picture World
IS GROWING GROWING

GROWING BIGGER EVER BIGGER

HEED!
—And Increased Profits Will Be Yours.

THE EXPORT MARKET CALLS INSISTENTLY!

Send That Advertisement in To-day!

RATES ON APPLICATION

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY, 516 Fifth Ave., New York

Foreign Buyers

This old and well established concern, wishing to extend facilities to the foreign buyers in their relations with American Film Producers, has recently opened a special department for the purchasing and exporting of Moving Picture Films. Through this special department it will be possible for you, on a very reasonable basis, to purchase your films and other articles in the moving picture line to much better advantage than could be done directly by yourself.

For this very complete service, backed by our thorough knowledge of American conditions, you pay us only a commission.

Saving Owing to the fact that our purchases are very large, we can give to you the benefit of the lowest prices. We are holding out no profit for ourselves on the purchase prices, whatever we save is for our customers.

Satisfaction Our main object is to satisfy our customers in every possible way, not only to be able to save money for him, but to buy the best the market affords; and keep him posted regularly as to what is going on in the film industry as regards new productions.

Shipments In connection with the film department you will also have the advantages of our well operated shipping department, thus you are assured of the careful and proper handling of all goods, which means for you Prompt Delivery.

Confidence You will deal with a concern with unquestionable financial standing.

REFERENCES:

National City Bank, New York City
Royal Bank of Canada, New York City
Mechanics & Metals National Bank, New York City
State Street Trust Co., Boston, Mass., U. S. A.

ROJAS RANDALL & CO., Inc.
No. 26 Beaver Street, New York City

Cremona

Solo Theatre Orchestra-Organs

The instrument with the human voices.

SOLO STYLE "O"

The exclusive features of the CREMONA create a permanent satisfaction with both manager and patrons.

Reduces the overhead for music.

The Marquette Piano Co.
General Office and Factory:
1608-24 South Canal St., Chicago

Emergol

METOL'S RIVAL
THE PERFECT FILM DEVELOPER
WRITE
Franklin Import and Export Co.
220 BROADWAY (INC.) NEW YORK

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention the MOVING PICTURE WORLD

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30% to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W74

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

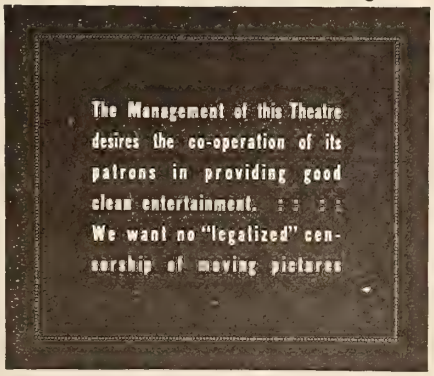
80 Fifth Avenue, New York Phone—Chelsea 3227
425 Ashland Block, Chicago Phone—Randolph 2003

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

Educate Your Audience to Help Fight Censorship

Introducing a bill providing for the Censorship of Moving Pictures is a favorite indoor pastime in legislative halls throughout the country. Eternal vigilance is the price of the Exhibitor's mere safety if not his success.

Presented in the proper manner, the Censorship of Moving Pictures is just as obnoxious to the Exhibitor's audiences as it is to the Exhibitor. And public opinion aroused in behalf of moving pictures and against their unfair and discriminatory control is the surest weapon to defeat Censorship.



The Management of this Theatre desires the co-operation of its patrons in providing good clean entertainment.
We want no "legalized" censorship of moving pictures

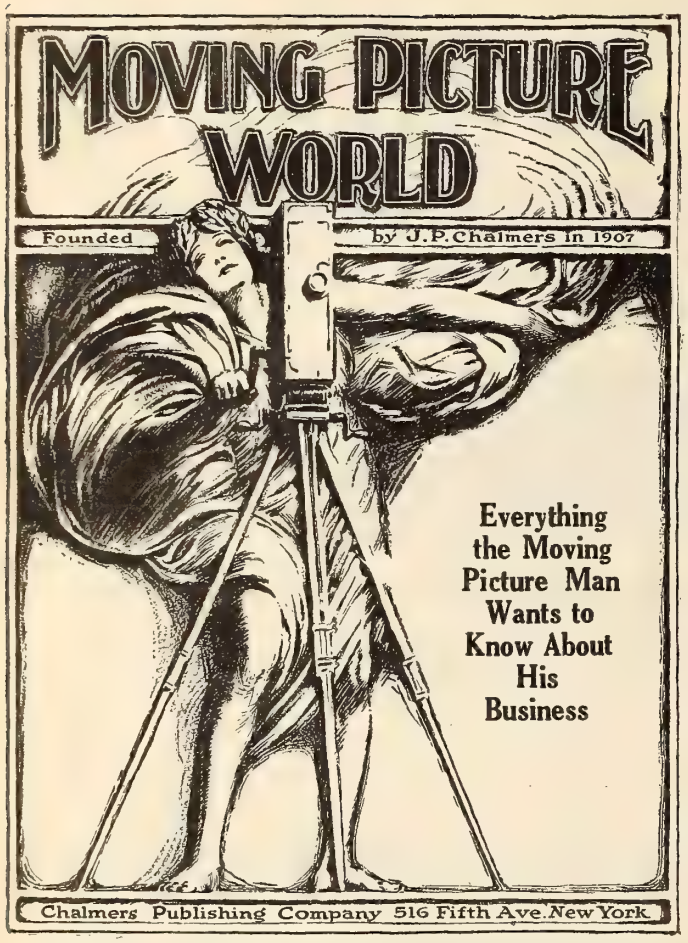
We have prepared a series of nine different stereopticon slides which crystallize the argument against Censorship; one of the slides is shown herewith.

These slides shown repeatedly in any theatre cannot fail to influence public opinion in that locality against Censorship. They will line up the general public on the side of the Exhibitor.

You Ought to Be Showing Them Now! Legislatures Everywhere Are Convening

Set of Nine Slides, carefully packed, will be sent postpaid on receipt of $1.00

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
516 Fifth Avenue, New York City



MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907
Everything the Moving Picture Man Wants to Know About His Business
Chalmers Publishing Company 516 Fifth Ave. New York

THE BLUE BOOK OF THE MOVING PICTURE INDUSTRY

Write and ask us why—
If you don't believe it—
Or, better still—
Don't take our word for it—

Just ask any person who has been actively engaged in the moving picture industry for a year, or even six months.

You'll find it a well established fact that to do business with the MOVING PICTURE WORLD goes a long way toward establishing you as a figure of commanding importance in your field.

Every person commercially interested in moving pictures reads it.

Its advertisers are the most trustworthy and dependable purveyors to the trade.

Its best friends are the foremost manufacturers, distributors and exhibitors in the business—

For none but the best type of individuals in the industry can be friendly with the MOVING PICTURE WORLD'S staunch and unswerving policy of square, honest dealing in every department of the business as a means to its surest and most permanent advancement.

REGISTER IN "THE BLUE BOOK OF THE MOVING PICTURE INDUSTRY" BY IDENTIFYING YOURSELF WITH THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

Send us your subscription today and read carefully each issue published.

Use our advertising columns for your trade announcements.

SUPREME SERVICE

UTE

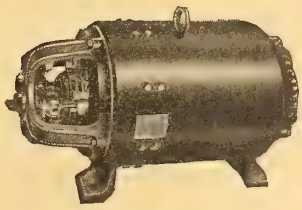
PROMPT SHIPMENT

DISTRIBUTES

HALLBERG

TWIN UNIT

MOTOR GENERATORS



Give independent ampere control for each Motion Picture Machine, adjustable with controller in front of operator.

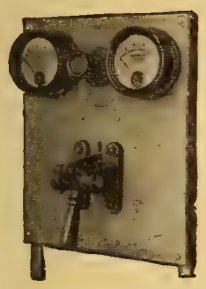
So arranged that the combined capacity of both motor generators can be delivered to either machine when more brilliant light is desired on the screen.

HALLBERG "Twin Unit" gives constant D. C. service and does away with the installation of the usual A. C. Emergency Transformer.

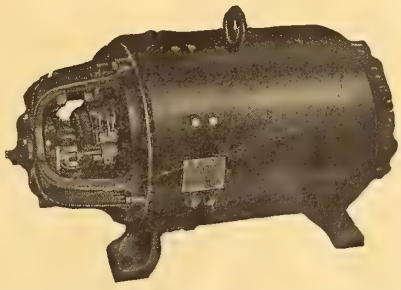
HALLBERG "Twin Unit" is made in 20 to 40 ampere size, adjustable from 20 to 80 amperes or in 30 to 70 ampere size, adjustable from 30 to 120 amperes.

OR

HALLBERG Motor Generator



made in two sizes with two lamp switchboard complete, permitting one lamp adjustable from 30-70 amp. or two arcs at 40 amp. each for smaller size or 50-120 amp. for one arc or 60-70 amp. each, for each of 2 arcs for the larger size.



Write for FREE No. 100 Catalogue

EDISON MAZDA "C" LAMPS
REGULAR AND PROJECTION TYPE

NATIONAL CARBONS
Give Brilliant, Steady Light

Power's Cameragraph The Better Projector

VELVET GOLD FIBRE SCREEN
Is the Last Word in Projection Screens

ACME PORTABLE PROJECTOR
For the Director's Private Office

"EVERYTHING FOR THE M. P. THEATRE EXCEPT THE FILM"

BRANCH OFFICES:

New York, N. Y.—729 Seventh Ave.
Boston, Mass.—28 Piedmont St.
Philadelphia, Pa.—1233 Vine St.
Pittsburgh, Pa.—940 Penn Ave.
Cincinnati, O.—115 W. 7th St.
Detroit, Mich.—57 E. Elizabeth St.
Omaha, Neb.—13th and Harney Sts.
Minneapolis, Minn.—16 N. 7th St.
Cleveland, O.—Columbia Bldg.
Chicago, Ill.—154 W. Lake St.
Kansas City, Mo.—K. C. Machine & Supply Co., Inc., 813 Walnut St.

United Theatre Equipment Corporation

H. T. EDWARDS, Pres. J. H. HALLBERG, Vice-Pres.

Executive Offices: 1604 Broadway, New York

Largest Moving Picture Equipment House in the World

Last week's ad. concerned "Over There."
This has to do with

"OVER HERE"

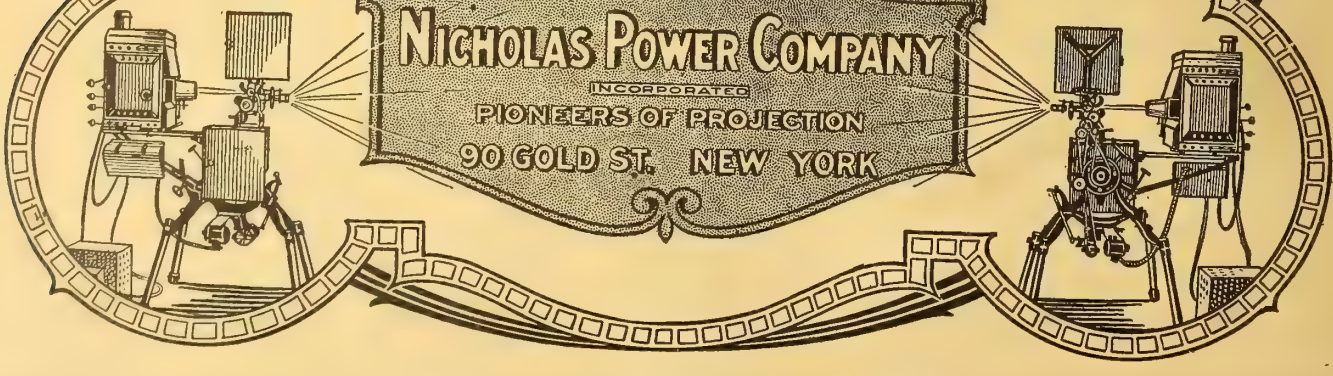
Where every thing is keyed up to a strenuous high pitch, extra hard usage prevails; but it must be maintained WITHOUT SACRIFICE OF QUALITY.

175
Power's Cameragraphs

Are Installed in 55 Camps and Forts in the United States

We believe this to be an emphatic expression of confidence in our product to "make good" under the most exacting and extreme conditions.

This makes a total of OVER 425 projectors now doing their bit at the front.



Vol. 36, No. 2 April 13, 1918 Price 15 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907

AUG 12 1918

Be a 100% Exhibitor

See Pages 167 to 170

Chalmers Publishing Company 516 Fifth Ave. New York

Another "Winner" Featuringthe Heroine of That Sweeping Success "MY UNMARRIED WIFE"

It's a BLUEBIRD

FROM every State in the Union, BLUEBIRD PHOTO PLAYS (Inc.) have received letters asking for more Carmel Myers pictures to follow along with that huge success, "MY UNMARRIED WIFE," that fairly cleaned up for Exhibitors everywhere. So we've come right back with—

Bewitching

Carmel Myers

in

"The Marriage Lie"

Here's a picture that is going to entertain millions with Carmel Myers' artistry, her fascinating personality and the fine story. It's the type of picture that appeals to all and it has a surprise bang up finish that sends audiences away just sizzling with enthusiasm. Book it for more than one day if you can.

BOOK thru your local BLUEBIRD Exchange, or Communicate with BLUEBIRD Photo Plays (Inc.), 1600 B'way, New York City

Essanay

presents

A Chaplin Jingle

"CHASE ME CHARLIE"

A British version of Charlie Chaplin's funniest films—taken from the famous Essanay-Chaplin comedies. Screen time one hour.

George Kleine System,
Distributors

Perfection Pictures

GEORGE K. SPOOR

presents

TAYLOR HOLMES

IN

A PAIR OF SIXES

By Edward Peple

"'A Pair of Sixes' will start the audience laughing from the very beginning and it will not be able to stop until the end. Even a chronic grouch will be forced to laugh."—Exhibitors' Trade Review.

"'Ruggles of Red Gap' is a very fine production. Taylor Holmes and his company will delight all classes. Every picture theatre should run it."—Charles G. Branham, Mgr. Strand Theatre, Minneapolis, Minn.

"'Uneasy Money,' featuring Taylor Holmes, has an excellent cast and the story holds the spectator in the spell of its meshes from the first to the last scene."—Moving Picture World.

"Mary MacLane, in 'Men Who Have Made Love to Me,' broke all house records.—Report of Boston Theatre, a downtown house of Boston, Mass.

Backed by National Billboard Advertising

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM

Distributors

Essanay

Perfection Pictures

"THE KAISER
The Beast of Berlin"

blocked traffic on Broadway
-took Boston
by storm-
in Chicago

S.R.O.

JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS
INC.
1600 Broadway. New York.

"The Kaiser—
SETS BOSTON WILD

Every Boston newspaper, without exception, pronounces it a Staggering Success.

A Whirlwind of Applause—A Landslide of Money

Unparalleled Receipts

The Box-office returns of the Globe Theater in Boston on "The KAISER, the Beast of Berlin," are nothing short of amazing.

This poorly-located house, which has been a consistent failure as a money-maker in the past, is now playing to absolute capacity four times a day.

Thirteen hundred dollars for a single day's receipts!

A Boston paper says:

"The KAISER, the sensational photo-play that so daringly exposes the intimate life and traits of Wilhelm, almost caused a riot during its first presentation Monday at the Globe. The theater was packed long before 2 o'clock and hundreds of others were turned away."

It is the Money-Picture of the Generation.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC
1600 Broadway New York

Wild Excitement

"Vociferous hisses and anathemas of an overwrought audience. Such a graphic portrait of the Hun Emperor that the frenzied excitement was easy to understand."

BOSTON TRAVELLER.

"When an outraged German officer struck the royal scoundrel, the yell of joy which went up from the audience was positively blood-curdling."

BOSTON AMERICAN.

"The audience let itself out in cheers."

BOSTON GLOBE.

"The excitement started in the early part of the picture. There was no let-up. The spirit got contagious. 'The whole German army wouldn't have had a chance with that mob,' remarked one observer."

LAWRENCE EVENING TRIBUNE.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC
1600 Broadway New York

The Biggest Money-maker ever given

the Beast of Berlin"

SETS CHICAGO WILD

Stirred Chicago to its depths. Its every Audience a riot of Enthusiasm and Excitement.

Read the Critics' Mighty Chorus of Praise

Tremendous Story

"Surcharged with surprises and intense dramatic moments. You will shout, hiss and applaud in turn at its timely and pungent utterances and marvel at its exactness and general photographic brilliance."

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS.

"If you would see the Madman of Europe, you are recommended to see 'The KAISER, the Beast of Berlin.' The production is thoughtful and magnificent."

CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE.

"So absorbing is this tale of the Kaiser, it held me fascinated until seven reels went by, without consciousness of time or place. 'The KAISER, the Beast of Berlin,' is well worth a trip to the Ziegfeld. It thrills every patriotic soul."

CHICAGO HERALD.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC
1000 Broadway New York

Superb Acting

"Rupert Julian so cleverly pictures the Kaiser one feels as if he were being let into a secret from which the rest of the world had been excluded. One is ever conscious of the gleam of insanity radiating from the ambitious brain of this inhuman monster. His vanity, his admiration for pretty feminine hands and his unfeeling treatment for the officers of his own regiment seem as if they might have been copied word for word and scene for scene from some dependable history."

CHICAGO HERALD.

"In masterly fashion, Mr. Julian has drawn his living version—pompous, vain, crafty, sinister, cruel, and written it all out in picture episodes that string into the memory. It's a patriotic duty to see it."

CHICAGO EXAMINER.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC
1000 Broadway New York

Exhibitors in the History of Pictures

Ads like these are packing Them in Everywhere to S.R.O.

MURDERER
Of Womanhood — Humanity — Youth — Civilization — Freedom —
All choked by the throttling clutches of this mad demon—this world renowned murderer — this lust-maddened wolf-hound of Potsdam — this arch fiend of humanity — this cruel beast who sneers life — who despises everyone and everything that is not German — what this vile fiend in that indescribable photo dramatic play.
Alien Enemies Keep Away!
Alien Enemies—this picture is NOT for you. KEEP AWAY from the theatre unless you wish to be saddened in the exposé of the Kaiser's rotten "Kultur." We expose everything. We hide nothing. You see it all in—
"THE KAISER" The Beast of Berlin
Shoot Him!
What would you do if this hideous burglar of the night stood by your window peering in, waiting to snatch your loved ones from you. Of course you would. SHOOT HIM! That's why America and Civilization must rid the world of overbearing, autocratic, fiendish humanity.
This Fiend
"THE KAISER" The Beast of Berlin
— seduced Russia.
— ravished Belgium.
— strangled Serbia.
— murdered innocent women and children in Paris, London and scores of other cities.
SEE with your own eyes what this monster has done in —destroying the world's peace, the lives of millions of innocent, credulous, his autocratic, brainwearing, useless bendishness. It will make your blood boil. The most amazing picture of the century.
(Theatre name here)
Blood curdling yells of joy
— greet the tremendous scene in "THE KAISER—The Beast of Berlin" photo drama when the heroic young lieutenant smashes the Kaiser on the jaw. You'll scream your head off. You'll scream along with thousands of your fellow citizens to kill—
"THE KAISER" The Beast of Berlin
Police Take Notice
Any Rioter Who Resents Seeing
"THE KAISER" The Beast of Berlin
Is An Enemy to America
We have instructed people who go to see this picture to instantly report any person who makes unfriendly or seditious remarks against the United States. KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN. We must crush the enemy within our gates. This picture will help seek them out. SEE IT. It will make your blood boil.
(Theatre name here)
The KAISER "The Beast of Berlin" {Theatre name here}
This Is the Man who enjoyed the magnificent satisfaction of smashing the Kaiser on the jaw.
The KAISER "The Beast of Berlin"
The KAISER "The Beast of Berlin"

GET ALL OUR HELPS

Copies of the Ads that fired New York, Boston and the West, with mats of cuts, at any Jewel Exchange

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC.

1600 Broadway. New York

A NATION WIDE HIT

"EDDIE" "LEE"

LYONS-MORAN
STAR COMEDIES

TO SHAKE THE WORLD WITH LAUGHTER

BOOK THEIR FIRST RELEASE

"A PIGSKIN HERO"

AND CONTRACT FOR ALL THAT FOLLOW

BOOK THRU YOUR NEAREST UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE

UNIVERSAL FILM M'F'G CO.

"THE LARGEST FILM MANUFACTURING CONCERN IN THE UNIVERSE"

CARL LAEMMLE, PRESIDENT

1600 BROADWAY..... N.Y.

WATCH

FOR THE BIG ANNOUNCEMENT
NEXT WEEK OF

MY OWN UNITED STATES

Adolph Zukor presents

Maeterlinck's "THE BLUE BIRD"

Directed by Maurice Tourneur. Scenario by Charles Maigne

An ARTCRAFT Picture

Maeterlinck's
"THE BLUE BIRD"

THIS spectacle of Happiness is first of all a great money picture—a "showman's" picture. It has every quality necessary to pull the big crowds. It is a story of strong sentiment, of mortal men and women and it carries a big message that will cheer a war-torn nation.

Tremendous is its appeal to women—a play of heart-throbs, of sweethearts, of mothers—a show that makes the women smile, weep and applaud. That means a show that will play to capacity.

"The Blue Bird," as a play, is known everywhere. It was an S.R.O. attraction on the stage. In motion pictures, it is even bigger and better.

A mighty advertising campaign that will bring big business is behind "The Blue Bird." Thousands of circulars and other advertisements are reaching your patrons now. They'll come in droves whenever you say the word.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount Pictures

Be a 100% Exhibitor

A 100% business man is one who gets every ounce of money power out of the best machinery at his disposal.

The most efficient force in the motion picture industry is the force back of

Paramount Pictures

(Nationally Advertised)

The prosperous exhibitor, the one who is building a permanent patronage, is the one who has the sure-fire, money-getting slogan: "There's nothing too good for my people."

"I know," he says, "that the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation sells the best pictures made. So, believe me, I'm going to take all I can get."

He is a 100% Exhibitor. He shows all the Paramount Pictures, and he's the fellow who does the big business in his community.

Be a 100% Exhibitor. Start now. Add more Paramount days to your schedule.

Paramount for

In the order

BILLIE BURKE in "Eve's Daughter"
JACK PICKFORD in "Huck and Tom"
CHARLES RAY in "The Family Skeleton"
ANN PENNINGTON in "Sunshine Nan"

BOOK ALL

BOOK all the Paramount Pictures! That's the way to increase your earning power and to build up good will for your theatre. You will make more money by showing all the Paramount Pictures. The prices are right. The rental fee varies with the drawing power of each series.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Pictures March of their release

J. STUART BLACKTON'S "Wild Youth"
DOROTHY DALTON in "Love Me"
PAULINE FREDERICK in "La Tosca"
ENID BENNETT in "Naughty, Naughty"

OF THEM

TAKE advantage of all of the prestige that goes to the theatre that shows Paramount Pictures. Tie up tight with the vast advertising campaign that is making the best people in your community seek the theatre that shows Paramount Pictures. Be a 100% Exhibitor. Book them all.

Paramount Pictures
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount Pictures

The Agony of Guessing Wrong

"IT is agony," an exhibitor writes us, "when you pass up a good one and see your competitor doing the business with the stuff you should have booked."

"I'm fixed O. K. now, though. I'm playing all the Paramount Pictures, so he has the agony---not me."

Be a 100% Exhibitor. Book all the Paramount Pictures.

Let the other fellow worry.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK
TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

"Moving Pictures produced to order on a Cost plus a fixed fee basis."

OUR advertisement of two weeks ago meant precisely what it said.

We are ready to undertake the production of "special order" pictures on a basis of cost plus an agreed fee.

Beyond this point, we have no desire to share in the profits.

The negative and all the prints and rights are the absolute property of the man or woman who ordered the work and paid the bill—be he Star or "producer."

On the other hand—we are not merely renting studio space.

Our vast establishment at Culver City is operated and kept at the top notch of efficiency by a great organization. Its property rooms and properties, wardrobe and manufacturing departments render a service far beyond the price we charge.

No plant less completely equipped—less expertly manned—can, in the nature of things, render a producing service anything like as adequate and as "high-speed."

Stars who have felt themselves handicapped by the restrictions incident to the production of pictures to fit into a series with other stars; producers who have found the adequate equipment of studios for a single picture disproportionately expensive—will welcome this offer of broad facilities.

Our departments of publicity and poster-making are also available when desired.

Distribution throughout the world may be arranged on outright purchase or percentage basis with allied interests.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY NEW YORK

TRIANGLE

A Far Flung Battle Line

TRIANGLE'S far flung line reaches from Maine to California.

Thousands of TRIANGLE exhibitors stand shoulder to shoulder in the great battle for prosperity and profits.

An impressive exhibition of the success of a Policy.

A policy of frankness, of square methods, of economy, of quality pictures; a policy designed first and last to insure the permanent success and welfare of the exhibitor.

Consider the advantages of TRIANGLE exhibitors—the "men at the front."

TRIANGLE has relieved the exhibitor of the war tax.

TRIANGLE has placed the price of pictures on such a fair and moderate basis that any exhibitor can make money on TRIANGLE pictures.

This price advantage is in part due to the elimination of the enormously burdensome "star" salary extortions:

to the destruction of waste in production and distribution;

to the elimination of cut-throat competition;

to the TRIANGLE policy of endeavoring to make each and every TRIANGLE exhibitor a success.

TRIANGLE

The gambling element in the picture business is a thing of the past on the TRIANGLE battle line.

How about "picture quality"?

The TRIANGLE studios are turning out productions of the highest quality and pictures that show PROFITS to exhibitors. Ask any TRIANGLE exhibitor what these late pictures have done for him: "Until They Get Me," "Indiscreet Corinne," "Real Folks," "Limousine Life," "Keith of the Border," "The Shoes that Danced," "Little Red Decides," and "The Sea Panther."

TRIANGLE exhibitors are successful. The ranks are solid and unshakable. The battle for prosperity and PROFITS goes merrily on with new territory constantly being added. There are no pessimists, knockers, gloom-chasers, or woe wrestlers in TRIANGLE forces.

Go to the nearest TRIANGLE recruiting exchange —or write.

ENLIST!

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

S. A. LYNCH, - - - President FRED KENT, - - - Treasurer
R. W. LYNCH, - Vice-President Y. F. FREEMAN, - - Gen. Mgr.

WILLIAM FOX

4MIGHTY

1

WILLIAM FARNUM

in the William Farnum DeLuxe Production

LES MISERABLES

Staged in America by Frank Lloyd

VICTOR HUGO'S MASTER CLASSIC

BIGGEST MONEY MAKER IN HISTORY OF PICTURES

2

THE BLINDNESS of DIVORCE

All-Star Cast Directed by Frank Lloyd

CONSCIENCE STIRRING STORY

The Woman Always Pays

STANDARD PICTURES

FOX

FILM CORPORATION

Border Raids
German Plotters
Kaiser's Agents

Contract today for

WESTERN BLOOD

Three Other one-a-week FOX SPECIAL FEATURES 52-a-year

JUNE CAPRICE
in
A CAMOUFLAGE KISS

JEWEL CARMEN
in
The BRIDE of FEAR

GLADYS BROCKWELL
in
HER ONE MISTAKE

FOX SPECIAL FEATURES

FOX

FILM CORPORATION

YOUR BREAD LINE

Make it a long one

CONTRACT FOR BUD FISHER'S
MUTT
AND JEFF
ANIMATED CARTOONS
Released Exclusively by
FOX
FILM CORPORATION

NOW READY
THE DECOY
BACK TO THE BALKANS
THE FREIGHT INVESTIGATION
THE LEAK

WILLIAM FOX Presents
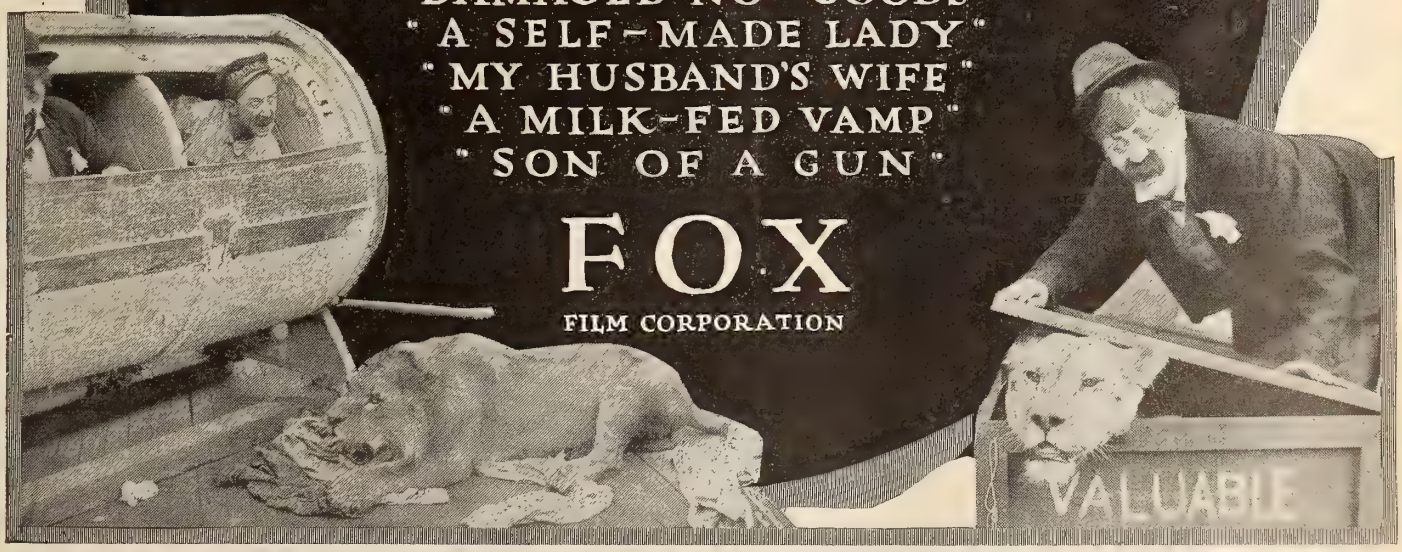
HENRY LEHRMAN'S

SUNSHINE COMEDIES

LIONS FED ON HOT TAMALES
Start a hysterical holocaust in your theatre by booking these fun makers now!

"ROARING LIONS AND WEDDING BELLS"
"HUNGRY LIONS IN A HOSPITAL"
"ARE MARRIED POLICEMEN SAFE"
"A WAITER'S WASTED LIFE"
"SHADOWS OF HER PEST"
"HIS SMASHING CAREER"
"DAMAGED NO-GOODS"
"A SELF-MADE LADY"
"MY HUSBAND'S WIFE"
"A MILK-FED VAMP"
"SON OF A GUN"

FOX
FILM CORPORATION



YOUR THEATRE
AS PERMANENT AS NIAGARA FALLS
BUILT BY
HODKINSON CO-PARTNERSHIP

The Prophet And The Profits

W. W. Hodkinson—Prophet

For years this keen pioneer has prophesied that the motion picture industry must do away with producer-domination. His twentieth century imagination has thought out the way to the ideal arrangement.

W. W. Hodkinson knows every phase of the motion picture industry; particularly the problems of the exhibitor—for he has been one himself. Already, several leading exhibitors, whom you know personally or by reputation, have joined him in the Hodkinson Copartnership Plan.

The Profits

Hodkinson Copartnership makes YOU—the exhibitor—a partner in the local exchange corporation in your territory, as well as the central office of the management. By means of this copartnership between you and the central office, the larger part (approximately 70%) of the distributing profit goes to you, instead of going to the producer.

A man with vision has opened up the avenue to greater profits for you. Displaying similar foresight, will you join him?

A NEW EXHIBITOR COOPERATION AND ITS DEFINITE ADVANTAGES TO YOU

W.W.HODKINSON

DISTRIBUTION PROFITS PLACED where they BELONG

You—the exhibitor—can now share in approximately 70% of the distribution profits through the

Hodkinson Copartnership Plan

Master Builder, W. W. Hodkinson has at last developed the ideal co-ordination between the producer, the distributor, and you—the exhibitor.

The plan is concrete, definite, logical. Evolved by a former exhibitor, it is the natural, ideal arrangement for you. Doubtless it carries out ideas you have had in mind ever since you have been an exhibitor. The plan is a broad-sweeping departure. It is new. W. W. Hodkinson will not drive in a rut!

You benefit 7 ways—and more; and with each benefit you profit.

Here are 7 specific reasons why the Hodkinson Copartnership plan deserves your interest; why it must prompt your immediate investigation.

1. It makes you a partner in the local distributing exchange. It provides a service of Quality only, and assures you productions of determinable box-office value, fair treatment, and a liberal profit margin.

2. Protects you against inferiority of product resulting from producer domination.

3. Freedom from producer-control, assures an "open-door" for Quality products from any source.

4. Safeguards you, once and for all, against unfair competition and unfair prices.

5. Effects economies in distribution expense by keeping down the high cost of overhead which exists in other organizations, and which contributes so materially to your high cost of rentals.

6. Cures the so-called "deposit evil."

7. Takes the distribution out of the control of distributing agencies, owned and governed by producers, and passes on to you a fair share of the distribution profits. ("The Prophet and the Profits", on the opposite page, gives you the facts. Be sure to read it!)

Applied to your own theatre, the Hodkinson Copartnership Plan for bigger, better business will build up your prestige, and increase your profits.

We could continue to enumerate the advantages of the Hodkinson Copartnership Plan to you, but we believe this brief outline is enough to convince you that W. W. Hodkinson, Master Builder, has conceived the way to place the distributing profits in the motion picture industry where they belong.

That is all we have attempted to do in this announcement, as we desire to send you all the facts and figures in a confidential letter. Let us send them without delay, for the sooner you investigate the quicker you will profit. Tear out this page now so you won't forget to write. Just say, "send all the facts about the Hodkinson Copartnership Plan." Do not put off writing, for each day you delay represents a loss to you. Write or wire immediately.

CORPORATION

527 FIFTH AVE NEW YORK CITY

"Little Talks with Foreign Buyers"—No. 7.

By

President

"SPEERTALK"

I HAVE laid much stress in previous "Talks" on the fact that the foreign picture patron was discriminating. He wants to see THE BEST films on the screen, and along with his demand for top-notch films is a desire to see them properly projected. Inter-Ocean doesn't fool itself into believing that any sort of projection goes in foreign cinema shows. Because it doesn't so fool itself, it took over the foreign distribution of the SPEER CARBON last year. The sale was slight at first. But we weren't discouraged because we knew what good projection meant in the foreign territories. We knew that prospective foreign buyers of SPEER CARBONS were waiting to "be shown." And we knew that the SPEER would show them in due time. Well, the other week we had the keen pleasure of shipping 25,000 SPEER CARBONS to Argentine; 50,000 to South Africa; 50,000 to England; 30,000 to France; 32,000 to India, and 20,000 to Peru and Chile; 20,000 to China and 18,000 to the Dutch East Indies. At the same time Spain and Portugal were "closed" for a minimum of 250,000 a year! It will pay foreign buyers to send a sample shipment of SPEER CARBONS to their territories; it will win them friends among exhibitors and picture-goers.

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN, PRES. & GEN'L MGR. — 220 W. 42ND ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields.

READY FOR WORLD SALE—52 World Films a year, featuring Ethel Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell, and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year, featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Glaum; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "To-day," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," "The 13th Labor of Hercules," the sure fire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.*

NOW READY
"AN ALIEN ENEMY"—By Monte M. Katterjohn
"THE SNAPDRAGON"—By Horace Hazeltine

LOUISE GLAUM PRODUCTIONS, INCORPORATED
PARALTA PLAYS, INC.
8 West 48th Street, New York City

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

CURRENT RELEASE

LOUISE GLAUM

IN

"AN ALIEN ENEMY"

Directed by WALLACE WORSLEY. Written by MONTE M. KATTERJOHN
ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

The Picture that DOES NOT show the War, but shows you the Reason Why!

FORTHCOMING

BESSIE BARRISCALE

IN

Directed by
RAYMOND B. WEST

"Blindfolded"

Written by
E. RICHARD SCHAYER

The story of Peggy Muldoon, who is born a crook, but re-molds her life into a thing of beauty

PARALTA PLAYS. Incorporated
Eight West Forty-eighth Street New York City

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
"HODKINSON SERVICE"
AT ALL GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

"THE STILL ALARM"

BY JOSEPH ARTHUR

Played for more than 5 years in New York, 3 years in Chicago 2 years in Boston 1 year in Philadelphia

Produced by WILLIAM N. SELIG

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL MELODRAMA EVER PLAYED ON ANY STAGE

Featuring THOMAS SANTCHI AND BESSIE EYTON

PLAYED EVERY CITY, TOWN AND VILLAGE WHICH HAS A STAGE
HOLDS THE RECORD FOR RETURN ENGAGEMENTS
AS A PLAY HAS ENTERTAINED MORE THAN A MILLION PEOPLE
AS A PICTURE IT WILL THRILL MANY MORE

FOR TERRITORIAL RIGHTS FOR THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA
APPLY TO

PIONEER FILM CORPORATION

130 W. 46 TH ST. N.Y.

Goldwyn Pictures

This Girl Made A Great City Gasp With Surprise

SHE quit her home of luxury to prove that she could be a new and sensational type of burglar. She gained fame and reputation such as few girls have ever had and she braved exciting and comic perils, finally bumping full tilt into Romance.

This unusual production offers

MADGE KENNEDY in The DANGER GAME

by Roy Somerville
Directed by Harry Pollard

Released April 7

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION
SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

The Brawn, The Courage And Spirit of America Are In This Picture !

IT takes Rex Beach to write the screen dramas of the real Americans. Stories of valor and daring; of stand-your-ground-and-shoot dare-devils who have never known the meaning of fear.

Every Rex Beach production has packed the motion picture theatres of the world—"The Spoilers," "The Barrier," "The Auction Block." Releasing through Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, this noted author now gives you his greatest production

REX BEACH'S

Screen Classic of the Great Southwest

Heart of the Sunset

Directed By Frank Powell - Now Ready for Immediate Release

We urge every exhibitor to arrange at once for a booking of this magnificent seven-reel special production. It is rented singly and can be obtained without signing up for any other picture. Telegraph for a booking at once to any branch office of

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

CAPITOL COMEDIES

We Have Found What Thousands of Exhibitors Have Demanded.

EVERY exhibitor has combed the market for clean, original comedies starring a fresh and joyous personality. Goldwyn's announcement of

"SMILING BILL" PARSONS

in CAPITOL COMEDIES

26 a year Every Second Monday

at once brought exhibitor inquiries for prices and dates of release from every section of the United States.

Prints of "BILL'S BABY" and "BILL'S PREDICAMENT" are now in all Goldwyn offices and ready for immediate showing to exhibitors.

After a careful review of every comedy now being produced, Goldwyn confidently pronounces "Smiling Bill" Parsons in Capitol Comedies to be the most radiant and successful personality brought to the screen in years and from the beginning he will assume the uncontested leadership among comedians—in clean, laughable and brilliant stories and surrounded by players with youth and beauty.

Sold on an independent basis exclusively through Goldwyn offices to all exhibitors desiring the best for their houses.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
16 East 42nd Street New York City

3 SPLENDID SELEXART PICTURES RELEASED THROUGH GOLDWYN

PRODUCTIONS made under the guidance and direction of this organization's brilliant technical experts—made by the same skilled forces that produced the popular "Carmen of the Klondike;" made "big" in theme and treatment to meet the exact exhibitor demands.

Goldwyn offers all exhibitors these three unusual, thrilling dramatic productions, beginning April 15, and at intervals of each second week thereafter:

HOWARD HICKMAN

in

Blue Blood

by J. Grubb Alexander
Directed by Elliott Howe

RHEA MITCHELL

in

Honor's Cross

by H.B. Daniel
Directed by Wallace Worsley

RHEA MITCHELL & HOWARD HICKMAN

in

Social Ambition

by W. E. Wing
Directed by Wallace Worsley

These productions—with their absolutely assured box-office attraction powers—are available to all exhibitors, whether Goldwyn contract customers or not, but we urgently advise Goldwyn contract customers to make an immediate booking of this Selexart Special Trio. Write or telegraph our nearest branch office.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
16 East 42nd Street New York City

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

A "FIRST NATIONAL" ATTRACTION

Ha

The clarion

TARZAN

THROUGHOUT THE

WEEKS OF

GET IN

TARZAN

call of the biggest exhibitors in America

$122,760.00

WILL BE SPENT FOR ADVERTISING

OF THE APES

UNITED STATES DURING

APRIL 1st and 8th

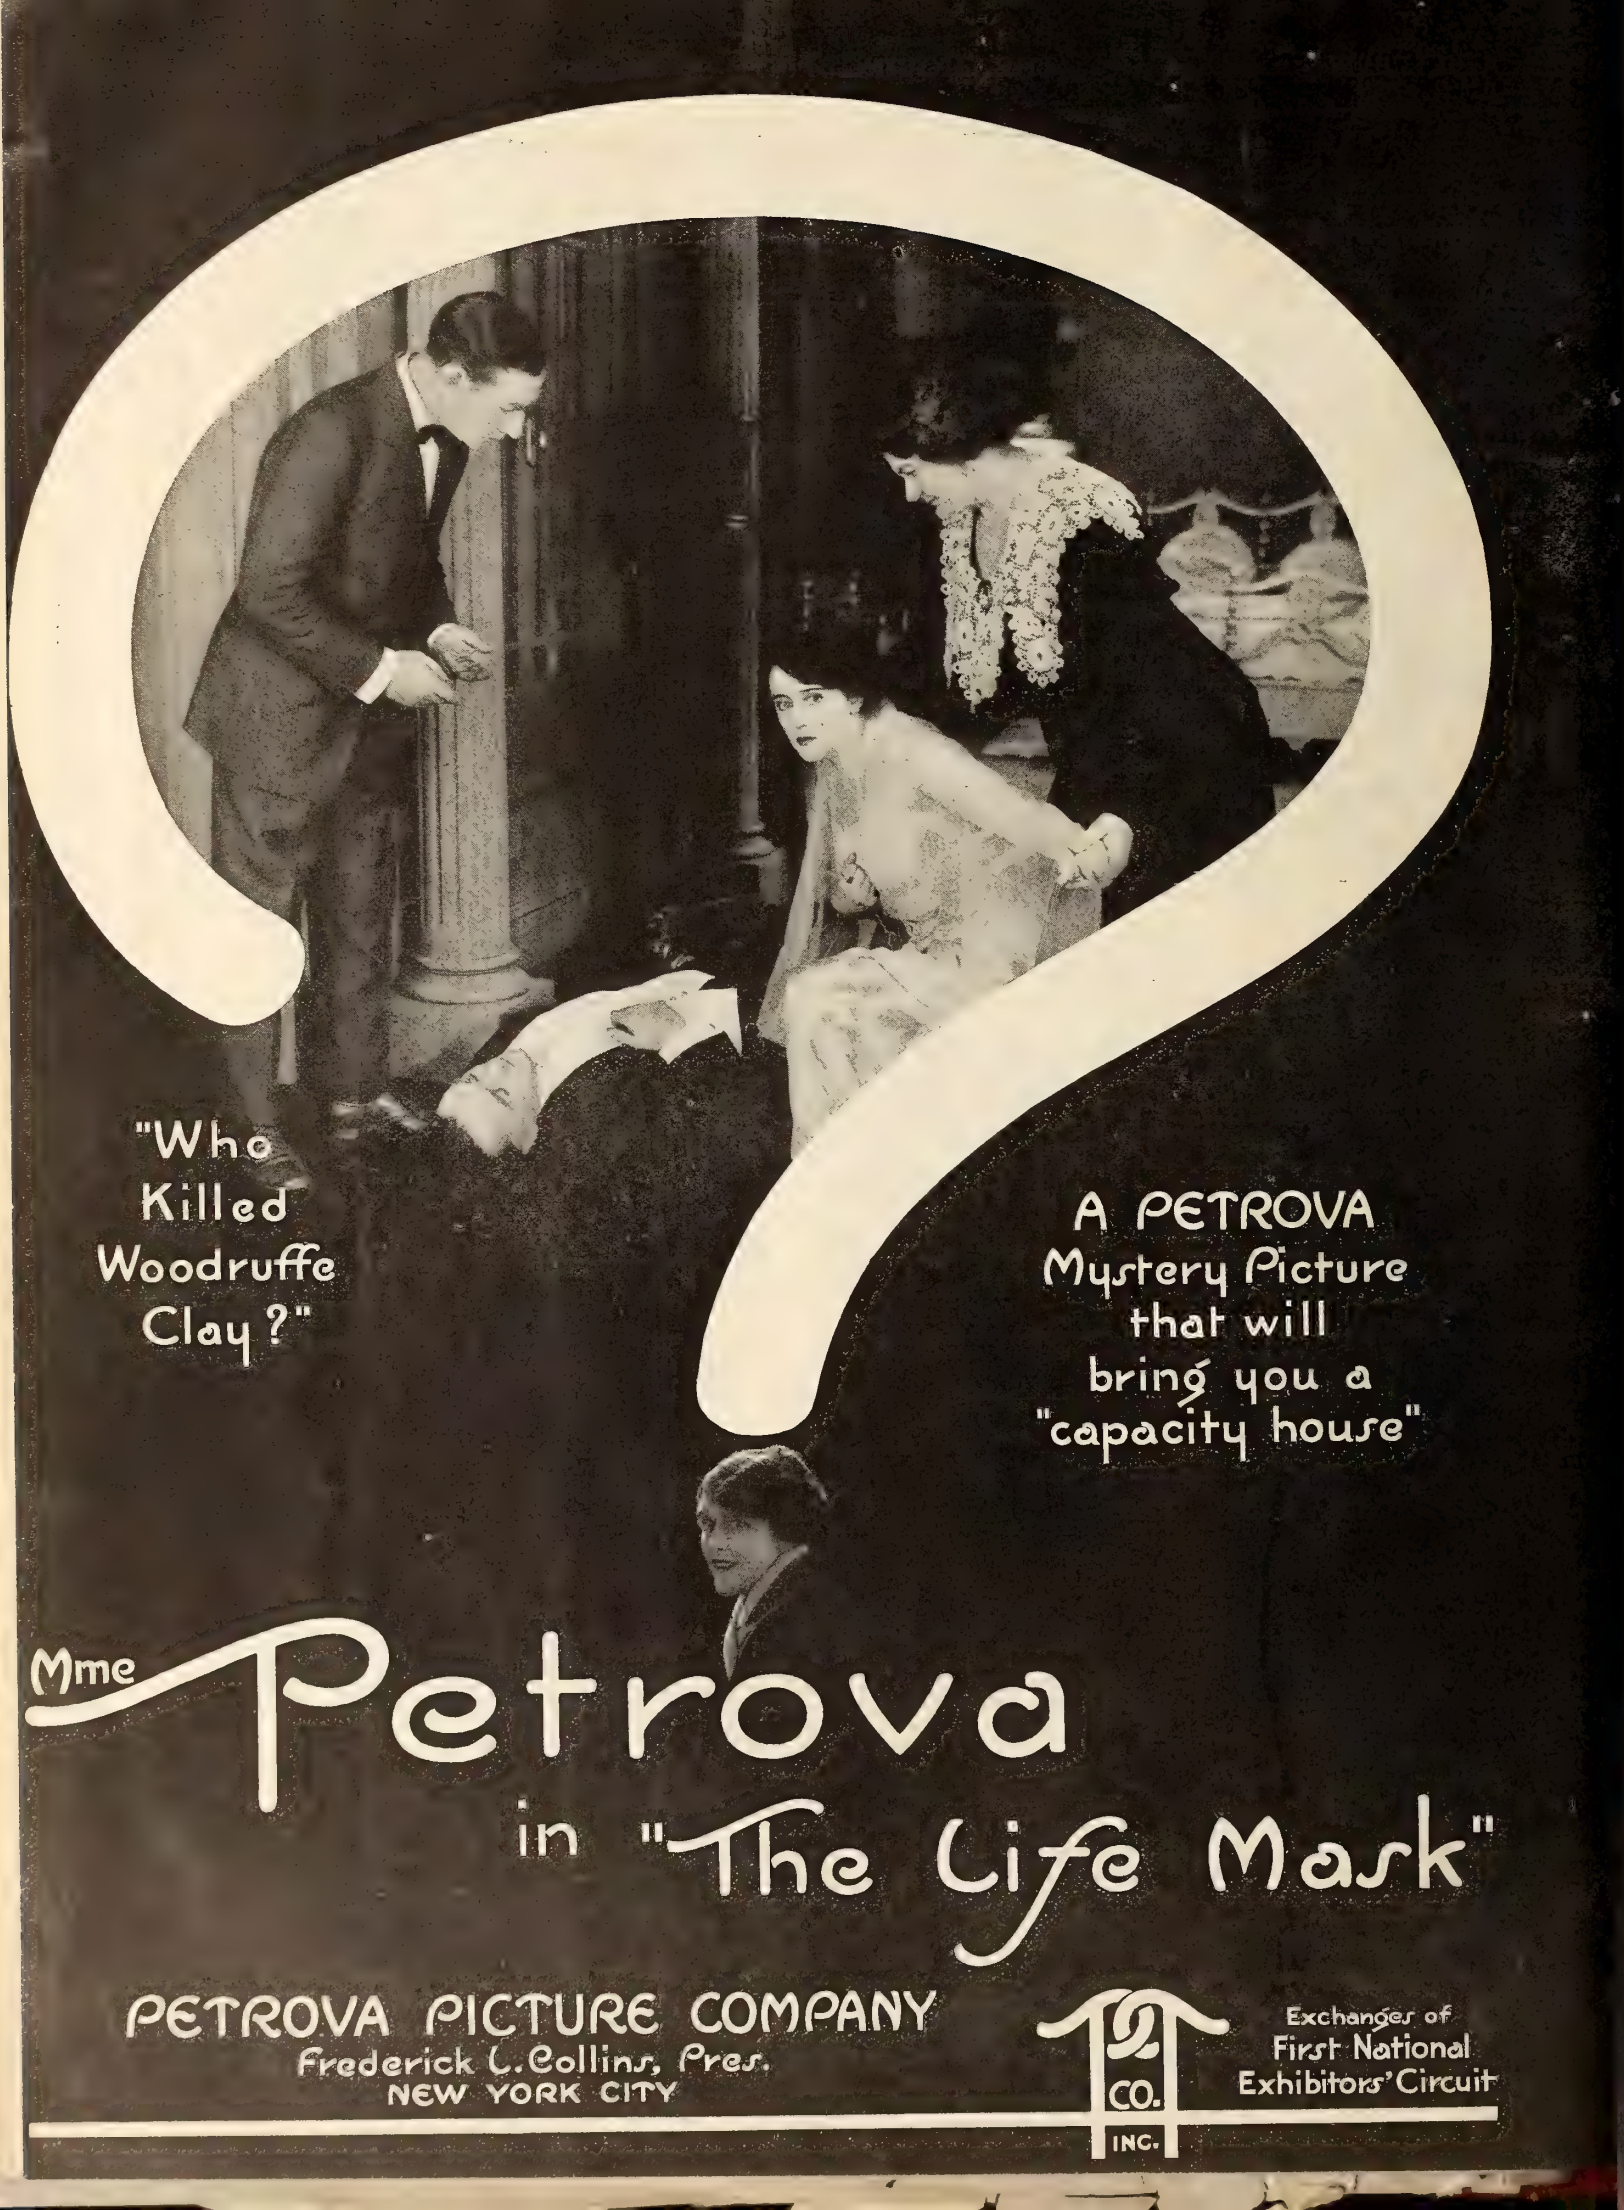
San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Boston, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Washington, Detroit, St. Louis, Omaha, Denver, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Paul, New Orleans, Dallas, Los Angeles, Hartford, New Haven, Springfield, New York, Buffalo, Des Moines, Newark, Chicago, Trenton, Atlantic City, and 50 other cities will be covered like a snow fall —reaching every city, village, hamlet and crossroad in America.

ON THIS HURRICANE OF PUBLICITY

BOOK NOW

THE FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT, Inc.,
18 E. 41st St., New York City.

Presented by THE NATIONAL FILM CORP., of America



"Who Killed Woodruffe Clay?"
A PETROVA Mystery Picture that will bring you a "capacity house"
Mme Petrova
in "The Life Mask"
PETROVA PICTURE COMPANY
Frederick L. Collins, Pres.
NEW YORK CITY
CO.
INC.
Exchanges of First National Exhibitors' Circuit

RELEASED IN APRIL

MANNER OF RELEASE TO BE ANNOUNCED LATER.

Frank A. Keeney

will present

THE BIG BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTION

The Lady Beautiful of the Screen

Catherine Calvert

with an all star Keeney cast, including

DAVID POWELL, EUGENE O'BRIEN,
EDWARD FORSBERG AND SYBIL CARMEN

IN

PAUL ARMSTRONG'S

GREAT DRAMA OF NEW YORK LIFE

"A ROMANCE OF THE UNDERWORLD"

IN SIX THRILLING PARTS

SUPERVISED AND DIRECTED BY JAMES KIRKWOOD

SEE
- LIFE IN CHINATOWN
- THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS
- THE EAST SIDE DANCE HALL
- BLACKWELL'S ISLAND
- LITTLE ITALY
- THE BOWERY AFTER DARK
- AND OTHER BIG NEW YORK SCENES

KEENEY GENERAL OFFICES, 1493 BROADWAY

RAY C. OWENS, Genl. Mgr.

Pathé

"Enough Said!"
Booked by Kunsky in Detroit–

PEARL WHITE
AND ANTONIO MORENO

in the sensationally successful Pathé serial

THE HOUSE OF HATE

Successful exhibitors everywhere recognize that Pathé serials are a better box office attraction than any features.

Produced by Astra
Directed by Geo. B. Seitz
Written by Arthur B. Reeve and Chas. A. Logue
Scenarios by B. Millhauser

Pathé

"I AM A STRONGER BELIEVER IN PATHÉ SERIALS THAN EVER BEFORE."

Says a Big Exhibitor Who Is Showing

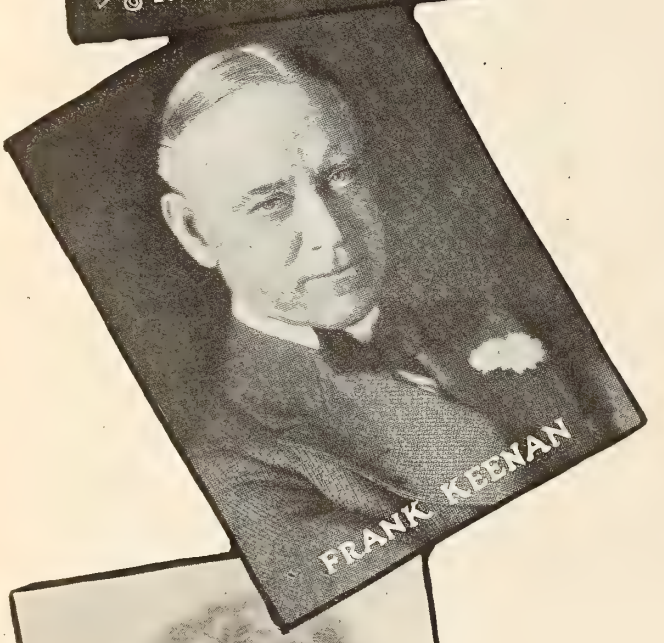
THE HOUSE OF HATE

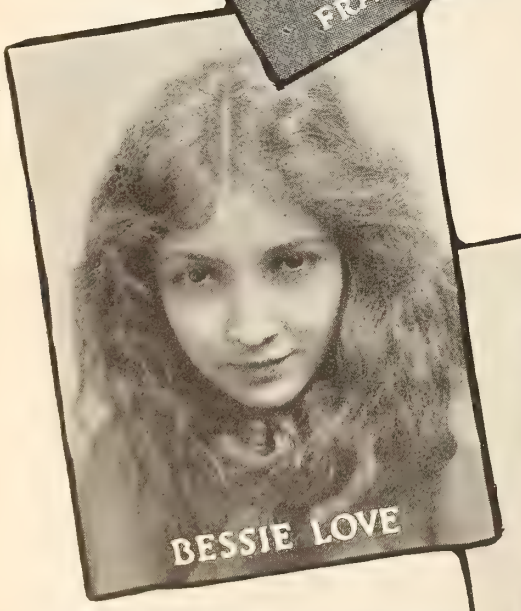
Three Days Every Week;

"I am using the 'House of Hate' three days every week, and here I am, a stronger believer in Pathé serials than ever before. I have to be very careful in my selection of pictures, too, on account of the prices I charge."

JAMES F. THOM,
Mgr. Grand Opera House, New York.

Hundreds upon hundreds of exhibitors show every Pathé serial. The business they do speaks for itself!





Pathé

ALL REPORTS TO THE CONTRARY PATHÉ WILL CONTINUE TO RELEASE FEATURE PICTURES OF THE HIGHEST GRADE!

The rumor has been spread, and presumably by persons who are not disinterested, that Pathé would discontinue the release of feature pictures.

The rumor has no basis of truth.

Pathé will continue to release features of the highest quality.

Pathé will continue to serve the exhibitor by giving him quality productions at a reasonable price.

Pathé invites the attention of exhibitors to the exceptional attractions listed on the opposite page, all of which are features which will be released during the coming months.

Pathé

PATHÉ HAS NOW, EITHER FINISHED OR IN THE MAKING, A A SUPPLY OF FEATURES SUFFICIENT FOR THE NEXT SIX MONTHS

Among them are the following;

FANNIE WARD in "A Japanese Nightingale"
"The Yellow Ticket"
"The Narrow Path"

FRANK KEENAN in "The Bells"
"More Trouble"

BESSIE LOVE in "A Little Sister of Everybody"
"How Could You Caroline?"
"Carolyn of the Corners"

BRYANT WASHBURN in "The Range Rider"
"Kidder & Ko"
"The Whistling Man"
"All Wrong"

IRENE CASTLE in "The First Law"
"The Girl From Bohemia"

GLADYS HULETTE in "Annexing Bill"
"The Waif"

BABY MARIE OSBORNE in "Dolly Does Her Bit"
"The Soul of a Child"
"The Evidence"

Pathé invites comparison by exhibitors between the attractions listed above and competing productions on the basis of quality and price.

Big hearted, generous and of so fine a character that all the world will find a greater HAROLD LOCKWOOD
in
The LANDLOPER
Presented by Yorke-Metro and adapted by Fred J. Balshofer from Holman Days wonder novel—
Directed by George Irving in 5 acts
An all star series production released by METRO April 1st

Wake up America!

The Battle crisis on the Western Front makes every American Home vibrant with expectancy – for news from our boys over there.

You owe it to your country, to your patrons and to yourself to present these really patriotic productions in your theatre now – Your public wants them – See that they get them –

LEST WE FORGET with RITA JOLIVET	LEGION of DEATH with EDITH STOREY
Draft 258 with MABEL TALIAFERRO	The Slacker with EMILY STEVENS

Every showing is a service to your country and a profound satisfaction to your people.

METRO

THE KATZENJAMMER KIDS
AND HAPPY HOOLIGAN

are the "big stars" of the comic section of the greatest chain of newspapers in the world.

They are now to be the "big stars" of the comic film world.

This new form of animation and direction, inaugurated by the International Film Service Co., Inc., in producing these real comedies, make them eligible to companionship with our famous Robert C. Bruce "Scenics Beautiful" and Ditmar's "Living Book of Nature" releases.

Mr. Exhibitor, establish a Katzenjammer Kids' Day and a Happy Hooligan Day weekly at your theatre, and reap the benefit of the vast publicity booking these "big stars."

Yes, Mr. S. L. Rothapfel has booked first run in New York at his Rialto and Rivoli theatres.

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION
OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

Ann Murdock
in
"The Richest Girl"

Full of the fresh zest of Springtime

One of the Charles Frohman
Plays in Pictures

A drama of love and lingerie

Starring the inimitable imp of the screen,
supported by the able David Powell.

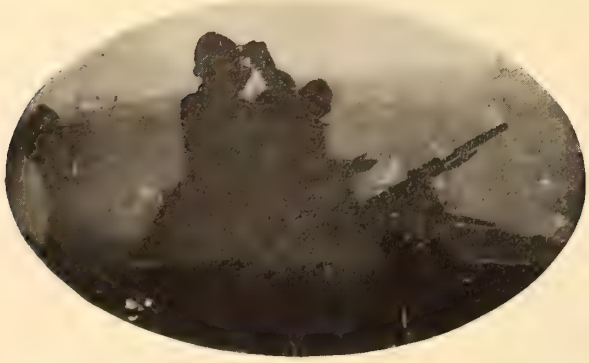
Produced by
EMPIRE ALL STAR CORPORATION

Available April 8
at Exchanges of the
MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

PROVEN SUCCESSES

"The Planter"

"Damaged Goods"



"Heroic France"

If you have already played these box office winners there is big money in repeats.

If you have not played them you have passed up three of the best profit makers in pictures.

Available at Exchanges of
THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

WHERE TO BOOK

THOS. H. INCE'S
BESSIE BARRISCALE in "THOSE WHO PAY"

SIDNEY OLCOTT'S
WALKER WHITESIDE VALENTINE GRANT in "THE BELGIAN"

THOS. H. INCE'S "THE ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID"

BIG SPECIAL PRODUCTIONS THAT DO A TREMENDOUS BUSINESS IN EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD

U. S. EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CORPORATION

FRANK G. HALL, President

Top o' the Times Building, New York

Book Through

FOURSQUARE
NEW YORK .....729 7th Ave.
BUFFALO.....47 W. Swan St.
DETROIT.....304 Jos. Mack Bldg.
CHICAGO.....207 So. Wabash Ave.
DENVER.....1735 Welton St.
SEATTLE.....2014 Third Ave.
PITTSBURGH.....127 Fourth Ave.
LOS ANGELES.....514 W. 8th St.
PHILADELPHIA.....1325 Vine St.
CINCINNATI.....301 Strand Theatre Bldg.
ST. LOUIS.....301 Empress Theatre Bldg.
CLEVELAND.....310 Sloan Bldg.
KANSAS CITY.....1120 Walnut St.
SAN FRANCISCO.....191 Golden Gate Ave.
MINNEAPOLIS.....206 Film Exchange Bldg.

SOUTHERN STATES FILM CO.
ATLANTA.....114 Walton St.
DALLAS.....1900 Commerce St.

GLOBE FEATURE FILM CO.
NEW ENGLAND.20 Winchester St., Boston, Mass.

FRANK GERSTEN, INC.
NEW JERSEY....220 W. 42d St., New York City

SUPER FEATURE FILM CO.:
CANADA.....59 Victoria St., Toronto

FOREIGN RIGHTS TO ALL "U. S." PRODUCTIONS CONTROLLED EXCLUSIVELY BY ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY, Times Building, New York

SELECT SP PICTURES

"The House of Glass"

Max Marcin's stage success turned into a screen triumph by

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

AND HER OWN COMPANY

scenario by Charles E. Whittaker

directed by EMILE CHAUTARD

It has charmed the critics, delighted the exhibitors, and drawn fans to the theatres by the thousands. It is Clara Kimball Young's strongest and best!

Miss Young's prior Select Pictures are:

"MAGDA"
"SHIRLEY KAYE"
"THE MARIONETTES"

Distributed by
SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

SELECT SP PICTURES

Could she have truly read her future in the crystal, would she have chosen as she did—this woman whom two men sought?

The man she loved and did not marry

The man she married —and did not love!

Play popularity and Win!

There are no weak pictures in Norma Talmadge's star series of Select Pictures. And now, following her tremendous success in "Ghosts of Yesterday"—

Joseph M. Schenck presents

NORMA TALMADGE

in

"BY RIGHT OF PURCHASE"

Directed by Charles Miller

Apply this test: Did you make money on your last Norma Talmadge picture? You did! Well, date this one and clean up again!

DISTRIBUTED BY

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

The Biggest Hit on Record
"Old Bill" immortalised by Capt Bruce Bairnsfather
The CARTOON FILM Co Ltd
76&78 WARDOUR St. LONDON, ENGLAND
ARE PREPARED TO SELL THE EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS FOR U.S.A.
of the
Capt Bruce Bairnsfather
FILM CARTOONS
These Cartoons have created a record for popularity in England
THE PROCESS OF ACTUALLY DRAWING BY HAND IS DEPICTED ON THE SCREEN
Their booking possibilities have proved them the MOST LUCRATIVE 1 REEL SUBJECTS EVER PUT ON THE MARKET.
FROM FIGURES OBTAINED IN ENGLAND THEY CAN EARN YOU
UPTO $175 PER WEEK'S HIRE
One Contract alone taken in LONDON was for $16,000.

FILM CARTOONS
BY
LOUIS RAEMAEKERS
THE CARTOON FILM CO LTD
76 & 78 WARDOUR ST LONDON, ENGLAND will negotiate the Sale of EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS for above Film Cartoons throughout
U.S.A & CANADA
EACH CARTOON IS SCREENED
IN THE ACT OF BEING DRAWN BY HAND AND
THE "RAEMAEKERS" TOUCH IS PORTRAYED LINE BY LINE
Communicate with
The CARTOON FILM Co LTD
76 & 78 WARDOUR ST LONDON, ENGLAND

Photo of Wonderful Three-Sheet Poster

Wm. A. Johnston of the Motion Picture News says:
"Give us plays of laughs, not tears."
"One laugh this year, is worth a dozen sobs."

HARRY RAPF presents

Robert Warwick

AND

Elaine Hammerstein

IN

"THE ACCIDENTAL HONEYMOON"

Written and directed by Leonce Perret

Now is the time for the theatre manager to anticipate the wishes of his patrons. Now is the time of all times for the theatre to spread cheer and sunshine. This is the film that fills the bill.

NO SOB STORY NO WAR STUFF
NOT A DEPRESSIVE THEME

BUT a comedy love drama, a tingling, rollicking joy picture, sparkling and bubbling over with romance.

A magnificent production, strikingly original, unique and distinctly different from anything yet seen on the screen. Featuring two of filmdom's most popular stars, Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein.

ANOTHER SPECTACULAR PRODUCTION BY HARRY RAPF, BUILDER OF BOX-OFFICE ATTRACTIONS.

EXHIBITORS!

Here is a chance of a lifetime for wide awake exhibitors to coin money. An attraction de luxe, exploited as it should be. Paper that will stare you in the eye for blocks. Stories of real news value planted right in your local newspapers. No star in filmdom offers better advertising possibilities than Robert Warwick, now Captain in Uncle Sam's Overseas Army. Book the picture NOW! Take advantage of our publicity and advertising hints. Send for your copy of our campaign book TO-DAY.

"THE ACCIDENTAL HONEYMOON"

Written and directed by

LEONCE PERRET

STATE RIGHTS MEN

Step lively; grab your territory NOW. Greatest co-operative exploitation campaign ever given a box-office attraction.

For territory communicate directly with

ARROW FILM CORPORATION

Distributors Harry Rapf Productions

Times Building, New York City

NOTE—This is Robert Warwick's last film production prior to his enlistment in the U. S. Army.

CAPTAIN ROBERT WARWICK
Intelligence Bureau, General Pershing's Staff
American Front in France

A MESSAGE FROM THE FRONT

"The more the dollars and the faster they come for the third Liberty Loan, the fewer the lives that will be sacrificed. From France we all shout, COME THROUGH."

Capt. Robert Warwick

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION

ANNOUNCE IN PRODUCTION

"HIS DAUGHTER PAYS"

ADAPTED FROM THE WELL KNOWN PLAY "LA BACCARAT"
BY FRED. H. JAMES

THE MOST ELABORATE PRODUCTION OF THE SEASON

GORGEOUS SETTINGS - SUPERB GOWNS - BIG DRAMATIC PUNCHES - WONDERFUL ACTING — WITH THE INCOMPARABLE STAR

GERTRUDE McCOY

GERTRUDE McCOY AS "LA BACCARAT"

EGGERS NY

CAST INCLUDES

CHAS GRAHAM
PAULINE CURLEY
BARREY WHITCOMB
HENRY SEDLEY
AND JOHNNY WALKER

WITH A BEVY OF BEAUTIFUL GIRLS

DIRECTION OF
PAUL TRINCHERA

CINEMATOGRAPHY BY RICHARD FRYER

PLAN OF RELEASE TO BE ANNOUNCED SOON

WORLD RIGHTS CONTROLLED BY

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION

LONDON - PARIS - NEW YORK

729 7th AVE, NEW YORK.

PHONE BRYANT 7046

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

They Smashed Overhead, Abolished Waste and Improved Quality

The wonderworking Rochdale Cooperative Movement, starting with a little group of 28 men and $140 capital, expanded into an organization with millions of members, more than 1400 stores, and a yearly turnover of $700,000,000. They give BETTER QUALITY, LOWER PRICES, SUBSTANTIAL DIVIDENDS, by cutting out middlemen, exerting their wholesale buying power and enforcing economy everywhere.

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

Will Confer Similar Savings and Benefits

Mr. Exhibitor, films are merchandise—the producers are the sellers—IT IS UP TO YOU TO UNITE AND BUY AT WHOLESALE. Join this rapidly growing organization which you yourselves will control and which strikes the keynote of New World business now and after the war.

Write for booklet to Dept. W

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 Broadway, New York City

IF THIS ADVERTISEMENT WERE A SQUARE MILE IN SIZE AND JAMMED FULL OF WORDS IT COULD NOT BE HALF SO CONVINCING AS YOUR CONSIDERATION OF THE SUBJECT TREATED IN THE NEW Ivan PRODUCTION

"LIFE OR HONOR?"

A DRAMA OF MYSTERY AND THRILLS

A GRIPPING FILM SENSATION

A NOVEL CONCEPTION MASTERLY EXECUTED

Featuring

LEAH BAIRD, JAMES MORRISON, VIOLET PALMER, EDWARD MACKEY

DIRECTION EDMUND LAWRENCE

STATE RIGHT BUYERS TAKE NOTICE

Spectators will find it decidedly entertaining. It has the very important advantage of being excellently played, and Edmund Lawrence has used good judgment in most of his direction.
Reviewed by—Edward Weitzel,
Moving Picture World.

"Life or Honor?" would usually be described as "corking." "Life or Honor?" is all its sponsors claim it to be.
Reviewed by—Peter Milne,
Motion Picture News.

"Life or Honor?" is a clever mystery story, well photographed, splendidly acted, and preserving the atmosphere of suspense up to the final reel. The feature should win the approval of exhibitors, not only in New York, but throughout the country.
Reviewed by—Geo. T. Pardy,
Exhibitors Trade Review.

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS
130 W. 46 TH ST. NEW YORK

ANNOUNCING
REMARKABLE FEATURE PRODUCTIONS FOR DISCRIMINATING STATE RIGHT BUYERS

TALENTED STARS in these FEATURES of IDEALISTIC ARTISTRY will be supported by
GIRLS of WONDROUS BEAUTY
Selected by the leading newspaper of each state, in cooperation with
GAUMONT NEWS & GRAPHIC
The independent news reels of reel news

Gaumont Co.
LONDON FLUSHING, N.Y. PARIS

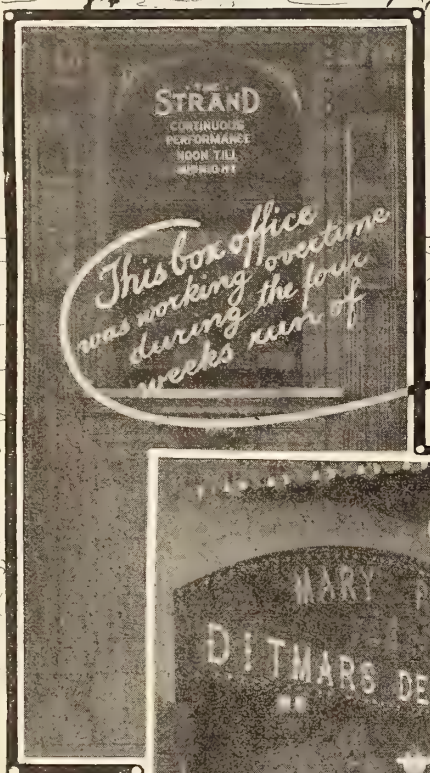
THE SENSATIONAL CLASSIC OF THE SEASON

RAYMOND L. DITMAR'S WONDER

THE DEPTHS OF THE SEA

IN A SERIES OF FOUR PARTS

OPENING NIGHT STRAND THEATRE · NEW YORK



MANAGER EDEL OF THE STRAND · NEW YORK CITY WILL VERIFY

STATE RIGHTS NOW SELLING

· WRITE ·

WIRE · CALL

M·S·EPSTIN

1495 BROADWAY PHONE BRYANT 7696 NEW YORK CITY

SCHLES

Motion Picture News

March 30, 1918

Devil Fish Demonstrate "Frightfulness"

For sheer sinister dexterity nothing could surpass the fight between an octopus and his victim, a devil fish and a huge loggerhead turtle, which forms the dramatic—or, rather, the melodramatic climax of the first reel of a new series of marine pictures called "The Depths of the Sea." Swimming lazily by means of his curious flapper feet, Mr. Turtle ventures just too near the rock under which the huge octopus lurks. A long, waving arm wriggles up, then another, and the hapless turtle seems doomed. But he pulls and struggles manfully, till a last jerk sets him free. Even more exciting is the fight between the octopus and an aggressive devil fish, which looks like a death grapple of sixteen legs in hopeless confusion. This time, however, the octopus is the first to cry quits and retreats "like an umbrella in a wind storm." Preceding these four scenes are glimpses of queer creatures that with their transparent, waving fins and filaments are veritable "shirt dancers", of the sea hare, who covers his retreat by a thick cloud, and the smoking caterpillar, who "literally" gases the enemy" by ejecting puffs of an acrid poison.

April 6, 1918 THE MOVING P

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Ditmars Series at Strand

Octopus, Devil Fish and Sea Turtle Give Fine Exhibition of Pugilistic Accomplishments in First of Series.

ONE OF the most interesting of zoological films which has recently been exhibited was seen at the Strand Theater, New York City, during the week of March 10. It constituted one reel of film and belonged to a series photographed by Raymond L. Ditmars, entitled "The Depths of the Sea." Closeups of the Devil Fish and of the Octopus are intensely interesting. These unlovely creatures are seen in deadly battle, after which one of them attacks a sea turtle and drags it to the very doors of its cave before being obliged to relinquish its hold. We are also privileged to see this same turtle feeding glutinously on small fish which it severs easily with the sharp edges of its jaws.

The next number of this series will deal with the electric fish, one of the most remarkable of sea freaks.

"THE LITTLE GIRL YOU WILL NEVER FORGET"

MABEL NORMAND in

"MICKEY"

THE PERSONALITY THAT RUNS THE GAMUT OF EVERY HUMAN EMOTION

Exhibitors:~

The most prominent Showmen in the Country have seen "Mickey" and all agree that it is the greatest photo-play ever produced.

You cannot book "Mickey" until you see it. For time and place of showing address:~

WESTERN IMPORT CO.

1010 BROKAW BLDG. N.Y.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

IN THE FILMS THAT MADE HIM FAMOUS

Book the Essanay-Chaplin comedies and keep your patrons laughing.

"HIS NEW JOB"
"THE TRAMP"
"IN THE PARK"
"THE CHAMPION"
"A WOMAN"
"BY THE SEA"
"A JITNEY ELOPEMENT"
"WORK"

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

SNAKEVILLE COMEDIES NOW READY FOR YOU

There has been such an insistent demand for these western fun makers that Essanay is issuing new prints and paper. There are more laughs packed in these one reelers than in the usual long comedy. One every week. Look them over!

"SNAKEVILLE'S FIRE BRIGADE"
"THE SNAKEVILLE SLEUTH"
"SLIPPERY SLIM AND THE FORTUNE TELLER"
"SLIPPERY SLIM AND THE GREEN EYED MONSTER"
"WHEN MACBETH CAME TO SNAKEVILLE"
"SLIPPERY SLIM AND HIS TOMBSTONE"
"SLIPPERY SLIM AND THE IMPERSONATOR"
"WHEN SLIPPERY SLIM MET THE CHAMPION"
"SNAKEVILLE'S NEW WAITRESS"
"SLIPPERY SLIM'S DILEMMA"

Essanay

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company,
New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

O. HENRY

Master of the Human Dramatic Touch

Every O. Henry Classic is a classic, whether it be in the form of a short story or a short picture.

O. Henry pictures have made more friends for the "movies" than the picturization of any other author's works.

Patsy DeForrest and Evart Overton in "Lost on Dress Parade" by O. Henry

The millions of readers of O. Henry hail his charm on the screen. It sways the heart of all alike—rich, poor, old, young, cultured or crude.

Four of the best stories of this American Genius for April

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

25 W. 44th St., New York City

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention the MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors..... 237
Advertising Aids for Busy Managers..... 285
All Ready for the Liberty Drive..... 229
Arnold, Sylvia, Newcomer..... 230
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 254

"Billy's Baby" (Goldwyn)..... 283
"Bit of Jade, A" (American)..... 282
"Bluebird, The" (Artcraft)..... 283
Blumenthal Challenges Critics..... 224
"Breakers Ahead" (Metro)..... 284

"Camouflage Kiss, A" (Fox)..... 282
Capitol Comedies Make Their Debut..... 256
"Chase Me, Charlie" (George Kleine System)..... 284
Chicago News Letter..... 250
Comedy Folks..... 218
Critical Reviews and Comments..... 281

David Come to Judgment, A..... 217
Daylight Saving Awkward in Cleveland..... 280
Detroit Film News..... 275
Dittmar, L. J., Forming New Company..... 227
Dolle, Fred, on Lenten Prohibition..... 227

Enduring Appeal of Good Films..... 274

Facts and Comments..... 215
Famous Players Organize Film Hospital.. 228
Ferrandini, Frank..... 226
First National Opens Oklahoma Office..... 227
First National Takes Over Gerard Film.... 254
Ford, Francis, to Return West..... 255
Foreign Trade News..... 231

Gathered by the Wayside..... 217
Gaumont Will Produce for State Rights.... 228
Government Film, 128 Reels of, for Coast... 278
Griffith Picture Opens Friday Night..... 228
Grinding the Crank..... 225

Hattiesburg Editor Arrested for Sunday Show..... 222
How It is Done at the Strand..... 226

Indianapolis Lyric Will be Larger..... 274

Kansas City Theaters Change Hands..... 277

Legislators Want Facts, Not Generalities.. 220
"Lie, The" (Artcraft)..... 283
"Life Mask, The" (Petrova Pictures)..... 283
"Little Miss No-Account" (Vitagraph).... 283
Live Publicity to Help Sunday Bill..... 222
"Living Target, A" (Pathe)..... 282
Love, Bessie, May Form Own Company.... 251
"Love Brokers, The" (Triangle)..... 282

Manhattan Exhibitors Get Busy..... 220
Manufacturer's Advance Notes..... 262
Montgomery Reports Titan City Ready..... 255
Motion Picture Educator..... 233
Motion Picture Exhibitor, The..... 223
Motion Picture Photography..... 244
"Mrs. Slacker" (Pathe)..... 282
Music for the Picture..... 245
New Producing Company in Canada..... 255
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 252
Northwest Board Effectively Co-operates.. 251

Ontario Taxes Occasional Picture Shows... 227

Paralta Studios, Work on, Progressing.... 256
Photoplaywright, The..... 240
Pickford, Jack, Now a Censor..... 255
Picture Experts Needed in France..... 236
Picture Measures Up in Maryland..... 221
Press Agents, What's Wrong with?..... 219
Projection Department..... 241

Rambles 'Round Filmtown..... 247
Red Cross Film Free to Exhibitors..... 219
"Red, Red Heart, The" (Bluebird)..... 281
"Rich Man's Darling, A" (Bluebird)..... 282
"Rough and Ready" (Fox)..... 281

St. Helens, Ore., Liberty Theater Opens at. 279
"Splendid Sinner, The" (Goldwyn)..... 281
State Rights Department..... 257
Stop Meddling with Sunday Entertainment. 221

Texas Theater Managers, Many, Visit Dallas 276
Tourneur to Produce Independently..... 224
Trimont Film is New Boston Exchange.... 273

Up-to-date Melodrama..... 216

"Witch Woman, The" (World)..... 281
"Woman in the Web, The" (Vitagraph).... 282

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS & CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Speer Carbon Co..... 299

CHAIR & SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
Steel Furniture Co..... 288

ELECTRIC & MECH. EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 300
Breco Electric Co..... 299
Exhibitors' Supply Co..... 289
Moving Picture Mch..... 289
Northewstern Electric Co..... 287
Porter, B. F..... 290
Swaab, Lewis M..... 289
Typhoon Fan Co..... 290
United Theater Equip. Corp..... 303
Universal Motor Co..... 301

FILM EXCHANGES.
Film Exchange, The..... 288

LENS MANUFACTURERS.
Gundlach Manhattan Opt. Co..... 301

LOBBY DISPLAYS.
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 287
Newman Mfg. Co..... 291

MFRS. OF INDUSTRIAL PICTURES.
Cromlow Film Laboratories..... 291
Duhem M. P. Co..... 301
Erbograph Co..... 300
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 291
Ford Optical Co..... 297
Gunby Bros..... 291
Kessel & Downing..... 295
Rothacker Film Mfg. Co..... 288
Velasco & Puig..... 289

MFRS. OF MOVING PICTURES.
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc..... 158
Broadway Star Features..... 213
Cartoon Film Co., Ltd..... 202-3
Clune Producing Co..... 289
Educational Films Corp. of America..... 198
Epstein, M. S..... 210
Essanay Film Mfg. Co..... 159-60, 212
First Nat'l Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc..... 188-9
Fox Film Corp..... 174-9
Gaumont Co..... 209
Goldwyn Pictures Corp..... 184-87
Griffith, D. W..... 272
Haworth Pictures Corp..... 289
Hodkinson, W. W. Corp..... 180-81
Inter-Ocean Film Corp..... 190
Ivan Film Productions..... 208
Jewel Productions, Inc..... 161-4
Keeney, Frank..... 191
Metro Pictures Corp..... 196-7
Mutual Film Corp..... Colored Insert
Paralta Plays, Inc..... Colored Insert
Paramount Pictures Corp, Colored Insert, 167-70
Pathe Exchange, Inc..... 192-5
Petrova Picture Co..... 190
Piedmont Pictures Corp..... 206
Pioneer Film Corp..... 183
Rapf, Harry..... 204-5
Select Pictures Corp..... 200-1
Triangle Distrib. Corp..... 172-3
Triangle Film Corp..... 171
United Pictures Theaters of America..... 207
Universal Film Mfg. Co..... 165
U. S. Exhibitors Book Corp..... 199
Western Import Co..... 211

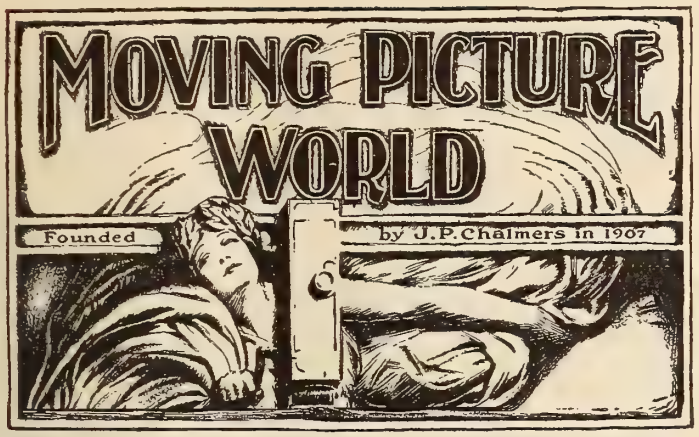
MISCELLANEOUS.
Automatic T. S. & C. R. Co..... 288
Bioscope, The..... 287
Cine-Mundial..... 301
Cinema, The..... 287
Classified Advertisements..... 297
Eastman Kodak Co..... 301
La Cinematografia Italiana..... 300
Moore, Wm. N..... 289
M. P. Directory Co..... 300
M. P. World Circulation Coupon..... 300
National Ticket Co..... 290
Our-Boys-in-France Tobacco Fund..... 290
Richardson's M. P. Handbook..... 301
Robinson, T. H..... 289
Rosenthal, Al..... 288
Sampliner Adv. Co., Inc..... 289
Screencraft..... 300
Solidhed Tack Co..... 289
Stone, A..... 287

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Bass Camera Co..... 289
Burke & James, Inc..... 288

MUSIC & MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photoplayer Co..... 289
Marquette Piano Co..... 299
Sinn, Clarence E..... 291

PROJECTION MACHINE MFRS.
De Vry Corp., The..... 301
Enterprise Opt. Mfg. Co..... 289
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 304
Precision Mch. Co..... 293

PROJECTION SCREEN MFRS.
Gold King Screen Co..... 300



Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

516 FIFTH AVENUE, AT 43D STREET, NEW YORK CITY

(Telephone, Murray Hill, 1610, 1611, 1612, 1613.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
James L. Hoff.....Managing Editor
A. MacArthur, Jr.....Advertising Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—610-611 Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4640.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Cuba, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time should be allowed for change.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—One dollar for twenty words or less; over twenty words, five cents per word.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-third Street, New York, and not to individuals.

CINE-MUNDIAL, the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 516 Fifth Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American and Spanish-speaking market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, April 13, 1918

Facts and Comments

THIS issue will carry the MOVING PICTURE WORLD'S last call on the Liberty Loan drive. As fitting finale to our brief campaign we print a sixteen-page insert of special Liberty Loan advertising, paid for by as many of the leading advertisers as there were pages to print upon. We are pleased with the response that has been made by exhibitors and are sure that thousands from whom we have not heard will be just as enthusiastic and efficient in their efforts to further the raising of the loan. All that now remains is to go to it and bring the record of your city up to the official estimate of its share.

* * *

WE are in receipt of a statement made by Louis F. Blumenthal—his first official pronunciamento, he says—in which he intimates that "it is annoying to be attacked by innuendo or direct misstatements that question our motives and cast discredit by raising false issues." Mr. Blumenthal, who is an officer of the United Picture Theaters of America, declares that his is "a genuine co-operative society, exhibitor-controlled in every sense of the word. All but a small fraction of the stock belongs to the members who vote according to the amount of their holdings and who elect directors yearly. The plan is as democratic as the town meeting or popular suffrage or the co-operative building and loan association or the mutual insurance society." By these beneficent means, Mr. Blumenthal insists, "enormous salaries are going to be cut down, duplications of effort abolished, roundabout ways of doing business replaced by simple, economical ones. The average man will benefit. Instead of an economic peon, he will be an independent, self-respecting co-operator."

*

Surely the optimism of Mr. Blumenthal is refreshing. Who wants to be an "economic peon"? Why should anyone be an "economic peon" when $250 will make him a "self-respecting co-operator"? In all seriousness we ask it. But the examples of peonless co-operating organizations which Mr. Blumenthal mentions are unfortunate. Co-operative building and loan associations, as known in this great state of New York, have largely been liquidated by order of the State Bank Examiner, who has declared them to be unsound, and mutual insurance societies not financially controlled are proving an intolerable burden to their members.

*

Aside from those slight inconsistencies Mr. Blumenthal's argument has a fine bolshevikian flavor. The trouble with Mr. Blumenthal and his associates is that they are dreaming of the millennium. Undoubtedly many of their visions all of us would like to see come true, but like dreams they are made up of hopes and promises and other conditions over which the promoters have no control. Even though they might win to the extent that they secure the 2,000 exhibiting days, calculated to be sufficient to start their little band wagon on its way, their real troubles would then be only begun.

*

However, let the merry strife continue. We call the attention of Tom Hamlin to the claim by Mr. Blumenthal that the stockholders who incorporated the United Picture Theaters do not control the capital stock and that it is "a genuine co-operative society, exhibitor-controlled in every sense of the word," and confidently await his apology. In the meantime let all hands go to Frank Rembusch's meeting at the Astor Hotel on April 8 and get the real dope on co-operation.

* * *

WHILE exhibitors in New York state are striving to secure the enactment of a Sunday Option bill a battle is on in Mississippi to provide Sunday amusement for the thousands of soldiers in the training camp at Hattiesburg, a small town in that state, and against the same narrow gauged influences. There, as here, a small group of sabbatarians insist, willy-nilly, that the Sabbath day shall be kept (w)holy for them without regard for the wishes of others. There, as here, at some time when strong sectarian influences dominated the community, a "blue" law was passed which barred all sorts of amusements on Sunday except psalm singing. Here we have succeeded in obtaining some modification of the law, but in Mississippi all efforts to modify the rule, even to provide entertainment for the soldiers in training, has proved unavailing. But the world is moving rapidly, and some day sectarians will learn that this country is a Christian country wherein people may be as happy on Sunday as on any other day of the week.

Up-to-Date Melodrama

By Louis Reeves Harrison

THERE is nothing old under the sun.

Even melodrama has responded to a law of nature which enables all living things to vary. It is as plastic as we are, quite as capable of being molded into new shapes, and we are certainly progressing. The day may come when the much-abused word "melodrama," now applied to sensational plays in general, will not be so generally used in a sense more or less derogatory. It will be understood that there is such a thing as good melodrama, both good and bad, just as in other forms, even good enough to rouse conscience in a press agent.

There is a new definition of melodrama.

It came from a well known producer, who nominates it "The adventures of grown-up red-blooded people." He poured the acid of scorn upon stories relating to the colorless ingenue in curls and the chalk-faced hero in a dress suit who faces the villain with a noble expression, flipping his cigarette ashes to show how cool he is, and folds the dear child to his breast in the last scene. "Such kids," said the producer, "know nothing about living—they couldn't even earn one." According to this new definition, both realism and characterization can be employed to strengthen melodrama without injury to its intensity and sensationalism.

The new hero has no valet.

He can pick up his own gloves and cane. He can even change from a dress coat to a smoking jacket without the assistance of a "man." He is his own "man," just like the rest of us. He is neither a Wall Street millionaire, nor just home from college. Instead of being glorified as an "Oh-how noble" poetic automaton, an unreal thing, wholly apart from life as we know it, a blank-verse myth, he may be an irregular chunk of humanity blasted out of rude experience, unready to be pieced in with the other materials of organized society until he gets his rough edges of individuality knocked off.

The new heroine has a "past."

She may not have been badly scorched, but she has not been kept in cold storage up to the chanting of that high and holy canticle, the betrothal embrace. She may even be a married woman, who no longer wears a veil of illusion for a work-weary husband, now that the law compels him to support her in idleness, or what is much the same thing, a mere pretense of "keeping house," the real work being done by a healthy hired girl. She may be playing with dangerous fires of "living her own life," or otherwise preparing for a term in the hospital, jail, or lunatic asylum, a real woman, like those who make bridge teas possible and cabarets profitable.

"Have a heart, villain!"

And he has. He no longer revels in his sinister occupation. No longer does he invite death with a smile of fiendish superiority, while he locks the innocent heroine in the lions cage or tries to toss her over a cliff. It would not send a thrill up and down our spinal columns today if he threw her off the Woolworth tower. We know in advance that she is sure to land comfortably in the arms of the hero below, safe and sound, not a hairpin missing. Ancient melodrama lost its pull when people found their common sense. The deep-dyed villain of other days, the incarnation of evil, was part of a sermon on the reward of virtue and the punishment of vice.

We are now dealing with villainy as it exists, not as it is ordered.

This does not mean that melodrama has lost its optimism. The guilty may be punished in the end, but we have less assurance of that during the course of action. Hero and heroine may be flung into the crucible of fiery experience, in peril of destruction worse than death, but they do not bear charmed lives. They may escape and be purified by the action and reaction of events, but there is little foreseen, and they may not come out as good as new.

Characters in melodrama are chaperoned by destiny.

We are powerfully influenced by events—sometimes we look to them for guidance and protection—but we need not always yield to those which press us hardest, as did the heroine of ancient melodrama. We can get into the trenches and put up a stiff resistance to adverse circumstances. From the moment we show patience and courage we cease to be automatons, swayed this way and that by what occurs to us, and become human beings. The new melodrama is peopled with real human beings because they are more apt to enlist human sympathy and sustained interest.

Melodrama is beginning to tingle with reality.

It may not preach a philosophy of life, much less announce that it has one to preach, as it did in other days gone by, but it is beginning to have a semblance to what might occur in the career of any man or woman under stress of circumstances. What was conventional in the old form is gradually giving way to what is possible in the new. It is not always easy to bring exciting events down to a basis of belief in this era of good-natured skepticism, but there is nothing unreal about vain struggle and bitter heartache, so melodrama is drawing away from mere motion to deep emotion.

All forms of drama tend to approach one another and commingle.

You hate to think of losing your individuality, but you cannot escape getting mixed up in the shuffle, where others are hoping in the morning, struggling all day and reveling, or regretting, at night. The more active your life, the more closely you get in touch with other individualities and become affected by them. You may hate them or like them, as the case may be, but you find your own scope broadening to a more generous recognition of what is good in others to the extent of incorporating that good in yourself.

Just in that way melodrama's scope has been broadened.

The hateful things in life, cruelty, greed, ingratitude, injustice and the like, can be shown in human character the more effectively that one human being is not made up entirely of evil and another the incarnation of good. A man may be debased by the same instincts which ennoble him under different conditions of living. Just so the evil in him seems to be brought to its worst expression through the effects of environment—he may be an arrogant brute in success and be refined by hardship and failure, or at least brought to a realization that all good things were not made for him alone.

The power of the new drama comes from its humanizing effect.

This does not mean a loss of sensational and exciting events, but rather their augmentation—they are happening to recognizable people. On the background of swift events is thrown one or more sharply defined personal tragedies. The interesting development of high tension permits a gradual characterization. One layer after another is removed from the surface by events until the whole being stands revealed, a faulty and faltering creature like the one we recognize in self, when we are not stone-blind with egotism. Thus melodrama is allowed greater license to its benefit. With no loss of excitement and sense of uncertainty, we are permitted to enjoy a finer craftsmanship, which holds interest the more surely that it is attached to the tendrils of the human heart.

A David Come to Judgment

By Edward Weitzel.

DAVID BELASCO has unbosomed himself regarding the moving picture play. In an article to which he gives the title "The Movies—My Profession's Flickering Bogy," the man who is frequently referred to as "the Wizard of the Stage" says a number of very pleasant things about the screen—also several other things that are not quite so complimentary.

One statement in particular is full of interest: "I have never felt an ambition to direct a motion picture play, but I have often thought of the process I would adopt if I were to undertake such a task. It would be greatly at variance with the methods now followed in the studios, but I wager I would obtain good results. I would avoid the use of 'cut-backs,' 'close-ups,' and the other cumbersome and disconcerting devices now in vogue on the screens. And I would never consider my picture fit for public exhibition so long as it had to be interrupted by captions of explanation."

It is a pity that David Belasco cannot be induced to attempt the direction of a photoplay. The experiment would be well worth watching. Everyone who is acquainted with the results he obtains in his own field of endeavor is aware that a mind of his resource and invention would be bound to discover something new in screen drama. It is also quite as likely that after he had brought them to light he would often be surprised to learn that his new methods were not adapted to every form of moving picture and that in many cases the old way of telling a screen story would furnish the spectator with the same amount of enjoyment as the most advanced specimen of screen art devised by the producer of "Marie Odile" and "Tiger Rose."

To put it specifically, the wide latitude of the screen as to time and space prevents its activities from being limited in the manner the stage is circumscribed, and the picture novel is as legitimate a product of the camera as the spectacle or the photoplay. Up to the present the difference between the novel and the play has not been at all clearly defined. The great need is for a scenario editor who, by training or instinct, will be able to decide correctly in which class a story belongs.

There was released within the last month a screen version of a stage play that fairly cries aloud for the sort of treatment which the dramatic instinct of Belasco recognizes as the most effective, when he writes: "I would aim to tell the story, not by a correlation of incidents, but by the facial expressions of the actors. As on my regular stage, I would scrutinize every scene closely to discover distracting, confusing, or reiterated points, and these I would contrive to remove." One of the scenes in the picture alluded to is so intense that the flashing from one character to the other and the adjusting of the sight from the "close-ups" to the full stage views disturbs the tension and mars the tragic of the act.

Those who have made a thorough study of the screen do not need to be told that every one of the devices condemned by the eminent stage director has its use in the moving picture. The Belascoesque dictum, "A motion picture play which must depend on mottoes to communicate its meaning to the spectator is suitable only to be thrown away," is not borne out by test. It depends upon the nature of the play. It is the indiscriminate use of such devices that is to be condemned. All three are much better suited to the picture novel, but the "sub-title" can be made a strong aid to screen comedy. A cleverly devised situation which has kept the spectator chuckling for several minutes can be given a "sub-title" that is like a match applied to gunpowder and touches off a roar of laughter equal to any heard on the regular stage.

Another pronouncement which proves that its author has not informed himself thoroughly on the matter is the following: "When motion pictures attempt to penetrate beneath the surface of life in the effort to anaylze and interpret it they at once establish their limitations. Right here is drawn the line of division which must always separate the screen from the stage and define the essential difference between the picture show and the acted and spoken play."

The purpose of mimetic art is to create a certain effect upon the the emotions of the spectator by showing him some peculiar phase of human experience. In common with the stage at its best, the screen in its highest estate is capable of accomplishing this to a remarkable degree and of beguiling its devotee of his smiles and tears, of his merriment and his sympathy. The method is different but the effect is the same. The rapt attention and quick response accorded the truthful unfolding of life in the picture play is a complete refutation of its inability to keep pace with the stage in this respect.

Several more of the Belasco indictments are quite as erroneous. Others will repay considerable thought.

Gathered by the Wayside

By Sam Spedon.

THERE is one thing that counts in all legislative matters, that is the anticipation of them far enough in advance to give them proper time and attention. This fact was very forcibly impressed when at the eleventh hour it was discovered that the legislative representatives had not been lined up to introduce the Motion Picture Option Bill in the New York State Senate and Assembly. Through the quick action of the Allied Committee two of the best men in the legislature took it in hand and introduced it. The experiences and deliberations of the Allied Committee of the industry at Albany during the introduction of this bill have taught the industry more about co-operative action and united effort than all past years. If the exhibitors continue to conduct their meetings in the same manner and spirit as were manifested at Albany by the Allied Committee, they will find the solution of their problems a great deal easier than they have been in the past.

Keeping Up the Good Work.

One of the most progressive movements made by the committee was the appointment of fifty-one senatorial district captains to keep in touch with all the legislative representatives of the State and the continuance of these captains to further their endeavors of the future. These captains were chosen because of their fitness for the work in their community, men of influence, men of character, who will carry weight with those whom they approach. It would be well for all exhibitors' organizations throughout the United States to follow the move by the exhibitors of the State of New York.

Up State to the Front.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the up-State exhibitors for the way in which they gave their time, money and effort in behalf of the Motion Picture Option Bill, not only for the benefits they might derive, but for the benefit to all exhibitors who desire Sunday opening. Never before have they shown such interest in the affairs of the industry as they now display. Their seeming indifference in the past was probably due to the methods of those who were managing the affairs of the exhibitors and the way in which conventions and meetings were conducted, co-operation and organization were lacking. They felt like a tail with no body or head to which to attach itself. At Albany they found things different, they met a representative body of men who had a common interest, willing to co-operate with each other for a common purpose, with no ulterior or personal motives. The sincerity and disposition displayed were to their liking and if continued will do more for organization than all the big noise and discord of the past. This calls to mind that all things should be done decently and in order, with less noise and more quiet deliberateness. The shouting should be done after results have been accomplished, not before.

"Put the Best Foot Forward."

In conversation with a prominent exhibitor, he said: "I think the exhibitors ought to dress up. I mean they should make themselves of more importance by putting the best men in the front as representatives of our interests, to make the best impression possible. I also believe the exhibitors should have a New York headquarters of sufficient importance and accommodation to centralize our interests and deliberations." We are glad to repeat this, because we believe he said something worth while.

Taking His Place.

In the past it was easy to run a "movie show" and it was easy money. No one took the "movies" seriously and no one took the so-called "exhibitor" seriously. Motion pictures were not considered an industry then and the exhibitor was thought a hybrid excrescence of a junkman, a boot-black—almost anything. Things have changed since then and motion pictures are now classed as the fifth largest industry of the world. Exhibitors are looked upon as men of business and affairs. It is time they took themselves and business seriously. It is their duty to retain the respect which motion pictures have won for them and their business. Exhibitors are now realizing that they should keep pace with the dignity of the art and, with few exceptions, they are doing everything in their power to live up to it. As a whole, there is no distinction between the producer and exhibitor, socially or as a business factor.

If you have attended recent meetings of the exhibitors, you have noticed a difference in their personal and the conduct of their deliberations. Of course, we have noticed a disposition on the part of a few to indulge in by-play that has not been in accord with strict propriety and parliamentary rule, but gradually they are getting wise to themselves and an appreciation of the unfavorable comments it creates.

A Strong Guiding Hand at the Helm.

While we think of it we will speak of another matter we have had in mind for some time.

To keep any body of men under control, direct their affairs and shape their destinies, a strong guiding hand is needed. In selecting officers of any organization that is the first essential to be considered. Popularity is an essential, but still more to be desired are character, strict integrity, fair-mindedness, an undivided interest in whatever branch of the industry the organization represents. Above all the governing power should be vested in a man without ulterior or selfish motives. This is putting the standard pretty high, but you know what we mean and these qualifications are to be counted on. It might be well to think of these things now, not only in our local but in our state and national organizations.

Comedy Folks

By Robert C. McElravy.

THE comedy touch is a highly desirable thing in a screen performance. The public responds to the call of the comedian at all times, if it is a real call with a real comedian behind it. Fortunately the firms have developed many such welcome individuals and is all the while producing more of them. While the legitimate stage has apparently failed in recent years to turn up youngsters to some day fill the shoes of men like Frank Daniels, Eddie Foy and De Wolfe Hopper, the screen is developing any number of funny men.

Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin came over from the legitimate stage, but the films lay claim to them. Chaplin's talents were more or less buried in a vaudeville act called "A Night in an English Music Hall"; it required the spacious scope of the screen to give him full opportunity. Fairbanks was good on the stage, but circumscribed by the same limitations of space. He was built for leaping chasms and jumping astride his horse from the top of the roof, with all outdoors as his playground. Of Roscoe Arbuckle's stage experience we in the east know not a great deal, but there is no doubting the magnitude of his screen achievements.

There are many comic lights less widely known than these upon the screen. The fans are familiar with them and follow their new offerings with eagerness. Some of these comedians are still young and have perhaps not struck their permanent stride, but may safely be regarded as comers.

Harold Lloyd is a young performer with a real comic bent. He is a personable young fellow of the Max Linder, dress-suit type. He can carry a delightful nonchalance with him through a series of misadventures that would break down the self-possession of a hitching post. There is something delightfully spontaneous about his methods and his facial expressions are laughable. His acquaintance should be cultivated.

For brisk, enjoyable team work in offerings of a semi-burlesque type, Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran are two young performers who may be depended upon for good effects. Amusing domestic situations are perhaps their specialty, with Eddie as the young husband and Lee playing the domineering janitor, but they have played a much more varied program than this and seldom fail to deliver up something worth while. They are, however, more dependent upon good plots than certain other comedians.

Al Christie's group of young players is an aggregation which does much commendable work in domestic and other situations where "newlyweds" play the leading roles. Their forte is light comedy of a higher type, with all the complications of love's young dream to keep the plot in motion. The performers furnish the good looks and nerve, but for the unfailing comedy touch behind their efforts one would perhaps have to go to Mr. Christie himself, as he directs his own players.

There is still another type of gloom-destroying film, which has its shining performers. This may be termed the real "comic," as it resembles nothing so much as a string of funny cartoons by some newspaper artist set in motion on the screen. This form of screen humor is at once the despair of the "high brows" and the delight of the fans; it is the rock upon which our well known human nature splits, sending up showers of agitated froth. The angry waves of censorship are forever breaking upon this form of amusement, yet its vulgarity, when under proper control, is utterly harmless. A close acquaintance with its genial absurdities will upset the most violent prejudice. There is no social prestige to be acquired by laughing at these comics, so some of "our best people" profess to find them painful.

There are literally scores of expert slapstick comedians, many of whom are intimately known to the masses. But even here there is the usual line of distinction; one performer may fall down and bring shouts of laughter, another may try it and fail. Many players, both men and women, have gained their earlier experiences in the comics and gone on to other types of photoplays. Certain others are content with this field because the public insists upon seeing more and more of their work in it.

What's Wrong With Press Agents?

That's the Question Asked by Newark Dramatic Editor and Then He Proceeds to Answer It.

By Justin Fair.

I AM one of those rare birds, a veteran newspaper writer who realizes that the movies constitute the most important recreation pursuit of the hundred million people of America. I have come to know that to every baseball fan in town, a city of about 500,000 within its metropolitan district, there are a hundred movie fans, and all-year-round ones, too. So here on the Star-Eagle we are regarding the movies as news.

If Mary Pickford buys a new motor car or is acting before the camera for a new release it is news to us. It makes no difference whether the houses that will show that release are advertisers in our columns or not. The information is printed for its news value.

The dramatic department of the Star-Eagle, in which is incorporated the news of the screen, is printed on what we consider our most important page—the editorial page. Every day we have at least one new picture of a photoplay artist, some times a "character" picture, but more often not. We print about one full column of news paragraphs having to do with motion picture activities every day, and our "questions and answers" department brings fifty letters a day, on an average, to my desk.

It is a fact, however, that I have a mighty tough job of it. I mean to say that the task of collecting material for this department is hard, because the producing companies deliberately make it so.

I have no desire to scold the press agents of the studios, but the hard, cold fact remains that 90 per cent. of the material that comes to my desk is of no value, of no assistance whatever, to me. I dare say there is an average of twenty pieces of mail a day received from the studios, the exchanges and the stars' own personal press agents. (Yes, they do have em.) Possibly one envelope will contain something I can use without going to the trouble of rewriting, rehandling and revamping.

My criticism of the printed press sheets is: That the material is too "wild," too obviously "made" or too far-fetched to be printed in a newspaper that takes the movies seriously; that the press sheets seem to be got up hastily (with two or three exceptions). There are names of stars spelled wrong; there are given names confused with the names of other picture players. For instance, one such sheet recently contained a paragraph to the effect that negotiations were in progress to adapt certain David Morosco successes to screen use.

Few big town newspapers care to use "stills." They are too big, for one thing, and they do not look well in the page. Much better, I find, are one and two column reproductions of the stars. But the trouble with the photographs sent out now is that they are all alike. They look as if they might have all been posed in a certain studio on a certain day.

The press department of the studios might take a tip from the book publishers in the matter of supplying news photographs of their stars. Let us say, for instance, that the Blazer Studios have a star, by name Jane Blank. Now, what the press agent probably wants to do is to send out a printed sheet or a mimeograph batch (worse yet) telling a lot of fool things about Jane Blank. She has a pet parrot who can scream "Help! Police!" no doubt. Maybe she was educated in a convent. Perhaps she is knitting for the boys in France. (Up to date, I find from press sheets, that 1,568 women of the movies are doing it.) For "art," the press sheet may have five stills from the current release in which Miss Blank appears, and a one or two column portrait mat may be sent.

Large newspapers do not want mats. I do not want them. I dare say that no paper in a city of more than 300,000 population wants them.

What the press agent of the Blazer Studios should have sent out, to please me, anyway, and get a good showing, would be a series of good NEWS photographs of Miss Blank. Show her sitting at a desk writing a letter. Not a "still," but a real honest-to-goodness picture in which the young woman wears no beaded eye-lashes, no dinner gown and hasn't a nice, pearly smile. We want our readers to know that men and women of the movies are regular human beings just like we are.

Witness the silly press stories that were sent out for Theda Bara a few years ago. The "Algerian" parent and the Sahara desert birthplace were worse than stupid. It crabbed the force of Theda Bara's popularity. It didn't drive home to the movie patrons that a girl born in Cincinnati, without stage experience, without romance in her girlhood days, could rise to the top rung of the ladder in the photoplay world. Happily the Fox press agents have stopped this bunk and now admit publicly that Theda Bara is a human sort of a young woman without a bit of queer blood in her.

All movies publicity sent out from studios and New York offices is too long.

Some of it, especially most of that awful material written for male stars like Bushman, Walsh, and others of that type, is too gushy. Even young girls who feast their souls at the movies day in and day out are not fools, exactly. One would think some of the stuff written in Bushman's behalf was intended for the intellectual nourishment of the inmates of an asylum for feeble-minded females.

The use of the mimeograph is very annoying to a conscientious newspaper editor. The print is usually blurred, sometimes too faint to be deciphered, and never tidy. I am glad to notice that the Fox publicity department has decided to confine its press information to the printed sheet, which is by far, the best way.

One thing that I believe all studios should do once every six months. Send out a fresh photograph of all stars and important players. On the back of the photo paste a printed slip in which is given all the vtal statistical information about the subject; right name, birthplace, age, experence and titles of pictures the subject has appeared in up to date.

Red Cross Film Free to Exhibitors

"The Spirit of the Red Cross" Will Be Distributed by Members of the National Association.

JESSE L. LASKY, chairman of the committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry appointed to co-operate with the American Red Cross, last week announced at his office in the New York headquarters of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation the plan of distribution of the official Red Cross film "The Spirit of the Red Cross."

"This truly excellent film, produced by Jack Eaton, is in itself a fine show for any exhibitor to present," said Mr. Lasky. "In fact, it has been termed 'a Birth of a Nation in two reels,' disclosing a complete story with many thrilling battle scenes of modern warfare, a charming romance running throughout the picture. It will be booked absolutely gratis and should prove an important factor in strengthening any motion picture bill.

"Each distributing organization which is a member of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry will be allotted a number of prnts which will be divided among its exchange for free bookings. It is our desire to keep these prints working so that not a single day will be lost during a given period, but that the film will be shown in certain theaters of every territory throughout the country. Posters and other material are now being planned and an announcement on this phase of the exploitation will be forthcoming shortly."

Mr. Lasky has just sent a letter to the heads of the various distributing organizations who are members of the National Association, further explaining the handling of the Red Cross film. Accompanying each letter he has sent a schedule showing the number of prints allotted to each territory covered by the company addressed.

Legislators Want Facts, Not Generalities

Codes Committee Prepared with Open Mind to Examine Sunday Bill at Albany

Albany, March 29.

WE do not want generalities. Arguments for or against the Motion Picture Option bill at the hearing before the Codes Committee next Tuesday, April 2, must be concise and definite, substantiated with actual figures as far as it is possible. We will welcome figures showing the committee the number of motion picture houses in the cities, incorporated villages and hamlets of the state, the seating capacity, the population from which they draw, receipts, amount of investment, and, in fact, any and all information showing clearly on the one hand what legalized Sunday movies would really mean in the way of innocent amusement, in the way of additional revenue to the government, and, on the other hand, what bearing any opposition from any one locality should have to the proposition in general."

The above statement made by a member of a Codes committee can be taken as the attitude of the entire committee in regard to the coming hearing. In short, the committee wants to be fair-minded. It stands ready to hear both sides of the proposition before taking any further action towards what will mean the life or the death of the measure.

What is more, the committee hopes that each side will be fully represented next week and that each representative will come prepared not with some long-winded argument, but a short one, dealing in a direct way with the issue at hand and backing up the assertions by bona fide figures and statements.

Ministers will be just as welcome before the committee hearing as exhibitors or representatives of other branches of the film industry. The committee is anxious that representatives of civic, labor and similar organizations attend the hearing in order that it may gain a better idea of their attitude toward the whole proposition.

The hearing is set for 2 o'clock in the Senate Chamber, but with the rush of eleventh-hour business now confronting the members, it is not unlikely that the hearing will be late in getting under way, as was the case last year.

In a way this particular hearing could not be held before a more favorably constituted committee. Seven of the nine senators come from cities. Senators Newton and Slater are the only ones residing in small places. Senator Newton, however, is chairman of the codes committee. Senator Gilchrist comes from Brooklyn, Senator Lawson and Senator Murphy also being of the same city; Senators Walker, Dowling and Cotillo come from New York, while Senator Wellington is from Troy, where Sunday movies prevail and attract large numbers from Albany. One member of the committee is open in saying that he is opposed to the bill.

Various senators commenting on the probable outcome of the bill distinctly indicate that if the bill is reported out of committee and is not buried in general orders to remain there, but comes to a vote, they will be governed by the wish of their constituents. Thus will the effect of the present campaigns conducted by exhibitors and the opposing forces show their strength.

The motion picture interests could not have chosen two better men than Senator Thompson and Assemblyman Welsh to introduce the bill, for both are fighters for any bill which they foster, both are wise as to parliamentary proceedings and equally well acquainted with the ins and outs of the legislative game.

In the Assembly the bill is being rapidly advanced, now being listed for third reading. The Legislature is slated to adjourn its present session on or about April 15.

C. L. GRANT.

Manhattan Exhibitors Get Busy

Meeting at Wurlitzer Hall Responds to Call for Aid in Supporting Sunday Option Bill.

FIFTY exhibitors and a few film men of Greater New York assembled in mass meeting at Wurlitzer Hall on Friday, 2 P. M., March 29, to take under advisement and consideration the Motion Picture Option Bill which has had a third reading before the Assembly of New York State and had a hearing on Tuesday, April 2, before the Senate Committee. Sydney Cohen, president of New York State League, presided, and after calling the meeting to order he set forth its objects. First he urged the exhibitors to get busy among themselves and their friends by sending telegrams and letters of personal communication with their legislative representatives. Then he made a plea for funds for defraying the legitimate expenses involved by the Allied Committee in sending proper representatives to Albany for printing, postage and other incidental expenses.

John Manheimer, president of Manhattan local league, presented the many phases of the bill, the work that has been already done, what the passage of the bill would mean in dollars and cents to every exhibitor and urged upon all present to support it with their time and money. The third speaker was Max Spiegel, chairman of the Allied Committee, who has worked incessantly for the bill and given both time and money in its behalf. He described what the up-State exhibitors had done in the interest of the bill and spoke of the money they had contributed, a very liberal amount, towards the Allied Committee fund. In the course of his remarks he made a comparison of the liberality of the up-State exhibitors and the exhibitors of Greater New York. He referred to the latter as "welshers," a word which had been used by another speaker. Immediately Sam Trigger jumped up and took exception to Mr. Spiegel referring to the New York exhibitors as "welshers." This sudden outburst was emphasized by the fact that Mr. Trigger has not been at any of the exhibitors' meetings for almost a year and many did not know he was present. Mr. Trigger spoke of the work which the New York exhibitors had done last year to defeat the Wheeler Bill by giving their time and money.

Henry Stedecker, who had previously spoken of the local exhibitors who did not contribute to the fund as "welshers," took sides with Mr. Trigger and objected to them being called by that term.

F. H. Elliott, secretary of the N. A. M. P. I. and the Allied Committee, gave an exhaustive resumé of the work which had been done to introduce the bill and get it before the Assembly and the Senate Committee for hearing on Tuesday, April 2. He appealed to the exhibitors to get busy with their representatives in the legislature and told them the importance of bringing a large delegation to Albany on Tuesday to show the strength and interest there is behind the bill. He pointed out the danger of being too sanguine and optimistic and growing lax in their efforts to promote the bill in every way possible, because the work had only just begun and the danger lies in the Senate.

Sam Berman said: "What we want is a fund large enough to meet expenses," which assertion he followed up with a donation of twenty-five dollars, making thirty-five dollars as his share Mr Gerdsen, of Queens, was on his feet and volunteered to act as collector and it was no time before six hundred and seventy dollars was collected and more pledged.

Mr. Stedecker objected to this haphazard way of securing funds and said every theater should give ten cents a seat. On motion it was decided that a committee be appointed to go to every theater in New York City and its boroughs and demand five cents a seat from every exhibitor. Sydney Cohen, presiding, appointed a committee of five to get busy at once. Those exhibitors not meeting the demand will be posted on the records of the Allied Committee. A committee will also wait on the producers. In conclusion, it was decided that all the local leagues send five delegates to Albany on Tuesday.

Bronx Exhibitors Active.

On Thursday evening, March 28, at 12 p. m., the exhibitors' league of the Bronx, known as the Cinema Exhibitors' Association, held its regular bi-monthly meeting at its headquarters, 1243 Southern Boulevard, New York. On account of the religious holidays there were only fifteen out of forty members present.

Before the regular order of business a representative of a local film delivery express company made a proposition for the delivery of film for the exhibitors of the Bronx. The matter was discussed and ended in a promise to consider the proposition if they made a change in their deliveries at any future time.

The meeting was opened by regular business with the roll call and reading of minutes of previous meeting, by Henry Cole, secretary. John Wittmann, the president, spoke of sending delegates to Albany, April 2. On motion it was decided to send five, including the president and secretary, who are members of the Allied Committee. Sam Spedon, of the Moving Picture World, expounded the Motion Picture Option bill and urged co-operative action, outlining the many ways in which it could be secured. On motion a committee was appointed by the chair to get in touch with the exhibitors of the Bronx not members of the Cinema Club and urge them to contribute to the Allied fund. It was also voted that a committee be appointed to visit the exhibitors of the Bronx and keep in communication with them on the Liberty Loan drive. This was done in response to a communication from Secretary McAdoo to Mr. Whitman.

New Haven Exhibitors to Hold Banquet.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association of New Haven, Conn., will hold an informal banquet at the Mainster's Cafe, Heublein, on Tuesday evening, April 9. The object of the banquet is to get together all who are interested in any way in the film industry. Price of tickets are $3.50 per plate, reserved in advance.

Stop Meddling with Sunday Entertainments

Curtailment at This Time Is Out of Place and Is Inviting Calamity, Says Mutual's President.

By John R. Freuler.

THESE are days of harrowing suffering and superlative sacrifice, days when the great mass of the people are entitled to get from life every atom of happiness and pleasure—entitled to every moment that will take them from the horror of reality to the realm of even momentary enjoyment.

It is a time when any effort to curtail entertainment is out of place. The morale of the people is of utmost importance in the struggle for endurance through which the nation is passing. To deprive them of any of their few chances to enjoy life is to invite calamity within our own borders.

The time is particularly and peculiarly inopportune for meddling reformers to be urging upon the legislative bodies of our states and municipalities laws for the Sunday closing of the motion picture theater. The men who legislate for us are carrying a greater responsibility than ever and they can ill afford to tamper with the existing social order.

It is unfortunate that we have in many communities people who are so thoroughly saturated with the notion that they must make everybody else live as they themselves live, that the question of Sunday closing of motion picture theaters is forever agitated. The professional meddler, however, must meddle; he always has meddled and always will, but in times like these he ought to be careful what he meddles with.

I maintain that the American citizen is as much entitled to his Sunday picture as he is to his Sunday newspaper. The Sunday newspaper is a form of enlightenment and entertainment, more of entertainment than enlightenment. The motion picture, too, is a form of enlightenment and entertainment.

Progressive social workers and forward looking churchmen are not in the ranks of the agitators of Sunday closing. The opponents of the Sunday theater are professional reformers.

The importance of the motion picture has been demonstrated in many instances in the last few months of the "speeding up" process which has been going on in industries. The big factories devoting their energies to the making of munitions and war supplies have been quick to realize the absolute necessity of entertainment for their workmen, and today in many communities the theaters erected by factories are showing the best films.

England and France have gradually increased the hours of labor. The United States, as the pressure becomes greater, will have to increase the hours of labor. As the hours of labor extend the recreation of workmen is of increasing importance.

I am not arguing that the workmen of the United States will resent action depriving them of their Sunday amusement. I am arguing that their efficiency will be impaired, their morale lowered, by the loss of their Sunday recreation.

From the standpoint of broad moral benefit, the cleanly conducted motion picture theater, running seven days a week, ranks high as an institution for better citizenship. The most radical of prohibitionists admit that the picture theater has deprived the saloon of its excuse as a social institution, and trained social workers pay high tribute to the motion picture's accomplishments in binding the family closer together.

It is time that the professional reformer let the motion picture alone. The motion picture has proved its place in the life of the people. It is no longer an experiment, but an institution. It is in many respects as necessary and as valuable as the public press.

Any effort to close the motion picture theater on Sunday is an imposition, peculiarly and particularly an imposition in these times. I hope that we will see relegated, with little ceremony, the agitation to deprive the people of their Sunday amusement.

Picture Measure Up in Maryland

One Amends Law Governing Operators, Another Legalizes Sunday Shows at $25 Per.

THE moving picture has been coming in the limelight at the session of the Maryland Legislature at Annapolis and as a result several important measures have come up which Maryland exhibitors must carefully consider. While nothing has been done recently apparently about the Censorship Repeal Bill, it is understood the bill is not dead yet.

On Thursday, March 21, a bill was introduced to amend the law with regard to operators. The exhibitors of Baltimore object to several points in this bill, and in talking to one who is well versed on matters of this kind it appears that in the bill one master electrician is to be appointed on the examining board, where one exhibitor, duly licensed to operate, should be all that is necessary. It is also stated that the age requirement now twenty-one before the granting of a license would be reduced to eighteen. The bill requires an operator to have had one year's experience under a licensed operator or two years' experience in operating a machine. This is claimed to be unnecessary.

A Bill to Legalize Sunday Shows.

On Monday, March 25, a bill was introduced in the Senate at Annapolis legalizing moving pictures and vaudeville shows on Sundays, which was referred to the Committee on Judicial Proceedings. The bill follows:

Entitled an Act to Repeal and Re-enact, with Amendments, Article 27, Sections 436 and 438, of Bagby's Code of 1914, entitled Crimes and Punishments; sub-title, Sabbath Breaking, and providing additional license fees for Sunday exhibitions.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland that Article 27, Sections 436 and 438, of the Public General Laws of Maryland, as codified in Bagby's Code of 1914, entitled Crimes and Punishments; subtitle, Sabbath Breaking; be and the same hereby are repealed and reenacted so as to read as follows:

436. No person whatsoever shall work or do any bodily labor on the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday; and no person having children or servants shall command or wittingly or willingly suffer any of them to do any manner of work or labor on the Lord's Day (works of necessity and charity always excepted), nor shall suffer or permit any children or servants to profane the Lord's Day by gaming, fishing, fowling, hunting or unlawful pastime or recreation; and every person transgressing this section and being thereof convicted before a justice of the peace shall forfeit five dollars, to be applied to the use of the county, provided, however, that nothing contained in this section shall be constructed so as to declare unlawful the exhibition of motion pictures or the performance of vaudeville acts on Sunday in this state where the exhibitors thereof have complied with the provisions of Article 27, Section 438, of the Public General Laws of Maryland as amended by this act.

438. It shall not be lawful to keep open or use any dancing, saloon, opera house, ten-pin alley, barber saloon or ball alley within this state on the Sabbath Day, commonly called Sunday; and any person or persons or body politic or corporate who shall violate any provision of this section, or cause or knowingly permit the same to be violated by a person or persons in his, her or its employ shall be liable to indictment in any court of this state having criminal jurisdiction, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined a sum not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, in the discretion of the court, for the first offense; and if convicted a second time for a violation of this section the person or persons, or body politic or corprate shall be fined a sum not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars; and if a natural person shall be imprisoned, not less than ten nor more than thirty days, in the discretion of the court; and in the case of any conviction or convictions under this section subsequent to the second such person or persons, body politic or corporate shall be fined on each occasion a sum at least double that imposed upon him, her, them or it on the last preceding conviction; and if a natural person, shall be imprisoned not less than thirty nor more than sixty days, in the discretions of the court; all fines to be imposed under this section shall be paid to the state. Provided that, in addition to such license fees as may now be payable therefor before any such exhibition of performance shall be given in Baltimore City or any county in this state, there shall be paid to the Clerk of the Circuit Court for the County or to the Clerk of the Court of Common Pleas of Baltimore City, for the use of the state, $1,000 for one year, or $25 for each Sunday's exhibition of motion pictures, and $2,000 for one year, or $50 for each Sunday's performance of vaudeville acts with or without motion pictures.

And be it further enacted that this act shall be effective from the date of its approval.

SUNDAY CASE UP TO OHIO SUPREME COURT.

Ohio is soon to be the scene of a hard fight to legalize Sunday opening for moving picture theaters. At present the theaters are open in the larger cities and some smaller ones, but there is an old law which, if invoked, would shut up all theaters on Sundays.

About a year ago an exhibitor of Wadsworth, Ohio, was arrested for keeping open on Sundays. He fought the issue to the Appellate Court and lost. During the last few weeks the exhibitors of Cleveland have taken a hand in the case, and the firm of Strong, Desberg, Bernstein and Mooney, lawyers, who are somewhat financially interested in Cleveland theaters, carried the case to the Ohio Supreme Court.

Live Publicity to Help Sunday Bill

Buffalo Committee is on the Job with Many Arguments in Favor of Bill—Press and Labor Unions Help.

LIVING up to their promises the members of the Buffalo Exhibitors' Committee for Sunday opening, of which Harold B. Franklin is chairman, has launched a powerful propaganda in favor of the bill for Sunday pictures, recently introduced at Albany.

The committee's publicity section, of which Jules Michael, manager of the Academy theater, Buffalo, is chairman, is working night and day "to help put the bill over." For instance, these publicity promoters have printed stickers, which the exchange managers will place on their bills mailed to exhibitors. Each sticker gives a cogent reason why the Sunday bill should be enacted.

The committee has also prepared fifty-foot trailers, attached to all feature films being shown at the local and nearby theaters. The first trailer contains the following argument in favor of the Sunday bill:

"On heatless Mondays the Government ordered the picture theaters to remain open to entertain the public. The workman who labors six days a week wants moving pictures on Sunday. We think you do."

The second trailer refers to a card to be handed to each patron as he or she enters the theater. This card says:

"I am in favor of moving pictures on Sunday, and I hereby authorize you to notify my Senator and Assemblyman to support any bill to further the same. Signed (patron's name and address)."

These cards will be distributed by a special representative of the committee at a booth at the front of each theater. There will be display cards explaining the purposes of the distribution. Each patron will be personally canvassed to sign the card and deposit it at the booth. These cards will be assorted by the entire committee and sent to Albany.

The Exhibitors' Committee for Sunday opening has visited the editors of Buffalo, and the latter have complied with a request to write editorials in favor of the measure. These editorials have been mounted on a special sheet and forwarded to Albany.

The committee has gained the support of every labor organization in Buffalo, from the central body to the smallest union—all being in favor of legalized Sunday pictures. The movement also has the indorsement of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce through its representative, Clarence McGregor, in charge of the four-minute men, who have been speaking for the Liberty Loan, Red Cross, War Savings Stamps, etc., at the theaters. The exhibitors and exchangemen have been ardent supporters of the Government in these campaigns.

The Exhibitors' Committee meets daily, and declares that it will put every ounce of energy and many hours of valuable time to help bring about the passage of the Sunday opening bill. One outcome of the propaganda is that public sentiment in the Buffalo territory is being positively molded in favor of the measure.

Hattiesburg Editor Arrested for Sunday Show

Provided Free Amusement to Keep Soldiers from Aimlessly Roaming Street and Sabbatarians Have Up All Concerned.

THE bitter war that has been in progress between an element headed by the ministers of Hattiesburg, Miss., and the proprietors of motion picture theaters and their friends is still far from being permanently settled. The laws of Mississippi are very drastic with regard to Sunday entertainments, the idea apparently being that if the lawmakers cannot compel citizens to go to heaven by statute they can at least put them in jail.

Since the establishment of Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg, the question of furnishing wholesale entertainment to the 25,000 or 30,000 soldiers who periodically are allowed to visit the city has been one of importance. The motion picture exhibitors were afraid to open their theaters in the usual way on Sunday, so Howard S. Williams, editor of the local newspaper, arranged for Sunday entertainments for the soldiers at the two motion picture theaters free of charge. The programs consisted of motion pictures and vaudeville acts furnished by the soldiers in camp.

This arrangement came under the displeasure of the exponents of drastic statutes, and two or three weeks ago the city authorities were prevailed upon to arrest those who were directly concerned in the enterprise of furnishing Sunday amusements. The entertainments were allowed to proceed, but later Editor Williams, together with A. J. Xydias and E. R. Hatcher, exhibitors, and Walter Hammock and W. Cox, operators, were arrested on the charge of illegally staging a motion picture show on Sunday. Editor Williams' motive was purely altruistic in the matter. Hattiesburg is a provincial island city, and he believed it was better to furnish wholesale entertainment to the visiting soldiers than to allow them to roam aimlessly about the streets seeking diversions. He followed the lines suggested by Raymond B. Fosdick and Secretary of War Baker and indorsed by Major General W. H. Sage of the Thirty-eighth division, who in a letter to Editor Williams said:

"In response to your inquiry regarding my ideas on Sunday entertainment for soldiers, I most emphatically desire to indorse any effort to give the men of this camp clean, wholesome amusement, either on Sunday or any other days.

"I believe either educational or religious pictures, which tend to foster patriotism or to show the gigantic task our country has before it, and clean vaudeville, of motion pictures, concerts, etc., will assist in promoting the moral welfare of the men. With the greater part of the 25,000 or 30,000 soldiers idle on Sunday, it is too much to expect men of red blood not to seek some form of recreation on Sunday, the only day they have wholly to themselves."

It is intimated that the city officials are in sympathy with the effort to furnish motion picture entertainment for the men on Sunday, but they have been put under strong pressure by persons who are unalterably opposed to any form of public amusement on Sunday no matter what may be the circumstances under which it is offered. A good deal of bitter feeling has been engendered by the present situation, and it is a question just where it will terminate. Meanwhile the motion picture exhibitors are inclined to fight, not because of any profit that might finally accrue to them, but upon the broader principle of doing all that is possible for the pleasure and entertainment of the enlisted men.

News received from some of the Louisville boys in the army cantonment at Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss., is to the effect that the Mississippi Legislature by a vote of 70 to 11 has reconsidered a bill passed on March 15, to permit picture shows, baseball and other Sunday entertainments in communities which have army posts.

Following the action taken at Jackson the ministers of Hattiesburg in a mass meeting stated that the ministers had control of Hattiesburg and intended to continue in control. Tirades were heard as against any amusements for soldiers, which were resented by a few citizens at the meeting, which was adjourned in favor of a privately called meeting at one of the churches. Following this meeting the ministers sent a body to Jackson, where a warm fight was made in favor of indefinitely postponing any future action on the bill. An investigation at Hattiesburg has shown that about 99 per cent. of the residents of the city favor open Sundays. However, soldiers will have their baseball games and amusements inside of the Government lines, even if they can't have them in the city proper, as Uncle Sam doesn't believe in depriving his men of amusement.

MONTREAL WILL DEFEND SUNDAY SHOWINGS.

After securing a legal victory over the exhibitors of Quebec City, which compelled the theaters to be closed on Sundays, the Lord's Day Alliance is said to be preparing to take legal action against the theaters of Montreal, which are being operated regularly on Sundays. The Montreal Exhibitors' Association, which has been reorganized, has been strengthening its hand by securing more theater managers as members; while the Montreal Exchange Managers' Association has decided to retain a well-known firm of attorneys for the whole year in order to obtain proper legal advice on this and other matters.

R. R. NEHLS IN NEW YORK.

R. R. Nehls, general manager of the American Film Company, Chicago, was in New York recently and among other places visited was the office of the Moving Picture World. Mr. Nehls possesses his old-time vigor and spoke enthusiastically of the plans of the American for future productions.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

Miami Valley Exhibitors Meet

A SPECIAL meeting of the Miami Valley Exhibitors' League was held at its rooms in Dayton, Ohio, March 25. The chief topic was the congested condition of the railroads and express companies, which handicaps shipment of films and causes many delays at the theaters. There was also more talk on the broadening of the League's activities whereby it would admit to membership many other towns in Ohio as far north as Lima and as far south as Hamilton.

Al F. Kinzeler.

Many minor topics were up for discussion as well as more important questions, thus making the meeting unusually long. The League went on record as in favor of transportion by auto trucks when possible, which is the surer method of carrying freight in these uncertain days. The Miami Valley Exhibitors League has accomplished a world of good in Dayton as well as surrounding territory, and plans for the coming year promise even greater activities.

Herewith is a good photo of A. F. Kinzeler, secretary of the Miami Valley Exhibitors' League, and the most popular man who has occupied this chair. Every one addresses him as plain Al, although he is one of the chief stockholders in the Elite Movie Company, which controls the Elite Theater here, which he manages; also the Wyoming Theater, managed by his brother, Gus Kinzeler, who rivals Al in popularity. One of Mr. Kinzeler's greatest stories is one which illustrates that his competitors are his best friends. Is this not a strange happening in the film game?

TEXAS EXHIBITORS WILL MEET EARLY.

The San Antonio exhibitors' convention comes on a momentous date. April 15 will see five different anti-wet goods laws go into effect. Two of them are sufficient—the so-called ten-mile zone law and the statutory prohibition law—both of which have been duly signed by the governor after having been passed at the extra session of the Legislature. They become effective at 9:15 o'clock p. m. on the date named, but the convention will have met long before that. The zone law prohibits the sale or handling of liquors within ten miles of any army establishment in Texas, and the state is thick with them. Not satisfied with having put that into effect the Legislature passed also the statutory prohibition law, which makes Texas bone dry.

NATIONAL ORGANIZER RODGERS IS OUT.

David G. Rodgers has resigned as national organizer of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, following the completion of an extended trip to various sections of the country.

MORRIS ALTMAN GIVEN SEND-OFF.

On the occasion of Morris Altman, a studio manager for the Fox Film Corporation, being called for service in the National Army, a dinner was tendered him by his friends at Mouquin's uptown restaurant, Saturday evening, March 30.

Judge Gustave Hartman of the Second District Municipal Court was the toastmaster, and the principal guests were Sheldon Lewis, the well-known screen "villain," who made a stirring patriotic speech; Aaron Fox, who represented his brother, William Fox; and little Jackie Connors, who had a prominent role in the "Woman and the Law" and who entertained the guests with several clever songs.

There were about thirty-five persons present, most of them being employees of the Fox studios. At the conclusion of the dinner Mr. Altman was presented with an elaborate comfort kit.

THIRD PETROVA LUNCHEON.

On Friday, March 29, the Petrova Pictures Company held a trade showing of "The Life Mask," starring Madame Olga Petrova, at Miles' Projection Rooms, 220 West Forty-second street, New York. Following the screening a delightful luncheon was served by the producers at Shanley's Broadway restaurant, at which about thirty-five representatives of motion picture trade journals and daily newspapers were the guests.

"The Life Mask" is the third production made by Madame Petrova's own organization. It was directed by Frank Crane, and adapted by Mrs. L. Case Russell from a widely read novel by an anonymous author. Thomas Holding appears in the principal male role, opposite Mme. Petrova.

DRAMATIC MIRROR CHANGES OWNERSHIP.

The Dramatic Mirror of Motion Pictures and the Stage has been purchased by the United Motion Pictures Publications, Inc., of 239 West Thirty-ninth street, New York. The publication announces that, contrary to reports, it will continue to champion whatever is best in the allied arts of the stage and screen, to discourage unwholesome tendencies and to print reliable news and helpful articles.

The Mirror will publish the Motion Picture Trade Directory, a quarterly. No change in the office force is contemplated, it is announced, except to increase facilities for production.

Coming League and Other Exhibitors' Conventions

(Secretaries Are Requested to Send Dates and Particulars Promptly)

Tennessee Exhibitors in Annual Convention at Nashville, Tenn.....April 9 and 10

Northwest Branch Exhibitors League at Minneapolis, Minn.....May 7, 8 and 9

Clyde H. Hitchcock, 357 Loeb Arcade, Minneapolis, Minn.

National Exposition Moving Picture League of America at Boston.....July

Blumenthal Challenges Critics

Declares United Picture Theaters Is Exhibitor-Controlled and Protects the Exhibitor's Interest.

LOUIS F. BLUMENTHAL, of the United Picture Theaters of America, issued his first official statement last week (March 28) since this exhibitors' co-operative organization started its activities at 1600 Broadway and sent representatives on the road to sign up 2,000 booking days preparatory to buying and releasing pictures. Mr. Blumenthal felt moved to speak in order to challenge widely circulated misstatements and half-truths and to set forth the fundamentals of United Theaters policy. He said:

"In the face of reports from all over the United States of a growing friendly sentiment for our plan, the signing up of many exhibitors and the reasonable prospect of securing the booking days we desire, it is annoying to be attacked by innuendo or direct misstatement that questions our motives and casts discredit by raising false issues. These are the facts:

"We who incorporated the United Picture Theaters of America do not control the capital stock. Control is vested in the general body of exhibitors who become members. In other words, this is a genuine co-operative society, exhibitor-controlled in every sense of the word. All but a small fraction of the stock belongs to the members who vote according to the amount of their holdings and who elect directors yearly. The plan is as democratic as the town meeting or popular suffrage or the co-operative building and loan association or the mutual insurance society.

"We seek the establishment of a big open market for the purchase of films, being confident that our collective buying power will bring this about. We have no axes to grind nor any entanglements with other branches of the trade. I challenge those who have launched other schemes to say whether the same statement can be made with truth concerning them. Were we affiliated with producers, we would be controlled to a certain extent by them. Were we dealing with only the first exhibitor in each important city, we would be making him the jobber and to that extent increasing the prices of films to the members. Did we derive our capital from outside sources instead of from the members, we would be financier-controlled and not exhibitor-controlled. But we have avoided all the above pitfalls and founded our organization with an eye to the interests of exhibitors, and therefore we sincerely believe that we shall be successful in making it practicable.

"All signs in the business world point to the coming of true co-operation in every line of industry during or soon after the war. The day has gone by for individual profiteers to make big fortunes out of the efforts of the many. Everybody is going to participate in the fruits of industry to the extent of the amount of wealth created by his earnings. This applies equally to the exhibitor as to the railroad worker, the farmer, the mechanic, the clerk or the storekeeper. Enormous salaries are going to be cut down, duplication of effort abolished, roundabout ways of doing business replaced by simple, economical ones. The average man will benefit. Instead of an economic peon, he will be an independent, self-respecting co-operator.

"I note here with pleasure that one of the largest film companies has adopted and advertised what is our announced plan of pictures at actual studio cost plus producer's reasonable profit. This is only one of many reforms that co-operative buying will bring about. Among others that may be named are (1) selection of star, director and story in accordance with exhibitors' wishes; (2) the elimination of superfluous footage, waste or idle prints, and poorly balanced bills; (3) direct distribution from maker to exhibitor, with overhead and salesmanship charges sharply cut; (4) the wholesale purchase of theater supplies as well as of pictures; (5) the distribution of profits not to a few favored insiders, but to the whole membership, first, indirectly through reduced rentals, and secondly, directly in the shape of dividends. Only a real, genuine democratic organization can achieve these reforms, and I call upon critics of our enterprise, including the advocates of other plans, to specify one item in which we have not protected and guaranteed the exhibitors' interest and control all along the line."

SPEEDY PUNISHMENT FOR HIGHWAYMAN.

Frank Carson, before Judge Sullivan in the Criminal Court, Chicago, March 26, pleaded guilty of highway robbery with two guns. He was given an indefinite term in Pontiac.

Carson held up Manager Charles H. Ryan, the doorman, and the cashier at the point of two pistols at 10 p. m. Sunday, February 10, at the Garfield Theater, 2844 Madison street, and took $395. He was caught two blocks away after he had emptied his guns at his pursuers.

He said he was 21 years of age and came to Chicago from Cleveland in January and had performed three other hold-ups before the theater robbery.

Tourneur to Produce Independently

Maker of Many Successes and Student of Direction to Have His Own Studio.

MAURICE TOURNEUR, who by a steady progression in the art of screen drama has won many admirers for his work, will hereafter produce his own pictures. Having finished Ibsen's "A Doll's House" with Elsie Ferguson for Artcraft, Mr. Tourneur will from now on be artistically independent, working in his own studio, choosing his own scenarios and making his own casts.

Maurice Tourneur.

Mr. Tourneur has worked right through the entire gamut of film stories from such sensational spectacular pieces as the Drury Lane melodrama, "The Whip," which has been one of the most phenomenal successes of the current season; "Trilby," which established Clara Kimball Young as a screen star, and a score of smashing pictures of incident and excitement to the delicate visions and idealism of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," with Mary Pickford; Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird," a master work of photographic interpretation of life's deepest values.

Mr. Tourneur was a painter, an actor, an associate of Antoine, and a musician of repute before he finally took up the art of making motion pictures. He studied the principles of light and optics; he mastered the history of costume and decoration; he learned about fabrics; in a word he studied everything that bears upon the making of pictures that he might qualify as expert at every angle.

Mr. Tourneur will announce the full details of his plans within a few weeks.

PEGGY SHANOR, BABY VAMPIRE.

Peggy Shanor, who plays Naomi Waldon in "The House of Hate," the big new Pearl White serial, is an example of the way in which ability and determination lead to success. Little Miss Shanor, whose role is that of a sort of "baby Vampire," was born in a little West Virginia town.

Miss Shanor's first stage work was in stock, where she made good, playing many parts. There came, however, a chance for her to go into a big vaudeville sketch and the opportunity was so good that she accepted and played in it for a year. She was then cast for one of the important roles in "Yes or No," a Broadway success. Simultaneously came the opportunity to create the part of Naomi Waldon in "The House of Hate."

MR. FOSTER ISSUES A WARNING.

Will you kindly publish a warning to the trade that there is a fellow named A. L. Skanby, or Gunner A. L. Scanly, a returned Canadian soldier, who has a habit of borrowing money or passing phony checks. I met him in a nearby town while he was lecturing and he came in here yesterday telling me he wanted to buy film. The manager of the Brevoort Hotel took it for granted he was O.K. as he represented he was a personal friend of mine and cashed a check for $87.50 for him, account unknown. Have anyone who knows his whereabouts wire immediately Central Film Service here (Universal Film Co.).

F. W. FOSTER.

Indianapolis, March 18, 1918.

Grinding the Crank

With Thornton Fisher

This Kind of a Guy Is—Corncure

Something About the Work of the World's Director Extraordinaire.

THERE is no man who perhaps has done more towards furnishing testimonials for tobacco ads and chewing gum recommendations than the renowned director, Joseph P. Corncure, of the Planet Pictures Corporation. The unique methods employed by Mr. Corncure to achieve the magnificent picture spectacles have amazed and astounded the entire industry in these recent months; so much, in fact, that the entire editorial staff has remained at its desk without food or sleep for sixty-two hours endeavoring to devise ways and means of amputating a story from Mr. Corncure. In his latest production, "The Soft Boiled Egg's Revenge; or, Who Dropped the Collar Button in the Soup?" which was recently shown at the Aquarium, Mr. Corncure has attained the acme of Picturization in sets, story, sups and star. This picture alone establishes him as the greatest dramatic prestidigitator among current contemporaries.

Three-hundred and fifty thousand persons were engaged in this stupendous production, which consumed three years in the taking. Mr. Corncure even attempted to rent Chicago for two weeks, but the Mayor and unesthetic city council refused to give him a lease. Another incident proved the resourcefulness of the director. When Chicago was found to be unavailable Mr. Corncure immediatedy proposed moving Lake Michigan to California so that the atmosphere of the lake might be retained in the picture.

Armed with credentials containing the writer's photograph, together with a pass signed by the President of the Planet Picture Corporation, our punitive force set forth to garner a "close up" interview with this modern Aladdin of the Movies. We were received by the Hindu valet, who conducted us through a long corridor heavily laden with the scent of the Orient. One sensed a remoteness from the prosaic present and was intoxicated by the spirit of a resurrected Ancient Egypt. Here indeed was the abode of the dreamer of great pictures. Our observations quickly ceased as Mr. Corncure himself welcomed us at the door of his "Dream Emporium," as he so quaintly put it. Attired in a violet dressing gown figured with lettuce leaves, the great director, whom the public knows only by photograph, presented a striking personality. Two eyes under shaggy brows penetrate one's very soul, it seems. The room was set in a violet tone so that at times it was difficult to distinguish Mr. Corncure from a design on the wallpaper. It was a task in itself to get Mr. Corncure to talk about himself, but after importuning him for some time he consented to come through with a statement.

"As you already know, perhaps," he said, "I am the greatest director in the world today. Years ago I discovered that the public had an insatiable appetite for good pictures. They were tired of seeing a picture of little Willie beating up his mother and wanted something with more of a punch. I gave it to them. I know I'm good and I say it modestly that I am the best and most talented director who ever yelled 'cut' through a megaphone."

All the subtle effects the public sees on the screen are the brain children of Mr. Corncure, who has done more to make the movies move than any other living person.

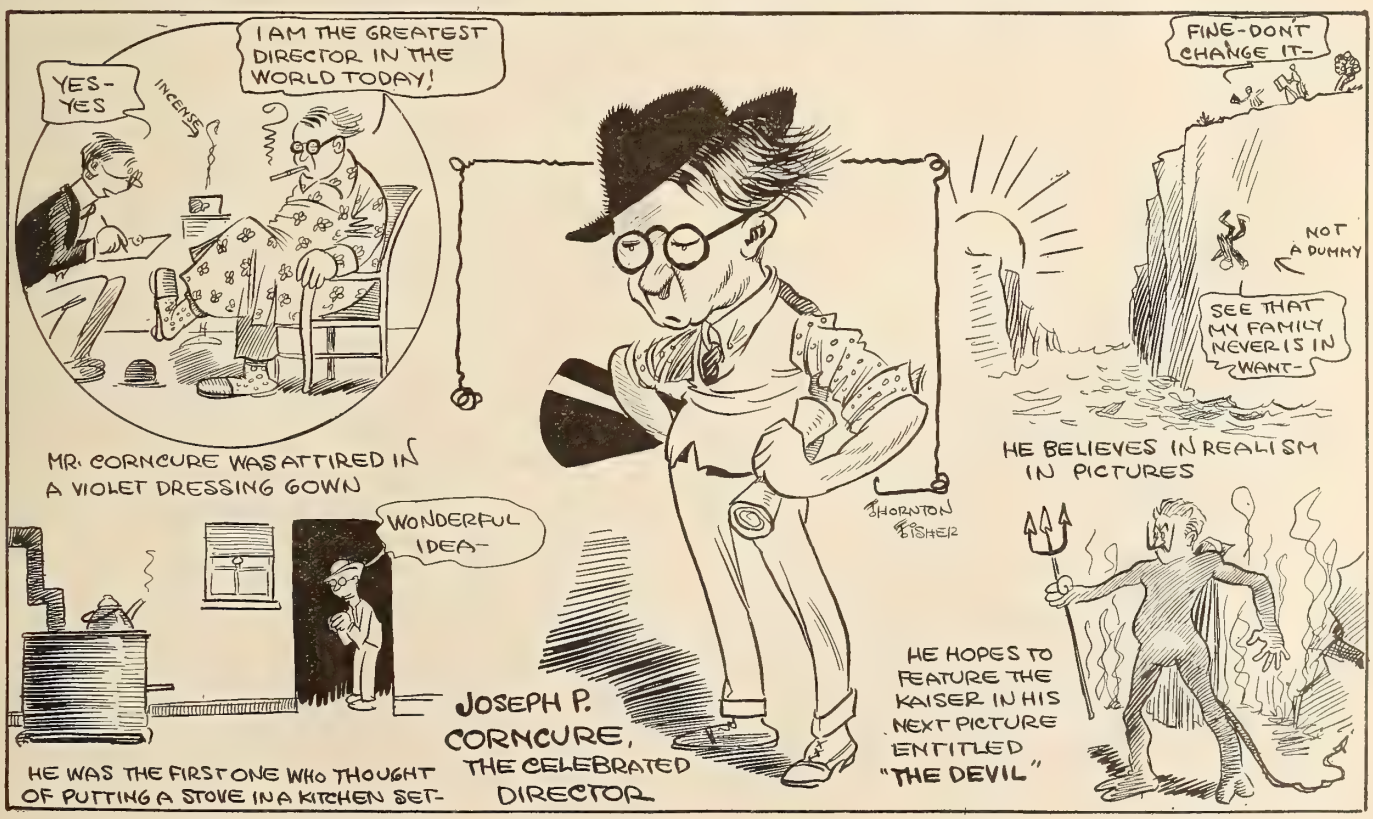
You have all noted how a room in a scene is darkened by the actor turning off the light. That is only one of the clever ideas of Joseph P. Corncure. And it was he, too, who first inaugurated the idea of placing a stove in a kitchen set. In one of his moments of genius he made a proposition to the Government to borrow the navy for two months. He believes that art and realism are synonymous, thus his advocacy of the elimination of dummies. As he himself says, "Instead of throwing a dummy over a thousand-foot cliff I am trying to find a real man who will do a brody off the Woolworth building if necessary. Furthermore, take for instance a shooting scene. I can't understand why art is so unappreciated in the profession that it is impossible to get an actor who is willing to be croaked in a scene instead of lying down and simply playing dead. The audience knows that he is really feigning. Can't you imagine the genuine thrill the spectator would get if he saw and knew that the poor guy had "passed in his checks"? "Wonderful!" Now you can understand why Mr. Corncure is recognized as the greatest director the world has ever seen.

His history as a player dates from the time he played centerfield for the Boiler Works Team in the Factory League.

Another part he says that brought him fame was when he played "Poker" in "A Gentleman's Game."

Then he played "The Races" in "Sweetstokes" but failed, this being his only disaster.

Among the stars he has directed appear the names of:
Cyrus Q. Eggplant in "Omelet."
Mary Z. Bustle in "My Lady's Dress."



I AM THE GREATEST DIRECTOR IN THE WORLD TODAY!
YES- YES
INCENSE
MR. CORNCURE WAS ATTIRED IN A VIOLET DRESSING GOWN
WONDERFUL IDEA-
HE WAS THE FIRST ONE WHO THOUGHT OF PUTTING A STOVE IN A KITCHEN SET-
JOSEPH P. CORNCURE, THE CELEBRATED DIRECTOR
THORNTON FISHER
FINE-DONT CHANGE IT-
NOT A DUMMY
SEE THAT MY FAMILY NEVER IS IN WANT-
HE BELIEVES IN REALISM IN PICTURES
HE HOPES TO FEATURE THE KAISER IN HIS NEXT PICTURE ENTITLED "THE DEVIL"

Francis N. Torpedo in "A Little Submarine."
Gertie R. Holes in "The Pink Stocking."

Mr. Corncure's next production, he says, will appear in 1936. He says that by that time the war will be over and the Kaiser out of work. His idea is to star William Kaiser in "The Devil." Mr. Corncure says that no make-up of any kind will be necesary inasmuch as he is especially suited for the character part. Again proving Mr. Corncure's unremitting faith in realism in pictures.

Frank Ferrandini

FEW southern business men are beter known than Frank Ferrandini, president of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., of Virginia. A native of Richmond, where he was born May 23, 1871, Mr. Ferrandini devoted all of his time until recently to the large manufacturing plant for the making of architectural and decorative ornaments in which he has a senior partnership. This is the largest industry of its kind in the south and is known as the Ferrandini - Legnaioli Company. Under Mr. Ferrandini's management it has furnished architectural and decorative plastic relief and marble products to more theaters and office buildings south of Mason and Dixon's line than any concern of its kind.

Frank Ferrandini.

In the early part of 1916, Mr. Ferrandini became interested in the distribution of motion pictures through his theatrical connections, and organized the Exhibitors' Film Exchange, Inc. Successful in the work he had undertaken, Mr. Ferrandini merged this corporation with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc., of Virginia, in December, 1917. At the same time, he and his associates absorbed by outright purchase the organization of Jake Wells, Inc., thus securing the First National Exhibitors' franchises for Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama.

The executive offices of this important new distributing concern are located in the Lyric Theater Building, Richmond, while well equipped exchange centers are also maintained in Washington, D. C., and Atlanta.

SPECIALS COMING TO FRONT, SAYS JACKSON.

George E. Jackson, manager for the Mutual's Portland (Ore.) exchange, says specials are coming to the front. Not too many of them, of course, he warns, but a reasonable number are an excellent investment for a program exchange.

In making trips through the country exploiting "The Planter" and "Charity," Mr. Jackson found that one or two of the big ones a month were the rule with exhibitors in the Portland territory, and that prices were often raised to 25 cents for these occasions. An occasional raise in price and actually giving value for the extra money adds prestige to a small house, say the exhibitors who are trying the plan.

Formerly exhibitors in this territory were adverse to raising prices for any feature with the result that super-feature and state rights concerns have been known to pass up certain Oregon towns.

LILLIAN HAMILTON IN STRAND COMEDIES.

Lillian Hamilton, well known screen comedienne, has been added to the cast of Mutual-Strand comedies, starring Billie Rhodes. Miss Hamilton makes her first appearance in "For Art's Sake," the release of April 9. She appeared in the series of comedies with Paddy McGuire appearing in "Bucking the Tiger," "Lured and Cured," "Tailors' Trimmings" and "Sticky Fingers." Her stage career has been with the Burbank stock company.

How It Is Done at the Strand

A Discussion of Methods Which Have Actually Been Worked Out Successfully.

By Harold Edel, Managing Director.

IN one of the neighborhood newspapers of New York City I recently noticed an advertisement of an uptown exhibitor announcing a "Double Show," presenting two features of ordinary merit with third-class stars. This, to my mind, is an unwise policy to establish for various reasons.

In the first place a double feature show is, on the face of it, "top-heavy." The successive presentation of two features, even if they are unusual subjects, makes a long, drawn-out performance, due to the lack of variety. A motion picture bill should be made up of films of different lengths. No bill should have any more than one photoplay feature.

For the price paid by the above exhibitor on these two features he could have booked one feature of better quality and with a better known star, and surrounded it with shorter films of educational, scenic and comedy variety, in addition to putting on a soloist. By doing this he could have heralded his bill as a special entertainment and given his patrons a show that would have held interest throughout. It is apparent that many exhibitors, even at this late date, do not appreciate the fact that variety is as important a factor in making up an entertainment as quality.

Presenting two features in one show is like giving a child too much candy. Even though the child likes candy it will soon tire of it if given too much. By giving a child a moderate amount of both cake and candy it appreciates both more. By feeding an audience two subjects in ten reels it loses interest. In giving them a five-reeler, a two-reel comedy and a one-reel news and scenic the entire show is appreciated more readily.

It seems surprising that these simple rules of human nature are antagonized by exhibitors, and yet we find managers advertising with great éclat that they will give their patrons two features. If this exhibitor had anything else to offer besides the two photoplays he did not say so in his advertisement. Even if he did have other films his show would be too top-heavy to be a profitable offering from his own standpoint and an entertaining bill from the angle of the patron.

Another item recently brought to my attention by a steady motion picture patron was evidenced in his remarks concerning the showing of a heavy dramatic feature as the closing number on the bill. He mentioned that the audience left the place as if they were leaving a morgue. The tragic climax in the picture spread a cloud of gloom over the patrons, which they carried out of the theater with them. The psychological effect is reflected directly back at the theater, for it is only natural that a person does not relish the idea of returning to a house of sadness. Incidentally, this friend mentioned that immediately prior to the showing of this drama the theater offered a very funny comedy. Think of it! Every one knows that it is always best to "leave them laughing when you say good-bye." Dramatic subjects are desirable. They have many, many followers. Dramas cannot be deep enough for many people. But as a final offering on a bill—never! Of course, in jamming through an extra show, as many exhibitors often do on a busy day—which, however, is hardly a good practice—the final bill sometimes ends up with the feature, but to end a regular show with a dramatic film is extremely unwise.

Have the audience leave your theater in a happy frame of mind by all means. Run a comedy at the end of the show, and with these comedies use good popular melodies, ending with a tune that everybody knows. By doing this you will find your patrons leaving the theater whistling the tune and smiling at situations in the comedy, which were brought out effectively by this appropriate air. In selecting music for a comedy we at the Strand always endeavor to pick tunes of popular songs, the title and words of which suit the action in the picture. The more popular a tune is the better are the chances of putting over the situation. By all means have your patrons leave your theater in a cheerful state of mind, then the theater itself will have a different appearance to them.

WHITE BACK AT TRIANGLE.

Philip H. White, who recently severed his connection with the motion pictures to become a free lance writer, is again at the Triangle studios, where he has joined the film editing department.

Fred Dolle on Lenten Possibilities

Says if There Is Any Season When Good Attractions Should Be Booked It is Then—People Will Be Glad to Come.

"IT'S all bunk," said Fred Dolle, president of the Broadway Amusement Enterprises, in referring to statements to the effect that there was no use in trying to do business in a show house during Lent. "There's nothing in that stuff," said Mr. Dolle, who continued: "At one time I felt that way about it, and along with the average exhibitor I figured on booking cheap shows, feeling that business during the Lenten period would not be great enough to warrant high-priced productions. That was where I was wrong, and where the exhibitor generally is wrong. There are enough people in a given community who do not observe Lent to make business good, considering of course such things as weather and local conditions. However, poor shows are not going to attract business, and if there is any one season of the year when the exhibitor should book the very best obtainable that season includes Lent.

"In 1917 I booked some Hart and other big films, and did a splendid business, breaking all past records for attendance. This year I had some real star pictures and business during Lent this season could not have been any better during any period of the year. Night shows as a rule have filled the house to overflowing. Of course, the boys from Camp Taylor this year have aided in making business better than in former years, but we didn't have them last year when we broke attendance records.

"No, it is a pennywise and pound foolish idea that the people will not come out during Lent, and the exhibitor who is working on that basis is killing his own goose. However, he has to book good stuff, or he won't get the people who attend shows during that season. Lent always comes just following the worst weather in Louisville, after the public has been cooped up for weeks, and is anxious for diversion. The latter part of the season comes during good weather, when they have to get out. The parks and amusement places are not open that early in the year, and the theater with the right sort of a show has an excellent chance to make things hum.

"Of course there are some suburban houses where the best first-run pictures would not attract attention during the Lenten season, that is, in highly religious communities which have been built up around some certain church. But with the downtown houses it is a different matter, and it is the downtown theaters I have reference to. The Alamo and Walnut have been doing big business, and the Walnut has been handling added attractions, which shows how I now feel concerning the proposition."

First National Opens Oklahoma Office

T. E. Larson and Tom H. Boland Are Head of Division Purchased from E. H. Hulsey.

THE newest but by no means the least active sub-division of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit of America is the Oklahoma branch, which purchased its franchise from E. H. Hulsey of Dallas about two months ago. Permanent offices are now in operation in Oklahoma City under the joint management of T. E. Larson and Tom H. Boland as president and vice president respectively. Mr. Boland is also proprietor of the Empress Theater of Oklahoma City, one of the best known houses in the southwest.

According to the latest membership list compiled by Mr. Larson, the First National Circuit in the state of oil wells and prairie chickens is made up of the following exhibitors:

Frank R. Powell, who controls the Mission Theater of Ponca City and other prosperous houses in Newkirk, Fairfax and Tonkawa; George A. Pollard, proprietor of the two Gem Theaters of Guthrie and Stillwater; Albert Jackson, who runs the Jackson Theater of Pawhuska; J. H. Snively, proprietor of the Gem at Oilton; F. N. Tanner, of the Rex at Blackwell; N. Smith, of the Lyric at Clinton; McCoy & Brast, of the Strand at Tulsa; F. S. Gantz, of the Star at Sand Springs; E. B. Burgher, proprietor of the three Wonderland houses at Sallisaw, Vian and Muldrow; S. J. Snelling, of the Pythian at Cleveland; William & Walton, of the Murray at Lawton; Mrs. F. C. Thompson, of the Palace at Hobart; A. L. Blount, of Liberty at Hugo; A. B. Momand, of the Savoy at Shawnee; J. L. Carr, of the Electric at Kingfisher; W. S. Robinson, of the Majestic at Wetumka; J. F. Binkley, of the Grand at Cushing; H. Spencer, of the Empress at Yale; L. A. Shead, of the University at Norman; Al Derry, of El Reno Theater at El Reno; F. J. Bushmann, of the Majestic at Dewar; The Humphrey Amusement Company, of the Glory B at Miami; John H. Morgan, of the Majestic at Jenks, and T. Faulkner, of the Cozy and the Princess at Eufaula and Checotah.

All First National releases will be shown by these exhibitors, including the new Chaplin comedies.

Ontario Taxes Occasional Picture Shows

License Fee Exacted of Public Halls Where Films May Be Used—Will Also Charge for Censoring Paper.

AT the recent session of the Ontario Legislature an important addition to the legal machinery of the province affecting the projection of moving pictures was adopted on the motion of T. W. McGarry, provincial treasurer. He was given authority to "increase the revenue of the crown by a license fee upon public halls, the use of moving picture films and for the censorship of still photographs, posters and other advertising matter employed with moving pictures."

This means that a license system will be adopted to cover the use of public halls in the province where pictures may be shown, in addition to regular moving picture theaters. The province will also now charge a fee for the censoring of "paper" and still photographs which are used to advertise the film releases. Mr. McGarry announced that the new fee would be only a nominal one.

The motion also provided that any owner of a place of amusement violating the regulations with respect to the enforcement of the Amusement Tax Act in Ontario, which were adopted pursuant to the passing of the original act, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $10 and not more than $200. This will cover a number of special instructions passed by order-in-council which were not embodied in the Amusement Tax Act itself when passed two years ago.

L. J. Dittmar Forming New Company

Corporation Will Have Offices in Mecca Building, New York —Will Make and Lease Color Pictures.

L. J. DITTMAR, president of the Majestic Amusement Company, of Louisville, operating the Majestic Theater, will shortly visit New York, where he expects to spend a few weeks in efforts to produce and market colored motion picture films. Mr. Dittmar heads a local syndicate, composed of George M. Clarke, of New Albany; Laban Phelps, Harry Lindenberger and Charles H. Bohmer, which has taken over the business of the National Color Picture Company, under a five-year lease. A new company is being incorporated under the laws of Delaware, with a capital of $100,000 in preferred stock, and the same amount of common. The new company will have its offices in the Mecca Building, with a manufacturing plant at Whitestone, L. I. The officers will be Mr. Dittmar, president; Mr. Clarke, vice president; Laban Phelps, treasurer, and Harry Lindenberger, secretary. These men and Mr. Bohmer form the board of directors. The new concern will operate as the Artcolor Pictures Company.

Mr. Dittmar was one of the incorporators of the Natural Color Picture Company and was active in the old Kinemacolor. He has been one of the strongest supporters of the movement to bring about pictures photographed or shown in natural colors.

BOB HORNER TO WRITE FOR EBONY.

L. J. Pollard, president and general manager of Ebony Film Corporation of Chicago, who begin releasing on the General Film program April 15, has closed a long-term contract with Bob Horner, the Chicago scenarioist and newspaper man, to take charge of the script department.

Mr. Horner was a well-known free-lance writer, having sold productive scenarios to practically all the companies. He first attracted the attention of Mr. Pollard early last June, when he submitted his first script. Since then Mr. Pollard has bought from him "A Coontown Romance," "When Coontown Went Dry," "A Black Sherlock." He has already completed his first two scripts.

EL PASO SEIZES GERMAN FILM.

Border officials are on the alert. No films of a character partaking of Boche propaganda can get by to Mexico. At El Paso the other day a film entitled "Germany's Side of the War" was seized. It is the third seizure of the kind since the law went into effect six months ago. Regulations are in effect providing for the censorship of all films destined for export to foreign countries save Italy, France, England and Japan.

It is claimed by El Paso officials that the few films seized is a tribute to the character of film concern officials.

Gaumont Will Produce for State Rights

Renewed Activities at Flushing Studio, Where Gaumont Name Will Be Restored as Factor to Consider in Big Productions.

AFTER a period of production inactivities, extending over a considerable time, the Gaumont Company is preparing to fulfill its promise to independent exhibitors and will produce immediately a series of really big motion picture dramas to be marketed on state right lines. To inspire nationwide interest in its product Gaumont has arranged to select, in cooperation with the leading newspapers in every State, scores of the prettiest girls to be found and thus interject new faces of pre-judged and selected beauty into the casts of the presenting companies.

Two stories of a caliber to measure up to the standard Gaumont has determined upon have been selected for a dozen manuscripts it has purchased and these two features will be immediately put into preparation. Directors have been engaged and the names to be announced later will add further assurance to the Gaumont promise that the personnel of the presenting companies shall be standardized in accord with the details of production and equipment. Just at present names of players and directors cannot, for certain business reasons, be announced, but in due time these and other details will be forthcoming.

Gaumont proposes to combine the benefit of "stars" and productions as allied drawing powers, once the exhibitor has closed his franchise. Conservative always, the firm has made no extravagant claims in its statement to the World, but gives assurance that excellent casts, good plays, complete productions and expert mechanical skill shall be combined in what they offer to the trade.

There will be special interest to exhibitors in the manner and method Gaumont will exploit the young women newspapers shall select for their companies in nationwide competitions. Five girls between the age of fifteen and twenty-five will be selected by each of several papers in every State in the Union. Gaumont will make "test films" of these candidates to determine which members of each group shall demonstrate the best screen talent and necessary personality for success in pictures.

The girls selected for the two spectacular productions to be made will have their transportation and expenses paid to the Gaumont studios in Flushing, N. Y., and will also be paid salaries while engaged in the filming of these stories. The Gaumont Company confidently expects to find a number of girls of unusual types of beauty who possess sufficient screen talent to make them the successful film players of the future.

An interesting phase of this contest, which stamps it with originality, is that motion pictures of the most attractive of the contestants will be run in each State during the contest in the two Gaumont news reels—the Gaumont News and Gaumont Graphic—so that the girls will not have to wait very long to see how they appear in cinematic action. This feature, which will doubtless result in filling theaters on the nights these news reels are shown, will undoubtedly appeal to exhibitors who have booked the News and Graphic.

Likewise will the news reel showing of these girls serve to awaken advance interest in the Gaumont features in which they will ultimately appear—possibly at the same theatres where their "test films" are displayed. This, of course, will be a matter to be worked out between the Gaumont sales department and the exhibitors who figure the benefit of coupling the news reels Gaumont issues with the Gaumont dramatic features the girls will participate in as screen actresses.

CHAPIN FILM PRAISED BY BAY STATE TEACHERS.

The nine thousand members of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation have pledged themselves to promote the exhibition of the "Son of Democracy," the Paramount series produced by Benjamin Chapin, and in a lengthy letter to John McConville, manager of the Boston office of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, the reason for this action is explained by Mabel M. Anderson, the chairman.

The Teachers' Federation has begun a movement for the systematic exhibition by the moving picture theaters of educational films for children and to have the accompanying program, on the day such films are shown, suitable for the children.

Massachusetts is noted for its splendid educational system, and the indorsement of the Teachers' Federation can be used to good advantage by exhibitors throughout the country to secure the co-operation of their local educators.

Famous Players Organize Film Hospital

Object Is to Provide Every Office with Prints in Best Condition Regardless of Age.

AN INNOVATION has been established by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in the equipment of a "film hospital," located in New York City, which will have branches advantageously located through the country. The idea of the plan is to provide every branch office with perfect prints for every release, regardless of the date on which the picture was issued.

The matter of the care of the film has been given a great deal of thought by the Famous Players-Lasky, and the company believes it has solved the problem which has perplexed every distributor of motion pictures.

The method of operation has been worked out to a detail. It sometimes occurs that new film, through accident or carelessness, becomes damaged, and it is inconvenient to take it out of service while it is being replaced. Extra prints will be kept on hand of all subjects, and any scratched or damaged print will be immediately exchanged for the good one, and the injured copy will undergo a course of treatment and all imperfect parts will be replaced with new ones. This print will then be kept in reserve, ready for instant exchange with a damaged one.

Besides immediately removing from service any bad prints, this new department will bring all old subjects up to date. New titles are being made with dissolving effects and artistic backgrounds to conform with present-day standards, and the films are being treated with tinting and toning combinations the same as the latest releases.

The "film hospital" will not interfere in any way with the method of inspection now in vogue, and in the attention to minor injuries, but will be auxiliary thereto.

Griffith Picture Opens Friday Night

"Hearts of the World" Will Have Its Premiere at Forty-fourth Street Theater, New York.

HEARTS OF THE WORLD," the latest production directed by D. W. Griffith, will have its first public showing on the evening of Friday, April 5, at the Forty-fourth Street theater, New York. Mr. Griffith arrived in New York during the week and took personal charge of the final arrangements for the presentation.

"Hearts of the World" is said to have been made for the British Government, and through official channels Mr. Griffith and his company obtained permission to visit the front lines of the British army in France to obtain close-up scenes of the war. Other scenes were taken in England and at Los Angeles.

Prominent in the cast are Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Bobby Harron and George Siegmann. William Bitzer was the chief cameraman.

BATTLESHIPS WILL HAVE TIMELY FILM SERVICE.

Steps have been taken to make the pictures chosen for use in the training camps and through the War Camp Motion Picture Committee available also for the battleships of the Navy. P. A. Powers, the chairman, when in Washington recently, was in conference with Secretary Daniels of the Navy Department. As a result, the committee is in a position to supply films to naval vessels whose chaplains desire them in the same manner in which it makes them available for the training camps.

CAPTAIN KYNE PLAYS THE HOST.

The Plaza Theater at San Diego, Cal., had a most notable audience when J. Warren Kerrigan appeared in his first Paralta Play, "A Man's Man." General Strong, commander at Camp Kearney, and forty officers and their respective families attended the theater in a body at the opening performance and were very enthusiastic during its presentation.

The story of "A Man's Man" was written by Captain Peter B. Kyne, now at Camp Kearney, who was the host at the theater party.

"THE LIFE MASK" GOES ON APRIL 8.

The release date of Mme. Petrova's third picture, "The Life Mask," has been changed by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit from March 18, as originally announced, to Monday, April 8.

All Ready for the Liberty Loan Drive

Exhibitors in Every Part of the Country Are Planning to Do Their Best to Put the Big Loan Over the Top

REPORTS have now been received from every part of the United States and the Moving Picture World feels justified in the conclusion that there has been a general awakening among exhibitors to the necessity of the utmost patriotic action in behalf of the Third Liberty Loan. We appreciate this response to the call to action and believe that the efforts of the motion picture trade at this critical time will meet with the fullest acknowledgment from the Government.

The loan date is April 6 and the amount to be raised is $3,000,000,000, which will pay an interest rate of four and one-quarter cents per annum. The amount is not large and the rate of interest will make the bonds attractive so that there should be a ready response to the appeal for subscriptions. Nevertheless, the effort should be as vigorous and earnest and there should be no let up in the campaign until the last dollar of the three billion needed is offered.

From the genuineness of the responses the Moving Picture World has received from exhibitors everywhere we are satisfied that there will be no let up as far as they are concerned.

To prove that the interest has not fallen off in the least degree we print the responses received up to date:

Will Make Big Showing in Philadelphia.

Frank W. Buhler, Philadelphia, Pa., the general manager of the Central Market Street Amusement Company and sub-chairman of the Liberty Loan Motion Picture committee, and Judge J. O'Donnell, president of the Exhibitors' League, presided at a special meeting held at the League on Saturday, March 23, and organized a movement to aid the next Liberty Loan campaign of the Third Federal Reserve District among the film salesmen and exchange managers in that city.

Judge O'Donnell, the Four Minute Man of the industry for that district, made the opening address and impressed upon the salesmen and managers the importance of giving the U. S. Government the united support of the industry, in order to insure the success of the Loan. He stated that the safety of Democracy was at stake and every effort made to put over the new Loan was a step nearer to the defeat of a powerful and unmerciful foe. Mr. Buhler explained that he was not on the committee to derive any personal glory, but he realized that a crisis confronted the government and he was more than anxious to do his part to insure the sale of Liberty Bonds allotted to his district. Having produced the "Liberty" picture and several Four Minute mentions as an aid to help the campaign Mr. Buhler asked the salesmen covering Pennsylvania east of Altoona, New Jersey south of Trenton and Delaware to get in touch with luke-warm exhibitors in the remote sections of the district and to do their level best to convince them of the necessity of showing the "Liberty" picture and Four Minute mentions so as to boost the sales of the Bonds. Mr. Buhler called attention to the many prominent men and artists who posed for these pictures, among whom were: Cardinal Gibbons, E. T. Stotesbury, Rev. Cornwell, Mr. Passendale, Annette Kellermann and many others. The exhibitors will also find many interesting things in the "Liberty" picture. The picture will show the Statue of Liberty in the making and also completed as it stands today in Philadelphia. A cartoon entitled "Kaisey at the Bat," a modernized version of the popular poem "Casey at the Bat," revised by George Meeker of the Stanley Co., is also depicted, having been drawn by Mr. Bray, the famous Paramount cartoonist. Another lively scene is "Uncle Sam Has His Eye on You," directed by Mr. Buhler, while still another is The Women's Committee.

The Four Minute Mentions will be found already attached to the features shipped out from the exchanges, while the "Liberty" picture will be sent along with the exhibitor's shows. All of the local exchange managers have been appointed on the Liberty Loan committee by Mr. Buhler, which will guarantee the perfect distribution of the films. Young ladies dressed as Red Cross nurses should be secured by patriotic managers to sell Bonds in the lobby of their theaters was suggested by Judge O'Donnell, while the Liberty Loan Nights as advocated by the Moving Picture World was also brought to the attention of the committee by F. V. Armato and favorably commented upon.

Unstinted support was promised by all of the members of the Philadelphia Salesmen's Association and all of the exchange managers and independent salesmen present. The Liberty advance guards who pledged themselves at the last meeting to aid the campaign in this territory are J. S. Hebrew, Vitagraph, G. Beaver, D. Heenan; J. F. Gill, Mutual, and Dave Starkman; L. G. Ross, J. Safron; George Ames, Pathe, and C. U. Martin, Joel Levy, L. L. Berman, Sam Hochfeld, G. E. Mallaird, A. Thompson; Paramount, Charles Henschell and Earl Sweigert; Robert Lynch, Metro, and Allen May and M. E. Milligan; Charles H. Goodwin, Superior, and S. Ford, Masterpiece, Sam Lefko; Electric, L. Bach; Bluebird, Cy. Perlsweigand Morris Fishman; Fox, George Denbow; General, Charles Klang; Supreme, G. Michels; Select, Harold Rodner.

A motion made by Mr. Milligan, asking that a letter be written and sent to the trade journals soliciting extra space to be given to the promotion of the Liberty Loan drive in this district, was passed upon by the committee.

Whooping It Up in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

The beginning of the third Liberty Loan drive will find Northwest theatermen "doing their bit." In the Twin Cities (Minneapolis and St. Paul) every exhibitor will boost the loan drive either on his screen or by allowing some speaker to talk about Liberty Bonds, or both, and some exhibitors have arranged special programs for Liberty Loan week.

Manager Branham, of the Minneapolis Strand, has booked "Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," a picture, it is predicted, that will instill fighting spirit in the most steadfast, conscentious objector, for Liberty Loan week, and Henry Santry, barytone soloist, will sing patriotic songs and talk about the Loan at every performance. Mr. Branham has also arranged with the Liberty Loan committee to have several of its most prominent members speak at the theater Liberty Loan week and moving pictures of the big Liberty Loan parade scheduled for April 6 will also be shown at the theater during the "drive."

I. H. Ruben, of the Ruben & Finkelstein circuit of Twin City theaters, has also announced that all theaters of the circuit will "do their bit" in boosting Liberty Bond sales.

Manager Billy B. Watson, of the New Garden theater, Minneapolis, plans to boost the loan on his screen and by short talks from the stage by prominent Liberty Loan committeemen of the city.

Practically all of the downtown Minneapolis theaters have agreed to boost the Liberty Loan drive in their advertising daily, and it is expected that St. Paul exhibitors will do likewise.

Every exchange in Minneapolis, "Amusements," "Reel Facts" and other trade publications are urging exhibitors everywhere to boost the Liberty Loan campaign with all their might, and slides and trailers calling attention to the drive are being sent to exhibitors by the score daily. Some exchanges have sent out posters and circular letters about the campaign and everything indicates that film men of this territory will be behind Uncle Sam with full strength.

Clemmer Urges Courtesy to Four Minute Men.

In speaking of the part the theaters should play in the coming Liberty Loan Drive James Q. Clemmer, of the Clemmer Theater, Seattle, Wash., who is a member of the Central Committee of the Liberty Loan Drive and head of the committee in charge of the Four Minute Men, said:

"Our duty does not end with the showing of patriotic pictures. It is not always possible to get enough patriotic pictures, anyway, and even if we could the wisdom of offering them as a constant diet to our patrons during the campaign is doubtful. Nor can we accomplish much for the cause or for ourselves by selling the bonds and war savings stamps. The Government, in fact, prefers that we do not do this; because it has been found that the man who would buy a fifty-dollar Bond at the theater would buy five hundred dollars' worth if appealed to at his office in a businesslike way. The Government also realizes that the motion picture theater is its best means of touching the heartstrings of the masses, and it doesn't want to kill its power by holding everybody up who enters the theater for an evening's entertainment.

"The theater manager can best show his patriotism and help along the cause by showing all the Liberty Loan slides and films that are furnished him and by according courteous treatment to the Four Minute Men. The photographer makes the films and slides at cost, and the committee takes the trouble to distribute them. It is as little as the theater manager can do to show them, when they are delivered to him free of charge. There have been one or two instances in this city where this has not been done at first. I saw to it that was done. If a manager has not enough patriotism to do this voluntarily he will be made to do it.

"Probably the lack of the proper spirit is not shown in any way so much as in the careless and, in some instances, actually discourteous treatment of the Four Minute Men. These men are often strangers in the city. How must one of them feel when he is not informed of the exact time that he is to speak, when, upon his arrival at the theater, the manager nonchalantly waves him toward the stage with a vague "Back there!" and leaves him to find his way out in the same inhospitable fashion? Why make him feel that he is stealing something? It wouldn't be very much trouble to meet him at the door, to escort him to the stage and wait during the four minutes of his speech to escort him out or else to a box to see the show. If Germany wins this war we'll give more than four mintes. For the sake of the American cause let the Moving Picture World urge the exhibitor to treat the Four Minute Man as a guest in his house, not as an intruder in his business."

San Francisco's Rialto to Observe Liberty Loan Week.

Liberty Loan, or "Patriotic," Week will be fittingly observed by the Rialto Theater of San Francisco, Cal., and both the program and the manner of presenting it will be in full accord with the spirit of the period. The Edison production, "The Unbeliever," will be presented under the auspices of the United States Marine Corps and every day in the week will be marked by some special feature. April 1 will be Marine Corps Day, and one thousand marines will be brought here from Mare Island and will be the guests of the management of the house. They will be accompanied by an eighty piece band, which will remain after the marines leave. Two days later one thousand bluejackets from Goat Island will be entertained, and they will bring an eighty-six piece band with them. There will be a special day for the army and other branches of the service. Throughout the week a quartette of marines will sing for the first time a song composed by a Mare Island marine, entitled, "U. S. Means Us."

Editor Moving Picture World,
New York City.

Dear Sir: Your letter of the 15th contains an exceedingly timely, and wonderfully, conceived thought, namely, a "Liberty Loan Night" for the theaters. Needless to say I am with you in heart and spirit, and will lend you every aid possible to carry your plan through in the big, successful manner in deserves. Sincerely yours,

J. W. QUINN,
Quinn's Rialto, Los Angeles, Cal.
Los Angeles, March 6, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World,
New York City.

Dear Sir: I wish to thank you for the straght-from-the-shoulder manner in which you challenge the co-operation of Los Angeles exhibitors.

Count me in! I'll be there with bells on, for I realize that it's a long way to Tipperary and we have a long way to go, but we're going and we'll get there just the same.

You know as well as myself that this is not a tea party. It's real, honest-to-goodness fighting that will get us by and win the cruel and inhuman struggle of God-made man against God-made man.

We must all sacrifice and we should all do so gladly, for remembering what our forefathers suffered to plant the standard of liberty, it is little enough for us to devote one night to the glorious cause of world freedom.

Come on, put on as many as you think necessary, this theater will always be in line for patriotic service, and I say further, in this case the hide goes with the hair. I'm willing to do my bit in any circumstances.

Yours for a glorious victory and permanent peace,

C. R. GATES.

Costigan Gets Whole Town Busy.

J. J. Costigan, owner and manager of the Orpheum Theater of Flagstaff, Arizona, encloses a clipping from the Northern Arizona Leader, published in his town, which describes a plan which he has worked out and in which all the citizens of Flagstaff will take part. Instead of holding a Liberty Loan Night in his theater Mr. Costigan proposed to Mayor Finley of Flagstaff, that the whole town take part in an entertainment, the proceeds of which should be devoted to the purchase of Liberty Bonds. Committees have been appointed and the plan is going through, having been accepted by the Mayor and City Council.

Sylvia Arnold, Newcomer

SO strong is the resemblance to Beverly Bayne by the girl who plays the part of her sister in "With Neatness and Dispatch," the forthcoming Metro picture in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are starred, that they have often been taken for twins.

Sylvia Arnold plays the part of Miss Bayne's sister, and, oddly, her entry into motion pictures is similar to Bayne's. Coming to Metro's eastern studios one day as a visitor, when a big scene was being taken in "Red, White and Blue Blood," a Bushman and Bayne production, she expressed a desire to be allowed to take part in it so that she might be able to see herself on the screen. Permission was granted, and so well did Miss Arnold photograph that she was asked to play in a picture. Her success was meteoric, and in recognition of her conscientious work Maxwell Karger gave her the important part of Miss Bayne's sister in "With Neatness and Dispatch."

Sylvia Arnold.

All this was much against the wishes of Miss Arnold's parents, as there was no necessity for her to adopt a career of any kind. However, they yielded before her success and are now her most ardent supporters. Miss Arnold's one desire is to achieve success on the screen.

"With Neatness and Dispatch" was adapted for the screen by June Mathis and Luther Reed from Kenneth L. Roberts' popular story by that name. This is the second of Mr. Roberts' successful stories to be used by Metro for the screen, the first being "The Shell Game," which was taken from "Goodwill and Almond Shells," and in which Emmy Wehlen was starred.

Be it known that Miss Arnold is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Jacobs, of Newark, N. J., and a granddaughter of the late H. R. Jacobs, famous in his day as the owner of the greatest of popular-price theatrical circuits. Her father is manager of the Paramount theater of Newark, so that her ambition and ability seem to have been handed down to her.

SMITH IS NAMED ASSISTANT TO ZECCA.

Paul Brunet, vice president of Pathe, announces the appointment of G. A. Smith as assistant director general of productions to assist Ferdinand Zecca.

Mr. Smith has been connected with Pathe for about four years in the advertising and production departments. His training has fitted him for his new duties in which he will assist Mr. Zecca in the supervision of the studios and in the production of Pathe serials and features.

Before entering the motion picture business Mr. Smith for eight years was a newspaper man, having been employed in the Hearst organization as reporter, writer, editor, and make-up editor. He entered the employ of Pathe as director of serial publicity, handling the campaign on "Neal of the Navy," the first serial exploited independently by Pathe. Mr. Smith has supervised the campaigns on sixteen other Pathe serials. About a year ago he was transferred to the production department, being placed in charge of the Pathe Studio in Forty-eighth street.

To Save the Lives of Our Brothers and Sons
Invest in U. S.
Liberty Bonds
Goldwyn's every energy will be placed solidly behind our Government in its Liberty Bond campaign and in any and every manner that can aid the Nation at war.
Goldwyn Pictures Corporation
Samuel Goldfish, Pres.
Edgar Selwyn, V-Pres.
16 East 42d Street
New York City

Worth Fighting For?

SHALL this little girl grow up in the sort of American home we know, healthy and happy? Shall she have the advantage of living and learning in a free land, under free institutions? Shall such children develop into Liberty-loving citizens that a free America may be proud of?

For over two hundred years Americans have fought valiantly, and died gallantly, to win for themselves and hand down to their posterity the blessings of liberty, justice, self-government and equal opportunity. This precious heritage, bought at so great a price, is now threatened.

The question which today confronts America as a nation, and you as an individual, is whether or not a free America is worth fighting for

Are American children in this and all future generations to receive unimpaired the legacy of freedom of which we are now the custodians, or shall their country be turned over bodily to the brutal, rapacious, power-mad enemy which has forced us into this war?

This question cannot be answered by word of mouth, but by deeds alone.

Let your answer be your investment in

Liberty Bonds!

Metro Pictures Corporation

subscribes with all its earnestness to this patriotic principle and urges the full co-operation of the Motion Picture Industry with the Liberty Loan Committee.

How Much of Your Pay Do You Think You Can Keep if Germany Wins This War?

If, to help America win this war, you buy to the very limit of your ability you are not merely helping America. You are not merely making a good investment. You are not merely helping to bring peace nearer. You are doing all these things, and in addition you are buying the best protection for your own individual prosperity—yes, the only real protection you can buy.

Liberty Bonds

Universal Support of the Government is loyalty and patriotism and besides—if Uncle Sam is not victorious in this war there will be mighty little profit n business for U. S.—Autocracy is a close collector.

Famous Players-Lasky Corporation

Producers and Distributors of Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

485 Fifth Avenue, New York City

What Will Protect YOU If These Are Defeated?

Our army and navy are the protectors and the only protectors of your home—your family—your income—your property.

What will become of you and yours if these protectors are weakened and rendered insufficient to their task?

They will not be defeated by the enemy.

The only way they can be defeated or weakened is through your failure to support them with ships, food, weapons, ammunitions, clothing and supplies.

Your life, your business, the future of your family, may depend upon how much real effort and sacrifice you make to invest in

Liberty Bonds

In utilizing this advertisement to talk Liberty Bonds rather than our own business, we do so in the firm belief that there will be little of either pleasure or profit in our business or any American business unless Liberty wins this war.

"The Eagle's Eye"

1476 Broadway, New York City

Will You Invest Your Money With Uncle Sam Now?

Or Let Germany Take It Away From You Later?

Be practical. Look squarely at the facts. We will either invest our money with Uncle Sam now, at good interest rates, to help him win this war, or we will give it up later to pay Germany's war cost—and as much more as Germany chooses to collect. Invest in

Liberty Bonds Today

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

Triangle Distributing Corporation

1457 Broadway, New York

The THIRD LINE of DEFENSE
Get into it and Dig
LIBERTY LOAN
LIBERTY LOAN
In this line every true American can and will help to win the war. Invest in
Liberty Bonds
In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by Select Pictures Corporation
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

Choose!

"Lend Me Your Money that I may equip my Army and Navy to insure for you and your children the blessings of Liberty."

"Give Me Your Money or Your Life"

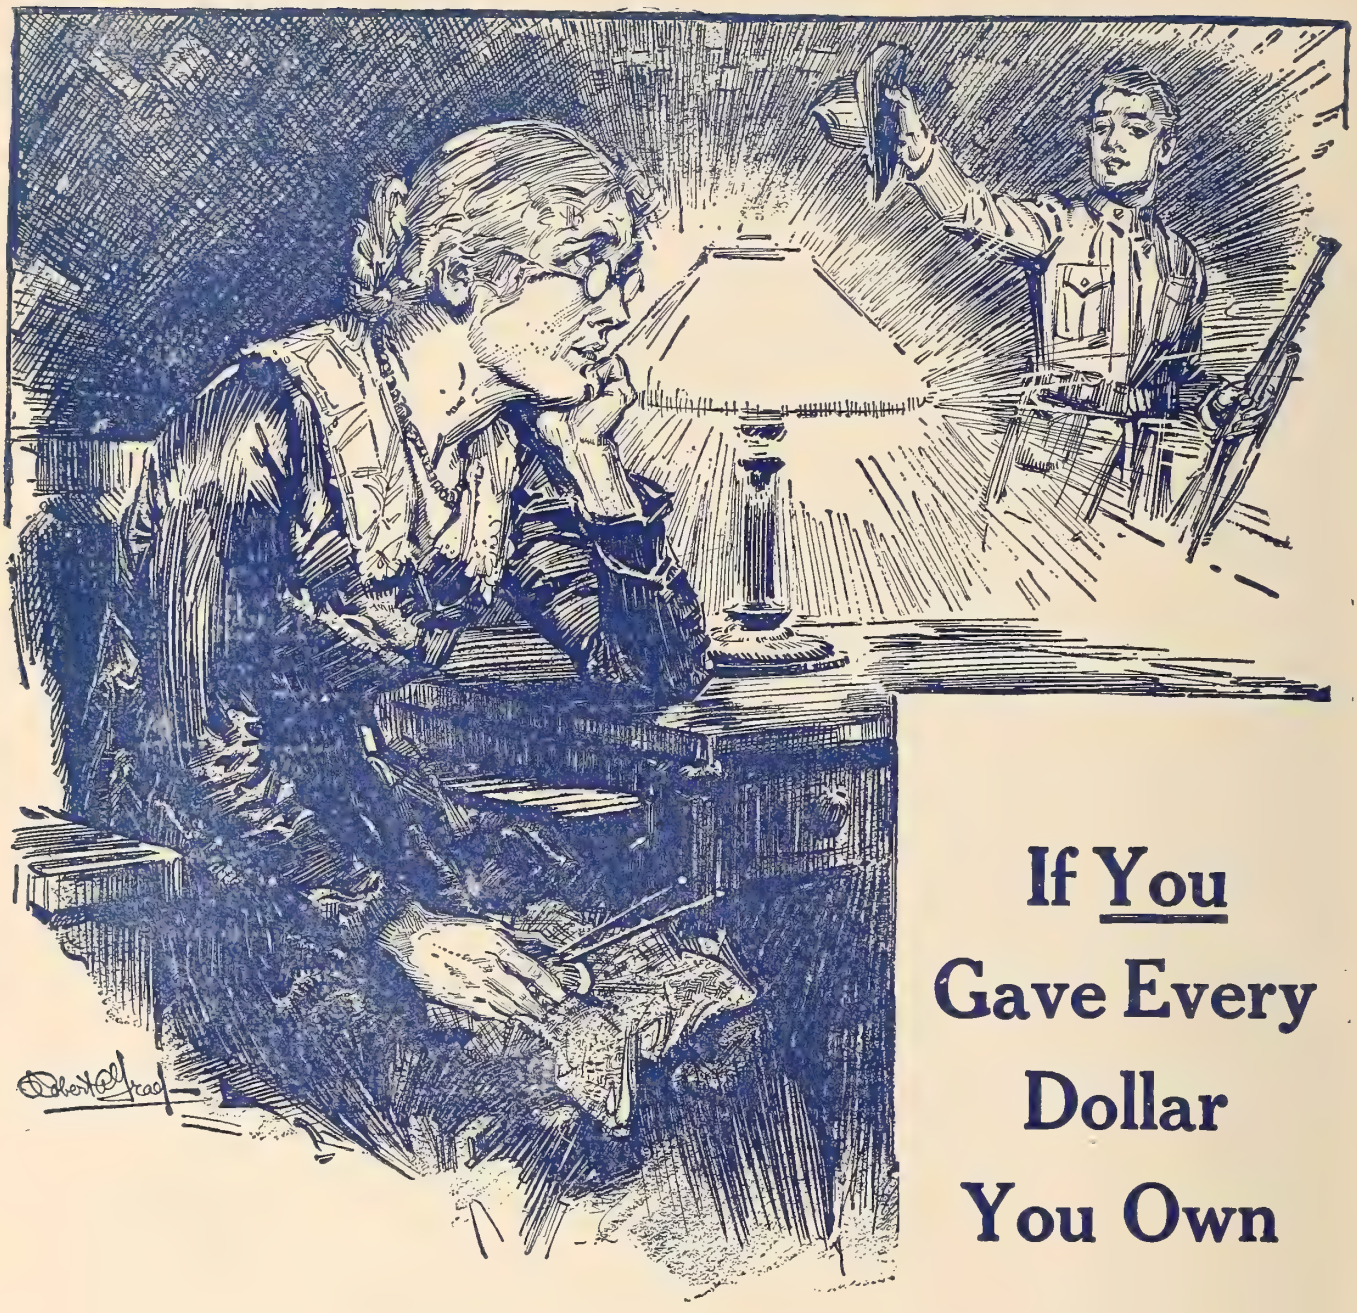
Invest now to the limit of your ability in

U. S. Liberty Bonds

The Kaiser calls us "a nation of dollar chasers." Let us show him that we know how to use those dollars in the defense of Liberty and the overthrow of Prussianism.

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO.

"Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"—Carl Laemmle, President
1600 Broadway, New York City



If You Gave Every Dollar You Own

how little would the sacrifice be compared to theirs.

We are not asked to give. We are asked only to lend. To lend at good interest secured by the best collateral on earth

U. S. Liberty Bonds

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

Paralta Plays

"Pick of the Pictures"

Paralta Plays, Inc., 6 West 48th Street, New York City

An official photograph of the club which is used to "finish off" wounded Italian soldiers. 32,000 of these were recently captured by the Italians.

The Destruction of Civilization is in grim and sober reality what we are fighting this war to prevent. The club pictured above—from an actual official photograph—might be the weapon of a savage cave man of five thousand years ago. It is in fact the weapon with which German soldiers "finish off" enemy wounded who have fallen on the battlefield.

There is only one answer to make to such methods—the defeat of the German armies. America has taken up the sword to give that answer. Our army is in France to help win this war on the battlefield—that civilization may be safe, that America may be safe.

You Can Have Your Share in America's Answer to German Savagery

The Third Liberty Loan is your opportunity. It is the most direct blow that can be struck at German military supremacy. It is the most powerful aid that can be given our soldiers in France. It means rifles and helmets and gas-masks—the best protection for our men from German brutality. It means big guns and shells and airplanes—and VICTORY.

Invest today in bonds of the Third Liberty Loan, and save the lives of American soldiers.

Save Civilization, Save America, Your Own Family and Your Own Home

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

General Film Company
(Incorporated)
25 West 44th Street, New York City

Put your money in this bank

It's the safest in the world. It pays you good interest. And your deposits in it help to insure a priceless heritage of freedom and peace for your children and your childrens' children.

To the limit of your resources

Invest in the Third U. S.

Liberty Loan

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

25 West 45th Street, New York City

He says we are bluffing!
Let's show him a big Card —
and everybody in on the Pot.
Put up your ante now in the 3RD
LIBERTY LOAN
3rd LIBERTY LOAN
2nd LIBERTY LOAN
1st LIBERTY LOAN
In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by World Film Corp'n.
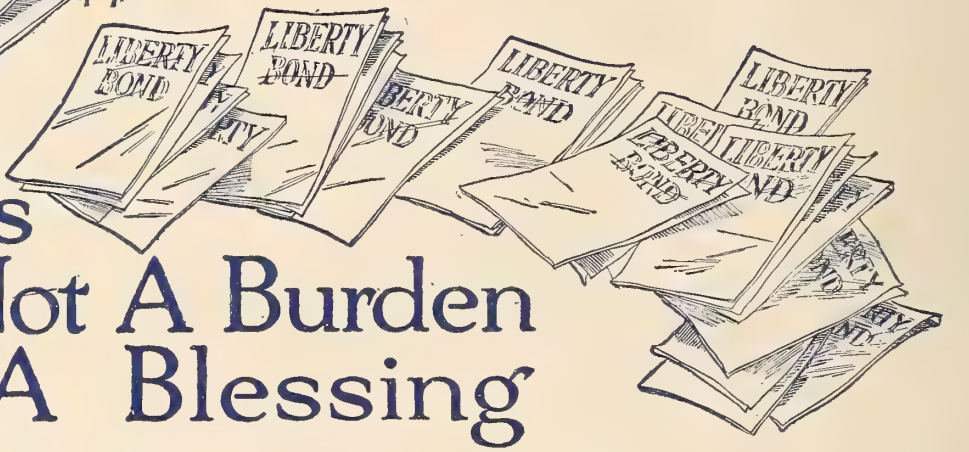
126 West 46th Street, New York City

YOU are asked to save every cent not needed for your reasonable support and physical well being—this is thrift



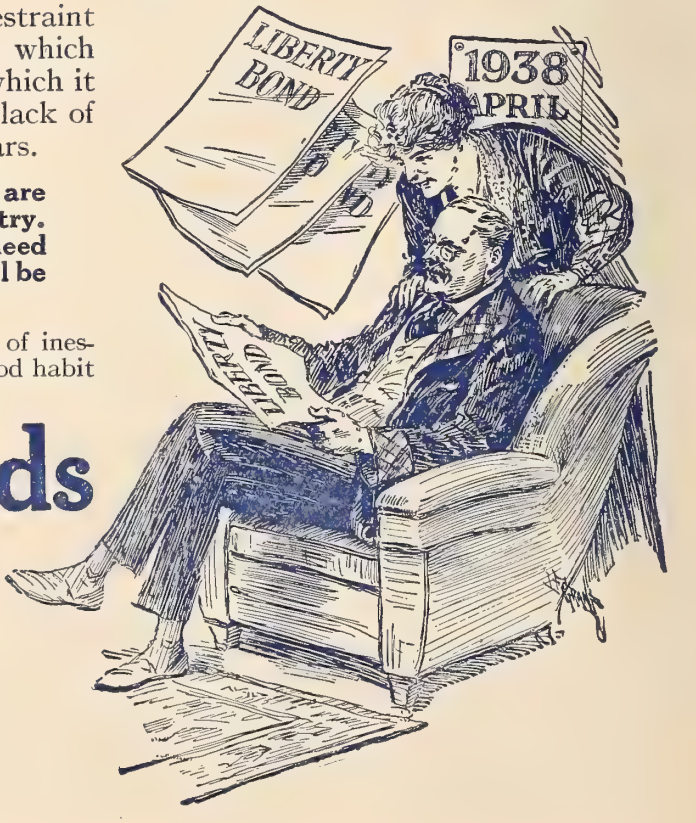
Bonds Are Not A Burden But A Blessing

THRIFT requires the exercise of restraint and self-denial—qualities without which you cannot achieve the success in life which it is your ambition to achieve, and for the lack of which you are likely to suffer in later years.

The money you acquire by thrift you are asked to loan—not give—to your country. It will come back to you when you may need it far more than you do now, and you will be paid interest for its use.

This war is a frightful thing, but it may prove of inestimable benefit to you, if it teaches you the good habit of thrift. Start the habit by investing in

Liberty Bonds



In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

Mutual Film Corporation

220 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Where Your Money Goes

WE are now building more naval and merchant ships than we have constructed in the last generation.

We are building a vast fleet of airplanes, and enormous supplies of artillery, motor trucks, machine guns, rifles and ammunition. We are feeding, clothing and training an army of a million men, and preparing for a million more. We have loaned billions of dollars to our allies to be spent in the United States.

From the shipyards of the Pacific to those of the Atlantic; on our farms and in our mines, mills and factories in every state in the Union; back of the firing lines in France, where men are training, camps are being erected and railroads built, billions upon billions are being expended for labor, for transportation, for materials and supplies of every description.

The mind can hardly conceive the sums of money required for our war preparations. Yet these expenditures are absolutely essential. We must win the war quickly if possible; we must carry it on for years if necessary. We must do the job with American thoroughness, let the cost be what it may.

Remember, when you invest in your Liberty Bonds, that there is immediate, urgent, imperative need for every dollar you can possibly spare.

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

Simplex MADE AND GUARANTEED BY THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC. Simplex

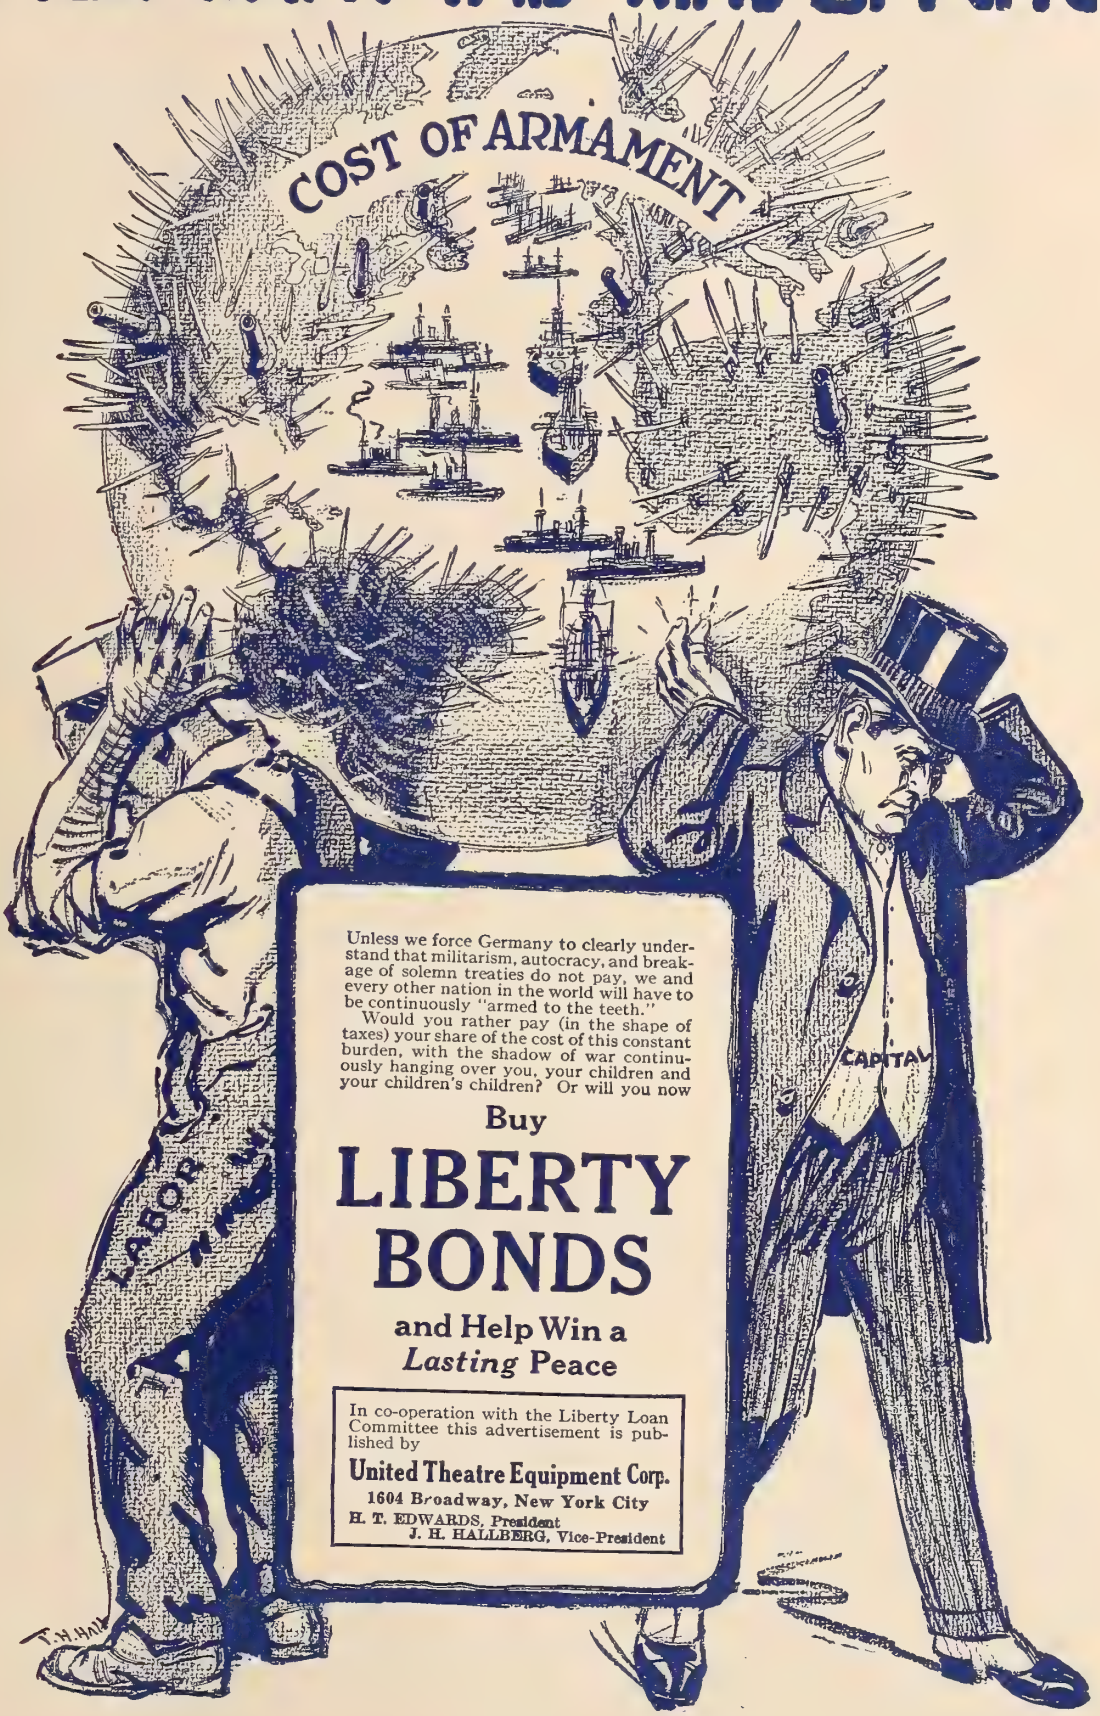
317 East 34th St-- New York

"And there is a lot more up the river than has ever come over the falls."

Our business is mighty important to us but we are more than glad to substitute for our own message on this page the message of the Liberty Loan.

Nicholas Power Co., Inc.
90 Gold Street, New York City

DO YOU WANT THIS KIND OF PEACE?



Unless we force Germany to clearly understand that militarism, autocracy, and breakage of solemn treaties do not pay, we and every other nation in the world will have to be continuously "armed to the teeth."

Would you rather pay (in the shape of taxes) your share of the cost of this constant burden, with the shadow of war continuously hanging over you, your children and your children's children? Or will you now

Buy

LIBERTY BONDS

and Help Win a Lasting Peace

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by United Theatre Equipment Corp.

1604 Broadway, New York City

H. T. EDWARDS, President

J. H. HALLBERG, Vice-President

VICTORY

We are going to Win This War

The victory, like everything worth while in life, will require sacrifice, self denial, ungrudging effort.

In defense of Liberty, Justice and Civilization, we must use every weapon at our command. And not the least of these is money. Never in the history of the world has there been a truer cause. Invest in

Liberty Bonds

In co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee this advertisement is published by

Rothacker
FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO, U.S.A.
TRADE MARK REG.

1339 Diversey Parkway, Chicago, Ill.

Foreign Trade News

Conducted by F. G. ORTEGA.

Puerto Rico News

New Revenue Tax Giving Trouble to Treasury Department and Local Exchanges.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, March 16, 1918.

ON what basis should the new 5 per cent. ad valorem internal revenue tax on cinematographic films, which went into effect March 1, be reckoned is a question which the managers of the film exchanges of the island and the Treasury Department are trying to find a satisfactory solution.

The inevitable answer "in the values" does not satisfy the former, for they maintain that there is great difference between the cost of a film and its earning value to them for two or three months in Puerto Rico. Certain pictures, if bought outright or if leased for advantageous territory, would bring many thousands of dollars, whereas they are secured for a comparatively short run here for one or two thousand dollars, and even less in most cases. The exchange naturally believes that the latter sum is the basis on which to reckon the tax. Some of the companies here operate in Cuba, Santo Domingo and elsewhere, and pictures, after being shown in Puerto Rico, are taken there. The price as listed in the bill of lading represents the lease terms for the complete circuit. The exchanges contend that in such cases the revenue should be collected not on the full list price, but on a proportionate part of it. If, for example, the lease is $8,000 and Puerto Rico is one of four places the film is shown, then $2,000 is the part that corresponds to Puerto Rico, and on that amount the 5 per cent. ad valorem revenue should be reckoned, the exchanges contend.

The Casino of San Juan, Puerto Rico, Which Has Its Own Picture Show.

Exchanges that buy or lease film for Puerto Rico and other territories pay for their rights according to the territory for which they obtain the film. When as high as 15 cents a foot is paid for the film's rights for Puerto Rico, Santo Domingo, Cuba, Panama and some of the English West Indies, the exchanges figure the proportionate cost for Puerto Rico at not to exceed 3½ cents per foot.

The treasurer has taken the case under advisement, and his decision will be known shortly. Should it be unfavorable to the exchanges there is a chance that the island may suffer from a film famine.

The film tax is only one of a series of new excise taxes recently provided by the Legislature, the purpose of which is to fill up the hole in the island's revenue made by prohibition. Automobiles, phonographs and pianos manufactured in Puerto Rico or brought or imported into the island are all taxed 5 per cent. ad valorem, while a 10 per cent. ad valorem tax is laid on diamonds and other precious stones.

The exchanges in Puerto Rico, their managers and the producing companies they represent are as follows:

Medal Film Company, 101 San Francisco street, Carlos Zeno, manager, handling Pathe, Essanay, Metro and Triangle.

Caribbean Film Company, Tetuan street, J. P. Donahue, manager, representing Artcraft and Paramount.

Universal Film Company, 48 Luna street; A. Gorman, manager.

Crosas & Company. Cruz 18, A. Crosas, manager, handling World and Moss features.

San Juan Film Company, Cruz 18, Pedro Gelabert, manager, handling Pathe and World.

Roman Film Company, Allen 79, M. Roman, manager, handling Metro.

Empresa Yaguez, Mayaguez, Francisco Miamón, manager, handling Ivan and other pictures.

Just at present Mary Pickford, in the "Little American," is having a great run on the island. Most houses are showing it at an admission of 25 cents, and are reporting capacity business. Each house that has shown the film requested from one to three repeats.

A. L. Pratchett, General Manager of the Caribbean Film Company, has sailed for New York, and will stop at Havana, where he will remain for several weeks. Between now and November he expects to cover all of the territories in the West Indies, in which the Caribbean Film Company has the exclusive right for Artcraft and Paramount films. He plans to be back in Puerto Rico in November.

The Puerto Rico Casino has its own cine. It is not a nightly affair, but a Saturday night one, and occasionally it is suspended on Saturday night to give place to some other form of entertainment.

The Casino since its inauguration has had as part of its program a social Thursday. When the training camp for officers was opened the day was changed to Saturday in order that members who were in the camp might be present, and an extra effort is being made to have the evening a success.

The introduction of moving pictures in the Casino is a part of this effort. The Casino has bought a machine—a Power's, by the way, sold by A. J. Lang when he was here a couple of months ago—and the pictures are thrown on the screen of the portable stage in the ballroom. The Board of Directors believes that the movies will prove a success.

HARDWOOD HULL.

General Enterprises, Inc., Closes Big Deal

Harry G. Kosch Announces Sales of Foreign Rights on Goldwyn, Balboa and Frohman Pictures.

HARRY G. KOSCH, advisory counsel for Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, of General Enterprises, Inc., announces that he has been appointed New York representative for a co-operative body of foreign buyers, recently organized for the purpose of dealing in world's rights. Mr. Kosch reports an unusual state of activity in this particular branch of the industry. On behalf of John Olsen & Company, of Copenhagen, Denmark, the General Enterprises, Inc., attorney has negotiated a contract whereby this firm secures the Scandinavian rights to the entire Select output. Mr. Kosch also acted this week in a similar capacity for Olsen & Company in closing contracts for all of the productions made by Goldwyn for the territory embraced by Denmark, Norway and Sweden. In addition to the above mentioned contracts, negotiations were also consummated between Mr. Kosch and Nick Holde, acting for the Balboa Company, whereby a complete series of Balboa pictures will be distributed in Scandinavia by the organization which Mr. Kosch represents.

Another important deal involving the countries in Scandinavia, Finland and Holland has been consummated between Mr. Kosch and the Trans-Russian Film Company, which gives the latter named firm the right to distribute ten special pictures of the Frohman Amusement Company in the territories mentioned. Among these pictures are the following: "Body and Soul," "The Woman in 47," "Then I'll Come Back," "What Happened in 22," "The Witching Hour," "God's Man," "The Rainbow," "The Accomplice," "The Song of Six Pence" and "The Conquest of Canaan."

In addition to these activities, the General Enterprises, Inc., attorney is also handling the foreign sales for Messrs. Sawyer's and Lubin's various special state right productions, among which are: "The Warrior," "Mother," "The Liar" and "The Crucible of Life."

A Great Change for the Better

American "Junk" No Longer for Foreign Fields, Says Cromelin.

"I RECENTLY declared that the advance of American films in the foreign fields was not due to war conditions," says President Paul H. Cromelin of the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation in a new statement. "This declaration is substantially true, but there is one war-time angle that has worked indirect benefit to the American picture abroad, and it is this:

"American pictures suffered loss of prestige abroad for many years because junk prints were shown in many instances. These prints came from England and were the result of an overflow of American films in that country. American pictures were indiscriminately shipped to Britain, and their suitability to that market not considered at all, with the result that some of them fell into the hands of second-hand dealers, who bought them as junk and sold them for such in foreign territories.

"Naturally film buyers in those territories would not pay the price for new American films when old ones could easily be had that were new to the market, although not high in quality, so local picture fans never saw American pictures at their best, and were not impressed with what they did see. One would not expect a spirited demand for American films under such conditions.

"But the indiscriminate flood of American films on the London market ceased when the ten cents per foot British import tax went into action. There was no longer an overflow of American pictures in London, and shortly none for the second-hand dealers who shipped to foreign parts. Besides it became more difficult for the latter to make shipments with the tightening of shipping restrictions. The countries the junk dealers had supplied tried out new American film, and theater audiences took to this material with such enthusiasm that the foreign exhibitor was glad of the change. Today he declines to be switched to second-hand stuff at any price."

Among the Exporters.

Many foreign buyers—upwards of fifty, according to some statements—attended the trade showing of "Just a Woman," the Eugene Walter six-part feature, starring Charlotte Walker, and directed by Julius Steger, given at the New York theater roof garden on Thursday morning, March 21. The showing was held under the auspices of the Robertson-Cole Company, of New York and London, with branch offices in many of the large cities of the world. This concern is handling the foreign territorial rights to the production, the negative of which recently was purchased outright by Frank G. Hall to be distributed through the United States Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, of which he is president. Miss Edna Williams, representative of the Robertson-Cole Company, is in charge of the disposal of foreign rights.

* * *

A representative of Miles & Manheimer has sailed for Rio de Janeiro, taking with him several copies of "Tarzan of the Apes," the picture with which the well-known New York exporters start their new drive in the Latin-American markets. It is understood that he will visit Rio, Sao Paulo, Pernambuco, Bahia, Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Santiago, Lima and other important motion picture centers of South America. Miles & Manheimer have selected as their representative a man who has successfully exploited several American features in this territory and knows the ground thoroughly.

* * *

The Inter-Ocean Film Corporation announces the sale of "Enlighten Thy Daughter" this week in five of the few remaining "open" territories. The territory just closed is comprised of Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador and India. It is further stated that "The 13th Labor of Hercules," which is also distributed by the same company in foreign fields, has been disposed of for India.

* * *

Gus Schlesinger, who is placing Christie comedies in the foreign field for the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, recently entertained a party of fifty children from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum at a special showing of these pictures in the Inter-Ocean projecting room. Mr. Schlesinger reports brisk business with Christie comedies in most of the foreign markets.

* * *

As predicted in this department last week, Bidwell & Larrain have just secured the rights for the exploitation of the First National-Chaplin series in Chile. The deal was closed through William Vogel, of William Vogel Productions, Inc., who controls the world rights on these pictures.

* * *

An interesting letter received by the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation reveals that "Enlighten Thy Daughter" played a small town in Puerto Rico eighteen times. The picture, the letter states, has met with as great appreciation as the most successful serials.

Inquiries from Abroad.

The addresses of these firms may be obtained from Cine-Mundial, 516 Fifth avenue, New York. We do not assume responsibility as to the standing of the inquirers, and the usual precautions should be taken in all cases. All inquiries are received direct by the Moving Picture World and Cine-Mundial, the Spanish monthly edition of the Moving Picture World. Please mention number when writing:

22. A man in Tepic, Mexico, is in the market for moving pictures for advertising purposes.

23. A company recently established in Havana, Cuba, is in the market for films.

25. A firm in Santo Domingo wishes to get in touch with a reliable exporter of new or used film.

27. A man in Camagüey, Cuba, is in the market for electric lighting devices, such as dimmers, gelatine, spot lights, lamps and wire.

28. A man in Valparaiso, Chile, is in the market for new and second-hand film. Payments will be made through a New York banking house.

29. A man in Vera Cruz, Mexico, is in the market for post-cards of motion picture artists.

30. A man in Agua Pireta, Mexico, is in the market for new and used film.

31. A firm in Buenos Aires, Argentina, is in the market for chemicals.

32. A firm in Havana, Cuba, is in the market for great features and serials.

POWER AND TRIMBLE PREPARE FOR WORK.

Tyrone Power, leading star of the Washington Motion Picture Corporation, establishing studios at Minnehaha Park, will arrive in Spokane in May to take up his work under a three-year contract with that company.

Larry Trimble, known to motion picture fans of both England and America, will become a resident of Spokane through signing a contract with the Washington as director of productions, to be started soon in the new Minnehaha Park studio, and to take charge of marketing the output of the local plant.

WORLD-PICTURES BUYS COOK STORY.

World-Pictures have purchased from Grace MacGowan Cook the picture rights to her successful novel, "The Power and the Glory." It is now being put into scenario form, and will be among the early summer releases.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and MARGARET I. MACDONALD

Semi-Annual Catalogue Now Ready

Third Edition of Half-Yearly List of Educational and Selected Films Available for Distribution.

THE third edition of the semi-annual catalogue of Educational and Selected Films issued by the Moving Picture World is now available to applicants at the rate of 20 cents per copy. This catalogue covers the period between July 1 and December 31, 1917, and contains besides a fully classified list of educational pictures, the names of works of literature that have been adapted to the screen during this period, and of a number of pictures of mixed character suggested for the family group, children's matinees and Sunday exhibitions, approximately 1,500 different pictures.

Attention is also called to the fact that the Moving Picture World publishes in its columns a similar list of films every three months with a view to aiding the exhibitor and others interested in the presentation of high class moving picture programs.

An Indictment

The Moving Picture, A Clergyman's Child, Has Been Neglected by the Church.

By Rev. W. H. Jackson.

CONTINUED agitation on censorship and the Sunday opening question seems in some sections of the country to cause constant friction between clergymen and the moving picture interests. All this is very unfortunate and ought not to be. With perfect candor at the outset, the writer of this article desires to say that much of the blame for these conditions rests upon the clergymen generally. For several years they have been apathetic and indifferent to the growth in their midst of a great power, which, from the beginning they ought to have associated themselves with, and should also have assisted in the directing of the same. Now that this new power has grown to vast proportions under all other guidance but theirs, the clergymen—who took no part in its development, now find fault with its activities. If a father allowed his son—an intelligent boy—to grow to manhood, denying him all parental guidance, and left him to pick out his own associates in the world; who, but the father, would be to blame if that son formed associates in life contrary to and also perhaps derogatory to the father's best interests, more especially so if the father were a clergyman and the son a man of the world.

A Clergyman's Child.

The film which makes moving pictures possible was the invention of an Episcopal clergyman, the late Rev. Hannibal Goodwin, of the House of Prayer, Newark, N. J. He worked at it assiduously for two or three years in the hope of perfecting a panoramic picture machine to hold children in Sunday-school more successfully. If that great-minded and kindly gentleman were alive to-day would he not be surprised to find that the child of his brains and religious anticipations had been allowed to grow up without the care and support of those very interests to which he dedicated it. This child has grown, however, supported by the world rather than the church, a credit to the one who fathered it; and, if the "children of this world have been wiser than the children of light," let not the children of light complain, theirs is the blame and the loss. This great child, however, it is well to say, has never disgraced either itself or its progenitor; it has been both used and abused and only the abuser is to blame. If those very people who could and should have been its first users had availed themselves of their privileges they might have saved this power from much of the misfortune which has befallen it and they must be exceedingly careful that they blame not a condition for which they are as largely responsible.

Its Origin and Purpose.

The clergyman who said of the moving picture "it was conceived in iniquity and born in sin" certainly knew his bible, but was otherwise lamentable in his ignorance of other things. The moving picture was conceived in the brain of a right-minded clergyman, and was born of the greatest development of the associated arts and sciences; if therefore the brain of man, the sciences of the universe and the arts of human development and culture are the results of a God-creator, the moving picture has nothing to be ashamed of in its origin. When, therefore, we find God-created beings and things diverted from, or perverted in their purpose, to blame the original cause is a vile slander; suffice it then to thus establish the origin of the moving picture. With regard to its purpose, its original conception was for the Sunday school; its development was for education and entertainment; no one could foresee to what diverse purposes it might ultimately be used any more than the discoverer of printing could foresee to what evil purposes the publication of books might be turned. The origin and purpose of books and pictures are almost identical, they are both permanent for all time, their purpose likewise is for good though capable of evil, and their future is in the hands of the public.

A Fifty-Fifty Possibility.

It has been truthfully said that the moving pictures are equally capable of good or evil. This cannot be said of any other thing which holds within itself the power to entertain and amuse people. The theater, the vaudeville, the music and dance hall and similar places do not possess the same proportion of power for good as they do for evil. There is, therefore, a fifty-fifty proposition with pictures and with books. The world may be using its fifty and cannot be blamed. Are the clergy using their fifty? If not, they stand indicted of wilful if not a criminal neglect, and must needs defend themselves, and not vent their wrath upon those who have taken up that which they have neglected. If the pictures only possess say fifty per cent. of power for good, why is that part not used? Only a half of one per cent. of ministers in New York city use or encourage the moving pictures. Over fifty per cent. not only neglect their part in the good work they could do, but spend time and money in fighting against those who do use their own claimed proportion; a truly dog-in-the-manger attitude to take. John Wesley did not stand off and fight against places he objected to, he preached in them. If the ministers instead of fighting against the moving pictures would begin and use them, they would serve a higher purpose. In the smaller cities and suburban towns a few more ministers have had the courage to take up the profit to be found in the educational picture, but their numbers are few in proportion to the rightful number of those who should be as busy with pictures as with books.

Inherent Advantages.

Books are considered the most important accompaniment of human progress. If this were not so the libraries of the world are a vain thing and such men as Andrew Carnegie very foolish, but our schools are monuments of wisdom and the American school is the backbone of the nation. Pictures are the necessary expounders of books, indeed their relations in this respect are interchangeable, they are concomitant. Who despises pictures must despise books, who discourages pictures must discourage books; what education has joined together, let not ignorance (in any form) put asunder.

The Moving Picture Educator is speaking thus plainly in presenting this indictment against the clergymen because of the great difficulty it finds in getting clergymen generally to see or take advantage of the inherent value of moving pictures, or to see and take advantage of their at least fifty per cent. part and in their own case make it a one hundred per cent value to them in their work; it is easy to make the pictures do their full value of good if all the good in them is sought for and brought out.

School Instructors.

In common honesty much that has here been said about the attitude of the large majority of ministers must also be said of the public school authorities, although they have among them a larger proportion of picture users than the Church; in spite of this, however, considering that they have the youth of America under their control, the writer does not hesitate to declare that they are derelict in their duty to the educational advantages of their schools, and lacking in force of that good citizenship which an education coupled with a patriotism such as the moving pictures alone can teach, is so criminally ignored. Let no one who uses the pictures be criticised by those who ought to use them; neglect on one's own duty does not give one the right to find fault with another who does try to do something with that power which we ignore or even neglect.

Interesting Educationals

Two Topical Subjects, Two Industrial, Two Travel, and Two Zoological.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

"Training Women Sharp Shooters" (Paramount-Bray).

THE efficient manner in which American women students of rifle shooting handle their guns under the tutelage of June Haughton, international woman rifle shot, will be somewhat surprising to some who view this picture. The school in which these women are seen performing, and in which Miss Haughton herself demonstrates for the camera, is situated in New York, and is being attended by a goodly number of New York's women, who are determined not to be caught napping should they be called on in an emergency to do guard relief duty. Pictograph No. 113 has enlisted this picture as one of its most entertaining subjects.

"A New Use for a House Boat" (Paramount-Bray).

The raising of dogs on a house boat has become a reality according to a picture to be found in Pictograph No. 113. The boat in question is anchored in the Hudson just above Manhattan, and in this floating kennel are being bred some very fine specimens of the canine kind, among them French and English bulldogs and various kinds of terriers.

"Timber Transportation in Sweden" (Pathe).

This half-reel, which appears with above, is also in tints. It gives some informing views of the way log drives are made in Sweden down swiftly moving rivers. The transportation of a log raft is shown, with men upon it guiding the raft in its dangerous course by means of great sweeps. A fine subject of the kind.

"Speeding Up the 'Spud' Drive" (Universal).

In the 66th release of the Screen Magazine will be found some interesting scenes which illustrate the growing of potatoes on a large scale. Horse tractors are used in preparing the ground and in removing the potatoes to the surface after they have matured. The gathering of the potatoes in baskets and the final sacking of them in preparation for the market is also shown.

"Lumbering Lodgepole Pine in a National Forest" (Universal).

Another interesting logging picture such as we have seen not infrequently in the past few months appears in the 66th release of the Screen Magazine. Here we see the lumbermen going through the forest of Arapahoe, Colorado, marking with their axes the trees selected for removal. The cutting of the trees and the removal of the logs to the flume by means of tractors, and their final arrival at the saw mill are among the scenes shown.

"Cuzco, the City of the Sun" (Kleine-Lincoln & Parker).

One of the series of South American pictures collected by the Lincoln & Parker cameraman. Cuzco is an ancient city in Peru originally inhabited by the Incas, and situated about 11,000 feet above sea level in the Andes mountains. This city is of intense interest to the modern public. The fortress built of blocks of blue limestone without the aid of cement is a curiosity for reason of the fact that these blocks are so closely fitted together that the blade of a knife could not be forced between them. The city is still inhabited by Indians, and among the interesting sights are some scenes at the market place where these Indians sell their goods. We learn from the picture that the chief food of these people is frozen potatoes. The Rodadent, a natural rock formation in which steps have been hewn by the ancients apparently for the purpose of approaching a throne chair at the top, is another interesting feature. The picture gives an excellent idea of the architectural style of the Incas.

"Auvillac" (Pathe).

A half-reel scenic, in tints, giving some striking views of an old feudal town in the province of Auvergne, France. The town lies 3,000 feet above the valley of the Jordanne river. Village folks, herds of sheep and various forms of architecture are pictured in a pleasing way.

"Sea Birds and Animals" (Universal-Finley).

The 13th number of the Finley Animal Studies will be found interesting and entertaining. Turtles and terrapins are the first to receive attention. The shells of these animals are their protection against enemies, and one of the most attractive features of this portion of the picture shows one of them emerging from its covering. Then we are given glimpses of the tufted puffin and its home, and also of other sea birds including a closeup of the chick of a sea parrot. The male sea lion getting ready to take a dip in the sea, and his herd following the example of its chief are entertaining features. Information regarding these animals is given, and lastly some remarkable pictures of the home of the white pelican at Clear Lake, Northern California. The eggs of the pelicans lying around on the sand, the young hatching, and finally a parade of pelicans are all interesting and often amusing sights.

"Wild Animals of the Yellowstone" (Universal-Finley).

An unusually attractive release shown recently at the Rivoli shows some of the wild animals to be found in the Yellowstone Park. Nicely subtitled views of deer including a closeup of a mother deer and a couple of fawns are among the opening scenes. Then comes the cony, a funny little thick-furred animal that builds itself a tiny hay stack for a winter home, followed by pictures of the American Elk. One of the most attractive scenes in the picture shows a beautiful elk on a mountain side, his head and powerful antlers clearly outlined against the sky. Some interesting views of the beaver, with information concerning its peculiar habits, are also given.

Outing-Chester Series

Interesting Group of Films Made by C. L. Chester in Conjunction with the Outing Magazine.

THE FIRST four reels of a series of fifty-two scenic-travel pictures made by C. L. Chester in conjunction with the Outing Magazine were exhibited to the press on Thursday, March 21, in the Sun projection room, 218 West 42nd street. These pictures are being handled by the Jesse J. Goldburg Motion Picture Productions, Times Building, New York City, and are of unusual interest and good quality. They are tinted and toned, and are subtitled in an entertaining as well as an instructive manner.

The subjects covered in the first four reels of approximately 900 feet each, are "A Coorial on the Oronoco," "A Mountaineering Memory," "Kaieteur, the Perfect Cataract" and "A Jungle Joy Ride." Three of these picture scenes of great beauty and interest in South America, while the remaining one introduces us to the very tip-top of one of the Canadian Rockies.

"A Coorial on the Oronoco" takes us along this beautiful Venezuelan river in one of the Venezuelan sail boats known as a coorial. The trip through the rapids with the native boatmen in the garb God gave them portaging the boat over shallows and up steep and rocky ways to avoid the raging cataracts is exceptionally thrilling. Finally we come to a great stretch of clear, quiet running water set in banks of black granite rock from whence we move on peacefully to the towns of St. Felix and Barrancas. In the latter considerable of the life of the place is pictured. An interesting scene in this reel shows great clumps of water hyacinths which threaten to interfere with traffic on the river, and also clouds of malarial mosquitos of which some remarkable closeups are given. Then there are pictures of life among the Guaraumo Indians with their queer houses erected on stilts, and Pedernales, an interesting coast town. This reel altogether is tremendously interesting.

Scene from "Outing-Chester Series."

"A Mountaineering Memory" presents a fine illustration of mountain climbing in the Canadian Rockies. The Assinaboine mountain is the particular subject upon which the camera was focused. This mountain, which is only something over 11,000 feet high, is most difficult to climb because of its steepness and rotten ledges. The picture shows a party of mountain climbers starting off from Banff by pack train, camping, and finally making the daring climb to the very summit where by the aid of the cameraman we gaze on a panorama of peak upon peak. The development of a storm among the mountain peaks is also intensely interesting and well photographed. This picture also contains an interesting study of a porcupine.

"Kaieteur, the Perfect Cataract," one of the most beautiful of the four reels, takes us along a beautiful river in British Guiana to that magnificent waterfall called Kaieteur. The story goes that this fall gets its name from an Indian who, banished from his tribe, jumped over it. The Kaieteur falls is situated in the lovely Pascaraima mountains and, situated as it is among the wildest beauty, the picture it presents is more beautiful than the pen can tell.

"A Jungle Joy Ride" takes us along another of the rivers of British Guiana and through one of its jungles. Here we mingle familiarly with the Pandamonian Indians, and see them making yarn from the jungle cotton, and hammocks from the Moriche palm. The making of cassava meal is an interesting point in this reel in which we are also introduced to some of the birds of the jungle as well as to an immense anaconda being carried by half a dozen men.

The first twenty of the Outing-Chester Pictures are already completed; and it is stated by the distributors that offers to book them have been received from a number of first-run theaters in different parts of the country.

Idealism Wins in Training Camps

George E. Stone Finds Exhibition of Biological Film "How Life Begins" Interesting Work.

THAT there is a latent appreciation of the ideal in the makeup of the average American man is exemplified in the fact that the four-reel biological production "How Life Begins," with which George E. Stone has been lecturing in the nearby military camps has been received on many occasions with an enthusiasm which has been known to be lacking in the presentation of the best feature films. It may be remembered by some of our readers who have seen this film or who have read reviews of it, that it covers its subject from first to last in a clearly defined, beautiful and delicate manner—so much so that even the child can understand and enjoy it. This film, which was produced by Mr. Stone, has been handled successfully by Mrs. Katherine F. Carter for the past year, and information regarding it can be had from her office in the Candler Building, 220 West 42nd street, New York City.

In exhibiting the film in the camps Mr. Stone acts in the capacity of an officer of the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, and is showing it in the Y. M. C. A. auditoriums, the Knights of Columbus Halls, the Liberty Theaters and the Regimental Theaters where there are any, or any place where an audience can be obtained. For the reason that more or less material of the same class had been presented in rather a disgusting way previously, considerable opposition was met with in trying to gain an inning at the camps. Finally after one or two tryouts, one of which was before the negro soldiers, who, by the way, sent in a request for a second showing, the film won on its merits and the interesting and inspiring lecture delivered by Mr. Stone. The audiences which have been viewing the film in its entirety range from 300 to 400 men. On one occason the "boys" gave it a rousing three cheers and asked to have it shown again. Various incidents of this kind occurred which gave ample proof that our American men recognize the best when they see it.

"How Life Begins" has also been exhibited within the past few weeks three times in the Trenton High School, once in the New Jersey State Normal School, and once in the New Jersey State Institute for the Deaf and Dumb. In the latter a remarkable amount of appreciation was shown among the children. These latter exhibitions were given under the auspices of the American Social Hygiene Association with which Mr. Stone is associated.

On March 20 Mr. Stone left for Newport News, where he will be employed in the exhibition of this film for a period of ten days.

"The Depths of the Sea"

Second Instalment of the Ditmars Pictures, which Combine Amusement with Instruction.

Reviewed by Rev. W. H. Jackson.

IF POSSIBLE the second episode of the "Depths of the Sea" series of pictures, photographed by Raymond L. Ditmars and distributed by M. S. Epstein, 1495 Broadway, are better than the first in that they continue to show with increasing interest denizens of the ocean with characteristics unknown to the average person. Educationally it is most delightful to become acquainted with these strange sea monsters and their peculiar habits.

The gunards are a fish with hands (not feet), because being placed under the gills very near the head they take the natural place of hands and seem used as such, although the fish seems to use them to walk with on the bottom of the ocean with a quick, paw-like movement. There are dog fish and cat fish each with its own peculiar habits yet not especially related with the similarly named land animals. It would seem that as "there is nothing new under the sun" the Teutons must in some way have learned of these sea wonders both the "camouflage" and the "smoke-screen"; the way in which some of the fishes can change from spots to stripes is wonderful, how much more beautiful these would be if only they could be shown in colors, their "camouflage" would seem much more real. They do, however, deceive the enemy. The cuttle-fish is the demonstrator of the "smoke-screen" in which he is very successful, either making himself invisible, or rendering it difficult for his foe to pass through the vaporous matter ejected. Perhaps the greatest wonder must be attributed to the electric-fish, which is able to overcome that master monster of the deep, the devil-fish. That latter seems a dread enemy to all; it is therefore a welcome sight to see him overcome even as his name suggests that he should be. With a vibrating movement around which also the water seems to vibrate, he is able to release himself from the demon of attack and, we are told, often "seems to electrocute him"; anyhow, the sight of these two strange fishes is marvelous. Not to have these pictures before the schools is a crime, they belong to that class of picture which are new to adults, therefore their knowledge would be doubly helpful to those still in their youthful days. Many do not hesitate to declare that we are learning more from screen natural history than was ever possible from the natural history of books and that school which is able to do so and does not make provision for placing before the scholars these valuable lessons is not doing its duty to those whose education is committed to their care.

"Our Bone Relatives"

L. M. Glackens Gives Grotesque Illustrations of Some of Our Ancestors in Paramount-Bray Pictograph.

IN THE 113th release of the Pictograph will be found an amusing and instructive animated drawing dealing with the similarity in bone construction between modern man, the gorilla and the elephant, as illustrated by the naked skeletons of each.

The most entertaining part of this picture seen through the eyes of the ordinary audience will be found in the manner in which comparisons are drawn. The skeletons dissolving into flesh and blood personages dress-suited for the occasion form splendid examples of why the latest evolution is the best bet.

Official Italian War Pictures

First Installment of Series of Pictures Which Illustrate Courage and Zeal of Italy.

COMMENCING March 17 the Rivoli Theater, New York City, exhibited the first of a series of official Italian War pictures which form a remarkable illustration of Italy's courage and zeal in warfare. In the first installment is shown the activities of the Italians, commencing from the plateau of Bainsizza and including bridge building scenes on the Izonsa river. One of the remarkable features of this installment is the portaging of boats over the mountains by the Italians, and the forming of these boats into a bridge. The picture tells us that in twenty-four hours this bridge was demolished and rebuilt no less than five times.

A thrilling scene shows the rushing of troops and guns across the bridge after its final establishment. The hauling of big guns up the mountains by man power when tractors were of no further use is also inspiring. A gallery 29,000 feet in length hewn out by the Italians for the accommodation of troops, is another astonishing feat of which evidence is given. Then there is the bombardment of Mount St. Gabriel, a British gun in action, a scene in which an enemy gun demolishes a French gun, and a dash of Italian soldiers across No Man's Land hurling hand grenades as they go. Many other scenes of special interest also occur in these pictures, further information regarding which can be had from the Italo-North American Union, 11 Broadway, New York City.

IOWA STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE HOLDS SHOWS.

The Iowa State Teachers' College at Cedar Falls is showing classical and educational pictures each week at the college assembly auditorium. The equipment is thoroughly up to date, consisting of two machines, and large business is reported on each picture. Prof. F. A. Lynch is the faculty member in charge of these exhibitions, and he states that it is his object to run a class of pictures that will be of assistance to the students in the pursuit of their various studies. At the request of the classes in English, Hall Caine's "The Deemster" was run last week, and the head of the science department has requested a booking on "The Submarine Eye," which Mr. Lynch will show some time during the coming month. The proceeds from these pictures is devoted to various college funds, such as athletics.

Picture Experts Needed in France

National War Work Council of Y. M. C. A. Issues Call for Operators, Cutters and Repair Men.

A CALL to men in the motion picture industry who desire to do their share toward winning the war, but are not within the age limits from which the government is selecting the draft armies, has been issued by the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association. The special need is for men who are expert operators, film cutters and repair men.

A. G. Knebel, executive secretary of the War Personnel Board, to which applications should be made, has summed up the requirements demanded of men who will be accepted for service in the camps and cantonments of the United States and with the expeditionary forces abroad. He said:

"We can consider only men who are willing to face hardship and danger, who are prepared physically to endure drudgery, long hours and high tension, nerve racking work. Men with the spirit of service are urged to respond, who are willing to serve without compensation or for a very meagre allowance. Men with the spirit described have responded, doing their bit as have their younger brothers who have left profitable positions to go into the trenches at very small pay.

"More than 4,000 men have entered the service through the Y. M. C. A. since last summer. These include men selected for all branches of the work which the government has requested the Y. M. C. A. to perform. The immediate needs are for 1,000 men a month. We hope to obtain dozens of men who are familiar with the mechanical and projection ends of the film industry. We cannot consider pacifists or men of pro-German tendencies; neither is it possible to consider men for overseas service whose parents were born in Germany or Austria."

KNAPP REJOINS GENERAL.

General Film announces the appointment of C. C. Knapp as manager of its Minneapolis branch. He is a former General Film employee, having made a great record as a salesman, working up in a few years to a managership at Minneapolis. Since that time Mr. Knapp has been engaged in exploitation of state right features, and more recently was handling "Cleopatra" in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

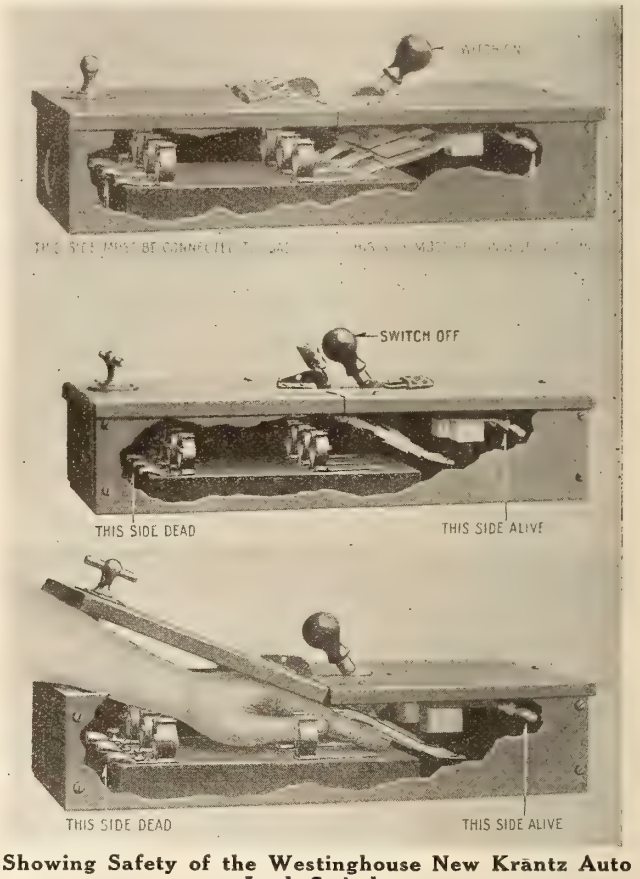
FILM MAN NOW POLICE CHIEF.

Ludlow F. Petty, formerly manager of the General Film branch at Cincinnati and well known in film circles, is acting chief of police under the Republican administration in the city of Louisville. He is demonstrating that he can make as good a police official as a film salesman.

A SAFE SWITCH.

The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company of East Pittsburgh, Pa., is marketing a new safety auto lock switch which will be of particular interest to moving picture theater proprietors and operators. Among other good points which will particularly appeal to prospective users is the enclosure of the switch in a heavy metal box of twelve-gauge sheet steel, which provides exceptional strength to withstand rough handling.

The switch is so constructed that the box enclosing same cannot be opened except when the switch is in the off position, and when the switch is off and the box open it is impossible for anyone to get in contact with the live parts of the mechanism.



Showing Safety of the Westinghouse New Krantz Auto Lock Switch.

The ingenious method by which this is accomplished is clearly illustrated in the accompanying photographs. The switch may be locked in the off position by placing a padlock in the handle, and thus preventing the closing of the circuit by unauthorized persons. A padlock may also be placed on the door over the fuses, preventing the changing or removal of these by any except the possessor of the key. The switch is one which may be placed anywhere and gives the owner of the building absolute assurance that no injury to anyone operating or meddling with same can ensue. A descriptive folder will be furnished on application to the Westinghouse Company and mentioning the Moving Picture World.

MAE MARSH SPEAKS AT BALTIMORE.

Mae Marsh, Goldwyn Pictures star, has accomplished something she has long been eagerly looking forward to. She has made a painless personal appearance.

It happened in Baltimore March 24, when Miss Marsh was the guest of Owner Whitehurst and Manager De Hoff of the Garden Theater, one of the city's most pretentious motion picture playhouses. Without a twinge of embarrassment she appeared there at a big patriotic entertainment, rose and bowed prettily from her box when the packed house wildly applauded a special film by means of which she delivered a brief but stirringly patriotic appeal for the war savings stamp campaign and then stood by on the stage while Governor Harrington, Maryland's chief executive, auctioned and sold for $100 a bouquet of roses presented to her by Mr. Whitehurst.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

The Rational Way.

WILL L. BEEBE, of the Candor Theater, Candor, N. Y., has the right way of looking at things. He mentions the growing difficulty of making money in the face of extra taxation and unsettled conditions and goes on to say:

> In order to try and keep my patronage at normal, I have done away with the throwaway entirely, and have resorted to a larger advertising space, as you will see from the enclosed. I have also strengthened my program somewhat and have increased the prices.

He hasn't cheapened his program and cut down the prices. He has raised the price and the standard of entertainment value, has done more newspaper work and sits tight. His prices are ten and fifteen and eleven and seventeen, as shown by the advertisement, which runs seven inches across page and gives a very pretty display. For that center box we think that small fists pointing right and left in the upper and lower panels would help a little, but it is an excellent idea as it stands, though a trifle too full of type, which is not the same as saying there is too much text. This seems to be an adaptation of the Bleich style, but offers some original points worth studying. Get particularly that top line. "Mid-holiday program." It suggests an extra good show in between Christmas and New Year's, but it permits the reader to get the inference unconsciously, and so it has more effect than it would have were the statement made in that many words.

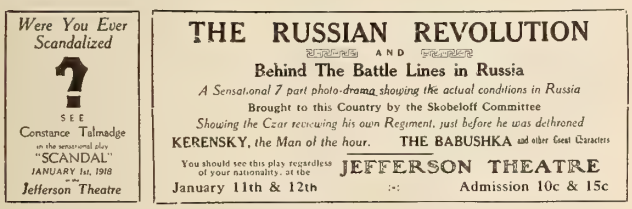
Philadelphia Programs.

Times do change. Jay Emanuel comes out with a throwaway card headed "Men, beware of women." He didn't used to shun the ladies. For that matter we don't believe he is afraid even now, but it makes a good introduction to his type story. We've told how Emanuel makes



Were You Ever Scandalized
?
SEE
Constance Talmadge
in the sensational play
"SCANDAL"
JANUARY 1st, 1918
Jefferson Theatre
THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION
AND
Behind The Battle Lines in Russia
A Sensational 7 part photo-drama showing the actual conditions in Russia
Brought to this Country by the Skobeloff Committee
Showing the Czar reviewing his own Regiment, just before he was dethroned
KERENSKY, the Man of the hour. THE BABUSHKA and other Great Characters
You should see this play regardless of your nationality, at the
JEFFERSON THEATRE
January 11th & 12th Admission 10c & 15c

even his envelopes work. The cut shows the front card (on the left) and the full back printed up. These are common number ten manila envelopes, used for sending out advertising material, and by having a smaller supply printed up he makes three-sheets out of them. The contents will reach one or two persons, but the envelope will appeal to all who handle it. He does not change every week, but every few weeks. It will be noted that the attractions advertised here are for January first and twelfth. Jay doesn't believe in overlooking a bet. Another interesting exhibit is a red and blue on white, a program for the Jefferson. He gets out a monthly program for the two houses, but he doesn't trust to that to last for a whole month. He knows too much for that. When he has an extra good looking week, he gets out a special for that. Keeping everlastingly at it is what gets him somewhere.

The Ridge Avenue is a bit weak on its English now and then. A December program announces an increase in Saturday prices and winds up with:

> THE INCREASE WILL BECOME EFFECTIVE, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 22d, AND EVERY SATURDAY THEREAFTER THE PRICE OF ADMISSION WILL BE 10 cents FOR ADULTS in the AFTERNOON, and CHILDREN, 5 cents. EVENING, ADULTS 15 cents, CHILDREN 10 cents. The quality of the productions that will be shown on Saturdays are of rare excellence and cost us considerable more money than other productions, and have, therefore, found it necessary to make this increase.

This is awkwardly phrased. It would be more fluent to say "Commencing December 22. The Saturday prices will be ten cents for adults and five cents for children in the afternoons, while the evening prices will be fifteen cents for adults and ten cents for children. These unusual productions cost us considerably more than the regular program features and make necessary this increase in admission prices."

The Palms, a suburban house, gets out a neat folder program 2½ by 5½. This house remained closed Christmas eve to permit its employees to do their Christmas shopping, ostensibly, but probably because it was a bad business day. Many houses could do this with profit and get all the bigger business Christmas day. The house also gave a free show for the kiddies during the week, laying emphasis upon the fact that it was not the regular program but a specially selected program.

And in passing, the Rivoli opened some weeks ahead of Rothapfel.

Drawings and Rule.

J. W. Allender, of the Lyric, Spokane, Wash., sends in a couple of advertisements for his house that admirably show the relative values of drawing and white space. The cut on the right is eleven inches across the page. The longer is six seventeens. This is the larger space, but it owes its superior display to the white space rather than to the extra size. There is nothing to the drawn design to commend it. It fills in, but it obscures the announcement and is harmful rather than helpful for this reason. The drawn design is good only when it

LYRIC
Double Header
Sunday, Monday and Tuesday
Charlie Chaplin and Bill Hart
At the Same Show for the One Admission
Bill Hart in Hell's Hinges
Charlie Chaplin in A Jitney Elopement
The First Time the Appearance of Both These Stars Has Occurred On the Same Bill In Spokane
LYRIC
The House of the Quality Program

attracts marked attention to the type and when it heightens the desire to see the subject so advertised. Unless it can do one of these two things, the money paid for drawing and the cut are wasted. It will be better to trust to white space. The other advertisement stands out, though the printer has done an unusually poor job. The display is too formal and the choice of types gives the names too condensed a letter on their first use. An extended in the same face would have given a much better display, because an extended is generally easier to read than condensed, and here there was plenty of room for the use of a wider letter. A better arrangement of the copy might have brought a better handling. There is too much repetition. The black display of "Double Header" might better have been given to "Two stars—one admission." Then Hart could have gone across the paper, with an underline bank for the play, a large "and also" and then the Chaplin in similar display. The corner cuts are not of much value because they are poor cuts. It would have worked better to use "2 in 1" in those corners, trusting to the type display to get the names over. We are not using Mr. Allender's copy because it is any worse than a lot of other material, but because he sent in two contrasting styles that point the moral that it is not always the cut that makes a good advertisement.

Excellent.

The Strand, Erie, Pa., got out an unusual advertisement for "Thais." It is an invitation, type-printed, but hard to tell from copper plate, and it is gotten out with all the care that could be shown in the preparation of a society announcement, die-sunk name and all. In spite of the fact that it is Old English shaded probably not one person who got this announcement ignored it. Its very elegance compelled attention. It is the best example along these lines that we recall having seen.

Harmonizes.

The latest stunt of the Lehigh Orpheum, South Bethlehem, Pa., is to use a drawn heading for the program to match the style of the Comstock it uses for its chief display. Comstock, by the way, works nicely to get a larger display than the size of the type will usually bring. It has all of the solidity of the Gothic with a light touch all its own. Ask your printer if he has any.

Toledo Advertisements.

From some issues of the Toledo Times we take a few examples of display. The Sunday photoplay department carries a large bulk of advertising, but it is quantity rather than quality for the greater part. Most of the large advertisements (and there are few others) are drawn displays, but the artists do not appear to have studied advertising as well as art. They give large layouts, and some of them are striking, but few of them can be called really good advertising. In the samples

A Master Picture
"ALADDIN AND THE WONDERFUL LAMP"
SHOWING AT THE Temple
For One Week Starting Today
A wonderful picture that is far more spectacular than "Jack and the Beanstalk."
The play has mystery, romance and thrills blended for young and old.
Temple
The Entire Week Starting Today
"SCANDAL"
With The Young and Talented Star
CONSTANCE TALMADGE
Cosmo Hamilton
SPECIAL ADDED ATTRACTION
"A MILK FED VAMP"

from the Temple, that on the left has been trimmed at the bottom to gain symmetry. The white lettering on black nominally gives a better display than the black letters on the right, but in practise it will be found that most persons will read the black type more readily because they are used to it. There is a moment required for readjustment before the eye can change colors. That on the right is also better because it gives the house name at the top. In the black mass the eye reads "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp" and stops. The title is complete. The lower line is not puzzled out. In the other advertisement the name of the house comes before the title, and so is linked with the title. The picture layout is better in the left hand advertisement, but this is more because of the attraction of the children than because the cuts tell much. There is no scene action whatever, and scene action does not always mean a man choking someone, at that. Take that single figure in "The Auction Block." There is no violent action there, but it tells the story of the picture and rouses interest. It is the chief scene action, though the pose is entirely without action. On the other hand the man and woman talking in "The Scandal" advertisement suggests nothing to the reader.

There is a certain amount of action to the cut in "The Cinderella Man"; not much, but enough to suggest something is going to happen.

"The Auction Block" shows up better and the arrow and line from the upper part of the advertisement to the title helps a lot. In "The Cinderella Man" the name of the star is deliberately cut off from the name of the play, not sufficiently to hurt, perhaps, but the panel is not helpful.

The Princess does well with an advertisement for Marguerite Clark, but it could have been shown up to better advantage in less than the seven fifteens it takes here. Apparently the Toledo managers go on the theory that size is what counts, but the trouble is that they load the entire space down with type. Not one advertisement shows much white

MARGUERITE CLARK
The Leading Star of the Big All Star Week at the PRINCESS
PARAMOUNT THEATRE
In Her Latest "Sub-Deb" Comedy
Bab's Matinee Idol
Do you remember "Bab's Burglar"? This latest comedy will delight you in the same wholesome way as did the long remembered "Bab's Burglar."
"Bab's Matinee Idol" has to do with a little mad cap at a prominent boarding school who falls in love with the leading man of a road show. The many humorous instances that arise can well be imagined by all who saw "Bab's Diary" or "Bab's Burglar."
If you did not see the two preceding "Sub-Deb" comedies don't miss this latest Marguerite Clark play. It is full of smiles and laughter.
A Paramount Picture
SPECIAL ATTRACTION
"FATTY" ARBUCKLE
The Biggest Laugh in Motion Pictures. People Are Still Talking About "A Day at Coney Island." Don't Miss His Latest,
"A COUNTRY HERO"
This Heavy Weight of Mirth Will Make You Laugh If There's a Laugh in You. He Is Funnier Than Ever in His Latest Comedy.
PRINCESS
Concert Orchestra
Time of Shows

space. It is all filled in as solidly as possible with type, and the sheets look forbiddingly black. It is all right to take large spaces if the patronage warrants it, but merely because you pay for so many inches of space is no good reason why you should require almost as many inches of black ink. It is not the size of the advertisement that counts, it is the skill with which it is put together and it is safe to leave this matter to the artist. He is generally an artist and not an advertising man.

Here's a Good One.

Julian M. (King) Solomon, of the Paramount Service Department, sends in a couple of menus of the Maple Shop, Colfax, Washington. It will be noticed that the Rose theater gets the middle column with a slip for the program. The card on the left shows the slip torn off, disclosing below the days for changes. The right hand menu has the slip in place. This is attached only at the top, that it may be raised to get the further information. The panel is just the size of the program of the Rose house-program, so that there is no expense for special slips. These are cut out and pasted on as the program changes, which is probably another reason why the slip is tacked on only at the top. The cards are printed up in quantities, with the maple leaves in green and the rose in red with green foliage, making a bright looking card. It probably would be possible to have these printed up for most quick lunch rooms, and an usher could look after them in the morning on change days. In proportion to the cost, the returns are large, and from all angles the scheme seems a good one. On the other hand, the Rose program is so full of trade advertising that the house gets decidedly the worst of it.

Had to Boost Back.

Lately we told that the Queen, Du Queen, Ark., had put it up to the patrons to come more often at ten cents than they did at fifteen. Evidently A. L. Middleton found out that like Sherman, Carl Laemmle was right, for the experiment did not run its allotted time. A recent program is headed "Two losing weeks. That's all we can stand", and announces a return to the fifteen-cent price for adults with five cents for children. We quote from Mr. Middleton's article for the benefit of other exhibitors:

> We intended sticking to the 5 and 10c prices throughout the entire month of January, but two weeks have proven that we cannot "get by" with our present expense and 5 and 10c prices.
>
> We know positively that the old-fashioned, three or four reel, short subject show will not pull crowds for use at any price.
>
> We know our patrons have too long been accustomed to seeing the best there is in pictures to GO BACK, and besides it's against our progressive spirit to go back to the commonplace photoplay.
>
> We believe you would have us continue Triangle and Mutual Star productions and give you six reels of such pictures as these at 15c, rather than three or four reels of the commonplace films for 10c.
>
> And believing this, we are going to continue to give you Quality and Quantity combined and place adult admission prices back to 15c, plus war tax, but for the present children really under twelve years old will be admitted for five cents, plus war tax.
>
> Guess we were foolish to try to do a thing no one else can do by showing these big pictures for 5 and 10c, but we were game enough to try it once anyway, and now that we have tried it out we know and don't have to be told.

A period of rising costs is not time to cut prices. It is only a question of time when salaries will rise to the new standard and we shall be precisely where we were before, proportionately. Until then it is going to be necessary to get along somehow, and the right sort of show will get the people in at the advanced prices. The only remedy for the present conditions is slightly increased prices and intensive advertising. This does not mean more advertising so much as it does better advertising; advertising to which more thought has been gven. Mr. Middleton is adroit enough to back away from a beehive. That he got into it at least gives the rest a working basis without the discomforts of personal experiment.

Display.

Here is a page from the Christmas issue of the Chicago Herald that forms an interesting study in display. Each of these advertisements has a twelve-point holly border—and a twelve-point border should give display. Some of the boxes have trade marks and others reverse cuts. Some have both reverse cuts and star cuts. All of these things are supposed to give added prominence to the display, yet the result is about as poor as possible simply because the first great rule was ignored, and that reads that uniformity of display is no display. Some of these advertisements alone would look all right. The holly border could save the day for one or two advertisements on the page, but where all advertisements are in similar display, no one gets the slightest benefit. There were something like three pages of this sort of advertising for houses, and a page or so for the players and exchanges, and only the most ardent fan will more than barely glance at any one because it is all too much alike. It is one of the best horrible examples we have seen in some time. Study it and avoid making a like mistake if you are ever invited in to one of these mass displays. Do something to lift the curse if it is only to set your display in six point in the center of your space.

MOVIE THEATERS TO MAKE CHRISTMAS MERRIER

A Prodigal Returns.

Joe Hewitt comes in for a visit with an apology for his long absence. We're glad to see him back, but hope he does not take forgiveness as an excuse for another long relapse. He is now with the Strand and Grand theaters, Robinson, Ill., part of the Roscoe Cochran Amusement Enterprises. We do not like Grand and Strand as the names for sister houses. They sound too much alike. Mr. Hewitt writes:

> I am enclosing a few programs, one of which my old friend, Steve Farrar, with whose company I was formerly associated, says IS THE BEST HE HAS SEEN, and Steve should know from a small-town standpoint, for he surely spreads the ink and gets the business.
>
> There is one little stunt which I am pulling that I believe would benefit the boys. Shortly after the war tax went into effect I had a hard time keeping supplied with pennies. Therefore I fell onto the THREE-CENT matinee stunt, A DOLLAR WOULDN'T GET A KID IN, but THREE COPPERS would, (adults five coppers), well, for good measure, and to make sure that I get all the loose coppers in town, I make bargain rates on BUTTER-KIST POP CORN, and this sells at three pennies also. Now, as to the results—well it's not all milk and honey, for it keeps me up late counting the pennies and besides whenever I pull these matinees I MAKE AN ENEMY OF EVERY BUSINESS HOUSE IN TOWN, for the reason that the kids pester-them-to-death for pennies, I don't work this too often, for the reason if I did they would wait for the bargains and therefore hurt the regular kid business.
>
> I am going to change my program in a short time to about an eight or twelve page one. I will appreciate some house programs if any of the boys find time to send them.

Speaking of Steve reminds us that he has been asleep lately. Will he please come in? The program he likes is a Christmas program in green and red on white, with a restrained use of the red for titles and top and bottom lines. By not making it too common, the red has more effect. A program about evenly divided between two colors is hard to read and not showy. Where the brighter color is used only to touch up the other, the effect is far better. Cut that out and paste it up somewhere. One odd use is made of bottom lines to refer to the next subject. Below the Tuesday page there is a mention of the Thursday attraction at the bottom of the next page and that, in its turn, carries a mention for the attraction over the page. We like very well Mr. Hewitt's one-color programs, a four pager on heavy paper. One carries on the front the announcement for the penny matinee which reads:

> MATINEE FOR CHILDREN.
>
> We want pennies to collect the war tax for Uncle Sam. In order to get a supply we are going to give a special matinee for children Monday afternoon starting at 4.15; all children will be admitted for three cents (coppers only). Pop corn will also be sold for three pennies.

The page is 4¾ by 5½ and one back number from last summer shows the lower half of the front left blank for the address with the printed mailing permit. Evidently it was found better to use envelopes and let the front page work in text for the house. Evidently Mr. Hewitt is lucky in having a good printer in town, for all his samples are well set and well printed. Even a throwaway in a vivid red on white is clean and distinct, in contrast to so much poor red ink work.

Simple But Good.

Lionel Delacroix, of the Electra theater, Plaquemine, La., took over the new Wilbert theater, and lacking better facilities he issued a Christmas greeting in fac-simile typewriting on a sheet of plain paper. It is not pretentious, but the message was well worded and the intent was there. It is better to be simply sincere than insincerely elegant.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. By mail, postpaid, $2.00. Order from nearest office.

Moving Picture World, 516 Fifth Ave., New York

Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill. — Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

NOTICE.

Owing to illness, Mr. Sargent will be unable to reply to any inquiries whether a return envelope accompanies the questions or not. No exceptions to this rule can be made perhaps for several months.

Building Up.

DISCUSSING plot-getting, authors frequently make the statement that they think only full plots and find it impossible to add to or subtract from the plot as it is originally conceived. If a writer feels that way about it, very possibly he cannot, but sometimes laziness rather than inability is the real cause of the trouble. The author thinks his plot complete. He puts it on paper. It looks all right and he does not change. He cannot merely because he feels that he cannot. He does not, as a rule, even make an effort at emendation.

But the practiced author knows that there seldom comes into being a plot that cannot be improved. He knows that most stories are capable of infinite change, and he seldom more than notes a memorandum of the plot when it first comes to him. He lets it grow and form. Perhaps a rearrangement of the characters will give a greater strength. He may have some form of the story in which father and son are, unknown to each other, rivals for the love of the same woman. He may find that greater strength will come through making the rivals brothers. He may go further than that and conceive the brothers to be twins. A further extension of the idea may develop the fact that the brothers are unaware of each other's identity. Perhaps greater interest may arise if the girl supposes them to be the same man. This might seem like an impossible situation, but it is easily made plausible if you make one of the brothers rich and the other poor. The girl first meets the poor man, and when she meets the other and learns that he is rich, supposes that he is putting her to the test. She is steadfast to the poorer man, but supposes him to be rich and a trifle eccentric. She humors this eccentricity, yet to plague him also shows favor to him in what she supposes to be his preper person as the affluent brother. This naturally leads the rich man to suppose himself to be the favored suitor until the climax approaches and each brother becomes aware of the identity of the other. Here is a situation that is of much greater value than the original premise of father and son as rivals. It affords an excellent dual role for some leading man; a dual role that calls for little or no double exposure, and the possible complications are better than those arising from the first story. Naturally such a story would have the advantage over the one along the more conventional lines, and yet the entire gain in value is the result of a change in the relationship of the characters.

It is ability to change plots that forms the greatest asset of the successful author. Most ready-made plots are apt to be more or less conventional. They must be given some change in construction. The standard plot is like the standard motor car; too much like all the others. You can take any standard car and give it an individuality through new lines and construction and the best thing to do with a plot that comes to you all thought out is to learn to think it out to a point of further development. Don't slap down the idea and rush it off to the studios. Hang on to it until you feel pretty certain that you have improved it to the point where you stand some chance of selling it. Don't tell yourself that you cannot improve your plotting, for you can if you are a real author. If you cannot, then you are not an author but an inspirational writer who has to do a thing well the first try or else spoil it still more in an effort to make it better. There are such writers, but we are not satisfied that even these cannot, in the long run, train themselves to build up their plots, if they will take the trouble to develop their intelligence through training the imagination and the powers of judgment.

Failure to improve one's work is largely due to lack of ability to judge merit and this, in its turn, is almost wholly due to a failure to cultivate judgment through comparison and the establishment of standards. It is all a matter of study and practice, and it will pay to gain the faculty that you may be better able to sell your stuff.

Facility in plotting comes only through constant practice. You must first learn to plot and then to improve your plotting. You must first ground yourself in the construction of the plot and then learn to give your plots individuality and originality. For a time we used to write stories with Arthur D. Hotaling, and if a story did not come quickly we would start in to invent the most fantastic ideas. Probably some writers would have thought us crazy had he heard the suggestions offered each other, yet from those impossible ideas it frequently happened that a story would come that was far better than could have been achieved from the process of starting with the obvious and working it into a novelty. It was easier to tone down than to build up. We recall one story that started from the suggestion that we give the lead a hat three or four feet in circumference. In the course of a few minutes the hat became a dress of distinctive pattern that was worn through a succession of scenes by an attractive widow. She gained so much attention through the garment that, in disgust, she gave the dress to her negro maid, who wore it out on her afternoon off. Through the mask of a fancy sunshade she went down the street trailed by half a dozen of the widow's admirers. Of course the widow caught them trailing after her maid, and to put a kicker into the climax she caught them as she was on the way back from the minister's with the man she really cared for. The impossible hat had disappeared, but it left in its place a fairly funny story, built up, bit by bit, from what was clearly a burlesque.

It is not the plot that counts. It is the way you fix it up.

About Time.

"I've got to quit this and look for a job," announced a correspondent lately. "I've spent two years trying to make editors see my work and I can't. Now I'm broke and I must do something to support my family." He still seems to blame the editors rather than his own inability, but it is welcome news that he is at last going to work. For two years he has been making frantic appeals for aid. He has been making frantic efforts to get sales over; efforts that have been defeated through the very earnestness of the attempt. His perspective of photoplay was entirely wrong. He alternately wrote far below the level of the present demand and so far above that he could not be understood, but always he was trying to get stories that were distinctive and succeeded only in getting stories that were weird beyond belief because all of the time he argued there was something wrong with the editors and not with himself. If he really does get a regular "job," with a regular "wage," instead of looking to a "profession" for an "income," he will stand a far better chance of getting ahead at that profession. No man or woman ever succeeded in selling stories merely because the need for sales was pressing. That very need distorted their imaginations. If you cannot sell your stories, get a job, and then perhaps you can write stories that will sell

Leader Comedies.

The one-reel leader comedies "like the Drews" seem to be gaining favor, but too many of those who essay this type of story fail to realize that there must first be an idea upon which the leaders may be hung and that the leaders themselves must be pleasingly and fluently written. The leaders may not merely be amusing. There must be a certain touch of intimacy, and we are inclined to believe that the statement leader lends itself better to this form than the spoken cut-in leader. The Vitagraph is presently going to release some stories by A. Van Buren Powell that admirably illustrate this style of leader. It will pay the comedy writer to watch for these and study Mr. Powell's text. There is an absence of labored effort, a certain whimsical note that suggests that Van must have been chuckling to himself when he wrote the inserts. He seems to tell the story out of his good nature rather than through any conscious endeavor to be entertaining, and this gives the point to the action, which is not, in itself, violently funny. There are several companies making this type of story now, and it will pay to give the matter some little study as well as the Christie type, which demands more spirited action and a livelier story while looking to the leaders to be of additional aid.

"Frozen" Paper.

During the January cold snap we got a letter from a writer who complained that his paper seemed to get "frozen" together, adding that he was working in a temperature of fifty degrees, and the paper sticking delayed his work. The real trouble is that the dry cold developed static electricity as the paper passed between the rubber rollers of the platen, and came out so well charged that it could not be separated easily. Some papers are more likely to develop static than others. The remedy is to take the paper between the palms as it comes from the carriage and hold it a moment. This draws out the electricity and the sheets are then easily handled if care is taken to avoid friction. It is the same sort of electricity you get by stroking a cat's hair the wrong way or passing a rubber comb through your own hair.

Technique of the Photoplay

By

EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

A book replete with practical pointers on the preparation of stories for the screen, answering the hundred and one questions which immediately present themselves when the first script is attempted. A tested handbook for the constant writer of picture plots. "Straight-from-the-shoulder" information from an author with a wealth of real "dollars-and-cents" experience.

By Mail, Postpaid, Three Dollars

Published and For Sale by

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

Schiller Bldg., Chicago Wright and Callender Bldg., Los Angeles

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT IS an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its ditor.

Important Notice.

Owing to th mass of matter awaiting publication, it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second sets of questions are now ready and printed in neat boklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

New Pathescope Portable Projector.

Some years ago we described in this department a portable Pathe projection machine, which at that time was near the head of its class. It has now been my privilege to examine their new portable machine known as the New Premier Pathescope. This machine, unlike the old one, is an American product, being made in New Jersey under the direction of the Pathescope Company. The new machine is remarkable in the excellence of its mechanical construction, its optical train, its flickerless picture, and its compactness. This is a strong recommendation, I know, but the description is absolutely true. When ready for shipment the machine goes in a suitcase 14"x16"x8", and weighs 30 pounds with the case, 23 pounds without the case.

The source of illumination is an argon gas-filled lamp only 3 inches long and 1 inch in diameter, very similar in shape to the new nitrogen-filled Mazda lamp. This lamp is thus far available only for laboratory use, except for the few that are being made specially for the new Pathescope machine. The shutter of the new machine has three 45 degree blades, giving 62½ per cent. of the light. I have watched the projection on a brilliant screen, and can say that the picture is entirely flickerless. At the same time it is quite brilliant. Even with the full light on a bare screen there is no discernable flicker at a projection speed of 60 per minute. The new machine will project a satisfactory ten-foot picture, I think, though I have not actually seen that done. All the parts are mechanically well made, and the machine has practically all the necessary adjustments the regular professional theater machines have; also it has them in good form. It takes current from any incandescent lamp circuit, the total consumption of lamp and motor being 2¾ amperes.

One feature of the new machine is both fortunate and unfortunate. The Pathe Company so constructed the old projector that it used only a specially perforated, special size safety film made by the Pathe Company. This same feature is retained in the new machine. This precludes the use of standard film, but on the other hand, since all the films for this machine are slow-burning stock, it does away with all necessity for a fire-proof operating room or booth. The machine can be handled by anyone and under any conditions, since through no possibility can there be a fire. In fact the new machine bears a label as follows:

"Underwriters' Laboratories
Inspected Miniature Motion Picture Machine
For Use Only with Slow-burning Film
Enclosing Booth Not Required."

This feature is, of course, a large advantage, but, I, personally, am sorry the new machine is not made for both kinds of film. However, Mr. Cook, president of the Pathescope Company, informs me it is possible that later the company may decide to construct a special model which will take ordinary film. This, I hope, they will do.

Another peculiarity of the Pathescope is that it has what its inventor calls an "eccentric star." This gives a 5 to 1 movement, but by reason of the peculiarity of the star the film movement starts very slowly, comes gradually up to the speed, then slows down somewhat, and stops rather suddenly. The inventor claims an advantage in prolonging the period of acceleration and correspondingly shortening the period of retardation of the film movement. He claims it relieves the film sprocket holes from a large proportion of the strain of sudden starting. I have seen a band of film which has run through the New Premier Pathescope 2,000 times, and it is still in fairly good condition; in as good condition, at least, as is the average film in commercial use for three weeks. The machine is motor driven, and the motor is hinged and hangs in the loop of the belt, so that the belt tension is always the same even when the belt stretches. There is a very clever arrangement for adjusting the gate tension to any desired value. The lamp is self centering by means of a spring clip, and has a focusing mirror which utilizes a high percentage of the light. The gears are of bronze and steel—the small ones of steel and the large ones of bronze. All are helical cut to reduce noise. Altogether, the machine is very well made, indeed, that being a peculiarity of everything that Pathescope Company turns out. The Pathescope Company has its main offices in Aeolian Hall, New York City, and there maintains a film library which contains at present between three and four thousand reels. Not counting duplicates of all the more popular subjects they have now available and listed in their catalog about twelve hundred different reels comprising something like 950 subjects. I understand that these are being added to at the rate of five to ten reels a week. Taken altogether this department feels that it can give its unqualified endorsement to the New Premier Pathescope portable machine. It is well made, and gives a splendid optical result on the screen. The only unfortunate part is that such a really excellent little machine cannot handle standard film. It is not intended for theatrical work.

Left Hand Projection Machine.

W. L. Russell, Deming, New Mexico, suggests that a left hand projector be put out by one or more of the machine manufacturers. His contention is that the average theater has two projectors and but one projectionist, hence the logical place for the projectionist is between the machines.

The idea is by no means far-fetched. In fact quite some several projectionists have altered their right hand machine so that it may be handled from the left side. It is awkward at first, yes, but in a few days, I am told, one becomes adept at threading and trimming from either side.

There is another advantage in this plan, viz.; with one right and one left hand machine the projectionist is always between the machines, which enables the proper placing of all instruments, such as volt and ammeters, switches, telephones, etc., where they are convenient. Also under this arrangement I would recommend one observation port, 36 inches quare, covered with heavy plate glass, the glass to have a hole ten inches in diameter cut in its center.

Let us hear from projectionists as to their views regarding the left hand projector, remembering that such a machine will only be forthcoming when there is evidence it will be welcomed—when there is a demand for it. The making of the necessary changes involves large outlay, and machine manufacturers are not philanthropists.

He Has Learned.

Charles A. S. Smith, Houston, Texas, says:

I met you at the banquet tendered you by Local 279 when you visited our city last spring. I enjoyed your lecture; also it taught me a number of things about projection. I have tried out some of the things you advocate and they work fine. I regret that I did not get the opportunity of showing you my operating room. Am sending, under separate cover, photograph of same. You told us the interior of the operating room should be painted black. Well, I got my manager to paint it black and it is the only black room in Houston. I have as neat a room as any in the city. Have worked at the Isis, of which Henry C. Stearns is manager, for the past four years and a half as chief operator. The projection department of the World is a great aid to the operator. A happy and prosperous new year to you.

I am, of course, glad to know that you enjoyed the lecture, and still more pleased that you profited thereby. Your black walls are scientifically correct. They establish the proper condition insofar as a good view of your picture be concerned. But with black walls it is all the more important that your spot be so protected that your eyes will not see the raw, white, brilliant spot at all, since the contrast from black to brilliant white is extreme. I am glad to know that at least one Houston operator was progressive enough to paint the room black. Am sorry I did not see your room, but time was short, you know. That is right. Keep your room neat. A neat, well-kept room and machines are evidence of a careful workman. Incidentally, what's the matter with you Houston men anyway? I hear from you only about once or twice in the life of an average coon. I'm anxious to know whether or not that yellow flivver is still manned by the same classy crew. Three navy men who, I believe, hailed from Houston, called at the office a few days ago, but I was out, hence did not see them.

Piffalarious Piffle.

Before this session of the state law-makers at Albany is a piece of proposed legislation which should by all means be passed. It is a law providing for the licensing of projectionists (operators) and providing for a six months' apprenticeship.

As has been pointed out by this department, there is every reason for the examination of projectionists as to their qualifications, and the licensing of those found competent, and certainly no man could expect to become competent in a profession which includes optics, mechanics, electrics and a knowledge of laws as applied to operating room practice, as well as several other things of greater or less difficulty and importance, in anything less than a six months' apprenticeship.

And yet we find misguided exhibitors actually lobbying against the passage of this law on the absurd grounds that "projectionists are trying to corner the market"; "are trying to create a scarcity of projectionists," and thus to force up salaries.

Let me ask these gentlemen a pertinent question: If this tremendously dangerous danger really exists, why is it no such effect has been felt in the state of Massachusetts, where a very much more drastic law than this has been in force (and enforced, too) for several years? Come, gentlemen, speak up! I am perfectly willing to publish any statement you may be able to obtain from the state police of Massachusetts proving that the law there has had any such effect. Moreover, I will give it front-page department space and set it in capital letters. And, mind you, the proposed New York law is a mere amateur in its restrictive provision as compared to the Massachusetts legal effort.

You, Mr. Exhibitor, rent from a film exchange each day films having a physical valuation of from $300 to $1,000, which same you place in charge of a projectionist selected by you, in all too many cases purely on a basis of cheapness instead of on a basis of competency. Now, gentlemen, I do not believe even the most unthinking will dispute the statement that, considering the extreme delicacy of the property involved (films), the incompetent projectionist is likely to do a considerably greater amount of damage than is the competent one. Suppose this extra damage to be only one-half of 1 per cent. of the value of the films and that the average program is valued at $500. Um! One-half of 1 per cent. of $500 is $2.50. But, say you, the average program of films is not worth $500. All right, we will split it in half and we still have damage amounting to $1.25 per day, due directly to you being allowed to employ an incompetent projectionist. But you again exclaim, The licensing of projectionists will not stop the damage. Granted. But certainly the forcing of projectionists to study at least the rudiments of their profession, or the weeding out of those who do not tend to materially lessen it. And we have not considered the damage to your own projection machinery and the waste of electric power, which may be either through direct waste or through waste of light, every cent of which you, Mr. Objecting Exhibitor, MUST PAY FOR. And I have myself found examples, right here in this state, where incompetent projectionists were using 60 amperes d. c. with but indifferent results on the screen, whereas after readjusting their projector optical train an admittedly far better result was had with 35 amperes.

No, friend Exhibitor, you are simply working against your own best interest and the best interest of the motion picture industry in working against the bill in question. Its only bad feature is that it is not strong enough. It should compel at least a year of apprenticeship instead of six months; also it should provide for a rigid examination as to proficiency.

Sane Leadership and Methods Win.

In a personal letter from Joseph Armstrong, president Scientific Engineers' Local No. 110 of the I. A. T. S. E. and M. P. M. O., Chicago, Illinois, occurs the following paragraph:

> At this writing I might inform you that we now occupy the entire seventh floor of the Gately Building, 59 East Adams street. I believe it may fairly be claimed that we now have the finest union headquarters in Chicago. Attached to the offices are rest rooms, club rooms, and a repair and education department devoted entirely to the repair of machines and to the education necessary in making the younger element proficient in their profession. This department is in direct charge of brothers Fred Havill, Halliday and Spaulding, all of whom have spent ten or twelve years in study of projection and the various things allied thereto. Local 110 extends to you a cordial invitation to visit us when you will, knowing that your visit will always be in the interests of better projection and the elevation of the members of our profession.

And thus we see the difference sane leadership and methods have already wrought. I expect to visit Chicago once each year hereafter, remaining from ten days to two weeks, and it will be esteemed an honor and a privilege to pay my respects to 110. I may even bring brother Greenberg a book, which goes to show how truly brave I am. My compliments to Armstrong and his lieutenants. May their shadow never grow less.

Remarkable Pitch.

The City theater, a combination vaudeville-motion picture house, Fourteenth street, New York City, has the most terrific pitch in its projection of any I have to date viewed. The photograph gives some idea of what it is. From the operating room one seems to be looking down a well. The drop is pretty close to seventy feet in perhaps eighty feet. Projection in all the William Fox houses is under the direct supervision of C. W. Johnson, whose photograph we present, together with that of the projector. Mr. Johnson is an able projectionist, well versed in the practical end of his profession and able to secure remarkably good results under extremely adverse conditions. In proof is the fact that definition is sharp all over the City theater screen, notwithstanding the terrific pitch and a good-sized picture. Mr. Johnson has studied the screen problem, and has one of his own make in the City theater which is giving most excellent results in brilliancy and in depth of perspective; also there is no fadeaway. He is entitled to much credit for the work he has accomplished. I would as soon turn a difficult problem in projection over to him as to any man I know.

Trying to Get Our Goat.

Chauncey L. Greene, Grantsburg, Wisconsin, who says he has been out of the operating game for eight months, but is keeping up to date by reading the department and by study, and who won't elevate his proboscis should the right sort of chance show up for getting back in, springs the following; in what seems to be a disgraceful attempt to capture the editorial angoria. He first makes remarks to the effect that he does not believe the temperature of an arc crater can be changed by rate of volatization, and suggests there may be increased brilliancy, to some extent, through increased combustion, which, he says, takes place, to some extent, in a crater. He continues thusly:

> Will not a few thousand operators make the following experiment? Set your rheostats for medium or low amperage—at any point so the amperage may afterward be raised materially. Now strike an arc and adjust lamp so that spot just covers machine aperture. Note brilliancy of screen carefully. Now, without moving lamp or anything else, except probably necessary lengthening of arc, increase the amperage. There will, of course, be an increase in crater area, hence increased total of c. p. of arc. However, since the focal length of condensers remains unchanged, the magnification of crater diameter at the spot remains the same and the new spot bore to the first crater, hence the new spot, presumably, has the same brilliancy per unit of area the first spot had. But the aperture area remains unchanged, hence the same amount of light reaches the screen, and the screen brilliancy, either per unit of area or as a whole, presumably, remains unchanged. That is the theory.
>
> But is this actually borne out in practice? I know what results I myself got by experimenting along these lines, but would like to know what other men have discovered.
>
> And say, if the operator who has trouble locating an unusual noise in his projector will get a full length telephone receiver shell, and stick an 18 inch by 3/16 inch iron rod through the hole in the small end, soldering it to the center of the diaphragm, he will find it superior to most stethoscopes. Just place the receiver to your ear and explore the machine with the end of the rod.

The brother also makes remarks about a ground finder he described in the department some time ago, but it is far too delicate an instrument for the average operator to handle sucessfully, and space is badly needed for other matters. As to the experiment proposed, it is intensely practical, but results should be carefully analyzed. The thing has got me guessing. What the brother says about relative size of spot and crater at different amperage is, or should be, absolutely true. The fact remains, however, that there is an increase of screen brilliancy with increased amperage, without any other condition being changed, out of all proportion to any probable increase in crater temperature. There is one thing, however, we have, I think, all failed to take into consideration, viz.: The crater bed lies on comparatively cool carbon. Now as amperage is increased it is not unreasonable to suppose that this bed of comparatively cool carbon is materially raised in temperature, and this, having the effect of increasing the depth of the bed of incandescent carbon, might cut considerable figure in the matter, though it again brings us to the problem of possibility of temperature after point of volatization is reached.

Personally I am of the opinion the increase the good neighbor speaks of is due very largely or entirely to the fact that while the spot does increase in precise proportion as does the crater, still some proportion of the added crater area is projected by the condenser to the center of the spot. Possibly this is due to be received with scoffing, and I am not at all certain it does not deserve it. But, anyhow, it is certain there is something takes place when the amperage is increased, up to about 60 amperes, which none of us quite understand; also it does not take place, except in very slight degree, after the amperage has reached about 60 d. c. Now g'wan and heave bricks at me, darn you.

Can't Be Did.

Charles Gessley, Shenandoah, Pa., inquires:

> Brother Richardson: Am a member of Pottsville L. U. 218 I. A. and have operated for 16 years. Am now at the Arcade theater, this city, and we are packing them in at 10 and 15 cents every day. Do you know of any firm making a burner that will burn carbide gas against lime or pastel, or a carbide burner by itself which will give a passable light—a light good enough for a tent show, Edison projector; picture 10 to 12 feet at 45 or 50 feet; metallic surface screen? Have used oxygen-hydrogen tanks; also the Model B gas making outfit, but the oxzone is very expensive for a small show; also sometimes when you order and they have your money they don't seem to care when they ship.

It can't be did, Brother Gessley. I am sorry, but you cannot use carbide for the projection of a motion picture of theatrical size, or anywhere near it. Carbide cannot, so far as I know, be used with pastel or lime at all, and without it the light is altogether too weak. Tank gas is a poor enough substitute for electricity, goodness knows. Seems to me it would pay you to investigate the new Mazda projection lamp generating sets. J. H. Hallberg, New York City, is developing one which will be so light in weight that two men can lift it, yet it would supply current for a Mazda projection lamp and electric lights for your tent. You could then put on a real picture. Mr. Hallberg's outfit is not yet ready. Address United Theater Equipment Company, 1604 Broadway, New York City, for particulars. This is the most practical suggestion I can make.

I'll Be There.

Chas. A. Dentelbeck, President Local Union 173 I. A., Toronto, Ontario, says:

> Local 173 will most certainly extend to you an invitation to visit us at any time and at all times. Let us know when you can visit us and we will do all in our power to show appreciation to the "Daddy of Projection." Come along, as soon as you can, Brother Richardson. We'll be glad to have you.

This was in response to a remark I made in a letter to a Toronto operator to that effect that, always provided the Toronto local desired it, I would try to visit that city next summer, motoring up, either by way of Albany, Schenectady, Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo, or by way of Binghamton and Ithaca. I will make the trip some time next summer, on my trusty Nancy Hanks, the Go-Devil, provided nothing unforseen happens to prevent. Will be glad to hear from locals which would like me to stop en route and give them a talk on projection. Incidentally I expect to be in Rochester April 8 and 9 to attend the meeting of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

Longer Power's Lamphouse Rods Available.

Joe Welch, Bicknell, Indiana, wants to know:

> Chart March 17 issue says I should have 22½ inches from center of condenser combination to aperture, but with my Power's 6-A I can only get 17. Should I get longer base rods the angle of the brace rods would be changed and the brace rods would have to be bent in order to enter them in the casting. This, it seems to me, would not work out well. Does the Power's Company furnish longer rods and castings for the 6-A? Also is the length of the base rods optional on the 6-B?

Yes, the company will, at moderate cost, supply you longer rods and suitable casting and brace rods for the 6-A. I presume that when buying a 6-B you could, without extra cost, get the extra long rods. The Nicholas Power Company will also, when required, at an extra charge, supply an extra length shutter shaft.

Film Mender Wanted.

A. C. Stewart, Salt Lake City, Utah, writes:

> If you know of a really good film mender, kindly advise as to where it may be captured. I was not here when you gave your lecture last summer, but heard you in San Francisco. What does this mean on the name plate of a single phase induction motor: D T H P?

There are many makes of film mender, but I have not at this time the address of the maker of one. If you will write the United Theater Equipment Company, 154 West Lake street, Chicago, or to Walter G. Preddy, dealer in M. P. theater supplies, San Francisco, you will get from them the best there is. The letters on the motor plate, why, they undoubtedly are the code of some manufacturer, and no one but the manufacturer would know their meaning.

Sherman All Right.

Sherman forwards a lot of correspondence with relation to his mixup with the San Antonio local. As to the matter of the brass tubing in place of rectifier fuses, it is satisfactorily explained, and there was nothing wrong with it under the circumstances. It was only temporary and the rectifier was amply protected by other fuses. The evidence is that the rectifier was not and never had been right, and that its coils were finally changed before satisfactory service was had from it.

The matter is now closed. Sherman is all right, and with all due respect to the San Antonio local, I believe it would be doing the right thing to just forget the squabble and take him in, if he applies for membership again, as I understand he intends to. The I. A. needs every competent operator inside its ranks. Sherman is, I am very sure, competent, and there you are.

Book Wanted.

James Tracy, Great Barrington, Mass., asks for a book on small motor winding. The Electric Motor, by Burns, published in Chicago (will supply address to readers desiring same), is the best non-technical book I know of. It is an excellent work on motors, but does not deal especially with small motor windings. It deals with the underlying principles of motors and with the construction and windings of the various kinds. It is a mighty good book for operators to own. As I remember it, the price is two dollars, but of that I am not certain. It is entirely understandable to the average man throughout. Can anyone suggest a book dealing particularly with small motors?

Projection Experience

There isn't an operator's booth in the universe in which this carefully compiled book will not save its purchase price each month.

Buy It Today

$4 the Copy, Postpaid

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

For Managers and Operators

By F. H. RICHARDSON

The recognized standard book on the work of the operator. Complete descriptions and instructions on all leading machines and operating equipment.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Schiller Bldg. Chicago, Ill. | 516 Fifth Avenue New York City | Wright & Callender Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

To save time, order from nearest office.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY, F. R. P. S.

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be indorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Compounding Formulae.

The photographic beginner who has forgotten most of what he learned at school is generally puzzled when he starts making up his chemical formulae. He sees "parts" and "grains," and "ounces" of fluids, and "ounces" of salts; and for the first time begins to understand the mental confusion of the foreigner when he attempts to use our complicated system of weights and measures.

One of the first things that puzzles him is "what is an ounce?" and he is gradually led to the comprehension that an ounce does not, of necessity, mean an ounce as he has imagined it, when he paid three cents postage on a four-ounce letter. His ounce of alcohol is quite a different thing, so far as weight is concerned, from an ounce of sulphuric acid—it only measures the same. And, moreover, he soon finds that there are different kinds of ounces even so far as solids are concerned. He thinks he will look up a book for enlightenment, and the first table he comes across reads:

20 grains equal 1 scruple
3 scruples equal 1 drachm
8 drachms equal 1 ounce
12 ounces equal 1 pound

"Hi! Hi! Stop!" he mentally exclaims to himself; "What! Twelve ounces make one pound? Why, I have always considered four ounces was a quarter of one pound and that there were at least sixteen ounces in every pound that I expected to purchase."

Truly so, O brother! but be of good heart, you are not likely to get only twelve ounces to the pound of anything you are buying, unless, indeed, you are Croesus buying gold and silver, and even then your ounce is a heavier one than that given by the dispenser of bread, or butter, or pyro, or hypo. The fact is that each ounce of your sixteen-ounce pound weighs 437½ grains, whereas Brother Croesus with his gold and silver, although obtaining 480 grains to the ounce, has to content himself with a pound weiging only 5,760 grains, against your 7,000 grains of hypo.

Then there is our fluid measure. Let us recapitulate it, for even nowadays it is often forgotten and we are constantly asked, "What are minims?"

60 minims equal 1 drachm
8 drachms equal 1 ounce
16 ounces equal 1 pint
2 pints equal 1 quart

Now, the ounce of water weighs the same as an ounce of pyro, but it is divided into 480 parts. So again we have another source of trouble. But after all, with this mixture of weights and measures, we do worry along somehow, and even admitting that most of the formulae given are a hodgepodge of the various systems, we shall have but little trouble if we take them as follows:

If we read ounces of solids, use Avoirdupois ounces at 437½ grains to the ounce.

If we read drachms, use Apothecaries' Weight: 60 grains equals 1 drachm, and 480 grains equals 1 ounce.

If we read ounces of liquids, take ounces by measure and not by weight.

And if we are wanting to make up a ten per cent. solution—a convenient strength of common use in formulae—we can for general purposes take one ounce of the salt and add water to make a bulk of ten ounces. This is quite all right if we are going to use ounces at a time, but if we are only using minims it is not exact, although quite sufficiently so for photographic purposes. Should, therefore, we want exactitude when using small quantities we must arrange for one grain of the salt to be contained in ten minims of solution. Thus, to one ounce of the salt we should have to add water to make 4,375 minims, or a total of solution in all of 9 oz. 55 minims. Exactness, however, no matter how pleasing, is quite unnecessary to this extent for photographic work.

With the Metric System of weights and measures all this confusion is obviated. There is harmony between the measures of liquid and measures of weight, and this is the reason that so many formulae are now given in "parts." Here, again, the photgrapher seeing "parts," has become so mentally upset by his own methods that he is not sure whether he is to take so many measurefulls of this thing or that. For example, if he saw "One part of pyro to ten parts of water," he would often think that he had to take one part of pyro by measure than by weight. This is not the case. Where parts are mentioned in a formula the worker who has ordinary weights and measures will take the solids by avoirdupois weight and the liquid by measure.

*Copyright, 1918, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Lens Apertures and Exposure Ratios.

Two systems of numbering lens apertures (diaphragms or stops) are in general use. In the Uniform System, applied to most kodak lenses, the lens apertures are so graded from the largest to the smallest that each succeeding aperture is about half the area of the aperture preceding it, and requires double the exposure which the preceding aperture would require. This system is a material help in calculating exposures, as there is a definite and easily remembered relation between the exposure required with any one aperture or stop and that required with any other in the series. According to this system, the apertures are numbered 1, 2, 4, 8, 16, 32, 64, 128.

In the f/value system, the lens apertures represent the relation between the diameter of the aperture and the focal length of the lens. For example: If we have a lens of 4 inches focal length, and the diameter of the largest available aperture is 1 inch, that aperture is known as f/4, being one-fourth of the focal length of the lens. Reducing the diameter of the aperture to half an inch, we get f/8, equaling one-eighth of the focal length of the lens, and so on down to the smallest aperture, f/45, which is 1-45th of the focal length of the lens. A disadvantage of this system is that it provides no fixed ratio between one aperture and another, simply expressing the light-passing capacity of each aperture by a figure which tells us the relation between the diameter of the aperture and the focal length of the lens. Thus we have apertures numbered by this system as follows: f/4, f/4.5, f/5.6, f/6.3, f/7.7, f/8, f11.3, f/16, f/22, f/32, f/45.

The following table shows the equivalent values of the figures, and gives the exposure ratios:

U. S. Nos.....	1	2		4	8	16	32	64	128
F/Value Nos...	f/4	f/4.5	f/5.6	f/6.8	f/7.7	f/8	f/11.3	f/16	f/22	f/32	f/45
Expos. Ratio..	1	2				4	8	16	32	64	128

This table tells us that, with any given subject and set of conditions, the lens with f/4.5 (U. S. 1¼) as its largest aperture, will give us the picture image in one-quarter of the time required by a lens with f/8 (U. S. 4) as its largest aperture, and in about one-sixteenth of the time required by a lens whose largest aperture is f/16 (U. S. 16).

Chemistry Advanced by the War.

The United States is still progressing in the field of chemistry. Prof. D. D. Jackson, of Columbia University, and dean of the U. S. School of Military Cinematography, has made a report of the progress made in what was, until three years ago, a special German industry. He reports in part: "The war has given a great impetus to the manufacture in this country of photographic developers, lenses, pharmaceuticals, synthetic perfumes, flavoring extracts, saccharine, and numerous other products. Before the war Germany and Austria supplied the world with the better grades of chemical apparatus and re-agents. The United States bought many millions of dollars' worth annually of laboratory glassware. Since these importations automatically ceased we have been able to make our own glassware, which is now of a quality superior to that manufactured in Germany or Austria. Before 1914 every pound of synthetic phenol came from Europe. Now a score or more plants are producing it in large quantities, chiefly for use in the manufacture of picric acid for war purposes. The tremendous advantage which Germany had at the beginning of the war has taken more than three years to counteract, and the result has been an awakening in other countries to the necessity of furthering the chemical and metallurgical industries in every possible way."

A Powerful Intensifier.

In cartoon and title work where intense contrast is wanted between black and white, an intensifier is often wanted that will give an unusual degree of intensification. Such an intensifier may be made as follows:

Sol. A—
Bromide of potassium..... 1 lb.
Bichloride of mercury..... 1 lb.
Water. ..... 10 gallons.

Sol. B—
Pure cynadie of potassium..... 1 lb.
Nitrate of silver..... 1 lb.
Water. ..... 10 gallons.

Place the film to be intensified in Sol. A until the image has bleached clear through to the back of the film, then rinse well and transfer to Sol. B.

One immersion gives a heavy degree of intensification, but if a greater degree is required the operation may be repeated.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by GEORGE W. BEYNON.

Notice.

QUESTIONS regarding music, addressed to this department, will receive a carbon copy of the department's reply by mail, when 4 cents are enclosed. Special replies by mail on matter which cannot be answered in this column $1.00.

Organ vs. Orchestra.

THERE seems to be a wide divergency of opinion regarding the greater merits between the organ and orchestra as an agency for the proper presentation of pictures. Many exhibitors maintain that they obtain better results from the organ, while there are just as many who will not have one in their theater. We will try to crystalize the different opinions and, from our wide experience in such matters, essay to point the way to clarity of vision.

A good organ—and by that we mean a real organ and not a hurdy-gurdy which has every clap-trap contrivance born of an inventive brainstorm—is a glorious instrument, holding large possibilities for wonderful effects. It has many of the orchestral qualities of tone, as shown by the use of the oboe, flauto and corni stops. The bassoon is heard in the deep diapason, and the muted strings are correctly imitated by the vox humana. Patrons say that it's "grand music" and feel the grandeur of it. It is "grand music" and continues to be "grand music."

The organ cannot be anything else but grand, and its very grandeur becomes monotony under the touch of the average organist. When the show opens with an overture played by the organ, the scenic played by the organ, the pictorial review played by the organ, the feature played by the organ, the comedy played by the organ, and an exit march played by the organ, the patrons certainly get too much organ. Moreover, a good organist will not play continually, or if he does, he must perforce, slump somewhat in his good work. The organ may stand it, but he, being fleshly, is prone to weakness, so why place an artist in a test of endurance and expect good results?

Orchestras cannot and will not play continuously. No one expects them to do it. No one wants them to do it. They, too, would become monotonous, though the chances are considerably small because of the wide possibilities of change in color and tempo.

There are a few musicians—but they are far between—that are geniuses on the manuals. Their cleverness in registration does away with monotony, and the organ is made to speak in any language required by the picture. The organist that can lend variety to his playing is a rare bird, temperamental in the extreme and difficult to control. By virtue of his ability he commands respect and knows his full value. If he be progressive another gem is added to his crown and he will give service that cannot be estimated in dollars and cents, but should his virtuosity make him self satisfied he becomes a drag on the wheels of progress. No theater can afford to hold a musician that will not heed new ideas and learn therefrom. The benefits derived from an organ depend entirely upon the player. He must be techniquely good besides being endowed with remarkable intelligence in the fitting of pictures. Some organists gain this knowledge by experience, others never get it. They play well, that's all.

We have always maintained in these columns that an organ has no place in a comedy and cannot properly fit the funny situations. An organ is always a sombre instrument, dignified and sedate, and no one expects it to get "giddy." Fantastic stuff can be played, but not funny music. The truth of this is borne out by the fact that some manufacturers have designed special organs to fill the need of slap-stick music. No theater has the room for, nor can they afford the expense of, two organs, yet neither can do the work of the other. The salesman will argue that the "hurdy-gurdy" can be used in the same manner and for the same purpose as a church organ. The difference in price is thousands of dollars, and the facts prove that the quality is by no means the same. Because of the additional clap-trap stops the instrument becomes easily and frequently out of tune and requires constant repairing. The expensive organ is the cheaper in the long run and gives the best musicianly results. But—don's use it in the comedy.

Since an organ has no place in a comedy, and because no patron desires to look at a funny picture in silence, it is vitally necessary to fit it with music of some kind. A piano is effective in playing for the comedy if an orchestra is financially beyond the resources of the theater. A good pianist can get many wonderful effects by closely following the picture. Glissandos, train effects, falls, shots and chimes are perfectly easy to perform, while many other more difficult imitations are made more ludicrous by their piano depiction, for example, the crowing of a rooster.

Another serious drawback to the use of the organ is the dearth of music written for the instrument and suitable for pictures. Organ compositions are in the big minority and those written are so seldom suitable for picture work that the average organist depends largely upon his improvisations to fill the need of a library. There is nothing so meaningless to the musical ear as improvisations poorly done. It is an art in itself and requires many years of untiring practice, which brings us back to the already established fact—the player must be an artist.

Some organists use an orchestra piano copy and play from it the chief melodies or cued parts. Now one thing must be clearly understood; music is written for a specific purpose, with a particular arrangement thereof, and if played by an instrument for which it was never intended does not convey the meaning of the number. Notes in themselves, melodies separated from the accompaniment, mean nothing. By looking at a brick we cannot visualize the house, and it is only when a number is played as written, by the instruments for which it was arranged, that we can divine the true thought of the composer. Therefore, we should eliminate orchestral music from the library of the organist who is an artist. He will not play it, and his refusal is most praiseworthy.

There is little room for publicity in the use of an organ, and no room for showmanship. The player becomes part of the mechanical instrument, and he may be black, white or yellow, so far as the audience is concerned. If he delivers the goods he gets his measure of praise and perhaps a smattering of applause. Patrons like to see the performing artist and watch how he does it. The manner of the doing frequently gains as much appreciation as the worthy performance. Good showmanship is a big asset to any theater, and in this respect the orchestra has a chance to command attention, where the organist is "born to blush unseen."

A concise resumé brings us the following facts:

(1) Organs can be used effectively if played by organists of superior ability and conspicuous individuality.

(2) Organs become monotonous.

(3) Organs cannot be used for comedies.

(4) Organs give no chance for showmanship.

(5) Organists cannot procure sufficient music for the adequate playing of pictures without the prostitution of their art.

(6) Improvisation is to be feared lest it become chronic, which means a lower standard of music.

(7) Scarcity of good capable organists.

We are in no way attempting to decry the use of the organ in the motion picture theaters nor do we discredit this noble instrument of sound. It has its place and properly used becomes a mighty auxiliary force in portraying the pictures.

It is hardly necessary to read our brief for the defendant—Mr. Orchestra. His capabilities are well known. He has demonstrated his worth and continues to be a box-office asset.

Orchestras must have proper directors and be composed of good musicians. There is no scarcity of either. A poor orchestra is as much worse than a poor organist as a good combination is better. Quoting from a trade paper a well-known film expert says:

"'Can' the overhead of bum orchestras, organs are more effective as musical accompaniment for films. Nothing is more sympathetic, more soothing or more emotional than one of these wonderful organs played by an artist."

We agree with him in every particular. "Can" the poor orchestras, "can" the bad operators, "can" the insulting ushers, "can" the inferior organist, in fact, "can" everybody who is not capable. There is no room for mediocrity in any branch of the picture industry. But this does not mean that the "day of the small orchestras has passed." Good orchestras are needed in the picture theaters, and are here to stay. What is needed more than anything else is a thorough understanding regarding its makeup, acoustic propensities, and duties, in fitting the picture.

The best class of house, one which can afford it, use both organ and orchestra with wonderful success. Those unable to maintain both have found that a good solo pianist can give sufficient variety to the orchestral ensemble and play the comedy or review while the orchestra rests. Many theaters have gained splendid results from the use of a harmonium as an instrument in a small combination, and for the benefit of those who have not tried this we offer the following suggestion: Secure a good orchestra of seven men along the lines of the following instrumentation:

Violinist conductor, first violin-obligato, cello, flute, clarinet, harmonium and piano.

They should play the show in the following manner:

Overture by the complete orchestra, scenic—part way with orchestra and finish with piano alone. Orchestra rests in the pit. Pictorial review, by the complete orchestra. Open the feature with the orchestra, including the piano, and allow the harmonium player to rest 10 minutes. When the pathetic scenes of the picture are shown make the harmonium player take them alone, resting the orchestra and pianist for 10 minutes (out of the pit), returning to finish the picture. The pianist should handle the comedy alone.

This routine system has proved most efficacious in many small theaters and is well worth trying. The harmonium gives the necessary fullness to the small orchestra, taking the place of the brass instruments. It adds double volume if needed and knits the orchestra together in a perfect ensemble. An organ will do the same function and is an instrument more adaptable to solo playing, but frequently beyond the purse of the small exhibitor.

If three pieces are used in an orchestra and are good there is ample variety of color to please the most fastidious ear. The acoustic properties of every house should receive a thorough test before finally settling the subject of an orchestra or organ. Some theaters will not benefit by an organ or large orchestra, some cannot use brass, others need it. No one can tell offhand what the musical requirements of any theater are without taking into consideration first, the acoustics of the auditorium; second, the possibilities in securing good musicians; third, the class of program offered, and fourth, the clientele to please.

Music at the Strand.

During the week commencing March 24 the music of the Strand took on a distinctly operative flavor mixed with Easter atmosphere. As usual, the entire performance was smooth and well-handled, special attention being paid to lighting effects. A back-drop representing the stained glass window of a church was most appropriate for the week, while the singing of "Les Rameaux" by Faure fitted the sanctity of Palm Sunday.

Robespierre Overture—by Litolff—was a bit uncertain in its first performance. The arrangement used was the original, written for a full symphony orchestra, and seemed thin with the smaller combination. Nevertheless, great credit is due Conductor Spirescu and the Strand orchestra for the rendition given. It is a big work to handle, and considering the paucity of men used it was remarkable how well it was interpreted.

We noted the waltz-lento number used in the topical review, which was a distinct change from the rushing marches needed for the balance of the pictorial.

Henry Miller, a bass baritone, sang the "Seargent of the Line"—by Squires—and "The Palms"—by Faure. Mr. Miller seemed somewhat nervous in his first number, but showed to better advantage in his second. His enunciation is faulty and his habit of blasting his upper tones detract from an otherwise good voice. His mezzo voce proved exceptionally pleasing.

The feature picture, presenting Pauline Fredericks in La Tosca, was preceded by the prelude to the opera written by Puccini. Mr. Puccini and his managers, Ricordi Bros., are intensely businesslike, and consider the playing of the opera during the showing of the picture as an infringement of their copyright. They demand royalties if it is done, maintaining that the action (though silent) and the music constitutes a performance of the opera.

In spite of the handicap Carl Edouarde gave the picture a wonderful musical setting, using excerpts from other operas and big symphonic numbers to portray the dramatic emotions. Especially fine was the music used during the torture scene. We are so glad that a cheap hurry was not played for this big moment of the picture. The church-bell effects, bugle calls, muffled snare drum and gun shots were artistically handled and added to the picture.

The climax of this picture comes at the end with a quickening tempo to the finish. The music did not carry it. Instead of working up to a big finale as La Tosca confesses her guilt, is shot by the guards, and falls over the parapet, the music portrayed no agitation and stopped abruptly in the middle of a phrase. This is too good a setting to warrant such a disappointing finish and we feel sure that patrons attending the second performance were better treated.

"Ah Fors E Lui" (from Traviata) was sung by Miss Grace Hoffman. This song has become perennial with Miss Hoffman, but her delivery of it is always welcomed. Her work is too well and favorably known to require lengthy comment.

The usual comedy and organ solo closed one of the most pleasing shows we have seen.

Musical Suggestion Synopsis.

AN AMERICAN LIVE WIRE (Blue Ribbon—Five Reels)—Theme for the Hero—Allegretto. Suggest "Pirouette"—Finck, "La Colombe"—Gounod, or "Punchinella"—Herbert.

This O. Henry yarn will need only the lightest of music. Choose light opera selections, such as "The Tourist"—Kerler, or "Yankee Counsel"—Cohen. A few agitatos, hurrys and misteriosos will fit. Catch the Spanish atmosphere and use numbers as "Chicana"—Demorest, "El Albaicin"—Valverde, "Mercedes Waltz"—Miro, "La Paloma"—Yradier, "Memories of Spain"—Silverberg. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Vitagraph Exchange.

BELL BOY, THE (Paramount—Two Reels)—Theme for Fatty—Allegro. Suggest "Tete-a-tete"—de Koven, "Tale of Two Hearts"—Roberts, or "Rustic Dance"—Leigh.

A good comedy with lightning speed that calls for snappy music. Rube stuff can be used to good effect in this picture. No cue sheets available.

BRASS CHECK, THE (Metro—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Valse Lento. Suggest "Kathleen"—Berg, "Sleeping Rose"—Borch, or "Destiny"—Baynes.

The character of the picture is comedy-drama with city atmosphere. Light intermezzos, serenades and ballet music is required in quantities. Bell effects should be noted, as they add to the humor of the picture. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Metro Exchange.

CURSE OF IKU, THE (Essanay—Seven Reels)—Theme—Andante. Suggest "Ladies Picking Mulberries"—Kelley, "Arabian Nights"—Mildenberg, or "Japanese Love Song"—Bartlett.

The picture is dramatic, the atmosphere almost entirely Japanese and the situations big. Our best suggestion is that you see the picture. A partial list of good Japanese selections may help the leader and are offered for the purpose of enlarging his library, if he so desires. "Japanese Patrol" (March)—by Tobani, "Veil Dance" (Ballet)—Friml, "Jap's Tattoo" (March)—Lawrendeau; "Fuji Koe" (Intermezzo)—by Shealey, "The Bombardment" (March)—by Heed, "Japanese Reveries" (Andantino)—by Bartlett, "The Kingdom of Flowers" (Valse)—by Ringleben, "Poppies" (Romance)—by Moret, "A Night in Japan" (Suite)—by Braham, "Japanese Sunset" (Meditation)—by Zamznick.

DAUGHTER OF FRANCE, A (Fox—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Plaintive Andante. Suggest "Pleading"—Wood, "Souvenir"—Geehl, or "Au Matin"—Goddard.

Another war picture calling for much martial music. In the first reel select a rustic number of French atmosphere. Note the one-step necessary for the dance in the second, and play the Marseillaise Hymn in the fifth at T—"I am a daughter of France." Cue sheets can be obtained from the Fox Exchange.

MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY ("My Four Years In Germany," Inc.—Eight Reels).

This is a stirring patriotic picture that needs a score to fully represent the kaleidoscopic scenes. Many marches, patriotic pieces, dramatics and battle agitatos will be required. A special orchestra score, arranged by Meyer Bros., will be available for the presentation of this picture.

PAIR OF SIXES, A (Essanay—Six Reels)—Theme for Boggs—Moderato. Suggest "Serenade"—Widor, "Serenade"—Liandon, or "Berceuse"—Schytte.

This is a comedy-drama. Use light and popular music. Intermezzos, serenades, two-steps, etc. No dramatic situation arises nor is there a call for "weepy" music.

KNIFE, THE (Select Pictures—Six Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andante. Suggest "Love Theme"—Hertzberg, "Yesterdays"—Huerter, or "Where the Cool Moss Grows"—Helm.

The picture is dramatic. Dramatic tensions, misteriosos, hurrys, and agitatos will find a place in your setting. Make the big stuff as long as possible to avoid a choppy presentation. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Select Exchange.

CLAIM, THE (Metro—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Moderato and Scotch. Suggest "Annie Laurie" or "Comin' Thro' the Rye."

The picture is dramatic, the atmosphere Western, and the situations big. Catch the dance hall scenes at T.—"The years that passes"—and use a popular one-step with a Mexican flavor if possible. On flash backs play pp, continuing this selection to the point where Belle sings. The early part of the feature needs a sombre fitting, but brightens up in the fourth and fifth reel. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Metro Exchange.

THIEVES' GOLD (Universal—Five Reels)—Theme for the Hero—Andante. Suggest "Berceuse"—Danby, "Lullaby"—Foley, or "Dualogue"—Meyer Helmund.

Western music, that "avis rara," is needed here. Use all the Mexican stuff possible and keep pace with the fast action. Use the theme only in the love scenes. Dramatic tensions are needed with a few hurrys and agitatos. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Universal Exchange.

WAY OUT, THE (World—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Andantino. Suggest "Serenade"—Jeffery, "Yesterdays"—Huerter, or "Yesterlove"—Borch.

Note the change of atmosphere from America to France and prepare for it. The French music selected should be typical to emphasize the transition. Catch the battle scene toward the finish. Cue sheets can be obtained from the World Exchange.

WINE GIRL, THE (Bluebird—Five Reels)—Theme for the Heroine—Italian Folk Song. Suggest "O Sole Mio" or "Marguerite."

Heavy music of dramatic quality is needed; many Italian numbers of characteristic nature. Misteriosos are required in quantities. Cue sheets can be obtained from the Universal Exchange.

Leaders' Service Bureau.

Questions Answered—Suggestions Offered.

Q. The owner of our theater is continually complaining because we repeat so much on our numbers. I am in a small town without facilities for buying up-to-date music. How can I learn about the latest issues of new stuff?

A. If you will send your name to G. Schirmer, Inc.; Carl Fischer Co., of New York; Oliver Ditson, and the Boston Music Co., of Boston; Sam Fox, of Cleveland, we are sure that their publicity department will keep you informed regarding new music.

* * *

Q. It seems that I don't ever get through my work in the theater. What with arranging the settings, viewing the picture, looking after my library, and playing at both performances I haven't a minute to myself. How can I make the work lighter?

A. Have one of your orchestra boys installed as librarian. Arrange your settings for piano only, and have him add the other instruments, using the piano as a guide. See that your library is properly classified and easy of access.

* * *

Q. What constitutes an infringement of a copyrighted number, and how many bars of any number may be used without infringing?

A. Reprinting, transferring or any form of reproduction is an infringement of a copyright. Anything less than seven bars is permissible.

* * *

Q. My leader, who is also a singer, insists upon playing song numbers as he would interpret them vocally instead of as orchestrated, with the result that the other musicians in our orchestra are always out of gibe, never knowing what liberties he is going to take. Isn't he all wrong?

A. Songs are seldom suitable to the scenes of a picture, as they usually have a different association of ideas and usually detract from the scene. Only as the theme should they be used, when the idea of the song coincides with the emotion depicted. There is no reason why the orchestra should be out of gibe if they follow the leader's beat.

Rambles 'Round Filmtown

With WALTER K. HILL.

HE DROPPED into our office one rainy afternoon and slapped a card on our desk, which read:

H. A. MERCHANT

President Amalgamated Bull Shooters.
President Calories Conservation, Inc.

As a fleeting smile flitted across our countenance he exclaimed: "No, it isn't what you are thinking about. 'H. A.' stands for Harold Albertus' two distinctly Saxon cognomens, although Albertus has been slightly Latinized through an ancient family connection with the Romans who came to Britain with Julius Caesar. And Merchant, by the way, was originally 'Mar-chand' from an intermingling of my distinguished forefathers with a Norman family of robber barons which came to Britain in 1066. The emphasis is on the last syllable. Since becoming an American I have dropped all foreign entangements, as you see."

*

"But what about the Amalgamted Bull Shooters?" we asked.

"That," said he, "is a secret organization of operators in this country and Canada, much larger than you might imagine. The peculiarity of the name will be revealed to you when I tell you my story, if I may. What I really came to talk to you about is the Calories Conservation, Inc."

Curiosity now had us in its relentless grasp. We were, in fact, keener for that bit of information than the housewife who lets the bread burn while she gets the neighborhood gossip over the back hedge from the hired girl next door. So we intimated that Harold might shoot.

*

"Calories Conservation, Inc.," continued our visitor in a mellifluous voice, "is a well defined and proved plan to save the energy thrown off and heretofore wasted by the arc lamp of a moving picture machine. See what I mean? If you know anything about a lamp house you will know that it gets hot; that heat is caused by the heat generated by the arc lamp. Units of heat are called calories. We have perfected a method of conserving these calories, hence Calories Conservation, Inc."

We got him that far all right, but were curious to know what he did with them after conservation, and said so.

"Why," he stated, "it's perfectly simple. Heat is power, energy. We simply direct that energy in the way we want it to go and there you are. For example, it can be used to operate the 'bally-hoo' in front of the theater. You cannot deny that hot air will go a long ways in running the 'bally-hoo.' If it will run the 'bally-hoo' it will run the ticket chopper, the automatic piano and anything else, in fact, that requires energy."

*

For sake of argument we admitted that he was correct.

"Let me demonstrate?" he inquired.

"Go to it," said we.

"Very well. But first let me tell you how we came to hit upon this wonderful plan to save not half but three-quarters for the exhibitor by this wonderful discovery. I happened to be standing in the operating room of a picture theater and noticed that the operator, who was a German, had rigged up a number of those German mechanical toys which are run by heat. You doubtless remember them—use to fasten them to the stovepipe; the heat made them turn around.

"So I thought what a lot of things could be made to go round by the heat of the lamp house if we could only hook it up right. While I was turning this matter over in my mind the German operator exclaimed loudly 'Ach!' and grabbed his fingers. I asked him what had happened, and learned that he had only burned his fingers. A trivial incident, but it gave me a lead.

*

"'Ach' would represent the volume of heat generated by a lamp house, and I arbitrarily set the volume of heat so generated at 250 Achs. Referring to my knowledge of electricity, in which I am something of an adept, if I do say it myself, I realized that heat in diffused form would not generate as much power as I should need to make it profitable; so I conceived a plan to transform it into negotiable form. Now you will admit that the only form of hot air that gets the money is 'bull.' See what I mean? So I took a chance and termed it 'bull,' just as we term force or power in electricity 'amperes.' There you have it. 'Achs' represents volume of hot air and 'bull' represents force."

*

We could not gainsay that he was correct, and told him so in enthusiastic terms. We must admit though we usually repress our feelings when talking to a mere promoter; but this was no mere promoter.

Taking advantage of our seeming approval Mr. Merchant proceeded to radiate information on his scheme. "Think of it," he started off again. "The saving to picture theaters is incalculable almost. It all depends upon how extensively the manager of a house falls for this hot-air force. We are now making the transformers and are leasing them to houses according to the number of projecting machines each house installs at the rate of $250 per year, which, we calculate, is less than 25 per cent. of the saving our plan will accomplish. If the plan doesn't work out as we advertise we refund the price, less 10 per cent. for cost of installation. So we can't lose, you see."

*

Right there was where we began to "see"—ten dollars out of every hundred, $2.50 out of every $25, the exhibitors "kicked in" would never be kicked back. There was 10 per cent. clear gone, slick and clean.

*

After he had departed we began thinking over the wonderful proposition we had neglected to fall for. The Achs and "bull" and amperes all began electrically to sozzle through our think-tank. "Achs for 'bull' and Achs for intensity of the 'bull'" we kept repeating.

*

Pondering on all the power that was going to waste be recalled all the uses to which "Achs" could be put, as the promoter stated. We named over mentally the bally-ho, the ticket chopper, the clock for timing the show, the "tick-tack" for the box-office window, curler for the lady cashier's hair, the electric piano, the drums; but it was not until the last that our mind hit upon the real use of the "Achs" and "bull."

How could we have forgoten? There was the organ—the house organ. "Achs" and "bull" had run a house organ for several months to our knowledge—but not in a theater.

When we jumped to our feet, determined to take some stock in the "Achs-Bull" proposition, the sudden lurch we gave started the burglar alarm and called Sherlock Holmes, the original home guard, to give us a lecture on carelessness. The lecture finished we felt like the operator who had burned his fingers.

"Achs!" we declared.

"Bull," echo answered.

* * *

Daughter Pays in Stage Money.

For the Piedmont Pictures Corporation's forthcoming feature, "His Daughter Pays," there is a big gambling scene in which the European game of baccarat is played. Two notorious gamblers were engaged to teach members of the cast how to play the game. Gertrude McCoy, star of the picture, claims that she caught on easily and could have sent all the other actors and actresses home "dead broke" had they been allowed to play for real money.

* * *

Press Agents Editors Love.

The chaps who, in their "enthusiasm" (or something worse), use UPPER CASE LIKE THIS every time they refer to play or star or both.

* * *

Tom Bret, in collaboration with Edgar Selwyn, has just finished titling Mae Marsh's latest Goldwyn picture, "The Face in the Dark."

* * *

Additions to the "Zit" Trust.

General Manager Julius Steger Photoplays.
General Manager Graphic Film Company.
And more to come.

* * *

It has been remarked before, but we repeat: Constance Talmadge, having been seen in "A Pair of Silk Stockings," will now put on "Mrs. Leffingwell's Boots."

* * *

Goody! Now She's One of Us.

Following considerable delay due to negotiations between the executives of Photoplay Magazine and Madame Petrova it was stated this week that the distinguished Polish actress had consummated arrangements with this publication whereby she will conduct a special "Question and Answer Department" for the benefit and enlightenment of the picture fan.—Bertennisisms.

* * *

Col. E. M. House is possessor of a gold pass good for life at the door of all of S. L. Rothapfel's enterprises. Last week Fritz Tidden received from Mr. Rothapfel his silver pass, good anywhere the Col. House "ducat" can beat the barrier.

* * *

Washington's Film Colony.

The Army Medical Museum Laboratory at Washington is headquarters of several experts in the film game who have entered Uncle Sam's service for the duration of the war. Captain Tom Evans formerly conducted his own film laboratory here in New York. Lieutenant Charles Wallach was previously with Jack Cohn's Screen Magazine. Corporal Maurice Piver was formerly in Universal's export department, and S. J. Taylor last week left L-Ko's employ as a film cutter to become a high private. And this is by no means the complete roster of film men who are assisting in medical research work along photographic lines at the Army Medical Museum.

* * *

The last two feature productions purchased by the Sterling Pictures Corporation have been put into circulation. The France Film, Inc., offering "The Natural Law," together with the George Loane Tucker presentation, "The Hypocrites," make a good pair to draw to. The affiliated members of the Sterling plan throughout the country pronounce the above two presentations a "pair of aces," and the Sterling Company state that their next productions, soon to be announced, will fill their hands.

Evidently Using Marked Cards.

Concerning Photoplay Titles.

Books that have run into several editions, stories that have been read by millions in popular magazines, and plays that have run for months on Broadway and then toured the country for season after season mean nothing in the matter of titles when the moving pictures get them. The title that is familiar to the millions must be changed for something that has a "punch." Never mind whether the title applies to the story—it has a "punch." And so plays and stories are sent across the screen under strange and unfamiliar captions with a "punch."

Of the plays now running in New York, making lots of money and being made familiar to thousands, there may be some eventually captured by the picture magnate. They are sure to have their titles changed, and here comes the usefulness of Rambles to the well known industry. We select a few at random, giving their stage title supplemented by possible screen captions:

"Maytime".....'The Surge of Spring"
"Seven Days' Leave"..'Her Fatal Plunge"
"Why Marry".....'Death in the Dice"
"The Squab Farm"..'Business as Usual"
"Flo-Flo".....'The Same Woman"
"Yes or No".....'The Vital Issue"
"Eyes of Youth"..'Windows of the Soul"
"Oh, Lady! Lady!"..'The Guilty Woman"
"Tiger Rose".....'The Flower of Fate"
"Happiness".....'Silent Suffering"
"Oh, Look!".....'The Finger of Scorn"
"Going Up".....'Stepping Heavenward"
"Toot-Toot".....'The Curse of Drink"
"Sick-a-Bed"....'The Red Nurse's Cross"
"Seventeen".....'Budding Youth"
"Oh, Boy!".....'The Price of Experience"
"The Off Chance..'Risking Redemption"
"The Wild Duck".....'Seeting Passion"
"The Copperhead".'A Snake in the Grass"
"The Little Teacher"..'Showing the Way"
"Chu, Chin Chow"....'Bagdad to Berlin"

To be sure none of the foregoing titles have anything to do with the case. But that makes 'em all the better for picture purposes. Broadway knows what they mean. No matter about Shenandoah, Iowa.

* * *

They Don't Talk in Silent Dramas.

Hazel Simpson Naylor, associate editor of Motion Picture Magazine, sets forth a point in press agenting that seems well taken. Ye scribes may answer for yourselves. We quote Miss Naylor as follows:

"I say—while you are Rambling 'Round Filmtown, through the publicity sheets and film row, you might page the answer to one pertinent question for me.

"My office, same as yours, is deluged with personal publicity representatives ready to beg, borrow, or steal space for their stars in our columns (same way at times with the film publicity men), and yet when we send a special writer or I try to date up a star myself for a personal interview we are informed that 'really, George never talks, only says five or six anyway, and I could give you so much better information than he could anyway, (the publicity representative is speaking); or, 'I'm sorry, but Clara refuses to see anyone; just send your writer over to our offices, and I'll give her all the dope out of the morgue.' And on the following day comes a weepy letter from the same publicity source, 'I wish you would explain why I have failed to get a better showing for Miss So-and-so in your excellent magazine.'

"What's the trouble—too much representation?"

* * *

We quote from the press sheet of a leading distributing firm: "As she passed through them the villagers taunted and threatened her, with not one friendly voice raised in her defense. She sped from them up the mountain trail, and when the dawn came, after a night of wandering, she took refuge in a cafe, her mind distorted and unsound."

Making Her a The Dansanter.

Rambles 'Round Filmtown

Mme. Olga Petrova receives 1,800 letters weekly from fan admirers; each one answered personally by the star herself. —Bert Ennis.

Who will make it 1,801?

* * *

The Projection Room Concert.

(By Young Knockin'var.)

The literary drum is mute and mum—
Why beat about the bush?
The loud bassoon, now out of tune,
No longer leads the push.
The literary drum is on the bum,
Its head is all "stove in";
But the thankful crew now on review
Doth grin and grin and grin.

* * *

Against the Usual German Odds.

Jim Beecroft, of Bayonne, N. J., is Eastern representative of the Exhibitor's Herald. Strolling down town one evening during the Hun drive against civilization, Jim passed a delicatessen store where Kultur was lifting up its lungs and steins in celebration. Over the door was hung a German flag.

When Jim reached up, grabbed the rag and flung it into its proper place in the sewer, he met the accustomed German method of warfare. Eight drivers of Bayonne brewery wagons jumped onto him in simultaneous assault and bore him to the pavement.

The stenographer is running Jim's office until he gets out of the hospital. But the German flag is where Jim sent it.

* * *

Why Girls Leave Home.

Clara Kimball Young has leased for her temporary home in Los Angeles a magnificent estate at Hollywood. The estate comprises twenty-four acres of cultivated lands, sunken gardens, trickling fountains, myriad flower beds, swimming pools, billiard rooms, sixty-foot waterfalls, forty rooms to wander through, and the song of five hundred singing canary birds in a wonderful conservatory are just a few of the delights that greeted Miss Young when she reached the land of sunshine.

* * *

Getting Close to Nature.

Bert Ennis, publicity director for Petrova Photoplays, has abandoned New York, and will tour the country seeking out exhibitors and visiting exchanges. Mr. Ennis is rightfully opinioned that publicity for pictures may best originate in the territory where it will mostly be used.

* * *

Nat Strong is now originating publicity for Universal. Hal Hodes has resumed his former station on the sales staff of Jewel productions. Paul Gulick is still in charge of the department, with Arthur Leslie "stunt" expert, and Arthur Alphabet Story specializing in Boy Scout and Broadway theater notoriety.

* * *

"Jag som skall har skrifva nagra rader" is all the Swedish press work we are going to use for "Lee" Letendre at present. Incidentally, however, Filmskadespelaren seems to be Robert Warwick in Swedish.

The Rest Is Spurlos Versankt.

* * *

While taking the finishing scenes of Roy Stewart's latest vehicle, "Boss of the Lazy Y," Director Cliff Smith saw two fine bulls of the well-stocked Triangle ranch closing in with their horns for the settlement of an old grudge. Quick to take advantage of the novelty of the fight Director Smith's camera man turned the crank on the infuriated animals. Some unusual "shots" were thus obtained before Stewart and his cowboys succeeded in roping the frenzied beasts and stopping what would surely have been a battle to the death.

Saving the Bull for the Mimeo.

Some Useful Statistics.

Statistics compiled by the Society for the Prevention of Cranks and Crabs have just been published. As a purveyor of joy, Douglas Fairbanks heads the list. His golden smile is said to have created havoc with Old Man Misery the past year. The Old Man is said to have taken to his haunts in the Tall Timbers and is now attempting to negotiate a peace with Fairbanks, but the latter has handed an ultimatum to his utterly beaten enemy of complete and abject surrender.

Unless this unconditional surrender is handed in within a given period Fairbanks threatens to bring up his reserve force of mystery, thrills, tricks and smiles and completely annihilate his enemy. Statistics as compiled by the S. P. of C. C. show that as a result of Fairbanks' activities 445,000 fossils have crawled out of their shells to donate money to charity; 45,000 forty-five-year-old rheumatics have sat down to breakfast the past year without grumbling; 762,000 tightwads have increased their weekly allowances to their wives; 36,243 misers have reformed; 64,876 poker sharks have taken to staying at home evenings with the wife; 53,000 nags have permanently retired from the field of operations, and 17,000,000 adults and children have been made to laugh and grow fat.

* * *

Thus Making a "Roodle."

Tom Bret was discussing the entry of women into politics the other day, and remarked that he hoped they would be less aggravating than they are in poker.

"Mary," he said, "was a poker novice whose husband had taught her to play. Toward the end of a game, one night, a few good hands were dealt, and everybody began to raise. Mary met several raises, and then dropped out. Her husband stayed for the finish, and lost with a full house against a straight flush.

"'Well,' he said, 'that was quite a shock What did you have, Mary?'

"'Only two pair,' she answered. 'You told me to always drop out on two pair, you know.'

"And she spread out her two pair—of queens."

* * *

Reading His Title Clear.

Herbert Hoagland has been given leave of absence by Pathe for the purpose of serving his country at Washington. Mr. Hoagland is "Editor in Chief and Managing Editor of the One-Reel Weekly issued by the Department of Films through George Creel's Committee of Public Information."

* * *

Earl W. Kramer, who has been assistant manager of Universal's Mecca exchange, has been drafted into his country's service. He hopes to be assigned to the moving picture department in Washington starting with the current week.

* * *

When Doris Pawn Went to Jail.

During a recent tour of mercy among the inmates of the city prison in Los Angeles Doris Pawn was particularly struck with the neat, clean appearance of one man. Being naturally goodhearted the little lady stopped and asked him how he came to be there.

"Borrowing money," the man told her.

"But they don't put people in prison for that," said Doris.

"This was a peculiar case," the fellow answered. "I had to knock a man down three or four times before he'd lend it to me."—Fox Publicity.

* * *

While Ruth Roland was playing golf at the country club recently her pedigreed police dog, Lady Greystone, fell from a distance of twenty feet, sustaining a fracture of one of her paws. The game was ended abruptly, and Miss Roland rushed the little sufferer off to the hospital.

Stymied in Mimeograph Ink.

To "get the goat" of Albert Loew, manager of the Famous Players-Lasky studio at Fort Lee, it is only necessary to ask him what he knows about animals. And thereby hangs a tale.

One of the big scenes in "Gismonda," the Paramount picture starring Lina Cavalieri, which is being produced in Fort Lee, is the lion's den in which the little son of Gismonda is thrown. A peasant leaps to the rescue, kills the ferocious beast and saves the child. This was a thrilling situation for the scenario writer to create, but since the war lions have not been very plentiful around Forty-second street or Fort Lee, and Mr. Loew was experiencing trouble in finding one.

An actor heard him telephoning the Bronx Zoo and volunteered the information that a man up the state, near Plattsburg, owned a lion. Loew got in telegraphic communication with the party; learned that the information was correct, made an offer which was accepted and ordered the animal shipped to the studio by express.

When it reached Fort Lee Loew discovered that the lion was stuffed—and mounted.

The "Loew-Down" on the Lion.

* * *

Arthur Oliver, who is engaged in telling the world about Frank Keeney's vaudeville and picture enterprises, has just received first copies of a song which he wrote, to be published by Witmarks. Its caption is "My Lady of the Screen," and Catherine Calvert's picture adorns the title page.

* * *

Stealing the "Sparrow Cop's" Stuff.

All the scenes of "Moral Suicide," the photoplay just released by the Graphic Film Corporation, were completed. Ivan Abramson, its author and director, was walking down Sunset avenue, Palm Beach, Fla., in a self-congratulatory mood that his labors were over, when his thoughts were brought back to a realization of his surroundings by a baby's cry. His inherent love for the little ones makes him very susceptible to their sorrows and, going over to the nurse, Mr. Abramson spoke to her. At the sound of his voice the baby immediately forgot to cry, gazed at him in open-mouthed wonder for a moment, broke into a most brilliant smile and held out to him a pair of chubby little hands in friendly invitation.—Ivan Publicity.

* * *

Rube Goldberg, the Evening Mail cartoonist, has become a real movie magnate. He has a couple of stars and everything and they are now busy on a production. Rube says he can handle picture stars easily, in that the ones he has are not the least bit temperamental. Quite naturally, for he has them at his finger tips, so to speak. "Mike and Ike," the stars in question, are the Goldberg cartoons which are being animated.

Rube "Thought of That."

* * *

Gardner Bradford, title expert at the Culver City studio, has felt the urge of the "back to the soil" movement and is now competing with other amateurs for horticultural honors. Bradford thought that his lawn looked rather ragged and decided to sow more blue grass before the spring rains. This he did and the new crop is flourishing under the recent showers and sunshine. However, it isn't grass which has sprung up in Bradford's lawn—it's a fine healthy crop of young onions. Someone evidently got the seed mixed. Bradford no longer has to water the lawn, for the onions make the grass weep.

Confusing Onions With Leaks.

* * *

"Indian Life" pictures made in Sheridan, Wyo., have a novelty in the cast of full-blooded Indian actors. One of the big chiefs is named Bull-all-the-Time; proving that press agents date away back of moving pictures.

Rambles 'Round Filmtown

Out in Pasadena recently Louise Huff gathered in many dollars for the Red Cross. She rode a donkey into the ballroom of the Huntington Hotel, auctioned him off for $850, and then sold bunches of sweet peas at $25 and $30 a throw, in addition to the sale of one of her photographs for $100.

Also Made a Cash Contribution.

* * *

"William Gillette once played a butler, so why not Alec B. Francis?" the photoplay public will ask itself.—Goldwyn Publicity.

That murmuring noise throughout the land is the public asking itself.

* * *

Norma Talmadge's next feature will be "By Right of Purchase."

No Question of Ownership.

* * *

"Exhibitors Want Drama," Says Nathan Hirsh.—Trade Paper Headline.

It is rumored that the public is similarly inclined.

* * *

Getting "The Harpoon" Ready.

Those sturdy men of Filmtown—Joe Farnum and Bill Barry—are once more pulling together in the same cause. Mr. Farnum is preparing the first edition of his new motion picture monthly magazine, "The Harpoon," and Mr. Barry is soliciting subscriptions and advertising.

* * *

$1.50 a Day for Mexican Extras in Beach Film.—Trade Paper Headline.

Probably they were Hearst Mexican war extras.

* * *

In a candy store. Lady clerk. George Walsh, of Fox, shopping.

"How do you sell your chocolates?" George asked.

"Two dollars and a half a pound," the girl answered.

"Aren't you a little dear?" George countered.

"Well," she replied, "that's what the boys say."—Fox Publicity.

Then George Sampled the Gum Drops.

* * *

Darrel Foss, Triangle leading man, is threatening to become an inventor. He is experimenting with a new type of skid chain—one that he declares will be practically noiseless and will not damage the shoes. If his idea works out he will give a War Saving Stamp to everyone on Broadway who recognizes him on a lightless evening.

Plans Light Wine Celebration.

* * *

"Hearts or Diamonds" is a forthcoming Mutual.

Our choice depends on the other four cards.

* * *

Adella Barker, the "heavy weight comedienne" who created much mirth in "Red, White and Blue Blood," will again furnish many laughs in a Metro picture. Miss Barker is cast as a "butleress" in the Bushman-Bayne play now in production. The "butleress" is in the employ of a strict old maid who "bullies" the "big girl" to death, giving Miss Barker large opportunities to present a most humorous characterization.

Bully Part for Miss Barker.

* * *

Julian Johnson, of the Triangle, believes in taking a chance. He carries a good-sized life insurance policy, however, which he guards carefully—so carefully that it is the only thing he keeps in the particular drawer of his desk where he stores his "Vestas."

He Uses Safety Matches.

Why Printed on Both Sides?

Several perfectly efficient and well-known publicists in the film game issue profusely illustrated young newspapers from which newspaper editors are supposed to clip stories, anecdotes, tales, quips, paragraphs and snappy yarns about plays and players these young newspapers are printed for the purpose of boosting. But in every instance the editor who decides that he will use of the "dope" finds that he could only print half of it if he were generously disposed to print the whole lot.

For conservation, economy—or forgetfulness?—has inspired the publicists to use both sides of the sheet to exploit their genius. The which is another proof that a lot of good newspaper men have been spoiled to make press agents. Once they become press agents they forget much of their knowledge of newspaper work, and go mimeographically mad.

* * *

Beverly Bruce Changes Plans.

"Letitia-for-Happiness," possessing a summery atmosphere, is "off" until that sweltering time arrives when June brides are left waiting at the church and Park Row "newsies," crazy with the heat, do an Annette Kellermann in the City Hall Park fountain.

* * *

Gaumont is starting upon a "beauty contest."

Universal is again trying out a "beauty contest."

Our Entry Is Pete Schmid.

* *

In one of the episodes of Vitagraph's new serial, "Caught in the Web," a troop of German cavalrymen is sent at a gallop across the Trotzky bridge.

* * *

Experienced Actor Quits Picture.

More than a dozen scenes in the Triangle picture, "The Lonely Woman," in which Belle Bennett is featured, had to be retaken when a fox terrier, which was secured at the Los Angeles pound, quit his job and left Director Thomas N. Heffron in a lurch. The company was working at Norwalk, Cal., and the terrier was playing its part well until the "business" of the scene required that a tin can be attached to the dog's tail. Then the artistic temperament rebelled and the dog wriggled out of Heffron's arms. When last seen it was heading due north.

* * *

Nat H. Spitzer recently presented his wife with a dog. "I am delighted with it," said Mrs. Spitzer, "it just matches our tapestry."

* * *

We beg to submit that Billy Rhodes has beautiful support.

Vide Trade Paper Advertising.

* * *

A rescue that wasn't written in the scenario was enacted the other day at Metro's west coast studios with Viola Dana in the role of the rescued. Miss Dana, essaying to climb down a chimney for a scene in "The Night Riders," became wedged fast so that, in the parlance of filmdom, she needed a special release.

Miss Dana could neither get up nor down in her brick prison and the more she struggled the more the soot rained in her curls and cheeks. It seems that a nail got caught in a portion of Miss Dana's costume. As her arms were pinioned in front of her by the narrowness of the flue, she couldn't reach it. After ten minutes of anguish a rope was dropped from the top of the chimney and the star hauled up, covered with grime. There was a rent in her dress where her feelings had been wounded.

Viola Cameraflaged the Flue.

* * *

"This thing," said the end of the last reel to the operator, "has gone far enough."

THE RAMBLER.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

Chicago Strong for Liberty Loan Drive

Great Zeal Shown in Preparations for Advertising Three Weeks' Campaign in Seventh Federal District.

THE fifth meeting (within a week) of the moving picture division of the Liberty Loan advertising committee of the Seventh Federal District was held in the Moffett studio, on Congress street, near Michigan avenue, March 27. After much discussion and careful deliberation the committee finally determined upon the following campaign: That 1,800 trailers, of fifty feet each, covering about ten different subjects, will be made and sent to the 1,800 theaters in the Seventh Federal District, said theaters being located in all the important cities and towns in that territory, and that a letter will be sent with each trailer to every individual exhibitor asking his hearty co-operation to run the trailer at every presentation during the three weeks' drive.

The trailers will consist of a main title, pictures of devastated Belgium, the ruins of cities in France, German atrocities, etc., with stirring titles interspersed. The selection of the scenes and the material used in each trailer, as well as titles, have been made by the Selig Polyscope Company, under the direction of Lucius C. Wheeler.

The fifty feet trailers will measure about 100,000 feet in all and they are now being made by the Selig Polyscope Company and the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company.

In conjunction with the trailer a number of special slides will also be sent to each exhibitor with a request that he run them at every presentation during the time specified.

Lucius C. Wheeler, of the Selig Polyscope Company, suggested to the committee that every exhibitor in Chicago be asked to give admission tickets, worth $2.50, to every one in attendance who buys a $50 Third Liberty Loan bond in his house and tickets amounting in value to $5 to every patron who buys a $100 bond in his theater. The suggestion was approved by the committee and exhibitors will be asked to take the matter under consideration.

The exhibitors of Chicago have been addressed concerning this Third Liberty Loan advertising campaign and without exception all have heartily agreed to co-operate.

In ddition to the trailers referred to the news weeklies will also extend liberal co-operation. Each weekly will run its own trailer, which will be in the nature of a news item, gotten up especially by each for the three weeks' drive.

Among those present were John R. Freuler, president of Mutual; Lucius C. Wheeler, Selig; A. J. Callahan, of Essanay; Watterson R. Rothacker; M. E. Smith, division manager George Kleine System; Sam Field and Terry Ramsaye, of Mutual; Joseph Hopp, president Chicago Local, M. P. E. L. of A.; Louis H. Frank, treasurer, Chicago Local, M. P. T. O. Association; Evan Evans, owner Moffett studios, and Tom Phillips, slide manufacturer.

A Mighty Trio in Aid of Third Liberty Loan Drive.

Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford and Charlie Chaplin will arrive in Chicago Thursday, April 4, at 11 o'clock A. M., on their way from the Coast to Washington, where they will open the Third Liberty Loan drive. During the stopover, a luncheon will be given them at the Auditorium Hotel, in the Gold Room, at which about 150 prominent Chicago business men, bankers, members of the Paramount staff and exhibitors will be present. After the luncheon it is hinted that a parade on Michigan avenue will be made, led by Charlie Chaplin in costume, to advertise the big Drive.

The three celebrated photoplayers will return to Chicago after visiting Washington, and will stimulate the good work here. They will then separate and each will work in assigned territory for the Third Liberty Loan. They will devote their entire time for three weeks to help make the Third Liberty Loan the biggest drive yet made.

Finishing Touches to "The Wild Goose Chase."

The Selig company engaged in the production of "The Wild Goose Chase" recently returned from a trip to Northern Michigan, where they went to take certain snow exteriors, in charge of Lucius C. Wheeler. In the party were Director Harry Beaumont, Matt Moore, Hazel Daly, Chester Barnett and Sidney Ainsworth. Captain Anderson, his two assistants, and three teams of huskies also went along, and their work will appear prominently in the picture, About 200 people from Munsing, the nearest town in that section, were used in the scenes. Eskimo snow huts, or igloos, were constructed on Grand Island, an island of about 14,000 acres on the southern shore of Lake Superior, and about 200 miles east of Duluth.

The snow in the Lake Superior region was from four to six feet deep, and practically all of the company were working on snowshoes, in a temperature of from twenty below to zero.

"The Wild Goose Chase," is now being assembled in the Selig Chicago studio. Over 20,000 feet of negative were taken, and this will be cut down to about six reels.

Film Interests File Bill Against Local 110.

Since writing my last letter, two meetings have been held in the Masonic Temple, one on Friday afternoon, March 22, and the other Tuesday, March 26, by exhibitors, exchange men and representatives of film producers for the further consideration of charges made against the officials of Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., at a former meeting.

As a result of these deliberations a bill of injunction was filed in the Circuit court Thursday, March 28, to restrain the officers and members of Local 110 from further prosecuting their alleged illegal control of picture theaters.

The defendants' names are Joseph P. Armstrong, president of Local 110, and John G. Shafrank, who is at present doing business under the firm name of the National Advertising Film Company, and said to be associated with Mr. Armstrong in that company. It is alleged that this company was organized for the sole purpose of controlling film advertising in Chicago.

The bill further alleges that the Union has such absolute control of theaters that the owners have no choice either in hiring or discharging their employees.

It is also alleged that the "Four Minute Men," who have been assigned to make patriotic speeches in picture theaters, have been notified that they cannot illustrate their speeches unless the slides used carry the Union label.

The bill filed by exhibitors and other interests in the film industry asks for an immediate temporary injunction, restraining the defendants from boycotting, interfering with or doing anything to hinder the success of the moving picture business. The bill also asks that the defendants be prohibited from calling strikes.

Joseph P. Armstrong, president of Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., has made a denial of most of the allegations made in the bill.

Dan F. Whitcomb Back With American Film Company.

Dan F. Whitcomb, writer of many successful stories for the silent drama, among them "The Bride's Silence" and "A Game of Wits," which were two Gail Kane successes, has returned to Santa Barbara and will keep secluded until he finishes a new mystery story for one of the American film stars. The name of the star is a secret for the present.

Auditorium Secured in Chicago for "The Unbeliever."

The Auditorium has been secured by George Kleine for the initial showing of "The Unbeliever" in this city, beginning Sunday, April 21. The big patriotic film will then begin an indefinite run in Chicago. The board of directors of the Auditorium theater is very discriminating as to the type of attraction shown at this theater, so the management had a private viewing of the feature about a week ago and they are very enthusiastic over its possibilities. The Chicago Grand Opera Orchestra, numbering fifty high-class musicians, will play the accompanying music during the presentation.

George Kleine has arranged a patriotic prelude for the screen showing. This prelude will consist of an elaborate scene panorama in which companies of soldiers, marines and the home guard will appear in a series of martial evolutions. Three hundred supers will also be used in the scene. It is claimed that this prelude will surpass anything of the kind yet used in moving picture presentations. "The Unbeliever" will be shown twice daily. Admissions will be 25, 50, 75 cents and $1.

The second week of "The Unbeliever" at the Majestic theater, Detroit, surpassed the first in drawing powers. It has been held over for the third week, with the possibility of a fourth week being added.

Foursquare Gets State Rights for Important Pictures.

The Chicago Foursquare office has taken over the selling of the state rights for the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation for Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and North and South Dakota. Pictures handled by this corporation are "The Belgian," "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay" and "Just a Woman." Foursquare has had charge, up to this time, of the releasing of these films, but henceforth will have their exclusive handling.

Watterson R. Rothacker at Excelsior Springs.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, is a hard-worked man these days. In addition to the constant pressure of business at the plant Mr. Rothacker devotes a considerable portion of his time to patriotic work, in aid of the Government. He is now taking a short rest at Excelsior Springs, Mo., for which he left the city last week.

Norma Talmadge Goes to New York.

Norma Talmadge, accompanied by her husband, Joseph Schenck, made a brief stop in Chicago Friday, March 22, and left the following day for New York City, where she will soon begin work on her new starring vehicle, "DeLuxe Annie."

Northwest Board Effectively Co-operates

Shows Good Sense in Handling a Delicate Situation Brought Up by Double Possession of Hart Reissues.

THE Northwest Film Board of Trade, of Seattle, Wash., has taken the biggest step toward establishing its ideal of helpful co-operation that it has yet taken during the five months of its short but active life. By its handling of the complicated situation caused by the double sale of the Hart reissues in this territory it has shown sellers of state right productions that the real co-operative spirit existing between exchange men in this territory makes it impossible for them to get out of trouble by stirring the exchange men to fight against each other and furthermore that the film man who attempts to invade the territory without proper license will have a hard time of it.

At a recent meeting the fact was brought to light that prints of the Hart reissues with the right to distribute them in the Northwest territory had been sold both to M. Rosenberg, manager of the De Luxe Feature Film Company, and to L. J. Schlaefer, the W. H. Production Company having sold them to the former and the Lasso Films Company to the latter. The Board of Trade recommended that the exchangemen make the best of the situation by dividing the territory and that they take united action against the selling companies. This the buyers have agreed to do, and to prevent any similar occurrence the Board of Trade decided to bring up for open discussion any films that were for sale hereafter.

Matters were further complicated in this instance, however, by the appearance of Marion Cohen of the Consolidated Film Company of San Francisco, whom Portland exhibitors reported as offering for booking the same Hart Pictures that Mr. Rosenberg had offered them. Mr. Cohen had also arranged to have his educational pictures handled through the De Luxe office for the Northwest territory. Needless to say, this will not be done.

In view of Mr. Cohen's activities in this matter the Northwest Film Board of Trade decided that it would not only refuse him membership in the organization, but would warn exhibitors throughout the territory that he had no right to book the Hart reissues.

Officials of W. H. Productions Makes Statement.

An official of W. H. Productions Company at the New York headquarters gives out the following statement:

"The original negatives of the seventeen two-reel William S. Hart pictures are now in the possession of the Biograph Laboratory of New York City, and at that plant are the only persons who have made prints from said negatives for W. H. Productions Company and their authorized representatives in each territory, of which Mike Rosenberg of the De Luxe Feature Film Company of Seattle, Washington, is the authorized representative for the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, and that a certain Max Cohen and the Lasso Film Company of New York City have been supplying some exchanges throughout the country with a number of two-reel Hart pictures.

"Neither one of these latter persons or corporations has any right to exploit or sell or lease said Hart productions.

"The De Luxe Feature Film Company has paid a substantial amount of money for the rights to our productions, and we believe they should be protected.

"W. H. Productions Company will give $1,000 to any charitable organization in Seattle if L. J. Schlaefer can prove that his William S. Hart two-reel pictures have been taken from the original negatives controlled by W. H. Productions Company; and we further state that there is only one set of original negatives of these productions in existence, and these negatives are controlled by W. H. Productions Company, and have been and are now in the possession of the Biograph Laboratories, and since W. H. Productions Company has only sold the rights to the territory consisting of Washington, Oregon, Montana and Idaho to Mike Rosenberg, L. J. Schlaefer is therefore offering scratched and duped prints.

"We do not now have, nor have we ever had, any connection, directly or indirectly, with Max Cohen or the Lasso Film Company."

Bessie Love May Form Own Company

While Considering Offers of Two Producers, Player Takes Option on Los Angeles Studio.

BESSIE LOVE wires to the Moving Picture World from Los Angeles that Pathe has purchased from the Dodd Mead Company the motion picture rights of "Carolyn of the Corners," one of the year's "best sellers," for her next production. Miss Love says it will be her last Pathe Play and that work on it will begin immediately.

Miss Love expresses the hope that the final scenes will be taken by May 1, on which date her present contract expires. The young actress adds that before accepting either of the offers already received from large producers, she will carefully consider the advisability of forming her own producing company, and in the possibility of this eventuality she already has secured an option on a Los Angeles studio.

The young player has been appearing on the screen nearly two years and a half. Her first opportunity came through John Emerson, who, from many extras at the Fine Arts studio, selected her for the role of a Swedish servant girl in "The Flying Torpedo." She made a hit. William S. Hart for some time had been in possession of the script of "The Aryan," but refused to put it in work because he knew no one to play the role of the girl. When he saw Miss Love on the screen application immediately was made to the Fine Arts to release the player for the one subject. "The Aryan" went over—and it was the opinion of Mr. Hart it could not have done so without the personality of Miss Love in the unusual role allotted by the author to the desert orphan.

In rapid order came the opportunity to play opposite Douglas Fairbanks in "The Good Bad Man" and opposite Wilfred Lucas in "Hell-to-Pay Austen." Her first stellar role was in Fine Arts' "A Sister of Six." Miss Love joined the Pathe organization last October. She was born in Los Angeles in 1900.

MARY GARDEN SAILS SOON FOR FRANCE.

Having completed "Thais" and "The Splendid Sinner" for Goldwyn, and made a triumphal return to opera in Chicago, New York and Boston, Mary Garden will soon go to France for the summer.

PAULINE WELCH IN SECOND METRO PLAY.

Pauine Welch, vaudeville headliner, who makes her screen debut in Metro's "Social Hypocrites," starring May Allison, which will be released on April 8, has been engaged to play Nellie Struthers in "The House of Mirth." Miss Welch's work in her first picture so pleased Director Capellani that he insisted that she be included in the cast of his next picture.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. HARLEMAN

Motion Picture Home for Soldiers

War Hospital to Be Built and Endowed by the Film Industry of Southern California.

THE film fraternity of Southern California, it was announced March 22, has united to create and endow a big war hospital to be known as the Motion Picture Home for Convalescent Soldiers, to be situated near Los Angeles. It is considered from a climatic standpoint that Southern California offers the best location for such a purpose.

The site selected probably will be one of several offered by patriotic film folk, and the hospital will be built and equipped wholly from funds collected from the industry. It is said to be due principally to the efforts of Miss Winifred Kingston and Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton that the plan has reached its present stage of development.

A meeting was to be held Monday night, March 25, in the ballroom of the Garden Court apartments, Hollywood, where the captains of the various studio teams were to gather to discuss the campaign.

On account of his patriotic work and his familiarity with studio men and women, Charles Murray, the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedian, was to be appointed president of the executive board of the home, which has as its secretary Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton, Mrs. Cecil B. De Mille acting as treasurer and Miss Kingston chairman. Kenneth McGaffey, of the Famous Players-Lasky coast publicity department, is publicity director. The advisory board consists of D. W. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince, Mack Sennett, Jesse L. Lasky, Cecil B. De Mille, Dustin Farnum, Charlie Chaplin, William S. Hart, George Beban, Frank Keenan, J. Stuart Blackton and William D. Taylor.

The plan has been given the approval of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, to whom it was presented in its inception. In its capacity of co-operating with the government closely in preparedness matters since the beginning of the war, officers of the chamber believe a thoroughly-equipped home for convalescents in the most favored spot for invalids in the United States will meet with hearty acceptance upon the part of the government.

Investigation has shown that there are many advantages to the government in having a convalescent home here, in addition to the maximum benefit to the invalid soldiers. With a completely equipped home in Los Angeles, it would be possible to send the men who are wounded in France straight to the home by ship. By sending hospital boats through the Panama Canal, there would be a minimum of discomfort for the wounded and ailing men sent to Los Angeles.

Goldwyn Contemplating Production on Coast

May Build or Lease Studio Here and Bring All Its Companies to Los Angeles.

FRED B. WARREN, vice president of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, arrived on the Coast March 16. Mr. Warren will remain in the West for several weeks with a prospect in view to secure a studio location for Goldwyn. Mr. Warren has for several days been looking over the situation and has several propositions under consideration. It may be the company will build a large studio, but it is considered more likely it will lease one. It is reported Mr. Warren is considering the Bernstein studio. If the deal goes through Goldwyn will start production here on a large scale and probably send all its companies to the coast.

Mr. Warren left on March 21 for a trip to Seattle to visit the local exchange, but was to return to Los Angeles within a few days. The Goldwyn manager is well known on the coast. He was a prominent newspaper man here years ago and has a large circle of friends and acquaintances in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Hart and Players Have Narrow Escape.

William S. Hart and his company of players had a narrow escape on March 22, when working in the snow-bound mountains in Truckee. A snowslide careened down the mountain side and buried the players underneath an avalanche of snow and debris.

The company was working at the foot of a mountain shooting snow stuff and nobody observed the approach of the swift-moving avalanche until it was almost on top of them. Then somebody shouted a warning, but it was too late. Fortunately nobody was seriously hurt, though some of the members were almost suffocated by the snow and had to be dug out. One of the worst sufferers was studio manager Allen, whose arm was dislocated by a piece of timber carried down by the snowslide, which struck him a severe blow on the head and shoulder.

Government Issuing War Films.

Charles P. Watson, manager of distribution of films under the committee on public information, is in Los Angeles to seek the co-operation of the Southern California film industry in launching the nation's most potent war propaganda. Mr. Watson formerly was president of the North American Export company of New York. It is Mr. Watson's business to see that the picturegoers throughout the country view each week on the screen the war preparations and activities of the government.

Production of from one to six reels will be issued gratis weekly to exhibitors. The first of the propaganda films, "Remaking of a Nation," was written by Dr. George P. Baker, head of the playwriting department of Harvard University, who has been appointed scenario editor for the unique government enterprise.

Universal City Again Is Active.

After many weeks of inactivity Universal City again begins to have the aspect of the busy place it used to be. There are at the present time eleven Universal companies at work.

Among those at present busy on production is Lois Weber, who is producing a story entitled "Pandora Pays," with Mildred Harris in the title role.

Director Joseph De Grasse is working on a story entitled "My Parisian Wife," starring Carmel Myers.

Other companies at work are the Ben Wilson company, Harry Carey, Dorothy Phillips, Franklyn Farnum, Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, Mary MacLaren, Mae Murray, Rupert Julian and Monroe Salisbury.

It is announced that within a very short time several more companies will be put on, so that within a short time Universal will have at least fifteen companies actively working again.

The Universal has also leased space to several outside film concerns, including the George Beban Company, under the direction of Rollin S. Sturgeon; one of the Pathe companies, the Astra, in which Fannie Ward is being starred under the direction of George Fitzmaurice, and a third company exploited by Matzene, the New York photographer, who has also leased space and will start production within a short time. Emmett Flynn has been appointed director and the cast includes Norman Kerrey.

Universal Director Takes Company to Catalina.

Water stuff galore has been shot at Catalina Island and Balboa Beach by Director Ben Wilson for the Universal eighteenth episode serial, "Pleasure Island," in which Juanita Hansen is starred. Catalina Island was in reality "Pleasure Island" for two members of the party—Joe McDonough, Wilson's assistant director, and Thelma Francis, formerly with Universal. It was a honeymoon journey.

Government Censoring Films.

Instructions to put into immediate effect a war censorship of all films manufactured in Southern California for exhibition in any foreign country, with the exception of England, France, Italy and Japan, have been received here from Washington by Collector of Customs John B. Elliott.

The rigid censorship was ordered by the government to halt the spreading of propaganda of discontent and even the use of the motion picture to convey secret messages from this country by German spies.

For several weeks the United States has been exercising a strict war censorship of all motion picture films manufactured in this country and shipped into Mexico.

This new order extends this guard against the activities of spies and German agents to all countries except those actively allied with the United States.

Collector Elliott admitted that a number of films already have been suppressed by his department.

Miller Suing Sunshine Comedies.

Because a grandstand in which he was hired at $2 per day to sit as a spectator of a motion picture production was built to collapse and did collapse, causing him to sustain serious injuries, Joseph Miller is suing the Sunshine Comedies Company, of which Henry Lehrman is the vice president and general manager, for $6,100 damages.

A number of witness who sat in the collapsible grandstand at Hollywood, April 24 last, testified that no warning was given them that the structure was destined to fall to the ground at an exciting moment. Officers of the picture company testified to the contrary.

The case was given to a jury in United States Judge Bledsoe's court on March 21.

"Hearts of the World" Breaks Record.

"Hearts of the World," the D. W. Griffith production, is breaking all records at Clune's Auditorium. "The Birth of a Nation" established a box-office record unapproached by any other dramatic production, yet "Hearts of the World" surpassed it the first week by $1,227. "Intolerance" was next to "The Birth of a Nation" in popularity, but "Hearts of the World" exceeded this picture by $1,403 on the first week's sales.

There is a never-ending line outside of the big theater patiently waiting to buy a ticket. One thing is certain, that never in Los Angeles theater history has a film production or still less a legitimate stage play received such a reception or had such a marvelous run at a local theater.

Universal Stars Feature Exhibitors Luncheon.

On Wednesday, March 20, the Theater Owners' Association gave a luncheon at Hamburger's in which practically all the Universal stars and directors participated. It was Universal day, and some two hundred exhibitors, exchangemen, photoplayers, directors, newspapermen and others interested were present. The affair was the most pretentious of the season and Chairman Quinn was highly pleased with the unusually large attendance. As previously stated, these get-together luncheons were inaugurated a few weeks ago and have been a great success.

The next luncheon will be held in two weeks and Lasky stars have been invited for the occasion.

Cabanne and Lincoln at Work.

William Christy Cabanne is working at the Norbig Studios, in Edendale, on a state right picture, with Edward Lincoln as leading man.

Lesser Gets Gaumont Weekly.

Manager Irving Lesser, of the All Star Feature Film Distributers, anounces that his concern has the rights to the Gaumont News Weekly and will issue the same twice a week beginning April 1. The weekly will have a first run at the Grauman Theater and the Riviera Theater, which is now managed by Harry Caulfield.

Gausman Goes to Four-Square.

Manager Harvey Gausman has transferred his allegiance from the U. S. Exhibitors' Distributing Corporation to that of the Four-Square Picture Corporation, of which he has been appointed the local manager by M. H. Hoffman. Mr. Gausman is one of the most widely known exchange men in Southern California.

Myrtle Stedman Joins "Follow the Girl."

Myrtle Stedman, for years one of the most popular motion picture stars, has joined the Shubert's "Follow the Girl" musical comedy company as leading woman, and is making a big hit in the East. Miss Stedman has a beautiful voice and when out here was much called on for benefit concerts and amateur theatricals.

Pathe to Cancel Paralta Contract.

Pathe has given notice of its cancellation of production contract with Paralta. It will take effect in thirty days. Three Pathe companies are at present time at the Paralta studios, the Frank Keenan, the Bessie Love and Bryant Washburn. It is probable Pathe will remove these companies to Universal City, where Pathe is leasing space for Fannie Ward and her company.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

Henry Otto has joined the Christie Company. His first picture will be a comedy drama featuring Ethel Lynne and Jay Balasco.

* * *

A. P. (Billy) Younger, until recently a member of the Triangle Film editing department, has been appointed assistant to Scenario Editor O. L. Seller, and has moved his office into the scenario department.

* * *

Mildred Delfino, well known member of the Triangle play-

Luncheon of Theater Owners' Association, Los Angeles, Cal., March 20, 1918.

ing forces, is back at the Culver City studios after a long illness.

* * *

Betty Compson has been cast as leading woman in the Pathe serial "The Wolf-Faced Man," being produced at the Diando Studios. The cast includes George Larkin, Ora Carew, Horace B. Carpenter, William Quinn, Fred Malatesta, Harry O'Connor, True Boardman, W. H. Thornley and others. Stuart Paton is director and Robert Phelan cameraman.

* * *

Sessue Hayakawa has begun this week the production of his final picture with the Lasky company. He will be engaged upon this picture for about three weeks, after which time he will start the making of his own pictures to be released by the Haworth Pictures Corporation.

* * *

Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman," and several other popular novels which have been produced in pictures, is in Los Angeles to supervise the filming of two of his earlier Socialistic stories, "One Woman" and "The Comrades" for the Mastercraft Film Co. The productions are being directed by Reginald Barker at the Paralta studios.

* * *

Walter Macnamara is production manager of the Rollin Film Company, under the supervision of General Director Hal Roach. Macnamara is also working in the evenings assisting Stuart Paton in the scenariorizing of his first serial for Pathe.

* * *

Thursday, March 21, was Photoplayers' Night at Baron Long's Tavern. Fred Clay was in charge of the arrangements and Charlie Murray the official master of ceremonies. The entire local photoplay colony seemed to be present. It is the intention of the photoplayers to have one of these get-together affairs once a month.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of March 31 at New York's Principal Motion Picture Houses.

THE RIALTO—Charles Ray in the Thomas H. Ince-Paramount production, "The Family Skeleton," was the leading feature at the Rialto the week of March 31. Sylvia Breamer is in the cast. Toto, the famous Hippodrome clown, made his appearance in a comedy called "Fare, Please." The Animated Magazine balanced the picture program. Helena Morrill and E. Mallach were the soloists.

THE RIVOLI—"The Blue Bird," the Artcraft production of Maeterlinck's beautiful story, is the special feature at the Rivoli. Robin Macdougall and Tula Belle, the clever juvenile actors, head the cast. The third series of Official Italian War Pictures and the Rivoli Animated Pictorial were also shown. Jeanne Gordon sang a number from "The Masked Ball."

THE STRAND—Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sinner," her latest Goldwyn production, was the star at the Strand. Hamilton Ravelle and Anders Randolph are in the cast. The fourth episode of "Depths of the Sea," James Montgomery Flagg's "The Art Bug," "The Horse in Action," and the Topical Review completed the screen attractions. The Strand Ladies' Quartette and Grace Hoffman were the vocal artists.

EIGHTY-FIRST STREET THEATER—First half of the week William S. Hart in "The Bandit and the Preacher" and an installment of "The Eagle's Eye." Latter half, the Hart picture and a Chapin's "Son of Democracy" number.

BROADWAY—Rupert Julian, in "The Kaiser," presents the Jewel production to deeply concerned audiences.

KNICKERBOCKER—"My Four Years in Germany" is creating an enduring impression upon its audiences.

LYRIC—"Over the Top," with Arthur Guy Empey making personal appearances, began an engagement Easter Sunday.

"DER KAISER" IS CARTOONED.

General Film releases this week the first of the Merkel Films, split reel novelty films of an unusually attractive nature. Cartoons, scenic and novelties are introduced in the first six subjects, which will be released every other week in one-reel form. The initial release contains "ME, der Kaiser," cartoon; "Our Heroes," a novelty, and "Strange Sights in the Pacific Islands," a scenic. The subjects are produced by the Merkel Film Company of Cincinnati.

In "ME, der Kaiser," the war lord is shown planning his various atrocities with the crown prince, who are both presented in ludicrous caricatures by Ren Anderson, the artist.

First National Takes Over Gerard Film

Amount Involved in Transfer of "My Four Years in Germany" Said to Run Into Six Figures.

THE First National Exhibitors' Circuit has secured full distribution rights for the United States and Canada to Ambassador James W. Gerard's authorized film version of "My Four Years in Germany," which has been running at the Knickerbocker theater on Broadway to crowded houses since March 10.

Prior to the acquisition of the big feature, negotiations were carried on for several days between Mark M. Dintenfass and H. M. Warner, representing My Four Years in Germany, Inc., and Harry O. Schwalbe and James D. Williams, representing the First National. The final papers in the transaction were signed Wednesday, March 27. The amount will probably not be divulged, but is said to have run well into six figures.

The First National officials are credited with having achieved a signal victory in landing the Gerard picture for their circuit, as the rivalry among numerous competing organizations desirous of handling the feature was undoubtedly keen. This was due to the fact that Ambassador Gerard's story is an explanation of the actual motive power behind the tremendous events now transpiring on the western battle front, and a graphic unfolding of the international plot, conceived and executed by the rulers of Imperial Germany which has turned Europe into a shambles. Several important figures in the legitimate and vaudeville fields made flattering offers to take over the exploitation of the film, but after serious deliberation the executives of the producing corporation decided that the proposition offered by First National was the best from every point of view.

The Gerard picture will be released on April 29, although earlier bookings can be arranged if necessary prior to that date. In the larger cities the film will first be shown in legitimate houses, wherever available, at advanced prices. Judging from the drawing power that it is now displaying at the Knickerbocker theater the expose of German political and military intrigue will be good for an extensive run in any large city where the English language is spoken without a Teutonic accent.

"My Four Years in Germany" must be projected in its full ten-reel form wherever booked, as Ambassador Gerard has expressly stipulated in his contract with the distributors that the film is not to be cut or changed in any particular without his consent.

Practically every amusement circuit in the United States has put in a bid for the picture since it has been taken over by the First National. A definite announcement of the first-run houses that will show the big feature will be made within the course of a few days.

UNCLE SAM PUTS BUSTER KEATON IN CLASS 1-A.

Buster Keaton, comedian in the Paramount-Arbuckle comedies, will soon be wearing the uniform of a Sammy. He has been passed by a Long Beach military board for active service and is placed in Class 1-A. Buster says he is all set, ready and willing to go. As the inimitable village pest in recent Arbuckle comedies he has become known by all film fans.

When Buster goes the screen will lose one of its newer favorites; one who has more than made good from the first jump—and he's more than a powerful jumper.

HALE HAMILTON PLAYS FOR METRO.

Hale Hamilton, whom everybody remembers best as "Wallingford," will make his screen debut in Metro's forthcoming feature written by May Tully, playing opposite May Allison. Mr. Hamilton appeared in a Keystone comedy three years ago, but the new Metro picture will be his first serious screen endeavor. Hale Hamilton is that remarkable person an actor who admits he has a good part. In fact, he insists he has a great part in "The Candy Girl." He plays Bob Howard, a hustling advertising man who helps "the candy girl" to fame and fortune.

HOAGLAND TAKES UP GOVERNMENT WORK.

To edit the one-reel weekly of the Division of Flms of the Committee on Public Information, of which George Creel is chairman, H. C. Hoagland, former manager of Pathe's scenario department, left last week for Washington, where he will immediately plunge into his new duties. M. Ramirez-Torres, who has been with Pathe in important capacities for more than ten years, succeeds him at Pathe's.

Jack Pickford Now a Censor

Following Enlistment in Navy Player is Assigned to Intelligence Department.

JACK PICKFORD has become a motion picture censor for the United States Government, and from the manner in which he has tackled his job it is apparent that he will obey orders strictly and that not a single motion picture which might even remotely be of assistance to the Central Powers will be passed for export.

Jack Pickford Leaving for New York.
Left to Right—Olive Thomas (Mrs. Jack Pickford), Jack Pickford, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, Mary Pickford with Her Niece, Mary, Jr., Lottie Pickford.

Pickford's first work as a censor for the Government was done in the projection room of the Universal Company, at 1600 Broadway, New York. He was given advance screening of all pictures scheduled to appear on Universal's Screen Magazine and Universal's Current Events.

Without hesitancy, whenever scenes showing war-like preparations appeared in the weekly topicals put out by the Universal Company, Pickford immediately ordered them eliminated from the prints to be used for export purposes. He explained that the eliminations ordered by him had nothing to do with prints made for domestic use, and that it was perfectly proper to show all preparedness measures to the people of the United States. After leaving Universal Pickford went to the projection rooms of other companies and repeated his procedure.

Pickford recently enlisted in the navy, and owing to his knowledge of motion pictures was immediately assigned to the Intelligence Department.

Francis Ford to Return West

Producer of "Berlin via America" Will Build Studio in Los Angeles.

FRANCIS FORD'S first independent production, "Berlin via America," being finished and plans for its distribution well under way, he is preparing to leave for the West with his company. They expect to arrive in Los Angeles about April 15, where Mr. Ford intends to build a studio and make his permanent headquarters for production.

The New York office will look after his interest in the East and take charge of the distribution of all the products of his studio so that Mr. Ford may give his undivided attention to the making of pictures of the highest type.

"It has always been my ambition to make pictures independently," said Mr. Ford, "because the expressions of opinion I have received from fans—and they are the ultimate judges—make me feel that I know what they want. Now that my opportunity has come and I can produce with a free hand I shall strive to make what they want. And, not the least important, it is that type of picture from which the exhibitor is deriving the greatest benefit.

"To do just that the first and foremost duty of the producer is to get a story—that is a story. That is one of the fundamental principles upon which I will base my work."

Preparations are being rapidly completed for the trip to the coast. On their way out it is the intention to take scenes at the principal points of interest which will be incorporated in the second Fordart Production, which has already been decided upon. With the company will be Francis Ford and Edna Emerson, leads; Elsie Van Name, scenario writer, and extras and working staff.

Montgomery Reports Titan City Ready

Manager of New Spokane Concern Says Administration and Technical Buildings Are Complete.

THE administration and technical buildings of Titan City, Spokane, scene of the operations of the Titan Film Company, are ready for occupancy, according to General Manager Frank E. Montgomery. The buildings, which were residences in the Castle Hill addition, have been completely restored and refitted in the interior and decorated. Work was started March 18 on the indoor stage and on a group of buildings to be used for carpenter shop, property room, projecting room, vault and other purposes. The buildings will be made of logs and placed in such a way that they will be adapted to street scenes in western pictures or logging camp locations.

The city council and county commissioners recently permitted the company to put up colored signs, bearing the direction, "This Way to Titan City," as a guide for people who care to visit the new studio grounds.

The winners of a motion picture contest, which was conducted by the Spokane press under the direction of the Titan Film Company, were as follows: First—Mrs. Leona Kumm; second—Miss Hattie Geske; third—Ruth Stone, and fourth—Gladys Gilbert.

New Producing Company in Canada

Pan-American Film Corporation Takes Over Studio at Trenton—Will Make Dramas, Comedies and Topicals.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the organization of another film producing company in Canada, the name selected for which is the Pan-American Film Corporation. The new concern has taken possession of the studio at Trenton, Ontario, formerly occupied by the Canadian National Features, Limited, which went into liquidation some months ago. It is the announced intention to produce photoplays of the Canadian Northwest and its mounted police. The title of the first release is "When He Brought Back His Man."

Included in the cast is David B. Gally and Marie Lambert. The company also is arranging for the release of a Canadian news weekly, the first of which was promised for some time in April. This news reel will include an animated cartoon by Bert Cob. A. J. La Fay is the company's general manager; David B. Gally its director-general, and Edward J. Murray its publicity director.

Harold Lloyd Returns

AFTER signing a new contract for his appearance in Pathe-Rolin comedies, Harold Lloyd, consistent comedian, returned last week to Los Angeles, accompanied by W. A. S. Douglas, president of the Diando Film Corporation, and A. E. Rousseau, secretary of Pathe Exchange, Inc, Mr Douglas was returning to his studio in Los Angeles and Mr. Rousseau was starting on a tour of inspection of the Harold Lloyd, W. A. S. Douglass, Tom North and A. E. Rousseau at Grand Central Station, New York.

Pacific Coast plants producing for the big distributing corporation.

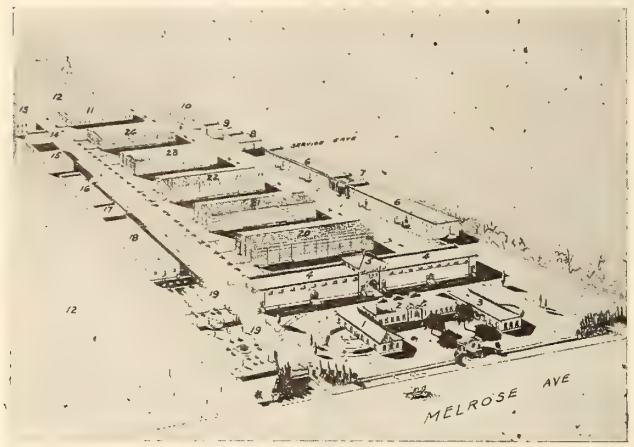
"It's a Wild Life," Lloyd comedy, is scheduled for release through Pathe on April 21. It was produced under the direction of G. W. Pratt, who alternates with Alf Goulding in the production of the Lloyd comedies. In addition to Harold Lloyd there are Bebe Daniels and "Snub" Pollard.

Work on Paralta Studios Progressing

New Structures Will Cover Ten of the Eighty Acres Comprising the Property.

THE work on the new Paralta studios in Los Angeles is rapidly nearing completion. When completed this fine array of plant buildings, in which the productions of Paralta Plays will be made, will be one of the very largest and finest equipped studios. They are located on the north side of Melrose avenue, just beyond Van Ness street.

These new buildings will cover ten acres of the eighty-



Key to Photograph.

1, Scenario department; 2, administration building; 3, cafe; 4, property department; 5, wardrobe and draperies; 6, dressing room; 7, green room; 8, plaster workers; 9, cabinet workers; 10, garage; 11, carpenter shops; 12, open spaces for exterior settings; 13, laboratory; 14, power plant; 15, electrical shop; 16, 17, 18, scene decks and storehouse; 19, floral gardens; 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, glass inclosed stages.

acre tract, which was purchased a few months ago. A great number of the buildings are already completed, and work is being rushed to finish these buildings, covering nearly every foot of the available ground space of the ten-acre tract with permanent structures of brick and cement.

The buildings of the new studios are just across the street from the old studios. Centered as they are in a compactly planned group, the buildings of the new studio plant will serve as the hub of studio grounds, to be utilized for the construction of large settings of buildings, street scenes and replicas of entire towns if necessary for use in film production. This expansion of studio properties has been made necessary by the enlarged scope of production undertaken by the Paralta organization, which is now producing not only Paralta Plays featuring their own stars, but also work for other film companies, which, though separate in organization from the Paralta company, entered with it into the plan for centralized, co-operative producing activities.

Immediately facing Melrose avenue will be the central administration building, flanked on either side by the buildings of the scenario department and the cafe. Behind these structures is the mammoth brick property building, separated by a central archway leading back to the five steel and glass-inclosed stages, each of which measures 60 by 150 feet, and which has ample stage space to accommodate six to eight settings. These stages are to be higher than any glass stages now in use, this being done to arrange for better manipulation of the light-diffusing system and to make possible the suspension of certain scenic effects from the supporting girders in the top of the structures.

A novel feature of the long cement dressing-room buildings, which will take up almost the entire eastern side of the stages, is a luxuriously furnished green room, which will offer an ideal meeting place and clubrooms for the personnel of the official organization and professional forces engaged at the studio. The dressing rooms range in size and equipment according to the use they are to be put to, the dressing room of the stellar lights being an entire suite, composed of a reception room, dressing room, wardrobe room and bath. The small portions of the grounds not occupied by buildings are being laid out in formal gardens of the French and Italian type. These gardens will occupy the space at the entrance to the studios and the available space inside the grounds not occupied by buildings.

MRS. MEYER VISITS METRO STUDIO.

Mrs. Annie Rothery Meyer, one of the women pioneers of the motion picture industry, who owns and manages her own theater in Beacon, N. Y., had never, until a few days ago, when she visited the Metro studios, seen a picture being made, notwithstanding the fact that she has been a prominent exhibitor for years. Mrs. Meyer was passing through New York on her way home from Spartanburg, S. C., where she had gone to see her son.

Capitol Comedies Makes Its Debut

So, Too, Does "Smiling Bill" Parsons, "Tarzan" Maker, Appear for the First Time on Screen.

THE debut of Capitol Comedies occurred on Sunday, March 24, at the Strand, New York. It was "Bill's Baby," the first of the initial three subjects featuring "Smiling Bill" Parsons, the President of the National Film Corporation, known to the trade as the maker of "Tarzan of the Apes." If it was the debut of Capitol as a company it also was the first appearance on the screen of the president of the National. There is no mention anywhere that Mr. Parsons has heretofore laid any claim to being an actor, but if his future performances may be judged from his first there is good reason to expect that he will be—and a good one. Plainly, the Strand audiences liked the comedy. It is of the straight sort, away from slapstick, and it is said its successors will be in the same category.

The filming of "Bill's Baby" was done in Los Angeles by Mr. Parsons and his company just prior to the departure of the "Tarzan" company for the south to make the jungle scenes. Two others were made after the completion of the big production. When Mr. Parsons came east the pictures were shown, at the suggestion of Harry Reichenbach, to Messrs. Goldfish, Warren and Weiss of the Goldwyn company. The result was a contract for twenty-six two-reel comedies during the coming year. Harold Edel, manager of the Strand, after a showing of the three pictures, signed up for the twenty-six. The run that opened at the Strand is three weeks in advance of the regular date of release, i. e., April 15.

"Bill's Predicament" is the second of the Capitol series and "Birds of a Feather" the third. In the first three pictures Billie Rhodes plays opposite the comedian and in the second three Mollie Malone. These latter are now in the course of making. Fred Warren, vice president of Goldwyn, who is in California, telegraphs the first of these is better than "Bill's Baby." It is announced that the staging of Capitol Comedies will be of the Goldwyn standard—on a par with the dramatic subjects released by the company.

WORLD-PICTURES INJECTS COLOR AT STUDIO.

Stage hands, blue; property men and carpenters, white; electricians, brown. These are the colors of the uniforms now worn by the staffs at the World-Pictures studio, the change being made in the interest of increased efficiency.

The World's Studio Staff in Distinguishing Uniforms.

Formerly when a director wanted a piece of furniture or prop removed from a set he was just as apt to ask an electrician or a carpenter to do it instead of a property man, but not now. All he now has to do is to look for a man in white.

Efficiency? Yes, indeed! Because all of this makes for better, swifter and more economical production.

State Rights Department

Conducted by C. S. SEWELL

Educational to Handle International Cartoon Serie

Will Release One Subject Each Week in Connection with Living Book of Nature, Bruce Scenic or Newman Travel Pictures Commencing April 15.

UNDER the terms of an arrangement recently completed, the Educational Films Corporation of America has acquired the sole distributing rights to the animated cartoon films produced by the International Film Company, showing the adventures of Happy Hooligan and the Katenjammer Kids, as pictured in the Hearst newspapers.

It is announced that these comedy cartoons will be issued one each week, in connection with the Bruce scenics, Ditmar's Living Book of Nature, and Newman Travel Pictures, as short features. The first release will be on April 15, the cartoon being entitled "Vanity and Vengeance."

"A genuinely funny cartoon," said E. W. Hammons, vice president and general manager of the Educational, "which is based on a comedy idea and carried out with the technical skill possessed by the artists responsible for the Happy Hooligan and Katenjammer Kids, is as legitimate a feature as a dramatic comedy. It has, beside, certain elements lacking in the former, and appeals by its novelty and cleverness to a class of people who are otherwise indifferent. We have great faith in these little comedy masterpieces and intend giving them the attention and publicity they deserve and that exhibitors have a right to expect."

As is well known, the Educational Films Corporation has been very successful in giving short subjects the prominence to which, because of their merit, they are frequently entitled. Their productions form part of the program of some of the finest motion picture theaters in the country, including the Rialto, Rivoli, and Strand, New York, and they have achieved the distinction of being featured on several occasions on the electric signs in front of the houses.

New York Showing of "The Belgian."

Elaborate plans are being made for the initial New York presentation of "The Belgian," Sidney Olcott's spectacular production depicting the tragedy of the little kingdom of grief.

The production, which is being distributed throughout the world by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation and its affiliated organizations, already has been presented in a majority of the leading cities of this country, but the metropolitan opening has been deferred to allow time in which to make fitting arrangements for the premiere.

The production will be shown for the first time in New York at the Eighty-first Street theater on the afternoon of April 18. It will be the principal attraction at that house for three days thereafter.

Miss Valentine Grant, who portrays the leading role of a simple Belgian peasant girl, is a favorite among the members of women's theatrical and suffrage societies, and a number of these organizations are planning to help in making the premiere a notable event. Miss Grant and perhaps Mr. Walker Whiteside, who also appears in "The Belgian," will attend the opening, as will Sidney Olcott, who produced the play, and Frank G. Hall, president of the concern by which this feature production is being distributed.

Among the well known club women taking an active interest in arrangements for the opening are Mrs. J. Christopher Marks, Jr., president of the Theater Assembly; Miss Adelaide Batch, of the Women's Suffrage League; Miss Florence Guernsey, president of the Eclectic Club; Mrs. John H. Parker, president of the Theater Club, Inc.; Mrs. Belle De Riviera, president of the New York Theater Club, and Miss Helen Wells, president of the Pen and Brush Club, of which societies Miss Grant has been a guest on frequent occasions.

"Eyes of World" on Tour

Specialty Film Company to Present Big Clune Picture in Four States.

THE Specialty Film Company, of Dallas, Texas, has closed with the Arrow Film Corporation for the Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Oklahoma rights to the W. H. Clune production, "The Eyes of the World." The Specialty Film Company recently entered the independent field and plans to inaugurate a number of new ideas in the way of film distribution. W. G. Underwood and L. C. Baxley head this organization, and they advise they are going after only the biggest and the best in the way of motion pictures. "The Eyes of the World" will be shown throughout the four states as a road show attraction, special musical and lighting effects being used at each performance.

W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, says that reports received from different parts of the country regarding this picture are unusually favorable; the picture has struck a popular appeal, and in many states where it is being shown as a road show it has been going over the same route time and time again. Reports from Canada also show that the picture is doing equally well up there, notwithstanding the prediction that in view of war conditions it would be dangerous to try to handle any picture over five reels in length, said Mr. Shellenberger.

Gerard Picture Remains on Broadway.

"My Four Years in Germany" enters upon its fourth week at the Knickerbocker theater, New York, with increasing success. The production is said to have gripped the public with such a strong hold that it is difficult to see when it will be relaxed. The story of Germany's infamies as unfolded on the screen appeals as well as enlightens that vast section of the community which has no first hand knowledge of the countries in which the greatest tragedy of all time is being enacted. The actual happenings before and during the war, that disgrace the Prussian Empire, that have impelled the United States to enter the conflict in defense of civilization and democracy are shown. The producers of the picture are being complimented on all sides for the wonderful realism with which they have invested Ambassador Gerard's revelations of German intrigue.

Scene from "Just a Woman" (U. S. Exhibitors).

Foursquare to Handle All U. S. Exhibitors' Features

Exclusive Salesmen of Hall Organization Become Representatives of Former Concern, in Accordance with Deal Just Closed.

AN important transaction has just been concluded between Foursquare Pictures and the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, which solidifies still more firmly the affiliation between these two organizations.

By the terms of the contract, Foursquare will now sell the features acquired by the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation in addition to attending to all other details pertaining to their distribution. Most of the U. S. Exhibitors salesmen in the various territories have now become Foursquare representatives, and part of the selling organization of this company.

This move was made in the interests of a more intensive development of the growing U. S. Exhibitors' business, and to prepare for the greatest possible efficiency in the distribution of its product.

It is announced that the plans now completed by Frank G. Hall, of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, provide for the acquiring of features of exceptional pretentiousness and quality, and necessitate a broadening of the selling operations, which the arrangement with Foursquare Pictures provides.

P. V. R. Key, of Foursquare Pictures, speaking for President George Backer, said: "Mr. Backer is constructing a motion picture distributing organization similar in solidity and worth to the buildings he erects. He has been of the opinion, for some time, that both Foursquare and U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation would benefit by a closer cementing of their business relationship, and Mr. Hall shares that opinion.

"There is no keener judge of motion picture values than Mr. Hall," continued Mr. Key, "and few men in the trade possess a more accurate estimate of conditions and how they may be met to the greatest advantage of both exhibitor and distributor.

"Mr. Backer and Jacob Wildberg, treasurer of Foursquare, are evolving policies which are fundamentally constructive, and which will be carried out under their active supervision by general manager M. H. Hoffman, the Foursquare exchange managers and the members of the combined selling staff.

"Lynn S. Card, general sales manager for the U. S. Exhibitors Corporation, will continue in that capacity to perform certain important duties of the utmost benefit to the enlarged plan of distribution of Mr. Hall's product, with special representatives still in the field. The Southern States Film Company of Atlanta, Globe Feature Film Company of Boston, The Superfeatures, Ltd. of Toronto and Frank Gersten, Inc. of New Jersey, will continue to handle U. S. productions under their existing contracts."

Said Mr. Hall: "The broadening of my plans led quite naturally to the arrangement just concluded between U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation and Foursquare Pictures. I am interested only in pictures of distinctive type; the sort of pictures that command the consideration of progressive exhibitors because they possess the unique qualities which attract motion picture patrons.

" 'The Zeppelin's Last Raid,' 'Those Who Pay,' and 'The Belgian' have set a standard I shall strive to maintain to the utmost in future features which I acquire. In this connection it is pertinent to say that during the next twelve months I shall obtain a considerable number, which will be booked to exhibitors through Foursquare.

"A contract has just been signed by me for an option on six new pictures, the first of which is now entering upon its initial stage of production. I am also expecting to announce the purchase of another special feature before the end of the month as 'Just a Woman' is being launched in New York with 143 days of big circuit bookings which is being supplemented by reports from the branch offices that promise exceptionally quick results from this latest offering."

Cronjager Filmed "Moral Suicide."

To anyone who has given even the most casual attention to motion pictures during the last few years the fact stands forth prominently that there has been a marked advance in subject, character and quality. Particularly thorough has been the search for cameramen of high standing and accomplishment. In this class belongs Henry Cronjager, whose most recent work has been in filming for Ivan Abramson of the Graphic Film Corporation his latest feature, "Moral Suicide."

Mr. Cronjager has long been favorably known for his ability, good judgment and keen sense of photographic values, and his artistic efforts in handling "Moral Suicide" have been the subject of much favorable comment. His handling of the light effects in this production, from soft and mellow to bright and glaring, is said to constitute the best work of his career, and to have been seldom equalled, and never surpassed.

"Twede-Dan Is Tweedledum."

William Steiner, "Big Bill," says the jig is up—he has been caught with the goods—and confesses that Twede-Dan, appearing in Jester comedies, is none other than Tweedledum of European fame, prominent in the comedy field several years ago, appearing in pictures released under Pathe, Eclipse, Eclaire and Ambrosia brands.

Twede-Dan, as he is now known to the American movie goers, has now been in this country for nearly two years, and has spent the greater part of that time studying the American methods and ways of making pictures and developing a new line of comedy, as shown in the first three Jester releases, "The Recruit," "His Golden Romance" and "All 'Fur' Her." Today we see Tweedldum, alias Twede-Dan, doing things the American way. It was hard at first, but now he is presented as a real American type of actor with a distinctive line of comedy.

It is said that during Twede-Dan or Tweedledum's engagement under the Eclipse banner his pictures reached a phenomenal sale which has since been equalled by few comedians, and that on a number of his productions it was necessary to retake the entire subjects to meet the demand.

Petrova Stars on Fifth Production.

Olga Petrova returned to New York on Saturday last after a brief vacation at Palm Beach, Florida, and will commence working immediately at the Petrova Studio on the fifth of her special productions, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times," which is a picturization of the novel of the same name from the pen of Gertrude Atherton. This book is now in its twelfth edition, having been translated into several foreign languages.

Much pains have been take to select the exact types required for the proper enactment on the screen for Gertrude Atherton's celebrated work, and several faces heretofore unseen in support of Madame Petrova will appear in her forthcoming production.

Rockcliffe Fellows is to play the leading male role opposite Madame Petrova. Mr. Fellows has appeared in support of many of the most prominent female stars of the screen, and his work is known to photoplay fans throughout the country. It is believed that this choice of leading man for the forthcoming Petrova picture will prove a most popular one to exhibitor and patron alike.

"King-Bee" to Celebrate Anniversary.

A "regal" celebration in honor of the first year's success made by the King-Bee Film Corporation will be held on Wednesday, May 1.

President Lou Burstein will leave the Hollywood Studio early in April, and will bring back with him three new Billy West King-Bee comedies. After a trade showing of these comedies a luncheon will be tendered to all present, in which Nat H. Spitzer, vice-president and sales manager of King-Bee, will be the guest of honor.

Scene from "The Servant in the House" (Triangle Film Corporation).

Epstein Handling "Depths of the Sea."

M. S. Epstein, with offices at 1495 Broadway, New York City, announces to the trade that Raymond L. Ditmars' "The Depths of the Sea," arranged in a series of four parts, is now ready to be released for the State Rights market. This series has just completed a four weeks' engagement at the Strand theater, New York City, and during its run there created considerable comment from the various trade and daily papers. The subject shows in detail animal life such as exists under the surface of the sea—octupus, devil-fish, turtle—in fact, every sort of fish known to science is shown with clearness and detail.

A few of the interesting subjects which cause considerable comment is a combat to death between two giant octopuses, also between an octopus and a turtle; another is the "smoking caterpillar." This is claimed to be the very first time that this creature of the deep has been caught in action by a motion picture camera.

Clear photography, beautiful tinting and toning, combined with unusual interest, are said to make this subject one of the best of its kind that has been offered to the State Rights buyer.

Three New Bee-Hives Will House King-Bees

Exchanges Established in Chicago, St. Louis and Minneapolis for Distribution of Billy West Merrymakers.

SEVERAL new concerns in various parts of the United States have been formed to handle the Billy West King-Bee comedies in their respective zones, according to announcement of the King-Bee Films Corporation. Each of these new organizations will be known as "Bee-Hive Exchanges," and "The Stranger" will be the first release handled.

R. C. Cropper, formerly of the Standard Film Corp., has secured the following territory in the State of Illinois—north of and including Adams, Brown, Cass, Menard, Logan, DeWitt, Piatt, Champaign and Vermillion counties, also that part of the State of Wisconsin south of and including LaCrosse, Monroe, Wood, Portage, Shawano, Oconto and Marinette counties. Mr. Cropper's exchange will be located at 220 South State street, Chicago, Ill.

Joe Levy is manager of a new exchange that will handle the Billy West King-Bee comedies in Missouri, Kansas and the southern part of Illinois. This exchange will also be located at 3630 Olive street, St. Louis, Mo.

Still another Bee-Hive exchange company has been formed with D. H. Mitchell as manager, with offices at 304 Film Exchange building, Minneapolis, handling the following territory: North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and the northern part of Wisconsin.

Premiere Performance of "Romance of the Underworld"

Frank Keeney Shows Catherine Calvert's First Screen Feature at His Own Theater in Brooklyn.

THE first release of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation, "A Romance of the Underworld," will have its initial showing at Keeney's Theater, Hanover place and Livingston street, Brooklyn, on the evening of Tuesday, April 2. It will be a special feature of the regular house program.

Mr. Keeney says he has taken this unusual method of showing the picture for the first time because he wants the exhibitor to have an opportunity to observe its actual effect upon a representative theater audience. He believes that thus the exhibitor can get an "angle" on the production which he could not get at a private showing.

"I am not afraid to put the picture to this crucial test," says Mr. Keeney, "because I believe it is a great picture and also because by this method nobody will get the best of it and nobody will get the worst of it. I want to convince the exhibitors that this is a picture which can be booked for long runs, because it is a vivid and intimate presentation of the picturesque and unfamiliar underworld life in the world's greatest city and therefore will appeal to millions who have never seen New York. It will also appeal to thousands of New Yorkers who have never become acquainted with the unique scenes and characters which represent the sub strata of civilization in their vast, cosmopolitan community.

"In this picture a sincere effort has been made to present this phase of New York in a minute, accurate and reasonably comprehensive manner. The best advertisement a photoplay or any other form of entertainment can have is the favorable comment of those who have seen and enjoyed it. I believe that 'A Romance of the Underworld' is the kind of a picture that will gain in popularity the oftener it is shown."

Some of the interiors of the new production were made in the Biograph Studio and the rest in the Keeney Studio, at Park avenue and 134th street. James Kirkwood acted as director. The picture features the beautiful Catherine Calvert, who appeared in the drama of the same name when she was the girl wife of the author, the late Paul Armstrong. She is supported by an all-star cast, including David Powell, Eugene O'Brien, Edwin Forsberg and Sybil Carmen.

Scene from "A Romance of the Underworld" (Keeney).

Leah Baird in "Moral Suicide."

WHEN Ivan Abramson, director-general of the Graphic Film Corporation, wrote into "Moral Suicide," his latest photo-drama, the part of Fay Hope, an adventuress, he pictured her as a beautiful fascinating creature, with all the allurements at her command, but without conscience, her actions being governed by a scheming brain and not by her heart. This role was entrusted to Leah Baird, whom Director Abramson felt confident would put into the part the requisite amount of light and shade. She has given an effective portrayal of the character, her acting being marked with intelligence and discretion.

For four years Miss Baird was on the stage, playing prominent parts in many dramatic productions, including "The Gentleman from Mississippi." On the screen she starred in "Lights of New York" and "The Devil's Pay Day" and appeared in many other successes with Maurice Costello, Earle Williams and King Baggott. In Paris she played in "Absinthe" and in England in "Ivanhoe" under Herbert Brenon. She also appeared in some of Ivan Abramson's former productions, notably "One Law for Both" and "Sins of Ambition."

Anders Randolf for "Reclaimed."

Anders Randolf, who has appeared in such feature productions as "One Law for Both" and "Sins of Ambition," produced by Ivan Film Productions, also in "Who's Your Neighbor?", has been engaged by Harry McRae Webster for an important role in "Reclaimed," the seven-reel feature he is now making, based on a story by Richard Field Carroll

This picture represents the struggle between love and hate for the possession of a soul. The author has peopled his play with persons of high moral standards, where the heroine resists the many pitfalls and temptations that are craftily laid for her, and it is said that the hero does not resort to the spectacular by saving her from death traps and snares.

This production, in which Mabel Julienne Scott and Niles Welch are co-starred, will be released on a state rights basis.

Board Reviews "Life Mask."

Concerning "The Life Mask," the third special production starring Olgo Petrova, the Petrova Picture Company announce that the following special report has been issued by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures: "We wish to advise you that the majority comment on your photoplay, 'The Life Mask,' reviewed by the National Board of Review on February 18, 1918, was as follows: 'Entertainment value, good; artistic value; dramatic interest of story, good; coherence of narrative, clear; acting, good; technical handling, good; atmospheric quality of scenic setting, good; moral effect, good. General comment: Olga Petrova, first as the daughter forced into an unhappy marriage, then as the long-suffering wife and later as the fiance of her girlhood lover, makes the most of a fine opportunity to display her remarkable ability as an emotional actress."

Prominent Writers Praise "The Struggle Everlasting"

Editors of Several Publications Compliment Author and Producer on Fine Production Starring Florence Reed.

HARRY RAPF has received numerous letters of praise from prominent editors, authors, artists and clergymen congratulating him for the excellent portrayal of "The Struggle Everlasting," Edwin Milton Royle's vibrant story of the struggles that are ever tugging at one's heart. This production, in which Florence Reed, Milton Sills and Irving Cummings are starred, is being offered by Harry Rapf Productions as a state right attraction.

Robert Rudd Whiting, editor of Ainslee's magazine, wrote Mr. Royle, the author, as follows: "I consider 'The Struggle Everlasting' the finest thing you have written, and instead of losing in effectiveness as a picture, screening has served to bring out the beauty and power of it in a way that I did not believe possible. The man or woman to whom this picture of life fails to give a real thrill must lack interest in life itself. 'The Struggle Everlasting' is what motion pictures are for."

William Harlowe Briggs of Harper's magazine wrote, "What a stunning embodiment of an immense idea you revealed to us! It was not only impressive, much more than that, it was humanely interesting from beginning to end. I may be wrong, but I should fancy that women are going to be thankful to you for 'The Struggle Everlasting.' I have rarely seen such fine photography." Randolph Bartlett wrote in the Photoplay magazine, "It is beautiful photodramaturgy. Florence Reed has never been so brilliant. Scenically the picture is gorgeous in both its splendid vistas of crag and sea and its interior trappings. Mr. Rapf deserves high praise for his sincerity and courage in attempting such a work."

The Motion Picture magazine said, "Nobody on the stage or screen can suggest physical lure as Miss Reed without impossible vampire trimmings—she is sex herself. Why Miss Reed has not been seized by discerning producers and why she isn't one of the film favorite stars are beyond our ken to understand."

Exhibitors who can link these testimonials to the showing of this picture in their own theaters, will reap the benefit of advance advertising and publicity no single theater could otherwise secure for a production. Special lobby displays showing the original testimonials from these magazines are offered free to exhibitors for advance display.

Sterling to Handle Future France Films.

Chas. H. France, producer and director of "The Natural Law," the screen version made from the famous play of that title which ran for eight months at the Republic theater, New York, and toured the United States for one year, has decided to start producing another feature next month, and has chosen the Sterling Picture Corp., of which William F. Beck is president, as distributing agents of all future France Film Productions.

Mr. France arrived at this decision to use the "Sterling System" for distribution after several conferences with the prominent independent exchange men of the country.

Mr. H. R. Ebenstein, manager of sales for the Sterling Picture Corp., reports that "The Natural Law" is in great demand by the exhibitors, and that he has sold over fifty per cent. of the entire territory for this production in which several prominent film players are featured.

"Tarzan" Paper Exhausted.

Some idea of the thoroughness with which "Tarzan of the Apes" is being advertised on the billboards of the country may be gathered from an announcement by the supply department of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit to the effect that two complete editions of lithographic paper comprising one, three, six and twenty-four-sheets have been exhausted in making the many thrilling features of Edgar Rice Burroughs' big adventure story known to film patrons throughout the country.

Both the J. H. Tooker Lithographic Company and the Greenwich Lithographic Company have furnished sets of posters for the producers and distributors of "Tarzan." The combination of jungle scenery, wild animals in their native state, and picturesquely garbed human beings has made it possible to get many striking color effects which appear to excellent advantage on the stands.

Boston Has New State Right Exchange.

A new state right exchange, the Trimont Film Corporation, has established offices in Boston, at 12 Piedmont street. This concern will handle state right features for New England territory, their first release being "Corruption." D. H. Brand, a well known motion picture man, is in charge.

Pioneer Handling Several Features.

In addition to "The Still Alarm," which the Pioneer Film Corporation is offering on state right basis, this concern is also handling a number of productions in New York and northern New Jersey territory, including "Redemption," "The Cold Deck," "Today," "The Mad Lover," "Garden of Allah," 'City of Purple Dreams," "Carmen of the Klondike" and Nathan Hirsh, manager of this organization, advises that while he has successfully handled these productions, there appears to be even more demand and enthusiasm for "The Still Alarm," which is based on the well known stage melodrama of the same title.

Campaign Book for Hart Reissues.

W. H. Productions Company have gotten up for the benefit of exhibitors a practical campaign book covering "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell Hound of Alaska."

The contents include a description of the production, fac similes of the posters, which are composed of two styles of one sheets, two styles of three sheets, two styles of six sheets, and an attractive twenty-four sheet; also fac similes of the lobby displays of ten 8x10s, and eleven 8x14s, two styles of slides, photographs of heralds, star half tone and line cuts and publicity stories; suggestions for lobby display, box office display, window display and street display; in fact, everything that a live exhibitor would require to put the pictures over properly.

Spitzer's Splendid Salesmanship.

Nat H. Spitzer, sales manager and vice-president of the King-Bee Films Corporation, announces that rights to Billy West King-Bee comedies have now been disposed of for the entire world.

This corporation, which celebrates its first year in business on May 1, is now firmly established as a successful producer of two-reel comedies.

A great deal of credit is due Mr. Spitzer, who sold, on his memorable trip throughout the United States, the state rights to these comedies before even two of the comedies had been completed, which speaks well for the confidence of state rights buyers in Mr. Spitzer's judgment.

Second Piedmont Production to Begin Soon.

The Piedmont Pictures Corporation plans to begin work on another feature picture as soon as releasing arrangements have been completed for "His Daughter Pays." The new picture will deal with events of the present war, and in particular with the sufferings of the Italians at the hands of their powerful neighbors.

Interest among exhibitors is said to be keen in regard to "His Daughter Pays," and the popularity of Gertrude McCoy, the star of the production, will do much to help advertise the picture, inasmuch as she has been a favorite among film fans for some time. The Piedmont people state that she will be backed up by a fine production and surrounded by a competent cast, while the story is one that has gained much fame on the stage when produced under the title of "La Bacarrat."

The cast of "His Daughter Pays," other than Miss McCoy, includes such well known players as Pauline Curley, who has been seen in Metro and Goldwyn pictures as well as in "The Fall of the Romanoffs"; Charles Graham, always a favorite, and Henry Sedley, Johnny Walker and Barry Whitcomb. In addition there are flower girls, Oriental maids and over two hundred extras.

Scene from "His Daughter Pays" (Piedmont).

Mabel Juliene Scott

MABEL Julienne Scott, now appearing before the camera as leading woman in "Reclaimed," which is being produced by Harry McRae Webster Productions, was born and educated in Minneapolis. Her mother is French and her father Norwegian. After completing her course in the university she took a two-years' course in dramatic art and appeared in a series of amateur plays for charity.

After overcoming parental objections she joined a stock company in Denver,

Mabel Julienne Scott.

remaining all the season. She then appeared in stock in Kansas City, Omaha and Detroit, her talent finally winning for her leading roles. She also appeared for a season as leading woman with Fiske O'Hara, and was then featured in vaudeville in "The Intruder."

Since entering the motion picture field she has appeared in several productions, including the Rex Beach production, "The Barrier," in which she was cast as Necia and made a lasting reputation. Recently she was featured in "The Sign Invisible."

Miss Scott is five feet six inches tall and has beautiful auburn hair. She is fond of outdoor sports, particularly horse-back riding. She plans eventually to return to the stage, and believes that the combination of stock company and screen experience is an ideal one to bring success on the stage.

Live Advertising for Barriscale Reissues.

W. H. Productions Company are preparing an attractive advertising campaign on the series of five Bessie Barriscale productions which they are releasing on the state right market, which will consist of two styles of one sheets, two styles of three sheets, and a six sheet; newspaper cuts, publicity stories and a lobby display of 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28 photographs.

There have been requests from every section of the country for these features, not only from the state right buyers, but from prominent exhibitors, and it is expected that a great many sales will be concluded within a very short time.

First Gwendolyn Film Announced.

The first production of the Gwendolyn Films, entitled "For Dear Old Glory," will soon be released on State Rights basis. Offers are being received from buyers, and announcement of allotment of territory will be made soon.

Lubin and Ennis Start on Petrova Picture Tour

Will Visit All First National Exchanges—Take Complete Line of Advertising Aids and Accessories to Assist Exhibitors.

HERBERT LUBIN, personal representative for Olga Petrova, accompanied by Bert Ennis, director of publicity for the Petrova Picture Company, left New York on March 26 for a tour of the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, which is handling the productions in which Madame Petrova has appeared under the banner of her own organization, namely "Daughter of Destiny," "The Light Within" and "The Life Mask."

Mr. Lubin will carry a personal message from the star to exchangemen and exhibitors, and will also make a study of conditions surrounding the presentation of these features so as to be in position to render valuable service. He is said to be well qualified for this task, having been a franchise holder of the Metro in Canada for several years, and is not a member of the firm of General Enterprises, Inc.

Mr. Ennis will carry out the working details of the recently established service bureau. He will take along an extensive line of accessories, and will concentrate a strong publicity campaign on various sections. In addition, Mr. Ennis is taking with him an advertising novelty which it is claimed will serve to attract the attention of many people who have been but slightly interested in motion pictures.

Extensive billboard campaigns will be carried out in the important cities; an attractive twenty-four sheet having been prepared.

Starting at Boston, the itinerary calls for visits to Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Des Moines, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, Dallas, and other points in the South will be visited, the trip finally extending to the Pacific Coast.

Sales of the Week

Activities in the State Right Market During the Past Seven Days.

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO. announce the sale of twenty-eight Mack Sennett Keystone comedies to the Electric Theater Supply Co., Thirteenth and Vine street, Philadelphia, for District of Columbia, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and North Carolina.

* * *

Rights to the W. S. Hart features, "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell Hound of Alaska," have been sold by the W. H. Productions Company to the Electric Theater Supply Company, Philadelphia, for eastern Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey.

* * *

Phil Goldstone, Omaha, Nebraska, has purchased from the W. H. Productions Company the rights to the five Bessie Barriscale re-issues for West Virginia, western Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri and Kansas.

* * *

Magnet Film Company, New York, have secured from W. H. Productions Company the rights for the five Bessie Barriscale re-issues for New York and northern New Jersey.

* * *

Physical Culture Photo Plays, Inc., have sold the western Pennsylvania and western Virginia rights to "Zongar" to Jacon Orringer, 804 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh.

Orringer Buys "Zongar" Territory.

Jacob Orringer, 804 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, has purchased the state rights for western Pennsylvania and West Virginia on "Zongar," the five-part feature produced by Physical Culture Photo Plays, Inc., under the supervision of Bernarr Macfadden. "Zongar" is said to be considered one of the most sensational and actionful pictures ever produced. George Larkin, its star, performs one hazardous feat after another with thrilling effect. Mr. Orringer, always on the look out for a novelty picture which he might market as a "special" readily seized upon "Zongar" when it was shown him by a representative of the Physical Culture Company. Mr. Orringer, while comparatively new in the film exchange end of the business, has been successfully engaged in exploiting small productions in his territory for the past year. He entered the motion picture business as an exhibitor when the two reeler was considered a feature. Recently he has adopted the policy of concentrating on at least one "special" feature a month.

"Life or Honor?" a "New Policy" Ivan.

Keen interest on the part of exhibitors is said to have followed the trade showing of Ivan's newest release, "Life or Honor?" The verification, contained in the reviews of the trade journals, of the claim by the producers that with "Life or Honor?" the New-Policy-Pictures of Ivan Film Productions had their initiation seems to be responsible for the fact. While the laudatory remarks of the motion picture press are much appreciated, the producers desire it to be known that "Life or Honor?" is only the beginning of extraordinary effort to be made by the producing company. Two entirely "so different" productions are soon to be announced, productions which the Ivan people claim to be worthy of the often misused name "superfeature." I. E. Chadwick's policy of using the directorial staff alternately will assure variety.

Eastern Feature Film Co. of Boston reports excellent progress in booking "Life or Honor?" Just concluding a satisfactory run covering the entire Poli circuit, Mr. Rifkin, general manager of Eastern Films, is congratulating himself on the success of the spring drive he made with the latest Ivan, and records 43 days of solid advance booking. Merit Film Corporation of New York reports are equally encouraging, "Life or Honor?" having been booked to the Marcus Loew circuit as well as to some of the smaller circuits lately organized. Super Film Attractions of Syracuse, Ohio Ivan Distributors of Cleveland, V. Hoddupp of Indianapolis, M. & R. Features of San Francisco, announce release date of "Life or Honor?" for week of April 1.

James Morrison in One of His Dual Roles in "Life or Honor?" (Ivan).

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

Scene from "The Tiger Man" (Artcraft).

In "The Tiger Man" Hart Portrays Man of Early West

IN "The Tiger Man," wherein he plays the title role, William S. Hart, the famous Artcraft delineator of Western types, has again painted for the screen a character vital and full of the red-blooded and primeval passions.

J. G. Hawks wrote this scenario and Mr. Hart himself directed the production, which was photographed by Joe August. Jane Novak is cast for the leading feminine role, and as Ruth Ingram, wife of the sickly clergyman, depicts a character which wins by its sympathy and the skillful manner in which it has been interpreted. Milton Ross has a heavy part, while Charles K. French and Robert Lawrence each supply important characterizations.

The thing that patrons of Hart photodramas demand in his pictures is virility, the aspects of life as it is lived in the outposts of civilization. And they are never disappointed, as Bill Hart has the faculty of infusing life into his roles, sinking himself into the character, giving to it the splendid physical and mental effort of which he is capable and which means everything to a play of this character. But in every instance there is a distinct moral lesson conveyed and in "The Tiger Man" it is not absent.

J. G. Hawks has made a close study of Hart's peculiarities of acting, manner and character. He has created in the role of the lawless Tiger Man a part that is suited to the last degree to the qualities that have brought Hart into the high favor he now holds. "The Tiger Man" will be released April 1.

Edith Storey, Metro star, recently sold nearly 200 smileage books, that serve to bring an extra ray of happiness into the lives of the boys training in Uncle Sam's cantonments.

Katterjohn Encore for Louise Glaum

ANNOUNCEMENT comes from the offices of the Paralta Plays, Inc., that the second Louise Glaum production to be made at the Paralta studios will be from a story which has been written for Miss Glaum by Monte M. Katterjohn, who wrote "An Alien Enemy," in which Miss Glaum will make her debut as a Paralta star. Wallace Worsley, who directed "An Alien Enemy," will also be in charge of the new production, work on which will be started at the Paralta studios immediately.

The new Paralta-Glaum play will be produced under the working title "One of the Multitude." Mr. Katterjohn found his material in a typical small town community of the middle-West, a location which the author knows thoroughly, and which contains characters of intimate human types. The setting of the story is laid in the community of Midland, described by the author as being a town "populated by best families, but sadly in need of a few funerals."

"American Buds" a Fox Special.

Again William Fox has strengthened his 52-a-year special feature series by adding to it one of his Standard pictures. It is announced that Jane and Katherine Lee, the Fox "Baby Grands," have proven so popular with the public that he has just taken their latest comedy, "American Buds," even though it was made as a high-class Standard picture, and has delivered it over to the special feature exhibitors at the lower rate. The reason given by Mr. Fox is that he desires to add to the value of his special features whenever it is possible for him to do so.

High Life in O. Henry.

THE April release list of the O. Henry stories distributed by General Film Company contains a number of the author's brightest stories. "Lost on Dress Parade," the first of the series, is a skillful picture of high life in New York City, and contains a number of fine dramatic situations. Patsy Deforrest and Evart Overton are the featured players. Following this will come "Nemesis and the Candy Man," featuring William Dunn and Miriam Miles.

Scene from "Western Blood."

Theda Bara in "Salome."

Scene from "A Daughter of France."

Typical Scenes from Three Fox Productions.

Henley Opens a Real Bank.

Not often is a motion picture director afforded the co-operation of a bank in photographing scenes supposed to take place in one. Usually such settings are built inside the studio with such care that audiences do not suspect that they are not real. On behalf of Goldwyn, Director Hobart Henley is fortunate in having enlisted the interest of the Fort Lee National Bank in the production of "The Face In the Dark," the Irvin S. Cobb drama of the secret service soon to be released, starring Mae Marsh. Much of the action is laid in a country bank, with many important scenes centering around the various departments and the big vaults themselves.

Arrangements were made with the executives of the bank and on a recent Sunday morning Miss Marsh, Niles Welch, Joseph Smiley, Donald Hall and Mr. Henley took possession of the bank building, on Main street, in Fort Lee. Lights had been installed the day before, so the Goldwyn players entered without attracting any attention. One by one the scenes were taken. Niles Welch at his paying teller window, smiling through the wicket at Miss Marsh and making a mistake in his accounts because of her presence—it all might have been an incident in real life.

Ballin Stages Center Fireplace.

It is not only in spectacular effects such as were afforded by Goldwyn's production of "Thais" that Hugo Ballin excels. The distinguished art director of Goldwyn Pictures, now devoting his entire time to the creation of settings at the Fort Lee studios, finds opportunity to display his genius for beautiful interiors no matter how limited the scope of the required setting. He achieves intimacy and charm as easily as depth and magnificence.

In "The Face in the Dark," the Irvin S. Cobb play in which Mae Marsh is to appear, Mr. Ballin has excelled himself in settings of richness and beauty, notably in a splendid drawingroom done in the new mulberry shade, embodying modern ideas of interior decoration. It is in another setting, however, that Mr. Ballin strikes a note of novelty as individual as it is practical. A den is the medium chosen by Mr. Ballin for this expression of his art. Beautiful arched doorways, leather chairs and wrought iron candle sconces, with a few choice pictures, create the atmosphere of cultured taste and complete harmony. There is a fireplace in the room, but instead of being a conventional one, built in the wall, it is in the center of the apartment.

Scene from "The Boss of the Lazy Y" (Triangle).

"The Vortex" and "Boss of Lazy Y" Triangle Leaders

ANNOUNCED as the first Triangle feature of the week of April 7 is "The Vortex," formerly on the March 31 schedule, and "The Love Brokers" has been substituted in its place. Jealousy is the theme of Norman Sherbrook's story, "The Vortex," which features Mary Warren and Joe King, and includes in the supporting cast Wilbur Higbee, Eugene Burr, George Hernandez and Myrtle Rishell. Gilbert P. Hamilton directed. The Busch Gardens, at Pasadena, one of California's greatest show places, were used in filming many of the scenes.

"The Boss of the Lazy Y," with Roy Stewart in the title role, is scheduled as the second release of the week. This is a screen adaptation of the novel of the same name by Charles Alden Seltzer, who is said to rank among the big royalty winners in the popular fiction field.

The story deals with an ancient feud which exists between the Marstons and the Taggarts. Josie Sedgwick is cast as Betty Clayton. Little five-year-old Frankie Lee makes his first appearance on the Triangle screen as her little crippled brother. Billy Patton, leading bronchobuster at the Triangle Ranch studio, has a character role. Walt Whitman, Graham Pette, Frank McQuarrie, Aaron Edwards and William Ellingford are also included in the supporting cast.

A two-reel comedy by Mrs. Kate Corbaley, winner of the thousand dollar prize in the recent Triangle contest, is the concluding feature on the April 7 program. "Mr. Briggs Closes the House" was scenarioized by Charles Mortimer Peck. It deals with the comedies and errors of domestic life.

Ralph Graves Rejoins Universal.

Ralph Graves, engaged by Universal to play opposite Ella Hall in the Ella Hall Special Attractions, has the distinction of being the youngest leading man in captivity. He will see several summers pass before he will attain his majority. The latest Universal acquisition has been in pictures a little more than a year, going directly from the Cleveland High School into a motion picture studio. Playing as a juvenile he was the first victim of Mary McLane in the Essanay studio at Chicago, where the picture "Men Who Have Made Love to Me" was produced.

Following this engagement Graves was with Universal, appearing in comedies, the company at that time having an overabundance of athletic stars. He then played with Kitty Gordon in "Tinsel," which will be released shortly. And now he comes back to Universal and will start for Universal City in a few days.

Mr. Graves' desires run to athletic roles. He is more than six feet in height and built in proportion. He has lived an outdoor life and his ambition is to continue to do so.

Two Essanay Reissues Going Well.

The Broncho Billy films, ten of which have been put in the hands of the Kleine branch offices for release, are reported to be making an unprecedented record in booking.

The Snakeville comedies, released through the General Film Company, are featuring the well known comedians Victor Potel, known as Slippery Slim; Harry Todd and Margaret Joslin.

Kansas Mothers' Congress Approve Seven Goldwyns

GOLDWYN Pictures have received marked commendation from the Kansas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, which are making a state-wide campaign for better films as a part of their child welfare movement. To date seven Goldwyn productions have been given the stamp of special approval by the Kansas Board of Review, whose co-operation with the organization has made "Family Nights" in Kansas a huge success.

The association has been greatly assisted in its campaign for pictures of higher moral tone by the clergy and school superintendents in all parts of the state, the accepted productions being advertised in many churches and schools.

Mrs. Carl F. White, of Topeka, who is vice-chairman of the combined organizations, has written to Goldwyn in praise of its productions, declaring that the Board of Review had quickly given its sanction to showing Kansas children the following pictures: "Polly of the Circus," "The Spreading Dawn," "Nearly Married," "The Beloved Traitor," "Dodging a Million," "Fields of Honor" and "The Cinderella Man."

Establishing a "Family Night" in every city was the initial step of the organization toward its goal—better films. The term "Family Night" indicates a night definitely set apart for the exhibition of a program selected for its wholesome atmosphere and live entertainment value for the entire family.

Blue Ridge Dramas Going Well.

The large number of inquiries received by General Film Company regarding the Blue Ridge Dramas is taken to indicate that the exhibitor desires keenly the type of virile pictures being produced as two-reel subjects by Ned Finley. Advance bookings for his "The Return of O'Garry," released this week, augur well for the success of the series and demonstrate that the man who made the name of O'Garry famous in Vitagraph releases is still enjoying the fruits of that reputation. The stories for the Blue Ridge Dramas are being written by Mrs. L. Case Russell, who has prepared a series of unusually strong stories featuring adventures and romance.

The second subject in the Blue Ridge Series will be released on April 20.

Scene from "Heart of the Sunset" (Goldwyn).

Capellani Stages Big Interiors in "Social Hypocrites"

THE setting used for the staging of "Social Hypocrites," May Allison's first Metro starring vehicle in her own right, are most elaborate and spacious. Albert Capellani directed this screen version of Alicia Ramsey's stage play, "Bridge," and planned and designed the sets in co-operation with Technical Director Edward J. Shulter.

"Social Hypocrites" is a story of English society life, and most of the action takes place in a large English mansion. The majority of the big situations occur in the parlor of the residence of Lady Mountstephen. In all over 150 scenes were taken in the big room. The settings occupied half the floor space of the studio, and was as massive as it was striking. The big fireplace gave forth a cheering atmosphere, with four-foot logs blazing merrily. The set was furnished and dressed with antiques mainly of the Elizabethan period. Director Capellani spent many days browsing in New York shops until he found just the properties that would give the rich settings the proper tone.

On the walls were hung coats of arms and suits of steel armor, while valuable tapestries and portieres adorned the doorways. An idea of the sumptuousness of the furnishings may be gained from the following extracts from the prop list: Elizabethan armchairs, bronze Charles I, English oak consol, one spinnet, Elizabethan inlaid mother of pearl cabinet, etc. The rugs used also give an excellent idea of the character of the mountings. The largest was an old rose rug 19 by 51.

The library of the mansion was in keeping with the parlor. Well filled book shelves lined the walls, and required the addition of several hundred volumes to the Metro property department. The hall was furnished in Italian marble with a magnificent fireplace as a prominent feature of the room. For the baccarat gambling scenes a typical parlor of chance was built, recalling in its appointments the Casino at Monte Carlo.

In order to present exteriors in keeping with the interiors the magnificent residence and estate of George McKesson Brown, a Wall Street broker, at Huntington, Long Island, were used.

Miss Pickford Speeding Up.

Mary Pickford is speeding up work on her newest Artcraft picture, which follows "M'liss," in order to be in readiness for the Third Liberty Loan campaign, which begins April 6. In order to be on the ground in time Miss Pickford will probably leave California about the first of April. She will have five of the largest Eastern cities to cover and will be gone probably a month on the drive for the Government, in which a number of the other greatest stars in the film firmament also will take part.

The new picture, under direction of William D. Taylor, is "How Could You, Jean?" a story by Eleanor Hoyt Brainerd. The scenario is by Frances Marion.

A strong cast will support the star, with Casson Ferguson in the juvenile lead.

Eliminating Inconsistencies

World Film Appoints Board of Five to Get After Anachronisms.

FOR the purpose of eliminating all the inconsistencies which wise film fans spot at once and which in many instances have marred big productions, put out by some of the country's biggest producers, all World-Pictures are now being checked up by a staff of five people before work on a picture is commenced.

It is realized by the World-Pictures executives that with the elimination of inconsistencies from all pictures—no matter by whom they are produced—that the entire industry will immediately assume a higher level in the eyes of the public. It is largely because of anachronisms and inconsistencies that the silent drama has not been received on the same high plane as the spoken drama and in blazing the trail in this particular line, World-Pictures is doing its bit in raising the standard of appreciation in which the public holds pictures.

Each little detail in a scenario is checked up by this board of four men and one woman before production is started, and as the scenes are taken and developed they are flashed on the screen in the World's private projection room for further checking up by the board.

Judge Browns Go in Montreal.

Exhibitors catering to children and young people are finding the Judge Brown Stories distributed by General Film Company a profitable and well worth while series, to judge by the experience of Proprietor Conover of the Imperial theater of Montreal. As the result of a request from the women of the city Exhibitor Conover has arranged to give a series of Saturday picture entertainments for children, the stories written and produced by Judge Willis Brown being given a place of prominence on these weekly programs.

"The Love Brokers" (Triangle).

New York's Bohemia has been picturized for "The Love Brokers," new Triangle drama, the second release on the Triangle March 31 schedule. This was formerly announced as the first feature of the week of April 7. Alma Rubens has the stellar role. Bryant Park, known as the Beaux Arts section of New York, provides the locale for this story, a screen adaptation of "Another Foolish Virgin," by W. Carey Wonderley, author of the recent Triangle social satire, "The Marriage Bubble."

"The Lion's Claws" Opened April 1 to Large Bookings

THE latest Universal serial, "The Lion's Claws," featuring Marie Walcamp, opened on April 1 with bookings to a larger percentage of theaters than ever have booked a "U" serial in the past. Universal's latest serial consists of eighteen episodes of two reels each, or thirty-six reels in all.

In promoting the sales campaign on "The Lion's Claws" the argument of constructive film rental has been used extensively by Universal salesmen, with the result that numerous houses which have been pushing the "double feature" program to attract business have decided to drop the extra feature and stick to serials instead.

Another assistance to the Universal salesmen was the fact that exhibitors throughout the country had an opportunity to see the first six reels of "The Lion's Claws" before being approached on a booking. This was made possible through the policy of the Universal Company deciding not to limit trade showings to exchange cities alone, but screening the first six reels whenever and wherever an exhibitor expressed a desire to see them.

In "The Lion's Claws" the work of Director Harvey has been favorably commented upon.

Miss Walcamp in the leading role of "The Lion's Claws" is surrounded by a well-balanced cast. This includes Edwin August, Ray Hanford, Thomas Lingham, Nigel De Bruilliere, Henry Von Meter, Rex De Roselli, Gertrude Astor, Alfred Allen, Frank Lanning, Charles Brindley, Sam Polo, Leonard Clapham, and Sam Appel.

The scenes of the serial are placed in wildest Africa.

Critics Praise "The Floor Below."

Mabel Normand's country-wide success in "Dodging a Million," which marked her first screen appearance after an absence from the cinema field of nearly two years, has been succeeded by another, newspaper critics everywhere agree. It is "The Floor Below," made by Goldwyn from the story by Elaine Sterne and directed by Clarence G. Badger. Without dissent the newspaper reviewers praise the work of the star and the excellence of the story.

Fox Talks of "The Spy"

Manufacturer Says Recent Arrests Prove Basis of His Espionage Drama Was Entirely Right.

PERSONS possessing powerful influence are making a strong effort to minimize the offences of the members of the German spy ring who are already under arrest, and particularly to save from official molestation several persons of prominence whose names have not yet figured publicly in the scandal," says the New York Herald, referring to recent arrests in New York.

"Insidious influences have been exerted at Washington to make it appear that the four persons are to be deported to France merely as undesirable citizens and that no one is involved with them in conspiracies to furnish important military secrets of the Allies to Germany.

"Nevertheless, Charles F. DeWoody, chief of the Department of Justice, Bureau of Investigation, declares that his investigations indicate other persons, several of them holding highly respected positions in the American social and financial world, are involved."

"Which only goes to prove," commented William Fox, "that while I am neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, the prognostications in my anti-German propaganda picture, 'The Spy,' to the effect that on the list of Prussian secret agents in America would be found many names of natives who had been lured by promises of titles and honors from the Imperial War Lord more than by monetary reasons.

"In this photoplay a typical New York clubman is inspired by the patriotism of the old Union League to go to Berlin and, by even bolder methods, secure for the American government a copy of this list of secret agents. I cannot state for a fact that this has been done, but evidently the authorities have taken a tip from this picture and have gone after other suspects besides those of German blood and names.

"'The Spy' was the first to expose in a picture this snare of the Kaiser's agents in America."

What's Going On at the Famous Players Plant

At the Fifty-fourth Street studio of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Elsie Ferguson has begun the production of "The Danger Mark," adapted from the novel by Robert W. Chambers. This subject is being produced under the personal direction of Hugh Ford, and will be released under the Artcraft trademark. Miss Ferguson again interprets an emotional role, as a society girl whose life is threatened with disaster through an inherited appetite for alcoholic drink.

The production of "Hit the Trail Holliday" for Artcraft is making considerable headway, and George M. Cohan, the star, and Marshall Neilan, the director, have found in each other kindred spirits. A refreshing atmosphere of good-fellowship prevails, and the casual observer would never know from appearances that a world-famous star and showman, whose brains and ability have brought him a tremendous fortune, and one of the most prominent and able directors were at work. Temperament and frills are taboo, and George and "Mickey" are both working with the idea in mind of making a "knockout" picture. The central character of Holliday, played by Cohan, is based on Billy Sunday.

Pauline Frederick has completed "Fedora" for Paramount release. It is said to be the most sensational picture Miss Frederick has yet appeared in. The principals are introduced in their magnificent homes in Russia, and later go to Monte Carlo and Paris, where they are shown in the midst of princely splendor. The scenario was written by Charles E. Whittaker, who says the play was easily adaptable to pictures.

Scene from "A Rich Man's Darling" (Bluebird).

"A Rich Man's Darling" (Bluebird).

"A Rich Man's Darling," featuring Louise Lovely, is the Bluebird offering for April 15. Harvey Gates, contributor of the story, has succeeded in striking a happy medium between society drama and melodrama in "A Rich Man's Darling," which revolves around a wealthy banker and an unscrupulous adventuress and numerous amusing but highly possible situations of mistaken identity in which a charming young dressmaker's assistant is taken for the human vampire.

Universal to Issue Boy Scout Subject

Universal will release on April 15 a five-week serial, two reels to an episode, "Boy Scouts to the Rescue" or "Aids of the Nation," to be booked under the auspices of the Boy Scouts of America, with its more than 400,000 members divided into 14,000 troops throughout the country.

"Boy Scouts to the Rescue" has been produced under the personal supervision of Sir Robert S. A. Baden-Powell, founder of the world's Boy Scout movement and chief scout of the British Boy Scouts.

The serial is a dramatic story with an interesting plot incidentally introducing in its action the work of the Boy Scouts in a manner that makes the picture of interest to every one, and it has a particular appeal to the 10,000,000 boys of scout age in the United States and their parents.

A special publicity bureau in co-operation with the Boy Scouts of America has been established by the Universal Film Company to handle this serial and work with exhibitors.

Advertising Campaign for Artcraft's "Blue Bird"

IN ADDITION to the big advertising and exploitation campaign now being conducted by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation on the new Artcraft special, "The Blue Bird," a gigantic direct-by-mail appeal to the public has been started. One of the most tremendous campaigns of its kind, this drive should bring about immediate returns to the exhibitors showing this production from Maeterlinck's world-famous masterpiece.

Thousands of appeals are now being sent out daily from the company's headquarters in New York to large and small communities throughout the country, going to the most influential people in every town. This mailing list includes names from the Official Register and Directory of Women's Clubs in America, county and town superintendents, presidents of boards of education and secretaries, city superintendents, principals of high schools, presidents, superintendents or other officials in all universities and colleges, preparatory schools, colleges for women and prep schools for girls, prep schools for boys, non-military and military, schools of education, normal and teachers' training, schools of theology, schools of music, schools of art, schools of elocution, oratory and dramatic art, private schools for the deaf and all librarians.

In its mail campaign, the distributors of this production bring out the particular timeliness of Maeterlinck's great message of happiness and directs its appeal to those who are desirous of seeing a "better" film.

Lesienko in Russian Art Film Leads Pathe April 14th

MME. NADYA LESIENKO in "The Busy Inn," a Russian Art drama; "The Whispering Wires of War," the sixth episode of "The House of Hate," and another rousing Harold Lloyd comedy head Pathe's program for April 14.

"The Busy Inn" is a strong Russian play of middle-class life, adapted for the screen from the drama by Alexander Ostrovsky, Russia's great playwright. The cast includes the well known N. I. Panoff and Madame Orlova. The play is rather unique for a Russian production, in that it has a happy ending.

Questions of vital interest concerning the maneuvers of vast armies are vividly answered in the graphic one-reel feature, "The Whispering Wires of War," showing the spectacular work of the telephone and wireless divisions of the United States Signal Corps in France. This interesting picture follows a detachment of Signal Corps experts from their camp in America to the great headquarters in France.

"A Live Target" is the title of the sixth episode of the exciting Pathe serial, "The House of Hate." This episode opens with the Hooded Terror overpowering Pearl Waldon, played by Pearl White, in the apartment of Harvey Gresham, played by Antonio Moreno.

"Pipe the Whiskers" is the name of Harold Lloyd's new one-reel comedy, produced by Rolin and released by Pathe. It is a masterpiece of fun and action which takes place in a "Muditorium," where the old boys can turn handsprings after one week's treatment.

Two most interesting split-reel Pathe colors for the week are "The Valley of the Dordogne" and "The Horse in Action."

Hearst-Pathe News Nos. 32 and 33 are released on this program.

Scene from "Treasure of the Sea" (Metro).

Edith Storey Plays Only Woman's Part in New Metro

A WOMAN hunting and fighting for gold who finds love is the dominating figure in "Treasure of the Sea," Edith Storey's newest starring vehicle in the Metro program following "The Claim," "Revenge," and "The Legion of Death." The picture is nearing completion at Metro's West Coast studios. Frank Reicher, who is directing Miss Storey in this strong drama of adventure and conflict, has just returned to Hollywood from Catalina Island, where many of the exteriors were filmed.

The athletic Metro star is supported in "Treasure of the Sea" by a cast of unusual excellence. Miss Storey's leading man is Lew Cody. The heavy, a swindling New York lawyer who follows the heroine West on her quest of a cargo of bullion aboard the wreck of an ancient trading ship, is played by Lewis Willoughby. The latter is a distinguished English actor who in "Treasure of the Sea" is making his first American appearance, and also his debut on the screen.

Miss Storey is not only the star, but the only woman in the production. Leighton Osmun, of the Metro scenario staff, is the author of her new Metro vehicle. He and Albert Shelby Le Vino adapted his original story to the screen.

Dot Farley, Vampiest Vamp.

"Bud" Duncan and "Kewpie" Morgan become desperate and sinfully wicked gunmen in "Rip Roaring Rivals," the second of the Clover Comedies being distributed by General Film Company. Dot Farley plays the role of Nifty Nell, "the vampiest vamp ever seen upon the streets of Lame Cow." She is hired to tame the two desperadoes or induce them to kill each other as a means of restoring the dove of peace in the municipality. Nifty Nell does her heart-breaking work and the fighters soon are engaged in a terrific combat not only for the hand of Nifty Nell, but for her eight children as well.

Miss Fischer to Wear Clothes.

Margarita Fischer will wear some beautiful gowns in her new picture, "A Square Deal," written by Albert Payson Terhune, and will throw all of her vivacity into the role of a girl from a comfortable, middle-class home in Brooklyn who marries a wealthy man and insists upon living in a hotel and spending all her time with friends who like to discuss things they call "The Higher Thought." It is a story with a real human appeal. The cast includes Jack Mower, Val Paul, Constance Johnson, L. M. Wells, and Nanine Wright.

Ray at Work on Patriotic Film.

So thoroughly convinced is Thomas H. Ince that the Paramount Picture upon which Charles Ray is now at work will be one of the most powerful arguments for patriotism, one of the strongest propaganda films, while yet retaining all the essentials of a photoplay, that he has wired President Wilson, appraising him of the nature of the picture, and pointing out its possibilities for service to the Government.

The picture will follow in order of release another that is yet uncompleted, which in turn succeeds on the Paramount list the film entitled "Playing the Game," the April 22 release.

Corporation Unique, Says W. W. Hodkinson

WITH the field full of co-operative plans and organizations the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation felt it necessary to show its branch managers in what essentials they are different from others. Quoting from a branch letter Mr. Hodkinson claims his corporation is entirely unique and holds a distinctive position, as follows:

"This unique position is that today the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation is the only national distributing organization in this industry entirely independent and free from producer or exhibitor control, which enables us to serve each of these factors with equal fairness and impartiality. Our prices and policies are not dictated by producers. Our freedom from exhibitor control on the other hand assures the producer of a fair deal from us and enables us to get the best product of the market on liberal terms.

"We are more than film distributors. We are co-ordinators, acting as a balancing factor between producer and exhibitor. From the former we secure the best product of his studio—not by enormous payments or advances, but on a fair working basis—and from the latter we simply ask a certain reasonable share of what our pictures will earn for him. The producer in turn will make his pictures to conform with the revenue which he receives from the exhibitor through us.

"We are free from enormous investments in new exchange offices, through our connection with General Film. We are not dragging along with heavy risks and losses which we must eventually pass on to the exhibitor. Free from these burdens we can give all of our energy to serving the exhibitor and through our savings sell him our product at a fair price.

"We differ from the other distributors in that we work with definite principles and policies which have never varied or changed during Mr. Hodkinson's ten years of experience and we are laying all of our plans mindful of the future, instead of working from day to day and changing our policies to suit each new condition as it arises."

Russell Story for Kitty Gordon.

L. Case Russell, who has written so many of the big successes in which Madame Petrova has starred, has just written a story for World-Pictures in which Kitty Gordon will star. This story bears the attractive title of "Merely Players." It will shortly be placed in work by World-Pictures and will be released on the regular World program during the coming summer.

Acceleration Boosts Jewel Subject to Ten Day Run

WITH the end of the run at the Rialto theater, Toronto, Canada, of the Jewel feature, "The Price of a Good Time" has terminated what Canadian showmen declare to be one of the most successful advertising campaigns ever used in conjunction with a moving picture in the Dominion.

One of the results of the Rialto campaign was the extension of the original run from one week to ten days. A more important result is the lesson it has taught the Canadian exhibitors in general regarding what can be accomplished when an effort is made to lift moving picture advertising out of the well-beaten rut.

The Rialto management traveled the usual advertising path so far as newspaper advertising, billboards, and heralds were concerned, with the exception of the fact that it used just twice as much of each of these mediums as is ordinarily purchased. The two Toronto Sunday papers carried striking ads, while the town was literally plastered with 24-sheets.

One of the remarkable features of this campaign was the co-operation given the Rialto theater by the management of the T. Eaton Company, the largest department store in Toronto, in the distribution of heralds. A representative who called upon the store officials was granted permission to walk through the establishment and place a herald into the hands of every one of the hundreds of employees. Since one of the most stringent rules of this establishment forbids the throwing of papers on the floor the heralds were pocketed and taken home. As the result the business done by the Rialto that evening broke all previous box office records.

People whose business required them to walk along Yonge street, "Toronto's Broadway," were not allowed to forget that "The Price of a Good Time" was being shown at the Rialto. Practically every vacant store had in its windows either a photo frame showing scenes in the production, or else window cards and one-sheets.

"The Night Riders" Nearing Completion

PRODUCTION of "The Night Riders," Viola Dana's starring vehicle following "Blue Jeans," "A Weaver of Dreams," and "Breakers Ahead," is rapidly nearing completion at Metro's West Coast studios. Despite the handicap of severe seasonal rains work has gone steadily on. Virtually all the big interiors have been shot, and the return of sunny weather has eanbled the star and her supporting cast to get in many valuable hours on location.

As Sally Castleton, a high-spirited daughter of the old South, Miss Dana is said to find in "The Night Riders" a stellar role of rare simplicity and charm. Scenes of the story are laid in the picturesque mountain regions of Kentucky, and, although the traditional feud basis of so many tales of the blue grass is absent, there is a strong love theme and an abundance of action.

George Cheseboro plays opposite Miss Dana in the character of Milt Derr, a chivalrous young mountaineer. Others in the strong cast are Clifford Bruce, Russell Simpson, Monte Blue, and Mabel Van Buren. Albert Shelby Le Vino, head of the scenario department at Metro's Hollywood plant, wrote the scenario from an original story by John Collins.

Typhoon Cooling Off New Orleans.

Exhibitors in New Orleans and vicinity are laying plans for a good hot weather business. In the past few weeks the Typhoon Fan Company has shipped several carloads of Typhoon cooling and ventilating apparatus to New Orleans. Another carload goes out this week.

Ernest Glantzberg, president and chief engineer of the company, is at present in New Orleans and he reports many houses in the New Orleans section lately equipped with Typhoons.

New Orleans is rapidly becoming known as the "Typhoon City." In all over seventy establishments in that city are now equipped with the Typhoon cooling and ventilating system.

"The Scarlet Drop" Comes April 22.

Harry Carey's production extraordinary, "The Scarlet Drop," a story of the backwoods of Kentucky where illicit stills used to be numerous and revenue officers infrequent, will be released by Special Attractions through the Universal exchanges on April 22.

The story is by Jack Ford, and is directed by him from the scenario by George Hively, and supported by an evenly balanced and capable cast consisting of Harry Carey, Vesta Pegg, Molly Malone, Betty Schade, M. K. Wilson, Matha Mattok, and Steve Clemento.

Scene from "The Richest Girl" (Mutual).

Ann Murdock's "The Richest Girl" Leads Mutual April 8

ANN MURDOCK in "The Richest Girl" is announced for release April 8 by Mutual. The production was made at the Empire All Star studios under the direction of Albert Capellani. It is a comedy of the type which has made Miss Murdock a Broadway star in Frohman plays.

The story of the play concerns itself with the rather pink situations in which Benjamine Downey, the daughter of a chocolate baron, is forced when her new touring car gets stalled in front of the cottage of a handsome bachelor's cottage in the environs of New York, and she accepts the hospitality of the bachelor for the night. The bachelor is entertaining an artist friend of his, and they both view with alarm the consequences should the bachelor's fiancee, who is expected, arrive.

While the play contains many delicate situations, they are handled in a thoroughly artistic manner by a superb cast. David Powell, who has played the lead in many of Miss Murdock's productions, is cast as the young bachelor. Paul Capellani does admirable work as the artist; Herbert Ayling and Charles Wellesley also are in the cast.

Screen Telegram will be released April 10 and 14.

The Strand Comedy, starring Billie Rhodes, is scheduled for release April 9. "For Art's Sake" is the title of the comedy.

World Gives Directors a Treasurer.

In the further interests of bigger and better pictures and the giving of exhibitors the greatest possible box office value for the money they pay in rentals for World-Pictures, a change has just been put into effect by World-Pictures whereby World directors will hereafter confine their entire activities to directing and not intermingle bookkeeping and the work of a cashier with direction. Instead of having the directors, when on location and at the studio, determine upon the sums to be expended in filming a picture and do all the details essential to the expenditures, World-Pictures has found it much more efficient to appoint a treasurer for each production who will accompany the director to location and assume entire charge of all expenditures. In this way the director will not be bothered with business details, but will devote his entire attention to directing the picture.

Norma Talmadge Back East.

Norma Talmadge, the Select star, has returned from her flying trip to California, during which she made a visit to her mother and two sisters, all of whom are at present residing in the West. The return was the signal for resumption of work on "De Luxe Annie," the screen presentation of Scammon Lockwood's successful stage play of the present season, which, following its New York run, has been on tour of the larger cities. At the Talmadge studios in East Forty-eighth street the filming of the play is now progressing.

For this production Norma Talmadge has a new director. Roland West, formerly manager of the Talmadge studios, is in charge of this picture. Miss Talmadge is again supported by Eugene O'Brien.

From Hydroplane Brady Photographs Bombed Balloon

IN "Stolen Orders," William A. Brady's spectacular film production based on the Drury Lane melodrama "Sealed Orders," are several scenes which show a big balloon somewhere over the Atlantic. These scenes depict an attempt at flight from a desolate spot somewhere on the Atlantic Coast of an enemy secret agent, personated by Montague Love. The balloon —one of the largest in the country and capable of long distance journeyings with as many as four passengers—is his means of escape. A series of exciting episodes in connection with this flight—including a fight in the basket of the balloon—the fall of the fighters into the ocean hundreds of feet below, and the shelling and final demolition of the big sausage by anti-aircraft guns on the shore, were caught by a battalion of cameras and probably will thrill many a picturegoer. And the thrills experienced by the audiences which see "Stolen Orders" will compare with those experienced by the thousands engaged at one time and another in its production.

Mr. Brady, for one, will long remember the balloon episodes. During the filming of these scenes and when the balloon was high in the air, the advisability of having a camera above the huge gas-filled bag to shoot down and catch at close range the action in the basket, became apparent. A hydroplane, which a few minutes later was to figure in the story, was handy, and with it an aviator. But there arose immediately the question as to which of the cameramen would go up. No one stepped forward to volunteer—and there came a sudden silence. Mr. Brady, on the ground, sensed the situation. Time and light were fleeting and necessity great. Mr. Brady grabbed a nearby camera, stepped into the vacant seat beside the hydroplanist and a few moments later was in the air above the balloon. The result you will see in "Stolen Orders," which in addition to enlisting the services of its producer as a high-flying cameraman enlisted those of six stars—Kitty Gordon, Carlyle Blackwell, Montagu Love, June Elvidge, George MacQuarrie and Madge Evans, to interpret its stirring story.

Scene from "The Honor of His House" (Paramount).

Big Shipwreck Scene in Paramount-Hayakawa Picture

IN "The Honor of His House," the next Paramount picture starring Sessue Hayakawa, there is a big shipwreck scene. Sessue Hayakawa, who plays the part of a famous Japanese scientist, is washed ashore with Florence Vidor, who plays the part of Lora Horning, a beautiful outcast.

The day selected for the scene was unusually cold for Southern California, and the wind was ripping across the so-called Pacific Ocean in a way that made the famous sheet of water belie its name. Nothing daunted, the Japanese actor entered the breakers with true Oriental stoicism, followed by Miss Vidor. Clinging to a log, the two players were washed ashore by a succession of combers, which broke over their heads and landed them, dripping, shivering, and gasping, on the white sand,

"The Honor of His House" is an unusually enthralling story of love and intrigue, with a background of scientific interest. Sessue Hayakawa as Count Onato, a wealthy Japanese scientist, enacts a role that makes the utmost demands on his dramatic ability. He is given excellent support. Director William C. DeMille's work has called forth much praise, and the camera work of Charles Rocher is noteworthy. Both the story and the scenario were done by Marian Fairfax.

Constance Talmage Takes a Vacation

CONSTANCE TALMADGE, the Select star, is resting from her labors. During the period that she has been in the West Miss Talmadge has made three features.

These are "The Shuttle," "Up the Road With Sallie," and "Good Night, Paul," a mirthful adaptation of the musical comedy stage success of the same name, directed by Walter Edwards.

Constance Talmadge.

Dog, Cat and Baby in Sennett Film.

Teddy, the big Dane dog, and Pepper, the cat, both of whom have become famous in Paramount-Mack Sennett comedies, play important parts in the Sennett picture, "Friend Husband." In the course of the comedy Teddy is said to present a melodramatic thrill all by himself in a scene which alone would make this picture exceptional. Pepper also comes in for a share of the honors when he, she or it is set to entertain a baby and accomplishes this feat without any difficulty.

It is expected that this comedy will have a particularly strong appeal to women in view of the innocent character of the story, the "cute" actions of the babies, and the remarkable sagacity displayed by the animals. Besides Wayland Trask and Charles Murray, prominent parts are played by Mary Thurman, Gene Rogers, Harry Gribbon, Earl Kenton and Laura La Varnie.

$500,000 Cast in "Masks and Faces."

The salary list of "Masks and Faces" with Sir Johnston Forbes Robertson and a cast including fifty of the best known actors and stars of the English stage, a World Picture release set for May 6, if produced by private individuals, would pass the half million dollar mark. As this picture was made for the purpose of endowing a fund for the orphans of English actors killed in the war and these stars contributed their services, it is possible for American exhibitors to secure this picture on the regular program without any additional payment, either in the shape of a bonus or percentage of the gross receipts.

Large Interiors in Minter Picture.

In the current Mary Miles Minter feature, "The Greater Call," now being produced at the American Film Company studio in Santa Barbara, will be shown two interiors that will greatly interest.

One is that of a church, and the other the interior of a theater, with the play on. Both are real, permission to use the church edifice and theater being obtained at considerable expense. Lights from the studio were installed, a full congregation and audience secured, and the necessary scenes taken. The results as seen on the screen fully justify the expense and trouble.

"Shame" Goes Well on Coast.

"Shame," the John W. Noble seven-part production released by General Film Company, is scoring a success as a high class attraction on the West Coast, according to H. W. Schmidt, branch manager at San Francisco. Many important bookings have been obtained in the last few days, and new contracts are being obtained daily.

The Strand theater at San Francisco has arranged to show "Shame" for a week, while the Liberty theater at Sacramento has contracted for a four days' showing.

Three Paralta-Barriscales Are Now Awaiting Release

BESSIE BARRISCALE heads the list of Paralta stars from the standpoint of quantity of production. Already Miss Barriscale has completed five seven-reel features, and is working on a sixth. Two of these—"Madam Who" and "Within the Cup"—have already been released and are doing excellent business all over the country. Miss Barriscale's productions, which are awaiting their turns for release from the Paralta offices, are "Blindfolded," "Maid o' the Storm" and "Rose o' Paradise." They are elaborate productions, enacted with strong supporting casts for the star, and each is of a nature differing entirely from the other, yet presenting characterizations appropriate for Miss Barriscale's personality and versatility.

"Blindfolded" is an unusual story of the underworld, and stands out as an example of excellent direction. There is a series of interior scenes, taken in absolute darkness with but flashes of light to reveal the action, which build up a suspense more tense and thrilling than in any screen play ever made by Paralta. This picture was directed by Raymond B. West from the story by E. Richard Schayer. Mr. West is also responsible for the direction of "Maid o' the Storm," which is a story laid in Scotland, in which Miss Barriscale's impersonation commences as a fishergirl waif and transforms to a prima donna in London opera. The story was written by J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton. "Rose o' Paradise" is an elaborate screen version of the novel by Grace Miller White, and was staged under the direction of James Young.

Miss Barriscale is now engaged in the filming of a sensational patriotic drama, to be entitled "Patriotism." She is also being directed in this by Raymond B. West, and the story is from the pens of Jane Holly and R. B. Kidd. Many of the scenes in this picture will be laid in Scotland, but they are of a completely different nature from those presented in "Maid o' the Storm."

Cavalieri Starred in "Gismonda."

Lina Cavalieri has begun the production of a sensational and spectacular production of "Gismonda," the Sardou play in which Sarah Bernhardt won fame, according to an announcement of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. The scenes are being taken at the Fort Lee, N. J., studio, and when completed the picture will be released under the Paramount trademark.

John Emerson Sees "The Blue Bird"

Projection Takes Place in Hospital Following Successful Operation for Removal of Director's Spleen.

JOHN EMERSON, the well known director associated with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, was operated upon March 21 at the Post Graduate Hospital in New York City for splenic anaemia, the entire spleen having been removed. The operation, which is an unusual and delicate one, was performed with entire success, and Mr. Emerson is assured a rapid and complete recovery.

Shortly after his operation, Jesse L. Lasky prepared a fitting surprise for the noted director by arranging for the showing of the new Artcraft special release, "The Blue Bird," adapted from Maeterlinck's famous classic of good cheer.

With the co-operation of S. L. Rothapfel, a projection machine, screen and operator were installed at the hospital, where, to the great delight of the invalid, this production was run off.

Mr. Emerson will take a rest of from ten days to two weeks.

Walthall, New-Fangled Cowboy.

A new way for a cowboy to arrive and shoot up a town is shown in Henry B. Walthall's forthcoming Paralta Play, "With Hoops of Steel," which has just been finished under the direction of Eliot Howe. The old idea of a rip-roaring entrance on pinto ponies has given way in the picture to a new form of western "Cloud-burst"—noisier, faster and with less regard for consequences than any mere horseback arrival. In "With Hoops of Steel" this cowboy arrives to shoot up the town arrayed in all the picturesque costume that has endeared the cowboy to the hearts of the public, but instead of arriving on a horse he comes on a motorcycle.

The spitting, roaring motorcycle, tearing down the street at full speed, the exhaust of the motor accompanied by the reports of the rider's six-shooter, is something new in pictures, in fact, when the mad rider comes into town it surprises the other cowboys fully as much as it will the audience. There is a general stampede; but curiosity gets the better of them, and they return to inspect the strange, new contrivance.

"Heart of the Sunset" (Goldwyn).

The absorbing and thrilling Rex Beach story "Heart of the Sunset"—a melodramatic romance of the great American Southwest in the not far gone days when Uncle Sam, angered almost beyond patience, stepped into Vera Cruz and with a fleet of dreadnoughts to back him up, took nagging Mexico by the back of the neck and shook it—is shortly to be released by Goldwyn.

"Heart of the Sunset," called Rex Beach's most powerful story, is not a tale of warfare. Rather is it a fascinating romance of the borderland woven with that skill for which the author is famous, around the lives and love of two creatures widely separated by station and environment.

Current Events Shows Launchings.

What America is doing in the way of shipbuilding to defeat submarine warfare is aptly illustrated in Universal Current Events No. 46. The pictures show the triple launching of 9,000 ton steel cargo steamers at San Francisco, Cal., the steel plate for the next ship to be built being slipped into place the instant the completed hull leaves the ways. The titles give some figures on shipping losses, explaining that if America's shipbuilding program is lived up to the United States alone will launch more vessels in 1918 than the Kaiser's submarines sank of all nations combined in 1917. The launching of a huge wooden steamship at Kearny, N. J., concludes the subject.

Scene from "Purple Lily" (World).

Essanay Preparing for Big Feature "Young America"

ESSANAY now is engaged in the preparation of its next feature production, "Young America." George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, purchased the rights for this play from Cohan and Harris and it has already been put into scenario form by Essanay's staff of writers. Director Berthelet has almost completed his plans for interior art decorations and settings. Scouts are out seeking ideal locations for the exterior scenes.

Mr. Spoor has a representative in New York looking for a suitable cast. This is in connection with his new policy of picking the cast specifically to fit the picture, instead of relying altogether on stock company players. This same policy was largely adhered to in "Ruggles of Red Gap" and in "A Pair of Sixes."

In the former Frederick Burton and Lawrence D'Orsay were engaged to play the leading roles in support of Taylor Holmes, while several minor characters were also supplied by talent outside the Essanay studios. In "A Pair of Sixes" Maude Eburne, Alice Mann, Robert Conness and others were engaged to play with Mr. Holmes.

In "Young America" practically the entire cast will be picked from players from New York, with possible additions of minor players from Chicago. It is aimed to get the exact type of player to suit the various roles.

In this way Mr. Spoor believes he will be enabled to produce a picture strong in every part and comprising a more harmonious whole, because of the wide field of players to choose from as against the limited number of a stock company.

The play was written by Fred Ballard and had a highly successful run on Broadway, as also in other cities. It is believed that it will make a superior screen production. Work is being rushed on this play and it is expected to release it shortly through the Kleine exchanges.

Other productions are also being got under way, including "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," which in all probability will be the release following "Young America," although several other plays, of which Essanay holds the picture rights, are being considered as a following release.

The latest of the Taylor Holmes features, "A Pair of Sixes," which is released through the George Kleine system, April 1, is booking rapidly. This is held by critics to the funniest of all the Holmes comedies. Large downtown theaters in practically all the cities of the country have arranged bookings according to reports of the Kleine offices. The picture was adapted from the stage play by Edward Peple and is in seven parts.

The feature release following this will be a Chaplin Jingle, entitled "Chase Me, Charlie." This is a British version of Charlie Chaplin's funniest films and is taken from the Essanay Chaplin comedies. The titles are in jingle form and the scenes from the various Chaplin comedies together with the titles dovetail to form a complete new story with the funniest and snappiest of the Chaplin scenes. It is in five parts and is released April 6.

"The Ordeal of Rosetta" (Select).

Alice Brady, Select star, has just completed filming "The Ordeal of Rosetta," in which her versatility is given full expression in the dual role of the twin sisters, Rosetta and Lola, respectively the heroine and villainess of the story. An earthquake in the little Sicilian town of Cantonia, where the girls live with their father, separates them. Rosetta comes to New York with her aged parent and becomes a stenographer and later the secretary of a successful novelist. Lola becomes an adventuress and drifts to South America. Later she, too, comes to New York, and the tangling threads of fate involve the sisters in a web of circumstances that furnish the ordeal from which Rosetta emerges victorious at last.

Alice Brady's leading man for "The Ordeal of Rosetta" was Crauford Kent, who needs no introduction to film audiences; others in the cast include Ormi Hawley, Maude Turner Gordon, Henry Leoni and Hazel Washburn.

"The Lie" Next Ferguson Subject.

The sacrifice by a young woman of her happiness to save the honor of her family, threatened by the act of her erring sister, forms the basis of "The Lie," the Artcraft picture starring Elsie Ferguson which will be released on April 8. The play was written by Sir Henry Arthur Jones, and after winning marked success in London was produced in New York City, where it enjoyed a long run. "The Lie" was staged under the direction of J. Searle Dawley, from a scenario by Charles Maigne.

Pathe Has Six Months' Supply of Feature Productions

UNDER the direction of Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, the distributing company will continue to release features, according to an important announcement from that concern this week. Pathe plans call for bigger features than ever before, it is stated. When asked for information as to his intentions concerning this part of his releasing schedule, Mr. Brunet said:

Robert Thornby, Bessie Love's Director, Showing "The Little Sister of Everybody" Where She Gets Off.

"Favorable as has been the reception accorded our recent features we want to do even better and will let nothing stand in the way of our obtaining this object. We feel that the producing arrangements can be improved to give us still higher quality. To this end Mr. Zecca, literally one of the fathers of the motion picture, has come to us in America as director general of productions. We are going to make Pathe still stronger with the aim that more and more producers of good pictures will look to us for distribution."

In connection with Mr. Brunet's statement, it has become known that Pathe has either on its shelves or practically completed at one or the other of its producing company's studios a supply of quality features for the next six months. Among these pictures are Fannie Ward in "The Yellow Ticket," "A Japanese Nightingale" and "The Narrow Path"; Frank Keenan in "The Bells" and "More Trouble"; Bryant Washburn in "The Range Rider," "Kidder & Ko" and "In Wrong"; Bessie Love in "A Little Sister of Everybody," "How Could You, Caroline?" and "Carolyn of the Corners"; Irene Castle in "The First Law" and "The Girl from Bohemia"; Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale in "Annexing Bill," "For Sale" and "Waifs"; Baby Marie Osborne in "Dolly Does Her Bit," "The Soul of a Child" and "The Evidence."

It is expected this list will be augmented by the taking over of several big productions by Pathe and a realignment of its affiliated producing companies.

"THE HORSE IN ACTION" POPULAR PATHE FILM.

To many motion picture fans one of the most popular films of the year was a short Pathe release entitled "The Horse in Action," which was shown some weeks ago. Part two of this analysis of motion, also entitled "The Horse in Action," will be released by Pathe in a short time.

These pictures are Pathe-colored and are taken with an ultra-rapid camera, the pictures of which record the action slowed to eight times less the normal speed. They depict in an interesting manner the actual movements of the horse going over hurdles and making other jumps. The successive steps of the horse's forelegs followed almost simultaneously by a similar action of the hind legs show in the film what the naked eye fails to discover.

The audiences at the New York Strand theater have been particularly enthusiastic over these pictures, and in the theaters where they have been shown artists and others interested in the study of movements just as they are have gone to see them two or three times while they were being shown.

Much Territory Open for Fisher Cartoons

FOLLOWING the widespread announcement by William Fox, through trade papers and other mediums, of the conclusion of a contract with Bud Fisher for world-wide distribution of Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons, there has developed, according to Mr. Fox, a lively contest for foreign territory.

The Fox Film Corporation is the only American producing concern of its kind that has made a really definite movement toward the establishment of a globe-encircling chain of offices under New York management. The company books its pictures in most foreign countries through its own agencies. Knowledge of this fact, however, did not deter foreign rights interests from attempting to secure exclusive territory.

In order to clear up the question of open territory for the benefit of subscribers and readers in foreign lands and those dealing in foreign rights, Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox company, announced that considerable foreign territory remains open or now is the subject of negotiations.

"We cannot promise, of course," said Mr. Sheehan, "that any particular country will not be sold by the time this is published. We are getting inquiries all the time, and contracts are being closed daily, but as matters stand just now there is some good territory remaining in Central and South America, some in Europe, and some scattered through various other parts of the globe.

"Mexico," for instance, has not yet been disposed of, and neither have the Central American countries. In South America we have Chile, Peru and Bolivia available. Probably the biggest opportunity, however, exists in Europe. France, Belgium, Russia, Holland, Spain and Portugal, Switzerland, Italy, Greece and the Balkan States can all be obtained. These latter countries will be especially interested in the animated cartoons because Bud Fisher now is a captain of artillery in the army of the Allies and his drawings will deal largely in the future with life at the front.

"There also will be lively interest in the announcement that we are prepared to sell the Mutt and Jeff rights for the Philippine Islands. China, India, the Dutch East Indies, Egypt and South Africa likewise are on our open list."

Beautiful Location for Fox Picture.

One of the most beautiful locations in California was used in making the new William Fox play, "The Bride of Fear," which has just been completed, with Jewel Carmen in the leading role. Hitherto this location has never been seen on the screen, for it is a private club property which has been closed, except to a few members, for a long time.

"The Bride of Fear" was written by Bennett Cohen and directed by S. A. Franklin. Miss Carmen is surrounded with an excellent cast.

Nor Soup Nor Fish Impede the Frolicking Fairbanks

THE completion of "Mr. Fix-It" marks the eighth picture produced by Douglas Fairbanks for Artcraft. It follows "Headin' South" and will be released on April 22. As "Mr. Fix-It" Fairbanks is a regular fixer of human hearts, emotions and happiness, and although he appears in "soup and fish" the opportunities afforded him for the display of his athletic stunts are plentiful. "Mr. Fix-It" is a smiling young man, bubbling over with good humor and geniality, whose pet theory is that happiness is a mighty good habit which everybody can acquire if they desire it.

Fairbanks' chief director, Allan Dwan, wrote the scenario and directed the production, in which a large cast appears. A unique feature is the fact that three leading women appear in the photoplay. They are Wanda Hawley, Marjorie Daw and Catherine MacDonald. Other well-known players are Leslie Stuart, Ida Waterman, Alice Smith, Mrs. H. R. Hancock, Frank Campeau, Fred Goodwin and Margaret Landis.

It is said there is a remarkable slum scene, in which Fairbanks rescues a girl from the clutches of a crowd of gangsters after a desperate battle and goes down the side of a house on a clothesline. When he is headed off on the street he utilizes a swaying election banner to gain the other side of the street, and swings himself to the ground from window to window.

Fairbanks has been repeatedly referred to as the great exponent of Americanism by newspaper and magazine writers. In his pictures he usually endeavors to implant a moral lesson, and in "Mr. Fix-It" he proves that happiness is within the reach of all, and that it may be obtained by lending one's best efforts to laugh at trouble and, incidentally, to afford happiness to neighbors.

"Fate Decides" Will Follow Nazimova's "Revelation"

MME. NAZIMOVA, in consultation with Richard A. Rowland, Metro's president, and Maxwell Karger, studio supervisor, has decided upon the title for her second production de luxe, the gypsy drama which will follow "Revelation." The seven-act feature, which will have an early release, will be entitled "Fate Decides." The production was directed by George D. Baker. June Mathis is the author of the scenario.

Many other titles were suggested for the gypsy picture, but "Fate Decides" was selected as being strongest, most appropriate, and most in keeping with the central theme of the story, in which the power of destiny is skillfully emphasized.

In this picture, the Russian actress plays the part of a gypsy princess with a fiery, untrammeled nature of that picturesque race. Love and hate are almost equally developed in the gypsy girl, Azah, who is made the instrument of fate to bring justice to Bruce Griswold. Her life in the gypsy encampment, and in the caravan of her tribe, is depicted in a fascinating manner, and gypsy rites and customs are reproduced.

Mme. Nazimova was of great aid to Director Baker in staging many of these quaint incidents, as she made a special study of the "zingari" in Europe. A fire festival and dance of the young maidens forms one of the most charming incidents in this multiple-reel feature. Those who have delighted in the antics of Nazimova in the scenes of "Revelation" where she impersonates a saucy boy will be especially interested in her pranks as the gypsy girl in "Fate Decides."

Charles Bryant is leading man. Irving Cummings, Edward J. Connolly, Dodson Mitchell, Frank Currier and Nila Mac are in the supporting cast.

Four Keystones for April

"Mr. Briggs Closes the House" is the First Release.

COMEDY production has continued steadily at the Culver City studios, and four two-reelers, recently completed, are listed for April release on the Triangle card. Several innovations are apparent on the program. "Mr. Briggs Closes the House," the first feature of the month, is a deviation from the usual type of comedy. Mrs. Kate Corbaley wrote the story. Exceptionally good casts have been selected for the forthcoming features and many players from the dramatic end of the lot will make their appearance in comedy roles. Fritzie Ridgeway, Myrtle Rishell, Jack Livingston, Jack Richardson, Lillian West and May Walters are among the temporary deserters who will be seen in future Keystone productions.

Charles Mortimer Peck, well-known writer, who has recently joined the Triangle scenario staff, adapted Mrs. Kate Corbaley's comedy for the screen. "Mr. Briggs Closes the House," April 7 release, deals with the comedies and errors of domestic life. William Beaudine directed. In the cast are Edwin Brady, Myrtle Rishell, Anna Dodge, Fred Mack and Frank Caffrey.

Working with Director Herman Raymaker in "First Aid," on the April 14 program, are William Franey, Maud Wayne, Diana Carrillo, twelve-year-old Burwell Hamrick and Myrtle Reeves. Mrs. Howard (Maud Wayne) is a "First Aid Fiend." She spends her time at the Red Cross meetings learning how to bandage the injured. That is why she tries to drag Mr. Howard to a first aid demonstration, and not succeeding, decides to have one of her own.

"Their Neighbor's Baby" is the comedy release for the week of April 21. In the cast are Fritzie Ridgeway, Rae Godfrey, Ray Griffith and Charles Dorian, Josey Jacobs, Little Barbara Connelly, who appeared in "Little Red Decides," and several other children.

"Mr. Miller's Economics" is the fourth and concluding comedy of the month. Edward Brady and Charles Dorian are the featured players.

Pathe to Release Tank Film.

Path is adding to its reputation as being the successful releaser of war pictures in a two-reel feature called "Our Fighting Ally—the Tank," which will be released on an early program. The Official Government Pictures, Inc., which distributes the British war pictures in America, made the picture, most of the pictures of which were taken at Camp Dix, N. J. Interesting details of the tank are given. The fact that the British tank is merely a development of the American caterpillar tractor is brought out when the caterpillar tractor is shown cultivating the fields of America to feed the Allies, while the tank is fighting actively on the fields of France. The men of the National army being trained at Camp Dix are shown in conjunction with the tank. They are being trained to co-ordinate their efforts with that of the war monster.

Peggy Hyland Goes to Charleston.

A large company of William Fox photoplayers, headed by Peggy Hyland, has left for Charleston, S. C., and at this very moment is probably "shooting" scenes on the Atlantic. The subject is to be released under the title of "Peg of the Pirates."

A. A. C. Lund is in charge of the direction. In the cast are Sidney Mason, Eric Mayne, Frank Evans, L. Wolheim, Ajax Carroll and Carlton Macy.

Select Cast for "Brave and Bold."

George Walsh's special feature has just been titled "Brave and Bold." Prominent in the support are Regina Quinn, Dan Mason, Francis X. Conlon and Mabel Bunyea.

Scene from "Billy's Babies" (Goldwyn).

Variety With a Large V in Fox's April Productions

THE April releases of the Fox Film Corporation include two Standard plays, four special features, two Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons and one Sunshine comedy.

Of the Standard plays, "The Soul of Buddha" is a Theda Bara super-production, featuring her as a half-caste Indian girl. The star is first shown as a sacred dancer sworn to the worship of Buddha. The picture was directed by J. Gordon Edwards.

"The Blindness of Divorce," the other Standard Picture release, was written and directed by Frank Lloyd. It is played by an all-star cast, prominent among whom are Bertha Mann, Charles Clary, Rhea Mitchell and Bertram Grassby.

Jewel Carmen in "The Bride of Fear," a Fox special feature, portrays the part of a young girl, discouraged in her attempt to make a way for herself in a great city, who is saved from suicide by a crook. The play was written by Bennett Cohen and directed by S. A. Franklin.

"American Buds" features the Fox "Baby Grands," Jane and Katherine Lee, in a sparkling romantic drama in which the two children are seen as inmates of a poor farm. The play was written and staged by Kenean Buel. Prominent among the support of the Lee children are Albert Gran, Regina Quinn, Lucille Satterthwaite, Leslie Austin, H. D. Southard and Nora Cecil.

Tom Mix has an uproarious comedy in "Western Blood." The play is something quite different from what Mix has been accustomed to appear in because it features him and his cowpuncher friends in dress suits. Mix's leading woman in "Western Blood" is Victoria Ford. The story was written by Tom Mix himself, and the acting was directed by Lynn Reynolds.

George Scarborough's thrilling drama, "Her One Mistake," is the April special feature written for Gladys Brockwell. In this play the star again brings to the screen a dual role. The drama was staged by Edward Le Saint. Supporting Miss Brockwell are William Scott, William Louis, Charles Perley and other prominent screen players.

The Henry Lehrman Sunshine comedy scheduled for release in April is "A Waiter's Wasted Life."

Mutt and Jeff, Captain Bud Fisher's famous cartoon characters, recently adapted by William Fox, will disport themselves in two April releases. One is "The Freight Investigation" and the other is "The Leak."

"A Pigskin Hero" First Star Comedy.

The first of the Lyons-Moran Star Comedies will be released by Universal on April 8 under the title "A Pigskin Hero," which is said to be one of the best efforts of Captain Leslie T. Peacock, scenario writer for the two well-known comedians.

In "A Pigskin Hero," which is the first of twelve comedies already completed under the new brand "Star Comedies," Lyons and Moran create an entirely new style with the assistance of their leading woman, Edith Roberts. Experts at Universal headquarters who have seen several of the new comedies declare that the comedians are destined to be more popular in them than they have been in the productions they have worked in for Universal for the last five years.

Hughie Is Some Riot Himself.

Rural chickens and Broadway chickens, pigs, cows and every other variety of the barnyard family are used in the two-reel L-Ko comedy release of April 22, featuring Gale Henry, with a cast consisting of Hughie Mack, Dave Morris and Catherine Young. The comedy has been aptly named "A Rural Riot," which it is, from beginning to end, visualizing as it does the woman's bank—her stocking; the farmer's bank—his stove; the burglars, who, wise to the world, steal the hot stove and get away with it.

Gale Henry and Hughie Mack are sweethearts in this comedy, and Hughie shows the extent to which a fat man may go in his love.

Thrills in New Pathe Serial.

Thrills in plenty are promised in "The Wolf-faced Man," the Pathe serial being filmed by the Diando Film Company in California. The story of this serial is from the pens of W. A. S. Douglas and Lucien Hubbard.

A cattle stampede, a wild ride down a mountain side in a flume and hairbreadth escapes on the edge of cliffs and in quicksand are only a few of the thrills which George Larkin, who will play the leading part in this serial, will have to experience.

Announcing

D. W. GRIFFITH'S

THIRD AND GREATEST TRIUMPH

HEARTS OF THE WORLD

THE SWEETEST LOVE STORY EVER TOLD

The one play you have awaited with bated breath—that the foremost of all screen producers has been engaged upon on the West Front for the past eighteen months—is complete—it is now playing to more than capacity at Clune's Auditorium in Los Angeles, California—third week.

PARTICULARS LATER

Trade News Brevities

Trimont Film Is a New Boston Corporation

State Rights Exchange Opens Offices at 12 Piedmont Street—Many Exhibitor Guests Present—Company's First Picture Run Off

By Robert N. Howe, 80 Summer Street, Boston, Mass.

BOSTON, MASS.—A new state rights organization to open a full-fledged exchange in Boston is the Trimont Film Corporation which has a fine new exchange at 12 Piedmont street. The office is under the management of D. H. Brand, a well known moving picture man.

The opening of the new quarters was the object of a celebration in which scores of exhibitors from all parts of New England took part. It was a most enjoyable affair. Mr. Brand had a special luncheon served to the guests and they inspected the new quarters and witnessed a run-off of "Corruption," the first picture to be handled by the organization in this territory.

The Trimont exchange is very conveniently located in the heart of Filmland city and is thoroughly up-to-date. On the ground floor are the general offices with a private office for Manager Brand. The exhibition room is on the second floor.

Asks Boy Scouts to See Opening of "Eagle's Eye."

Everett, Mass.—A. A. Lionais, manager of the Home theater, has invited all the Boy Scouts of the city to attend the opening showing of "The Eagle's Eye."

Samuel Rubenstein Gets Foursquare Appointment.

Samuel Rubenstein, formerly assistant manager of the Federal Film Corporation of Boston, has been appointed manager of the Four Square Film Corporation of Philadelphia.

E. J. Eberhardt Will Look After the Owl.

Lowell, Mass.—Julius Meyer, owner of the Owl theater, announces a change in management. E. J. Eberhardt, manager of the Stoneham theater in Stoneham, has been appointed manager of the theater. Mr. Eberhardt was formerly connected with the Ioca theater in Exeter, New Hampshire, and the Premier theater in Newburyport, Mass.

Arthur Selma to Manage Strand.

Lowell, Mass.—Arthur Selma, formerly connected with various booking agencies in Boston, has been made local manager of the Strand theater in this city. He will serve under the direction of Thomas D. Soriero, general manager of the Park theater in Boston and the Strand theater in this city. James Carroll, former manager of the Strand, has gone to Washington, D. C., as manager of the Poli theater there.

"Kaiser" Will Stay a Long, Long Time.

So great has been the attendance at the Globe theater at the run of 'The Kaiser—The Beast of Berlin" that the original two weeks' run has been extended into a month. If it can be arranged, the film may remain indefinitely. The New England rights to the picture are held by the American Feature Film corporation of which Louis B. Mayer is the head.

Several companies have started touring New England with the film and big business is reported in all directions. On the week of April 1, the picture is being shown as follows: Colonial, Lawrence, Mass.; Academy of Music, Fall River, Mass.; Broadway, Everett, Mass., and the Owl at Holyoke, Mass. On the week of April 8: Suffolk, Holyoke, Mass., and the Opera House, Providence, R. I.

Canadian War Pictures in Boston.

The very latest Canadian war pictures are being shown at the former Beacon department store under the auspices of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in the campaign to urge war workers to greater efforts and to drive home to New England the fact that the United States and her allies depend upon the war work accomplished in this part of the country.

The Canadian pictures were sent to Boston by the Canadian war department and are the latest and most thrilling war pictures yet produced. There were also shown relics of the numerous engagements in which the Canadian regiments participated.

E. R. Daniels Goes to Worcester.

Lynn, Mass.—E. R. Daniels, manager of the Dreamland theater in Lynn, has received a new appointment as manager of the Royal theater in Worcester.

"The Remaking" in Lawrence.

Lawrence, Mass.—"The Remaking of a Nation" is being shown at the Lawrence Opera House by the Military Service Council in aid of the soldiers who have gone "Over There."

Major Film Company Moves.

The Major Film Company, formerly at 131 Columbus avenue, has moved into larger quarters at 10 Piedmont street. Manager Billy Echler says that the rapidly increasing business of the company necessitates the securing of larger quarters.

Maritime Province News

From Alice Fairweather, "The Standard," St. John, N. B.

More Taxes Expected in New Brunswick.

ST. JOHN, N. B.—There are rumors of taxes filling the air just now as the New Brunswick Legislature is in session and the proposed tax was put off until this time for the final decision.

F. G. Spencer, W. H. Golding, W. C. McKay, of St. John, and Fred Winter, of Moncton, representing the New Brunswick exhibitors, had a friendly talk with Hon. Walter Foster, the provincial premier. It is understood that the situation was thoroughly discussed and that the exhibitors will meet whatever is fair and just in a spirit of patriotism. They feel that there are other amusements and luxuries which might well be included in any reasonable tax levied.

Manager Wooten Doing a Good Work.

Perth, N. B.—The Victoria County News contains on the front page a letter written by N. J. Wooten, the manager of the Specialty Theater, Andover, N. B., on the great value of the theater in time of war and the mission of the picture with its "Revivifying touch of fancy" as "the nation's deep refreshment."

Exhibitor Cuzner "Keeps Going."

Sydney, C. B.—An article in the Sydney Record accompanied by a portrait congratulates "Billy" Cuzner, of Sydney Mines, upon his pluck and energy in keeping on going after reverses. His theater, the Premier, was burned to the ground recently, but Cuzner opened in the Temperance Hall of Sydney Mines, and as soon as the weather permits will erect a new fireproof building on one of the main streets of the town. This is the second time Mr. Cuzner has suffered badly by fire, but the Record says "He keeps on going." That's the kind of stuff that makes any town prosper. No wonder he's popular. And may he prosper.

Good Attractions Plentiful.

Sydney, C. B.—That the theatergoers in Sydney have good pictures to tempt them to the shows may be realized by programs offered in that city recently. March 21—At Khatter's, Mary Miles Minter in "A Dream or Two Ago." King-Bee Film Corporation in a comedy and other features. At Acker's Palace Theater, "The Soul Master" (Earle Williams) with vaudeville and special music as well as other pictures. The Casino had "The Bond of Fear," Keystone Comedy, Pathe News, Symphony orchestra. The Russell theater, Glace Bay, had House Peters in "The Heir of the Ages," Mack Sennett Comedy, "Vengeance and the Woman," Vitagraph serial.

Plucky Ticket Seller Saves Cash.

New Glasgow, N. S.—The ticket seller for N. W. Mason, of the Academy, was recently held up and an attempt made to rob her of tickets and a cash box which she held in her hand. The lady was walking down the street when two men came up to her, one snatching the bundle of tickets which she held in her hand, the other attempting to take the cash box. Fortunately the scream of the seller were heard and the men made off, having only succeeded in grabbing the bundle of tickets.

Tampa, Florida, Notes

By Gilbert Freeman, Box 1168, Tampa, Fla.

Head of Birth of a Race Photoplay Corp. Resigns.

Tampa, Fla.—President H. D. Barker, of the Birth of a Race Photoplay Corporation, about the organization of which there was considerable "gossip" in Chicago, it being charged that the concern was a gigantic swindle, has resigned, it was announced here Monday night, March 25. Mr. Barker stated that he retains his stock in the corporation and is merely stepping down so that the stockholders may choose their own head to complete the picture which is expected to be one of the greatest screen spectacles yet produced. The prologue of the picture has been completed, it was announced. The total expenditures to date, much of which is tied up in a permanent plant at Sulphur Springs, at Tampa, are, it is said, $280,000.

According to Secretary O. W. Lee, of the company, the auditor sent here by a committee of Chicago stockholders following the recent "scandal," has completed his work on the company's books and returned to the Windy City to make his report.

Will Greatly Enlarge Indianapolis Lyric

Barton & Olsen Get Ninety-Year Lease on Land Adjoining Theater and Will Make a 2,500-Seat House—Other Indiana Notes.

By Indiana Trade News Service, 861 State Life Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The Lyric theater, probably the most popular combined motion picture and vaudeville house in the city, is to be remodeled, redecorated and enlarged this summer, according to arrangements just completed by Messrs. Barton & Olson, owners.

Messrs. Barton and Olson have just obtained a ninety-nine year lease on the property to the south of the Lyric, and this will be incorporated in the new theater, giving the entire building a frontage of 112 feet and a depth of 90 feet. The new addition will give the theater a seating capacity of 2,500, about twice its present capacity.

Under the new arrangement the stage, which is now in the east end of the building, will be switched to the south end, giving it a width of 40 feet. The interior of the theater will be decorated in Adam style, with an entire new lighting system, by which some elaborate effects can be produced.

One of the special features of the new building will be the lobby, which will be 100 feet wide, with three bix offices to assist in the rapid handling of tickets. Along the south side of the building an aisle will be made for promenade and exit purposes. There will be fourteen exits from the main floor. A unique ventilating system will be used by which the air, after being washed and cooled, will be forced into the auditorium around the proscenium arch by machinery on the roof.

The entire cost of the improvement will be from $125,000 to $150,000.

Theaters Won't Change Show Hours.

Indianapolis theaters, including both motion picture and legitimate, will make no change in the time of their shows on account of the clocks being set forward an hour on the morning of March 31, in accordance with the daylight saving plan. This decision was reached Friday, March 22, by the Indianapolis Theater Managers' Association at a meeting at English's theater to consider the advisability of beginning the shows at a later hour by the clock.

Indiana Man Wrote "A Man's Man."

Especial interest was attached to the showing of the picture, "A Man's Man," featuring J. Warren Kerrigan as the principal, at the Colonial theater here, the first half of the week, when it became known that the scenario was written by Thomas J. Geraghity, formerly editor of the Rushville Republican, at Rushville, Ind. After doing newspaper work at Rushville and other cities in the East Geraghity became a member of the staff of the Paralta Film Producing Company, at Hollywood, Cal. He is well known in Indianapolis.

New Theater Company in Jonesboro.

Jonesboro, Ind.—A stock company composed of B. L. Pierce, H. H. Petty, O. H. Schrader, E. Rothinghouse and L. M. La Porte, of Jonesboro, has purchased the Royal theater here and in a few weeks will remove the theater to the west room in the new bank building that is rapidly nearing completion. The theater will be managed by Mr. LaPorte, formerly connected with the LaPorte Stock Company. The new management has obtained a good line of pictures and may possibly arrange for a few vaudeville acts later on.

H. H. Thomas Goes to Dayton.

H. H. Thomas, assistant conductor of the Circle theater orchestra, has resigned to accept the post as conductor of the orchestra in the new Dayton theater, at Dayton, O., which will be opened about the middle of April. Mr. Thomas left Indianapolis this week for Dayton to begin rehearsals.

Louisville News Letter

By Ohio Valley News Service, 1404 Stark Bldg., Louisville, Ky.

Picture Shows Needed to Hold Labor.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—What moving picture theaters have come to mean to mining and lumber operating concerns in isolated districts was recently shown in an advertisement of the Climax Coal Co., of Shamrock, Ky., a company which was being forced to advertise for coal miners to operate mines at Edgewood, Ky. In advertising for the men the company featured the fact that it had an excellent camp close to good schools, picture show houses and other amusements. Holding labor has been an important factor in successful operation of isolated plants, and operators have learned that the picture theater means so much that in many camps removed from towns of any size the operators have installed their own picture theaters along with the commissary store and other equipment of the mining town. Private schools and churches are other very important factors.

George Owens Takes Stanford Theater.

Stanford, Ky.—C. Hays Foster, of Stanford, has leased the Stanford opera house to George Owens, of Mt. Vernon, an experienced moving picture man, who operated a house in Mt. Vernon for several years.

Dave Desberger Retires from Active Business.

Paducah, Ky.—Dave Desberger, for many years in the moving picture business, and priorly in the show and theatrical business, has announced that his last theatrical enterprise was sold when he recently sold the Star theater, and that he has retired from active business on account of bad health. Mr. Desberger at one time was with numerous road shows, and is getting along in years.

One Company Controls Paducah Theaters.

It is understood that all of the Paducah motion picture theaters will shortly be operated through one company and under one management. Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Kozy Theater Co.; capital, $6,000; incorporators, Rodney C. Davis, R. R. Kirkland, L. F. Keiler, and Lawrence Dallam. Mr. Davis and Mr. Kirkland have operated the Kozy theater for several years, while Mr. Keiler and Mr. Dallam control the Arcade theater. The Star theater has been purchased by these interests, and it is reported that when the lease expires the house will be closed.

Kentucky Theater Notes.

Falmouth.—A new Simplex projecting machine has been installed at the Duncan theater by Elmer Woodhead, who has heretofore been operating with one machine.

Lebanon.—Rowland Clark, of Lebanon, operator of the Arista theater, has leased the Alhambra theater, of Campbellsville, a neighboring city, and will in the future operate both theaters. The Alhambra was formerly operated by the late W. I. Medor.

The Star theater, Louisville, recently spent about $1,000 in remodeling stairways and placing the theater in first class shape. Business at this house has been excellent under the capable management of Johnson Mussellman.

The Hippodrome theater, Louisville, recently had a special show consisting of a four-reel film entitled "The Story of the British Convict Ship Success," the film being accompanied by a lecture by J. C. Heerey, Australian writer and lecturer, who has been investigating prison conditions in Kentucky, and who has run a number of interesting articles in Kentucky papers on the subject. The prison ship, which was used at Melbourne, Aus., for many years, was exhibited at Louisville last year, after having come up the Ohio River. The film re-enacted life on the old prison ship in a startling and realistic

Two Good Film Shows an Enduring Appeal

Cincinnati Theater Patrons Justify Reappearance of "Daughter of Gods" and "Crisis"—The Former at the Gifts and Other at the Alhambra.

By Kenneth C. Crain, 307 1st Nat. Bk., Cincinnati, O.

CINCINNATI, O.—The continued appeal of first class films was strikingly proved recently in Cincinnati, as it has been before, by the reappearance and hearty welcome of two pictures which are old as pictures go.

One of these was the great Fox production of "A Daughter of the Gods," featuring Annette Kellermann, and the other was "The Crisis," which made such a hit when it was first seen here. The Kellermann picture was a week's attraction at the Gifts, and large houses attended, welcoming the chance to see the picture at popular prices, as its first appearance in Cincinnati was at the same figures as those charged for other first class theatrical attractions. "The Crisis" was at Manager Charles Weigel's Alhambra theater, and drew well. The prices were raised for the occasion to 15 and 10 cents plus the war tax.

Four-Minute Men Do Good Work Near Cincinnati.

The effective work which speakers have been doing at Cincinnati theaters is being duplicated across the river by Covington "four-minute" men, and virtually every house in the Kentucky town is open to the speakers, as the case is in Cincinnati. The occasional difficulties made by pro-Germans on both sides of the river merely make the rest of the population the more determined to keep things moving for Uncle Sam. Among the theaters in Covington giving time to the speakers are the Delbee, the Delmar, the De Milo, the Family, the Grand, the Hippodrome, the Lyric, the Ludlow, the Strand, and the Victoria.

New Amusement Park in Newport, O.

A prominent firm of local architects is working on plans for a big outdoor amusement resort at Eleventh and Monmouth streets in Newport, O., to be operated by John Burkard, already well known as a theater man, and Frank Brieling, also of Newport. While no details have as yet been announced it is stated that a prominent feature of the resort will be adequate provision for the exhibition of first class pictures. An area of 300 by 400 feet is available for the park.

Children's Shows Every Saturday.

Youngstown, O.—The management of the Dome theater, which has for some time been making a specialty of children's programs, has met with such success in this form of entertainment that the house has been selected for such shows every Saturday morning.

Coal Mining Film for Patriotic Reasons.

Charleston, W. Va.—One of the most recent and most striking tributes to the advertising possibilities of moving pictures is the arrangement concluded by the West Virginia Council of Defense with leading coal operators of the state to spend $24,000 in producing and distributing a moving picture designed to give a correct idea of how coal is produced. Representative modern coal operations will be shown, and every facility will be offered to permit the taking of pictures which will show every detail of the coal industry. When completed arrangements will be made to show the picture not only in the United States, but in foreign countries. The appropriation is one of the largest which has been made in this section or elsewhere for advertising an industry and not a single concern by means of moving pictures.

Dayton News Letter

By P. J. G., Dayton Correspondent.

New Organ at the Ideal.

DAYTON, OHIO.—At the Ideal theater, Dayton, last week I dropped in for a chat with John Siefert, the "king of camouflage" and P. T. Barnum's only rival. The main object of my visit was to inspect the new organ which he had boasted of and he advertised in the papers and of which the New York Symphony Orchestra is jealous. After hearing the organ I suspect that these noted musicians have nothing to fear, for although the instrument gives forth a sweet tone it does not quite measure up to the musical offerings of the N. Y. S. O. Nevertheless it is an improvement over the other organ and improves this house considerably.

Glenn Culp Aiding Patriotic Road Show.

Glenn Culp has resigned as superintendent of the Strand theater in Dayton. Although he is to be on the road with a National Cash Register road show (they are equipping twenty of these organizations with complete outfits and a patriotic show in the interest of the national government), his stay will not be long for he will be called into the service in the near future. Glenn had made many friends while at the Strand who will regret his departure. His successor has not been announced as yet.

Ye Scribe Visiting in Chillicothe.

Ye writer is now enjoying a rest and will visit Martin G. Chandler at Chillicothe, Ohio, as well as the many exhibitors in that town. I have not visited Chillicothe for several months and think the situation there will stand investigation. —The new Chillicothe Picture Theater Co. —is it a flivver? Answer in next week's "World." Are business conditions good there? See next week's issue of the "World." Do Sunday shows meet with approval? Could Chillicothe support another large theater? These and many others will be explained at length (perhaps) after the visit.

The Royal Theater and Its Manager.

Thirteen years ago Benjamin Wheeler opened the first picture theater at Dayton's most popular summer resort—Lakeside Park. This was his first important step into the film world and since that time he has managed many different houses.

It is interesting to hear Mr. Wheeler tell of the famous bally-hoo he used at the old Lakeside theater and the success he made of this, his first important venture with the silent drama. His next important step was the management of the Old Auditorium Hippodrome theater, which was formerly the Y. M. C. A. building. He then accepted the management of the Royal theater here and has been at this house since that time.

The Royal is a small house but always enjoys a large patronage (even in the morning). It is true that the Royal does not present the best pictures on the market (nor could they afford to at the present price of film), but their patronage is regular and few look for the attraction booked when they enter—the main object is to get inside. The Royal is the most successful of the smaller theaters, and without Ben Wheeler I think the house would have much less patronage.

Detroit Film Brevities and Business Notes

Dawn Masterpictures Secures Many Frank Keenan Reissues—Filmdom Notes About Exchanges and Theaters—Other Items of Interest.

By Jacob Smith, 710 Free Press Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

Dawn Masterplay Gets Frank Keenan Re-issues.

DETROIT, MICH.—One of the biggest deals in film circles around here for many months was effected recently between the Dawn Masterplay Co., an independent film exchange at 501 Owen Building, and Dan Michalove, special representative of the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, by which the Dawn company buys nine Frank Keenan subjects and seven Norma Talmadge subjects, reissues. The Dawn will release them at the rate of one every two weeks starting the latter part of April. The prints are new and carry a complete line of paper, advertising, etc. In this connection, we might add that the Dawn is now negotiating for some other big pictures and has also bought for Michigan the rights to "Marvelous Maciste," which has been previously sold in the territory.

The Dawn Masterplay Co. was originally started by Arthur S. Hyman, who came to Detroit in February, 1917, with a series of Mother Goose pictures. He later affiliated with I. M. Freiberg and S. M. Krohn, of Dayton, Ohio, forming the Dawn Masterplay Co. Offices were immediately opened in the Owen building and the first picture secured was "Wrath of the Gods," followed by "Redemption," "The Whip," "Raffles," "I Believe" and "Persuasive Peggy."

They do things in a big way and they intend to keep on with that policy. They will book any exhibitor straight rental or percentage and in the case of the majority of bookings one of their representatives goes right with the firm insuring service to the exhibitors.

Joe Horwitz to Handle U. S. E. B. Corp. Film.

Joe Horwitz, in charge of the Foursquare exchange, will hereafter handle the releases of the United States Exhibitors Booking Corporation, inasmuch as this is the new plan of releasing. Mr. Horwitz reports that he has nearly 50 Detroit bookings on "The Eagle's Eye" serial and about 40 throughout the state with many contracts still pending.

W. C. Bachmeyer Visits.

W. C. Bachmeyer, district manager for Metro, spent a week in Detroit in conference with George Montgomery, local manager. Mr. Bachmeyer was recently appointed in charge of Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. He was formerly manager of the Paramount exchange in Pittsburgh, and about two years ago he was transferred to Cincinnati, which is his home town, by the way. About six months ago he assumed charge of the Metro-Cincinnati exchange. While he will visit Detroit frequently he will make his headquarters at Cincinnati.

State Film Gets Jester Comedies.

The State Film Co., Film Exchange building, Detroit, has purchased the Michigan rights to the Jester Comedies. These were formerly contracted for by the Strand Features. The State Film Co. will have two prints on each release.

"The Unbeliever" Making a Long Run.

"The Unbeliever" has been booked for its fourth week at the Majestic theater, Detroit. This is the record of that beautiful playhouse as no other picture ever stayed longer than two weeks and even this record is held by only one or two productions. Four weeks consecutive showing at an outskirt theater is surely a record and a credit to both Manager M. W. McGee and the production. It is being booked for big runs all over the state. Following its Detroit showing the Majestic in Grand Rapids will play it a full week and it also goes into Battle Creek, where it is certain to be a "clean-up."

George Brookins Takes Hillsdale Theater.

Hillsdale, Mich.—George Brookins, of the Gem theater at Hillsdale, Mich., writes the World office that he has leased the ruined I. X. L. theater and that after remodeling and many alterations and improvements will reopen same as a picture theater.

"Kaiser" Showing at the Adams.

"The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," a Jewel production, started an indefinite engagement at the Adams theatre, Detroit, March 31. The Adams was formerly a dramatic stock house and belongs to the chain of Kunsky theaters. Russell G. Pearce is the house manager. W. D. Ward, manager of the Universal exchange in Detroit, reports heavy bookings on "The "Kaiser" picture throughout the state.

Detroit Business Notes.

Bob Cotton, World manager in Detroit, prides himself that eight theaters on Woodward avenue—the main thoroughfare of the city—are showing World pictures each week. These theaters are the Woodward, Empire, Grand Circus, Fine Arts, Forest, Norwood, Garden and Alhambra.

The Woodward Theater Co. has opened a new theater at 395 Woodward avenue, seating about 350. Its admission price is 8 cents, including the war tax. This is the price that prevails at all of the theaters operated by this concern, except the Grand Circus.

Eddie Fontaine, former manager of Pathe office in Detroit, has taken management of the Strand theater, Flint, for Lester Matt, proprietor, who has many diversified enterprises, including the Hotel Matt, and who is now working on plans for a big new theater in Flint that will seat 1,200.

The Allen Film Co. is discontinuing business in Michigan and hereafter will release its three features, "The Garden of Allah," "Mother" and "The Warrior" through the George Kleine office.

Two well-known film men have retired from positions—George J. Trask, of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, and R. A. Perry, manager of the Allen Film Co.

Tom Ealand, of the Orpheum and Regent theaters, Detroit, has booked "Revelation," Metro's special production with Nazimova, for two weeks—one week at each theater. He has also booked another Metro special, "The Legion of Death," with Edith Storey, for a full week at each theater.

MORE DAYTON ITEMS.

John Lyons Oughtn't to Feed That Jinx.

John Lyons was evidently born under an unlucky star. It will be remembered that a touring car he owned turned turtle just outside of Dayton and completely ruined the car. With the loss of this machine John decided to invest in another. This he did and the following day after the purchase the car was stolen.

P. S.—The car only cost twelve hundred dollars.

How About This, Cincinnati?

I know a Dayton manager who when calling over long distance phone asked the operator for the —— Film Co-operation at Cincinnati. Al Kinzeler ventured the opinion that this would be a great idea if practiced.

Many Texas Theater Managers Visit Dallas

Business in State Good and Prospects Promising—Benjamin P. Schulberg in Dallas As Guest of Harry Owen—Exhibitors Who Were in Town.

By Douglas Hawley, Times-Herald, Dallas, Texas.

DALLAS, TEX.—There were a lot of exhibitors in Dallas recently and they all said practically the same thing—business good and the outlook not at all unpromising. Of course they're looking forward to the Texas convention at San Antonio on a momentous date in April, and the most of them will be there for the final celebration.

Most of 'em were from territory close around Dallas, but there were several from farther away. During the week ending March 23 fully fifty exhibitors came to Dallas to meet with B. P. Schulburg, vice-managing director of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation. Mr. Schulburg visited with Manager Harry Owen of the S. A. Lynch Enterprises. The exhibitors were invited here to meet him. The New York man was on his first visit to Texas and Dallas, and he is loud in his praise of the state, the city and the men he met. "It's a live town," he said, "and they're a live crowd." The object of the visit was to get at first hand, an idea of what Texas exhibitors and Texas patrons want in the way of pictures. According to Mr. Schulburg it will be the Lasky policy to supply just that. Mr. Schulburg visited Oklahoma City and New Orleans before leaving the south.

Among well known Texas exhibitors who visited Dallas exchanges during the week ending March 23 there were L. M. Rideout of the Star theater, Denison; O. Gill, of the Erie, Hugo, Okla.; B. C. Bell, of the Queen, Palestine; Wm. Eppstein, of the Royal, at San Antonio, and others. Mr. Bell declares east Texas is in excellent condition, and the Oklahoma man makes a similar report as to his portion of that state.

W. M. Lytle, of the Empire, and associated theaters, headquarters at San Antonio, was also a Dallas visitor, accompanied by Mrs. Lytle. He declares the Alamo City is making big preparations to entertain the crowd when it arrives for the convention opening there April 15.

Exhibitor Harry Owen a Good Advertiser.

Harry Owen, whose picture is presented herewith, runs the Garrick theater at Dallas and used to be in the automobile business; but he thinks the picture business is the best and he don't mind telling the world what pictures he shows—just like that, all in a bunch without stopping for breath.

C. W. Hartman and Harry Owen.

The picture is that of the back of a hack, as may be very plainly seen. It is the back of C. W. Hartman's hack, and Hartman is the presiding elder of the Garrick. It's Hartman at the left. The lady? Oh, that's a secret.

New Theater Opens in Juarez.

Juarez, Mexico.—The new Eden Theater in Juarez, recently erected at a cost of $6,000, has been formally opened by Manager J. G. Camacho. A band concert, such as the Mexico populace deems essential as preceding any sort of function, opened the ceremonies. The new theater is of adobe and concrete construction, and is built along the lines of the modern picture houses on the American side of the river, with inclined floor and up-to-date features. It is equipped with 600 new chairs and a stage. Spanish titles are run, as was explained in recent correspondence to the Moving Picture World, under arrangement with Francisco Norte of El Paso, inventor of the device, by which this is made possible.

Marlin Has a Picture Show.

Marlin Tex.—With the advent here of John McGraw and his New York Nationals, a new moving picture theater entered the lists. Frank Roman has opened the Dixie, an attractive, new place, which bids fair to success.

New Orleans News Letter

By N. E. Thatcher, 3801 Canal Street, New Orleans, La.

New Mecca Theater Opens Easter.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—The New Mecca theater, built upon the ruins of the structure that was destroyed by fire some weeks ago, will be opened to the public on Easter Sunday. This suburban house is one of the most complete theaters in the city and Manager Frank R. Heiderich, Jr., has made it a point to incorporate every appliance that will contribute to the pleasure and comfort of his patrons. Typhoon fans will cool the building, while opera chairs well placed, a large organ of latest design, rest rooms, running water, telephones, and other conveniences will be among the minor attractions supplemental to the exhibition of the best pictures the market affords in the most approved fashion.

T. O. Tuttle Made Kleine District Manager.

New Orleans, La.—Manager T. O. Tuttle, of the local exchange of the George Kleine System, announces that after March 31 the New Orleans office of the George Kleine System will be closed and the affairs of the company will be in the hands of a resident representative, who will be under the direct jurisdiction of the Atlanta office, to which point Manager Tuttle has been transferred with the enlarged duties of a district manager assigned to him. Exhibitors in this territory will be furnished with service through the Atlanta office. Mr. Tuttle while here has surrounded himself with a host of friends and there is not a more popular nor a cleaner manager in the entire film exchange colony.

Busy Saenger Amusement Convention.

New Orleans, La.—The Saenger Amusement Company has just rounded out the first year of its larger activities in the Southern amusement field, and a meeting of all of the house managers in the cities where the company operates was held in New Orleans, and the managers had three days of about as strenuous work as ever befalls to a person who is under the impression that he is invited to a house party and finds that he is expected to get up and hustle with the housekeeper and the cook.

Heretofore the functions of the Saenger Amusement Company have been carefree and invitations to them have been eagerly sought. Therefore the surprise may be imagined when Managing Director E. V. Richards, Jr., announced to the newly-arrived representatives of the firm that the first and the last word in the present convention would be "work." He kept his word. A fixed program had been arranged, under which every phase of the business of the company with its relation to the public was exhaustively discussed, and every hour of the day and some of the hours of the night were occupied in the tightening up of the determination to have and to hold the Saenger Amusement Company's various units in the foreground of public favor.

Among those present at the meeting were E. M. Clark, of Natchez and Jackson, Miss.; Raymond Elder, Houston, Texas; Johnny Jones, Pensacola, Fla.; Arthur Tobias, Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. Eva Vernon, Texarkana, Tex.; Howard Swain and Simon Ehrlich, Shreveport, La.; Noble Hearne, Alexandria, La.; Jack Manning, Monroe, La.; L. J. Pico, Vicksburg, Miss., and the resident managers of the Saenger theaters in New Orleans.

Social Film Club in New Orleans.

New Orleans, La.—The New Orleans F. I. L. M. club, which went on the rocks a few months ago when a row over C. O. D.'s and advance deposits disrupted the organization, has been revived, this time for social purposes only, the members frankly admitting that it is, at this time, impossible for them to attempt to discuss business relations with each other. Every exchange manager in the New Orleans colony has enrolled himself as a member, and stated meetings for the purpose of eating and talking have been arranged.

Jack Woods Marries Atlanta Girl.

New Orleans, La.—"Jack" Woods, manager of the General Film exchange, and Miss Nell Kenington, of Atlanta, Ga., were married at Lake Charles, La., on Wednesday, March 20, and have taken up their residence in New Orleans, where they are receiving the congratulations of their friends. Mr. Woods was influenced by sentiment in the selection of Lake Charles as the place for taking the important matrimonial step, from the fact that that city gives him the greatest volume of business of any city in the New Orleans film territory.

North Carolina Jottings

By D. M. Bain, Wilmington, N. C.

With Travelers in the South Atlantic States.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—A. C. Eckhardt, formerly traveling this territory for the Washington Kleine office, visited Wilmington recently in the interest of Paralta, booking through the Washington General Film office. A. H. Livezey, of Pathe exchange, Charlotte, was a Wilmington visitor with D. M. Bain, booking manager of the Howard-Wells Amusement Co., and closed contracts for Hearst-Pathe News, "The German Curse in Russia," Pearl White's new serial, "The House of Hate," and the new Pathe plays. A. F. Solomon, assistant manager of the California Film Enterprises, of Los Angeles, is touring the Carolinas in the interest of "Temptation," upon which his company have the world rights. The production is being played on a percentage basis all throughout the country, and is meeting with capacity business.

Marx S. Nathan, manager of the Great Atlantic Feature Film exchange, Wilmington, N. C., will soon begin an extended trip through the Carolinas, Virginia, and Georgia booking "The Unborn" and several other productions upon which he has recently secured Southern rights.

Minneapolis News Letter

By J. L. Johnston, 719 Hennepin Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.

R. W. Abbey Now Universal Roadman.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—R. N. Abbey has joined the Universal exchange as roadman. He will cover a portion of Zone 5, which includes southern and central Minnesota.

Harold Bolster Stops Over.

Among the visitors to Minneapolis and St. Paul last week were Harold Bolster, of the New York Goldwyn office, who spent a day here with Manager R. C. Fox on his way back from Australia.

Marines See "Unbeliever" by Invitation.

Manager Harry Graham, of the Perfection exchange, Minneapolis, has arranged a private showing of the Edison feature, "The Unbeliever," for the benefit of the U. S. Marine Corps at the Strand theater, Wednesday morning, March 27, at ten-thirty. Mr. Graham's invitation with a handsome embossed American flag on one corner of it is one of the most attractive to reach our desk in some months.

Notes About Minneapolis Exchangemen.

Manager E. S. Holmes, of the Greater Vitagraph exchange, is in California at the bedside of his mother, who has been seriously ill, but who is said to be on the road to recovery.

R. N. Abbey, one of the oldest film men in Kansas City, has joined the First National exchange, and is now touring central and southern Minnesota.

Recent Visitors in Minneapolis.

Among the out of town exhibitors visiting Minneapolis exchanges recently were Ed. Buckley, Opera House, Foley, Minn.; F. L. Buck, Gem, Waterville, Minn.; J. A. Gondy, Grand theater, Cannon Falls, Minn.; C. C. Teas, Crystal theater, Watertown, Minn.; Max Kruschke, Crystal theater, Princeton, Minn.; Joseph H. Ryan, Lyric theater, Madison, S. D.; Oliver Whaley, Elka and Grand, Bemidji, Minn.; Val B. Valleau, Broadway theater, Albert Lea, Minn.; Manager Edelstein, Lyric theater, Hibbing, Minn.; Fred Campbell, Auditorium theater, White Bear, Minn.; E. A. Nelson, Star theater, Duluth, Minn.; C. V. Danielson, Grand theater, Milton, S. D., and James B. Simpson, Odeal theater, South St. Paul, Minn.

Grand at Luverne Changes Hands.

Luverne, Minn.—Manager Jochims, of the New Palace theater, has bought the Grand theater of Luverne and took over the management of it immediately.

With Minneapolis Exhibitors.

"The German Curse in Russia" began a week's run at the Metropolitan theater, Minneapolis, March 24, under the auspices of Labor's Loyal Legion. Clyde H. Hitchcock, of the Princess theater, with Secretary Schuyler Farnham, of the Legion, were in charge of the film's presentation.

Not to be outdone by other theaters featuring musicians and singers, Manager Billy B. Watson, of the New Garden, featured Jess Huber, tenor soloist, the last half of the week beginning March 17. Mr. Huber introduced "Three Wonderful Letters from Home."

Manager Woodhouse, of the New Calhoun theater, is now featuring a ladies orchestra, and is enjoying extra business as a result.

Manager Fred Bolls, of the Majestic theater, Stillwater, Minn., is also featuring a ladies orchestra. Mr. Bolls is making a success of the Majestic due, to a good extent, to the fact that music he furnishes is so much in contrast to that of the former management. A Victrola formerly furnished all of the music for this theater.

Manager William Deeth, of the American theater, Minneapolis, is now featuring his violinist, Fred Gilbert, a Minneapolis Symphony orchestra man.

Manager Julius Johnson, of the New Garrick, Minneapolis, recorded a good week's business with Mary Pickford's "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley" beginning Sunday, March 17. Local critics acclaimed "Amarilly" Miss Pickford's very best feature to date.

Manager Theodore L. Hayes, of the New Garrick, St. Paul, is now featuring with William Warvelle Nelson, his orchestra leader and composer, several soloists formerly with the LaSalle Opera Company.

Several Kansas City Theaters Change Hands

Another Pathe Salesman, the Third Recently, Becomes An Exhibitor When Harry Taylor Takes the New Center—Theater Notes of Middle West.

By Kansas City News Service, 115 Railway Exchange, Kansas City, Mo.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Several theaters in Kansas City changed hands during the last week, and with one exception the changes and openings are made in suburban theaters. William Andlauer and Morris Spicer sold the New Center theater to Harry Taylor, city salesman for Pathe. Incidentally, Mr. Taylor is the third man out of the Kansas City Pathe office to become an exhibitor within the last two weeks.

Mr. Andlauer and Mr. Spicer will open the Broadmoor theater and the St. John theater March 24. Both of these houses have been closed for several months. The Broadmoor theater is at Thirty-fourth and Broadway and the St. John theater is at Independence avenue and St. John. The Bonaventure theater is also operated by these men.

The Strand theater, Thirty-sixth street and Troost avenue, has been sold to H. W. Hildebrand, of St. Joseph, Mo., by E. A. Finch. This theater is one of the latest built theaters in the residence districts of Kansas City, and is in the immediate vicinity of the Apollo, Alamo, Gilliam, Isis, and Warwich theaters.

Charles Gregory Takes Goldwyn Territory.

Charles Gregory, booker at the Kansas City Goldwyn office, has been made a traveling salesman out of that office. His territory will be in northern Missouri and Iowa. A year ago he was shipping clerk at the same office, and about two months ago he was made booker.

Court Decides Against "I, Mary McLane."

The Kansas City Kleine exchange came out on the poor end of their legal controversy over "I, Mary MacLane." After a series of legal battles, including arrests, restraining orders, contempts of court, and appeals, the court of last resort upheld the action of the local censor board in arresting the exhibitor of the picture in the face of a restraining order. So it is decreed that the love affairs portrayed by the picture will never be shown to a Kansas City audience.

Theater Changes in Oklahoma.

Elreno, Okla.—Al Derry has purchased the Jewel theater from Almon R. Tinkelpaugh, and will continue the business.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The Orpheum Theater Company chartered with a capital stock of $20,000 by George M. Green, H. L. McCracken, and Charles H. Woods.

Camp Doniphan, Okla.—Camp Doniphan has been selected as the site for one of the twelve Liberty theaters to be erected by the Government. Work on the construction of the building will begin at once.

Picher, Okla.—Picher's new $50,000 Main street theater is about ready to be opened to the public. It will seat 1,300, and is one of the most up-to-date theaters in this section of the country.

Tipton, Okla.—Ernest Benton has sold the Dixie theater to William Massie.

Bennington, Okla.—J. G. P. Simpson, of Pattersville, Texas, has purchased the Majestic theater from Mr. Sharpund, and has taken charge of the same.

Healdton, Okla.—The Highnote theater is now under the management of A. C. McBryde, formerly of Holdenville.

Henryetta, Okla.—Chas. Blain has purchased the Yule theater, and he also is manager of the Morgan and Royal theaters.

Blackburn, Okla.—Mr. and Mrs. Link Depuy have bought an interest in the picture show which has been in town for the past six months.

Collinsville, Okla.—The Royal theater has been purchased by E. R. Wilder, of Tulsa. The house is to be remodeled and repainted throughout, and will open up in about two weeks.

Duncan, Okla.—Managers Burns and McDaniel, who suffered the loss of the Pastime theater by fire recently, will begin immediately on the construction of a new theater on a much more elaborate scale than the old one.

Fordyce, Ark.—The Lyric theater, under the management of R. H. Keeten and O. W. Brazil, has been remodeled.

Little Rock, Ark.—The Royal and Gem theaters, of this city, have decided to surrender their charters.

Middle West Theater Items.

Topeka, Kan.—The Iris theater, which has been closed for several months, will be reopened to the public.

Dwight, Kan.—Dwight is soon to have a picture show. The Aspelin building has been leased for a term of years. The business men are boosting the plan.

Wichita, Kan.—A $1,000,000 film company has purchased the Wonderland Park, and Wichita will have a film producing studio.

Blue Rapids, Kan.—W. L. Sherrill has sold his picture show business here. (Name of new owner not given.)

Kansas City, Mo.—W. P. Cullen, who recently took charge of the Garden theater at Thirteenth and McGee streets, is asking for suggestions for the remodeling of the theater.

Excelsior Springs, Mo.—The Auditorium building here has been sold to Willis R. Munger, of Kansas City, by Samuel S. Snavely and the Excelsior Springs Amusement Company for a consideration announced as $100,000.

Carthage, Mo.—Fire March 11 caused from $700 to $800 damage at the Delphus theater here.

Sioux City, Ia.—Articles of incorporation have been filed for the Plaza Amusement Company. Capital stock, $20,000. Incorporators, T. D. Muse, president; M. D. Whitman, vice-president, and J. C. Duncan, secretary and treasurer.

New Hampton, Ia.—E. E. White has become the owner of the Idle Hour theater in this city.

Waukee, Ia.—The Plaza theater has been opened under the new management of J. R. Manning.

Marshalltown, Ia.—Charles Camplin has bought his picture show at this place back again (name of former owner not given).

Boulder, Colo.—William Fox, famous movie magnate, may erect a film studio here.

Goldfield, Colo.—Goldfield is soon to have an up to date moving picture show. W. Glen Miller has rented the Mitterer building at Ninth and Portland avenue. The picture show will probably open in about two weeks.

IN NASHVILLE, TENN.

Special Features Has Two Hart Pictures.

Correcting an error in a former issue we wish to state that the Special Features Company, of Knoxville, Tenn., owns the rights in two of the big Hart features, "The Hell Hound of Alaska" and "The Bandit and the Preacher." Nat L. Royster, sales manager of the Special Features Company, has written calling our attention to the fact, and we are glad to put ourselves right in the matter.

Send Items to
RAMBLES 'ROUND FILMTOWN
Everybody's Doing It—
Join the "Everybodys"

128 Reels of Government Film for Coast

San Francisco Exhibitors Can Rent Council of Defense Picture Through the Office of Sol Lesser at Price to Cover Handling of Them.

By T. A. Church, 1507 North Street, Berkeley, Cal.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. — The State Council of Defense, which recently organized a film bureau for the distribution of films designed to show the country's war activities, has purchased one hundred and twenty-eight reels from the Government through the Bureau of Public Information, and the first release, "The Remaking of a Nation," will shortly be offered to exhibitors. The distribution in California will be through the offices of Sol L. Lesser, who has donated his services to the cause, as have the men who will assist him. The rental price on the pictures will be just sufficient to pay for the expense of creating and handling them. Exhibitors are taking as much interest in the offerings as in the regular releases of producing companies.

Film Men Visit Mare Island.

A party of film folks recently visited Mare Island as the guests of Col. Karmady, this including Mr. and Mrs. Louis Reichert, of Metro; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Citron, of Fox Film; Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Cohen, of the George Kleine System, and George Mann, western division manager of Fox Film. The visitors were shown over the training station, and in the evening had supper with the marines, pronouncing the food very fine. Before leaving for home "The Unbeliever" was screened for the benefit of the boys.

Famous Dancer on Tivoli Program.

Doraldina, the celebrated dancer, has agreed to appear on the stage of the Tivoli opera house in conjunction with the presentation of Pathe's "The Naulahka," in which she stars. Three and a half years ago this artist was a working girl in this city, poor and unknown. She saved sufficient money to reach Spain, and studied dancing, becoming an instant success on her return to New York. When Mayor Rolph heard that the Tivoli opera house was to present the film in which she takes a leading role he urged E. M. Asher, of the Turner & Dahnken exchange, to go to Los Angeles and invite her to appear here in person. Doraldina accepted, naming only one condition—that she be paid no salary. She is eager to appear before her old schoolmates and friends, but will not accept pay for doing that. On the opening evening Mayor James Rolph, Jr., will present her with a silver plaque engraved with a message of San Francisco's appreciation.

San Francisco's Army List Grows.

Charles R. Perryman, who has been with the Duhem company for the past four years as assistant to Ray Duhem, and whose close application to the study of moving picture work in all its branches has made him an expert in this line, has enlisted in the photographic division of the signal corps.

Harry Davis, son of Sam Davis, of Davis Bros., who conduct a film exchange on Golden Gate avenue, has enlisted in Compayn 10, Coast Artillery, and has been assigned to band duty.

Larry Selenger, shipping clerk for the California Film Exchange, is preparing to leave for training camp shortly, having beein placed in Class 1.

Sells Many Theaters in California.

Fred Frisk, of the United Theater exchange, reports a very brisk demand for moving picture houses, and has succeeded in disposing of a number of late. Recent transactions have included the transfer of the Varsity theater, 2024 San Pablo avenue, Berkeley, from S. Roeder and M. Lange to E. A. Tipple; the Macdonald theater, Richmond, from J. W. Hoots and F. E. McDaniels to L. Deleon; the Liberty theater, 554 Haight street, San Francisco, from H. Jacobson to W. T. McMurray; the Turlock and Royal theaters, Turlock, from George Bailey to A. A. Richards; the Lyceum theater, 3350 Mission street, San Francisco, from E. R. Fredburg to Robert McNeil and W. G. Bailey, and the Park theater, on Devisadero street, San Francisco, from Max Blumenfeld to S. S. Smith and A. H. Newell.

All-Star to Handle Gaumont News.

The All-Star Feature Distributors, Inc., has completed arrangements to handle the Gaumont News in the territory covered by it, and will commence releasing on March 26. Four copies of each release will be used at this office, or eight a week.

C. L. Williams Dead.

C. Lee Williams, who was engaged in the film exchange business in San Francisco for several years, with offices in the Mechanics Bank building, passed away at Alameda a short time ago of heart trouble. Mr. Williams was a veteran amusement promoter and circus manager, and was the organizer of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus. In addition to his film interests here he was connected with the management of Neptune Beach. He was one of the organizers of the Order of Pals, an organization of theatrical men formed here a few years ago.

Leon Bories Joins Consolidated.

Leon Bories, for many years manager of the San Francisco, Cal., branch of the General Film Company, and one of the best known men in the film exchange business, was a recent visitor here, and made arrangements to take charge of the Seattle branch of the Consolidated Film Corporation. Marion H. Kohn, manager of this concern, has returned from a trip to the Northwest, and advises that he has purchased the rights to "Parentage."

Lotz Assumes New Duties with Triangle.

H. E. Lotz, formerly manager of the local branch of the Pathe Exchange, Inc., but who has been in the East for the past year, has been made Western division manager for the Triangle, and will maintain headquarters in San Francisco. He arrived recently to take over his new duties. L. E. Lund, traveling auditor for Triangle, also arrived here within the week.

Imperial Features Camp Pictures.

The management of the Imperial theater, San Francisco, has booked a series of pictures taken at Camp Lewis showing California boys in training. At the initial showing of these soldiers appeared on the stage and went through various maneuvers. The call for parts of the film on the part of relatives of the boys in camp has been such that arrangements have been made whereby these can be secured at cost by application at the box office. In commenting on business, Manager J. A. Partington states that all former records for the Lenten season have been broken.

Theater Equipment Stolen.

Sam Sax, proprietor of the Nixon theater at 1715 Polk street, San Francisco, Cal., reported to the police that burglars had entered the place on the morning of March 16 and made away with electrical equipment valued at $88.50.

San Francisco Newslets.

The New Line Process Film Cleaning & Renovating Co. has opened for business at 120 Golden Gate avenue, with the Paul Smith Pictures Co.

J. V. Houston, who conducts the Klamath Fall theater, the Star theater, and Houston opera house at Klamath Falls, Ore., was a recent visitor here, coming to arrange for film service and to purchase equipment.

Walter Preddey has disposed of two Mazda lamp outfits to R. Tcherassy, of the Point theater, Richmond, Cal. This exhibitor plans to erect a theater at Walnut Creek.

The management of the New Mission theater is planning to instal an orchestra, which will be under the direction of Walter Weber.

W. W. Hodkinson, of the corporation bearing his name, has returned from a trip to Seattle. Paralta plays will be shown at the California and Portola theaters commencing in April.

Harold F. Moore, until recently with the Famous Players-Lasky Corp., at Calgary, Canada, is now connected with the local office of the George Kleine System.

Ruth Roland, moving picture star, came up from Los Angeles a few days ago to make a short stay.

Northern California Notes.

San Jose, Cal.—The Liberty Theaters Co., of California, a $75,000 corporation, has filed certified copies of its articles of incorporation. The principal place of business is San Jose, but a theater is also conducted at Fresno. The directors are Theodore Keech, of Fresno; Newton Jackson, Santa Clara, and James Beatty, Arthur Holmes, and George F. Sharp, of San Jose.

Elk, Cal.—Edward Bloom has purchased new equipment for his moving picture theater.

Oakland, Cal.—The Sequoia theater is now being conducted under the management of J. Tobias.

Oakland, Cal.—The T. & D. theater recently featured a song written by two convicts in the State Penitentiary, the sale of which is furnishing funds for purchasing instruments for the prison band. Manager Arthur Wenzel, of this house, has announced a reduction in summer prices.

Des Moines News Letter.

By J. L. Shipley, 615 Locust St., Des Moines, Iowa.

C. C. Taft, Theater Owner, Dies.

DES MOINES, IA.—After an illness of a few days C. C. Taft, who was largely interested in local moving picture theaters and amusements generally, died suddenly from pneumonia. Mr. Taft owned a large part of the stock of the Casino theater, the new Rialto, which is shortly to open, and was also one of the largest stockholders of Riverview Park, the local amusement park, and in previous years had been interested in moving picture theaters in Marshalltown and Mason City. In addition to his theater interests Mr. Taft was also interested in real estate and was president of a large commission company, as well as operating a string of twenty cigar stores. His death was very sudden and he is mourned by a large circle of friends in the amusement business, as his personality endeared him to all who knew him. Mr Taft's theatrical interests will be conducted by Abe Frankel, who has been general manager and financially interested in all of the Taft amusement enterprises.

Carl Pierce, Paramount Representative, Visits.

Carl Pierce, manager of the service department of the Paramount-Artcraft, was a Des Moines visitor and staged a trade showing of Maeterlinck's "The Bluebird." Mr. Pierce is well known to local exhibitors, having visited Des Moines on several occasions in the past, and he spent a day in calling on his friends in the city, leaving for a tour of some western Paramount-Artcraft exchanges before returning to New York headquarters.

A. H. Blank Gets "The Frozen Warning."

A. H. Blank last week purchased the rights on the six-reel feature, "The Frozen Warning," for Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas. Harry Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, of Chicago, who produced this feature, closed the deal in person with Mr. Blank.

J. F. Peckenpaugh Invents New Film Cleaner.

J. F. Peckenpaugh, formerly assistant manager of the local Laemmle office, has perfected a film-cleaning device which is now being patented, and Mr. Peckenpaugh is organizing a company for the manufacture and sale of this new equipment. In several local tests the machine has worked splendidly and it is expected that a large number will be turned out in the course of the next six months.

Exhibitor Makes Local Topicals.

Arthur G. Stolte of the Strand theater, Cedar Rapids, ever on the alert for new features for his theater, has purchased a late model motion picture camera and is supplying most of the Strand Weekly with his own efforts at filming events throughout the state. Mr. Stolte takes several hundred feet every week, which he incorporates with other topical scenes, and thus has a screen review of current events of more than usual local interest. He plans a number of scenes at Camp Dodge in the near future.

Willis Kent in Cavalry Regiment.

Willis Kent, who is well known to Iowa exhibitors through previous connections with the General and other exchanges, is now a lieutenant in the cavalry and stationed at Ft. Riley, Kan.

Harry Skirball Now Covering Iowa.

Harry Skirball, brother of Manager Billy Skirball, of the Metro office, is now traveling in Iowa, having been transferred to this territory from Chicago.

Hugh Bennett Reopens the Fairfield.

The new Fairfield theater, in Fairfield, Iowa, is now opened, under the management of Hugh Bennett. This theater was partially destroyed by fire early in January, but through the energy and persistent effort of Mr. Bennett was immediately rebuilt and is now doing a splendid business.

Visitors in Des Moines.

Visitors to Des Moines exchanges recently included J. M. Heffner, of the Bijou theater, Mason City; Tom Arthur, of the Cecil theater, Mason City; J. A. Price, of the Empress theater, Indianola; J. E. Benton, of the Çomet, Albia; Louis Rosenfield, of the Temple Grand, Creston; Pete Lemen, of the Rialto, Newton, and A. W. Walton, of the Grand, Perry. Also Charles Manfre and his special representative, Mr. Walsh, of the Omaha Fox office, spent several days in Des Moines last week in the interests of new Fox Standards.

Prairie State News Letter

By F. H. Madison, 623 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

Dakota Theater Changes.

RIGBY, N. D.—The Lyric theater is now under the control of Dr. Shiveley, owner and proprietor.

Webster, S. D.—Rose Lahiff has accepted a position as pianist at the Bijou theater at Aberdeen.

Among Nebraska Theaters.

Omaha, Neb.—The showing of "The German War Curse In Russia," under the auspices of the Omaha Daily News, at the municipal auditorium, was well handled. H. M. Thomas, manager of the Strand theater, donated his services as general director. It was shown for a week, the proceeds above expenses going to the hospital auxiliary for the purchase of supplies.

Ulysses, Neb.—The Crystal theater has been leased to P. H. Tobey.

Aurora, Neb.—The Lyric theater, which has been under the management of Harry Parris, is now controlled by A. Calkins.

Palisade, Neb.—Krehmeyer & Wright have been planning to open a theater here.

Alma, Neb.—R. L. Keester has sold his moving picture theater to Mr. Binderup.

Liberty Theater at St. Helens, Ore., Opens

New House Takes the Place of the Old Stand That Burned Down Some Months Ago—Begins With Record-Breaking Crowds on March 21.

By Abraham Nelson, 601 Journal Bldg., Portland, Ore.

ST. HELENS.—The new Liberty theater opened March 21 with record-breaking crowds for this town. Several Portland exchange and supply men were present at the opening and gave their services in handling the people. The new Liberty takes the place of the old Strand theater which burned some time ago. M. S. Jeffries promoted the new enterprise.

"Tom Sawyer" was the opening picture.

Special Viewing for "Grand Passion."

The Film Supply Company of Oregon held a special viewing of "The Grand Passion" March 20, under the supervision of Vern Schubach. Several out-of-town men, including Messrs. Kiggings and McGill, of the Liberty theater, Vancouver, and Charles Schram, of the Grand, Oregon City, were present.

Pete Sabo Weds.

Pete Sabo, owner of the Portland Motion Picture Machine Company, in the Strand Theater building, has joined the ranks of the benedicts. He recently married Miss Magdeline Nees, his former secretary.

Broadway Theater at Portland Closes.

The Broadway theater, a pretty house on the East Side, Portland, closed its doors March 22. It is understood that the equipment will be removed. The Broadway is located in the best residential district in the city and the lack of patronage is attributed to the fact that nearly everyone in the community owns an automobile and motors downtown for the shows.

Lew Cullins Visits Portland.

Lew Cullins, owner of the Casino theater, The Dalles, and one of the best known exhibitors in the state, recently made a pilgrimage to Portland to tie up some more service and talked over the conditions in his locality.

"Although the small towns are bound to suffer some on account of war conditions," said Mr. Cullins, "we in The Dalles are enjoying the best business in several years, and I am looking forward to increasing prosperity."

Mr. Cullins is getting the highest admission price in town and says the patrons are willing to pay the price for the shows.

With the Northwest Distributors.

Gus Metzger, manager of the Film Supply Comapany, is still confined in bed by reason of a recent operation, but is kept advised each day of the film moves by numberless exchange men and exhibitors who visit him at the hospital.

Bert Lubin, handling the screen classics for Metro in the West, was a recent caller on the Portland exhibitors. Mr. Lubin is handling the territory west of Denver, and from Portland will visit Spokane, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

W. W. Kofeldt, Seattle manager for Pathe, placed "The House of Hate" with Pantages, to follow the Ruth Roland series.

C. F. Hill, manager for the Progressive Motion Picture Company, has been on the road covering the southern part of the territory, leaving the office in charge of Harry Hunter, assistant manager.

Al Rosenberg is working hard in the new Portland office of the De Luxe Feature Film Company and reports contracts already coming into the Rose City branch.

Frank Steffy, Northwest manager for the Kleine System, was in Portland screening "The Unbeliever." He showed to quite an audience of the military representatives of the Rose City.

Ted Johnson, traveller for Mutual, recently completed a trip up the Columbia River territory, covering Hood River, The Dalles, Goldendale, Wash., and surrounding towns, and reports excellent business for his firm at all these places.

Recent Theater Changes.

Roseburg, Ore.—The Antlers theater has been sold by Werner and Koller to Parrott and Southerland. The new owners are local men and active members in the Elks' lodge, which owns the building. Mr. Werner has been playing at the Hippodrome theater, Portland, and made the trip to Roseburg to close the deal.

Grants Pass.—The Bijou theater has been sold by J. B. Caldwell to Joe Wolke. The Bijou will be closed by Mr. Wolke, who now owns the Joy.

Fire in Coquille, Ore.

Coquille.—A fire starting in the basement of the Scenic theater got beyond the control of the local fire department and half the town was destroyed by its spread.

C. A. Pendleton, owner of the Scenic, said the fire was not a film fire, but due to defective flue or furnace. He intends to rebuild his theater.

Spokane News Letter

By S. Clare Patchin, E. 1811 Eleventh Ave., Spokane, Wash.

First Bruce Scenic and Other Clemmer Films.

SPOKANE, WASH.—"Me and My Dog" is the title of the first Bruce picture to be shown at the Clemmer theater. This depicts the ramblings of the camera man and his dog through Washington, Montana, and Alaska. This is modestly declared to be the most beautiful scenic ever made.

Other offerings in this unusual collection of Clemmer scenics include "The Land of Enchantment," a trip through the Yosemite, a combination of scenery and outdoor life and natural history, "The Head of War Creek," and a visit to an old Indian battlefield on the summit of the Chelan Mountains in this state. Among others are "A Mountain Observatory," a trip to the Mount Wilson star observatory situated at an altitude of 5,714 feet in the Sierra Madre Range in southern California, and "Asphyxiating Gases" and "Along the Riviera," a split-reel subject dealing first with the poison gases of modern warfare and later with magnificent views along that famous stretch of the Mediterranean from Nice to Spezia, Italy.

Ackerman & Harris Give Big Organ Order.

An innovation in a vaudeville theater and an added feature of the present Hippodrome theater orchestra will be the new $15,000 Wurlitzer pipe organ, which arrived in Spokane March 15. It will be installed by an expert from San Francisco.

Ackerman & Harris, who control the Hippodrome circuit of theaters, have purchased 12 of these large Wurlitzer pipe organs, and will install them in their leading houses on the circuit. The organ will serve to accompany the photoplays presented in every theater controlled by Ackerman & Harris, and will furnish music from the time the pictures start until the vaudeville program begins.

An added attraction at the Hippodrome for the week of March 18 was Edyth Sterling in person. Lovers of motion pictures will doubtless remember Edythe Sterling on the Mutual program, and her interpretations in "The Web of the Grafters" and in "Nancy's Birthright."

Red Hair as Good as Tickets.

All red-headed girls will be admitted free to the Liberty theater, Spokane, Monday, April 1, to see the exhibition of "Empty Pockets." The titian-haired damsels will be the guests of Manager Sam W. B. Cohn in view of the fact that the five young women who carry principal roles in the story are "brick-tops."

Buffalo News Letter

By Joseph A. McGuire, 152 Elmwood street, Buffalo, N. Y.

J. M. Sitterly Managing Office of Pioneer.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—John M. Sitterly, identified for a long time with the film business in this territory, is now manager of the up-state office of the Pioneer Film Corporation. His offices are at 47 West Swan street, Buffalo.

Changes at Buffalo General.

Fred Flarity, formerly of the General Film, Pittsburgh, Pa., has succeeded Ed Hayes as manager, Buffalo. Mr. Flarity has appointed S. R. Banks road representative. Mr. Hayes is now Metro manager, this city.

W. P. Allen Now at Camp Devens.

William P. Allen, formerly road representative in Buffalo from the Syracuse branch of the Vitagraph Co., was drafted by Uncle Sam, and is now rapidly learning his new duties at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass. Mr. Allen was held in very high esteem by his customers in Buffalo and in Rochester, and in the latter city a very practical evidence of this regard was manifested when the exhibitors and some of his fellow film salesmen collected a purse from which they intend, from time to time, to send Mr. Allen "smokes."

F. F. Hartich, branch manager of the Vitagraph, Syracuse, who was in Buffalo, said Mr. Allen's departure was felt as a real loss to his office, as he was a most efficient man. Mr. Hartich was looking for a Buffalo location for the Vitagraph. If he finds suitable quarters he will close the Syracuse branch.

Serious Fire in Booth of Liberty Theater.

Alden, N. Y.—Joseph Weisbeck, manager of the Liberty moving picture theater, Alden, N. Y., had the presence of mind to avert recently what might have been a panic in that house. When the show was about to start in the evening, the films in the machine ignited and set fire to other films in the booth. Mr. Weisbeck requested the patrons to pass out quietly and receive their money back, as there would be no show. When the house was about vacant, the films exploded, blowing the door of the booth open. A. F. Baldwin, the operator, and his assistant, Harold Tucker, who had been holding the door shut, were seriously burned about the face and hands. They were attended by a local physician.

E. L. Hymans Takes a Bride.

E. L. Hymans, manager of the Victoria moving picture theater, Buffalo, was married on Tuesday, March 26, to Miss Grace Redans, assistant to G. A. Hickey, manager of the Goldwyn exchange, this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Guy Vaughn Shedd, Miss Redans' brother-in-law, at his home in South Walpole, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Hymans were entertained in Boston by the bridegroom's brother, D. Hyman, after which they completed their honeymoon in New York City. The contracting parties have many friends in Buffalo's film circles.

Al Sherry Chosen as Sales Manager.

Al Sherry has been chosen sales manager of the Gardner Syndicate, Buffalo, which distributes the Billy West comedies. T. R. Gardner is head of this syndicate and L. D. Hatfield is his assistant.

M. Fitzer Is Pathe Representative.

Morris Fitzer, formerly with the Metro, Buffalo, has succeeded H. L. Taylor as Pathe representative in the Rochester territory.

F. J. Leonard Boosting "Eagle's Eye."

F. J. Leonard, formerly with the Victor Film, Buffalo, is doing special work on "The Eagle's Eye." He has just returned from a successful trip among the exhibitors of northern New York, who gave him generous bookings. The Palace, Buffalo, and the Strand, Syracuse, has had big business on this production.

Canadian Universal Takes Montreal Theater

The Holman, a 1,200-Seat House, Secured for Term of Years—Will Be Rearranged—Other Renting Companies That Have Theaters.

By W. M. Gladish, 1263 Gerrard St. E., Toronto, Ont.

MONTREAL, Que.—There is a tendency among the big Canadian film rental companies to acquire direct control of a leading moving picture theater in the important centers of the Dominion in which to present first runs of favored features and programs. The Famous Players Film Service, Limited, and the Regal Films, Limited, have each secured a number of theaters in various cities in which their own releases are first featured, and, consequently, first profits are retained within the respective interests. The latest large exchange to enter the exhibiting field on a definite basis is the Canadian Universal Film Company, Limited.

President Clair Hague, of the Canadian Universal, announced that the Holman theater, a 1,200 seat theater of Montreal, Que., had been secured for a term of ten years starting March 23, and that Mr. Harry Pomeroy, of the Globe theater, Toronto, had been appointed manager of the Holman.

Although the Holman had been operated for a year or so it could not be classed as a finished theater, as it had never been decorated or furnished with all the equipment of a well-appointed theater. Therefore the theater was closed for the week of March 25 for the application of a dress and other adornment. A few months ago it passed into the hands of receivers, and this was due, it is said, to the fact that the house was not attractively arranged. Several thousand dollars have just been spent for curtains, draperies, oil paintings, and other interior decorations. Manager Pomeroy also engaged a number of lady ushers and secured a large orchestra as well. In addition he undertook an extensive advertising campaign as soon as he took over the house.

Starting with Sunday, March 31, the opening attraction under the new ownership and management was "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," for a week's run. This was to be followed by "The Price of a Good Time" and "The Doctor and the Woman." The Holman theater is in the heart of Montreal's retail shopping district, and Manager Pomeroy decided to cater to female patronage.

The Canadian Universal has also been negotiating for a large theater in Toronto, and the company will also undertake to organize a chain of houses across the Dominion. The Famous Players Company is closely allied with theaters in Toronto, Ottawa, Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Moose Jaw, and other cities. The Regal Films, Limited, has theaters in Toronto. Ottawa, Montreal, and elsewhere. Messrs. Brouse and Stapleton, who hold the Eastern Canadian franchise of the First National Exhibitors' Corporation of the U. S. A., have two theaters in Ottawa.

Superfeatures, Ltd., Opens Winnipeg Office.

Superfeatures, Limited, headquarters in Toronto, has increased its lead as the largest exclusive distributor of special features in Canada by acquiring the Canadian rental rights for Hoffman Foursquare Productions, the releases of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, and the twenty-episode serial, "The Eagle's Eye." It is extending its actual field of operations with the opening of a fourth office in the Phoenix Block, Winnipeg, under the management of Fred Crosby, formerly in charge of the Montreal branch of the company. George Brownridge, of Toronto, has replaced Crosby at Montreal. Superfeatures now has offices in Toronto, Montreal, St. John, and Winnipeg. The personnel of the company has also been increased by the addition of George Moran, a well known Canadian vaudeville figure, to the staff as special representative.

F. G. Spencer Gets "Damaged Goods" Rights.

F. G. Spencer, one of the most prominent exhibitors in Canada, has bought the sole rights of "Damaged Goods" from the Mutual Film Corporation for the Provinces of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, and St. John. Mr. Spencer controls no less than fourteen theaters in the Eastern part of the Dominion. The much discussed feature has not been passed by the censor boards of Ontario or Quebec, but there is a good possibility that it will be approved, with some restrictions, because public opinion in Canada at present is strong toward the subject of the suppression of conditions.

Quebec Censors Condemn "Revelation."

The Board of Censors for the Province of Quebec created a fine mix-up in Montreal on Monday, March 18, when Loew's theater, Montreal, was refused official sanction to present "Revelation," starring Nazimova, as extensively advertised. M. J. Walsh, acting chairman of the board, refused to give any reasons why the picture was condemned, as it had been decided not to give such information regarding rejections, but a Montreal newspaper is the authority for the statement that the censors had condemned the feature after consulting with representatives of the priesthood.

Manager Mills, of Loew's theater, substituted "Alimony" for the banned picture at the last moment. Incidentally patrons of this theater are now enjoying the novelty of having afternoon tea at the expense of the theater whenever they desire to do so during any matinee performance except Saturday. The patrons are requested to take refreshments before seeing the show if possible. The tea is served between 2 p. m. and 5:30 p. m.

F. A. Hall Takes Garrick Theater.

F. A. Hall, formerly a Montreal exhibitor, has taken over the Garrick theater, a small but attractive moving picture theater of Toronto.

IN BALTIMORE.

By J. M. Shellman.

Baltimore Trade Personals.

BALTIMORE, MD.—C. E. Eiseman, formerly associated with the Mutual Film Corporation as manager of the Baltimore branch office, which was recently closed, has now become the representative for the Triangle Film Corporation in the Monumental City. Mr. Eiseman succeeds A. B. Price, and both are well known and well liked by the trade in this city. Mr. Price is now with Metro, as recently announced in this column.

M. Seigel, representative for the Baltimore Film Exchange, now handling "The Kaiser," a Jewel production, left recently for an extended trip through Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and North Carolina, where he expects to get big business. He states that he expects to join a big game of "African Golf" with the Baltimore film men when he returns.

J. J. Hartlove, manager of the Crescent theater, 1110-12 S. Charles street, aided the fund being raised for the South Baltimore Hospital, by turning over the entire receipts of the box office on Good Friday to the fund. The attraction on this day was Jean Sothern in "Peg o' the Sea."

Blanke & Jink, a firm of prominent architects in Baltimore, announce that the new Arcade theater which is to be built in Washington, and which they designed, is to cost about $50,000. Work has already been started on the construction.

Critical Reviews and Comments

Upon Current Productions

The Splendid Sinner (Goldwyn).
The Red, Red Heart (Bluebird).
The Witch Woman (World).
Rough and Ready (Fox).
A Living Target (Pathe).
The Woman in The Web (Vitagraph).
A Camouflage Kiss (Fox).
Mrs. Slacker (Pathe).
A Bit of Jade (American).
The Love Brokers (Triangle).
A Rich Man's Darling (Bluebird).
Little Miss No Account (Vitagraph).
The Lie (Arteraft).
The Blue Bird (Arteraft).
Billy's Baby (Goldwyn).
The Life Mask (Petrova Pictures).
Chase Me, Charlie (George Kleine System).
Breakers Ahead (Metro).

"THE SPLENDID SINNER."

Mary Garden Plays Music of a Woman's Moods in Goldwyn Picture with Sensational Climax.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

UNDER the surface of this Goldwyn picture, "The Splendid Sinner," sometimes pretty deep under it, runs the newly rediscovered, war-given knowledge that life has a richer value than petty experiences are likely to bear witness to. The heroine, played by Mary Garden, has made a mess of her life. Mistress of a rich German-American, she grows disgusted with the feasts and light friendships and tries to take refuge in a real love marriage with a husband who doesn't know her past.

Made of fiber that cannot face poverty, she tries gambling and soon her husband knows all and leaves her to join the Canadian overseas forces. She becomes a Red Cross nurse on the German side of the line with no suspicion of what has become of her husband. One day she is ordered to attend a wounded prisoner and finds him. He gives her a paper which she tries to take across to the French, but is caught. In the general who is ordered to try her she discovers her old profligate lover, the German-American. She pleads guilty and is condemned to death. As she stands in her Red Cross uniform in front of the firing squad the general sends a note to her promising to save her if she will once more be his mistress. This she tears. They shoot her and she falls dead.

The plot is built rather to give an interesting flow of action than to illustrate a new experience, for it lacks sidelights and contrast that artistically get into the heart of the situation and makes its significance vivid. The spectator is held more by the playing of Mary Garden than by the story. She is a magnificent mirror for the moods of a passionate woman and she plays on them till the result looks like music sounds. No other player in the picture is more than momentarily interesting, but they make a good chorus behind the soloist.

Perhaps not everything in the picture is in perfect taste. The Germans would hardly have shot the confessed spy in her Red Cross uniform; yet if the director had shown the heroine being deprived of her insignia it would have harmed the picture, and merely because it would have shown too plainly that she had disregarded conventions even as the enemy we are now fighting does most reprehensibly.

"THE RED, RED HEART."

Five-Part Bluebird Featuring Monroe Salisbury Presents Weak Story of Romantic Character.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE story from which the Bluebird five-part production, "The Red, Red Heart," is taken, is entitled "The Heart of the Desert," by Honore Willsie. The production is not a strong one, but will interest in a romantic way the ordinary class of audience. The direction of the picture is not altogether of the modern school, and neither photography nor action carry with them the realism of the best type of modern photoplay. The picture is clean and in many ways pleasing, but it contains inconsistencies beyond which the modern screen has educated us. For instance, why should the civilized Indian take the screen license of stalking about in the half naked garb of a century or so ago, while his less cultured brethren wear the same kind of clothing as the whites?

As the story runs, a young girl brought from the east by her betrothed for the purpose of regaining her health persistently refuses to take interest in life, having suffered a nervous shock from a train wreck. The son of an Indian chief working on a big irrigation project for the friend with whom she is stopping, determines to save the girl from herself, kidnaps her and takes her out on the desert that she may drink of the spirit of the desert and forget her ills. This he accomplishes while her friends pursue them in vain. When the girl has recovered and a fight has been fought for her between the Indian and her lover she decides to stay with the Indian, whom she has learned to love.

"THE WITCH WOMAN."

Ethel Clayton in Five-Part World Picture by Willard Mack Portrays a Deserted Maiden.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

LOVERS of the sort of romance that bears but little resemblance to life will find "The Witch Woman" to their liking. This five-part World picture was written by Willard Mack and directed by Travers Vale. Ethel Clayton plays the heroine. The story belongs to a class of fiction that was popular when Ouida wrote "Two Little Wooden Shoes," and is a long way removed from the realistic school of to-day. The heroine is an Alsatian shepherdess, Marie Beaupre by name, who gives herself to a handsome but dissolute young artist and is deserted by him. Driven from the village by her uncle and his neighbors, Marie loses her wits and lives in a cave in the mountains. An elderly Frenchman of means befriends her. She is taken to Paris, restored to reason and adopted by M. Delauney.

Louis La Farge, the recreant lover, has a twin brother who is so marvelously like him that few persons can tell them apart. Marie meets Maurice La Farge and mistakes him for Louis. Eager to be revenged upon her betrayer, she learns that he has political aspirations and determines to work against him. A notorious woman, Andrea Montignac, is the painter's latest flame, and her jealousy prompts her to kill him. Marie discovers her mistake about the identity of Maurice and is glad to accept his love.

The material admits of color and movement and aside from the Alsatian scenes, the picture shows the life of the Paris studios, its restaurants and a home of wealth and refinement. The production is generally adequate. Ethel Clayton indicates the insanity of Marie skillfully, but she takes more naturally to the character after the shepherdess puts on her Paris gowns. Frank Mayo in the dual role of the La Farge twins performs a difficult task with credit. Louise Vale as Andrea Montignac, Jack Drumier as M. Delauney, John Ardizoni as Dr. Cochefort, and Robert Tansey as Paul Martinet are capable selections. Photographed by Max Schneider.

"ROUGH AND READY."

Specially Desirable Picture—Farnum Is Hero of Alaska Melodrama with Tremendous Climax.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

IN AN Alaska melodrama you expect exciting incidents, and when William Farnum has the hero's role you can hardly be surprised if the climax follows an elemental struggle in which strength, courage, resource and strategy are almost equally matched in hero and villain. Just this kind of climax closes "Rough and Ready," a six-reel Fox Standard picture. In it William Farnum as the hero fights Alphonze Ethier, as the villain, for the pretty heroine's safety. The fight is strenuous, yet follows ordinary lines till one of the villain's henchmen stealthily hands him a dirk. And now Farnum, whom the fight has shown to be not quite so strong as the villain, needs his brains, and must use them freshly at every moment and be quick about it. The villain has him squarely on his back. Several times the dagger moves slowly down to his throat, but is pushed back. The villain rests for an instant and eases his position. Again the knife comes down, down, slowly, surely. There is a sudden lunge downward and the blade has gone home. We see the two lying, villain over hero, victor thoroughly spent, limp as his victim. There's a spell on those who watch such a fight. Some of the dive's habitues summon courage to move near and turn the upper man over on his back. It is his, the villain's, breast in which the dirk has been fastened. A quick turn of the wrist had done it at the last instant.

There is a remarkable thrill in this; but while it is the biggest punch I have seen in pictures in a long time, the picture has more good punches than any film of its length that I remember just now. These exciting incidents are artistically handled and reasonable in a melodrama. They certainly satisfy. The direction is able to a degree, and there is no incompetent player. The heroine, taken by Violet Palmer, is charming in her role, and Jessie Arnold, who has the role of the big-hearted girl of the dive who also loves the hero, compels the keenest sympathy by her acting and personality. The scenes in the North in the deep snow, with cabins, trails and dogs, are excellent. I believe it is a picture that will make money for a long time and have many recall showings. If a theater has people enough around it this picture will stand for a long run, and it will pay to advertise it to the limit as an exciting melodrama of red-blooded Alaskans.

"A LIVING TARGET."

Sixth Installment of Pathe Serial, "The House of Fear," Has Red-Hot Finish.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

THE Hooded Terror contrives to escape detection in his usual remarkable manner and keeps Pearl Walden and Harvey Gresham at their wits' ends by the startling string of incidents that follows his activities. Always far enough ahead of his pursuers to prevent capture, this relentless and resourceful villain gets Pearl into his power and is forcing her to put up one of the liveliest fights of her reckless young life when Harvey enters and takes a hand in the affair. The scene is Gresham's apartments and the bodies of his valet and of Baron van Roth are found on the floor.

Pearl and Gresham chase The Hooded Terror over roofs and up and down stairways, but he gets away and turns up later at the test of a rapid-fire gun which a representative of a foreign government may decide to purchase. Harvey, who is present, goes into a hut on the grounds, and The Terror, who has overpowered the two men operating the gun, turns the muzzle on the building and riddles it with bullets. Pearl and a policeman arrive just when matters are getting warmest for Harvey.

Pearl White and Antonio Moreno are as vigorous as ever in the leading roles.

"THE WOMAN IN THE WEB."

Latest Vitagraph Fifteen-Part Serial Is Story of Russian Revolution and Has Promising Start.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

BUILT around the Russian revolution, "The Woman in the Web," a fifteen-part Vitagraph serial written by Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady and featuring Hedda Nova and J. Frank Glendon, starts off full of promise. The heroine is a Russian princess and a member of the Czar's embassy in Washington when the story opens. Two of her countrymen, also of the Imperial Commission, are the villains of the serial and are plotting to overthrow the Russian ruler. A young American, whose father represents the Czar in this country in a number of investments, is in love with the Princess and when she is ordered to return home he follows her. His name is Jack Lawford. The Baron Borusk, a secret agent of the Kaiser, and Colonel Kovsky, a Cossack, also in love with the Princess, are the brace of conspirators.

Once in Russia and the succession of "stunts" that are the life and soul of this sort of screen entertainment gets under way, Lawford is locked in a tower by the Baron and the Colonel, and the hero takes a flying leap from a small window into a distant tree. The Princess is rescued later on by a number of Cossack soldiers who perform some of the gymnastic feats for which Arab acrobats are noted. The Russian lady is trying to reach America with the imperial jewels. Her royal master has been warned of the uprising and has intrusted the Princess with the treasure. Trapped on the roof of a building, she is in danger of capture until the Cossacks imitate "The Span of Life" stunt and form a human bridge to the next building. The girl and Lawford escape. As they and the soldiers are galloping across a wooden bridge it is blown up by the Baron and the Colonel, and everything is left in the air until the next installment.

Hedda Nova and J. Frank Glendon are excellent selections for the two leading roles. They are both correct physical types and understand the art of acting.

"A CAMOUFLAGE KISS."

A June Caprice Picture—Comedy in Five Reels Has Rather Vague Plot.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

THE pretty pictures made by photography and settings with the graceful grouping of the players, and especially the witty subtitles, come to be the chief source of entertainment for the spectator of "The Camouflage Kiss," a Fox five-reel comedy with June Caprice in the heroine's role; for the story has too little action for the length of film. There is plenty of promise of action, and situations are always being started, but there is never much doing till the last reel, and the best of it is weaker than the possibilities. There is too little plot.

The subtitles in the early part of the film will be a delight. They are filled with unexpected and fresh fun. In fact, everything that a competent picturemaker can do to bolster up a weak story has been done here. Director Harry Millarde gives clearer evidence of his value as an artist in his handling of this picture than in some of his more successful productions. In many ways it is lovely, and it is certainly not without good laughs. The only criticism we can make is that it is much too long for the matter it holds.

"MRS. SLACKER."

Pathe Gold Rooster Five-Part Picture, Featuring Gladys Hulette, Produced by Astra.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

JUVENILE fiction was the term once used to designate the class of story to which "Mrs. Slacker" belongs. This five-part Pathe Gold Rooster picture, written by Agnes C. Johnson, has a number of quaint touches that are seldom absent from her scenarios and, as usual, her sense of comedy is superior to the dramatic motive underlying her plots. A certain freshness of treatment has always added greatly to the merit of her work, and "Mrs. Slacker" is no exception to the rule.

Susie Simpkins is a young girl in a small town who does family washing, and her uncle gets drunk on her earnings. The wealthy Gibbs family is one of her customers, and Robert, the son, who is a great coward, marries the girl in order to claim exemption. When Susie finds this out she puts on a soldier suit and stumbles upon a German plot to blow up a reservoir. Her conduct so inspires her husband that he helps her to defeat the conspirators and turns out to be a real fellow after all.

Gladys Hulette is exactly suited to the character of Susie and makes it easy to understand that washerwomen of her grade might find favor in the eyes of many a rich man's son. Creighton Hale has no difficulty in acting the slacker husband, and Paul Clerget is excellent as the father. The picture was cleverly directed by Hobart Henley. Released March 31.

"A BIT OF JADE."

Five-Part Adaptation of Graham Story for Mutual Features Mary Miles Minter.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE story of how a jade necklace stolen from a Hindu becomes the prime mover in a pretty romance is the subject of the American-Mutual production, "A Bit of Jade." The picture, which is an adaptation of a book by Mildred Carl Graham, has been directed by Edward Sloman in fairly satisfactory style. The action is at times a bit stereotyped, but the production on the whole is entertaining and will no doubt be enjoyed by the average audience. Mary Miles Minter plays the feminine lead with Alan Forest playing opposite her. Others of the cast are David Howard, Vera Lewis, Alfred Ferguson and Clarence Burton.

As the story goes a pretty girl whose brother is addicted to gambling is accidentally thrown on the good offices of a young man of wealth in whose possession is a jade necklace of antique design, on an occasion when she is left in a restaurant by her brother without money to pay her bill. The fact that the brother has taken the other man's overcoat by mistake causes the necklace which is in the pocket of the coat to get mixed up in a series of incidents which finally brings about the betrothal of the two central figures of the story, as well as the clearing up of an unpleasant gambling affair for the girl's brother.

"THE LOVE BROKERS."

Alma Rubens and Texas Guinan in Interesting Triangle Written by W. Carey Wonderly.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

ANOTHER woman who gives her love to the wrong man and finds it out before it is too late is the heroine of "The Love Brokers," a five-part Triangle drama written by W. Carey Wonderly and featuring Alma Rubens and Texas Guinan. The story is interesting, freshness of treatment in the incidents having a great deal to do with it. Charles J. Wilson's scenario and the direction of E. Mason Hopper also help materially.

Charlotte Carter comes to New York hoping to succeed as a song writer. She does not get on as fast as she had expected and receives a severe shock when she learns that Peter Ladislaw, with whom she is in love, is a forger. He comes to her for help, and Olga Grey, a Broadway worldly wise young woman, shows her how to raise the money. Gerald Townshend, a wealthy art patron, is fascinated by Charlotte. Later on he is injured in a motor car accident and Olga manages affairs so that he and Charlotte contract what is supposed to be a death-bed marriage. As Townshend's widow, Olga sees Charlotte the mistress of a fortune, in which she will share. Of course fate, in the person of the author, does not permit Townshend to die, and Charlotte and he arrive at the proper understanding.

Alma Rubens fits the character of Charlotte at every angle and Texas Guinan is quite as successful as Olga. Joe Bennett, Lee Hill, Betty Pearce and George Pearce round out the cast smoothly. Photographed by Jack Mackensie.

"A RICH MAN'S DARLING.

Louise Lovely in a Bluebird That Has a Dash of Spice in It.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

A DASH of spice often adds to the flavor of things. A sportive old gentleman, who is not above paying for the society of a pretty woman, injects the dash of paprika into the five-part Bluebird, "A Rich Man's Darling," starring Louise Lovely. Harvey Gates is the author of the story and Edgar Jones directed the production. There is no want of lively proceedings during the action of the play. This all comes about because an attractive dress model is sent to deliver some gowns to Madame Ricardo, the young widow, whose bills are being paid by Mason Brooks.

Finding that the owner of the gowns is not at the summer hotel to which she has been sent, Julie, the model, gets into one of the evening frocks, sails down into the dining room and passes herself off as Madame Ricardo. Here young Leo Brooks meets her, woos her at express train speed, and they are married that very night, Julie still letting him believe that she is the frisky widow.

The next morning the papers come out with the headline, "Young Hunter Poaches on His Father's Preserves." The elder Brooks learns of the marriage and is very angry. A mistake in the identity of the two women when they arrive at the Brooks home and the fact that Madame Ricardo's husband is very much alive prevents the interest from losing its grip, and the sportive elderly gentleman is finally induced to welcome Julie as his son's wife.

By not thinking too closely about the story considerable amusement will be found in it. The production is in keeping with its requirements. Louise Lovely is a plump and pleasing Julie, and Philo McCullough, Harry Holden and Harry Mann do their share of the acting in a capable manner.

"LITTLE MISS NO-ACCOUNT."

Gladys Leslie in Five-Part Vitagraph Comedy-Drama of Juvenile Fiction Order.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

EDWARD P. SMANEY'S story, "The Reflections of Scarlet," was the original of "Little Miss No-Account," a five-part Vitagraph picture featuring Gladys Leslie. Lovers of juvenile fiction in which the youthful heroine is persecuted by a wicked uncle until she runs away and meets the wealthy hero and they marry and live happly ever afterward will find this comedy-drama very much to their taste. The incidents of a humorous nature are often amusing and the dramatic portions of the story will not endanger any one's morals, even if the serious situations are not very thrilling.

Patty Baring, the part played by Gladys Leslie, is a young girl who lives in a fine old house in Washington Square that will be hers when she comes of age. Her uncle is the villain of the plot. He is the owner of a gambling house, treats Patty unkindly, and is planning to cheat her out of her inheritance. The girl runs away and goes to live with a little newsboy and his grandfather. Patty next meets the hero, a district attorney who is bent on closing up the gambling houses in the district. He loves Patty in spite of her poor clothes and her lowly friends. When her uncle's gambling house is raided and she is found there he takes her to his mother, and all ends happily.

Gladys Leslie is cute and cunning as Patty, but forgets at times that the girl is sixteen and not six years of age. Her reason for dressing up in the outlandish clothes she finds in the garret must remain a secret. No normal girl would wear them on the street. The supporting company is a good one. It consists of Frank O'Connor, William Calhoun, Eulalie Jensen, West Jenkins, Richard Wageman, Carlton and Stephen Carr. William P. S. Earle directed the production.

"THE LIE."

Artcraft Screen Version of the Jones Play Stars Elsie Ferguson.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IN writing "The Lie," Henry Arthur Jones, the famous playwright, has supposedly created a truthful story of English life. The Famous Players-Lasky screen version, made by Charles Maigne and directed by J. Searle Dawley, sticks closely to the original. The part of Elinor Shale, the heroine, would delight the soul of any star. Every other character is shaped so that the virtues of Elinor stand out like a mountain peak. Her sister and the man she first gives her heart to are as disagreeable a pair of "rotters" as ever were born. Elinor finally finds happiness with the only male being in the lot that is not a cad. As a picture of upper-class English society it is not at all flattering, although a little reflection shows clearly that Sir Henry has availed himself of the playwright's privilege of using the possible situation.

Elinor and Lucy Shale, daughters of an impoverished nobleman, find themselves obliged to sell the manor after their parent's death. Lucy, the younger, trusts her honor to the man she loves and he is killed before he can give her the protection of his name. Finding herself about to become a mother, she goes home and confides in her sister. Elinor helps her to keep her secret. When the child is born and circumstances make it appear that Elinor is its mother, Lucy confirms the lie and so wins the man that her sister expected would ask her to become his wife. Elinor shields her sister to the end, that the ungrateful girl may not lose her chance of happiness, and is rewarded by finding in Nol Dibkin a nature as generous and as steadfast as her own.

Elsie Ferguson endows Elinor with the charm of mind and person demanded by the part and portrays her varying moods with fine skill. Her acting gives the picture its chief value. David Powell and Percy Marmont are excellent in the leading male roles. Betty Howe makes Lucy sufficiently disagreeable and John L. Shine's conception of an English baronet is on original lines. Charles Sutton, Maude Turner Gordon and Bertha Kent complete the cast.

The production is creditable, the English atmosphere being fairly consistent.

"THE BLUE BIRD."

Beautiful Spectacular Production of the Maeterlinck Poetic Masterpiece.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

HERE'S to a flock of "Blue Birds"! We have it on the word of Maurice Maeterlinck that "The Blue Bird" brings happiness, and the screen version of the Belgian poet's beautiful fantasy is incontestible proof that his statement is true. The man who adds to the happiness of the world is entitled to a rich reward. And so the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, that made the moving picture of one of the most human fairy stories ever written, should be repaid by achieving a financial success equal to the artistic merits of its production. The scenario, by Charles Maigne, the direction, by Maurice Tourneur, and the acting by the members of the cast, all have a share in shaping "The Blue Bird" into a screen poem of rare beauty.

The Maeterlinck masterpiece will appeal to every mind. It has the simplicity of childhood and the wisdom of a deep but kindly philosophy. It tells great truths and it teaches the folly of fear. It dignifies the humble virtues and makes lovelier the graces of life. It has delicious humor, and its note is always one of hope. The lessons it teaches are for all ages. To sit under its spell is to receive an impulse for good that will never be effaced. It is a potent argument in favor of the screen.

Technically considered, the closest scrutiny of the Artcraft production finds but little that is not entitled to the highest praise. Certain transformations could be quickened to advantage, and the spell of weirdness is occasionally absent. For the most part the desired effect is created with compelling power and the mood of the poem is seldom lost. The first reel discloses a novel and amusing bit of screencraft. The Rich Children are having a party at their home across from the humble cottage where Tyltyl and Mytyl live. The house is brilliant with lights, but the window shades are drawn. Against the shades appear the grotesque silhouettes of the happy little dancers and the serious musicians, the latter blowing and sawing and scraping away with untiring energy.

The list of weirdly impressive or rarely enchanting scenes includes the Palace of Night, the graveyard at midnight, the Palace of Luxuries, the Cavern of Miseries, the Cathedral of Happiness and the Azure Palace. The last named is where the unborn children remain until Time opens the gate and sends them to earth where their mothers await them. Here the delicate, almost naive fancy of Maeterlinck finds its most charming expression and Director Tourneur has reproduced the spirit of the episode with a poetic simplicity that leaves nothing to be desired.

There is no need to recall in detail the story of the boy and the girl who go in search of the Blue Bird of Happiness and return to find that the object of their search dwells in their own home. The mortals, fairies and the odd characters, Light, Night, Dog, Cat, Fire, Water, Milk, Sugar and Bread that accompany the children on their search are all excellently played. Robin Macdougall as Tyltyl and Tula Belle as Mytyl are an uncommonly gifted pair of youngsters. Little Miss Tula is the embodiment of naturalness, without missing one of her points in the slightest degree. Emma Lowery as Mummy Tyl, Katherine Bianchi as Berlingot's daughter, Charles Ascot as Dog, Tom Corless as Cat and S. E. Popapovitch as Fire stand out prominently. "The Blue Bird" is in six reels.

"BILLY'S BABY."

First Capitol Comedy Released by Goldwyn Presents "Smiling Bill" Parsons and a Good Cast of People and Babies.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

RELEASED as a Capitol Comedy, "Billy's Baby," featuring "Smiling Bill" Parsons, will be enjoyed by all. It contains a lot of clean fun, is well made and is, moreover, the first of this brand released through the Goldywn Distributing Corporation. Billie Rhodes plays the feminine lead in a cast that is generally good.

The story of the comedy is simple. Bill, much envied by the "boys," becomes engaged to one of the prettiest girls in town in spite of the fact that he is both fat and baldheaded. In a moment of weakness, however, he gambles away the five-hundred-dollar diamond ring which he has bought for his beloved and is obliged to resort to untruths to pacify her. The discovery of an unusually pretty baby, the child of an Italian fruit vender, and the whereabouts of a baby show at the same time, supplies Billy with an inspiration. He steals the baby and takes his place among the mothers (black and white) at the baby show, winning the first prize and enough money to replace the lost ring. A newspaper reporter with his camera puts the finishing touches to the affair and Billy's picture with the baby and its mother appearing in the morning papers is almost the undoing of his happiness.

"THE LIFE MASK."

Madame Petrova in Five-Part Mystery Story That Will Interest Her Admirers—Released by First National.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

MYSTERY stories in general are based upon a murder. "The Life Mask" is no exception to the rule. This five-part photoplay was adapted by Mrs. L. Case Russell from a novel and Madame Olga Petrova acts the leading character. Anita Courtland commits the crime of marrying a man she does not love and is made to pay for her folly. She is already engaged to another, but breaks with him in order to save her stepmother from disgrace, the lady having become entangled financially with Woodruffe Clay, the man who marries Anita. On the bridal night Anita cannot control her repugnance for her husband and pushes him away with such force that he is badly injured. Clay has a friend named Florence Roberts, whom he has been supporting, and he insists upon having her at his bedside whenever she calls.

Anita grows to hate her husband. He insists that she take the place of the trained nurse at night and watch by him. She does so, dozes off and dreams that she has poisoned him in her sleep. When she awakes Clay is dead. Anita knows that she walks in her sleep and is haunted by the fear that she has really poisoned Clay.

The widow has a faithful old nurse and the two sail for Spain. Here Anita meets Captain Hugh Shannon, the man she has always loved. A titled Englishwoman who is anxious to have Shannon marry her daughter also appears on the scene. Just as Anita sees a chance for happiness an American newspaper arrives and she learns that she is accused of her husband's murder. Lady Mendel betrays her to the police and Anita is about to be arrested when the mystery is explained. The old nurse was the real murderer. She committed the crime to save her mistress from further unhappiness.

"The Life Mask" has a strong moral: Even three wrongs do not make a right. Its story will be followed with interest by the admirers of Madame Petrova's acting. Director Frank Crane has selected admirable locations for his Spanish scenes. The supporting cast is competent.

The picture is on the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

"BREAKERS AHEAD."

Viola Dana Presented in Story of the Sea, with Fine Photography and Lighting.

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell.

PATHOS is the dominating motive of "Breakers Ahead," the Metro five-reel feature released March 25, starring Viola Dana. It is a story of the sea, as indicated by the title, and is interestingly told for the greater part of the picture, although it is inclined to drag in the earlier reels.

Ruth's mother dies and she goes to live with her mother's friend, Agatha, in a neighboring seaside village. She falls in love with Agatha's son and all is going well when a jealous woman starts the rumor that Ruth's father and mother were never married. Ruth, being unable to disprove it, is shunned by the villagers. In the meantime her lover, Eric, and Captain Scudder, an old friend, have gone to sea. The captain, yielding to temptation, is about to allow the boat to be run on the rocks by the first mate, when Eric saves it. Returning to port the owner's son, who has also tried to win Ruth, sets fire to the ship. Ruth, believing that Eric is aboard, goes to his rescue in a small boat and is overcome by the flames. She is rescued by Eric. It then develops that Captain Scudder is Ruth's father, and that he was separated from her mother and never returned, due to a misunderstanding. Everything ends satisfactorily with the marriage of Eric and Ruth.

Charles J. Brabin directed the production and has provided some fine water scenes, as well as good lighting effects on the seashore at midnight. However, the action of the story is not altogether convincing and the story diverges considerably from the main theme at times.

Viola Dana's work as Ruth is entirely satisfactory, and she is assisted by a competent cast, including Clifford Bruce as Eric, Mabel Van Buren as Agatha and Russell Simpson, who gives a fine performance as Captain Scudder.

"CHASE ME, CHARLIE."

Charlie Chaplin Shown in Six-Part Revue, Originally Presented in the British Isles.

Reviewed by C. S. Sewell.

IN "Chase Me, Charlie," the six-reel revue released by the George Kleine system, Charlie Chaplin's rise to fame is cleverly told by means of various scenes which have been taken from a number of the pictures which he made while working with the Essanay Company, including "By the Sea," "The Tramp," "The Bank," "In the Park," "The Champion," "The Woman" and "Shanghaied."

This is an English version of Chaplin, and several of the subtitles contain references to points in England which will probably not be understood by a great many of the motion picture fans in this country. There is a lack of continuity in the production; in fact, the connection between the different scenes is made by means of the sub-titles, all of which are in rhyme. A number of these sub-titles are quite witty, several puns being introduced.

A number of the best scenes from the Essanay Chaplins have been used. However, audiences who have seen the original pictures will undoubtedly in some instances wonder why other scenes which were just as humorous from an American standpoint were not used. There are a great many hearty laughs scattered through the six reels, and considering the difficulties under which the assembler of these scenes necessarily worked it is somewhat remarkable that the result constitutes as continuous a narrative as it does.

Chaplin is assisted by Edna Purviance as Edna Sugar-Plum and Leo White as the Duke De Durti-Dog. The story shows Chaplin first as an orphan and a tramp, then through his various adventures, until he achieves prosperity and appears in a dress suit, having won the hand of Edna, and vanquished the Duke.

There are a number of references to Chaplin's popularity, two of the characters singing a song about him in one scene. Also there is a reproduction of a letter from an English Army officer, thanking the Essanay Company for sending Chaplin pictures to the boys in the trenches, and stating how much they were enjoyed.

Comments

General Film Company.

THE SONG AND THE SERGEANT (Broadway Star).—This two-reel O. Henry is a little story of the stage in which a vaudeville act falls flat. A row occurs and in the station house it develops that the reason is that the leading man loves the leading lady, and tries by his singing to let her know it, but she only weeps, not knowing why. It is lighter and hardly as good as some of the earlier numbers. Reviewed on another page of this issue.

Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

THE RED, RED HEART (Bluebird), April 1.—A five-part production featuring Monroe Salisbury. Ruth Clifford plays the leading feminine role. The production is not a strong one, but is clean and in many ways pleasing. A full review will be found elsewhere.

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

FRIEND HUSBAND (Mack Sennett) April 8.—Charles Murray, assisted by Teddy, the big Dane dog; Pepper, the cat, and a small white poodle and the rest of the cast, fill this two-part comedy full of Sennettisms. The four-footed humor is simply immense, and would make a wooden Indan split his sides from laughter. A pair of kidnapped babies and a crazy uncle keep things bubbling over for a newly married couple that have forgotten to provide themselves with an heir of their own. The oversight furnishes the plot and the Sennett business the laughs.

First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

THE LIFE MASK (Petrova Pictures).—This five-part photoplay is based upon a mysterious murder, and the interest is fairly well maintained to the finish. Madame Petrova and her supporting company keep the acting up to the Petrova pictures standard.

Fox Film Corporation.

ROUGH AND READY (Fox Standard), March 24.—A six-reel Alaskan melodrama with William Farnum. This reviewer has seen no better picture of this kind. It is rich in exciting incident, is red-blooded to a degree and has a climax that can hardly be excelled. Long runs and marked successes are predicted for it, and it can safely be boosted as a most unusual and sensational production. We have noticed it on another page of this number and at greater length.

THE CAMOUFLAGE KISS (March 31).—A comedy, with June Caprice in the role of heroine. It is too long for the matter, being five reels; but the sut-titles are especially witty and the direction is competent. There are many lovely scenes in it, and it is not without good laughs. For longer notice see another page of this issue.

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

THE SPLENDID SINNER (March 24).—A five-reel picture, with Mary Garden as heroine. It is a one-player picture, and is well worth while on account of her splendid picturing of the moods of a woman who is a sinner, but has plenty of character, and shows it. A longer notice will be found on another page of this issue.

Greater Vitagraph, Inc.

LITTLE MISS NO-ACCOUNT (April 1).—This picture is a very good specimen of juvenile fiction, and Gladys Leslie has the youthful charm necessary to the title role. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

Metro Pictures Corporation.

THE CLAIM (March 18).—In this five-reel production, based on a play of the same title, Edith Storey does some of the best work of her career, and demonstrates her ability as an actress. The story is interesting, and there are several strong scenes. Reviewed at length on page 130 of issue of April 6.

Mutual Film Corporation.

SCREEN TELEGRAM No. 7 (Mutual), March 24.—Interesting items in this number are the removal of the statue Germania—symbol of democracy—from its pedestal in St. Paul, Minn.; a train load of plough tractors on their way to France; the ploughing of the land behind the lines in France; the training of Morroccoan troops, and a demonstration by a maimed French soldier of the use of artificial limbs.

UP SHE GOES (Strand), March 26.—A rather amusing comedy, in which the Angel's Flight in Los Angeles figures largely. A young wife, whose pet hobby is attending a certain restaurant where a jazz band is employed, employs the saxaphone player to give her lessons in the absence of her husband. The husband sees the musician approaching his home as he is leaving it, and the incidents which follow form an amusing series of ups and downs on the Angel's Flight, and finally, when the husband's jealously has subsided, he employs the man to give lessons to both.

SCREEN TELEGRAM No. 8 (Mutual), March 27.—Interesting items of this issue are snow plows aiding in clearing a way for the passage of troops in the Alsace mountains and the hauling of guns over the mountains. The turning of a Louisiana pine forest into a stock farm is also shown; a review of troops at Fort Harrison, Indianapolis, and various patriotic demonstrations in different parts of the country.

A BIT OF JADE (American), April 1.—A five-part production featuring Mary Miles Minter. The picture takes the form of melodrama, and holds the interest of the spectator moderately well. A full review of the picture will be found elsewhere.

JERRY TRIES AGAIN.—An unpleasant attempt at comedy, in which the hero of the picture advertises for a wife. Before deciding to marry one of them he takes each to a doctor to obtain a health certificate, and finally he is asked to obtain one for himself, and in the events which follow he finds himself in a peck of trouble.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

MRS. SLACKER (Pathe), March 31.—A Pathe five-part Gold Rooster, written by Agnes C. Johnson, and featuring Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale, this comedy-drama has some amusing bits of humor, and is well played. It is reviewed at length on another page of this issue.

ST. FLOUR AND AUVILLAC (Pathe), April 7.—A beautifully tinted scenic, picturing a town dating back to feudal days in the province of Auvergne, France. Village types are pictured in an interesting way, as well as herds of sheep and scenes along the Jordanne River.

TIMBER TRANSPORTATION IN SWEDEN (Pathe), April 7.—On same reel with above. This gives some picturesque and exciting views of the logging industry in Sweden. The view of the raft going over various rapids is unusual. This is also in tints.

SPIES WITHIN (Pathe), April 7.—Episode No. 5 of "The House of Hate." This number contains the usual amount of exciting action, in which the "Hooded Terror" plays a leading part. Gresham rescues Pearl at the beginning from the Terror. Gresham later has an interesting brush with a spy named Baron von Rath, who is raiding his apartment. Von Rath and his valet are killed when the Terror again appears.

FOLLOW THE CROWD (Rolin-Pathe), April 7.—A comic number, featuring Harold Lloyd, Harry Pollard and Bebe Daniels. Harold invades the headquarters of a gang known as the "Red Handers." His burlesque experiences with the lady vampire and other members of the band are very funny. This is a typical number, with some good small business in it.

PIPE THE WHISKERS (Rolin), April 14.—A Herbert Lloyd one-reeler, with the scenes laid in a rest cure for old men. The star plays the part of janitor, who runs the whole works. It is not the best of the Lloyd brand, but the comedian puts his mind to his task and supplies a number of his sure-fire laughs.

Triangle Film Corporation.

THE LOVE BROKERS (Triangle), March 31.—Written by W. Carey Wonderly and featuring Alma Rubens, this five-part picture has an interesting story, and the production brings out the good points. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

World Pictures.

THE WITCH WOMAN (World), April 8.—Willard Mack is the author of "The Witch Woman," a five-part picture, starring Ethel Clayton. It is a romance of Paris, and has to do with a peasant girl. A longer review is printed on another page of this issue.

Advertising Aids for Busy Managers

IN THIS ISSUE.

The Boss of Lazy "Y" (Triangle).
The Business of Life (Vitagraph).
A Camouflage Kiss (Fox).
The Danger Game (Goldwyn).
Fast Company (Bluebird).
The Grand Passion (Bluebird Special).
The House of Silence (Paramount).
The Lie (Paramount).
Little Miss No Account (Vitagraph).
The Love Brokers (Triangle).
The Magic Eye (Universal).
His Majesty, Bunker Bean (Paramount).
The Red, Red Heart (Bluebird).
The Risky Road (Universal).
Social Hypocrites (Metro).

"THE LOVE BROKERS."

Triangle Presents Alma Rubens in W. Carey Wonderly's Story. Scenario by Charles J. Wilson. Photographed by Jock Mackenzie. Directed by E. Mason Hopper. Released March 31.

Cast.

Charlotte Carter.....Alma Rubens
Olga Grey.....Texas Guinan
Peter Ladislaw.....Joe Bennett
Gerard Townshend.....Lee Hill
Madge L'Estrange.....Betty Pearce
Dr. Catherwood.....George Pearce

The Story: Charlotte Carter, an ambitious song writer, goes to New York and finds herself swept into the whirlpool of Bohemian life. An admirer, Peter Ladislaw, turns out to be a weak but not bad fellow, whose affluence is due to the forgery of a number of checks. In trying to help him out of his difficulties, Charlotte comes under the influence of Olga Grey, a woman of the world, who proceeds to engineer a scheme by which Charlotte is to marry the wealthy and socially prominent lover of the arts, Townshend. Believing it to be a deathbed alliance for the sake of Ladislaw, Charlotte marries Townshend, and later discovers Olga's duplicity. She awakens to a true love for her husband, which serves automatically to remove from her life the parasites of an artificial world.

Feature: Alma Rubens as Charlotte Carter, Lee Hill as Gerard Townshend, and Joe Bennett as Peter Ladislaw.

Program and Advertising Phrases: She Fell in Love With Her Husband.
Cunning and Connivery Lead to Unexpected Happiness.
Harpies That Prey Upon the Weak.
Surprise and Thrills in Gripping Plot.
Her Weakness Made Her Strong.
Baffling the Wise Ones of the World.
The Seamy Side of New York's Bohemia.
Side Lights on High Society.
The Cunning of Crafty Social Parasites.
Making the Most of Opportunity.
Sensational Scenes That Grip and Thrill.
Caught in the Net of Cunning.

Stunt Suggestions: The story does not adapt itself to street advertising. Depend upon the lobby display provided by the distributor, backing it with newspaper boosting.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art heralds. Slides. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Electros and mats. Photos. Triangle magazine. Press sheet.

"THE BOSS OF THE LAZY 'Y.'"

Triangle Presents Charles Alden Seltzer's Story, Scenarioized by Cinema Exchange. Directed by Cliff Smith. Photographed by Steve Rounds. Released April 7.

Cast.

Calumet Marston.....Roy Stewart
Jim Marston.....Graham Pette
Tom Taggart.....Frank McQuarrie
Neal Taggart.....Aaron Edwards
Betty Clayton.....Josie Sedgwick
Malcolm Clayton.....Walt Whitman
Bob Clayton.....Frankie Lee
Dane Toban.....Wm. Ellingford
Dade.....Bill Patton

The Story: After years of aimless wandering, Calumet Marston returns to his home, the Lazy "Y" Ranch, only to hear that his father has just been killed by Tom Taggart, a squatter. The ranch has been left in charge of Betty Clayton, whom Cal has come to like, and when he hears Tom Taggart, the son of the slayer of his father, make slanderous remarks about Betty he thrashes him. Tom's vengeance comes when he fires upon Cal from ambush, wounding him, but is prevented from killing him by Betty, who fires upon Tom. Tom escapes, and he and his father plan to "get" Cal, but their well laid plans go awry. The father kills his son, but not before he himself is mortally wounded by his own boy. This news paves the way for a lasting happiness between Cal and Betty.

Feature: Roy Stewart as Calumet Marston and Josie Sedgwick as Betty Clayton.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Father Kills Son in Deadly Feud.
Red Blood in Real Men of the West.
A Winning Fight for Woman's Reputation.
Manhood Rides Where Honor Calls.
The Best Traditions of the West.
True Chivalry on Western Ranches.
Love Wins When Bullets Fail.
True Love Wins in Cupid's Duel.
Cupid's Darts Outlast Bullets.
Where Men Are Square and Love Is Real.

Stunt Suggestions: Any "Western" stunt may be hooked up with this feature. Riders in cowboy costume carrying advertising cards could be used as a street stunt. But there is no specific "aid" that seems to apply especially to this attraction.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Special process art herald. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Slides. Electros and mats. Photos. Triangle Magazine. Press sheet.

"THE RED, RED HEART."

Bluebird Presents Bess Meredyth's Screen Adaptation of Honore Willsie's Book. Directed by Wilfred Lucas. Released April 8.

Cast.

Kut-le .....Monroe Salisbury
Jack Newman.....Val Paul
Katherine Newman.....Gretchen Lederer
Rhoda Tuttle.....Ruth Clifford
John DeWitt.....Allan Sears
Billy Porter.....Monte Blue
Molly .....Princess Neola

The Story: Her health shattered by the death of her parents, Rhoda Tuttle is taken to Arizona by her fiance, John De Witt. She is left in the care of Jack Newman and his wife, Katherine, who do everything to cheer her. Their attempts are unavailing and Kut-le, an educated Indian employed by Newman on an engineering project, realizes that the only way to cure the melancholy girl is to take her to the desert away from civilization. DeWitt and his friend, Billy Porter, distrust the Indian and tries to dissuade him from carrying out his idea, but he perseveres and takes Rhoda away. In the desert he guards her against all harm and sees that she suffers no discomfort. In time DeWitt and Porter locate Rhoda, and the Indian, in self-defense, overcomes the men and then voluntarily relinquishes the girl. The true character of DeWitt is revealed in his trying to kill Kut-le surreptitiously, and this action determines Rhoda to give her heart and hand to the man who reclaimed her.

Feature Monroe Salisbury as Kut-le, the educated Indian, and Ruth Clifford as Rhoda Tuttle, the girl who regains her health and strength in primitive life.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Love takes true hearts back to the primitive.
Alone on the desert love finds its mate.
Health and strength in primitive life.
Romance in the Great open desert.
Ruth Clifford, prettiest of screen queens.
Monroe Salisbury, hero of "Ramona."
Bluebird's latest and best feature.
Love comes to strangely mated pair.
Thrills multiplied by sensations.
The noble red man's valiant deeds.
Beautiful photography reflects nature's glories.
The great open West shown in brilliant scenes.

Stunt Suggestions: As the hero is an Indian there is opportunity to use Indian trappings and devices in decorating the lobby. In every community there are people who have Indian relics that might be loaned for a window display that would attract attention and create interest in the subject. "Stunts" require more than suggestion—they need working out by the manager, one idea bringing out another. Boys in Indian costume could roam the streets with painted cards, advertising theater and date of show. Hearts made of cardboard and covered with red glazed paper of exaggerated size would attract attention as the basis of the advertisement.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Stock one-sheet of star. Colored and black-and-white lobby displays. Slide. Player cuts in three sizes. Scene cuts, one and two columns. Heralds. Press sheet.

"HIS MAJESTY, BUNKER BEAN."

Jesse L. Lasky's Presentation of Jack Pickford in a Great Stage Success. Based on Harry Leon Wilson's Saturday Evening Post Story. Scenario by Julia Crawford Ivers. Directed by William D. Taylor. Paramount Release for April 8.

Cast.

Bunker Bean.....Jack Pickford
The Flapper.....Louise Huff
Jim Breede.....Jack McDonald
His Wife.....Frances Clanton
His Oldest Daughter.....Peggy O'Connell
Old Mrs. Breede.....Edythe Chapman
The Greatest Pitcher.....Hart Hoxie
Prof. Balthaser....Gustaf von Seyffertitz

The Story: Bunker Bean, a stenographer, convinces himself that he has lived before, and is informed by a fortune teller that he was Napoleon. He declines the relationship and again visits the fortune teller, who this time succeeds in making Bunker believe that he is a reincarnation of Rameses the Great—a king of ancient Egypt—whose mummy lies in state in an old tomb. An opportunely inherited fortune enables Bunker to obtain the mummy, and then he believes that he is a king and acts like one. He becomes intimate with the family of his boss, and later amasses a big fortune in Wall Street. He marries Flapper, the youngest member of the boss' family, and later Bunker receives a surprise when his little dog removes the filling from the mummy. Bunker then realizes that "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he," and thinks accordingly.

Feature Jack Pickford as Bunker Bean and Louise Huff as the Flapper.

Program and Advertising Phrases: A great stage success on the screen.
Jack Pickford's latest and best role.
Work of popular fiction shown in photoplay.
Harry Leon Wilson's great story visualized.
"As a man thinketh in heart, so he is."
The influence of mind over matter.
The science of believing in yourself.
An inquisitive puppy and a mummy's filling.
The reincarnation of Rameses the Great.
The outcome of high and lofty ambitions.
How a stenographer made himself famous.
Bunker Bean's second trip on earth.
How a dog investigated theosophy.
Great stage success shown on the screen.

Stunt Suggestions: If Napoleon were alive and Rameses was not still entombed there would be great opportunity for "stunts"; but, as it is, dependence must be placed upon ordinary methods of advertising. Dwell upon the fact that a successful story, made into a Broadway stage hit, now has Jack Pickford to present it on the screen. Hook up with Paramount's national advertising. Have copies of all advertisements framed in the lobby.

Advertising Aids: Two designs each one, three and six-sheets. Rotogravure. Photos, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Ten cuts each on star and production, one to three columns wide. Advertising layout mats. Slides. Press book.

"THE RISKY ROAD."

Universal Presents a Dorothy Phillips Production, Made from Katherine Leiser Robbins' Story by Ida May Park. Released April 8.

Cast.

Marjorie Helmer.....Dorothy Phillips
Melville Kingston.....Wm. Stowell
Robert Grant.....Geo. Cheseboro
Miles Kingston.....Edw. Cecil
Van Belt.....Jos. Girard
Lottie Bangor.....Juanita Hansen
Mrs. Miles Kingston.....Claire DuBrey
Myrtle .....Sally Starr

The Story: In the city where she has gone to earn her living as a stenographer, Marjorie Helmer makes the acquaintance of Melville Kingston. Poverty forces her to accept a proposition from Kingston which provides that she is to be set up in a luxurious apartment, and that at the end of a specified period she is to come to his way of thinking or he to hers. She is constantly depressed over the idea, and when she sees that Kingston has a wife she sends for her country sweetheart, Robert Grant, who, seeing the elegance of her home becomes convinced, notwithstanding her protestations of innocence, that she is not an honest working girl. Kingston, however, sees "her way of thinking," and, after explaining that the woman Marjorie believes to be his wife is his sister-in-law, proposes to her, and is accepted.

Feature Dorothy Phillips as Marjorie Helmer and William Stowell as Melville Kingston.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Furnished flats and French maids do not always bring happiness.
The country girl seeks city life with strange results.
An experiment in happiness.
Married life without a husband.
The humiliation of unmarried suspicion.
The lure of the beautiful.
An armed experiment in luxury.
Taking happiness on probation.
Testing an experimental marriage.
A shorthand course in happiness.
Testing experimental matrimony.
Trusting happiness on thin ice.
Seeking happiness by new methods.

Stunt Suggestions: There is nothing in the story to suggest stunts. Special interest might be created in interesting stenographers in the various business offices in your town. Offer a prize for the best criticism of the play written by a stenographer. Street stunts will be hard to devise.

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. One-sheet of star. Black and white lobby displays. Slide. Player cuts. Heralds. Press book.

"A CAMOUFLAGE KISS."

Fox Presents June Caprice in a Five-Reel Comedy-Drama That Abounds in Laughs and Thrills. Story Written by Stephen Fox and Scenarioized by Ralph H. Spence. Directed by Harry Millarde and Released March 31.

Cast.

Martha Thorne.....June Caprice
Rudolph King.....Bernard Thornton
Pell Kingston.....Pell Trenton
John Chandler.....George Bunny
Irene Chandler.....Lola May

The Story: John Chandler is in the pork business. Rudolph King is a manufacturer of beans. Chandler's business is poor, so he suggests to King that they combine on a pork and beans corporation. King is reluctant until he sees Martha Thorne, Chandler's sister-in-law. To advance his love for Martha he combines with Chandler. He is very bashful, however. To be sure Martha will not be angry if he kisses her. He urges Pell Kingston to steal one in the dark first. Pell does. Martha, thinking King stole the kiss, is happy. She likes the kiss. When she learns later, however, that King camouflaged his kiss she shows how much she loves a good kisser by—well what's the use of telling everything.

Feature: June Caprice as Martha Thorne, the "Sunshine Maid," and Bernard Thornton as Rudolph King, who camouflaged a kiss.

Program and Advertising Phrases: June Caprice shows in this play she knows something about kisses, especially kisses that are stolen in the dark. The story is brimful of good natured humor.
A rollicking play that revolves around a kiss and has in it besides stirring touches of humor that result from the combination of pork and bean manufacturers.
A drama of love and the food question.
A romance based on a kiss in the dark.

Stunt Suggestions. Have streamer in front of the house bearing the words, "Do not kiss in the lobby. June Caprice will do all the kissing today on the screen." In the lobby have streamers with these words, "Have you ever had your kisses camouflaged? Want to know how? June Caprice will show you here next....." "Is your husband or sweetheart camouflaging his kissing? June Caprice will show you how to tell a camouflager." Get your candy store man to put out a line of candy called "Camouflage Kisses," and have him put this sign in his window, "Mexican Kisses are out of style. Take home a pound of Camouflage Kisses after you have seen Miss June Caprice at the .....theater."

Advertising Aids: Two styles each one, three and six-sheets. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14, 22x28. Press sheet. Mats.

"FAST COMPANY."

Bluebird Presents Franklyn Farnum in John McDermott Story; Scenario by Eugene B. Lewis and Waldemar Young; Directed by Lynn F. Reynolds. Released April 1.

Cast.

Lawrence Percival.....Franklyn Farnum
Peter Van Huyler.....Fred Montague
Mrs. Van Huyler.....Katherine Griffith
Alicia Vanderveldt.....Juanita Hansen
Dan McCarty.....Lon Chaney
Richard Barnaby.....Edward Cecil

The Story: Lawrence Percival Van Huyler has developed into a perfect specimen of a mollycoddle as the result of his bringing up, although he protested strongly to his parents against their method. He is engaged to Alicia Vanderveldt, who finally leaves him for the more manly Richard Barnaby, who tells her of his explorations and travels in foreign lands. In the ruins of an old building, Percival finds a confession from the founder of the Van Huyler fortunes stating that he (the founder) was not a Dutch patron, that his real name was Patrick John O'Malley, that he was born in Ireland, and that he had made his money through piratical activities. Percival is delighted to learn that he is an Irishman, and starts on a round of fun that lands him in jail. When he is released he exposes Barnaby, after discovering the volume from which he extracted all his discoveries and exploits, and eventually wins back Alicia.

Feature: Franklyn Farnum as Lawrence Percival Van Huyler, and Junanita Hansen as Alicia Vanderveldt.

Program and Advertising Phrases: "Gee! It's great to be Irish."
Imagine a Mollycoddle in Ireland!
Smiling Franklyn Farnum's Best Comedy.
Laugh and the World Laughs With You.
How a Mollycoddle Became a Real Man.
Living Down His Bringing Up.
"A Pirate—an Irishman. Oh, joy! I'm Irish."
Fighting Himself Into Jail and Out Again.
How a Wild Irishman Reformed Society.
Eloquence of a Two-Fisted Irishman.
Roaring Comedy of Laughs and Shouts.

Stunt suggestions: Dependence must be placed on advertising helps the distributor supplies. Men on motorcycles could do street advertising by carrying cards on both sides of their machine, "When you are with me you are in 'Fast Company.' You will also be in 'Fast Company' at the (name of theater and date)."

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six sheets. Stock one-sheet of star. Colored and black and white lobby displays. Slide. Heralds. Player cuts in three sizes. Scene cuts one and two columns wide. Press book.

"THE HOUSE OF SILENCE."

Jesse L. Lasky Presents Wallace Reid in a Screen Version of Elwyn Barron's Novel, "Marcel Levignet." Scenario by Margaret Turnbull; Directed by Donald Crisp. Paramount Releases for April 8.

Cast.

Marcel Levignet.....Wallace Reid
Toinette Rogers.....Ann Little
Mrs. Clifton.....Adele Farrington
Dr. Rogers.....Winter Hall
Leroy.....Ernest Joy
Carter.....H. A. Barrows

The Story: A wealthy young man takes upon himself the task of tracing the perpetrator of what is believed to be a murder in a mysterious dwelling. It is true a man was killed, and a respected judge at that, but the homicide was committed by a young woman with her hat-pin in defense of her honor. The identity of the woman in question is established by means of the hat-pin and purse found near the body. The dramatic thrills which the development of the story create, the heart interest, the comedy are happily combined, and will be of interest to everyone.

Feature: Wallace Reid as Marcel Levignet, and Ann Little as Toinette Rogers.

Program and Advertising Phrases: The Doings of Sherlock Holmes, Jr.
Tracing Crime to the Wrong Door.
The Hat-pin, Weapon of Defense, Proves Its Worth.
Dramatic Thrills Blend With Sensations.
Wallace Reid in His Best Role.
An Amateur Detective's Surprising Discoveries.
Sure as Sin—Murder Will Out!
Thrills and Comedy Happily Combined.
The Latest and Best Paramount Photoplay.
Mysterious Murder Strangely Justified.
How a Common Hat-pin Avenged a Wrong.
You'll Think More of Your Hat-pin.

Stunt Suggestions: Window displays of all sorts of hat-pins may be hooked-up with this attraction, using a lettered card reading, "A Hat-pin Avenged a Wrong in 'The House of Silence,' Coming to (name of theater and date)." Empty houses and stores afford a place to tack these lettered cards, "This Is 'The House of Silence.' See the photoplay at (name of theater and date)." Frame copies of all national advertising Paramount is doing, and hang in lobby. It will keep your house hooked-up with a big campaign, and will influence those who read the advertisements in magazines, etc.

Advertising Aids: Two each one, three and six-sheets. One 24-sheet. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Cuts from one to three columns on star and production. Advertising layout mats. Slides. Press book.

"SOCIAL HYPOCRITES."

Metro Presents May Allison in a Screen Version of Alice Ramsey's Play, "Bridge." Scenario by Albert Capellani and June Mathis. Directed by Mr. Capellani. Photographed by Eugene Gaudio. Released April 6.

Cast.

Leonore Fielding.....May Allison
Col. Francis Fielding.....Frank Currier
Lord Royle Fitzmaurice (Monsieur Royle).....Joseph Kilgour
Dr. Frank Sampson.....Henry Kolker
Lady Vanessa Norton.Stella Hammerstein
Maria, Duchess of St. Keverne, Marie Wainwright
Fluffy (her companion)....Maggie Breyer
Lady Felicia Mountstephen, Ethel Winthrop
Father Gilbert Grandon..Stephen Gratton

The Story: Upon the death of her father, who has been accused of cheating at cards, Leonora Fielding is cared for by Lady Mountstephen. Later, Lady Mountstephen tires of Leonora, and refuses to pay her extravagant bills. Lord Royle, who has been attentive to her, pays the bills. She afterwards learns that he is married to Lady Norton. Leonora, desiring to repay Lord Royle, determines to win the necessary money at cards. Lady Norton, having learned that her husband paid Leonora's bills, determines to be revenged, and, after substituting duplicate marked cards, accuses Leonora of being a cheat. Leonora is ordered to leave. A friend whose love she has not reciprocated, Dr. Sampson, comes to her rescue, and announces he is going to

-maybe Stone has it

Here's a "Film Library" of Special Scenes.

When you want to "Flash In" a Fire, Explosion, Rough Water, Wreck, Collision, Submarine, Zeppelin, Sunset, Ship Arriving or Departing, Naval, Guns Firing, Shots Striking, War Stuff of Foreign or U. S. Action, Travel Scenes anywhere in the World, Scientific, Industrial, Insect, Animal or Bird Life, Magic, Colored or Non-Flam,

"MAYBE STONE HAS IT"
145 W. 45th St. New York

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe—for authoritative articles by leading British technical men—for brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE
The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation
85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.
Specimen on Application

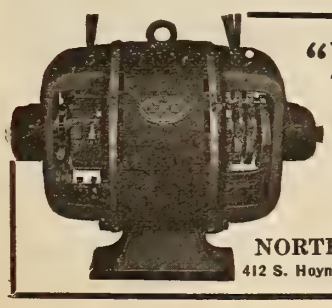
PHOTO-GRAVURE PROGRAM
4 pages; size, 8½ inches long and 5½ inches in width. Picture covers nearly entire front page. 35 BIG NAMES. Write for specimens, $2.50 per thousand in any quantity desired.

New Colored Catalogue Now Ready

The Photo-gravure program is a real souvenir and will bring you more patrons.

LARGE HANDCOLORED PICTURES
Size 22x28 inches. Every prominent player.....75c. each
FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $2.50 to $35, framed.
THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 per thousand, of over 600 players.
PHOTOGRAPHS, size 8x10, of all the prominent players, 600 different names, 20c. each.
LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11x14, all the prominent players, 20c.
GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, $10 per thousand.
SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 50c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.
220 West 42nd Street, New York
12th Floor, Candler Building



"MARTIN" ROTARY CONVERTER
FOR REAL SUN-LIT PICTURES
PERFECT REEL DISSOLVING
WRITE FOR FURTHER INFORMATION
NORTHWESTERN ELECTRIC CO.
412 S. Hoyne Ave., Chicago 1010 Brokaw Bldg., New York

THE CINEMA
NEWS AND PROPERTY GAZETTE
30 Gerrard Street, W. I. London, England
Has the quality circulation of the trade in Great Britain and the Dominions. All Official Notices and News from the ASSOCIATION to its members are published exclusively in this journal.
Yearly Rate—Postpaid, Weekly, $7.25
Sample copy and advertising rates on request.
Appointed by Agreement Dated 7/8/14 THE OFFICIAL ORGAN of
THE CINEMATOGRAPH EXHIBITORS' ASSOCIATION OF GREAT BRITAIN & IRELAND, LTD

marry her. A hand-bag which Leonora picks up by error results in her establishing her innocence, and her father's memory is cleared by the dying words of Earl of St. Albans.

Feature: May Allison as Leonore Fielding and Henry Kolker as Dr. Frank Sampson.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Unlucky in Love and Cards.
Screen Version of Great Stage Success.
Gamblers All—But Not All Cheats.
Fate Turned the Lucky Card.
Love and Lace at the Gambling Table.
Society Gamblers and Social Frauds.
Cupid Wins Against a Marked Deck.
True Love Turns the Ace of Hearts.
Tricks of Society Gamblers Exposed.
Card Cheats and Society Frauds.
True Love Holds the Winning Hand.

Stunt Suggestions: Bridge counters may be given as prizes. Decks of cards flooding the floor of a store-window may be hooked up with the feature by painted cards. Kewpie Dolls used to add effect to the display will prove attractive. Play on the gambling habit in high society in your newspaper advertising. Four aces painted on cards of exaggerated size may be used to ornament the lobby.

Advertising Aids: Two styles each one, three and six-sheets. Press sheet. Ten-minute novel for newspapers. Lobby sheet. Slides. Heralds. Cuts. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Press sheet. Filler sheet.

"THE LIE."

Adolph Zukor Presents Elsie Ferguson in an Artcraft Production of Henry Arthur Jones' Play. Scenario by Charles Maigne. Directed by J. Searle Dawley. Released April 8.

Cast.

Elinor Shale.....Elsie Ferguson
Gerald Forster.....David Powell
Sir Robert Shale.....John L. Shine
Nol Dibdin.....Percy Marmont
Hamp, butler.....Charles Sutton
Gibbard, maid.....Bertha Kent
Lady Beachworth...Maude Turner Gordon
Lucy Shale.....Betty Howe

The Story: Elinor Shale is the daughter of Sir Robert Shale, a dissipated Englishman. She is in love with a man of wealth and social standing, when her sister, Lucy, confesses a shameful secret to her. Lucy later becomes the mother of a son for whom Elinor finds a godmother, thus opening the door of scandal, and by which she is the innocent sufferer. Lucy weds the man whom her sister loves, but the latter makes no complaint, she preferring to suffer in silence rather than have her sister exposed. Elinor ultimately finds happiness in her love for another, and in the affection of her little nephew who worships her as his mother.

Feature: Elsie Ferguson as Elinor Shale, David Powell as Gerald Forster, and Betty Howe as Elinor's sister, Lucy.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Elsie Ferguson's Greatest Success.
Intensely Dramatic and Appealing.
Tremenduously Successful as a Stage Offering.
"The Lie" Was Henry Arthur Jones' Greatest Play.
Great Broadway Stage Success Brought to the Screen.
The Sacrifice of Love Rewarded.
An Unusually Heart-Appealing Subject.
Dramatic Action and Tense Situations.
A Great Lesson in Sacrifice and Devotion.

Stunt Suggestions: Offer a prize for the biggest lie that can be told in 50 words. Advertise it in the newspapers, and make the editors the judges. This will stir advance interest and pave the way for the regular announcement of the play and showing date. Have small cards for throw-aways, having theater and date in small type, but bold letters for "You Lie," "The Lie," "It's a Lie," "What a Lie." You'll find people hanging onto them for use as "jokers." The idea may be enlarged upon for men to carry signs through the street as "sandwich boards."

Attention

Independent Producer Or Distributors

I am in the market for unexploited Feature Productions of merit for certain territories. Before offering see me. Phone, wire or write.

AL ROSENTHAL

9th Floor—406 W. 31st Street
New York City, N. Y.

UNIVERSAL
Motion Picture Camera more speed better results,
at half the price:
Write for 6 new features.
Burke & James, Inc.
240 E. Ontario St., Chicago

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL
HIGH Quality
LOW Price
and CAST IRON
Opera Chairs
Immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating. Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich. New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

There's a chance to play up the title in many ways to attract interested attention.

Advertising Aids: Two styles each one, three and six-sheets. Rotogravure. Lobby displays, 8x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Ten cuts each of star and production, one to three columns wide. Slides. Advertising layout mats. Press book.

"THE DANGER GAME."

Goldwyn Presents Madge Kennedy in Roy Somerville's Comedy. Directed by Harry Pollard. Photographed by William Fildew. Released April 7.

Cast.

Clytie Rogers.....Madge Kennedy
Jimmie Gilpin.....Tom Moore
LeRoy Hunter.....Paul Doucet
William Rogers.....Ned Burton
May Wentworth.....Mabel Ballin
Mrs. Rogers.....Kate Blancke

The Story: Clytie Rogers, a society girl, writes a novel which is severely criticized by Jimmie Gilpin, a book critic, who says that the incidents devised for such a heroine as the author has created are entirely improbable. Clytie, to prove that they are suitable, decides to enact her own story. After having promised to marry LeRoy Hunter, a suitor, she suddenly leaves him. Her first adventure is her entrance into an apartment, and when about to be caught dashes out, only to run into the arms of an officer. At the police station she is recognized by an onlooker, who secures her release. Without revealing his identity he takes her on a series of criminal adventures, protecting her always. She manages to escape from her charge, who follows her home, where to her joy she learns that he is Gilpin, the critic.

Feature: Madge Kennedy as Clytie Rogers, the girl, who is ambitious to become a novelist, and Tom Moore as Jimmie Gilpin, the story critic.

Program and Advertising Phrases: An Adventure on a Venture.
A Wilful Daughter of the Rich.
Authoress Enacts Her Own Story in Real Life.
What No Well-Brought-Up Girl Would Do.
A Venture in Criminal Experimenting.
The Heart of the Underworld.
A Rich Girl's Love of Adventure.
The Adventure of "Powder Nose Annie."
Playing a Dangerous Game at Prison Risk.
Madge Kennedy—Our Favorite Drawing Card.
Clever Mixture of Comedy and Melodrama.
Satire on New York's Greenwich Village.

Stunt Suggestions: Pistols and powder-puffs figure prominently in the story. Stills of the star may be hooked up with a display of puffs and powder at the druggists. Here is a good chance for the druggest to "sample" talcum powder in

We have for sale Twenty Million Dollar Mystery, 22 reels; Zudora, 18 reels; and Million Dollar Mystery, 46 reels. We also have a large stock of new and commercial film in all lengths for all parts of the globe.
Established 1908.
THE FILM EXCHANGE
126 West 46th St., New York City

PHOTOPLAYLETS
MAKE YOUR LOCAL MERCHANTS GLAD TO USE
SCREEN ADVERTISING
Exclusive Territory — Wonderful Sample Outfits — Helpful Cooperation — Investigate
ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO. 1339-51 Diversey Pkwy. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THE AUTOMATIC
TICKET SELLING and CASH REGISTER CO.
MANUFACTURERS OF
AUTOMATICKET MACHINES
and all kinds of Theatre Tickets
USED UNIVERSALLY
1735 BROADWAY N. Y. CITY

your audience. Also pictures of the star using a revolver might induce the hardware merchant to make a special display of "guns." Street stunts will be hard to device.

Advertising Aids: One one-sheet, two three-sheets, one six and one 24-sheet. Rotogravure one-sheet. Lobby displays, 8 x10, 11x14 and 22x28. Coming and current slides. Advertising and scene cuts. Photographic line-cut copy for ads. Press book.

"THE MAGIC EYE."

Universal Presents a Little Zoe Rae Production. Story by Norris Shannon. Scenario by Frank H. Clark. Directed by Rea Berger. Released April 1.

Cast.

John Bowman.....H. A. Barrows
His Wife.....Claire Du Brey
Shirley.....Zoe Rae
Bullard.....Charles H. Mailes
Jack.....Wm. Carroll
Cordy.....Elwood Burdell

The Story: For fear that his ship would be torpedoed, John Bowman, captain of a tramp steamer, does not take his wife and Shirley, their six year old daughter, with him on the voyage. He leaves them and his life insurance policy with Sam Bullard, agent of the line. Shirley, who seems to be possessed of an uncanny sixth sense, has a vision in which her father's ship is destroyed, and the next day Bullard brings news that Bowman's vessel has been sunk, and that all on board have perished. Shirley refuses to believe that her father has met his death, for in her vision she had seen him clinging to a raft. Bullard and Mrs. Bowman go to the city to collect the insurance. A secret that Mrs. Bowman has kept from her husband is that in her girlhood days she had eloped with Bullard, who betrayed her, and in the city Bullard tries to get her to marry him. Shirley receives a message from her father, who is on a stalled yacht outside the harbor, and her answer brings him home quickly. He and Shirley then go to the rescue of the wife and mother, and a sound thrashing is meted out to Bullard.

Feature: H. A. Barrows as John Bowman, the captain; Claire Du Brey as his wife, and Zoe Rae as Shirley, their daughter, blessed with the sixth sense.

Program and Advertising Phrases: "A Little Child Shall Lead Them."
Childish Eyes See Wondrous Things.
Faith Sees Through Darkened Vision.
When the Sea Gave Back Its Dead.
Led to Happiness by Childish Hands.
Faith an Unshaken Foundation.
Intrigue and Villainy Thwarted.
Sensations and Thrills Abound.
Hope Deferred Brings Rejoicing.
The Magic Eye of Childhood.
The Screen's Youngest Star.
Little Zoe Rae—the Wonder Child.
Forceful Appeal to Young and Old.

Stunt Suggestions: Make a special "play" for patronage of kiddies. With a child star this feature will especially please children. Make a "drive" for the schools, giving a special performance after school hours. Where the children go the parents will want to be. Make a point in your advertising that this is an attraction especially appealing to women and children, with the plot hinging on the actions of a child.

Advertising Aids: One style each one, three and six-sheets. One-sheet of players. Black and white lobby displays. Slide. Player and scene cuts. Heralds. Press book.

"THE BUSINESS OF LIFE."

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature, Based on the Novel of the Same Title by Robert W. Chambers. Starring Alice Joyce. Directed by Tom Terriss. Released April 8.

Cast.

Jacqueline Nevers.....Alice Joyce
Mrs. Elena Clydesdale.....Betty Blythe
James Desboro.....Walter McGrail
Cary Clydesdale.....Percy Standing
Aunt Hannah.....Mrs. Nellie Spaulding
Waudle .....Templer Saxe
Cairus .....Herbert Pattee

The Story: In order to raise funds James Desboro, a bachelor, negotiates with Jacqueline Nevers, who is conducting the antique business of her dead father, for the sale of his vast collection of antique armor. Jacqueline goes daily to his home in Silverwood to chronicle the pieces, and he falls in love with her. Desboro gives a house party, to which Jacqueline and Mrs. Clydesdale, a woman in love with him, are invited. At a game they play Jacqueline is hidden and is told that she shall marry the man who finds her. So that Desboro will not locate her Mrs. Clydesdale detains him in another room until the game is over. When Desboro learns of the trick he upbraids Mrs. Clydesdale and marries Jacqueline. Mrs. Clydesdale poisons Jacqueline's mind against her husband, and the two are estranged. Illness overtakes Mrs. Clydesdale, who has been reconciled to her husband, and, remorseful, confesses to Jacqueline that what she said against Desboro is false, and Jacqueline goes back to her husband.

Feature Alice Joyce as Jacqueline Meyers, Walter McGrail as James Desboro and Betty Blythe as Mrs. Elena Clydesdale.

Program and Advertising Phrases: Another best seller goes into photoplays.
Robert W. Chambers' great novel visualized.
The best of Vitagraph's Blue Ribbon features.
Alice Joyce presented in an ideal role.
A drama of emotional intensity.
Modern love in ancient armor.
Antiques of love brought up to date.
The profitable business of love-making.
Malice, intrigue and suspicion lends thrills.
Hide-and-seek in Cupid's bower.
Paying the price of spiteful intrigue.
Dangerous doings in high society.
Brilliant portrayals in heart-interest drama.
Visualizing on the screen a "best seller."

Stunt Suggestions: Society dramas are hard to couple with "stunts." If your book-seller will display the book there will be a mutual benefit. Displays of fine gowns in store windows may be coupled with the feature by window cards reading: "Beautiful gowns like these are worn by Alice Joyce and her society friends in 'The Business of Life' at (theater and date)."

Advertising Aids: One design each one,

MUSLIN BANNERS
3 X 12 FT. $1.50 PREPAID
PAINTED IN 4 COLORS
WE MAKE a SPECIALTY of DISPLAY CARDS and BANNERS for every PURPOSE
SAMPLINER ADV. CO. Inc.
729 Seventh Avenue New York

AMERICAN
Fotoplayer
(Trade Mark Registered)
The Musical Marvel | Write for Catalogue
AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO.
62 West 45th Street New York City

We Manufacture
Complete EXIT Signs
65 to 70 Cents in Quantity
Also Fire Escape Signs and Other Specialties
T. L. ROBINSON & CO.
105 W. Monroe St., Chicago

PATENTS
Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan & Trust Bldg., Washington, D. C.

MOTIOGRAPH SERVICE
Pronounced by every user
THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.
574 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.
Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

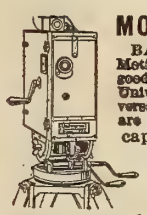
EXHIBITORS SUPPLY CO., Inc.
Mallers Building, CHICAGO, ILL.
Exclusive Distributors
Simplex Machines
Illinois Indiana Wisconsin

SWAAB
SIMPLEX MACHINE
Distributor
PENNSYLVANIA, NEW JERSEY, DELAWARE, MARYLAND
1327 VINE STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Repairing and All Supplies

Watch for coming announcement of
SESSUE HAYAKAWA PRODUCTIONS
Haworth Pictures Corporation
H. W. Hellman Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

CLUNE FILM PRODUCING CO.
Los Angeles, California
Producers of "RAMONA" (8½ reels) and "THE EYES OF THE WORLD" (8½ reels)
Harold Bell Wright's famous love story of adventure, of which nearly 2,000,000 copies have been sold, magnificently reproduced.
Available for state rights.

In Our Department "Advertising Aids for Exhibitors" the Busy Manager Will Find a Mine of Practicable Stunts to Help Him Play Up the Feature of His Show. Use the Department Every Week.



MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS
BASS TESTED AND GUARANTEED Motion Picture Cameras are the acme of good value. Whether you purchase a new Universal at a big saving or a used Universal at prices from $195 to $235, you are obtaining a camera of undoubted capabilities. USED MOTION PICTURE CAMERAS ALWAYS ON HAND
BASS CAMERA COMPANY
111 N. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.
M. P. CAMERA DEPT.

SOLIDHED POSTER TACKS

½ In., 25c. ⅝ In., 35c.
11/16 In., 50c. per 100
THE HANDY HAMMERLESS TACK
Solidhed Tack Co., 38 Murray St., N. Y.

OUR SPECIALTY IS PLAIN and FANCY TITLES
Printed in Any Language
Write or Call
VELASCO & PUIG
145 W. 45th St., New York Phone: Bryant 6837

HAVE YOU AND HAVE YOU

Ever stopped to consider why a splendid film subject is sometimes killed in projecting to the screen?

Ever stopped to consider why a poor film subject has many times been improved in projecting to the screen?

The answers are—the OPERATING EQUIPMENT and the SCREEN. Watch your screen results and the box results will take care of themselves. CONSULT three and six-sheets. Window cards. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Heralds. Slides. Plan book. Press sheet.

B. F. PORTER, 1482 Broadway (on the Square), at Times Square, New York

"THE GRAND PASSION."

A Seven-Part Visualization of Thomas Addison's Novel, "The Boss of Powderville," Dramatized by Ida May Parks. Bluebird Special Release.

Cast.

Viola Argos.....Dorothy Phillips
Dick Evans.....William Stowell
Jack Ripley.....Jack Mulhall
Paul Argos.....Lon Chaney
Red Pete Jackson.....Bert Appling
Boston Kate.....Evelyn Selbie

The Story: Richard Evans is boss of Powderville. He owns the town and its munition industries. He is drunk with power. He decides to start a newspaper for the revenue to be gained from the dives, and imports Jack Ripley to run it. Jack persuades Evans to make the sheet a power for good instead of an organ of blackmail. This precipitates a war of the divekeepers, who abduct the girl both Evans and Ripley love. In rescuing her the evil end of the town is wiped out by fire, and the denizens attack the boss and Jack, who fight them off. Evans is fatally wounded, but dies happy in the knowledge that Viola at last knows his worth.

Feature These Players: Dorothy Phillips, star of "Pay Me," etc. William Stowell as the Boss of Powderville. Jack Nulhall as the young editor.

Program and Advertising Phrases: He bossed a whole town save one woman.
Love brought death, but death brought honor.
He burned the dens of vice for a woman's sake.

Stunt Suggestions: Send an auto through the streets with a woman and two evil looking men; the woman should have her head muffled, and be forcibly restrained from jumping out. And on the back of the car have a sign, "For the reason for this abduction see 'The Grand Passion' at the ..... theater today."

Advertising Aids: One, three, six, twelve and 24-sheet posters. Full set of stills. Half tones for all newspaper needs. Press sheets. "Treasure Box" of exhibitors' self-helps.

"LITTLE MISS NO ACCOUNT."

Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature, Starring Gladys Leslie in a Screen Version of Edward P. Smaney's "Best Seller," "The Reflections of Scarlet." Scenario by A. Van Buren Powell. Directed by William P. S. Earle. Released April 1.

Cast.

Patty Baring.....Gladys Leslie
Edwin Sayer.....Frank O'Connor
Josiah Wheeler.....William Calhoun
Ann Wheeler-Ballinger....Eulalie Jensen
Stebbins.....West Jenkins
Herman.....Richard Wangemen
Ned.....Carlton King
Bobby.....Stephen Carr

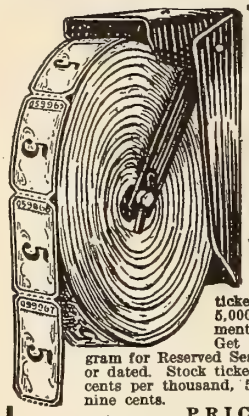
The Story: The stepfather of Patty Baring schemes with his sister to get Patty to sign certain papers which would deliver to them her big estate. They impose so many indignities upon her that Patty runs away on her eighteenth birthday, the day the schemers had planned to get hold of the fortune, and is adopted by the father of a newsboy she had befriended. In the store the boy's father runs she meets a gambler and an assistant district attorney. The attorney falls in love with her, and the gambler, to discredit her in the eyes of her lover, lures her to a gambling house, which is subsequently raided. Patty is arrested with the others, but the scheme results in a boomerang for the gambler and girl's relatives, who had a hand in her being lured to the den, for they find themselves convicted on a charge to defraud, and are jailed.

Feature: Gladys Leslie as Patty Baring, Frank O'Connor as Edwin Sayer, and William Calhoun as Josiah Wheeler.

Program and Advertising Phrases: A Gripping Story of Mercenary Intrigue.
Good Fortune Turns the Winning Card.
Gambling With a Girl's Good Name and Fortune.
Fate Protects the Sadly Beleaguered Heroine.
Honest Love Wins Over Intrigue and Plotting.
"The Reflections of Scarlet" on the Screen.
Edward P. Smaney's "Best Sellers" in Photoplays.
See the Book You Have Loved Vizualized on the Screen.
Good Plays Come from Good Stories, Plus Good Acting.
"Little Miss Nobody" Is Both a Good Play and Good Story.
See Gladys Leslie, Queen of the Screen.

Stunt Suggestions: Playing cards will come in handy advertising this story of a gambling house. Hook up with store-window displays; lettering a sign, "Playing cards and gambling made a lady of 'Little Miss Nobody,' the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon Feature at (name of theater and date)." It will be hard to couple this show with a street "stunt." A ragged little "girl" might roam the streets with a sign, "I'm 'Little Miss Nobody.' Who Are You? See me at the (theater and date)."

Advertising Aids: One design each one, three and six-sheets. Window cards. Lobby displays, 11x14 and 22x28. Slide. Herald. Press book.



SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated. Stock tickets 5,000 to 25,000 fifteen cents per thousand, 50,000 ten cents, 100,000 nine cents.

PRICES

Five Thousand	$1.25
Ten Thousand	2.50
Fifteen Thousand	3.75
Twenty-five Thousand	5.50
Fifty Thousand	7.50
One Hundred Thousand	10.00

National Ticket Co., Shamokin, Pa.

HE'S gone across—
YOU "come across"!

Adopt a SOLDIER and Supply him with "SMOKES" for the Duration of the WAR!

YOU know that our fighting men are begging for tobacco. Tobacco cheers them. They need it. "Send more cigarettes." "We can't get half enough smokes over here." "A cigarette is the first thing a wounded man asks for." Almost every mail brings many thousands of such requests.

$1.00 a Month Keeps a Soldier Supplied—Will YOU Be a "BIG BROTHER" or a "BIG SISTER" to a Lonely Fighting Man?

Every dollar sends four 45c packages of tobacco. Mail the money and coupon right now.

"OUR BOYS IN FRANCE TOBACCO FUND
19 West 44th Street, New York City
Depository: Irving National Bank, New York

"I wish you all possible success in your admirable effort to get our Boys in France tobacco."
—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
Endorsed by

The Secretary of War	Lyman Abbott
The Secretary of the Navy	Rabbi Wise
	Gertrude Atherton
The American Red Cross	Theodore Roosevelt
	Alton B. Parker
Cardinal Gibbons	And the Entire Nation

"OUR BOYS IN FRANCE TOBACCO FUND"
19 West 44th Street, New York

GENTLEMEN: I want to do my part to help the American soldiers who are fighting my battle in France. If tobacco will do it, I'm for tobacco. (Check below how you desire to contribute.)

I enclose $1.00. I will adopt a soldier and send you $1.00 a month to supply him with "smokes" for the duration of the war.

I send you herewith ..... my contribution towards the purchase of tobacco for American soldiers. This does not obligate me to contribute more.

NAME.....
ADDRESS.....

Synopses of News Reels

Gaumont Company.

Graphic No. 1.

Washington, D. C.—5,000 Soldiers from Nearby Camps Get Sightseeing Trip. Men in uniform are guests of city's patriotic motorists.

Chicago, Ill.—The Medical Women's Club Organize a Unit for Service Abroad. The work of British and French women doctors is one of the magnificent achieve-

COOL & VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS
1544 BWAY.. TYPHOON FAN COMPANY NEW YORK CITY

AS IN THE PAST

Film DEVELOPMENT and PRINTING finds its perfection in EVANS' SERVICE.

Quality, responsibility and despatch mark every operation. Having helped others make film history, we are competent to help you.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO., 416-24 West 216th St., New York City Telephone: St. Nicholas 3443-44

ments of this war. American women will not be found wanting.

Jersey City, N. J.—Explosion and Fire Wreck Huge Warehouses Filled with Army Supplies. Erie Railroad loses repair shop and equipment. Total loss $1,500,000.

Chicago, Ill.—Not a Locomotive, Just an Odd Kind of Automobile. It took Mr. A. F. Steinard four years of his spare time to build it and cost him $10,000.

France.—At an American Supply Base. Good things to eat are plentifully supplied by Uncle Sam.

Chicago, Ill.—Little Bo-Peeps of Lyons School Tend Thirty-two sheep. Children are taught food conservation from their own live pets as models.

Macedonia.—On the French-Greek Front. Mr. Venizelos and Generals Gerome and Zimbrakis.

Chicago, Ill.—A New Kind of Truss Wheel Tractor Will Revolutionize the Tread for Tanks. Sub-titles: The water-filled shell holes of "No Man's Land" could not furnish any rougher going than this road. No other kind of tractor can use railroad tracks. This one can and does.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Red Cross Present Firemen with Service Flag. Subtitle: Patriotic salvage work is given appropriate recognition. The flag contains ninety-one stars.

We should all answer "yes" to this question—

Gaumont News No. 1.

San Francisco, Cal.—World's Biggest Concrete Ship Takes to the Water Like a Duck. The "Faith" is America's answer to the Hun's U-Boat problem.

Washington News.—Interesting Items from Our National Capital. Sub-titles: Miss Anne Martin of Reno, Nevada, is the first woman to announce her candidancy for the United States Senate. She will run on an independent ticket to fill the unexpired term of Senator Newlands. The Society to "Save a Belgian Baby" opens its campaign here. Speaker Champ Clark does his bit, each flower saving the life of a baby in Belgium. New Japanese War Mission discusses with Secretary Baker's aides the question of a Japanese invasion of Siberia. Our War Congress. Two hundred members of the House of Representatives pose on the capitol steps for the first time in years.

Pasadena, Cal.—Chicago "Cubs" Start Training Here. Weeghman's flock show mid-season form in fast workouts.

France.—A Big British Tank, After Its Successful Attack, Brings Back Its Prize—a Monster German Gun. Sub-titles: In Lorraine the American boys are holding a sector over fifty miles in length. The spring thaw causes the river Meuse to overflow near Verdun. The building in which the Superior Council of the Allies was held in Versailles. Mr. Lloyd George. General Pershing. Clemenceau and Petain.

Washington, D. C.—The Nimble "Cootie" is Doomed. Uncle Sam's portable laundry is going to give our Yankee boys a complete change of clean clothes every week.

Camp Gordon, Ga.—Khaki-Clad Kaiser Chasers in Remarkable Regimental Review. This unit, ready to the minute, marches past in its own special mass formation.

"NEWMAN" Brass Frames and Rails

Read what C. A. Morrison of The Princess Theatre, Hartford, Conn., says about Newman Quality:

Gentlemen:
We have purchased quite a number of Brass Frames and Easels, together with Brass Ticket Rail and Three-Sheet Brass Poster Frames of your Company.
All of these goods reached us in perfect condition and the quality was the best. I have told several other managers in the city of your goods and in several instances orders have been sent you—all of which goes to show that your best advertiser is a satisfied customer.
PRINCESS THEATRE CO., Inc.,
Hartford, Conn.
C. A. Morrison, Mgr.

Insist on the Name "Newman" When Buying Frames
Write for New 1918 Catalogue

The Newman Mfg. Co.
ESTABLISHED 1882
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada.
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.
Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

We lead; let those that can, follow.
DEVELOPING—PRINTING
TITLES—TINTING—TONING
MANUFACTURERS AND SPECIALISTS IN MOTION PICTURE PHOTOGRAPHY
GUNBY BROS., INC.
145 West 45th Street New York City

WAR PRICES—Going Down

The well-known "Orpheum Collection" consists of melodramatic music almost exclusively, and is one of the best collections of agitatos, hurries, mysteriosos, short plaintives, etc., on the market. Particularly useful in serial pictures for bringing out the dramatic points. My last edition is printed from the same plates as the first, on a good quality of paper, and sells for these reduced prices: Piano (solo), 1st, 2d or 3d series, 35 cents each; Violin (1st, 2d or 3d series), 25 cents each; Cornet (1st, 2d or 3d series), 20 cents each; Flute, Clarinet, Trombone, Drums (1st or 2d series), 20 cents each.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1103 Grace St. Chicago, Ill.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Hearst Pathe News No. 26 (March 27).

New York City.—City acclaims "Buffaloes," its regiment of negro troops, who are eager to help emancipate the world from German slavery.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Thrills and spills mark the auto race on the Ascot Speedway when daring drivers set new world's record for speed.

Camp Plunkett, Mass.—"Every shot a hit" is the motto of army and navy. Frequent practice is held on the ranges to develop markmanship.

In Italy.—Venice—city of palaces, gondolas and bridges—is now clad in war's armor as protection from the ravages of the Hun.

On the Italian Front.—Hail the conquerors of Mount Tomba!—Italy's brave fighters who have recovered their pace and are regaining their land.

New York City.—Making sailors keeps pace with making ships. Naval training ship Newport prepares seamen to man new emergency fleets.

Universal Screen Magazine.

Issue No. 65 (April 5).

Comedy.—A Few Bits of Military Vaudeville. Let's hope that the Japs will be as successful in chasing the Kaiser out of Russia as they are when it comes to acrobatics. These boys would make fine signal corps men.

Preparedness.—Training Officers of the Gallant Canadians. What the Canadians did at Ypres, Neuve Chappelle, Vimy Ridge, Somme and Cambrai made the Kaiser apologize to God for declaring he was going to wipe the British off the map. Their officers receive a wonderful preliminary training.

Industry.—Making That Panama Hat. In Java, Dutch Indies, they haven't woman's suffrage, or the men aren't going to war, but the girls work just the same.

Industry.—Making of a Newspaper. Part IV. You have seen how paper is made, how news material is whipped into shape, how it is "set up" and put into forms—now watch the lightning presses turn out thousands of completed papers every hour.

Art.—Miracles in Mud, Produced by Willie Hopkins.

EXHIBITORS

Read our Department "Advertising Aids for Exhibitors"—It will help you in billing your Feature Picture.

FOR SALE
Second-hand Motiograph
Used one month; a bargain
1917 model; price, $150.00
Also distributors of Richardson's M. P. Handbook, Hallberg's M. P. Electricity, Oil, Cement, Condensers and Parts
Moving Picture Machine Company
Binghamton, N. Y.

"WE NEVER DISAPPOINT"
TELEPHONE BRYANT 5576
CROMLOW FILM LABORATORIES
INCORPORATED
220 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK
ALLAN A. LOWNES
GEN. MGR.

List of Current Film Release Dates

ON GENERAL FILM, PATHE AND PARAMOUNT PROGRAMS

General Film Company, Inc.

(Note—Pictures given below are listed in the order of their release. Additions are made from week to week in the order of release.)

BROADWAY STAR FEATURE.

Schools and Schools (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
A Madison Square Arabian Night (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
The Rathskeller and the Rose (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
By Injunction (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
The Song and the Sergeant (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
Lost on Dress Parade (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).
Nemesis and the Candy Man (One of the O. Henry Series—Two Parts—Drama).

BLUE RIDGE DRAMAS.

(Ned Finley)

The Return of O'Garry (Two Parts—Drama).
Mountain Law (Two Parts—Drama).
The Raiders of Sunset Gap (Two Parts—Dr.).

CHAPLIN COMEDIES.

Work (Two parts—Comedy).
A Woman (Two parts—Comedy).
The Tramp (Two Parts—Comedy).
His New Job (Two Parts—Comedy).

CLOVER COMEDIES.

The Wooing of Coffee-Cake Kate (One Part).
Rip-Roaring Rivals (One Part).

DUPLEX FILMS, INC.

Shame (Seven Parts—Drama).

EBONY COMEDIES.

A Black Sherlock Holmes (One Part).
Spying the Spy (One Part).
The Porters (One Part).

ESSANAY COMEDIES.

The Lie That Failed.
The Jazbo Sheriff.
The Snakeville Fire Brigade.
Snakeville's Sleuth.
Slippery Slim and the Fortune Teller.
Slippery Slim and the Green Eyed Monster.
When Macbeth Came to Snakeville.
Slippery Slim and His Tombstone.
Slippery Slim and the Impersonator.

ESSANAY SCENICS.

Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada.
Water Power of Eastern Canada (Scenic).
A Romance of Rails and Power (Scenic).
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelly.

JAXON COMEDIES.

(Seventh Series.)

The Unofficial Maneuver.
What Occurred on the Beach.
An All Fools' Day Affair.
Beating Him to It.
Forced Into Matrimony.

JAXON FILM CORPORATION.

"A Daughter of Uncle Sam" (A One-Reel Episode of this Patriotic Serial released each week).

JUDGE BROWN STORIES.

(All Two-Part Comedy-Dramas.)

Marrying Off Dad.
The Preacher's Son.
Thief or Angel?
The Accusing Toe.
The Rebellion.
A Boy Built City.
I'm a Man.

NOVELTY FILMS.

Me, der Kaiser; Our Heroes; Strange Sights in the Pacific Islands (One Part).
Power Pro and Con; England's Leaders on Land and Sea; Scenic (One Part).
The Girth of a Nation; Four Famous Battles of the Civil War; Scenic (One Part).

SELBURN COMEDIES.

(Piedmont Pictures Corporation)

Hubby's Holiday (Two parts—Comedy).
Too Much Elephant (One part—Comedy).
Wedding Bells and Lunatics (One part—Com.).
His College Proxy (One part—Comedy).

SPARKLE COMEDIES.

(Fifth Series.)

After the Matinee.
Double Cross.
The Best of a Bargain.

THREE C COMEDIES.

A Hash House Romance.
The Mod Carrier's Million.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 24.

The Hillcrest Mystery (Five Parts—Drama—Astra).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 3—"A Woman's Perfidy"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Let's Go (One Reel—Comedy—Rolin).
Pests of Our Fruit Trees (Colored—Educational) and Picturesque France—Arcachon (Colored—Travel) (Pathe Split Reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 26 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 27 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF MARCH 31.

Mrs. Slacker (Five Parts—Drama—Astra).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 4—"The Man from Java"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
On the Jump (One Reel—Comedy—Rolin).
The Valley of the Dordogne—France (Colored—Travel) and The Horse in Action—Part 2—Analysis in Motion (Colored—Educational) (Pathe Split Reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 28 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 29 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF APRIL 7.

Twenty-One (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama—Pathe).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 5—"Spies Within"—Two Parts—Astra).
Follow the Crowd (One-reel Comedy—Rolin).
Timber Transportation, Sweden (Colored educational), and St. Flour and Aurillac, Picturesque France (Colored Travel) (Pathe Split-reel).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 30 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 31 (Topical).

RELEASES FOR WEEK OF APRIL 14.

The Busy Inn (Five Parts—Drama—Russian Art Films).
The House of Hate (Episode No. 6—"A Living Target"—Two Parts—Drama—Astra).
Pipe the Whiskers (One Part—Comedy—Rolin).
Whispering Wires of War (One Reel—War Film).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 32 (Topical).
Hearst-Pathe News No. 33 (Topical).

Paramount Pictures Corp.

KLEVER KOMEDY.

Jan. 28—He Got His.
Feb. 11—Adam and Some Eves.
Feb. 25—Some Professor.

PARAMOUNT-MACK SENNETT COMEDIES.

Mar. 11—Sheriff Nell's Tussle.
Mar. 25—Those Athletic Girls.
Apr. 8—Friend Husband.

PARAMOUNT ARBUCKLE COMEDIES.

Jan. 20—Out West (Two parts).
Mar. 18—The Bell Boy.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORP.

Paramount Features.

Mar. 18—Prunella (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Wild Youth (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Love Me (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—La Tosca (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—Naughty, Naughty (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—Honor of His House (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—His Majesty, Bunker Bean (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Apr. 8—The House of Silence (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 15—Rich Man, Poor Man (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 15—Unclaimed Goods (Five Parts—Dr.).

Artcraft Pictures.

Feb. 25—Headin' South (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—The Whispering Chorus (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 31—The Blue Bird (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Tiger Man (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—The Lie (Five Parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT SERIAL.

Jan. 28—Who Is Number One? (Episode No. 14—"No Surrender"—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 4—Who Is Number One? (Episode No. 15—"The Round Up"—Two parts—Drama).

PARAMOUNT-BRAY PICTOGRAPHS.

Mar. 18—Subjects on Reel: Rose Culture; Uncle Sam's Coin Factory; Physical Culture Terpsichore; Cartoon; Hornets of the Sea by J. F. Leventhal.
Mar. 25—Subjects on Reel: Lumbering for Wartime; Hawaiians and Their Strange Customs; Women in the World of Work (interior decorating); Cartoon: Bobby Bumps, by Earl Hurd.
Apr. 1—Subjects on Reel: Training Women Sharpshooters, Our Bone Relations; A New Use for a House Boat; Cartoon by—"Me und Gott"—Bray Studios.
Apr. 8—Subjects on Reel: Grizzly Bear Pets; Uncle Sam's Stamp Factory; Cartoon by Wallace Karlson.

PARAMOUNT-BURTON HOLMES.

Mar. 18—A Summer Day in Skaguay.
Mar. 25—Over the White Pass.
Apr. 1—Down the Yukon.
Apr. 8—In Happy Honolulu.
Apr. 15—Peerless Pineapples of the Pacific.

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S—PARAMOUNT SERIES.

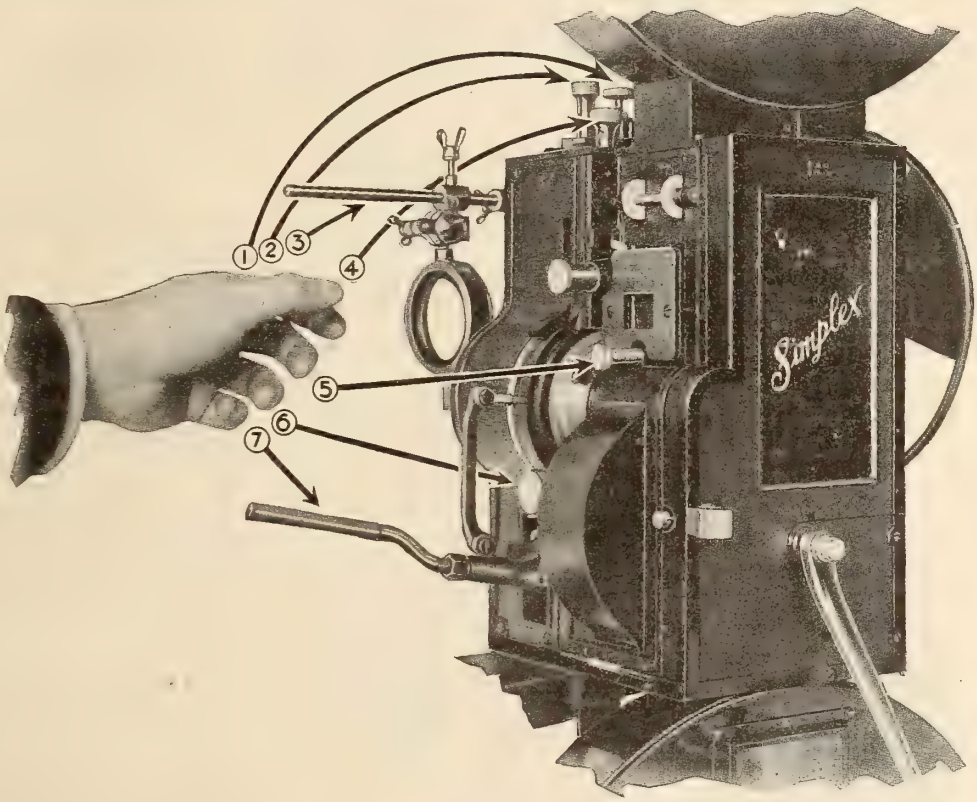
"The Son of Democracy."

Mar. 11—Tender Memories (Fifth Release—Two Parts).
Mar. 18—A President's Answer (Sixth Release—Two Parts).
Mar. 25—Native State (Seventh Release—Two parts).
Apr. 1—Down the River (Eighth Release—Two Parts).
Apr. 8—The Slave Auction (Ninth Release—Two Parts).
Apr. 15—Under the Stars (Tenth Release—Two Parts).

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

Simplex

All adjustments handy to the Operator's handiest hand



Just naturally, without any strain, without any corkscrewing of his spine, the Operator makes all necessary adjustments.

1, 2, 3. All Stereopticon adjustments.
4. Focusing Projection Lens.
5. Opening Door to reach Lower Loop.
6. Adjusting Shutter.
7. Framing.

This is only one of the many evidences of thoughtfulness for the Operator, and which show that, although the Simplex would win out on quality of projection alone, it is the Machine that enables the Operator to put on a better picture easier.

The utmost in convenience, added to the utmost in projection, makes the Simplex

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

List of Current Film Release Dates

ON UNIVERSAL, MUTUAL, GOLDWYN, METRO AND TRIANGLE PROGRAMS

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Mar. 6—Number 14 (Topical)—02913.
Mar. 13—Number 15 (Topical)—02922.
Mar. 20—Number 16 (Topical)—02931.
Mar. 27—Number 17 (Topical)—02940.
Apr. 3—Number 18 (Topical)—02949.
Apr. 10—Number 19 (Topical)—02958.

L-KO.

Mar. 13—Ambrose and His Widow (Two Parts—Comedy)—02921.
Mar. 20—Cooks and Crooks (Two Parts—Comedy)—02930.
Mar. 27—Sherlock Ambrose (Two Parts—Comedy)—02939.
Apr. 3—Gowns and Girls (Two Parts—Comedy)—02948.
Apr. 10—(Title not decided)—02957.

NESTOR.

Feb. 25—Watch Your Step (Comedy)—02902.
Mar. 4—At Sword's Point (Comedy)—02910.
Mar. 11—I'll Fix It (Comedy)—02920.
Mar. 18—Eddie Get the Mop (Comedy)—02929.
Mar. 25—Nothing But Nerve (Comedy)—02938.
Apr. 1—Pink Pajamas (Comedy)—02947.
Apr. 8—Hickory Hiram (Comedy)—02956.

UNIVERSAL PRODUCTION.

Feb. 25—Wild Women (Five Parts—Dr.)—02901.
Mar. 4—Nobody's Wife (Five Parts—Drama)—02910.
Mar. 11—Beauty in Chains (Five Parts—Dr.)—02919.
Mar. 18—Thieves' Gold (Five Parts—Drama)—02928.
Mar. 25—The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit (Five Parts—Drama)—02937.
Apr. 1—The Magic Eye (Five Parts—Drama)—02946.
Apr. 8—The Risky Road (Five Parts—Dr.)—02965.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE.

Mar. 9—Issue No. 61 (Educational)—02914.
Mar. 16—Issue No. 62 (Educational)—02923.
Mar. 23—Issue No. 63 (Educational)—02932.
Mar. 30—Issue 64 (Educational)—02941.
Apr. 6—Issue No. 65 (Educational)—02950.
Apr. 13—Issue No. 66 (Educational)—02959.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Mar. 30—The Mystery Ship (Episode No. 18—"The Fight in Mid-Air"—Two Parts—Drama)—02943.
Mar. 30—The Bull's Eye (Episode No. 8—"Dynamite"—Two Parts—Drama)—02944.
Mar. 30—Finley Nature Studies No. 11—"Wild Fowl Nurseries of Southern Oregon" (Educational) and "How Mr. Noodle Went to a Masque Ball" (Cartoon Comedy)—02945.
Apr. 6—The Bull's Eye (Episode No. 9—"The Flaming Crisis"—Two Parts—Drama)—02952.
Apr. 6—The Lion's Claws (Episode No. 1—"A Woman's Honor"—Two Parts—Drama)—02953.
Apr. 6—Finley Nature Studies No. 12—"A Day at Yellowstone Park" and "Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance—England" (Scenic)—02954.
Apr. 13—The Bull's Eye (Episode No. 10—"Coyotes of the Desert"—Two Parts—Drama)—02961.
Apr. 13—The Lion's Claws (Episode No. 2 "Beasts of the Jungle"—Two Parts—Drama)—02962.
Apr. 13—Finley Nature Series No. 13—"Sea Birds and Animals" and "The Land of Long Ago" (Scenic—Split Reel) 02963.
Apr. 13—Star Comedies—A Pigskin Hero (Comedy)—02965.

UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS.

Mar. 9—Issue No. 43 (Topical)—02918.
Mar. 16—Issue No. 44 Topical)—02924.
Mar. 23—Issue No. 45 (Topical)—02933.
Mar. 30—Issue No. 46 (Topical)—02942.
Apr. 6—Issue No. 47 (Topical)—02951.
Apr. 13—Issue No. 48 (Topical)—02960.

Mutual Film Corp.

STRAND.

Jan. 22—Their Little Kid (Comedy).
Jan. 29—Somebody's Widow (Comedy).
Feb. 5—Her Friend Brown (Comedy).
Feb. 12—Three Times and Out (Comedy).
Feb. 19—Miss Cinderella (Comedy)—8CST1.
Feb. 26—Up in the Air (Comedy)—CCST1.
Mar. 5—Waltzing Around (Comedy)—10CST-1.
Mar. 12—Finishing Mary (Comedy)—11CST-1.
Mar. 19—His Quaker Girl (Comedy)—12-CST-1.
Mar. 26—Up She Goes (Comedy)—13 C S T 1.
Apr. 2—She Couldn't Grow Up (Comedy)—14C-ST-1.
Apr. 9—For Art's Sake (Comedy)—15CST-1.

MUTUAL STAR PRODUCTION.

Feb. 4—Who Loved Him Best? (Goodrich—Five parts—Drama).
Feb. 11—Jilted Janet (American—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 18—My Wife (Frohman—Five Parts—Drama)—8FAM5.
Feb. 25—The Midnight Trail (American—Five Parts—Drama)—9FR5.
Mar. 4—Powers That Prey (American—Five Parts—Drama)—10-FM-5.
Mar. 11—Ann's Finish (American—Five Parts—Drama)—11-F-F-5.
Mar. 18—The Girl and the Judge (Frohman—Five Parts—Drama)—12-F-T-5.
Mar. 25—No release this date.
Apr. 1—A Bit of Jade (American—Five Parts—Drama)—14-F-M-5.
Apr. 8—The Richest Girl (Frohman—Five Reels—Drama)—15FAM-5.

MUTUAL.

Mar. 3—Screen Telegram (Topical)—1-T-1.
Mar. 6—Screen Telegram (Topical)—2-T-1.
Mar. 10—Screen Telegram (Topical)—3-T-1.
Mar. 13—Screen Telegram (Topical)—4T1.
Mar. 15—Screen Telegram (Topical)—5T1.
Mar. 20—Screen Telegram (Topical)—6T1.
Mar. 24—Screen Telegram (Topical)—7T1.
Mar. 27—Screen Telegram (Topical)—8 T 1.
Mar. 31—Screen Telegram (Topical)—9 T 1.
Apr. 3—Screen Telegram (Topical)—10-T-1.
Apr. 7—Screen Telegram (Topical)—11-T-1.
Apr. 10—Screen Telegram (Topical)—12-T-1.
Apr. 14—Screen Telegram (Topical)—13-T-1.

Goldwyn Distributing Corp.

GOLDWYN FEATURES.

Dec. 2—The Auction Block (Eight parts—Drama).
Dec. 16—The Cinderella Man (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Dec. 30—Thais (Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—Fields of Honor (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Jan. 28—Dodging a Million (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Feb. 10—Our Little Wife (Six parts—Comedy-Drama).
Feb. 24—The Beloved Traitor (Six Parts—Drama).
May. 10—The Floor Below (Six Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Mar. 24—The Splendid Sinner (Six Parts—Drama).
Apr. 7—The Danger Game (Six Parts—Drama).

GOLDWYN SPECIALS.

Heart of the Sunset (Seven Parts—Drama).
The Manx Man (Seven Parts—Drama).
For the Freedom of the World (Seven Parts—Drama).
Blue Blood (Six Parts—Drama).
Honor's Cross (Six Parts—Drama).
Social Ambition (Six Parts—Drama).

CAPITOL COMEDIES.

Bill's Baby (Two Reels).
Bill's Predicament (Two Reels).

Metro Pictures Corporation.

METRO PICTURES CORP.

Feb. 18—A Weaver of Dreams (Rolfe—Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 25—Revenge (Rolfe—Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 4—The Shell Game (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—The Brass Check (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 18—The Claim (Rolfe—Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 25—Breakers Ahead (Rolfe—Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Landloper (Yorke—Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—Social Hypocrites (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 15—With Neatness and Dispatch (Five Parts—Drama).

METRO SPECIALS.

Nov. 15—Draft 258 (Seven parts—Drama).
Dec. 10—Blue Jeans (Seven parts—Drama).
January—The Legion of Death (Rolfe—Seven parts—Drama).
January—Revelation (Seven parts—Drama).
Lest We Forget (Eight Parts—Drama).

METRO COMEDIES.

Jan. 14—Why Henry Left Home (Drew).
Jan. 21—Their First Love (Drew).
Jan. 28—Under the Influence (Drew).
Feb. 4—Help Wanted (Drew).
Feb. 11—The Bright Lights Dimmed (Drew).
Feb. 18—After Henry (Drew).
Feb. 25—His Generosity (Drew).
Mar. 4—Before and After Taking (Drew).
Mar. 11—His Strength of Mind (Drew).
Mar. 18—Special Today (Drew).
Mar. 25—When a Man's Married (Drew).
Apr. 1—Gas Logic (Drew).
Apr. 8—A Youthful Affair (Drew).

Triangle Film Corporation.

TRIANGLE PRODUCTIONS.

Mar. 10—The Sea Panther (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 17—Faith Endurin' (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 17—The Answer (Seven Parts—Drama).
Mar. 24—Nancy Comes Home (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 24—Innocent's Progress (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 31—Unfaithful (Two Parts—Drama) and The Marriage Bubble (Three Parts—Drama) (Split Reel Feature).
Mar. 31—The Love Brokers (Five Parts—Dr.).
Apr. 7—The Vortex (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 7—The Boss of Lazy "Y" (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 14—The Law of the Great Northwest (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 14—Who Killed Walton (Five Parts—Dr.).

TRIANGLE KOMEDY.

Mar. 3—A Discord in a Flat.
Mar. 3—His Hidden Shame.
Mar. 10—Wives and Worries.
Mar. 10—She Didn't Do It.
Mar. 17—A Social Shock Absorber.
Mar. 17—Caught With the Goods.
Mar. 24—Fork Over.
Mar. 24—A Janitor's Fall.
Mar. 31—A Good Elk.
Mar. 31—Her Bohemian Party.

KEYSTONE COMEDY.

Mar. 3—A Lady Killer's Doom (Two Parts).
Mar. 10—Did She Do Wrong? (Two Parts).
Mar. 17—Mud (Two Parts).
Mar. 24—A Safe Danger (Two Parts).
Mar. 31—A Playwright's Wrong (Two Parts).
Apr. 7—Mr. Briggs Closes the House.
Apr. 14—First Aid.
Apr. 21—Their Neighbor's Baby.
Apr. 28—Mr. Miller's Economies.

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

100 % Perfect Development Has No Latitude

NICHOLAS KESSEL

Announces:-

His Retirement from the Fort Lee Laboratories of the Triangle Film Corporation.

The Plant at HUDSON HEIGHTS, N. J., formerly used for HERBERT BRENNON PRODUCTIONS, has been leased and as soon as alterations are made and new equipment installed, will be operated for manufacturing of the highest grade only.

UNIFORM QUALITY IS ASSURED BY A NEW PROCESS

100 % Perfect Development Has No Latitude

KESSEL & DOWNING

List of Current Film Release Dates

GREATER VITAGRAPH PROGRAM, FEATURE AND STATE RIGHT RELEASES

Greater Vitagraph Inc.

VITAGRAPH FEATURES.

Mar. 11—The Desired Woman (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—An American Live Wire (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—The Home Trail (Five Parts—Dr.).
Apr. 1—Little Miss No-Account (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 8—The Business of Life (Five Parts—Drama).

BIG V COMEDIES.

Mar. 4—Jumping Jacks and Jail Birds.
Mar. 11—Meddlers and Moonshiners.
Mar. 18—Tramps and Traitors.
Mar. 25—Stripes and Stumbles.
Apr. 1—Sleuths and Slickers.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES.

Feb. 4—Surprising Husband.
Feb. 11—Coals for the Fire.
Feb. 18—Sweets of the Sour.
Feb. 25—Their Godson.

DREW COMEDIES.

Mar. 11—Their First Quarrel.
Mar. 18—A Telegraphic Tangle.
Mar. 25—His Wife Knew About It.
Apr. 1—Following the Scent.
Apr. 8—The Home Cure.
Apr. 15—The Deceivers.

VITAGRAPH SERIALS.

Vengeance and the Woman.

Mar. 18—Episode No. 13—"Sands of Doom" (Two Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—Episode No. 14—"The Hand of Fate" (Two Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—Episode No. 15—"The Reckoning"—Two Parts—Drama).

"The Woman in the Web."

Apr. 8—Episode No. One ("Caught in the Web"—Two Parts—Drama).
Apr. 15—Episode No. Two ("The Open Switch"—Two Parts—Drama).

FAVORITE FILM FEATURES.

Feb. 25—Old Reliable (Two Parts—Drama) and "Stenographer Troubles" (One Reel—Comedy).
Mar. 4—An Officer and a Gentleman (Two Parts — Drama) and "Unlucky Louis" (One Reel Comedy).

Fox Film Corporation

FOX SPECIAL FEATURES.

Feb. 17—The Moral Law (Five Parts—Drama).
Feb. 24—Six Shooter Andy (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Mar. 3—The Girl With the Champagne Eyes (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 10—The Debt of Honor (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 17—The Devil's Wheel (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 24—A Daughter of France (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 31—A Camouflage Kiss (Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Apr. 7—The Bride of Fear (Five Parts—Dr.).

FOX STANDARD PICTURES.

Feb. 10—Les Miserables (Eight Parts—Dr.).
Feb. 24—American Buds (Seven Parts).
Mar. 17—Woman and the Law (Seven Parts—Drama).
Mar. 24—Rough and Ready (Six Parts—Comedy-Drama).
Apr. 7—The Blindness of Divorce (Seven Parts—Drama).

FOX SUNSHINE COMEDIES.

Feb. 3—Hungry Lions in a Hospital.
Feb. 17—Are Married Policemen Safe?
Mar. 3—A Husband's Wife (Two Parts).
Mar. 15—A Self-Made Lady (Two Parts).
Apr. 7—A Waiter's Wasted Life (Two Parts).

MUTT AND JEFF ANIMATED CARTOONS.

Mar. 24—The Decoy (Half Reel).
Mar. 31—Back to the Balkans (Half Reel).
Apr. 7—The Freight Investigation (Half-Reel).

Feature Releases

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

Mar. 4—The Girl in the Dark (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 11—Hungry Eyes (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 18—Brace Up (Five Parts—Drama).
Mar. 25—The Wine Girl (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Red, Red Heart (Five Parts—Drama)—02964.

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT

The Sign Invisible.
Tarzan of the Apes (National Film Corp.).
Fall of the Romanoffs (Brenon Productions, Inc.—Eight Parts).
A Dog's Life (Charlie Chaplin Picture).

Petrova Pictures Company.

The Daughter of Destiny (First Production—Seven Parts).
The Light Within (Second Production—Seven Parts).
The Life Mask (Third Production—Seven Parts).
Tempered Steel (Fourth Production—Seven Parts).

W. W. HODKINSON CORP.

(Paralta Plays.)

Jan. 15—His Robe of Honor (Seven parts—Dr.).
Feb. 15—The Turn of a Card (Seven Parts—Drama).
Mar. 1—Within the Cup (Seven Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 15—Humdrum Brown (Six Parts—Dr.).
Apr. 1—An Alien Enemy (Five Parts—Dr.).
Apr. 15—Blindfolded (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 29—With Hoops of Steel (Five Parts—Drama).
May 13—The Snapdragon (Five Parts—Drama).
May 27—Rose o' Paradise (Five Parts—Drama).

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

The Price of a Good Time (Seven parts—Dr.).
The Doctor and the Woman (Seven Parts—Dr.).
The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin.

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM.

Feb. 11—The Unbeliever (Edison).
Feb. 25—Ruggles of Red Gap (Essanay).
A Pair of Sixes (Essanay—Five Parts—Comedy-Drama).
The Curse of Iku (Essanay—Seven Parts—Dr.).

Montgomery Flagg One-Reel Comedies, "Girls You Know" (Made by Edison).

Feb. 13—The Matinee Girl.
Feb. 27—The Artist's Model.
Mar. 13—The Man Eater.
Mar. 27—The Stenog.
Apr. 10—The Art Bug.

Essanay.

Mar. 1—Broncho Billy's Leap.
Mar. 8—Broncho Billy and the Rattler.
Mar. 15—Broncho Billy's Close Call.
Mar. 22—Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter.
Mar. 29—Broncho Billy's Indian Romance.
Apr. 5—Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need.
Apr. 12—Broncho Billy's Wild Ride.

Lincoln-Parker World Travelogue.

Feb. 1—Panama Canal, Part I.
Feb. 8—Panama Canal, Part II.
Feb. 15—Colombia, Part I.
Feb. 22—Colombia, Part II.
Mar. 1—Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 1.
Mar. 8—Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 2.
Mar. 15—Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 3.
Mar. 22—Peru, the Land of Incas, No. 4.
Apr. 29—Puno, and Scenes Around Lake Titicaca, Bolivia.

SELECT PICTURES.

March—The House of Glass (Five Parts—Dr.).
March—By Right of Purchase (Six Parts—Dr.).
March—The Shuttle (Five Parts—Drama).
March—The Knife (Five Parts—Drama).

Special Releases.

Over There (Six Parts—Drama).
The Lone Wolf (Five Parts—Drama).
The Barrier (Seven Parts—Drama).
The Wild Girl (Five Parts—Drama).

WORLD PICTURES.

Mar. 18—Wanted, A Mother (Five Parts—Dr.).
Mar. 25—The Way Out (Five Parts—Drama).
Apr. 1—The Cross Bearer (Seven Parts).
Apr. 8—The Witch Woman (Five Parts—Dr.).
Apr. 15—The Trap (Five Parts—Drama).

State Right Releases

ADVANCED M. P. CORP.

1493 Broadway, New York.

The Woman Eternal (Seven Parts—Drama).

AMERICAN-JAPAN PICTURES CORP.

15 William Street, New York.

The Land of the Rising Sun (10,000 feet—Issued complete or in series of 2,000 or 5,000 feet).

ARROW FILM CORPORATION.

Times Building, New York.

The Deemster.
The Eyes of the World.
Souls Redeemed.
Ramona.
Persuasive Peggy.
Weavers of Life.
To-Day (Seven Parts—Drama—Pathe).
Mad Lover (Six Parts—Drama—Pathe).

BLUEBIRD PHOTOPLAYS, INC.

1600 Broadway, New York.

The Eagle's Wings.
Hell Morgan's Girl.
Mother O' Mine.

CENTURY COMEDIES.

1600 Broadway, New York.

Balloonatics.
Automaniacs.
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.
Her Bareback Career.
She Did Her Bit.
Oh, Baby!
What's the Matter with Father?

CHRISTIE FILM CORP.

Los Angeles, Cal.

Betty Wakes Up.
Their Seaside Tangle (Comedy).
One Good Turn (Comedy).
Thirty Days.
Nearly a Papa.
Cupid's Camouflage.
Mum's the Word.
The Night of His Life.
In the Dark.
Circumstantial Evidence.

W. H. CLIFFORD PHOTOFILM CO.

17 West 44th Street, New York.

Denny from Ireland (First Release of the Shorty Hamilton Series—Five Parts—Drama).
The Snail (Second of the Shorty Hamilton Series—Five Parts).

COMMONWEALTH PICTURES CORP.

Chicago, Ill.

The Frozen Warning (Drama).

CREST PICTURES CORP.

Times Building, New York.

The Lust of the Ages.
A Grain of Dust.

CRYSTAL PHOTOPLAYS CORP.

220 S. State Street, Chicago, Ill.

Mother Love and the Law (Drama).

EBONY FILM CORP.

Wrong All Around (One Reel—Comedy).
Some Baby (One Reel—Comedy).
Ghosts (One Reel—Comedy).
The Porters (One Reel—Comedy).

EPOCH FILM CORP.

Longacre Building, New York.

Birth of a Nation.
Intolerance.

Producers.—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

Classified Advertisements NOTE TERMS CAREFULLY

Remittances must accompany all orders for classified advertisements as follows: One dollar per insertion for copy containing twenty words or less. Five cents per word on copy containing over twenty words. Each word to be counted including names and addresses.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS:—The Publishers expect that all statements made in every advertisement will bear the strictest investigation

SITUATIONS WANTED.

CAMERAMAN, experienced, exempt, own outfit, seeks engagement studio, scenic, weekly. If no vacancy, will consider assistant's job with advancement. References, Schjerbeck, 17 Post Ave., N. Y. City. Phone St. Nicholas 8590.

MANAGER (American) at liberty, fourteen years' experience moving picture business, expert on Projection, good advertiser, can buy right, sober, reliable, will consider managing large house or circuit. Address Business Producer, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

STRICTLY high class organist, employed, desires change. Fine library—references. Good organ and salary essential. Musician, care of M. P. World, New York City.

ORCHESTRA CONDUCTOR, expert in arranging proper musical settings for pictures, choice library, highly recommended. Will consider position with first class house. Address Director, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—A manager thoroughly experienced, for picture house. Apply Menschel Bros., 142 2d Ave., New York City.

THEATER WANTED.

WANTED—To purchase or lease theater not less than 600 capacity within one hundred miles of New York City. Send full particulars to E. B., care M. P. World, New York City.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

8,000 opera chairs, including upholstered, excellent condition, 75 cents up. Wood folding chairs in stock. Atlas Seating Company, 10 East 43rd St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—About 300 motion picture seats. Inquire Herman Ellis, Perth Amboy, N. J.

EXHIBITORS—OPERATORS — PROJECTION EXPERT F. H. RICHARDSON SAYS INSTALL 'AMBERLUX' LENS FILTERS." IMPROVE PROJECTION 100%. RESULTS GUARANTEED. PRICE, WITH ADVERTISING SLIDE, $3.50. PARCELS POST PREPAID. W. D. WARNER, 8 EAST BROAD ST., COLUMBUS, OHIO.

TWENTY-FIVE guaranteed rebuilt motion picture machines, all makes, and hundreds of film subjects for sale cheap. Feature Film Company, St. Paul, Minn.

TWO Fort Wayne Compensarcs 220 volts, fine condition, $27.50 each, shipped subject to examination. Kaufman Film Specials, Memphis, Tenn.,

STUDIO EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Laboratory equipment, 2 Cooper-Hewitt stand lamps for title work, 110 D. C.; 1 water filter; 24 excellent arc lamps for industrial interiors; 2 new portable projectors, demonstrating machines. Will sell above cheap for quick sale. National Motion Pictures Co., 307 N. Pennsylvania St. Indianapolis, Ind.

CAMERAS, ETC., FOR SALE.

EVERYTHING cinematographic, astonishing novelties, cameras, dissolvers, tripods, polishers, printers, prismaopticons, lenses, extraordinary facilities for mechanical work, repairing. Eberhard Schneider, 2d Ave., 14th St., N. Y. City.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

SPRING CLEARANCE, 1918————ALL CAMERAS, ACCESSORIES, ETC., QUOTED ARE ACTUALLY IN OUR STOCK READY FOR IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT—200 ft. Pathe inside magazine, automatic dissolve, regular and trick crank, fitted with 50 M.M. Hellar lens, one of the finest machines made. Our price, $150.00————400 ft. Ernemann Model B, forward and reverse take-up, without change of belts. Finest movement, gear drive, regular and trick crank, 2", F:3.5 and telephoto lenses, in revolving lens mount, focus tube through camera. Our price, $250.00————400 ft. Williamson Professional M. P. Camera, forward and reverse take-up, 1 to 1 movement, spot dissolve. Our price, $135.00————200 ft. Special M. P. Camera, forward or reverse take-up, all movements, from one central gear, fitted with 50 M.M. Ernon Anastigmat lens in focusing mount. Our price, $75.00————Universal M. P. Camera, F:3.5, 50 M.M. B. & L. Tessar lens, regular and trick crank, tripod, 2 extra magazines, and carrying case. Our price, $275.00————200 ft. Ernemann Model A, 1 to 1, and 8 to 1 cranks, direct gear drive, with one extra magazine. Our price, $110.00————200 ft. Davsco M. P. Camera, slightly used, fitted with Tessar lens, F:3.5. Cost, $110.00. Our price, $80.00————400 ft. U. S. M. P. Camera, automatic dissolve, speed indicator. Our price, $125.00————Davsco Cinematograph Studio Light, gives 12,000 candle power on 15 amperes. Complete with stand. Our price, $35.00————10,000 candle power Northern Light, complete with stand, wiring, etc., Our price, $65.00.————Universal M. P. Camera Tripod. Our price, $55.00————Davsco Light-Weight M. P. Tripod, with panoramic and tilting top. Our price, $25.00————1914 Model Motiograph, motor driven projector, star intermittent, all metal base, finest possible condition, fitted with short focus projection, long focus projection, with one extra lens for lantern slides. Costs, when new, $235.00. Our price, $75.00. ACT PROMPTLY, GET IN TOUCH WITH US TODAY. TELEGRAPHIC ORDERS SHIPPED SAME DAY THEY ARE RECEIVED. DAVID STERN COMPANY, IN BUSINESS SINCE 1885, 1027R Madison Street, Chicago, U. S. A.

SERVICE AND VALUE—Seven M. P. cameras sold in two days. Each shipped immediately. That's real service. Bass values brought the orders. SPECIAL BARGAINS: 400 Pittman Professional, Tessar f:3.5 lens, automatic dissolve. Price complete, $160.00. 400 ft. Improved U. S. Cam and shuttle intermittent. Krauss Zeiss Tessar f:3.5 lens. Metal magazines. Price complete, ready to use, $110.00. 400 ft. Pathe Professional, outside magazine, Tessar f:3.5 lens, with two extra magazines. Price, $400.00. 1916 model Universal M. P. Tessar f:3.5 lens. Condition like new. Price, $210.00. Bell & Howell M. P. Camera. Complete, with 2-in. Carl Zeiss Tessar, 3-in. Carl Zeiss Tessar, 7-in. Cooke Telephoto, one 200 ft. magazine, one 400 ft. magazine and tripod with case. Complete, $850.00. Slightly used Universal tripods at $47.50. Used Northern Lights at $45.00. One Dallmeyer f:1.9 Cine lens, 3-in. focus, at $75.00. One Carl Zeiss 2-in. Tessar f:3.5 in bbl. at $27.50. One 6-in. Dallmeyer f:4.5 Telephoto in bbl. at $50.00. WRITE TODAY TO THE HOME OF CAMERAS. AMERICA'S MODERN CAMERA EXCHANGE. BASS CAMERA COMPANY, Chas. Bass, President, 109 NO. DEARBORN ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

FILMS WANTED.

10 TO 20, 5 and 6 reelers and Max Linder comedies for export. Send lists and prices. P. O. Box 159, Brooklyn, N. Y.

FILMS FOR SALE.

BRAND new print Uncle Tom's Cabin, original production five reels featuring Irving Cummings and the Celebrated Thanhouser Kid, approximately forty-six hundred feet, twelve cents foot, reasonable amount paper with same. Chicago Film Trading Co., 17 No. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FILM for sale, all subjects released by the Unicorn Film Co., consisting of one and two-reelers featuring Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett, Blanch Sweet, Billy West, Owen Moore, Francis Ford, and others; all in splendid condition, with reasonable amount paper; also single reel Keystone Comedies. Chicago Film Trading Co., Shops Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

In answering advertisements please mention The Moving Picture World

Our experience and laboratory equipment assures you the best motion picture film developing, printing and the making of titles best that can be secured.

REASONS WHY

Are photographers by profession since 1881.

Developing and printing motion picture film since 1908.

Have dust proof laboratory especially fitted for this work.

Complete stock of fresh chemicals and Eastman's motion picture negative and positive film on hand at all times.

Bring or mail us your next motion picture developing order to convince you of our work and promptness.

DEVELOPING MOTION PICTURE FILM 1c PER FOOT

FORD'S 1029 16th St., Denver, Colo.

MAIL ORDERS PROMPTLY ATTENDED TO

List of Current Film Release Dates

EXHIBITORS' OPERATING CORP.
51 East 42d Street, New York.
The City of Purple Dreams.

EXPORT AND IMPORT FILM CO. INC.
729 Seventh Ave., New York.
Why the Bolsheviki.

FRANCIS FORD PRODUCING CO.
Berlin Via America.

FORT PITT FILM CORPORATION.
Lyceum Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.
The Italian Battlefront.
The Italian Stand on the Piave.

FOURSQUARE PICTURES.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
The Fringe of Society (Seven Parts—Drama).
The Eagle's Eye (Episode No. 1—"The Hidden Death"—Two parts—Drama).
The Eagle's Eye (Episode No. 2—"The Naval Ball Conspiracy"—Two parts—Drama).
The Eagle's Eye (Episode No. 3—"The Plot Against the Fleet"—Two parts—Drama).
The Cast Off (Thomas H. Ince Production).

FRANCO-AMERICAN FILM CORP.
126 West 46th Street, New York.
Birth of Democracy.

FROHMAN AMUSEMENT CORP.
Times Building, New York.
God's Man.
My Own United States.

FRATERNITY FILMS, INC.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
Devil's Playground (Seven Parts—Drama).

GAUMONT CO.
Flushing, L. I.
Gaumont News—Released every Tuesday.
Gaumont Graphic—Released every Friday.

GENERAL ENTERPRISES, INC.
Longacre Building, New York.
Mother (Six Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).
The Warrior (Seven Parts—Drama—McClure Picture).
The Liar (Six Parts—Drama—General Enterprise Feature).
Crucible of Life (Drama).

JESSE J. GOLDBURG.
1105 Times Bldg., N. Y. City.
The Chinese Musketeer.
Feet and Defeat.
Cheerful Liars.
Fate and Fortune.
Parson Pepp.
The Ring and the Ringer.

GRAPHIC FILM CORP.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
Moral Suicide (Seven Parts—Drama).

HILLER & WILK.
Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman.
(The Following Are Keystone-Mack Sennett Comedies.)
The Village Scandal.
Saved by Wireless.
Fatty and the Broadway Stars.
Dizzy Heights and Darling Hearts.
His Wild Oats.
Waiters' Ball.
His First False Step.
Ambrose Cup of Woe.
The Following Are Frank Keenan Productions.
The Coward.
Stepping Stones.
The Phantom.
Honor Thy Name.
The Thoroughbred.
Jim Grimsby's Boy.
The Following Are Norma Talmadge Productions.
The Missing Link.
Martha's Vindication.
Children in the House.
Going Straight.
The Devil's Needle.
The Social Secretary.
Fifty Fifty.
The Following Are Wm. S. Hart Productions.
The Disciple.
Between Men.
Hell's Hinges.
The Aryan.
The Primal Lure.
Captive God.
The Patriot.
The Dawnmaker.
The Following Are Douglas Fairbanks Productions.
The Lamb.
Double Trouble.
His Picture in the Papers.
The Habit of Happiness.
The Good Bad Man.
Reggie Mixes In.
Flirting With Fate.
The Half Breed.

IVAN FILM PRODUCTION.
130 West 46th Street, New York.
One Law for Both.
Babbling Tongues (Six Parts—Drama).
Married in Name Only (Six Parts—Drama).
Sins of Ambition.
Two Men and a Woman.
Human Clay.
Life or Honor.

JESTER COMEDY CO.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
(Featuring Twede Dan.)
February—The Recruit (Two Parts).
March—His Golden Romance (Two Parts).
April—All "Fur" Her (Two Parts).
May—The Wrong Flat (Two Parts).

FRANK A. KEENEY,
1493 Broadway, New York.
A Romance of the Underworld.

KING BEE FILMS CORP.
729 Seventh Avenue, N. Y. City.
Feb. 1—The Stranger.
Feb. 15—His Day Out.
Mar. 1—The Rogue.
Mar. 15—The Orderly.
Apr. 1—The Scholar.
Apr. 15—The Messenger.

KLOTZ & SREIMER.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
Whither Thou Goest.

MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY, INC.
601 Candler Bldg., New York.
My Four Years in Germany.

ORO PICTURES CORP.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
Who Knows? (Six Parts—Drama).
Loyalty (Drama).

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS, INC.
Flatiron Building, New York.
Zongar (Drama).

PYRAMID COMEDIES.
220 West 42d Street, New York.
In and Out (Two Parts).
Love and Lunch (Two Parts).
Beach Birds (Two Parts).
Beauties and Bombs (Two Parts).

HARRY RAVER.
1402 Broadway, New York.
The Hand of the Hun (Four Parts—Novelty).
The Master Crook.

RENOWNED PICTURES CORP.
1600 Broadway, New York.
The Public Defender.
Naked Hands (Five Parts—Drama).
20,000 Leagues Under the Sea.

WILLIAM N. SELIG.
58 E. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
The Garden of Allah.
Beware of Strangers (Eight Parts—Drama).

FRANK J. SENG.
Times Building, New York.
Parentage (Drama).

S. & S. PHOTOPLAYS, INC.
1476 Broadway, New York.
Redemption (Six Parts—Drama).

ERNEST SHIPMAN ENTERPRISES.
17 West 44th Street, New York.
(See W. H. Clifford Photo Play Co.)

STATE RIGHT DISTRIBUTORS, INC.
Carmen of the Klondike (Seven Parts—Drama).

STERLING PICTURES CORPORATION.
729 Seventh Avenue, New York.
The Cloud (Five Parts—Drama).
The God of Little Children (Five Parts—Dr.)
A Mother's Ordeal (Five Parts—Drama).
Pride and the Devil (Six Parts—Drama).
Miss Deception (Five Parts—Drama).
The Law That Failed (Five Parts—Drama).
Great Bradley Mystery (Five Parts—Drama).
The Mystic Hour (Six Parts—Drama).
When You and I Were Young (Five Parts—Drama).
The Golden God (Five Parts—Drama).

(The Following Are Cartoon Comedies, Each 500 Feet in Length.)
Slick and Tricky.
Doctor Bunny's Zoo.
The Old Forty-Niner.
Mr. Coon.
Mose Is Cured.
Zippy's Insurance.
Zippy's Pets.
The Unknown.
Peg of the Sea (Drama).
I Believe (Cosmofotofilm—Seven Parts—Dr.).
Hypocrites (George Loane Tucker).
The Natural Law (France Films).
The Hypocrites.

SUBMARINE FILM CO.
1476 Broadway, New York.
The Submarine Eye.

TRIUMPH FILM CORP.
1476 Broadway, New York.
The Libertine.

U. S. EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CO.
Times Building, New York.
The Belgian.
Those Who Pay.
The Zeppelin's Last Raid.
Just a Woman (Steger Production).

VICTORY FILMS MFG. CO.
218 West 42d Street, New York.
The Triumph of Venus.

WESTERN IMPORT FILM CO.
71 West 23d Street, New York.
Mickey (Seven Parts).

W. H. PRODUCTIONS.
71 West 23d Street, New York.
(The Following Are Multiple Reel W. S. Hart Subjects, Released in Order Listed.)
"The Two Gun Man," in "The Bargain (Six Parts—Drama).
The Bandit and the Preacher (Five Parts—Drama).
The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five Parts—Dr.).
The Two-Gun Man in The Bargain (Six parts—Drama).
The Bandit and the Preacher (Five parts—Drama).
The Hell Hound of Alaska (Five parts—Dr.).
(The Following Are Two-Reel Hart Productions. Released in Order Listed.)
Dakota Dan.
Double Crossed.
The Last Card.
A Knight of the Trail.
A Square Deal.
Horns and Hoofs.
The Bad Man.
The Fugitive.
A Gentleman from Blue Gulch.
The Silent Stranger.
The Marked Deck.

(The Following Are Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies, Each Two Reels in Length.)
The Small Town Bully.
Friendly Enemies.
His Diving Beauty.
A Polished Villain.
His Bitter Half.
The Dynamiter.
A Desperate Scoundrel.
Soaked and Scorched.
A Farm Yard Romeo.
The Hula-Hula Dance.

(The Following Are Bessie Barriscale Productions.)
Satan's Pawn.

Producers,—Kindly Furnish Titles and Dates of All New Releases Before Saturday.

SPEER

THE CARBON WITH A REPUTATION

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS
for A.C. Work
AND
SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS
for D.C. Work

Have Proved Their Worth and Value

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

Full Information Supplied By Your Dealer
"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

MANUFACTURED BY
SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

Cremona

Solo Theatre Orchestra-Organs

The instrument with the human voices.

SOLO STYLE "O"

The exclusive features of the CREMONA create a permanent satisfaction with both manager and patrons.

Reduces the overhead for music.

The Marquette Piano Co.
General Office and Factory:
1608-24 South Canal St., Chicago

Can I Display a Better Picture?

This is a question exhibitors are asking everywhere for they realize it is the quality of picture displayed that holds their customers' patronage.

Why not give your patrons the best, keep them coming and do it at a big saving?

THE BRECO CONVERTER

THE MODERN METHOD OF CHANGING A. C. TO D. C.

Was designed for your particular benefit. It enables the operator to display a clear, sharp, brilliant picture, free from eye strain or flicker.

HIGHLY EFFICIENT, ECONOMICAL, VERY EASY TO OPERATE

Will operate one or two arcs at a big saving in current. Very easy to install. Takes up little space and can be operated without special instructions.

LOW IN PRICE UPKEEP MINIMUM

Get particulars of this modern necessity

THE BRECO ELECTRIC CO. Sole Licensees 206 Huron St., Toledo, Ohio, U.S.A.

Write us today for descriptive literature

La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera

Official Organ of the Italian Cinematograph Union

PUBLISHED ON THE 15th AND 30th OF EACH MONTH

Foreign Subscription: 20 francs. per annum

Editorial and Business Offices: Via Cumiana, 31, Turin, Italy

PERFECTION IN PROJECTION Gold King Screen

10 Days' Trial

No. 1 Grade, 75c.; No. 2 Grade, 50c.—Stretchers included

Try before you buy. Sold by all the leading supply dealers throughout the country.

Factory, ALTUS, OKLAHOMA

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30% to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as the theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features. Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W74

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York Phone—Chelsea 3227
425 Ashland Block, Chicago Phone—Randolph 2003

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

Advertise Your Business

By the quality of your Projection

Nothing is as good as the Best, and the Best can only be obtained by an up-to-date machine.

We will take in your old machine on part payment on a New Machine on the MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN.

WRITE TODAY FOR PARTICULARS AND CATALOG

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade

300-302 Mallers Bldg. 5 S. Wabash Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre

WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

Screencraft

BY LOUIS REEVES HARRISON

An invaluable help to the writer who is making a serious effort to evolve stories for screen production.

Of great interest too to the individual who is watching the development of "the silent drama."

$2.00 PER COPY, POSTPAID

Published and for Sale by

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

Schiller Building, Chicago, Illinois
Wright & Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

LABORATORIES and STUDIO

ERBOGRAPH COMPANY

LUDWIG G. B. ERB, President

Producers of

MOTION PICTURE FILMS

COMMERCIAL DEVELOPING and PRINTING

Telephone Audubon 3716

203 to 211 West 146th St., New York City

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs $4.80 less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS.....$1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
516 Fifth Avenue, New York

.....

.....

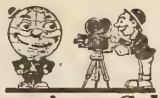
.....

Please fill in the name of your Theatre.....
Cut Out and Mail To-day—Now!

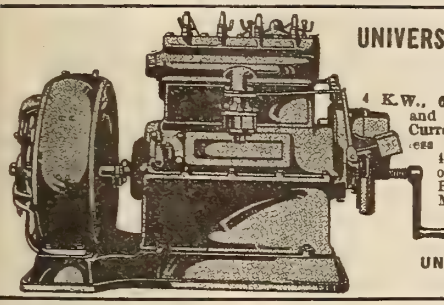
Duhem Motion Picture Mfg. Co.
Expert Developing, Printing and Coloring

CAMERA OUTFITS AND RAW FILM SUPPLIED

CAMERA MEN SENT ANYWHERE



985 Market Street San Francisco, Cal.

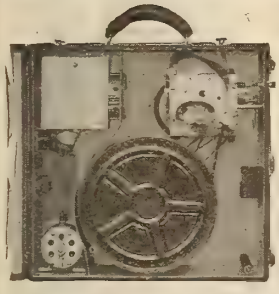


UNIVERSAL ELECTRIC GENERATOR SET

4 K.W., 60 or 110 Volt. Dependable and Efficient. Smooth, Direct Current, and consequent Flickerless Light. Direct connected to 4 Cylinder, 4 Cycle Engine of unquestioned reliability. By all odds the best for Moving or Permanent Picture work.

Write for Bulletin 16.

UNIVERSAL MOTOR CO.
Oshkosh, Wis.



The De Vry PortableMotion Picture Projector

For use where PORTABILITY is as essential as QUALITY. Project your film where and when you please—in your Office, Home or at the Exchange. Easier to carry than a traveling bag.

Motor Drive—17"x17"x7". Weighs but 20 Pounds. Takes Standard Size Reels and Film.

Used by—Ford, Dodge, Packard, Mitchell and Paige-Detroit Motor Car Companies.
Dodge Brothers are using 75 De Vry's.

The DE VRY CORPORATION 117 N. Fifth Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

Silver bullion of a quality equal to that used by the United States Mint goes into the manufacture of

EASTMAN FILM

It may be properly inferred that the demands are rigidly exacting.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Gundlach
Projection Lenses

give clean cut definition with the utmost illumination. This is all that you can expect from perfect lenses. The universal use of these lenses is the best evidence of their superior quality. They are sold on approval by all dealers and furnished as the regular equipment with the best machines.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 So. Clinton Ave., Rochester, N.Y.

RICHARDSON'S
MOTION PICTURE
HAND BOOK
FOR MANAGERS and OPERATORS
Published by
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

A carefully prepared guide to perfect projection.

An invaluable help to every individual in the trade who has to do with the mechanical handling of motion picture film or the management of a moving picture theatre.

Over 680 Pages of Text. Illustrations include detail diagrams of the leading makes of projection machines.

Substantially Bound in Red Cloth, $4.00

Sent Postpaid on Receipt of Price by

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

516 Fifth Ave. New York City | 917 Schiller Bldg. Chicago, Ill. | Wright & Callender Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

The Spanish Edition of the Moving Picture World

is throwing the light on your export market.

It works in distant fields while you toil at home

CINE-MUNDIAL

Are you availing yourself of its services?

TOTAL NUMBER OF THEATRES MORE THAN 7.500

If not, your indifference is positively costing you in dollars and cents.

Grasp the opportunity extended by its advertising columns! Rates on Application.

Chalmers Publishing Co. 516 - 5th Ave. New York City.

BETTER PROJECTION
WITH
—UTE— EQUIPMENT —UTE—

WM. A. LANDAU
President

TELEPHONE AUDUBON 5048

S. G. BOCK
Sec'y and Treas.

L. & B. AMUSEMENT CO., Inc.
LESSEES
HEIGHTS THEATRE
181st STREET AND WADSWORTH AVENUE

New York, March 23, 1918.

UNITED THEATRE EQUIPMENT CORPORATION
729 SEVENTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

Attention J. C. Hornstein, Manager

Dear Mr. Hornstein:—

We have just installed the VELVET GOLD FIBRE SCREEN at our Heights Theatre—181st Street and Wadsworth Avenue, New York City. This screen has replaced another Gold Fibre Screen and we wish to state that the screen you have just installed, together with the two Power's 6-B Cameragraph machines and special lenses, are giving us better projection than we have EVER had heretofore.

Very truly yours,
L. & B. AMUSEMENT CO., Inc.,
Per S. G. BOCK, Sec'y and Treas.

P. S.—We forgot to state that, in conjunction with the VELVET GOLD FIBRE SCREEN and Power's machines, we are using the Hallberg MOTOR GENERATOR.

WE ARE THE DISTRIBUTORS OF
HALLBERG MOTOR-GENERATORS AND ECONOMIZERS

EDISON MAZDA "C" LAMPS
REGULAR AND PROJECTION TYPE

NATIONAL CARBONS
Give Brilliant, Steady Light

Power's Cameragraph The Better Projector

VELVET GOLD FIBRE SCREEN
Is the Last Word in Projection Screens

ACME PORTABLE PROJECTOR
For the Director's Private Office

"EVERYTHING FOR THE M. P. THEATRE EXCEPT THE FILM"

BRANCH OFFICES:

New York, N. Y.—729 Seventh Ave.
Boston, Mass.—28 Piedmont St.
Philadelphia, Pa.—1233 Vine St.
Pittsburgh, Pa.—940 Penn Ave.
Cincinnati, O.—115 W. 7th St.
Detroit, Mich.—57 E. Elizabeth St.
Omaha, Neb.—13th and Harney Sts.
Minneapolis, Minn.—16 N. 7th St.
Cleveland, O.—Columbia Bldg.
Chicago, Ill.—154 W. Lake St.
Kansas City, Mo.—K. C. Machine & Supply Co., Inc., 813 Walnut St.

United Theatre Equipment Corporation

H. T. EDWARDS, Pres. J. H. HALLBERG, Vice-Pres.

Executive Offices: 1604 Broadway, New York

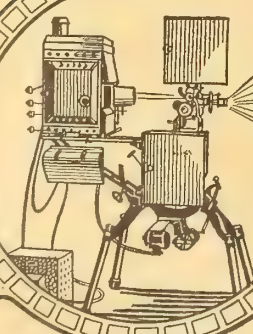
Largest Moving Picture Equipment House in the World

?

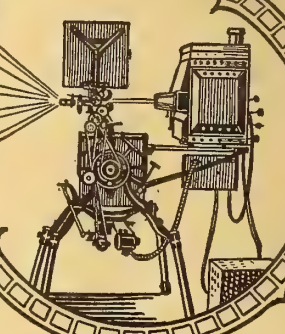
Ask the Operator

FROM HIS PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE HE CAN GIVE YOU THE REASONS WHY

Power's Cameragraph is the Leading Motion Picture Projector



NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY
INCORPORATED
PIONEERS OF PROJECTION
90 GOLD ST. NEW YORK



Vol. 36, No. 3 April 20, 1918 Price 15 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Founded by J.P.Chalmers in 1907

TRADE MARK
Paramount Pictures
FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
NEW YORK
TRADE MARK
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Chalmers Publishing Company 516 Fifth Ave. New York

BEAUTIFUL
PRISCILLA DEAN
IN "THE
TWO-SOUL WOMAN"
THE GREAT FIRST PRIZE
DRAMATIC WINNER
With wonderful Priscilla Dean in the title Role—Joseph Girard as "The Doctor"—Ashton Dearholt as "The Husband" and Evelyn Selbie as "The Housekeeper."
Based on the amazing novel "THE WHITE CAT" by the celebrated fiction writer, Gelett Burgess—read by thousands all over America.
Produced by
ELMER CLIFTON

The Chicago Examiner says:

"The Revivified Broncho Billy Pictures are unreeling and they stack up splendidly with present-day stuff. Those one-reel episodes dominated by daring riding and wonderful scenery are little classics."

SHOW ONE EACH WEEK

"Broncho Billy's Leap"
"Broncho Billy and the Rattler"
"Broncho Billy's Close Call"
"Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter"
"Broncho Billy's Indian Romance"
"Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need"
"Broncho Billy's Wild Ride"
"Broncho Billy's First Arrest"
"Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child"
"Broncho Billy's Last Deed"

Perfection Pictures

ESSANAY

George Kleine System
Distributors

WORLD-PICTURES present

ETHEL CLAYTON
in
"The Witch Woman"

Story by WILLARD MACK Directed by TRAVERS VALE

DRAMATIC MIRROR:

"An engaging story screened from a smooth scenario. Superb scenery which is of the sort that would make of the film a veritable scenic and would interest the spectator without the added advantage of being the setting for a story."

VARIETY:

"Absorbingly interesting. Sure to give satisfaction."

EXHIBITOR'S TRADE REVIEW:

"Star has seldom been seen in a role which fitted her dainty personality so perfectly. Replete with genuine emotion of a healthy kind. Story never drags."

NEW YORK MAIL:

"There is swiftness of action, pastoral beauty of scene and contrast of characterization in 'The Witch Woman'."

It makes Americans fighting mad

THE PICTURE THAT BLOCKED THE TRAFFIC ON BROADWAY

—"but the truth —don't let my people know!"—
—"an
"THE KAISER —
Only that morning there was a wedding in the quiet of the village square.
—"YOU FIEND!"
—then came the Kaiser's horde of baby killers
JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS
INC.
1600 Broadway. New York

ese hands I'll tear you limb for limb!"
"We all knew his Majesty's weakness for soft white hands and we shuddered"
the Beast of Berlin"
"What—the United States fight ?—faugh!"
—"Kill the Belgian swine!"
y ask you at any moment to strike your own mother, sister or sweetheart"
"Stand aside old woman,— it's the girl I want!"
The "SCRAP OF PAPER"
"It was a glad day for the blacksmith of Louvain"

Marcus Loew
and
William Fox

have just made the very unusual decision to book the picture

"The KAISER - the Beast of Berlin"

to run simultaneously

in the New York City Theatres of their competing circuits.....and have booked it for a total of

One Hundred Days

Our best advice to you, even if your competitor has beaten you to it,.....is to

Book it under Any and Every Condition for the Reason that this Super-Sensation

Draws Everywhere Capacity Crowds.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS Inc.

1600 Broadway, New-York.

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE

THE BIG FOUR

WM. S. HART DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS NORMA TALMADGE FRANK KEENAN

Are the stars you can depend upon in the list of Triangle features that S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., announce have been sold for the following territories:

MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT, RHODE ISLAND, MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE and VERMONT, to Boston Photoplay Company, 195 Pleasant Street, Boston, Mass.

EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA and SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY, to Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA and WEST VIRGINIA, to Quality Film Company, 404 Ferry Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

WASHINGTON, OREGON, IDAHO and MONTANA, to De Luxe Feature Film Company, 2014 Third Avenue, Seattle, Wash.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, MARYLAND, DELAWARE and VIRGINIA, to Superfeatures, Inc., Sidney B. Lust, 1209 E Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

MINNESOTA, NORTH and SOUTH DAKOTA and WISCONSIN, to Friedman Film Corp., Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA and NEVADA, to Sunset Film Corporation, Julius L. Lazarus, Pres., San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal.

ILLINOIS and INDIANA (Talmadge and Keenan Re-Issues), to Central Film Corporation, 110 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, NEBRASKA, TEXAS, OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS, GEORGIA, FLORIDA, ALABAMA, S. CAROLINA, N. CAROLINA, MISSISSIPPI, LOUISIANA and TENNESSEE will be handled by the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., through the Triangle Exchanges, in the following cities: Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

Regarding Territories Not Closed as Yet, Apply for Detailed Information to

HILLER & WILK, Inc.

1476 Broadway, New York

Selling Agents for the S. A. LYNCH ENTERPRISES, Inc.

WELCOME, PARAMOUNT!

(No. 203 Straight from the Shoulder Talk by Carl Laemmle, President, Universal Film Manufacturing Company.)

The Paramount has been giving Bluebird Photoplays so much free advertising by producing Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" that it is only fair for me to return the courtesy.

* * * *

First, therefore, I congratulate the Paramount on making an exquisitely beautiful picture. Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird," as produced by the Paramount, will live as one of the great classics of the screen as it has lived as a classic of literature. It is, I believe, the finest thing the Paramount has ever done. It should be shown in every theatre in the world, for it will add to the sum total of the world's happiness.

* * * *

Second, I congratulate the Paramount on the big vital fact that "The Blue Bird"—their finest effort and probably the most profitable one for themselves as well as for exhibitors who book it—CONTAINS NOT A SINGLE OVERPAID STAR. Thus, no vast fortunes were wasted on its production. This will enable the Paramount to book "The Blue Bird" to exhibitors at a rate which will permit the exhibitors to make a profit. It is a step in the right direction and I hope it is but the first of several steps the same way.

* * * *

Third, I congratulate the Paramount on their splendid advertising campaign in the newspapers and magazines of recent weeks. I notice that they do not advertise any of their high priced stars in this big advertising campaign, but boost their stars in moving picture trade papers only. This is splendid. It ought to work out well. I assume this is the first move in a well thought out plan to gradually cease advertising the high priced stars altogether, meanwhile keeping the stars in good humor by letting them see their names and faces in print in the trade papers every week. This last form of advertising is comparatively inexpensive and does not add enough to the overhead to make prices higher than the exhibitor can afford to pay.

* * * *

If I am correct in assuming that the Paramount has decided to rely on the merit of its pictures and gradually let the stars "die off," it will mean that the Paramount can operate at a profit. If the Paramount does not have to pay all of its profits out in high salaries and other terrific overhead, it will be a good thing for the whole business because the Paramount is a good producing concern. It has made a large number of mighty fine pictures. If it is planning a starless and high-priceless policy, it can make a far higher percentage of good pictures.

* * * *

All of this will be a good thing for the exhibitor, for it means that before long all producing companies will adopt the Bluebird and Universal plan of depending on good pictures instead of on the names of high priced stars. I have already welcomed to the Bluebird plan such producers as the Metro, Fox, Pathe, Triangle, World and others who have shown a disposition to throw off the star burden that all but crushed the industry. I have hoped for a long time that the Paramount would line itself up for the new reform, and it is now gratifying to note these first indications of a new general policy of wakefulness. The Paramount people have in a great measure helped to put the business on a high plane, artistically, and none will be better pleased than I to see them go through with what they now seem to be starting.

* * * *

It would have been a fine thing, financially, if all the producers named above had seen the merit of the Universal and Bluebird policy two years ago. I haven't the least doubt that it was the origination and adoption of the policy by the Bluebird and the Universal that has made the Universal probably the most solid financial structure in the picture business. And the best of it is that we attained this position not by taking all the exhibitors' profits but by giving them the kind of pictures they needed at prices they could well afford to pay.

* * * *

I hope Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" production will make a pile of money for the Paramount people, for this more than anything else will convince them they are on the right track in depending on meritorious pictures rather than on such shifting assets or liabilities as overpaid stars.

* * * *

Exhibitors who do real thinking will see in all this the dawn of a new era—the beginning of a live-and-let-live policy among producers, exchanges and exhibitors—the only ideal cooperative scheme in the whole wide world of real business.

* * * *

Book the Paramount's "The Blue Bird" picture, secure in the knowledge that you are not paying a penny for an overpaid star; because the picture is bigger than any star. The money that the Paramount saves you on this picture and the profit that it will make for itself will be a glorious lesson for everybody.

Reproduced from the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY, a magazine with a larger circulation than any trade paper in the moving picture field. Here and here only are published Carl Laemmle's Straight-from-the-Shoulder Talks, the only absolutely fearless weekly discussions of conditions affecting producers, exhibitors and exchanges. The MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY does not rely on advertising revenue. Therefore it can discuss delicate trade subjects in a startlingly candid manner that would be impossible in even the strongest trade paper. Any exhibitor who does not get the MOVING PICTURE WEEKLY is welcome to a three months trial FREE. Simply send in a request ON YOUR BUSINESS STATIONERY and tell us whether to mail the magazine to your theatre or to your home. Editor, Moving P.cture Weekly, 1600 Broadway, New Xork City.

The Tremen

of "THE LION'S CLAWS"

ndous Power

"THE LION'S CLAWS"—the latest and greatest Universal serial thriller will smash serial competition and will pull when your feature rails. Filled with nerve tingling sensations, with romance, adventure and tremendous punches, it means 18 weeks of big business for you, with the additional guarantee of the drawing power of dashing, reckless—

MARIE WALCAMP

—who brought people in droves to see "THE RED ACE" and that great box office serial winner—"LIBERTY." You needn't take our word for the holding power of this serial. GO SEE IT YOURSELF WITH YOUR OWN EYES at your nearest Universal Exchange. Ask to see the album containing many of the big, thrilling scenes. Ask for a copy of the complete advertising and publicity campaign book that shows you the big stunts and ideas with which to put over this big serial.

BOOK NOW—by mail—wire—phone or in person at your nearest Universal Exchange.

UNIVERSAL FILM MN'FG. CO., Largest Film Mn'fg. Co. in the Universe, Carl Laemmle, President, 1600 Broadway, New York.

The Combined Verdict from every section
DOROTHY PHILLIPS
MAE MURRAY
HARRY CAREY
PRODU
will be, that they are the Finest and pictures, released by any Producing Each Special Attraction to be sold passing Judgement after viewing two pages we present Current See them all at your of Thousands of Exhibitors of the United States on

MARY MAC LAREN
PRISCILLA DEAN
HERBERT RAWLINSON
CTIONS
most Consistent Money getting Company in the Cinema Industry—strictly on its merits, with Exhibitors each release.—On the following and Coming Special Productions. nearest Universal Exchange.

Dorothy Phillips

DOROTHY PHILLIPS PRODUCTION

—"THE RISKY ROAD," released April 8th, is one of the biggest Box-office attractions of the season. The story and action is as powerful as the title, which is a money-getter par excellence. Good for an extra run. Watch for the coming DOROTHY PHILLIPS PRODUCTIONS.

Mae Murray

MAE MURRAY PRODUCTION

—"THE BRIDE'S AWAKENING," released on May 20th, promises a sensational treat for millions and big results for Exhibitors. It's title is exceptionally strong, and the production backs up the title to the letter. Play this one for more than one day.

Priscilla Dean

PRISCILLA DEAN PRODUCTION

—"THE TWO-SOUL WOMAN" is a feature extraordinary. One that will be worth more to you in results than any price your Exchange may ask of you. Pay whatever they ask. Boost this to the very limit. It will play capacity especially on repeat performances. Released May 6th.

Your nearest Universal will arrange Special Trade

Harry Carey

HARRY CAREY PRODUCTION

—"THE SCARLET DROP" is a companion piece in wonderful character acting to Harry Carey's "PHANTOM RIDERS" and "STRAIGHT SHOOTING," which were received with unbounded enthusiasm by hundreds of shrewd Exhibitors. No competition can outdraw this feature. Released April 22d.

Herbert Rawlinson

HERBERT RAWLINSON PRODUCTION

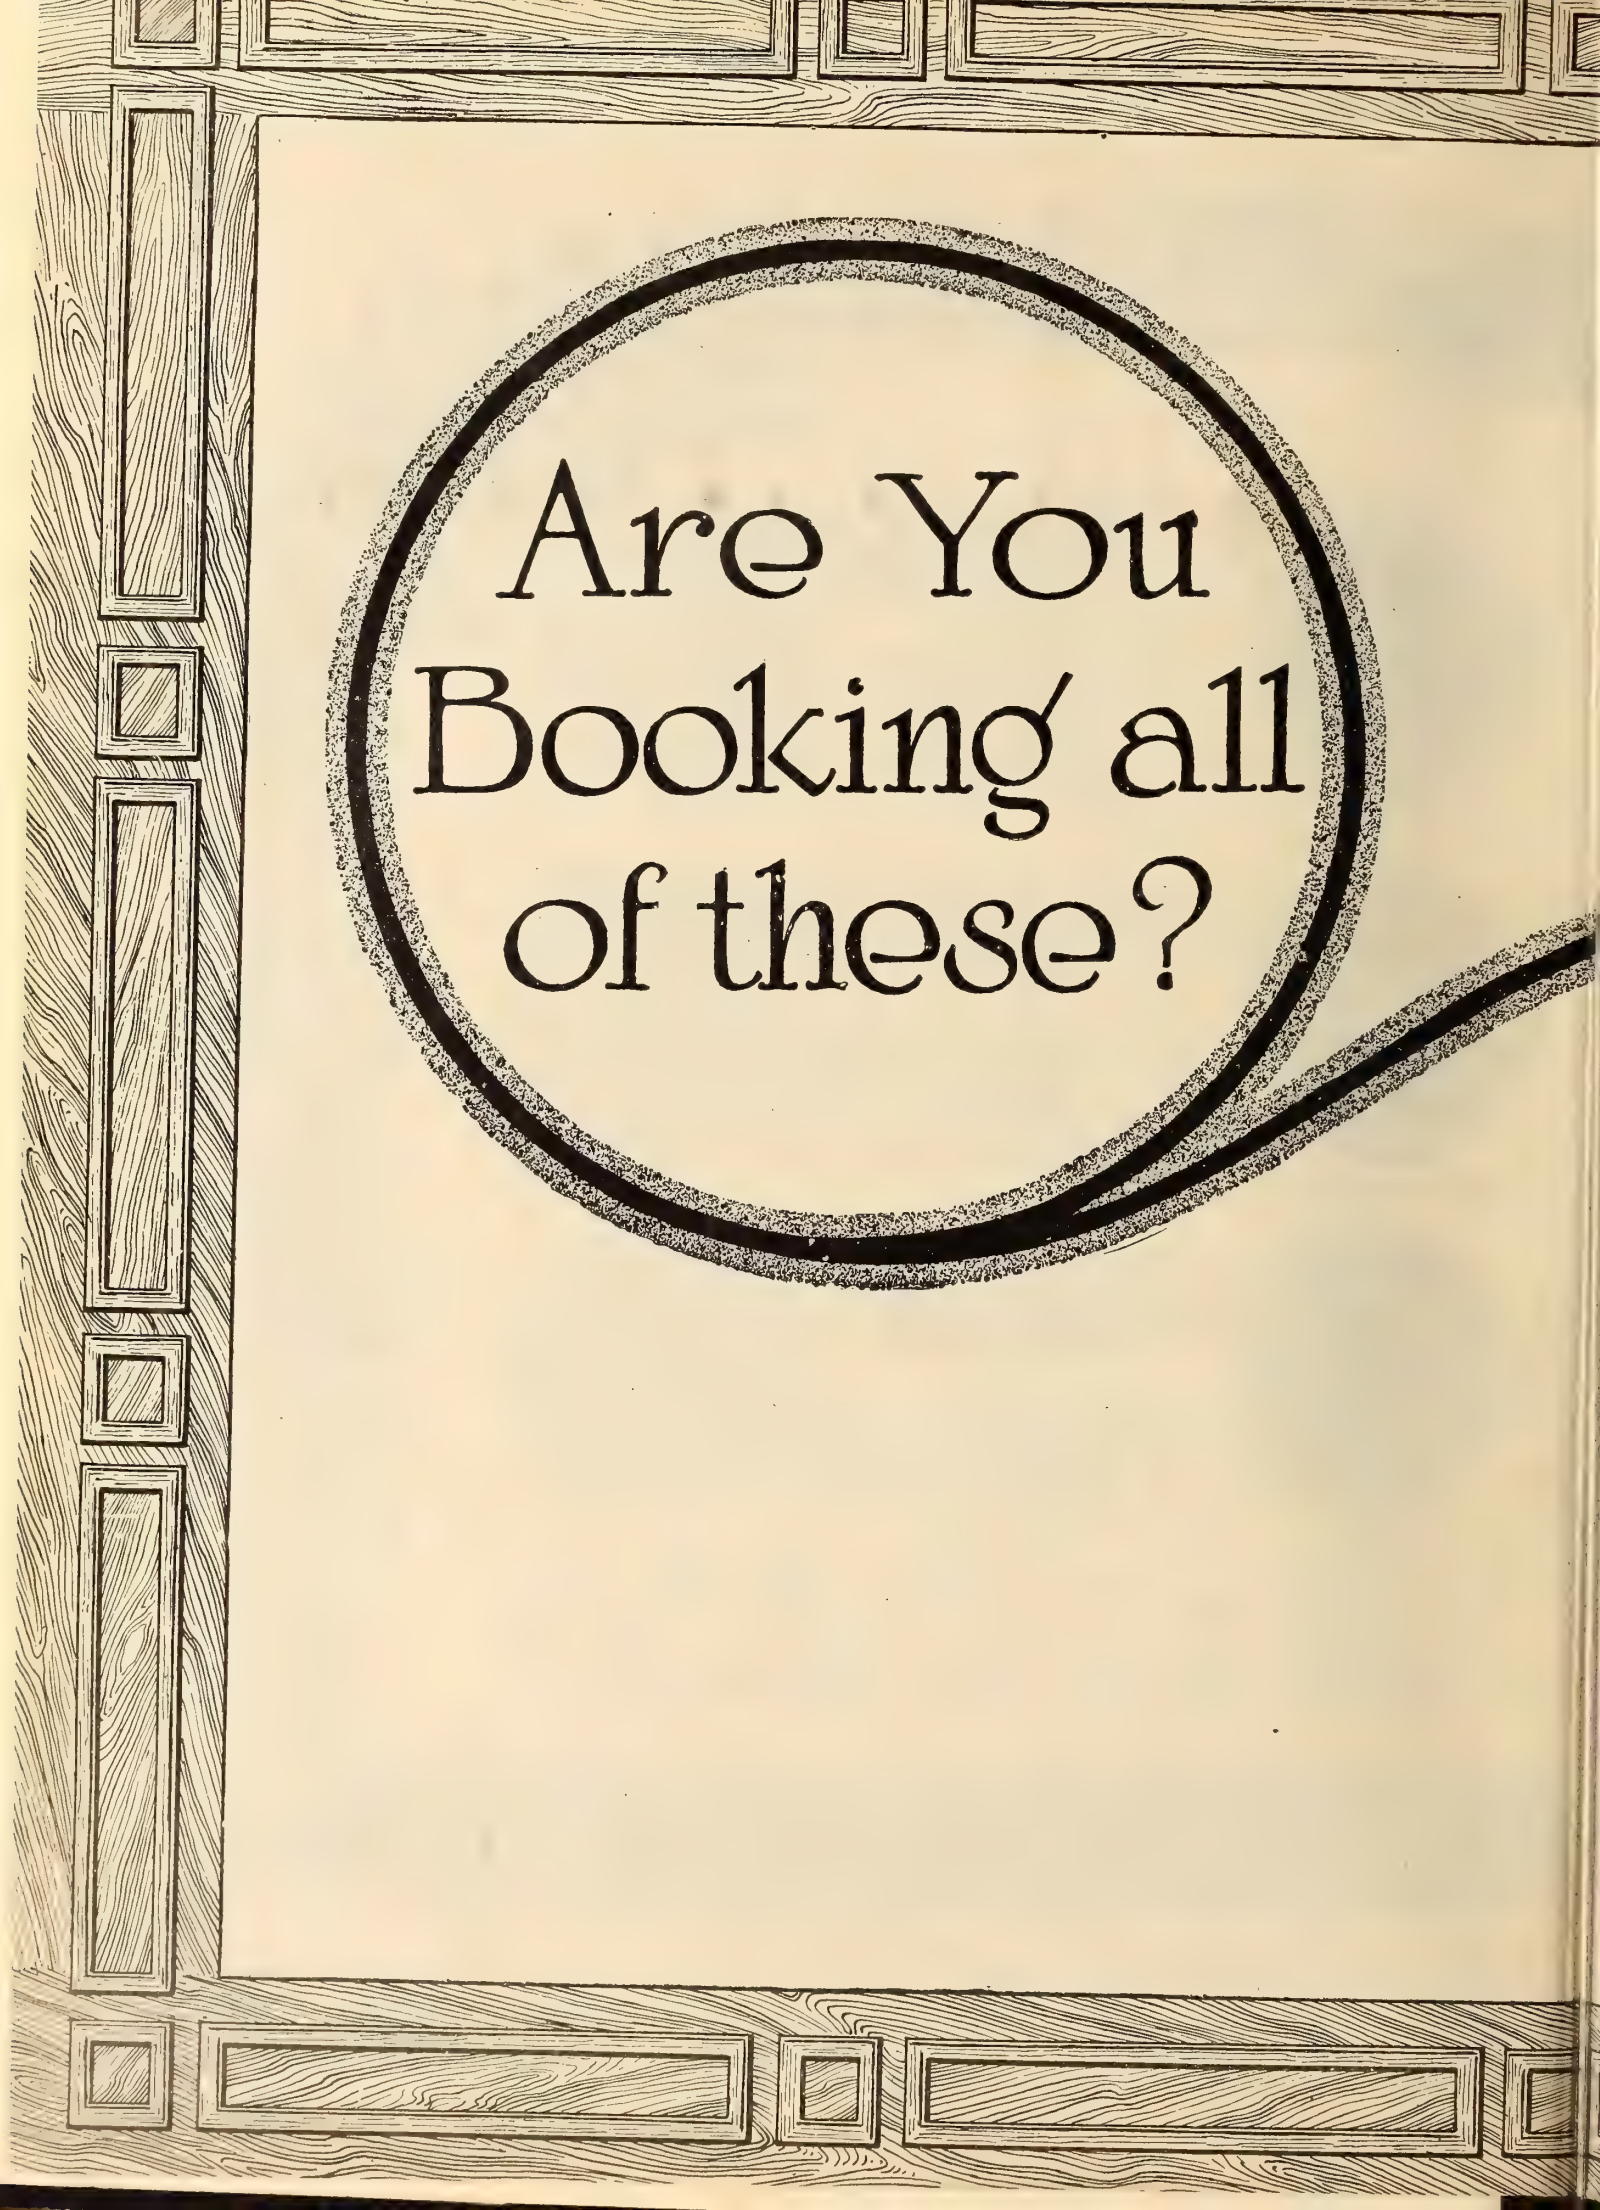
—"SMASHING THROUGH" promises as big returns to Exhibitors as that sensational financial success—"COME THROUGH"—in which Rawlinson took the country by storm. It is a big feature to be booked for longer than one day for the big money. Release date to be announced later.

Mary MacLaren

MARY MAC LAREN PRODUCTION

—(Title and release date to be announced later) will be a great "come back" with this splendid star to Universal Productions. Thousands remember Mary MacLaren in Lois Weber's great sensation, "SHOES." Watch for this new one in June.

Exchange will confer with you and Showings of all these Productions



Are You
Booking all of these?

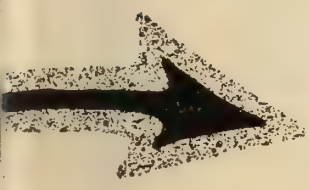
ARTCRAFT PICTURES

for

March and April

In order of release



MARY PICKFORD

in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley"

CECIL B. De MILLE'S

"The Whispering Chorus"

Maeterlinck's "THE BLUE BIRD"

WILLIAM S. HART

in "The Tiger Man"

ELSIE FERGUSON

in "The Lie"

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

in "Mr. Fix-It"

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Goldwyn Pictures

The Kind Of Picture Mr. Lourie Wants In His Boston Theatres

MR. Jacob Lourie, owner of the Modern, Beacon and other Boston theatres, is wealthy and successful. Hundreds of exhibitors watch his policies and decisions and follow them—for Jacob Lourie knows the dollar values of pictures.

"I want stars"—says Mr. Lourie—"whose names are on the tongues of the public—stars who inspire popular affection—stars who interest all classes and offend none.

"I want stories"—says Mr. Lourie—"with backbone in them—stories that can stand up alone—stories that appeal to the mind through the eyes. I want stories that pull the public into my front doors as an electric magnet attracts scrap-iron."

It is indeed fine to be able instantly to give Mr. Lourie exactly the kind of production he desires—

Mae Marsh
in
THE FACE IN THE DARK

by Irvin S. Cobb
Directed by Hobart Henley

The most distinctive Mae Marsh picture since "The Cinderella Man." Released April 21.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION
SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

The Critic Said It Couldn't Be Done!

HE ridiculed the crime story of the inexperienced girl author. "The things she described could never be done," he said. So just to show that they could, she achieved the daring exploits about which she had written.

CAN you imagine a screen melodrama that could contain more surprises and sensations than are promised by such a plot? Can you think of any delightful, youthful, fun-making star who could be as wonderful as

MADGE KENNEDY
in
The Danger Game

By Roy Somerville - Directed by Harry Pollard

Madge Kennedy's popularity has swept across the country. Instantly she became a tremendous favorite with the public and nation-wide appreciation of "the girl without an equal" made exhibitors put their every resource behind her. She is the sensational discovery of the screen year—and "The Danger Game" is her biggest and most successful production. Released April 7.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Three SELEXART PICTURES Made by Fine Specialists

GOLDWYN offers for release through its exchanges, beginning April 15, three powerful pictures under a single contract; pictures containing all the "punch" and emotional drama that is required to make your second day's business larger than your first.

HOWARD HICKMAN
in Blue Blood
by J. Grubb Alexander
Directed by Elliott Howe

RHEA MITCHELL
in Honor's Cross
by H.B. Daniel
Directed by Wallace Worsley

RHEA MITCHELL
and
HOWARD HICKMAN
in Social Ambition
by W. E. Wing
Directed by Wallace Worsley

Productions "cut to measure" for the box-office. Built to contain and put over the dramatic knock-out. Combining strength with good taste but made to be applauded by the many. Exhibitors can book these three productions under a single contract at reasonable prices and obtain immediate playing dates by writing or wiring any office of

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
16 East 42nd Street New York City

CAPITOL COMEDIES

"I AM on the coast for Goldwyn and have seen the first three Capitol Comedies—

'BILL'S BABY'
'BILL'S PREDICAMENT'
'BIRDS OF A FEATHER.'

"Seeing them at first-hand here in California and also seeing a dozen scenarios of future releases I predict that will have a tremendous appeal for audiences everywhere and prove popular and profitable for exhibitors.

"SMILING BILL" PARSONS in CAPITOL COMEDIES

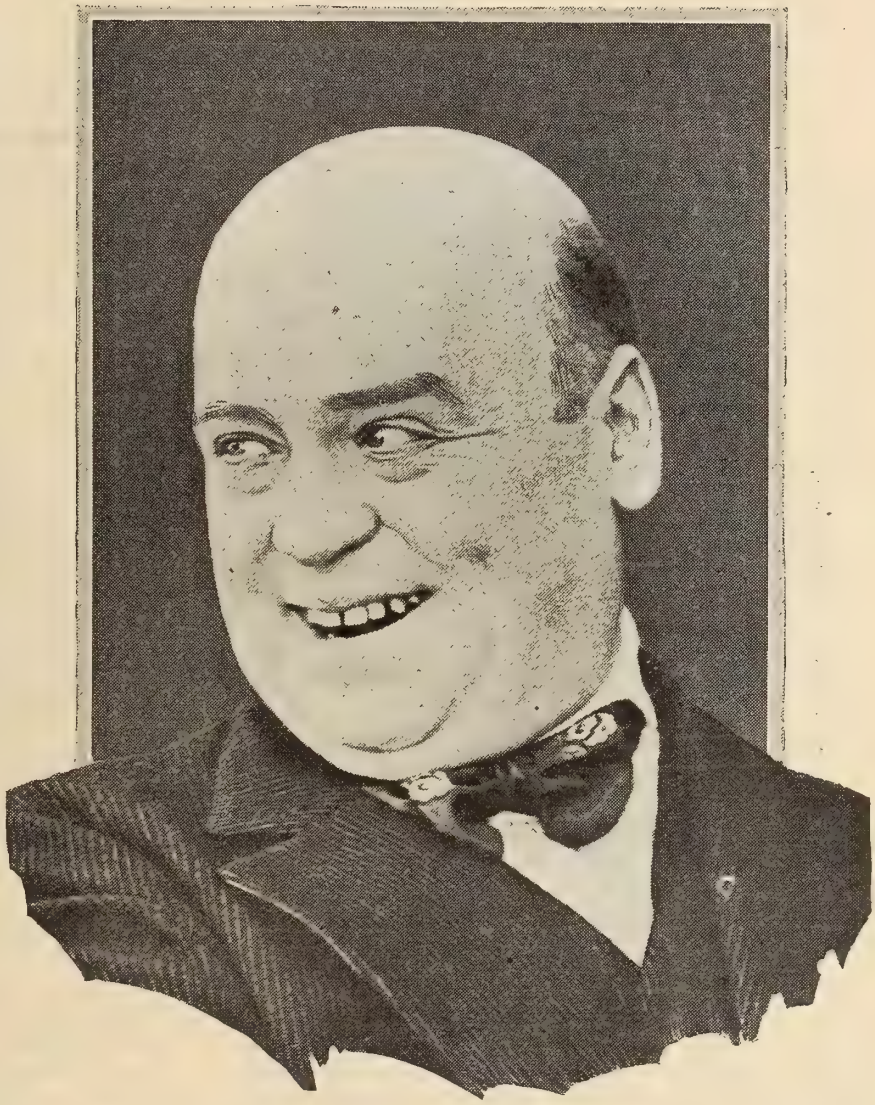
"They are different. They are clean. They are original. They imitate no comedies or comedians you have ever seen. They have 'box-office' profit in every foot of them. They are not slapstick. And they are better than any comedies now being made in America."



This report is made by an official of Goldwyn, now on the Pacific Coast, and places the Goldwyn first-hand stamp of approval on what we feel certain will be the most entertaining comedies available in the entire industry.

Capital Comedies—Two Reels. Every Second Monday. Have you booked them for your theatre?

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

Beautiful Alaire Austin Hungered for Love

THIS lovely young ranchwoman and heroine of the Texas border was bound to a dissolute husband, though she loved Dave Law of the Texas Rangers. But when Fate and Rex Beach conspire together there is always "a way out."

AMERICA'S most popular author who made fortunes for exhibitors with "productions that never failed or disappointed the public," has now achieved his greatest and most human picture that depicts the real Americans.

REX BEACH'S Screen Classic of the Great Southwest

HEART of the SUNSET

Directed by Frank Powell — Now Ready for Immediate Release

Proof of the coming popularity of this production is found in the fact that hundreds of advance bookings were made months before the completion of the picture—long before the camera crank had been turned for the first scene. Exhibitors know the box-office power of Rex Beach productions. This one is sold as a special release.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

HMCRW

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER
PRODUCTIONS INC.

PRESENTS

NILES WELCH

MABEL JULIENE
SCOTT

IN

RECLAIMED

BY RICHARD FIELD CARROLL

THE STRUGGLE OF A SOUL BETWEEN LOVE AND HATE
A STATE RIGHT FEATURE
NOW IN PREPARATION

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER PRODUCTIONS INC.
BROKAW BLDG. 42ND ST. & BROADWAY.
TELEPHONE BRYANT 486-7

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

A National Institution

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

Offers Country-Wide Service to Exhibitors Interested in the Savings and Benefits of Co-operative Buying

LIST OF CITIES IN WHICH OUR BRANCH OFFICES HAVE BEEN ESTABLISHED

NEW YORK
PHILADELPHIA
BOSTON
BUFFALO
WASHINGTON
NEW ORLEANS
DALLAS
DENVER
CHICAGO
ST. LOUIS
CLEVELAND
PITTSBURGH
DETROIT
CINCINNATI
KANSAS CITY
SALT LAKE CITY
MINNEAPOLIS

Other cities to be announced later

Prospectus now ready. Write for it to-day to the main office

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 Broadway, New York City

"Lower Prices—Better Quality"

SCREEN CLASSICS INC.
in its first production–Revelation with Nazimova–has given to motion pictures the greatest play in the history of the screen–

SCREEN CLASSICS INC. is following this smashing triumph with new waves of success– Their announcement is made in the pages that follow.

SCREEN CLASSICS INC.
was organized with the best production brains in motion pictures to present the bigger, finer pictures that raise standards and bring rich rewards to the exhibitors.

SCREEN CLASSICS INC

The "Literary Digest" in its March 23rd number says of the first Screen Classics production Revelation – It is a truly great picture–one of the best ever screened"

The greatest picture

NOT A BATTLE PICTURE

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL presents

The SCREEN CLASSICS Marvel Drama

MY OWN UNITED STATES

Produced by the Frohman Amusement Corporation—Written by Anthony Kelly.

It deserves a run in every picture house in America
Randolph Bartlett in Photoplay

It is the duty of every American Exhibitor to book this picture as it indirectly helps our Government to win the war—
P.S. Harrison in Motion Picture News.

Wasn't a dry eye in the sophisticated audience at the Rivoli, New York.
Motion Picture

You will want to play "My own United States".
Wid.

Will thrill an audience to the core—
Moving Picture World.

No word thus far spoken, no picture thus far shown contains so much inspiration for Americans—
N.Y. Review.

Strikes high water mark in photo dramatic production.
Exhibitors Trade Review.

Distributed by METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

of the

year –

NOW PLAYING at the RIVOLI THEATRE, N.Y.

Starring

America's greatest Actor

Mr. ARNOLD DALY

Directed in Eight astounding acts by John W. Noble

Combines dramatic pictorial and educational values of highest order – An asset to Exhibitors –
Dramatic Mirror.

Fine, clean, dignified – full of stirring episodes and human pathos. Mrs. David W. Griffith in Film Fun.

Will be hugely popular. Motion Picture Classic.

None will have to be made to see it – Every one will want to see it and no one will view the impressive scenes with undimmed eyes Morning Telegraph.

An applause hit – A feature that's got to get over if there is an American in the house. Sime in Variety.

Will live in heart and memory – will promote loyalty and determination to win. Saucy Stories.

Distributed by SCREEN CLASSICS INC. METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

The DOLLY SISTERS are NEW YORK'S greatest stage attraction
Their name over a theatre is the guarantee of a crowded house

SCREEN CLASSICS INC.

presents

The greatest advertised artists in America

The DOLLY SISTERS

in their first screen appearance

The MILLION DOLLAR DOLLIES

A production of extraordinary novelty contrived and directed by Leonce Perret and produced by the Emerald Pictures CO. in 5 acts of beauty and romance

Advertise this production as you would advertise the biggest international attraction

Distributed by the

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

To the world of motion pictures

MAY ALLISON, beautiful charming and richly talented makes her bow as a great star in "SOCIAL HYPOCRITES and METRO takes pleasure in giving its absolute assurance to Exhibitors and the public that the star will prove a genuine delight-

The supporting cast includes such notable players as Marie Wainwright, Stella Hammerstein, Henry Kolker, Joseph Kilgour and Frank Currier and the play is wonderful.

METRO congratulates Miss Allison and her director Mr. Albert Capellani on their notable success-

METRO presents

MAY ALLISON

and an all star cast in

SOCIAL HYPOCRITES

Adapted by June Mathis and Albert Capellani from Alicia Ramsey's play "Bridge" and directed in 5 acts by Albert Capellani.

Released by METRO April 8th

Maxwell Karger, Manager of Productions

The picture that will help win the war

It takes the Kaiser by the Throat

SCREEN CLASSICS INC presents

RITA JOLIVET

The International star in

LEST WE FORGET

Directed by Leonce Perret

No greater patriotic attraction for every theatre in the United States

Distributed by the METRO Pictures Corporation

The Hodkinson Plan

Deserves Your Confidence and Support

—because untried schemes have no place in it. Evolution—rather than Revolution—is the road it is traveling.

Read these chief points of difference. They are your and our guaranty of success:—

Absolute Administrative Freedom: It is free from Producer and Exhibitor control—assuring you the best productions at equitable prices.

Stabilizing Factor Introduced: We are more than film distributors—we are co-ordinators, acting as a balancing factor between Producer and Exhibitor; and working in the interest of both.

Costly Exchanges Eliminated: We are free from costly investments in exchange offices, enabling us to save and serve the exhibitor and sell him product at a fair price.

A Fully Financed, Profitable Business: You are offered co-partnership in a going concern—fully financed and making money—which on its present output, has already signed up over a million dollars worth of business! Your interest grows as we grow.

Maximum Profit Sharing: The Hodkinson Co-partnership plan and no other—offers YOU, the Exhibitor, approximately 70% of the heretofore misplaced distributing profit.

Capable, Courageous Leader: It is headed, guided and directed by W. W. Hodkinson, who, by his record as an Exhibitor and Distributor, has earned the right to your confidence.

If you believe that a healthy industry will further your personal profit, let us send you all the details at once in a confidential letter.

"Hodkinson Service at All General Film Exchanges"

CONFIDENCE and VISION will make YOUR THEATRE the "GIBRALTAR of MOTION PICTURES" in YOUR CITY.

W. W. HODKINSON CORP.

527 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK CITY

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

LOUISE GLAUM

in

"An Alien Enemy"

Directed by
Wallace Worsley

Written by
Monte M. Katterjohn

What the Third Liberty Loan means to the United States
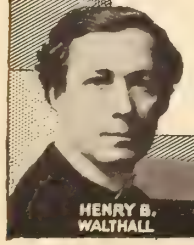
this picture means to You!

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc. 8 WEST 48th STREET NEW YORK CITY

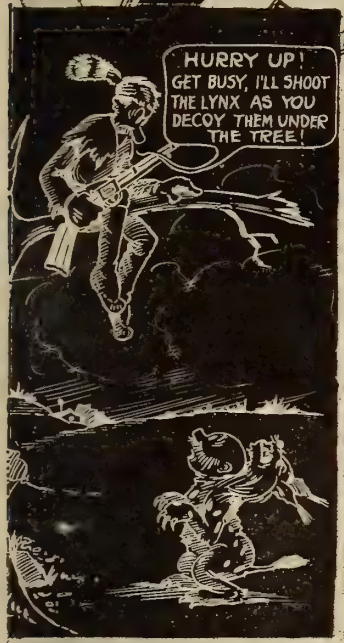
Foreign Distributors: Inter-Ocean Film Corporation.

Canadian Distributors: Globe Films, Ltd.



DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
"HODKINSON SERVICE"
AT ALL GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

BOOK 500 FEET AWAY
FROM GUNS AND WAR
AND THE TRAGEDIES OF LIFE



Start the Laughter
with BUD FISHER'S
MUTT
AND JEFF
ANIMATED CARTOONS

"THE DECOY"
"BACK TO THE "BALKANS"
"THE FREIGHT INVESTIGATION"
"THE LEAK"
"ON ICE"
"HELPING Mc ADOO"

YES, GO A STEP FURTHER

Keep the laughs coming
Sign up today - NOW - for
HENRY LEHRMAN'S
SUNSHINE
COMEDIES

The best preparation for a German Drive

FOX
FILM CORPORATION

FOX
FILM CORPORATION

On State Right

Francis Ford

in

Supported by

Edna Emerson

BERLIN via AMERICA

by

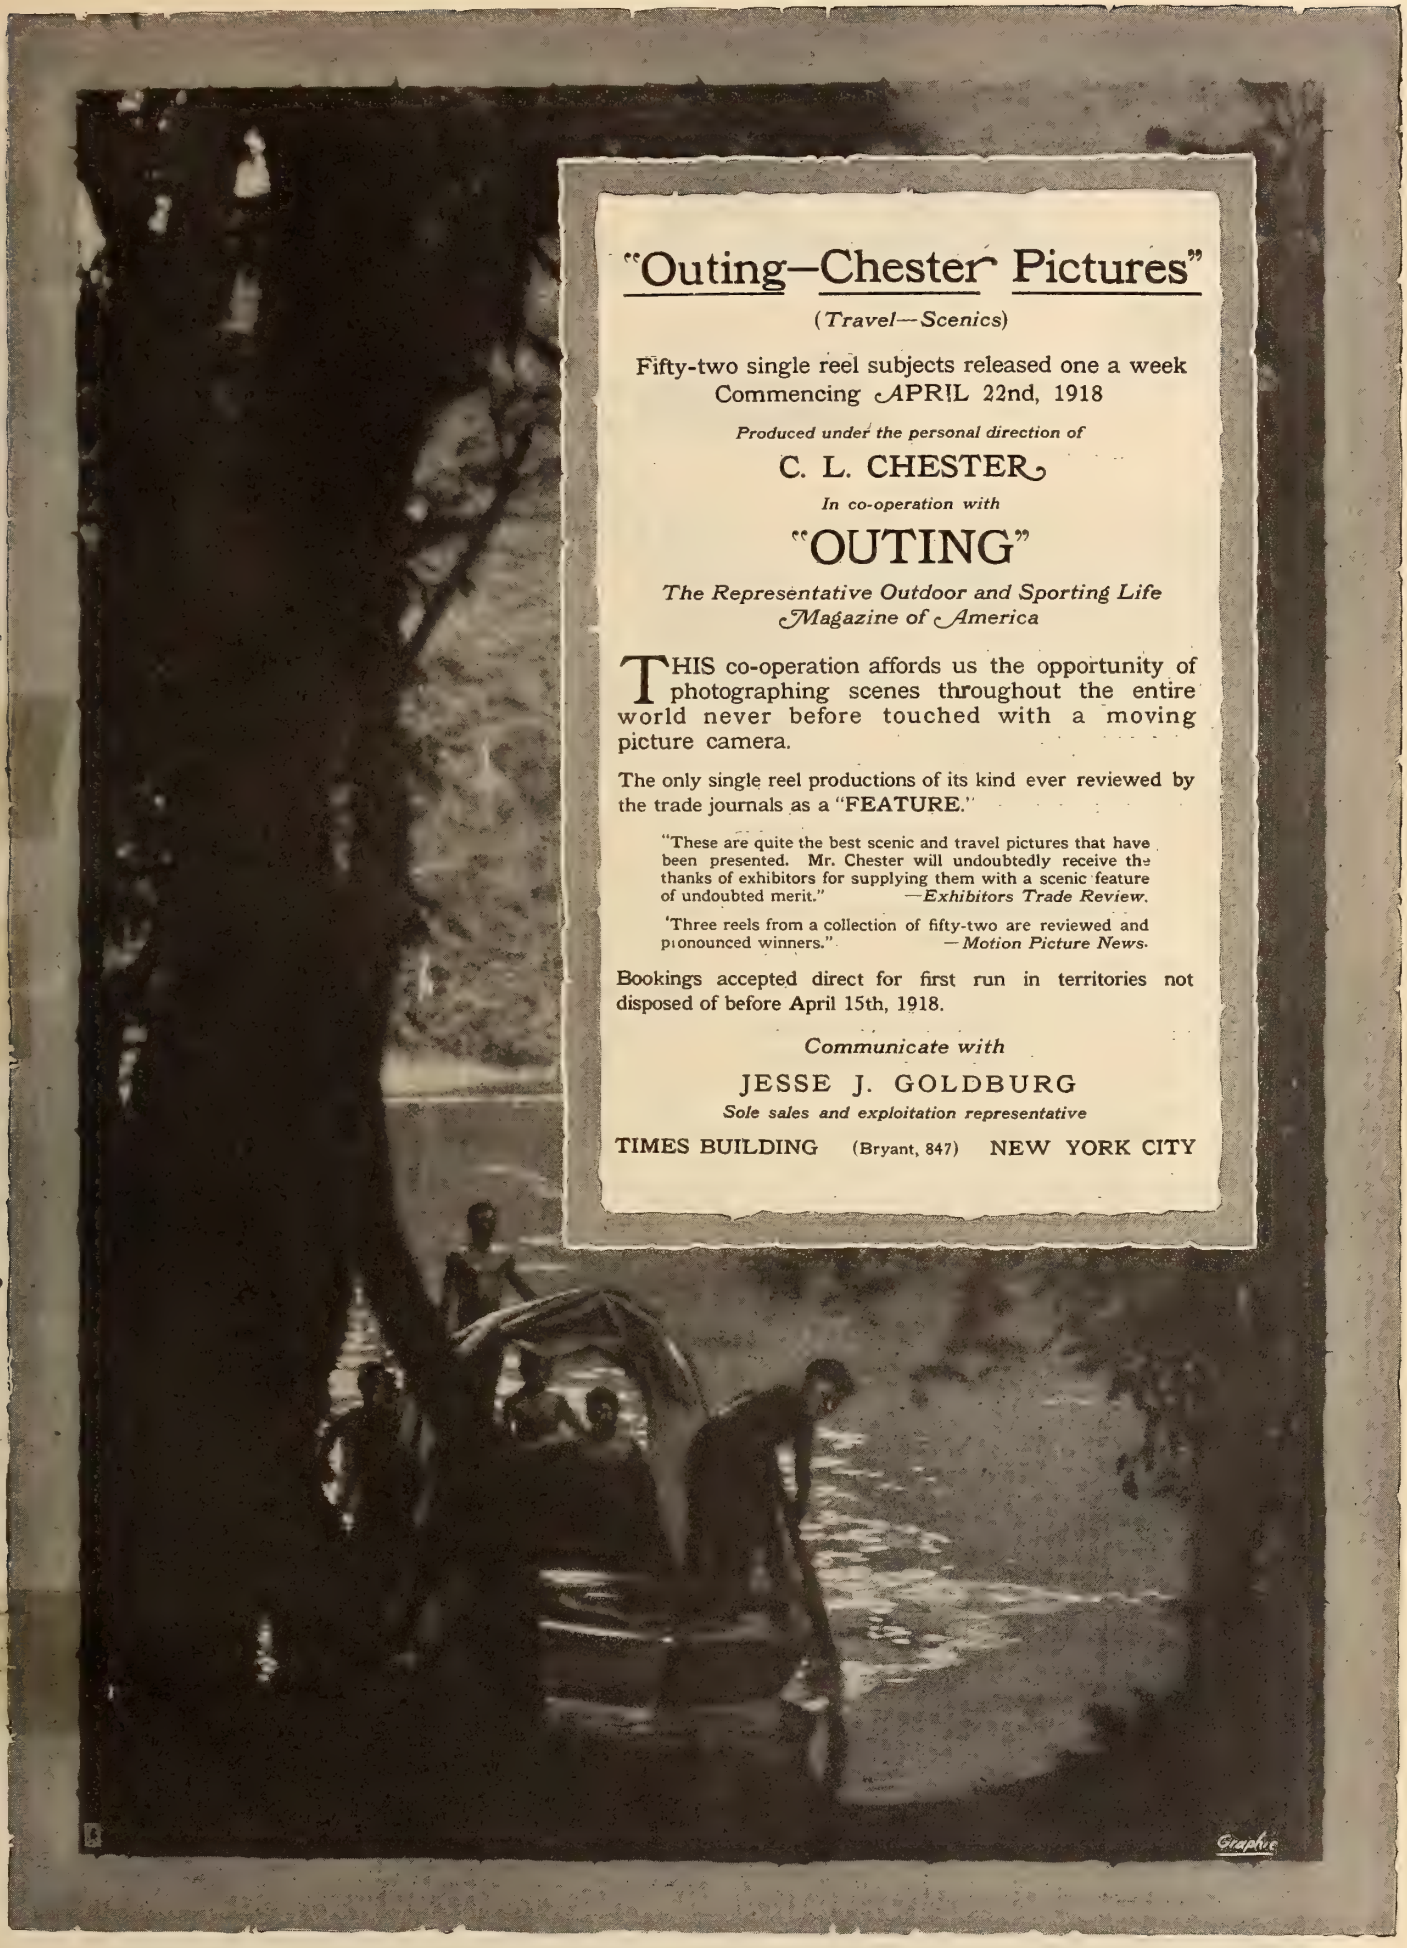
Elsie Van Name

This big, timely drama sways from the cool, calculating destruction wrought by the Hun agents in our land — to the utter desolation on the fair fields of France.

Write or wire
immediately for territory

THE FORDART FILMS

FRANCIS FORD PRODUCING CO. 1476 Broadway N.Y.C.



"Outing—Chester Pictures"

(Travel—Scenics)

Fifty-two single reel subjects released one a week
Commencing APRIL 22nd, 1918

Produced under the personal direction of

C. L. CHESTER

In co-operation with

"OUTING"

The Representative Outdoor and Sporting Life Magazine of America

THIS co-operation affords us the opportunity of photographing scenes throughout the entire world never before touched with a moving picture camera.

The only single reel productions of its kind ever reviewed by the trade journals as a "FEATURE."

"These are quite the best scenic and travel pictures that have been presented. Mr. Chester will undoubtedly receive the thanks of exhibitors for supplying them with a scenic feature of undoubted merit." —Exhibitors Trade Review.

"Three reels from a collection of fifty-two are reviewed and pronounced winners." —Motion Picture News.

Bookings accepted direct for first run in territories not disposed of before April 15th, 1918.

Communicate with

JESSE J. GOLDBURG

Sole sales and exploitation representative

TIMES BUILDING (Bryant, 847) NEW YORK CITY

Pick Your

Selective Feature Decided by

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM RECEIVED AT
INDIANAPOLIS IND 28
PAUL BRUNET VICE PRES
PATHE EXCHANGE INC 25 W 45TH ST NEWYORK NY
BY ALL MEANS URGE OPEN BOOKING POLICY IT IS LOGICAL AND ULTIMATE ANSWER TO THE BIG PROBLEM IN THE INDUSTRY THE PROGRAM POLICY TIES A LOADSTONE AROUND THE NECK OF PRODUCER EXHIBITOR AND PUBLIC IT MAKES A FEW GOOD STARS AND GOOD PICTURES CARRY THE BURDON OF THE NONPRODUCTIVE FILMS I THINK THE BUSINESS IS RAPIDLY NEARING PERIOD WHEN FILMS AND THEATRES MUST BE CLASSIFIED ACCORDING TO ADMISSION PRICES AND CALIBRE
A701B SHEET 2/36
ENTERTAINMENT A THEATRE CARES TO OFFER AND FILMS MUST FIT THAT CLASSIFICATION FROM A PRODUCERS STANDPOINT I THINK IT WOULD BE MORE PROFITABLE TO GET GOOD MONEY FOR ONE GOOD PICTURE THAN THE SAME MONEY OR LESS FOR SEVERAL MEDIOCRE PICTURES THE PROGRAM POLICY PULLS ALL FILMS DOWN TO THE LOWEST LEVEL OF THE POOREST PICTURES
S BARRET MCCORMICK.
GRAND CENTRAL FILM COMPANY
GRAND AND LUCAS AVENUES
ST. LOUIS, MO.
March 28th, 1918
Mr. Paul Brunet, Vice Pres.,
Pathe Exchange, Inc.,
25 West 45th St.,
New York.
Dear Sir:
Replying to your telegram of the 27th, beg to advise that for the past three years we have not been interested in anything but open market, and propose to continue with this policy just as long as same is practical.
Very truly yours,
GEN. GRAND CENTRAL THEATRE
Wm. Sievers
RECEIVED APR 1 1918
PATHE EXCHANGE
PAUL BRUNET PATHE EXCHA
WE FAVOR OPEN MARKET BOOK
INSURE EXHIBITOR BEST PROGRA
PICTURES TO OBTAIN PROPER PRI
POOR AND INFERIOR PICTURES AND PICTURES.
TURBNER AND DASNKEN
PATHE EXCHANGE
OPINION OPEN MARKET BOOKING PREFERRABLE TO PROGRAM BOOKING
THOMAS SAXE

COMING

Frank Keenan in Ruler of the Road (released April 21st)
The Bells
More Trouble

Fannie Ward in A Japanese Nightingale
The Yellow Ticket
The Narrow Path

Bessie Love in A Little Sister of Everybody
How Could You Caroline?
Carolyn of the Corners

Irene Castle in The First Law
The Girl From Bohemia

We accept the verdict of the exhibitor you want and at prices at which you

Pathé Plays

Service for Pathé Plays Exhibitors' Verdict

COMING

Bryant Washburn in Twenty One (now ready)
Kidder & Ko
The Whistling Man
All Wrong
The Range Rider

Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale in Annexing Bill
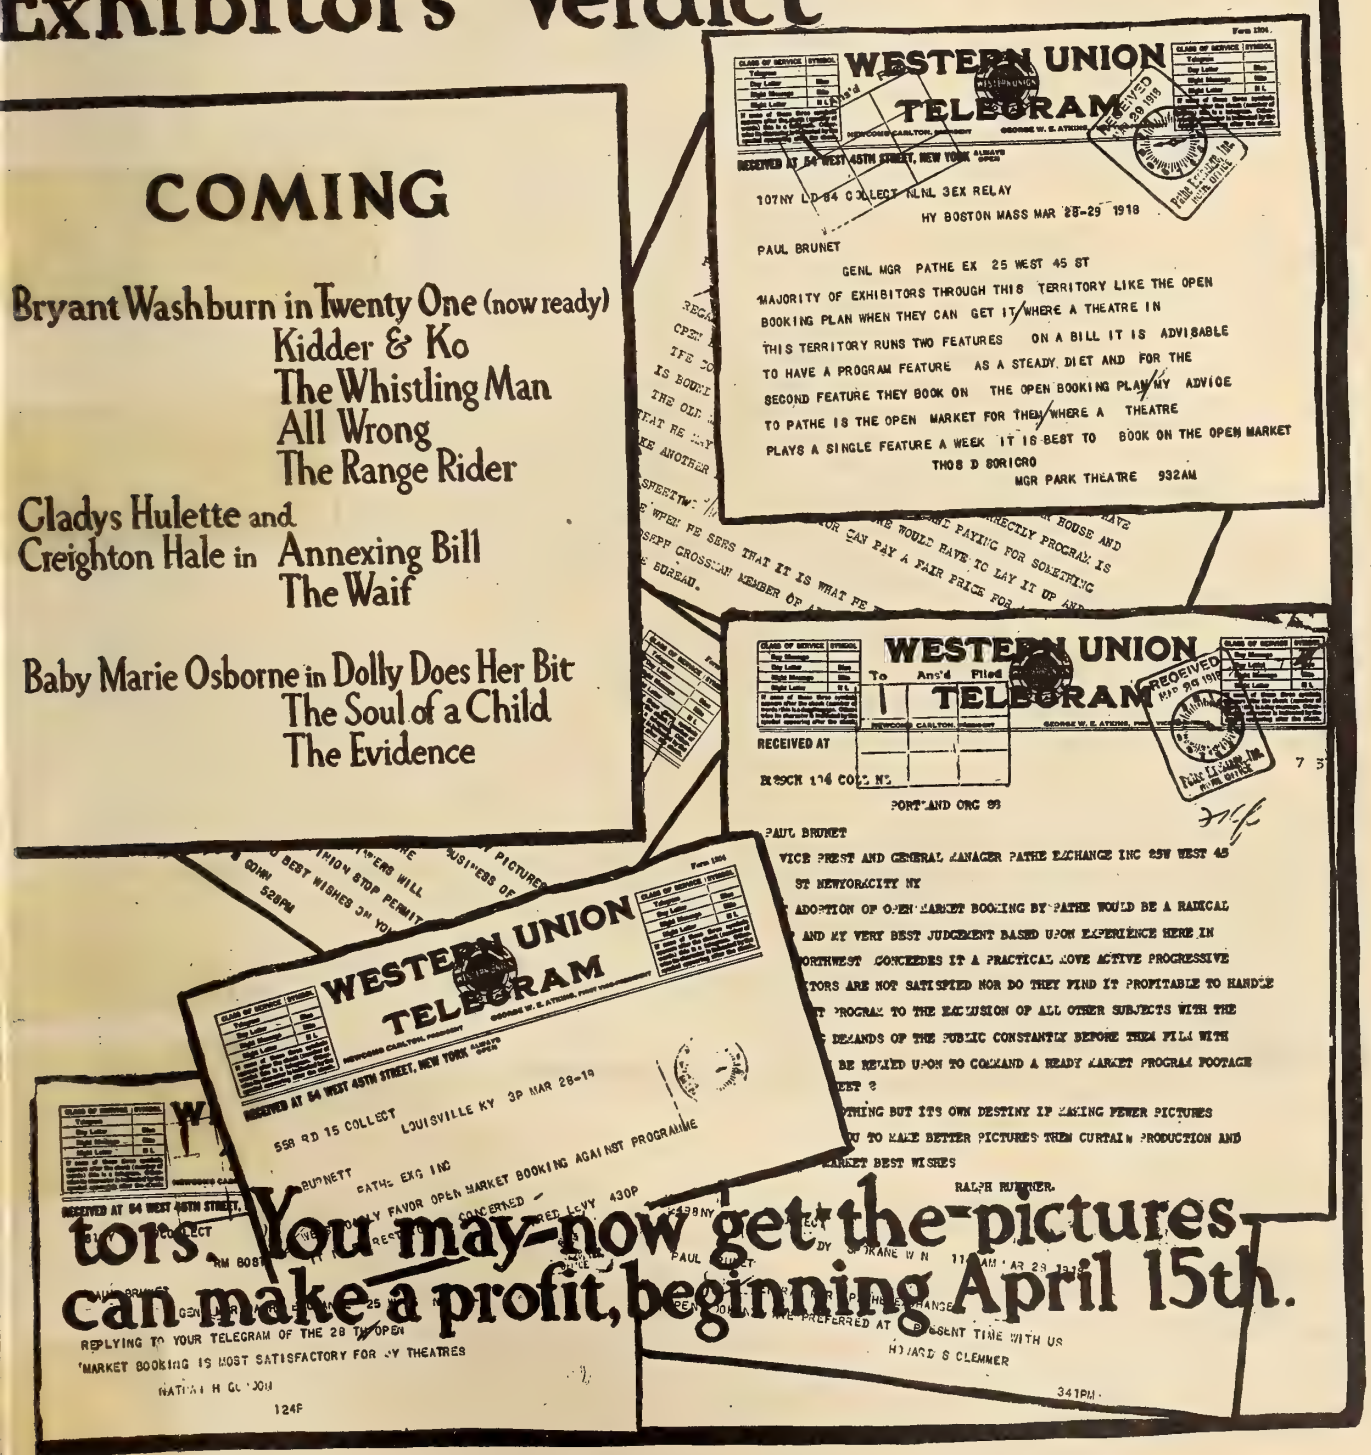
The Waif

Baby Marie Osborne in Dolly Does Her Bit
The Soul of a Child
The Evidence



WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM
RECEIVED AT 54 WEST 45TH STREET, NEW YORK
107NY LD 64 COLLECT NLNL 3EX RELAY
HY BOSTON MASS MAR 28-29 1918
PAUL BRUNET
GENL MGR PATHE EX 25 WEST 45 ST
MAJORITY OF EXHIBITORS THROUGH THIS TERRITORY LIKE THE OPEN BOOKING PLAN WHEN THEY CAN GET IT WHERE A THEATRE IN THIS TERRITORY RUNS TWO FEATURES ON A BILL IT IS ADVISABLE TO HAVE A PROGRAM FEATURE AS A STEADY DIET AND FOR THE SECOND FEATURE THEY BOOK ON THE OPEN BOOKING PLAN MY ADVICE TO PATHE IS THE OPEN MARKET FOR THEM WHERE A THEATRE PLAYS A SINGLE FEATURE A WEEK IT IS BEST TO BOOK ON THE OPEN MARKET
THOS D SORICRO
MGR PARK THEATRE 932AM
WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM RECEIVED AT PORTLAND ORG 93
PAUL BRUNET
VICE PREST AND GENERAL MANAGER PATHE EXCHANGE INC 25W WEST 45 ST NEWYORACITY NY
ADOPTION OF OPEN MARKET BOOKING BY PATHE WOULD BE A RADICAL AND MY VERY BEST JUDGEMENT BASED UPON EXPERIENCE HERE IN NORTHWEST CONCEDES IT A PRACTICAL MOVE ACTIVE PROGRESSIVE
EXHIBITORS ARE NOT SATISFIED NOR DO THEY FIND IT PROFITABLE TO HANDLE PROGRAM TO THE EXCLUSION OF ALL OTHER SUBJECTS WITH THE DEMANDS OF THE PUBLIC CONSTANTLY BEFORE THEM FILL WITH BE REFIED UPON TO COMMAND A READY MARKET PROGRAM FOOTAGE BEST
NOTHING BUT ITS OWN DESTINY IF MAKING FEWER PICTURES
YOU TO MAKE BETTER PICTURES THEN CURTAIN PRODUCTION AND MARKET BEST WISHES
RALPH RUNNER.
WESTERN UNION TELEGRAM
RECEIVED AT 54 WEST 45TH STREET, NEW YORK
LOUISVILLE KY 3P MAR 28-19
558 RD 15 COLLECT
BRUNETT
CATHE EXC ING
ONLY FAVOR OPEN MARKET BOOKING AGAINST PROGRAMME CONCERNED
REPLYING TO YOUR TELEGRAM OF THE 28 TH OPEN
MARKET BOOKING IS MOST SATISFACTORY FOR MY THEATRES
NATHAN H GORDON
124F PRESENT TIME WITH US
HOWARD S CLEMMER
341PM

tors. You may now get the pictures, can make a profit, beginning April 15th.

Look what Tarzan Took at Laramie Wyoming population 4962

EMPRESS THEATRE

Laramie, Wyo. March 28th 1918

No. of 80c ticket at close 33127
No. at opening 32001 1126 @ 60 80c, $ 675 60

No. of 40c ticket at close 60259
No. at opening 60200 59 @ 40c, $ 23 60

No. of 30c ticket at close 78170
No. at opening 78001 169 @ 30c, $ 50 70

No. of 20c ticket at close
No. at opening @ 20c, $

No. of 10c ticket at close
No. at opening @ 10c, $

Children 6 to 15 years.

TOTAL $ 749 90
Less 10% war tax 74 99
674 91
Passes 269 46
Cents
$ 404 45

O.K. First National Exhibitors Circuit A. P. Browne March 25/18

Exhibitors Circuit #40445

Tarzan of the Apes starting March 31st about date

$749.40 in one day

Such business has never before been done by any Picture

Tarzan of the Apes

is smashing all records!
accomplishing the impossible!
It would get blood out of a turnip!

Produced by the National Film Corpn. of America

A "First National" Attraction

Book at any First National Exchange

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

The Most Vital Production in Years

Ambassador James W. Gerard's

"MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY"

At present running at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, for an indefinite season

IS NOW

A First National Attraction

Bookings at any First National Exhibitors' Circuit Exchange.

MARK M. DINTENFASS and
HARRY M. WARNER
Producers

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

Adapted to the Screen
by CHAS. A. LOGUE
Directed by WILLIAM NIGH

TRIANGLE

The Business End

OVER IN EUROPE the men in the front are bearing the burden of the fighing—and getting the glory.

The columns of the newspapers ring with their exploits.

That's the spectacular end of war.

At home, far from the battle line, millions of men and women go quietly about the task of supplying the food, the ammunition and the necessities of the men that are winning the glory.

That is the business end of the war.

The motion picture business presents a striking analogy to this war situation.

While producers are boasting of their stars and their wonderful tales; while they are raising their voices in a great din over the spectacular features of their product, the vast army of important details that really determine the consistent success of the exhibitor are neglected.

But not in TRIANGLE service are they overlooked.

This is one of the remarkable features of TRIANGLE.

When a TRIANGLE exhibitor receives his film he finds that it is in perfect shape. It has been thoroughly inspected and is in proper condition before it leaves the exchange.

TRIANGLE

A Traffic Department, in constant touch with each exchange, supervises all shipments, and routing. This is unique and was inaugurated in the film business by TRIANGLE. Films are shipped far enough in advance to reach their destinations in time, and by the most economical route.

Or when the reel boy calls for his pictures in the morning, he finds them ready. No delay and no worry about this important element in the business.

Every employee in the service of TRIANGLE is courteous. They believe the exhibitor is a gentleman and is deserving of every consideration.

Advertising requirements are handled with a precision and care that leaves nothing to be desired. Publicity material is sent out sufficiently in advance of release to be of 100% value to the exhibitor.

TRIANGLE could not serve the exhibitor better if it were owned and operated co-operatively by TRIANGLE exhibitors according to their own ideas and ideals. Film rentals are the most attractive in the business and exhibitors who know how to promote pictures can always make money with TRIANGLE. TRIANGLE'S policy of the fair and square deal, frankness and helpfulness is making history in a business which has known many woes and tribulations for the exhibitor.

Are you progressing, prospering and profiting?

If not . . . TRIANGLE.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

The Best Place To Have Your Laboratory Work Done

W H Y ?

BECAUSE The Quality of Our Work Is Unexcelled
BECAUSE Our Prices Are Right
BECAUSE We Keep Our Promises on Deliveries
BECAUSE We Are Located in the Center of Town and Easily Accessible

and

Because We Are Thoroughly Responsible

KALEM COMPANY

235-237 West 23rd Street New York City

MARGARITA FISHER

The Vivacious and Comely

In

"The Primitive Woman"

A picture with Snap and Vim—
A play of intense human appeal

From the studios of the AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC.

Available April Fifteen at MUTUAL FILM EXCHANGES

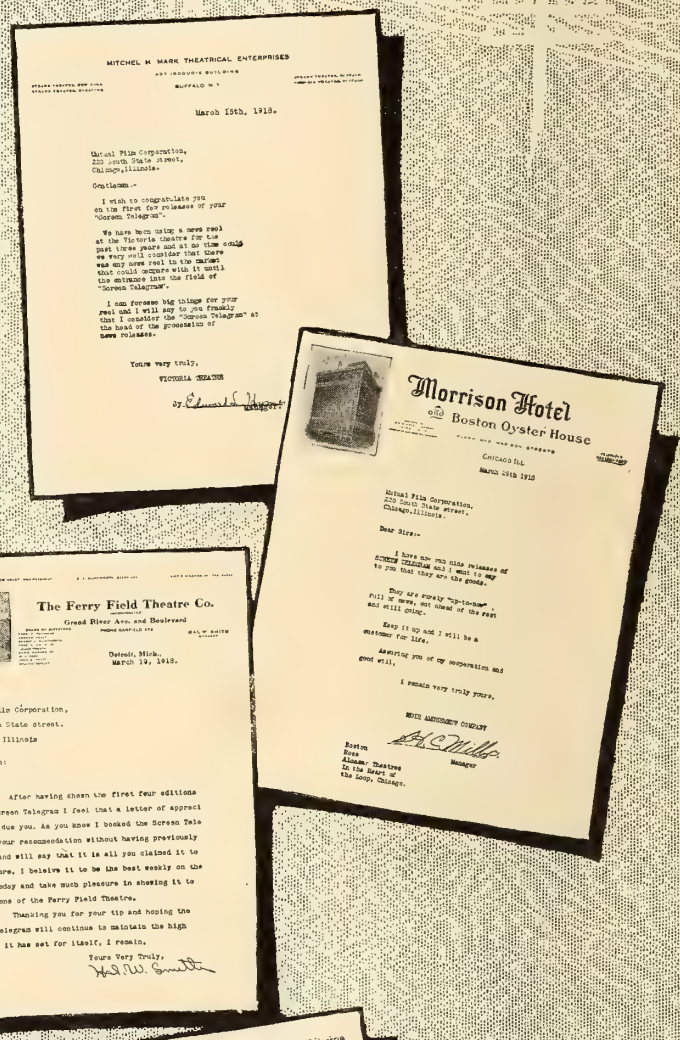
It's Going BIG-

SCREEN TELEGRAM

The News Reel De Luxe

Extraordinary Resources For Foreign News Film

ISSUED TWICE A WEEK AT MUTUAL FILM EXCHANGES



MITCHEL H. MARK THEATRICAL ENTERPRISES

March 15th, 1918.

Mutual Film Corporation,
220 South State street,
Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:-

I wish to congratulate you on the first few releases of your "Screen Telegram".

We have been using a news reel at the Victoria theatre for the past three years and at no time could we very well consider that there was any news reel in the market that could compare with it until the entrance into the field of "Screen Telegram".

I can foresee big things for your reel and I will say to you frankly that I consider the "Screen Telegram" at the head of the procession of news releases.

Yours very truly,
VICTORIA THEATRE
By Edward L. Hurst

Morrison Hotel and Boston Oyster House
CHICAGO ILL.
March 29th 1918

Mutual Film Corporation,
220 South State street,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Sirs.

I have now run nine releases of SCREEN TELEGRAM and I want to say to you that they are the goods.

They are surely "up-to-date" full of news, and ahead of the rest and still going.

Keep it up and I will be a customer for life.

Assuring you of my cooperation and good will,

I remain very truly yours,

MUTH AMUSEMENT COMPANY
A. C. Muth
Manager

Boston Rose Alhambra Theatres in the Heart of the Loop, Chicago.

The Ferry Field Theatre Co.
Grand River Ave. and Boulevard
Detroit, Mich.
March 19, 1918.

Mutual Film Corporation,
220 South State street.
Chicago, Illinois

Gentlemen:

After having shown the first four editions of the Screen Telegram I feel that a letter of appreciation is due you. As you know I booked the Screen Telegram on your recommendation without having previously seen it and will say that it is all you claimed it to be and more. I believe it to be the best weekly on the market today and take much pleasure in showing it to the patrons of the Ferry Field Theatre.

Thanking you for your tip and hoping the Screen Telegram will continue to maintain the high standard it has set for itself, I remain,

Yours Very Truly,
H. W. Smith

HWS/GE

SAMUEL GOLD — ABRAHAM BARTELSTEIN

The Gold Theatre
3411-3413 WEST TWELFTH STREET
Near Homan Avenue — Phone Lawndale 976

CHICAGO, ILL., March 30th 1918

Mutual Film Corporation,
Consumers Building,
Chicago,
Illinois.

Gentlemen:-

In regard to your SCREEN TELEGRAM I want to say that I think it is one of the best weeklies we have ever run. There is something of interest to everyone in every release.

Very truly yours,
A. Bartelstein
GOLD THEATRE

SOME OF THE BIG HOUSES USING SCREEN TELEGRAM—

GRAUMAN'S, Los Angeles
CAMERAPHONE, Pittsburgh
STRAND, Washington
KINEMA TEMPLE, Oakland
PALACE, New Orleans
MAJESTIC, Memphis
WHITE HOUSE, Milwaukee
NIXON-NIRDLINGER CIRCUIT, Philadelphia
EMPIRE, Montgomery
OLYMPIA, New Haven
ARENA, New York
HILL, Newark
STAR, Boston
EMPIRE, Montgomery
QUEEN, Mobile

"Little Talks with Foreign Buyers"--No. 8.

By

President.

"NOJUNK!"

IT is not the name of some strange ape just discovered by an African exploring party, but it is the single word that can best describe Inter-Ocean's policy as related to the grade of pictures it sells. Under no circumstances will we handle what is known as "junk" film. We say emphatically, "Nojunk!" We have had films of the "junk" sort offered us at our own figure, but in every instance have declined to do business with the folks making the offers. We will not recommend junk film to the foreign buyer because we know that the use of such film tends to lose him money in the long run—and that means dissatisfaction with us, whom he expects to know his field. The foreign buyer's representative in New York should guard his client against "bad buys" in pictures, and earn his livelihood on that basis. Therefore, the representative cannot conscientiously recommend second-hand films, but will pass up the profits and retain the confidence and the patronage of the foreign customers he is engaged in supplying.

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN, PRES. & GEN'L MGR. — 220 W. 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields.

READY FOR WORLD SALE—52 World Films a year, featuring Ethe Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell, and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year, featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Glaum; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "To-day," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," "The 13th Labor of Hercules," the sure fire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.*

THE LEADING DAILY NEWSPAPER
IN EACH STATE
ONE CENT
VOL. LXVII...NO 2191
WORLD'S GREATEST BEAUTY CONTEST
Bewitching Maidens for Gaumont Photo-Dramas
The leading newspaper in each state is cooperating with the Gaumont Company in the selection of beauti-

Leading newspapers are now selecting the most beautiful girls for BIG PHOTO FEATURES to be produced for independent buyers

Gaumont Co.

LONDON FLUSHING.N.Y. PARIS

Theaters which have booked The GAUMONT NEWS & GRAPHIC showing these beauties should double their seating capacity to accommodate the girls and their friends

SELECT SP PICTURES

DISTRIBUTED BY

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

How EXHIBITORS Are

MR BURFORD has started a splendid retail sales campaign by creating local interest. He is converting this interest into dollars in his box office by treating "THE EAGLE'S EYE" as a special production, and using the stock advertising and publicity material which can be obtained by any exhibitor at any Foursquare Exchange.

H. H. BURFORD, MANAGER — NEW PHONE 819-R.

Bijou Theatre Company

Home of the Pipe Organ

PRESENTING THE BEST IN SCREEN PRODUCTIONS

La Crosse, Wis. 3/26 1918

Mr. Geo. F. Law, Mgr.,
Foursquare Exchange,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Dear Mr. Law:

The showing of the first three episodes of "The Eagle's Eye" was a big success, so far as having a very representative audience composed of members from the Council of Defence, Red Cross members and workers, a score or more members of the Loyalty Legion of Wisconsin, the Mayor, several Councilmen, Secret Service men, City policemen and detectives, a score of the faculty and teachers from the State Normal School, one hundred teachers from the Public Schools, the Four Minute Men and several lawyers, who applauded the picture very enthusiastically and commented very favorably to me personally after the showing. I really believe we are going to stir up considerable talk with this series.

Yours truly, Bijou Theatre Co.
by H.H. Burford

RICHARDS and Flynn are doing a tremendous business with "THE EAGLE'S EYE." They know its value in public interest and timeliness of appeal—in its tremendously important theme. But they also know that no matter how good any picture is, it must be resold to their patrons after the exchange has sold them a booking.

E. E. RICHARDS, PRES — WM. FLYNN, VICE-PRES — M. J. FLYNN SEC'Y-TREAS.

KANSAS CITY, MO

March 18, 1918

Four-Square Pictures, Inc.,
S. J. Baker, Branch Manager,
Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Sirs:-

"The Eagle's Eye" opened up to tremendous business.

We believe that this will go over bigger than any serial we have ever run, and people who have seen the first two episodes have all gone out boosting it.

Sincerely yours,

RICHLYNN AMUSEMENT COMPANY,

By Wm Flynn

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN

Recently Retired CHIEF U. S. SECRET SERVICE

Produced by THE WHARTONS with the Popular Stars

KING BAGGOT and MARGUERITE SNOW

Selling "THE EAGLE'S EYE"

MR. SHAKMAN handled "THE EAGLE'S EYE" as a special production. He is using the same stock advertising matter which every exhibitor can get from any Foursquare Exchange. It is filling the big 81st Street Theatre twice daily.

A. L. SHAKMAN
President & Managing Director

G. M. HOLLSTEIN
Treasurer

"THE HOUSE BEAUTIFUL"
EIGHTY FIRST STREET THEATRE
BOULEVARD AMUSEMENT CO. Inc., (Lessee)
81st Street and Broadway
NEW YORK

TELEPHONE
SCHUYLER 3980

March Twenty-Ninth,
Nineteen Eighteen.

Foursquare Pictures, Inc.,
729 Seventh Ave.,
City.

Gentlemen: Attention Mr. Samson

It is only fair to you that you receive an expression from me on "The Eagle's Eye".

I have at all times been adverse to showing a serial but am very glad that I was persuaded to show "The Eagle's Eye", for it is timely and of unusual interest and very well received by our clientele, which is a very exclusive one.

It is not an ordinary melodramatic serial, but one that would be well received by any audience. Its drawing power has been beyond my expectation and I can frankly say I have made money on it.

I want to take this occasion to thank you for the courteous assistance and cooperation you have at all times accorded me in handling this serial.

Yours very truly,
A. L. Shakman
President
BOULEVARD AMUSEMENT CO., Inc

ALS/GD

MR. KAVANAUGH didn't just book "THE EAGLE'S EYE." He wants every dollar it can produce for him. He is getting a big profit by using the wonderful advertising matter available to every exhibitor on this—the World's Greatest Serial.

Grand Theatre
Grand Fork, N. Dak.
A. J. Kavanagh, Mgr.

Foursquare Exchange,
Minneapolis, Minn.

Gentlemen:

I am pleased to state that THE EAGLE'S EYE looks very good to me and I am enclosing you a letter of inquiry which I answered last evening. I told this gentleman, (J. W. McGuiness, Orpheum Theatre, Williston, N. D.) to go after it and you will no doubt hear from him.

I very rarely break into print, but in this case I beg to remark that the receipts during the two days I showed THE EAGLE'S EYE amounted to nearly $400.00 at 10¢ and 15¢ admission.

Unless I am badly mistaken, the interest in it will remain at top notch during the showing here.

Very truly yours,
A. J. Kavanagh

Distributed by FOURSQUARE EXCHANGES

ATLANTA, GA.	73 Walton Street	KANSAS CITY, MO.	1120 Walnut Street
BOSTON, MASS.	16 Piedmont Street	LOS ANGELES, CAL.	514 West Eighth Street
BUFFALO, N. Y.	47 West Swan Street	MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.	16 North Fourth Street
CHICAGO, ILL.	207 South Wabash Avenue	NEW YORK, N. Y.	729 Seventh Avenue
CINCINNATI, O.	301 Strand Theatre Building	PHILADELPHIA, PA.	1325 Vine Street
CLEVELAND, O.	312 Sloan Building	PITTSBURGH, PA.	127 Fourth Avenue
DALLAS, TEXAS.	1911½ Commerce Street	SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.	191 Golden Gate Avenue
DENVER, COLO.	1735 Welton Street	SEATTLE, WASH.	2014 Third Avenue
DETROIT, MICH.	304 Joseph Mack Building	ST. LOUIS, MO.	301 Empress Theatre Building

CANADA FOURSQUARE-SUPERFEATURES, LTD.

TORONTO, ONT.	59 Victoria Street	WINNIPEG, MANITOBA	215 Phoenix Block
MONTREAL, QUE.	204 St. Catherine's Street, West	ST. JOHN, N. B.	19 Market Square

For further information address The Whartons' Publicity and Supply Department, 1476 Broadway, New York

The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is a business institution. It is neither a philanthropic nor a charitable project. It was founded to make money for its owners—but its founder merely looked through the hole in the millstone to see that the greater the success of the moving picture industry, and the individuals of the industry who read the paper, the greater would be the prosperity of the paper itself.

So it was decided that the MOVING PICTURE WORLD should be printed for you.

And for eleven years the MOVING PICTURE WORLD has adhered steadfastly to this policy.

Time after time, within the memory of those at present engaged in the moving picture business, the MOVING PICTURE WORLD has sacrificed its own immediate gain in order that the best interests of the greatest number in the industry might be served.

It is generally conceded that the MOVING PICTURE WORLD plays more than fair with each branch of the industry. It is subsidized by no one factor. In the light of its broad knowledge of conditions, it has repeatedly been called upon to save producers from themselves—or exhibitors from themselves.

The success of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, and the altogether desirable policy for which it stands, depends upon the close union which has been established between the paper and the varied interests that it serves.

We are always open for suggestions. We welcome criticism as a means to attaining perfection in the work we have elected to do.

We Are Publishing The MOVING PICTURE WORLD For You

If you have any suggestions for its improvement—if you know any way in which it could be made more valuable to you, we'll be glad to hear from you, and will gratefully consider your suggestions.

If you are commercially interested in the moving picture inaustry, you are probably reading the MOVING PICTURE WORLD. The sure way to avoid missing a single issue is to have Uncle Sam deliver it to you promptly each week. There's a circulation blank printed on another page of this issue.

BOBBY VERNON
ELEANOR FIELD
and DOROTHY DANE
in
"By Orange Aid"

A play of Youth, Beauty and Oranges

Filmed in conjunction with
THE NATIONAL ORANGE SHOW
SAN BERNARDINO, CALIFORNIA

IT'S A SPARKLING
CHRISTIE COMEDY
That will please the millions of patrons in
BEST THEATRES EVERYWHERE
Latest release. Directed by Al. E. Christie

NEW RELEASE EACH WEEK THRU FOREMOST INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES

CHRISTIE FILM CO.
INC
LOS ANGELES

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

NED FINLEY in his most noted role:

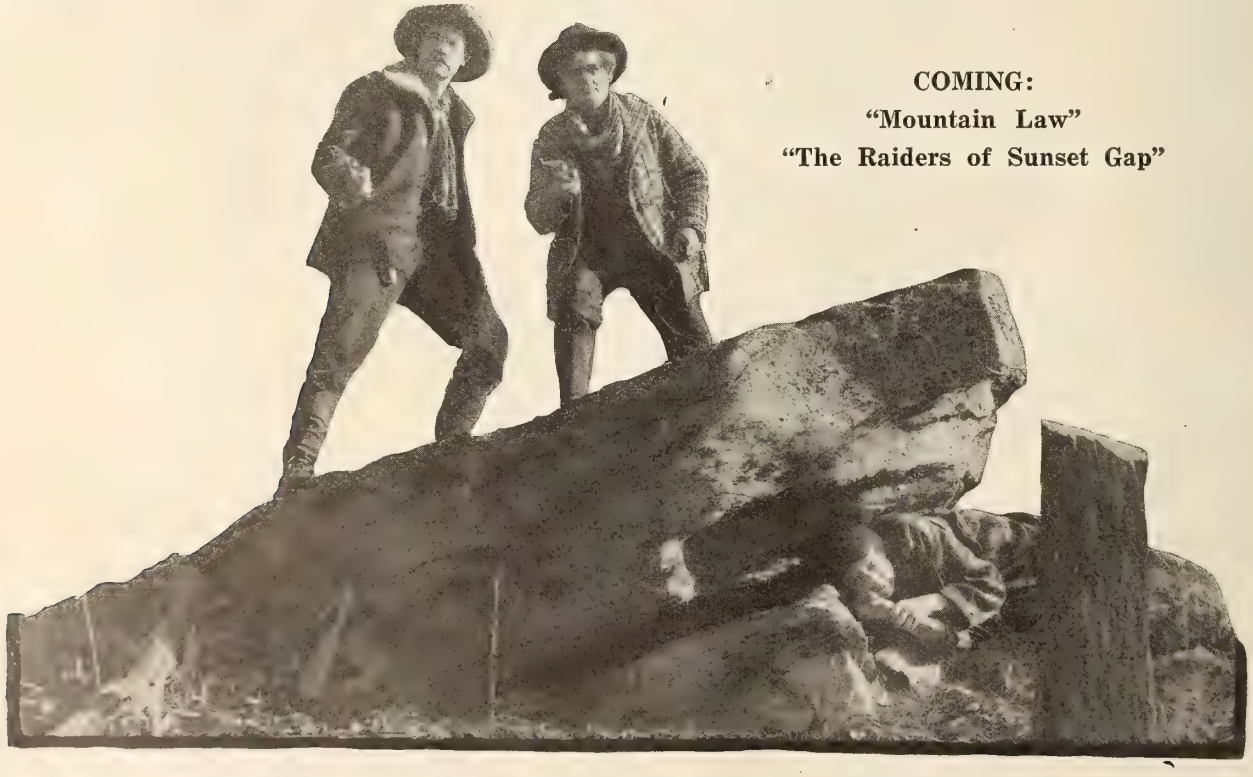
"The Return of O'Garry"

By L. CASE RUSSELL

A Red-Blooded, Woods-Life Romance, a Typical "O'GARRY" Adventure Play

BLUE RIDGE DRAMAS are dynamic two-part releases, full of virile action and motives. "The Return of O'Garry" deals with the further exploits of the Northwest Mounted Police trooper made famous by Ned Finley.

NED FINLEY and MARION HENRY now appear exclusively in BLUE RIDGE DRAMAS. This series of sturdy American stories are issued every other week and form the most reliable sort of program tonics.



COMING:
"Mountain Law"
"The Raiders of Sunset Gap"

Produced by NED FINLEY FILMS, Inc., New York City

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

EBONY COMEDIES

A New Creation In Screen Style

REAL NEGRO COMEDIES WITH REAL NEGRO PLAYERS

Animated with the Matchless Native Humor of the Race

Not an experiment—a big Success, the agreeable black-face act of the spoken stage paralleled in motion pictures. It's sure to make money for the enterprising exhibitor.

Spring Something New and Satisfying upon your Public. Be the First. Book the weekly releases of the Ebony series.

"A Black Sherlock Holmes"	April 15
"Spying the Spy"	April 22
"The Porters"	April 29
"A Milk Fed Hero"	May 6
"A Busted Romance"	May 13
"Spooks"	May 20

Produced by EBONY FILM CORPORATION Transportation Bldg., Chicago

Distributed Exclusively by
General Film Company
25 W. 44th St., New York City

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention the MOVING PICTURE WORLD.

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors..... 386
Advertising Aids for Busy Managers..... 435
Allen, Mr., Joins Universal Staff..... 397
An Exhibitor's Demonstrating Value..... 385
Airdomes Find Daylight Saving a Problem. 424
Allied is Granted Temporary Injunction.. 374
"Art Bug, The" (Edison)..... 432
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 367

Baggot, King, Gets Ovation in Rochester, N. Y.....4..... 373
"Boss of Lazy 'Y'" (Triangle)..... 430
"Bride of Fear, The" (Fox)..... 429
"Business of Life" (Vitagraph)..... 431

Censors Shy at Native African Costumes.. 419
Censorship Ordinance in Portland, Ore.... 428
Chicago News Letter..... 374
Chillicothe Theaters Found Prospering.... 420
Cohen and Pettijohn May Join Forces.... 375
Cohen Talks on Hawaiian Conditions..... 371
Critical Reviews and Comments..... 429

Daylight Saving Awkward in Cleveland.... 420
"Danger Game, The" (Goldwyn)..... 431
Detroit Police Appoint Censors..... 423
Dwyer, Leo, Visits New York..... 371

Evans, Madge, Stamp Booster..... 378
Exhibitors Back Liberty Loan Night..... 362
Exhibitors Now Producers..... 358

Facts and Comments..... 357
Find 40 Subjects in 3,500 Manuscripts.... 396
Foreign Trade News..... 395

Gilchrist Hears from Brooklyn Exhibitors. 361
Gilligham Joins United Picture Theaters.. 397
Goldwyn Quartet on Tour..... 381
Great Film Drive, The..... 359
Griffith Picture Has Impressive Premiere.. 369
Grinding the Crank..... 382
Guaranty Trust Not Depository for U. P. T., Inc. 361

"Heart of the Sunset" (Goldwyn)..... 432
"Honor of His House, The" (Paramount).. 430
How England Helps Maimed Soldiers..... 380
"House of Silence" (Paramount)..... 432
"His Majesty, Bunker Bean" (Paramount). 432
How It Is Done at the Strand..... 375
"Humdrum Brown" (Paralta)..... 432

Indian Life Pictures..... 370
Indiana Bone Dry..... 422

Kansas City Managerial Changes..... 426

"Landloper, The" (Metro)..... 432
"Lion's Claws, The" (Universal)..... 430
List of Current Film Release Dates, 448, 450, 452, 454
Logic and Photoplay..... 359

Magner Talks of Conditions in Orient..... 379
"Magic Eye, The" (Universal Special).... 431
Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 405
Maryland's General Assembly Adjourns.... 368
Minneapolis Exchange Office Changes..... 425
Motion Picture Exhibitor, The..... 368
"Mr. Fix-It" (Artcraft)..... 432
Music for the Picture..... 393

National Association Holds Meeting..... 396
New England, Film Notes in..... 418
New Hampshire Exhibitors Meet..... 368
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 376
New York's Sunday Bill Passes Assembly.. 365

Offers Liberty Bonds for Deposits..... 364
"Over the Top" (Vitagraph)..... 430

Packed House Pays Money to Render Verdict. 369
Pettijohn Gives a Luncheon..... 372
Photoplaywright, The..... 389
Picture Theaters Projected..... 417
Projection Department..... 390

Rambles 'Round Filmtown..... 398
Restaurateurs Want to Show Pictures..... 418
"Return of O'Garry, The" (General Film). 432
"Richest Girl, The" (American)..... 431
"Risky Road, The" (Universal Special)... 431
"Romance of the Underworld, A" (Keeney) 429

San Francisco Exchange Catches Thief.... 427
Screen Stars in Conservation Pictures.... 361
"Self Made Lady, The" (Fox)..... 431
Sell Foreign Rights to Kellermann Film... 397
Something in Reserve..... 360
"Spirit of the Red Cross, The"..... 373
Spokes from the Hub..... 383
State Rights Department..... 401
Strand, Break Ground for New..... 396
Strand Benefit Nets $20,000..... 373
Sunday Option Bill Makes Strong Getaway. 365

Tally Pleased with First National..... 372
Texas, Rain in Dry Counties..... 426
Too Much of a Good Thing in Stars..... 381
Toronto Theaters (Two) Change Hands.... 421
Tourneur to Make Sporting Life..... 397
"Trap, The" (World)..... 429
Triangle Exchange Shifts Quarters..... 397
"Twenty-One" (Pathe)..... 430

Voters Will Decide Sunday Issue..... 367

War Film for War Funds, A..... 373
Wertz Puts Ban on German Music..... 378
Whelan, C. C., Kleine Manager..... 378

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS & CARBON ACCESSORIES.
National Carbon Co..... 451
Speer Carbon Co..... 455

CHAIR & SEATING MFRS.
Steel Furniture Co..... 441

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQPT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 456
Breco Electric Co..... 457
Exhibitors' Supply Co..... 439
Fidelity Electric Co..... 442
Moving Picture Mch. Co..... 439
Porter, B. F..... 442
Swaab, Lewis M..... 439
Typhoon Fan Co..... 441
United Theater Equipment Corp..... 459

FILM EXCHANGES.
Film Exchange, The..... 440

LENS MFRS.
Bausch & Lomb Opt. Co..... 455
Goerz, C. P., American Optical Co..... 442

LOBBY DISPLAYS.
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 442

MFRS. OF INDUSTRIAL PICTURES.
Duhem M. P. Co..... 442
Empire City Film Laboratories, Inc..... 456
Erbograph Co..... 455
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 441
Ford Optical Co..... 447
Gunby Bros. 440
Kalem Company 346
Unexcelled Film Laboratories..... 456
Velasco & Puig..... 441

MFRS. OF MOVING PICTURES.
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.....314-15
Christie Film Co..... 353
Clune Producing Co..... 439
Ebony Film Co..... 355
Essanay Film Mfg. Co..... 307
First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc....342-3
Fox Film Corp.....334-7
Francis Ford Producing Co..... 338
Gaumont Co. 348
Goldwyn Pictures Corp.....324-8
Goldburg, Jesse J..... 339
Harry Webster Productions, Inc..... 329
Haworth Pictures Corp..... 442
Hiller & Wilk..... 313
Hodkinson, W. W., Corp..... 331
Inter-Ocean Film Corp..... 347
Jester Comedy Co..... 443
Jewel Productions, Inc.....309-12
Metro Pictures Corp.....Colored insert
Mutual Film Corp.....Colored insert
Ned Finley Films, Inc..... 354
Paralta Plays, Inc.....332-3
Paramount Pictures Corp.....322-3
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....340-1
Select Pictures Corp..... 349
Triangle Distributing Corp.....344-5
United Picture Theaters of America, Inc... 330
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....306, 316-21
Wharton Releasing Corp.....350-1
World Film Corp..... 308

MISCELLANEOUS.
American Red Cross..... 458
Automatic T. S. & C. R. Co..... 449
Bioscope, The 442
Boys' Club Federation..... 445
Cine-Mundial 451
Cinema, The 451
Classified Advertisements 447
Eastman Kodak Co..... 456
Gay, Fred 443
Holcomb & Hoke Mfg. Co..... 443
Kalem Co. 440
La Cinematografia Italiana..... 456
Moore, Wm. N..... 439
M. P. Directory Co..... 456
M. P. World Circulation Coupon..... 455
M. P. World Publications..... 453
M. P. World..... 352
National Ticket Co..... 440
National Elec. Ticket Register Co..... 445
Our-Boys-in-France Tobacco Fund..... 443
Robinson, T. L., Co..... 439
Sampliner Adv. Co., Inc..... 439
Solidhed Tack Co..... 440
Stone, A. 443

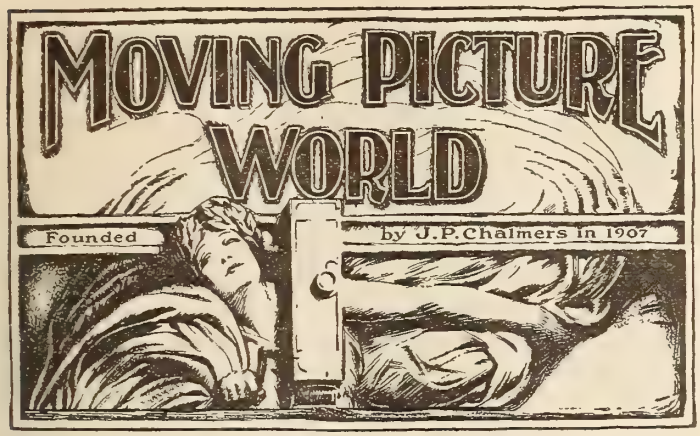
MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Bass Camera Co..... 441
Burke & James, Inc..... 457

MUSIC & MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photoplayer Co..... 439
Marquette Piano Co..... 457
Seeburg Piano Co..... 443
Sinn, Clarence E..... 441

PROJECTION MACHINE MFRS.
Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co..... 439
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 460
Precision Machine Co..... 441

PROJECTION SCREEN MFRS.
Gold King Screen Co..... 443
Minusa Cine Screen Co..... 456

In Answering Advertisements, Please Mention THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD



Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

516 FIFTH AVENUE, AT 43D STREET, NEW YORK CITY

(Telephone, Murray Hill, 1610, 1611, 1612, 1613.)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
James L. Hoff.....Managing Editor
A. MacArthur, Jr.....Advertising Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—610-611 Wright and Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4640.

Statement

Of the Ownership, Management, Circulation, etc., Required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912.

Of Moving Picture World, published weekly at New York, N. Y., for April 1, 1918.

State of New York } ss.
County of New York }

Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared John F. Chalmers, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the business manager of the Moving Picture World and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor and business managers are:

Publisher, Chalmers Company, 516 Fifth avenue, New York; editor, James L. Hoff, 516 Fifth avenue, New York; managing editor, James L. Hoff, 516 Fifth avenue, New York; business managers, John F. Chalmers, J. P. Chalmers, Eliza J. Chalmers, 516 Fifth avenue, New York.

2. That the owners are:

Chalmers Publishing Company, 516 Fifth avenue, New York, the stockholders of which are James P. Chalmers, John F. Chalmers and Eliza J. Chalmers, all at 516 Fifth avenue, New York.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are: None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company, but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which the stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bonafide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

JOHN F. CHALMERS, Business Manager.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st day of April, 1918.

(Seal) Rose Kerschner,
Notary Public, No. 237, New York County.

New York Register No. 9222.

(My commission expires March 30th, 1919.)

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Cuba, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands.....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

Changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and be clearly written. Two weeks' time should be allowed for change.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—One dollar for twenty words or less; over twenty words, five cents per word.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Avenue, at Forty-third Street, New York, and not to individuals.

CINE-MUNDIAL, the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 516 Fifth Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American and Spanish-speaking market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, April 20, 1918

Facts and Comments

THOUGH exhibitors of the state of New York are much encouraged by the action of the State Assembly in passing the Sunday Option bill, they should be warned that the fight is not yet won. The bill is now in the Codes Committee of the Senate and may die there if something strenuous is not done to get it out of that "limbo." Our advices are to the effect that the votes of Senators Murphy and Wellington are needed to extract it therefrom and efforts to that end are now being made. Time for action is short, as the present session of the legislature is almost ended.

*

We can scarcely conceive that either of the senators mentioned has a valid reason for holding the bill in committee. Senator Charles F. Murphy represents the sixth senatorial district of Brooklyn. He is a lawyer of good reputation and lives in a community where Sunday picture shows are the rule. Senator George B. Wellington is also a lawyer and lives in Troy, representing the Twenty-ninth Senatorial District. Sunday pictures are the vogue in Troy, so Senator Wellington knows all about them. We cannot believe, therefore, that either of these gentlemen will seriously oppose the Sunday Option bill, yet the presumption that they will support it is never a safe rule to follow and pledges should be obtained from them.

*

The success of the exhibitors in the Assembly is gratifying and one to which the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contributed in no small degree. Two of the leading speakers, Miss Helen Duey and the Rev. W. H. Jackson, were present at the instance of this publication and their remarks created a profound impression. It has always been the policy of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD to support the exhibitor in all legislation affecting his interests and it was not found wanting in this instance.

* * *

AN editor of a motion picture trade paper wails thusly:

> There are several big fallacies today in trade paper advertising.
>
> One is that pictures should be ballyhooed to the trade.
>
> Another is that advertising pages in trade papers are bought to gain access to the reading pages in the supine belief that statements made therein go with the paper's own backing for their veracity.

After a few more paragraphs of generalities he emits this "wheeze":

> Trade paper advertising pages are for merchandising, not for ballyhooing. It's about time ballyhooing ceased; and it's about time merchandising began. The exhibitor is tired of the one, and he is mighty anxious to have the other help his box office receipts.

And, finally, said editor gives us this:

> What we don't want—and what the exhibitor doesn't want—is a repetition of the boastful advertising, a duplication of previous announcement, a silly story about the star in the picture, and, least of all, a statement from some executive designed not to help the picture along, or, indeed, any other picture, but simply to get the latter's name into print.
>
> The exhibitor knows these truths just as well as we do. He isn't fooled one iota by boastful advertising or by reading matter which is obviously and only a bonus for paid advertising.

*

Much might be said by way of advice to our troubled friend, but the best that we can offer to him in this his hour of distress is that he take a page out of his own book; let him keep his own house clean. Well has he said of the exhibitor that "he isn't fooled one iota by boastful advertising," such as "dominates the field" and "has the quality circulation of the trade," statements that everyone knows to be untrue and plainly calculated to deceive—just "ballyhooing." If he is deluged by the flood of "silly stories" it is because his past treatment of such stories has invited them. Now the Frankenstein, which his own supineness has created, threatens to destroy him.

* * *

DAVID W. GRIFFITH has favored us with another of his justly famous motion picture productions, for which he has our sincere thanks and for which he will be amply rewarded by the patronage of an appreciative public. While this latest effort, "Heart of the World," does not mark an epoch in the making of motion pictures as did his "Birth of a Nation," it is by far the best of the war propaganda creations that have yet been shown. There have been a number of so-called "war pictures" offered to the public, but what the producers of those pictures have attempted Griffith has accomplished and there can be no question as to that accomplishment. Where others have hinted at battles Griffith has produced battles; where the ruthlessness of the Hun has been but an unformed picture in our minds Griffith has given it form and clothed it with all the horrors of that grim reality which has been told to us, but which we are loath to believe. If this picture does not stir your soul to wrath then the Spirit of Man is not in you.

Exhibitors Now Producing

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

MORE than one swift change predicted for this year was under full headway before this year arrived. Big exhibitors have gone into production long years ago; so have exchangemen, but they did so as individuals, and openly managed their business organizations. It is of comparatively recent date that groups of exhibitors have got together on one or another proposition to have screen plays made especially for them at a price limitation fixed in advance. There are such bodies in existence, furnishing capital for firms supposed to be producing for the general market, and it is of interest on all sides to watch the development of this phase of motion picture evolution.

What has brought about this remarkable change?

Undoubtedly dissatisfaction with both price and quality has had much to do with it, besides a belief that it could be made to pay at both ends, but quality in a general way has been steadily improving so far as many departments are concerned, especially in the scientific and in greater artistry of treatment. In a general way the screen presentations are more beautiful than ever, the purely pictorial values showing decided advancement. When to the augmented cost of material and labor is added new taxation, it is to be expected that selling prices will soar.

The true causes are not to be seen at a glance.

Only effects are on the surface. As in screen drama, we see effects and probe for the causes, and they may be scattered like nuggets of gold, apparently at random. It looks very much as though we are continually discovering our mistakes and attempting to remedy them by experimental drifts in one direction or another, taking two kinds of chances, one of elaborate expenditure, necessitating high charges, and one of radical departure from those working bases already well established.

Overhead charges are too high.

One has only to enter some of the magnificent offices maintained in New York to appreciate the magnitude of what has become a heavy proportion of the cost charged against production. Very wealthy concerns may feel justified in maintaining grand offices and well afford to do so for the effect, but emulation by smaller firms is very often the cause of inferior quality of production and sometimes of ultimate ruin. In order to make a still more pretentious showing, men of note in other arts of expression are asked to lend their names.

Big salaries are paid for inadequate service.

A thousand or two thousand dollars a week, handed to a man whose relation to the firm is of chief value for publicity purposes, is a heavy burden for any but a millionaire firm to carry. It has swamped more than one vigorous young concern in the past, and it is a policy of doubtful value today. Groups of intelligent exhibitors have possibly felt that these two items of expenses were unnecessary. Quality of product means a stable business with them, and it is of more value on that account than high-sounding names and grand suites of offices.

Distributing expense has been charged to production.

Production in cold business terms is the making of a picture play up to the possession of a negative and one complete positive print. That includes price of play and actual cost of all work, rent and expense incurred by the visualization alone. For purposes of illustration, let us say that this cost for a large product, involving a strong play, fine cast, capable direction, rent of studio when done with high intelligence, is $25,000.

For $25,000 some great plays have recently been made.

These figures represent a maximum obtained from supervising directors who have carefully figured the actual costs, not including any such compensation as the leading stars receive, but covering the salaries of high-class performers who have done their full share in making the plays both financially and artistically successful. The cost is genuine in all its details, and it permits a big profit when distribution is handled as a business by itself with economy and skill. When high salaries of non-contributing elements and heavy overhead charges are added, this cost is easily doubled, eliminating profit to that exact extent.

Why eliminate profits equal to the entire cost?

One hundred per cent. on the actual outlay is dispersed for nothing like the value received. The cost now doubled, somebody has to pay dividends on the investment, and the exhibitor is usually the natural victim. No reference need here be made to those stars who have become so prominent that they practically own their concerns. They have simply been wise enough to take advantage of conditions created for them, and they are bound to exploit themselves as long as their vogue lasts.

Thus we get Othello without Iago.

Big stars are inclined in many cases to spread themselves all over the piece. They have personality enough to draw, and they rely on that asset to a very large extent. If he is a Shylock, Portia is relegated to the obscurity of a few lines or, what is the same thing, a mere feeder to his importance. He monopolizes the close-ups. The screen drama ceases to be an art in itself and becomes a mere publicity vehicle, shorn of its story value for the sake of a single characterization, and one obviously that of the performer.

Production by exhibitors is a revolt.

Whether or not it will prove successful in the end remains to be seen. A great deal depends upon the men intrusted with production. It is assured in advance of a market sufficient to do away with possibility of loss in the first releases, but whether it is to be permanent, or merely a sporadic object lesson, depends upon the people—on their final judgment the whole salvation of this new and beautiful art rests.

The theater is the people.

The fundamental mistake likely to be made is the assumption that the new product must follow lines already laid down, leaving very little room for progress. In business we give people what they already want. In an art we are bound to keep continually a little ahead of what has already been done. A man may stick to one staple in food, but he demands variety in his entertainment. There are people of poor taste in all places and times. If given what they want almost any art of expression would go out of existence. Many of them like jazz music, but the big moving picture shows of New York and elsewhere have found that the best music pays.

The welfare of a theater depends on intelligent management.

The welfare of a producing concern depends also largely upon an intelligent conception of audience requirement, and it is far from intelligent to think that stupidity means playing down to the level of an audience, or that a play cannot be made intensely interesting and of high quality at the same time. The fundamental of screen drama lies in charm of conception, skill of construction and the infusion of imaginative treatment which is the breath of its life.

The Great Film Drive

By Robert McElravy.

THE suggestion of this journal that the moving picture interests might unite in a simultaneous drive to help put over the third Liberty Loan seems to have borne good fruit. From all indications the movement is not only going to start off well, but will continue on through the entire campaign. It will doubtless become one of the great mediums for reaching the people, and Liberty Loan nights at the moving picture theater will be something to remember in every village and town and city in the country.

It is impossible to overestimate the direct benefits that will result to the new loan through this special drive of the moving picture interests. It is indeed a source of congratulation to the entire industry that it found itself on tiptoes at the beginning of this campaign, ready to put every ounce of strength into the good work. The prime cause for congratulation is not so much the patriotic devotion of the film interests to the needs of the country in these war times, for that may be taken for granted. But it is a source of satisfaction that we have learned more of the possibilities of the moving picture theater as an open forum to which the masses may repair in times of national stress. Here the people may see an accurate reflection of the war activities of the entire world; they may watch timely photoplays of a patriotic character; may learn details of Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. work at the front; may get a better comprehension of the part their own towns and cities are playing in the great world drama.

There is but one legitimate business before the country today—that is the business of making war upon Germany and her allies until they are defeated in their autocratic aspirations. This business is one in which moving pictures can help mightily. The record they have thus far made is one of surprising consequence, but from reports that come into the Moving Picture World the new movement will eclipse all former efforts.

There is, fortunately, a great mass of patriotic film material to choose from. Almost every producer in the business has felt and responded to the needs of the country, and most stories nowadays reflect in some measure the war conditions prevailing. Some of this is in the form of drama, much of it is straight melodrama, and a part of it comes in light, humorous form. It all helps, and we believe exhibitors will have no trouble in getting together suitable programs for their Liberty Loan nights.

We wonder if all exhibitors are preparing to take full advantage of these patriotic nights? Many of them undoubtedly are, but the movement should be as general as possible. It is a fine opportunity for the exhibitor to get in touch with the influential people of his community, by letter or otherwise, and extend to them the privileges of the moving picture theater on Liberty Loan nights.

It is to be hoped exhibitors will not be afflicted with undue modesty in this matter. The service which the films can now render individual communities is quite on a par with that of the newspaper, the church or other public institutions. It should be feasible to get in touch with Red Cross workers and other live individuals, who will help decorate the theater, make short addresses and aid in other ways to give Liberty Loan nights a semi-social aspect.

We are in the war movement today, rich and poor alike. It is the great issue that is making the United States a democracy in fact as well as in name. Only the other day in the Strand moving picture theater in New York City, Anne Morgan raised $20,000 for war charities, at a film entertainment. Every town and city in the country has its own Anne Morgan, or at least one or more influential women who will be only too glad to join forces with the moving picture exhibitor in making Liberty Loan nights a great success.

Liberty Loan night can and should be made the big event of the week in all moving picture houses during the present drive.

Logic and Photoplay

By Edward Weitzel.

WHEN the great bridge that crosses the East River above Hell Gate was being built the most difficult feat of engineering was the lowering into place of the central span. This enormous structure of steel was towed out into the river on barges, hoisted high in the air above its final resting place and then lowered slowly into position, its movement being controlled by powerful hydraulic rams. Everything had been carefully worked out beforehand by eminent civil engineers, but the actual physical control was in the hands of one man, an Irish foreman who had superintended the construction of the bridge from the beginning and was given the delicate task of setting the final span into place because he had a fund of practical knowledge that is not taught in books. Not one of the high salaried experts that planned the bridge would have thought of taking his place at the levers. The slightest unevenness of pressure and the entire bridge might have been forced out of plumb and gone crashing down into the river. The foreman was given the job because he knew the feel of it.

Practical experience holds the same position in every human endeavor. The man who takes the scenario of a photoplay or the manuscript of a stage drama and directs its production knows things about a picture or a play which are never learned by anyone else connected with the screen or the stage. The dramatist may study every book written on construction and may also be the author of a dozen successful plays, but unless he himself has taken his own or some one else's work and learned, through practical experience, how to transfer it to the finished product ready for the spectator he has much to acquire concerning his trade.

Shakespeare and Moliere were both capable of rehearsing the plays they wrote, and knew all the tricks of the trade of producing. There are no records that the English dramatist ever staged the works of other writers; but the French author-manager must often have done so, and been roundly abused by more than one ambitious young playwright for presuming to cut and prune the proud father's brainchild into something like actual shape.

Many a play reaches the stage or the screen that has little enough of merit after the director has done his best for it, and the author at once assures his friends that the changes the director thought necessary have ruined his correctly written masterpiece. Nine times out of ten the director could easily vindicate himself if he were permitted to make a new production that followed the original line for line.

A photoplay was shown to the public during the last three months that received considerable adverse criticism from the reviewers. Most of them agreed that something was wrong with it, but few agreed on what this something was. The author confided to several persons that his scenario had not been followed and was quite confident that herein lay the cause of the picture's weakness. In this case both the author and the director were at fault. The author did not pay sufficient heed to the dictum of the younger Dumas concerning the logic of a theme. Of this element in playwriting the French dramatist says: "The most indispensable [endowment], the one that dominates and commands, is logic—which includes good sense and clearness. . . The logic must be implacable from beginning to end." The director attempted to defy the logic of construction, which demands that the development of a plot shall have the inevitableness of a mathematical problem.

The well-made photoplay unfolds itself as does a problem in arithmetic when the professor steps to the blackboard, writes down an example and proceeds to work it out before his class. The logic of motives in the one case and the logic of figures in the other demand that the original proposition be adhered to in both play and example; that, step by step, both may be followed until the right answer is written at the finish of both.

No director can make the spectator believe in a story which starts out on a clearly defined theme centering around a certain set of characters by trying to throw the chief interest about a new character because the director realizes that the original proposition is going to limp painfully through to the end for the want of logical development on the part of the author. When a photoplay or a stage drama is handicapped in this way the finest acting in the world will not save it. Even the director's superior knowledge is not equal to the task.

Something in Reserve

By Sam Spedon.

IF the motion picture industry hasn't already realized the necessity of establishing a reserve fund for defraying the legitimate expenses to be incurred from time to time in its defense we are fearful that it is in line for some sudden and unexpected jolts. Every industry and other interest of any size has its reserve fund in case of emergency. A striking instance is the Vaudeville Association, which has a good-sized reserve and every cent contributed by its members.

Passing the Hat.

Every time anything happens in the motion picture industry, such as the introduction of the Motion Picture Option Bill, some one has to pass the hat and ask for contributions or "panhandle" some one. There is no concerted action on the part of those who make their living in the industry to give part of their earnings to keep it alive by donating a set amount each year to make it possible for those who are willing to look after its affairs and enable them to do it as it should be done.

All at Sea.

When the unexpected occurs, they are all at sea. They remind us of three Irishmen who were adrift in mid-ocean in an open boat. The winds blew and the waves ran mountain high. They felt that all was lost and each one called on the other to pray. Each declared he didn't know how. Finally one of them cried out in despair: "For God's sake, do something religious." Immediately one of them took off his hat and passed it round. It's all right to pray—and it's all right to pass the hat if there is nothing else to do and there is anything to get.

Keep on Praying, But Don't Forget Your Power.

An old fellow in the Revolutionary war, during a rainstorm, was praying while his powder was getting wet and the rest of the boys were fighting. One of his companions gave him a good swift kick and said: "That's right, keep on praying, but keep your powder dry and keep on fighting."

It's all right to pray that nothing may happen, but keep a reserve fund ready so you can keep on fighting. We hope the Allied Committee of the N. A. M. P. I. and every organization in every state will get busy and establish a state fund for legitimate legislative purposes and see that it is kept inviolate in the hands of a reliable custodian who will give a full accounting thereof.

Keep on Fighting.

Don't think because one victory is won the fighting is over. Keep on piling up ammunition and be prepared for the next offensive. Strengthen your weak defenses and draft more men into co-operation with you. This is the only way to insure complete and final victory for motion pictures.

Some are willing to do the fighting for the good of all. Those who cannot or are not willing to sacrifice their time or "neglect" their business should at least give five cents a seat to enable the willing ones to do their fighting and keep them and their businesses alive. Shame on the man who will take all and give nothing to the cause that has made and makes it possible for him to exist—such a one doesn't deserve to be kept alive.

Guarantee Trust Not U. P. T. Depository

UNDER date of March 28, The Moving Picture World received a page of copy from the offices of the United Picture Theatres, Inc., to this effect:

"The money received from exhibitors by United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., for the stock memberships in that organization is now trusteed by the officers and directors in the Guarantee Trust Company of New York, with the understanding that 90 per cent. of the same is to be returned to the members in case the United Theatres enterprise does not go through. In other words, the directors do not have immediate control of this fund, which is to be used for working capital in buying pictures only in case the 2,000 booking days are secured. It is believed that the plan protects United Theatre members, in so much as in the event of non-success they stand only to lose a small percentage expended in the work of attempted organization."

This statement was submitted to an officer of the Guarantee Trust Company at his office at Forty-third street and Fifth avenue, whose comment was, in substance, as follows:

That the representatives of the United Picture Theaters was introduced to the bank by one of its clients and were permitted to open an account in the usual way. No arrangements were made to put the money deposited in trust with the bank and at no time had the bank the least control over the funds so deposited. If any such trust fund had been created by the United Picture Theatres it existed only in the company's offices. That the officers of the United Picture Theatres had been requested to remove their funds from the bank and that, for all practical purposes, the bank had closed the account, although the bank had granted the officers of the United Picture Theatres a few days in which to make arrangements with some other bank to handle their money and that it was still in the bank at the time of this conversation. That the reason for the bank's action in closing the account was that it had received letters from various parts of the country which convinced its officers that the officers of the United Picture Theatres were making unauthorized use of the name of the bank in promoting their enterprise.

Further comment on this matter by the Moving Picture World is unnecessary at this time, but subsequent developments will receive our attention.

Screen Stars in Conservation Pictures

Misses Clark, Ferguson and Normand Appear in Subjects Designed to Aid Work of Food Administration.

MISS CATHERINE STUART has finished the production of a number of films staged under her supervision for the United States Food Administration, for the purpose of conserving food throughout the country, it was announced last week by Arthur S. Friend, chairman of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Public Information for the Food Administration.

These films present such stars as Marguerite Clark, Elsie Ferguson and Mabel Normand, showing how to save the various commodities most needed by the Government at this time. The pictures were produced free of cost to the Government and will be released from the Paramount-Bray studios.

Miss Stuart will shortly leave New York for the West Coast, where she will co-operate with Cecil B. De Mille in preparing films showing the most famous stars of the West Coast in subjects that will carry the message of the Food Administration to the public via the exhibitors.

The distribution of this film for the Food Administration is in the care of the various news weeklies, who include them in their regular programs.

"Various prominent members of the industry have contributed their time, money and effort in order to do everything possible toward reaching the public in connection with the conservation of food via the screen," said Mr. Friend at his offices in the Famous Players-Lasky headquarters on Fifth avenue. "The newest films, staged under the supervision of and conceived by Miss Stuart, bring out most effectively their purpose. The appearance of these famous stars in these patriotic pictures in itself offers the exhibitor an attraction that will boost his box-office receipts in addition to offering him another opportunity to help his country in this very important work."

Gilchrist Hears From Brooklyn Exhibitors

New York State Senator Who Antagonizes Sunday Option Bill Gets a Hint of the Power of the Screen.

WILLIAM BRANDT, of the New Albany theater, Brooklyn, got word on Saturday morning that Senator Alfred J. Gilchrist of the Tenth Senate District was interfering with the progress of the Sunday Motion Picture Option bill, at that time before the Senate Codes Committee, of which the senator was a member. It just happens that the Tenth Senate District adjoins that in which the New Albany is situated. Also it happens that Mr. Brandt, being an up-to-date exhibitor, is in touch with public sentiment and by reason of that fact knows what the people in that part of Brooklyn want when it comes to a question of Sunday motion pictures. Consequently he knew Senator Gilchrist was not representing the wishes of the majority of his constituents.

Just by way of starting things Mr. Brandt went to a printer and ordered a rush job of 25,000 throwaway cards and 500 show cards 12 by 24 inches. Also he ordered thirty-one slides, being one for each theater in the Tenth Senate District. All were to be delivered in the afternoon—and they were. Also Mr. Brandt made arrangements to call on twenty-five Four-Minute men who were to speak in the Tenth District that night and explain the situation confronting the motion picture goers. No one will accuse Four-Minute men of not feeling kindly toward exhibitors or of being unwilling to put in a word for their friends when they thnk it will do a bit of good.

Things were humming in the Tenth Senate District on the evening of Saturday, April 6. Mr. Brandt was not to be found at the New Albany, contrary to the usual rule. It was learned afterward he was very much on the job over in the Tenth. It is reported all the thirty-one theaters in that part of the Borough of Churches were doing a smashing business, that an average of a thousand persons saw on each screen the slide that Mr. Brandt had caused to be made and that they listened to the Four Minute men.

By the way, here is what was printed in proper display on the throwaways, on the show cards and on the slides:

"Senator Gilchrist, who represents you at Albany, refuses to vote for Sunday movies. Ask him why. Do it quick!"

NAVAL HOSPITAL MEN THANK METRO.

Metro Pictures Corporation is in receipt of a letter of thanks from George Lung, chief in command of the United States Naval Hospital in Brooklyn, for the feature photo-dramas and one-reel comedies Metro has sent to cheer the convalescent sailors. Soon after war was declared the screen company began sending its best feature productions to the "Jackies," and ever since then has continued to send them a weekly program.

Elaine Sterne, a lieutenant in the Girls' National Honor Guard, which co-operates with the Red Cross, was directly responsible for Metro's advent into this work. Miss Sterne believed the hospital offered a field of patriotic endeavor which had been overlooked, and she hoped that Metro would contribute an occasional feature. A consultation with June Mathis, of Metro's scenario department, and President Rowland resulted in Metro's contributing all the screen romances required at the institution.

CAUTION TO FILM MEN.

Exchanges and theatrical men in general are hereby cautioned against the machinations of a C. Harvey Burke, who recently presented himself at the office of Leon D. Netter, of the Masterpiece Film Attractions, Cleveland, Ohio, plaintively setting forth his urgent need for work, and offering letters of recommendation testifying to his reliability, etc. Mr. Netter thereupon decided to give him a trial as salesman, and advanced him a sum of money for living expenses and railroad fare on March 25, since which time nothing has been heard from or of him.

Any information as to the whereabouts of Mr. Burke will be appreciated, both as an aid to Mr. Netter and a step toward ridding the industry of so obnoxious an element.

Exhibitors Back Liberty Loan Night

Los Angeles Showmen Will Go the Limit in Helping the Government Dispose of the Three-Billion Issue---Messages Come from All Over---Mae Marsh Attends War Savings Stamp Meeting in Baltimore

BY the time this edition of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD reaches our readers the drive for the Third Liberty Loan will be well under way, but reports still continue to arrive regarding the interest that exhibitors are taking in the big push for the sinews of war. While these reports are a little late they are still in time to have their effect. The latest returns come from Los Angeles, where our representative has combed the field quite thoroughly. It shows that the exhibitors of that city are fully awake to the necessities of the drive and that they will make the appeal as strong as the screen can possibly make it. The report follows:

LOS ANGELES EXHIBITORS PATRIOTIC.

Los Angeles exhibitors are patriotic. They have done their "bit" before and they will do it now. Los Angeles theater managers gave the Government every possible assistance in the two previous Liberty Loan campaigns and boosted the Liberty Loans in their theaters for weeks. Slides, trailers, Four-Minute Men and individual workers were featured in every show. This time the exhibitors will try to do even more, and many of the big theaters downtown are planning elaborate "stunts" and special attractions for the opening of this campaign. One exhibitor said that he was thinking of putting on a patriotic picture, and would try to get the entire cast of players to appear in his house in person. Many of the exhibitors will enlist the support of the photoplayers to stage attractive and patriotic tableaus.

A number of letters have been received at the Los Angeles office of this publication highly indorsing the Moving Picture World's suggestion of a Liberty Loan Night. Many of the exhibitors have called on the phone and promised their willing and enthusiastic support. Others have been interviewed at their theaters, and they all have expressed their willingness to help the good work along and devote space and time to the advertising material and workers to be furnished by the various Liberty Loan committees.

The Theater Owners' Association, which represents the exhibitors of Los Angeles, has unanimously voted its full support of a Liberty Loan Night. Glenn Harper, secretary of the association, writes as follows:

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir: Replying to your letter of March 15, I will state it gives me much pleasure to inform you that at our meeting of March 20 it was unanimously voted that we extend the full support of this association towards completing a successful "Liberty Loan Night," as launched by the Moving Picture World.

Awaiting your orders, I remain

Yours very truly,

GLENN HARPER,

Secretary Theater Owners' Association, Inc.

The following letter was received from Emil Kehrlein, Jr., the managing director of the Kinema theater. Mr. Kehrlein is one of the most prominent exhibitors on the Pacific Coast, and the Kinema one of the most beautiful theaters in the United States:

Los Angeles, Cal., March 23, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir: Your splendid letter of the 15th inst. relative to the third Liberty Loan has been received. This third loan warrants the unselfish support of every man, woman and child in the United States if we are to smash back the advancing hordes that threaten the liberty and independence of civilization.

The exhibitor can in no wise do too much for the support of those who are laying down their lives that we at home may exist and bask in the bright light of liberty.

The matter of showing slides, posters and special pictures is the very least that we can do. I would suggest that we add a mite more. Why not have a real Liberty Loan Night, or rather a Liberty Loan "Day and Night," and have every exhibitor pledge himself to devote every cent of a full day's receipts toward the purchase of Liberty Loan Bonds? This every exhibitor should do over and above a regular subscription.

This would not even entail a modicum of sacrifice, for the bonds will purchase anything from shoe buttons to film rental deposits. Let us not only make our screens talk, but some of our receipts, too. Now is the time to knock "L" out of kultur.

EMIL KEHRLEIN, Jr.,

Los Angeles Kinema Theater.

Mr. Kehrlein's patriotic and high-spirited letter contains a splendid suggestion. He says that every exhibitor should devote at least a full day's receipts to the purchase of Liberty Bonds. "This," as Mr. Kehrlein says, "would not even entail a modicum of sacrifice, for the bonds will purchase anything from shoe buttons to film rental deposits."

This is an excellent idea and mighty fine advertising. The writer might suggest to go even a step further. Why not a "Liberty Loan Week?" That certainly would make an impression upon the public. This is not like a benefit affair. The exhibitor is not giving anything away, but putting his money in gilt-edge securities paying a good interest and backed by the vast resources of the United States Government. Of course, we realize that many an exhibitor is working on a narrow margin and might not be able to meet his operating expenses by donating a whole week's receipts. Some of the well-to-do exhibitors might consider this proposition.

W. H. Clune, the prominent Los Angeles exhibitor, who owns and operates a number of large theaters in Southern California, writes the Moving Picture World as follows:

Los Angeles, March 19, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir: Your letter regarding "Liberty Loan Night" is excellent.

WE ARE WITH YOU.

Advise further details of said campaign.

CLUNE THEATERS COMPANY,

Per Theo. M. Newman.

The following letter was received from Sid Grauman, who is the managing director of Grauman's Million Dollar Theater:

Los Angeles, March 25, 1918.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of March 15, allow me to state that I am with you heart and soul regarding the boosting of a "Liberty Loan Night," as suggested by the Moving Picture World.

The cause is the most worthy one extant and you may be sure that the Grauman Million Dollar Theater will place its shoulder to the wheel in a manner akin to that most patriotic attitude shown by those American brothers who have already gone to the front that democracy might live and that our rising generation may know no more slaughter by the "Beast of Berlin" and his war dogs.

We will endeavor to cooperate with the Liberty Loan Committees in every way, and thus give all the assistance possible to this worthy cause.

Sincerely hoping that we may soon again know that tranquillity of "peace on earth, good will to men," with an everlasting peace—believe me, most cordially and sincerely yours. SID GRAUMAN.

Many other Los Angeles exhibitors have expressed themselves verbally in favor of the Liberty Loan Campaign. Said Seymour Tally, manager of Tally's New Broadway Theater: "You bet we are with you. Father and I are going to New York in a few days and we will get in touch with the central committees right away. We are going to make particular efforts to make a success of this Liberty Loan campaign."

Harry P. Caufield of the Garrick and Riviera theaters said that he had done whatever he could the last time and would do whatever he could for the Government on this drive.

Perfecting Plans at Minneapolis.

Plans for "Liberty Loan Nights" at various theaters of Minneapolis are rapidly reaching completion and with the assistance of local exchangemen, bankers and Liberty Loan committeemen it looks as if one or two film stars will visit the city to help boost the drive. Although Manager C. L. Peavey of the Paramount exchange stated that he has not been so informed to date, Liberty Loan committeemen have had published stories to the effect that Douglas Fairbanks will address several audiences in the Twin Cities on April 17, speaking on Liberty Loan activity.

In their programs and on their screens various local theaters are already boosting the Third Liberty Loan, and on certain set dates the various theaters will feature Liberty Loan speakers. The Minneapolis Strand theater has got out a special pink sheet seven-column extra to advertise "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," and on the reverse side of the sheet is a half-page advertisement urging readers to subscribe to the Liberty Loan. Special slides and trailers are also being used to call attention to the drive.

Baltimore Theater Has W. S. S. Drive.

On Sunday night, March 24, at the Garden theater, Lexington street at Park avenue, Baltimore, there was held one of the most patriotic and enthusiastic assemblages ever held in that city. The purpose of the affair was to make a drive in selling War Savings Stamps.

Louis A. DeHoff, who books the pictures for this popular vaudeville house, was the originator of the event, and worked with all his might to obtain results and in the end accomplished what he wanted—the sale of $20,000 worth of Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

Mr. DeHoff made a special trip to New York to ask that Mae Marsh, star of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, be allowed personally to attend the affair in the interests of the drive, and not only did the Goldwyn Company accede to his request, but went to the trouble of making a special film for the occasion, in which Miss Marsh makes a neat little speech, via the screen, both the speech and the action being in the film.

The program was an especially attractive one, consisting of several selections rendered by the concert band from Camp Meade; Miss Marsh in her especially prepared film; a number of songs by a very good soldier quartet from Camp Meade, and the screening of "The Belgian."

No sooner had the concert stopped than the screen was lowered and Miss Marsh was flashed on, making her appeal to the assembled people to aid the country by buying War Savings Stamps. When this was finished, the spotlight was thrown on Miss Marsh as she sat in a box to the left, and much applause greeted the star. Not content with the player arising and bowing her thanks to the audience, they clamored for her appearance on the stage. She finally made her appearance with ex-Governor Phillips Lee Goldsborough and was presented with a huge bouquet of roses.

"I've never been before these kinds of lights before," said Miss Marsh. "Always had funny kind of lights." And she pointed with her finger around in a circle. The audience laughed heartily. There she stopped and Mr. Goldsborough came to her rescue. She whispered in his ear and then he said that she was very modest and had asked him to thank the audience for the kind reception they had given her. She then went back to her seat in the box beside her mother, who accompanied her to Baltimore.

Then the drive for subscriptions began after former Governor Goldsborough had made a patriotic and stirring speech relative to the needs of funds by the Government.

The admission was arranged for by a sale of Thrift Stamps at the box office, two 25-cent stamps for the first floor and one for the balcony; the stamps being the property of the purchasers. Miss Marsh's mother subscribed to $1,000 worth of stamps and her bouquet was auctioned off for $100.

The arrangement of the whole affair was in the hands of Mr. DeHoff and the theater was loaned for the occasion by Charles E. Whitehurst, president of the Garden Theater Company.

Oregon Exhibitors Aid Liberty Loan.

The business men in charge of the Third Liberty Loan campaign have called upon the exhibitors of Portland, Oregon, to handle a big portion of the publicity that will accompany the new drive.

The first move by the theater men was to call upon the film companies doing business in Oregon to contribute to the credit of Oregon's quota of bonds commensurate with the amount of business done in the State. This same call was sent to the stars who are popular with the Oregon fans. The letters sent out by the committee asked that replies be made stating the amount each company and star would contribute.

The latest activity by the theater men has been to connect the public with the drive. At a meeting called by Edgar Piper, of the Morning Oregonian, and attended by Messrs. Myrick, Parker, Ruffner, McGettigan and Jennings, representing the theaters, a plan to create enthusiasm for the new loan among the patrons of theaters was broached. At every theater twice an evening during the campaign a soloist and a leader will appear to start the audience in a patriotic popular song and the Four-Minute Men will follow up the enthusiasm started.

Franklin Stages Big War Scene at Buffalo's Hippodrome.

Just near the beginning of the Third Liberty Loan, when the Government wants everybody to be surcharged with patriotism to the highest degree, Harold B. Franklin, manager of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, staged a panorama of war, which is still "the talk of the town." The war scene, depicting "No Man's Land," was put on by Mr. Franklin at Elmwood Music Hall recently for the benefit of eight hundred foremen and executives of the Curtiss Aeroplane Company. Heads of the concern, who had seen the many special patriotic stage settings arranged by Mr. Franklin at the Hippodrome were successful in securing the benefit of his stagecraft. The scene was so impressive that it is said every one of the eight hundred present will be fired with enthusiasm and "do his damndest" to make the local Liberty Loan campaign an unqualified success. Mr. Franklin arranged so these makes of war planes could sit "in the trenches." The camouflage was done to perfection. In the hollow of the "shell craters" they crouched at mess and ate war food, with the noises of war and patriotism around them. Figuratively speaking, hundreds of eyes peered over the trench parapets past a crumbled, shell-battered cathedral, through meshes of wire entanglements and over an expanse of water, wherein were visible only the periscopes of submarines and subchasers. There was the pounding of shells and the stars winking from a smoky sky. There seemed to be an interminable stretch of devastated territory. The skyline glowed with a flower garden of fire.

During the afternoon previous to the "battle" Mr. Franklin superintended a force of sixty men engaged in setting the scenery. All the electrical and dramatic wartime effects. even to the booming of the big guns and the rattle of the rifles, had been placed. The stage setting covered every inch of wall and ceiling space in the Elmwood Music Hall, which is spacious, having once been a State armory. The scenery had been painted in two days by a force of eighteen men working in three shifts of eight hours each. The area of space covered comprised 22,000 square feet.

"I know from my experience, and that has been confirmed by scenic artists," said Mr. Franklin, "that this was the largest stage set ever painted for a single show in the United States."

All during April the Liberty Loan campaign settings and accompanying orchestral music at Shea's Hippodrome will make the audiences "sit up and take notice"—and also buy Liberty Bonds.

Spokane Exhibitors Enthusiastically Lined Up.

In accordance with plans followed in previous campaigns, also following up the sentiments set forth in a recent editorial in The Moving Picture World, managers of the moving picture houses of Spokane, Wash., are preparing to aid greatly in the third Liberty Loan campaign drive by the use of slides and permitting four men to speak in their places.

Manager Sam W. B. Cohn of the Liberty theater has tendered to T. N. Conway, chairman of the publicity committee of the campaign, the use of the house Saturday evening, April 6, to launch the big drive in Spokane on the first anniversary of America's entry into the war. It is expected that the house will be used for a patriotic rally and mass meeting.

The Liberty will assemble a special program of patriotic film features of the soldiers and sailors in active service, as suggested in the Moving Picture World editorial, and a special musical program of national airs will be furnished by the Liberty musicians.

The rest of the program will be left to the publicity committee, which probably will arrange a series of Liberty Loan talks. Manager Cohn has given the committee permission to take Liberty Loan subscriptions in the theater during the evening. Mr. Conway has accepted the theater offer and is working on some special features.

Popular Paramount and Artcraft moving picture stars will also boost the campaign by appearing at the Liberty on the screen. The list are Douglas Fairbanks William S. Hart, Charles Rop, Dorothy Dalton, Enid Bennett and the producer, Thomas Ince.

These people will not appear in person, but a collection of "trailers" of about 100 feet each will show these popular film folk expounding their ideas of patriotism and Liberty Bond subscriptions. A wire was received from Fairbanks telling Mr. Cohn that he would be glad to furnish such a trailer and that it could be turned over to the local Liberty Bond committee for use elsewhere, if desired. Such "trailers" have been used at the Liberty in the sale of W. S. Stamps.

The theater men have been running slides for weeks to aid the sale of War Savings Stamps, and Dr. Howard S. Clemmer, manager of the Clemmer, says he will have special music, of a patriotic nature, with each show during the week of April 6 and until the campaign closes.

Manager C. E. Stilwell of the Class A Rex, Unique and Casino said he expected to aid all he could.

Manager Knipe of the Majestic and J. W. Allender of the Lyric are also planning to do all in their power to aid in the work.

PLAYERS AID THE LOAN CAMPAIGN.

Eastern players, as well as western, will contribute their time and efforts to the boosting of the Third Liberty Loan. In the west Miss Pickford and Messrs. Chaplin, Fairbanks and Hart will be busy for several weeks visiting many cities. In the east Marguerite Clark will travel to Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City. She will be accompanied by John C. Flinn, publicity manager of Famous Players-Lasky.

Emmy Whelen appeared at the Rivoli Theater on April 8. She is scheduled not only to speak for the Liberty Loan, but to sing for it also. E. M. Saunders, of the New York Metro Exchange, accompanies her to take charge of the details of business and transportation. The tour will be as follows: Tuesday, April 9, Philadelphia; Wednesday, Baltimore; Thursday, Washington; Friday, Pittsburgh; Saturday, Cincinnati; Sunday, April 14, Cleveland; Monday, Buffalo; Tuesday, Rochester; Wednesday, Albany; Thursday, April 18, Boston.

UNIVERSAL PUTS LIBERTY NOTE ON PAPER.

"Kill Kaiserism—Buy a Liberty Bond" is the slogan to appear upon every piece of lithographic paper to be issued by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company from April 6 to April 27 during the big drive for the sale of the Third Liberty Bond issue.

President Laemmle of Universal received a request from the Liberty Loan headquarters requesting that this slogan be etched on all lithographs prepared for the company productions.

The request was not received until April 3, and, as all Universal paper is issued weeks in advance and it was too late to have the slogan made a part of the lithographs, President Laemmle issued orders that red and white stickers be printed immediately to be attached to the lithographs. The stickers were finished within twenty-four hours and several will be attached to each piece of lithographic paper issued by Universal for the next month.

BOSTON FILM MEN BOOST LIBERTY LOAN.

An important meeting of the managers and owners of the motion picture theaters and film exchanges of Greater Boston was held in the rooms of the Motion Picture Exhibitor's League of America at 127 Pleasant street, Boston, on Thursday afternoon, April 4. It was the special business of the meeting to arrange details for the motion picture industry to boost the coming Liberty Loan.

Several excellent plans were suggested and action was taken.

The New England exhibitors will take an active part in the boosting of the Liberty Loan. Slides such as suggested by the Moving Picture World and other features will be introduced to boost the loan, including the Four-Minute speakers as used in the previous drives.

Offers Liberty Bonds for Deposits

William Brandt of Brooklyn Asks Distributors to Permit Exhibitors to Make the Transfer.

WILLIAM BRANDT, one of the leading exhibitors of Brooklyn Borough, a former president of the local organization, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and under the general chairmanship of S. L. Rothapfel the chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee for the division of Brooklyn, has written to twelve distributing organizations asking if Liberty Bonds of the new issue will be accepted from exhibitors in lieu of cash deposits. Mr. Brandt's letter is as follows:

"As chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, Motion Picture Division of Brooklyn, I am particularly interested in helping to roll up a tremendous oversubscription from the trade in this territory. It is needless for me to tell you of the moral effect in getting behind the boys in the trenches by greatly oversubscribing. You can help by offering to accept Liberty Bonds of the new issue in lieu of cash for advance deposits on contracts where exhibitors are willing to enter into such an arrangement. Will you be one of the leaders in this patriotic movement? Saturday is the opening day of the sale. May I expect a response?"

The letter was sent to Messrs. Zukor, Goldfish, Rowland, Selznick, Irwin, Laemmle, Hodkinson, Brunet, Feist, Fox and the First National Exhibitors' Circuit and the Triangle.

JANE LEE WORKS IN LIBERTY TRAILER.

Exhibitors all over the country are showing a trailer got out as an aid for popularizing the new Liberty Loan, in which Jane Lee, the famous William Fox "Baby Grand," does effective work. The trailer, which is unusually attractive and runs about 200 feet, was prepared at the Fox studios in Fort Lee at the suggestion of the publicity division of the loan.

Kenean Buel, who has directed all of the pictures starring Jane and Katherine Lee, made the film. In it, Jane is seen seated on the floor with a number of blocks. After building the sentence, block by block, "Buy a Liberty Bond," she holds up the letter U and points her finger from the screen in such a manner that no one in the audience will be able to escape it.

BILL FARNUM "DOING HIS BIT."

William Farnum has already started "doing his bit" for the Third Liberty Loan and will continue to make speeches and take subscriptions until the $3,000,000,000 wanted is an assured fact.

Out in the west they are not waiting for any formal opening of a campaign, but are going ahead on the theory that the Government will need money to prosecute the war and that it is "up to" all good citizens to see that it is raised. Mr. Farnum has already opened headquarters at the Fox studios at Los Angeles and is subscribing himself for a bond to match every subscription he receives. During the last Liberty Loan he took more than $10,000 worth of bonds and says he will do better on this one.

KROULIK TO MAKE MODE ART COMEDIES.

F. J. Kroulik, general director of the Camel Film Company of Chicago, which recently took over the Advance Motion Picture Studios of that city, is in New York for the purpose of securing players for the Mode Art brand of comedies that it will shortly place on the market through a regular releasing company. Mr. Kroulik has already signed several well known comedy players, and will soon leave for Chicago to commence operations, as the plans for the Mode Art Comedies call for the first release in May.

CHARLES F. POPE ARRESTED.

Chas. F. Pope, who was recently indicted by the Grand Jury of New York County charged with grand larceny in the first degree, was arrested on April 6. The complaint upon which the indictment was found was made by Chester Beecroft, president of the Trinity Trading Corporation, in behalf of that concern, of which Pope was at one time the secretary. The specific complaint upon which the indictment was found was for the larceny of $1,750, but the Trinity Trading Corporation and its officers as individuals hold other civil judgments aggregating $2,700 against the defendant.

New York's Sunday Bill Passes Assembly

After Strenuous Battle Option Measure Wins in Lower House—Attitude of Senate Codes Committee Causing Concern

Albany, April 4.

RAYMOND T. KENYON, of Ausable Forks, Assemblyman and brother of Doris Kenyon, saved the day for the Motion Picture Option bill in the Assembly at Albany late Wednesday afternoon, April 3, after the bill had first been beaten by one vote. The fight was one of the hottest seen in the Assembly this year. Party lines were forgotten for the moment as Republicans and Democrats and Socialists as well lined themselves for or against the measure. Assemblyman Clarence F. Welsh, introducer of the bill, led the fight. At first it was the impression that the bill would have easy sledding, with possibly ten votes to spare, but the absence of certain Assemblymen from the city and a change of heart on the part of others, found the house about evenly divided on the issue. Seventy-six votes were necessary to pass the measure.

After an hour spent in debate, a slow roll call was ordered. The result showed 75 Assemblymen favoring the bill and 64 against, just one short of the number necessary for its passage. A motion to reconsider the proposition was entertained and won by a vote of 76 to 60. The biggest kind of a scramble ensued to secure the one extra vote.

Clarence F. Welsh.

Minority leader Donahue rushed to the aid of Assemblyman Welsh by rallying as many Democrats as he could secure under the banner of the Sunday film. There was some talk of laying the matter over until the following Tuesday, when there would surely be sufficient "ayes" to pass the bill. Speaker Sweet refused to consider this. He declared that under the rules Assemblyman Welsh must proceed. There was a long wrangle.

No Assemblyman was permitted to leave the room. Every effort was made to bring absentees to the Assembly. A roll call was finally made. The entire Assembly Chamber was tense. Assemblyman Kenyon, who had entered the room following the first vote, turned the trick. The result was greeted with cheers. The Sunday Motion Picture bill and Assemblyman Welsh had won the biggest fight of the year.

Gilchrist and Slater Antagonistic.

While things were progressing, or at least finished favorably in the Assembly, matters were not going as smoothly for the bill in the Senate Codes committee, from which it is necessary to release it if it is to become a law at this session. Two members of the Senate Codes committee are absolutely necessary on the side of the bill before it can be released. There is absolutely no hope of swinging Senators Gilchrist and Slater in line. Efforts are now being directed to get favorable action from either Senator Murphy or Senator Wellington, but the task is today a seemingly hopeless one.

Unless the bill comes out of committee during the next two or three days to come, despite the victory in the Assembly yesterday, the measure is doomed to defeat. Motion picture interests through their representatives are tonight leaving no stone unturned in their effort to bring the bill out of the committee, for once on the Senate floor, according to a line-up of the votes, it stands an excellent chance of passage.

C. L. GRANT.

Sunday Option Makes Strong Getaway

Following Interesting Hearing in Albany Predictions Are Made That Measure Will Pass Both Houses.

Albany, April 2.

MOTION picture interests scored a substantial victory before the Senate Codes Committee in this city late this afternoon when a hearing was held for the purpose of better ascertaining the sentiment of the State toward the Sunday motion picture bill, or as it is also known, "the Motion Picture Option bill."

The hearing proved to be one of the most interesting of any held during the present session of the Legislature, attracting not only those who are in favor of the bill and those opposed, but countless others from the offices and departments of state. The impression which either side creates before a committee determines to a large extent the attitude which the committee will later on take toward reporting the bill out for general discussion and voting on the floor. And so when a prominent Senator was heard predicting the passage of the bill, and Assemblyman Welsh, who introduced the bill in his side of the house, made the statement that the bill would pass the Assembly with ten votes to spare, it becomes a comparatively easy matter for the ordinary person to figure out the bill's chances later on.

George F. Thompson.

While today's hearing was slated to get under way at 2 o'clock, the Senate at that hour was deep in a discussion of the merits of the Machold Township bill, a discussion which lasted until shortly before 5 o'clock. Two hundred or more men and women who had come to the Senate to either take part in or listen to the hearing relative to the legalizing of the Sunday motion picture show contented themselves with sitting or walking about the Senate lobby. The New York City delegation, a half hundred strong, arrived on the Empire State Express at 11.30 o'clock. Various other parts of the State were well represented.

Senator Newton, as chairman of the Codes Committee, presided. The Senate Chamber was well filled when the hearing finally got under way. Dr. T. R. Goode, representing the Sabbath Day Association, was the first speaker. He made the assertion that the motion picture interests as represented by those seeking legalized motion pictures on Sunday in this State were really the minority seeking rights which the great majority did not wish. He was followed by Theodore Gilman of the Sabbath Day Committee of New York City, who spoke along much the same lines, the speakers being confined to a few minutes by order of the chairman.

John Zwack, who asserted that he represented 25,000 members of the German Catholic Federation, was the third speaker, being followed by Canon Chase of the Civic League of New York. All speakers and others in the audience who were opposed to the bill were easily distinguishable by a white badge on which were the words "For the Lord's Day." Mr. Chase was given three minutes to speak, although he consumed about twice that time in setting forth his arguments against the bill.

The speaker said that the bill, to his way of thinking, was unconstitutional and that while he was not opposed to Sunday motion picture shows, he was opposed to shows where admission was charged. He said that he had used movies in his own church to a distinct advantage. The speaker referred to the fact that four States have censorship and that he believed that there was need of censorship in this State. He said that he was opposed to opening motion picture houses on Sunday with admissions.

Mrs. Ella Boole, of Brooklyn, representing the W. C. T. U., the next speaker, in opposing the bill said that there was a comfort obtained in religion, particularly in time of sorrow.

"It may not be many days," said the speaker, "before death lists from France may reach thousands of homes and surely those people in their sorrow will not feel like going to a movie for comfort. While I believe in good pictures on six days in the week, I am opposed to them on the seventh, on a day given over to religion. The introduction of legalized Sunday movies at this time will give our State the attitude of frivolity, out of keeping with the times. Let us safeguard this one day in seven."

Attorney Rubin Hits a Nail on the Head.

Mrs. J. J. Earl, of Albany, representing the Woman's Committee of this city, stated that a canvass of the city from house to house had shown the majority to be opposed to opening the motion picture houses of Albany on Sunday. At this juncture Attorney Robert Rubin, of New York, representing the motion picture interests present, arose and said that he desired to contradict a seeming wrong impression, as the bill was intended to give each municipality the right to say whether or not it should have its motion picture houses open on Sunday and that it was only an opportunity of letting people in each place voice their sentiments.

Peter J. Brady, introduced as the man who represented organized labor, was the first of the half dozen speakers in favor of the bill. Mr. Brady read his arguments. He made the assertion that the motion picture show on a Sunday was really the amusement of the man who by reason of his financial condition was not able to enjoy his auto, the golf links or a motorboat. The speaker further contended that the motion picture was doing a great work in keeping the family together, and that if such was the case, why limit its good to six days in the week? Mr. Brady referred to the weeklies and the part they were playing along educational lines and how they appealed to the great masses of people, men, in many cases, who were able to take advantage of this only on Sundays. The speaker was frequently interrupted by applause.

Secretary Capes, of the State Conference of Mayors, representing Mayor Cornelius Burns, of Troy, who was slated for a talk but who was unable to be present, spoke briefly, but to the point, saying that the conference of mayors of the state was in favor of the bill for the one reason that it would leave the decision of the hours during which motion picture houses should be open on Sundays, directly up to the cities themselves.

An excellent argument in favor of the passage of the bill was presented by the Rev. William H. Jackson, pastor of the Dutch Reformed church of Glen Head, who at the very outset of his remarks said that in the years past he had opposed Sunday newspapers and Sunday libraries simply because he did not know both sides of the questions as they had presented themselves. He said that the motion picture had been the greatest assistance in his church work for several years past and that he had learned to use, not abuse, the picture.

"The local option movement now under way," said the speaker, "is the real solution of the present day problem concerning the Sunday movie. I run the movies in my church and pass around the plate, so how can I find myself arrayed against the man who charges admissions and who is affording a clean entertainment to the family on a Sunday?" The speaker said that the idea of the motion picture was conceived in the mind of a clergyman and that he was of the opinion that using the motion picture show on Sundays was productive of good moral results to a community.

Miss Duey Makes Strong Plea.

Aside from Mrs. Boole, there was one other woman speaker at the hearing, Miss Helen Duey, associate editor of the Woman's Home Companion, and for three years the editor of a column for better films. Miss Duey said that the motion picture must not be classified, as she really believed was the case, with the side show, the circus and the race track as an attraction, but that rather it should be listed much the same as a magazine, with its current events department, its fiction and its drama, supplied by films of various types. The speaker said that as each person was allowed to decide on the magazine which should come into its household, so should every city and village, taken as a large family, be allowed the right of saying whether or not the motion picture shows, the magazines of that particular city or town, should operate on Sunday. Miss Duey said that she was well aware that there were places in the State where there was no factory element and where Sunday shows would not be desired by the residents, yet there were other places, she said, factory towns, where many persons found innocent, refreshing and educational amusement in the motion picture.

Delegation Attending Hearing on Sunday Motion Picture Option Bill at Albany, April 2.

Judge Kenefick, of Buffalo, was given five minutes, during which time he first discussed the legal aspect of the bill and then continued by saying that every newspaper in Buffalo had commented editorially in favor of the bill and the legalizing of the Sunday movie at the option of the municipality itself. The speaker spoke of the educational features of the film and concluded by saying that the present age was one of liberality and not one going backward toward the blue laws of long ago.

Brady Takes Senate by Storm.

The best speaker and likewise the best argument was reserved for the last when, amid applause, William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, came before the committee, took the Senate by storm, hitting direct from the shoulder in short, concise statements, informed his listeners that the motion picture houses in the District of Columbia were open on Sundays, that one across the road from the White House runs on Sundays, that the biggest and best work in the Y. M. C. A. camps here and in France was the motion picture phase and that it was a generally admitted fact that such shows were instrumental in keeping the soldiers from worse places. Mr. Brady said that motion picture houses alone, by the reason that they attracted men and women to a clean amusement, were instrumental in ridding Scranton and San Francisco of a certain class of houses.

"President Wilson has said that the movies will do more to win this war than anything else," said the speaker, amid applause that came from both sides of the chamber.

"If the motion picture is good enough for the soldier in the trenches," said Mr. Brady, "it's good enough for the thousands, yes tens of thousands, of factory workers who are laboring six days a week harder than ever before, to supply the men 'over there' and help win the war, and who crave the motion picture show on the Sunday to which they have been deprived throughout the week with its long working hours, longer than before, because these men are loyal to their country."

Two opponents to the bill were heard before the session broke up at 6.30 o'clock, the first being the Rev. H. L. Bowlby of Albany, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, and the second, Dr. D. J. Burrell, of the Marble Collegiate Church of New York. The argument of each was much the same, that it would be impossible for a State to pray for its soldier boys, when at the same time they were desecrating the Sabbath back here at home by sanctioning picture shows on that day.

C. L. GRANT.

BUFFALO MEN ACTIVE ON OPTION BILL.

During the Option bill campaign the Buffalo exhibitors' committee meets at the Iroquois Hotel, Buffalo, from 1 to 3 o'clock each afternoon. The members also keep in touch by telegraph and telephone with other parts of the state. Copies of strong editorials in every daily paper in Buffalo favoring the measure have been sent to the film men in this territory. Out-of-town exhibitors have been advised to take copies of these editorials to their local papers, so that similar editorials can be printed and sent to representatives in the Legislature.

Voters Will Decide Sunday Issue

Birmingham Will Hold Referendum on May 6 in Accordance with Petition Filed with City Commission.

ON MAY 6 the people of the city will be given an opportunity to vote on the question of whether or not moving pictures will operate in Birmingham, Ala., on Sunday. The election commission set this date at a regular meeting, after having ascertained that the petition filed with the city commission was signed by a sufficient number of qualified voters.

By recent action of the city commission, the moving picture theaters were permitted to operate until April 21, and the calling of the election on May 6 will close the picture houses for two Sundays before election. From the fact that the ordinance authorizing the picture shows on Sunday was made in good faith by the former city commission and later found defective through a clerical error, it is thought by many leading citizens that the picture shows should not be closed until the matter has been decided at the polls.

It was stated that the reason for setting the election in May was for the purpose of giving the authorities proper time to prepare the poll lists, it having been declared that many new voters had qualified this year, and that their names should appear on the lists submitted to the election officials for their guidance on the day of the election.

The question of the operation of moving pictures on Sunday was an issue in the recent campaign for city commissioners, and practically all the candidates were pledged to submit the matter to the people for their decision.

NO SUNDAY LAW AMENDMENT IN KENTUCKY.

The Kentucky Legislature closed its 1918 session without passing any laws which will have a direct bearing on the moving picture industry in Louisville. One bill for moving pictures, that being the amendment to the Sunday closing law, was killed without improving conditions any, while a proposed eight-hour law, which would have resulted in much hardship for exhibitors as well as employers in general, was killed by a fifty to thirty-nine vote during the final days of the session. Of course, the exhibitors are very sorry that they were unable to get through the Sunday amendment legalizing picture shows, but feel that as a whole they came out fairly well on the legislative program. Bills were introduced to kill moving pictures, baseball, and in fact, almost all form of amusement during the war, but such bills didn't have a chance, and were never considered seriously.

PATHE TO INSTALL DIVISION MANAGERS.

Another move to increase the efficiency of the Pathe sales organization in the handling of big productions is seen in the statement that the country will be divided into five districts, each of which will be presided over by a district manager selected upon his reputation.

A convention was held in Chicago recently at which Ralph O. Proctor, formerly manager of the Chicago Pathe office, was appointed district manager of the middle western division. The convention was attended by representatives of the Omaha, Minneapolis, Des Moines, Milwaukee, Chicago, Indianapolis and Detroit branches. These are the territories which come under Mr. Proctor's direct supervision.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week of April 7 at New York's Principal Motion Picture Houses.

THE STRAND.—Marguerite Clark in "Rich Man, Poor Man," a photoplay made from a novel by Maximillian Foster, was the leading feature at the Strand the week of April 7. The supporting company included Frederick Warde, Richard Barthelmess, George Backus, Ottela Nesmith, Mary Davis and Augusta Anderson. A microscopic revelation of the human heart, James Montgomery Flagg's "The Good Sport," "Strange Fisherman of Russia" and the Topical Review were also shown. Mery Zentay and Joseph Mann were the soloists.

THE RIALTO.—"His Majesty, Bunker Bean," with Jack Pickford in the title role, was the feature at the Rialto. Louise Huff appears as "The Flapper." The Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy, "Friend Husband," a scenic and the animated Magazine completed the picture program.

THE RIVOLI.—Arnold Daly in "My Own United States," a picture based upon "The Man Without a Country," was the principal attraction at the Rivoli. Anna Lehr has the leading female role. The fourth instalment of the Official Italian War Pictures, a scenic of the great Southwest and the News Weekly were also shown.

EIGHTY-FIRST STREET THEATER.—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Henry B. Walthall in "Humdrum Brown," and another number of "The Eagle's Eye." Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Mabel Normand in "The Floor Below," and the latest release of Chapin's "Son of Democracy."

KNICKERBOCKER.—"My Four Years in Germany."

LYRIC.—"Over the Top."

FORTY-FOURTH STREET.—"Hearts of the World."

BROADWAY.—"The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin."

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

New Hampshire Exhibitors Meet

At Session in Boston They Plan to Boost Liberty Loan Drive—Take Space at Exposition.

THE New Hampshire branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitor's League held a meeting in the banquet room of the Castle Square Hotel, Boston, Tuesday, April 2. C. H. Bean, the president, was in the chair.

Robert S. Weeks, in charge of the Liberty Loan Committee of New England, addressed the meeting, speaking on the necessity of the co-operation of the exhibitor in the Liberty Loan drive. "I have written this song, 'Over Here,' which is sure to be a great boost to the campaign, and I would like to have each exhibitor run this slide on his screen at least three nights a week," he said. "We have arranged to have this and other slides shown on the whole Keith circuit, and I am sure that we will have them in every vaudeville theater in New England."

Billy Chamberlain, a well-known New England dancer, spoke to the gathering in behalf of the Liberty Loan Committee. "The idea of this slide is to give the public a bump every few minutes," he said. "Let them know what they must buy bonds if the country is to win the war."

Montgomery Rollins, publicity manager of the Liberty Loan Committee, told the exhibitors his plan to have every theater in New England celebrate a Liberty Loan day. This day the exhibitor can choose for his own convenience as long as it is agreeable to the local chairman of the committee.

The New Hampshire exhibitors promised that on Liberty Loan day they would turn their theaters over to the Liberty Loan Committee; that they would run patriotic slides, and that a copy of the Liberty song, composed by Robert S. Weeks, would be thrown on the screen. The outside of the theater will be decorated and signs such as "Buy a Bond" will be displayed in prominent places.

Samuel Grant, general manager of the Motion Picture Exposition, talked on the coming convention. He proposed that each state have its own day at the convention and on that day entertain friends. The New Hampshire exhibitors agreed to make either a Tuesday or a Thursday a New Hampshire Day.

It was decided the New Hampshire exhibitors would buy space in Exposition Hall; that they would furnish and have it represent New Hampshire, that they would also engage a New Hampshire girl to take charge of the booth, so that when their day arrives they would have a place to entertain their friends from New Hampshire. The money for the purchase of this space will be taken out of the treasury. President Bean then appointed on the committee to represent New Hampshire William H. O'Neil, of Manchester; Michael White, of Dover; Lee A. Rodinger, of Concord; E. C. Baldwin, of Keene, and J. W. Glove, of Lisbon.

Among the exhibitors present were William H. O'Neil, Michael White, Lee A. Rodinger, E. C. Baldwin, T. W. Glove, J. E. Sharbneau, George Barrett, F. W. Berry, A. L. Coutere, F. W. Willie, George Nichols, George Proctor and Charles Riva. Those present on the Liberty Loan Committee were Montgomery Rollins, Billy Chamberlain and Robert S. Weeks, with Mrs. Alice Rice Carroll, and Samuel Grant.

Maryland's General Assembly Adjourns

Had Acted on Several Matters in Which Motion Picture Exhibitors Were Interested.

THE General Assembly of Maryland of 1918 has come to an end, and this was officially declared a fact at 1:32 on the morning of April 1. The session has proved an enlightening one regarding matters pertaining to the motion picture film industry in Baltimore. And while the Censorship Repeal Bill died in committee, this does not necessarily mean that the movement on the part of the exhibitors of the state will cease and that their activities to abolish the drastic censor law are null and void. There were some exhibitors in Baltimore and in Maryland who did their utmost to accomplish the repeal of the law; there were others who did not do so much, and there were a great many who did nothing at all except to talk a bit about it. However, two years is quite a little time in which to prepare, and at the next legislature perhaps the offensive will be stronger.

But one thing the Exhibitors' League of Maryland, of which Frank A. Hornig is the president, and Louis A. De Hoff is the secretary, may be complimented on is the manner in which the bill to prevent children under twelve years of age from attending moving pictures unless accompanied by an adult was quietly subdued and later killed.

The bill relative to the regulation of moving picture operators was passed, with one provision changed to the effect that it is only necessary for an operator to have six months' experience under a licensed operator before he can become a licensed operator. The age limit was retained at twenty-one years.

The bill which pertained to the censor fees, and which provides for the payment of moving picture censor fees to the state treasury was passed.

It is understood that the bill which was introduced on Monday, March 25, to legalize moving pictures and vaudeville shows on Sundays was killed.

MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION AT WEST HOTEL.

Members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation, Minneapolis, met Wednesday, March 27, and selected the West Hotel, Minneapolis, as the place for the holding of this year's convention, to be in session May 7 and 8. Secretary Clyde Hitchcock of the corporation is making a drive for new members previous to the convention so that a record number of theater men may be present at the sessions in May.

JUNE CAPRICE MAKES PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

A large part of the population of the Bronx was concentrated at and around Webster avenue and 195th street April 2 when June Caprice, William Fox's "Sunshine Maid," provided something new in the style of personal appearance at the U. S. Theater.

Miss Caprice was escorted to the photoplay house by the members of the Seventh Company of the Eighth Coast Artillery and spoke for a few moments about some of the amusing experiences which she has had in motion pictures. The proceeds of the affair were donated to the New York Guard. A big audience was in attendance.

Coming League and Other Exhibitors' Conventions

(Secretaries Are Requested to Send Dates and Particulars Promptly)

Northwest Branch Exhibitors League at Minneapolis, Minn.....May 7, 8 and 9
Clyde H. Hitchcock, 357 Loeb Arcade, Minneapolis, Minn.

National Exposition Moving Picture League of America at Boston.....July

Griffith Picture Has Impressive Premiere

"Hearts of the World" a Simple and Appealing Human Story, with the Great War for a Background

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

FIRST and foremost, "Hearts of the World" is a play. Its interest centers in two people, a man and a woman who love each other, and their fate is the dominating interest of the story. The terrible conflict of the great war is seen and felt vividly, and the suffering and heroism which mark its bloody footprints are stamped upon the mind with indelible impress, but all this is incidental to the screen drama's main purpose. It does not try to overwhelm by the bulk of its events. It draws its characters from the inhabitants of a small French village, and their experiences serve to teach what is endured by the women and children whose homes are ravaged by the Hun. But the picture, although forceful propaganda for the cause of the Allies, is a piece of screen fiction intended to entertain. Its instructive qualities are incidental. Its artistic status takes precedence over everything else. With the production of "Hearts of the World" the creator of "The Birth of a Nation" comes into his own again.

The scenario of this latest D. W. Griffith photoplay was written by M. Maston de Tolignac and translated into English by Captain Victor Marier. It is divided into two acts, the earlier scenes taking place in a peaceful and lovely old French village before the declaration of war. Marie Stephenson and Douglas Gordon Hamilton are the lovers of the story. They are the children of two American painters who have made their homes in France. Nothing could be simpler than the incidents of the courtship, or more fragrant. That is the scent of the atmosphere during the time when the boy and girl are stealing away to the garden to meet each other—love, domestic tranquility, happiness and the laughter of children.

Then comes the call to arms. Douglas hurries to fight for the land which gives him shelter, and the old, quiet life is shattered by the roar of cannon. The village falls into the hands of the Germans and the horrors of barbarous blood lust and sensuality are enacted before the eyes of Marie. In the meantime Douglas is doing a man's part in the trenches.

A brutal German officer named Von Strohm is the chief cause of Marie's sufferings. She goes through the terrible experience of seeing her grandfather killed, and is driven beyond her strength by her captors when she is set to working in the fields. She finds a stanch friend in an elfish young street singer, known as The Little Disturber. The girl is blessed with courage, wit and a cheerful philosophy. She has cast longing eyes at Douglas, but when she finds he is not for her she consoles herself with the sensible reflection, "If you can't get what you want, then want what you can get."

Marie's trials are brought to a climax when she and Douglas meet in an upper room of the village inn. Von Strohm and several soldiers are battering at the door. The girl and her sweetheart know what her fate will be if the Germans enter the room. Before it is too late Marie wrings a promise from Robert that he will kill her with his own revolver. The lovers determine to die as man and wife. They murmur the vows of marriage. Just as the door is about to give way and Douglas raises his pistol to the girl's heart, an explosion occurs outside. The street singer has hurled a hand grenade at the hated foes and the lovers are saved. Scenes showing the retaking of the village by the Allies follow, the final incident being the arrival of American troops.

The merits of "Hearts of the World" form an imposing total. To begin with, there are no illuminated titles. Plain, uniform lettering that stands out with gratifying clearness is used. Of cutbacks there are practically none. The locations and the photography are both unexcelled. Long stretches of distance are brought out with masterly skill. The night effects, the trenches during a blinding rainstorm and the charges of the soldiers are all striking examples of what can be accomplished in screen art. One effect is absolutely new: Thousands of horses and men are charging across a battle field, in the middle and the background. Those in the foreground are moving slowly; the others increase in speed as they are further removed from the front. The effect is to do away with the blur that always happens when horses gallop by too close to the camera.

To refer again to the simplicity of the story: The depth of its feeling stirs the heart profoundly, due to the understanding and resource of the man who directed it. As shown on the initial night at the Forty-fourth Street Theater, New York, the picture is too long. It ran for nearly three hours. Judicious cutting will improve it greatly. There are too many trench scenes. There is a point beyond which repetition becomes a source of weakness. Mr. Griffith is entirely justified in using so old an expedient as the man about to kill the woman he loves in order to save her honor. In such a situation it is the right thing to do. But the decisive moment is delayed too long; the tension relaxes from being overstrained. These defects will no doubt be remedied.

Th acting of the entire cast maintains its share of the general excellence. Lillian Gish as Marie has the most sympathetic character in the play. Her delicate beauty and sweet gentleness fit into the part perfectly, and her portrayal of profound feeling is equally faultless. As The Little Disturber Dorothy Gish displays a radically different series of emotions, but is quite as proficient in her acting. Her archness and unfailing high spirits in the face of every danger are worn with the soul of a born comedienne. Robert Herron is so thoroughly human and manly as Douglas that it would be impossible to better his performance. That rare old actor, George Fawcett, as the village carpenter, and that remarkable young actor, Ben Alexander, as the littlest brother, are a precious fine pair. Robert Anderson as Monsieur Cuckoo is another of the front-rankers.

Packed House Pays Money to Render Verdict

Formal Opening Draws Capacity Audience and Picture Thrills Multitude as Soul of Belgium Is Revealed.

MANY New Yorkers who were victims of their own habit of procrastination missed the opening scenes of "Hearts of the World" when William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest presented Griffith's great picture-story for the first time to a paid audience Thursday evening, April 4. Scores leisurely sauntered in, and as is the custom of Manhattan "first nighters," keeping until after 9 o'clock a lessening stream of disturbers flowing to obstruct the view of prompt arrivals.

This was an unfailing sign that "Hearts of the World" will largely attract the veteran theatergoer, willing to pay the top prices—a matter of $1.50 for orchestra seats, evenings, and $1 for similar locations at the matinees. The opening house further reflected the presence of people who may not always be depended upon to respond to moving picture promotion; there was a very large percentage of evening dress, to give the orchestra section a truly "theatrical opening" appearance.

There could have been, therefore, no better class of spectators before which "Hearts of the World" might have been shown to give showmen an almost exact measure of its general appeal. Theatergoers who find their best entertainment before the screen may naturally be expected to flock to a production heralded as Griffith's latest and greatest—and the opening house at the Forty-fourth Street supplied convincing testimony that the appeal may be creditably adjudged as practically unanimous.

The great audience sat through two hours and forty minutes of "pictures" with only six minutes intermission. Only an exceptional production could exact an equal continuity of attention, let alone entertain with an ever-increasing appeal to mind and heart. "Hearts of the World" held every man and woman attentively transfixed; the grip of the story weaving itself about the reasoning faculties while it increasingly gripped the heart. It would be impossible for enthusiasm to endure continuously—and, knowing this, Griffith has intermittently slackened the appeal only to again draw the tension into sharpened and accentuated emphasis with the precision and sureness of a master-judge of emotion.

These were the impressions gained by a person sent to the show to bring back a report of the developments. The "News weeklies" have told the picture-history of several component parts of the Griffith "Story of a Village"; crafty producers have given counterfeit rehearsals of attacks and repulses in trenches and on the open field; the newspapers are bringing us gripping recitals of the story of the battles for democracy—but the Griffith picture has mirrored the soul of stricken and valiant Belgium; has fairly measured and counted the pulse-beat of the gallant and unbeatable heart of France; has transmitted to the screen a reflection of the human suffering, the unspeakable tortures of the hellish Hun's attempted butchery of civilization so acutely that it is deflected straight from the screen into the very inmost recesses of the souls of beholders.

It is this visualizing, pulsating, transmission of the sufferings that fairly overwhelm victims of Hun hellishness on the battle lines and in the war-stricken areas before and behind the places of actual conflict that will be coined into dollars by the exhibitor and producer, not alone enriching those financially concerned but spiritually, morally and righteously enriching the men, women and children of our own country because of the surge of Victory that rushes and swirls as a reflex of every foot of film.

These expressions are recorded as the very evident and obvious attitude of the first houseful to pay money in New York to see "Hearts of the World."

Thursday Evening's Showing.

There was a private showing of "Hearts of the World" on the evening of Thursday, April 4, to which had been invited many of the friends of Mr. Griffith, prominent motion picture men, army and navy officers and leading men and women of affairs of New York. The house was crowded with this select audience, which was moved to enthusiasm by the truths of the war so vividly put before them by the picture. When the curtain was rung down on the final scene the audience paused to listen to a few words from Mr. Griffith, who briefly thanked the people for their appreciation and expressed the hope that what they had seen would at least urge them to pray for the success of our boys who were fighting and enduring "over there."

Among the many present were Ambassador James W. Gerard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Otto Kahn, Adolph Ochs, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Whigham, Mr. and Mrs. W. Burke Cockran, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hastings, Enrico Caruso, Admiral Nathan Usher and staff, Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Gray, Mrs. Parker Beacon, Major General William H. Mann, Mr. and Mrs. David Belasco, Mr. and Mrs. Conde Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Collier, James Montgomery Flagg, Gatti Gasazza, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, Miss Ruth Twombly, Miss Harriet Post, Marquis and Marchioness Aberdeen, Miss Mary Alexander, Mrs. May Wilson Preston, John Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hearst, Edward Ziegler, Pasquale Amato, Daniel Frohman, Mrs. Morris Gest, Lee Shubert, George M. Cohan, Marshall Neilan, William Elliott, Florenz White, F. Ray Comstock and Madame Alda.

Among the representatives of the British and Canadian governments and army and navy officers of Great Britain and Canada were Major Norman Thwaites, M. C. O., and party of seven officers; Consul General Bailey and staff, Henry Goode and Geoffry Butler and staff, Commander Blackwood, R. N.; Provost Marshall Colonel Hunter, Colonel Gifford and staff, Sir Connop Guthrie and staff, Major Brooman White, Captain V. H. McWilliam, Captain MacDonald, Lieutenant Sharp, John McKenna Lawson, Lieutenant Chevalier, Lieutenant W. P. McIvor, Lieutenant Colonel C. A. Warren, Lieutenant G. Sheries, Captain W. E. Brown, Colonel J. S. Dennis, Captain Sise, Lieutenant Grossmith and Lieutenant Grosswell.

Indian Life Pictures

Northwestern Film Corp., of Sheridan, Wyo., Brings East the First of a Series of Productions Showing Red Men on Native Heath.

JOHN E. MAPLE, general manager of the Northwestern Film Corporation, Sheridan, Wyo., has returned home from a trip to New York. Mr. Maple brought with him from Wyoming six reels of pictures, the first product of his efforts at open-air production. Several private showings of Scene from "Indian Life" (Northwestern).

the films were given in local projection rooms and a degree of interest was aroused by the results Mr. Maple has obtained from picturing Indian life with real Indians, on their native heath, as the only actors and actresses in the presentations.

The World was represented at one of Mr. Maple's showings and was interested and entertained by the six reels that were displayed. Four of the reels were along industrial and educational lines, a two-reel story being coupled with the incidents that picture domestic life among the original Americans. The public would undoubtedly find great interest in the scenes that demonstrate the passing of the old West. Each reel might be offered as a separate adjunct to a program entertainment, with the "story" films to close the series. Not a white face appears upon the screen during the displays of "Indian Life."

Mr. Maple has a special permit from the Interior Department to operate on the Crow, Cheyenne and Pine Ridge Government Reservations in Wyoming, Montana and South Dakota and hires his Indian actors by separate arrangement with each participant in the pictures. Having been "adopted" as a member of the Crow tribe, Mr. Maple has special access to the confidence and domestic occupations and pastimes of the Indians, and it is in these intimate and interesting details that his pictures excel both as educational and entertainment features.

John E. Maple.

The Northwestern Film Corporation has undertaken a series of picture records of Indian traditions from the earliest days of authentic record. Mr. Maple has lived in the Indian country for years and has made a special study of the red man; he speaks his sign language and possesses the confidence of the "big chiefs" among the tribesmen. In future productions primitive life among the Indians will be carried forward in scenes reflecting the various advances to the present stage of developed civilization.

Paul Powell is general director of productions and John Leezer is photographer. Special music for "Indian Life" has been written by Vern Elliott. The technical staff of the Northwestern Film Corporation was assembled in Los Angeles and there is a laboratory at Sheridan—but no studio. Nature provides the scenery in the great out-of-doors where the Indian survives, happy and prosperous, as wards of the Great Father at Washington.

LONE STAR ELECTS NEW OFFICERS.

The affairs of the Lone Star Corporation now nearing a termination, John R. Freuler, who conceived and organized the project for the making and selling of Charles Chaplin comedies, has passed the management to other hands. The new officers of the corporation are: Paul H. Davis, president and treasurer; John F. Cuneo, vice-president; Dr. George Hall, secretary.

Cohen Talks on Hawaiian Conditions

Island Exchangeman and Exhibitor, Who Deals in Many Brands, in San Francisco for Long Stay

JOE C. COHEN, president of the Consolidated Amusement Company, Ltd., Honolulu, is in San Francisco for an extended stay. This concern conducts the Liberty, Bijou, Hawaii, Empire and Star theaters in Honolulu as a part of a chain operated in the Islands, and supplies films to the various military post theaters, of which there are a number.

The film exchange conducted by this concern probably handles a larger number of brands than any other in the world, in spite of the fact that its field is limited. It distributes all Paramount and Artcraft pictures, as well as Fox, Triangle, Greater Vitgraph, Metro, Pathe, Mutual and General Film Company releases. In addition it secures most of the large productions marketed on a state rights basis. No efforts are made to secure films until they have been shown on the mainland, as much time is consumed in getting them to the Islands and back. Owing to the uncertainty in shipping facilities films are now sent over well in advance and advertising matter is sent in large quantities months before pictures are shown. Most of the productions are kept from five to eight weeks, exclusive of the time covered in transit.

Almost all of the serials made are used in Hawaii and are well liked by patrons, especially the natives, Chinese, Japanese and Portuguese, which make up most of the population of the Islands. All of the news weeklies are used, as well as all the travel pictures that can be secured, a keen interest being taken in the doings of the outside world.

The Liberty theater is the finest house in Honolulu and is now being remodeled at a cost of about $30,000. When this work is finished it will be one of the most wonderful theaters in the world from the standpoint of decoration. The work is being done by world-famous painters and sculptors from an artists' colony near Honolulu, and Mr. Cohen states that most of this is being done at the mere cost of materials. New seats are being installed and other changes made to place the house in first-class condition. Paramount and Artcraft productions are shown here exclusively, two changes of program being made each week. The Liberty has a seating capacity of 1,700, but this will be reduced slightly when the changes are completed.

The Hawaii theater uses Fox service for three or four days a week, with the rest of the week taken up by Vitagraph, Triangle or Metro. The Empire theater has two feature nights a week, with shorter productions shown the rest of the time. The Bijou theater is used for musical comedy, stock shows and special film attractions between seasons. It enjoys a very central location and when a proposed street is cut through it will face on three prominent thoroughfares. When this improvement is completed it is planned to erect a monumental theater at a cost of $250,000. Work is now under way on another theater and this will be completed at an early date.

Theater Prices in Honolulu.

"Theater prices in Honolulu are about the same as they are in San Francisco," said Mr. Cohen. "The scale at the Liberty theater ranges from 15 cents to 35 cents, with a few reserved seats at 55 cents. As pennies are not in use at Honolulu we were compelled to advance some of our prices slightly when the war tax went into effect, but are not making anything out of this. Business in general is quite good, owing to the fact that labor is fully employed at good wages and everyone is prosperous. The soldiers at army posts, however, are rapidly dwindling away, and this will doubtless have an effect on the business during the rest of the war unless they are replaced.

"The tourist trade," continued Mr. Cohen, "was commencing to become quite heavy before the war broke out and promised to be a factor of note in the amusement business. During the past year travelers have heard so much about the withdrawal of ships from the San Francisco-Honolulu run that many have been afraid to make the trip lest they get to the Islands and find themselves without a means of returning. There is not the slightest danger of this and the business men of Honolulu are making every effort to make this fact known.

"One of the reasons for the immense amount of film handled by us is that most of the theaters on the Islands make a daily change of program. This is true of the two houses at Hilo and of all the post exchange theaters. Our firm virtually controls the film business on the Islands, but experience has shown that this is necessary. Time and time again competition has cropped up and each time severe losses have been sustained both by us and our competitors. The fact that we do not show pictures until after mainland runs are completed is probably an advantage, as by the time we offer an attraction it has been exploited through the medium of magazines and newspapers and our patrons are curious to see it. To illustrate how late we use films I might add that we are just now offering Annette Kellermann in 'A Daughter of the Gods.'"

An immense amount of newspaper publicity was secured recently in connection with the campaign of the Government for the loan or donation of marine glasses for the navy. Mrs. Cohen donated a set of fine marine glasses to the cause and attached a check for one hundred dollars to be given to the man who first sights an enemy submarine with them. The novelty of the offer created much interest and both Island and mainland newspapers gave it considerable space.

Mr. Cohen brought with him from Honolulu one thousand feet of moving pictures of the recent eruption of the great volcano Kilauea, and this has recently been tinted and shown to local film folks. The fact that a lava flow seems imminent and the attention of tourists and scientists is centered on the volcano makes this subject of particular interest at this time and it will probably be disposed of for regular release.

T. A. C.

Leo Dwyer Visits New York

Comes to Metropolis to Make Arrangements for Increase in Accessory Supplies.

LEO E. DWYER, of Dwyer Brothers & Company, 26 West Naghten street, Columbus, Ohio, with a branch at 631 Walnut street, Cincinnati, which controls the Southern Ohio and Kentucky in the distribution of Simplex Projectors, was a visitor in New York City last week.

Mr. Dwyer, who remained in New York from Monday until Friday, had come east for a consultation with E. M. Porter, general manager of the Precision Machine Company, Inc., 317 East 34th street, and to make arrangements for an increase in the accessory supplies stock carried by his firm.

Mr. Dwyer, whose energetic methods have made this company one of the most important concerns distributing Simplex Projectors, stated that a new department inaugurated by them six months ago for the manufacture and sale of slip covers for theater chairs has now become a very large part of the business of Dwyer Brothers & Company.

The demand from exhibitors in his territory for cloth coverings to use on their chairs during the hot and dusty months had become so great that his company realized that the sale of slip covers by an accessory house would be a convenience to its customers. The popularity of the Dwyer make has developed in the last few monts to a very large extent.

Mr. Dwyer is well known to dealers and motion picture managers throughout the Middle West, and has made a reputation among them as being one of the most progressive men in his particular branch of the motion picture industry.

MITCHEL MARK LEAVES $2,000,000.

The will of Mitchel H. Mark, prominent in the moving picture business, who died here recently, has been filed for probate in Buffalo. The petition for probate states that the value of the real estate left by Mr. Mark is unknown at this time. It places a nominal value of $10,000 and upward upon the personal property. The estate is said to be worth upward of $2,000,000. The will leaves $2,000 to the Federation of Jewish Charities and all the remainder of the estate to Estelle B. Mark, widow of the testator. She and two daughters, Annette S. Spiegel and Winifred R. Mark, survived Mr. Mark.

Tally Pleased with First National

Says That First Year's Business Has Proved Value of Plan—More Than a Million Spent for Pictures—Annual Meeting April 15.

T. L. TALLY, one of the leading exhibitors of Los Angeles, and vice-president of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, was in New York during the week of April 6 looking over the affairs of the organization, of which he is the leading promoter and head since the resignation of S. L. Rothapfel as president. In talking over the outlook for the business generally and the First National particularly with a representative of the Moving Picture World, Mr. Tally expressed himself as quite satisfied, even enthusiastic.

"I am greatly pleased with the turn of affairs, especialy as concerns the circuit. When I started out to organize it a year or so ago many of my friends cautioned me to go slow and warned me that it would not be possible to get the exhibitors to hold together, but the time seemed to me to be right for the kind of organization I had in mind, and now that it has been running successfully for a year my guess has proved true. There have been few changes in the original organization, and what have occurred have, I am sure, tended to strengthen it."

Chaplin and Tally Looking 'Em Over.

"Can you say off-hand the amount of business transacted during the year?" we asked Mr. Tally.

"I could not go into detail," replied the westerner, "but I can tell you that, outside of the Chaplin deal and several subjects that we have taken on percentage, we have bought more than a million dollars' worth of pictures and paid cash for them. With a very few exceptions all the subjects we have purchased have been successful as box office attractions, and have satisfied our members by the results they have given. I think that is a pretty good record considering that it was our first year and that the business was a new experience with us. We will do better next year.

"Our annual meeting will be held on April 15 at the Hotel Astor, in this city, when we hope to make a very interesting report. We will at that time elect a new president, and we hope to get a strong man who will be interested in the organization and push its interests. Our plan is simple, and has, as I said before, proved to be successful. We have not attempted to put out a program for our members and will not attempt to. Some of us thought the program policy should have been put into operation at the first, but our year's experience has proved that such a policy would not be practical. We have had no trouble in getting such features as we wanted, but I doubt if we could with safety operate a program as successfully."

Mr. Tally proved his faith in the business when he said that he had been planning to build in Los Angeles a picture theater that would eclipse anything that had been constructed in America, but that he had concluded to defer action for the present in deference to the opinion of his son, Seymour Tally, who thought that he ought to wait till the war is ended; but he added that when that time came he surely would build that theater, and when he did he would show Los Angeles and the rest of the country what a real picture theater looked like.

"You see," he continued, speaking of Seymour, who accompanied his father on this trip, "I have a great respect for my son's judgment. He has been with me for some time and is as familiar with my business as I am, and I find that it pays to listen to him. So I will devote my time for the present to the circuit and do what I can to establish it on a firm basis."

Seymour Tally is a fine, upstanding young man, still in his twenties, but he can look you in the eye and tell you as much or as little as he wants to without a twinkle. He doesn't do a lot of talking either. Father and son make a strong combination when it comes to a business deal. Seymour is now awaiting the call to the colors of his class in the draft.

Mr. Tally and his son had been in New York for several days and left Thursday morning in continuation of their trip, but will return in time for the annual meeting of the First National on April 15.

Pettijohn Gives a Luncheon

Entertains Governor of Indiana and D. W. Griffith at Informal Get-Together.

AN impromptu and informal luncheon was given by C. C. Pettijohn of the Producers-Exhibitors Affiliated to James R. Goodrich, Governor of Indiana, and D. W. Griffith at the Hotel Astor on Thursday, April 4. Governor Goodrich and Mr. Griffith, both being in the city, Mr. Pettijohn thought it opportune to show his appreciation to the governor of his home state and to the director. In addition to this it is said that the governor and the father of Mr. Griffith were old friends.

Among the guests were H. W. Brink of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Robert J. Rubin, Robert Pawley, P. A. Powers, Joseph Golden, Captain Merritt Crawford, Lester Park, W. W. Irwin, W. L. Sherrill, William Fait, Jr., of Utica, Little Mary MacAlister and Sam Spedon.

Governor Goodrich, who signed the bill legalizing the Sunday showing of motion pictures in Indiana, was the first speaker in the informal talk that followed. "The present is largely governed by memories of the past," he said. "The soul of a nation is the outgrowth of the deeds of our forefathers. The deeds of 1776, of 1861 and so on up to the present inspire the deeds of the Americans today. The lessons taught by motion pictures are factors in making the soul of a nation, and are helpful in shaping the destinies of all nations. When I was a boy I was brought up under the strict discipline of the Scotch Presbyterian faith. When I was told on Sundays of the bright and glorious beyond to which I should devote my thoughts I believed the most glorious things would take place when I could go fishing, play baseball or indulge in some other harmless recreation on the Lord's Day. We are told by the greatest teachers who ever lived that Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath, in direct contradiction of the old Jewish institution which many follow today. I am very fond of motion pictures, and frequently attend them on Sundays. I find them restful, entertaining and harmless—at least those shown in Indiana are. I presume they are elsewhere.

Mr. Griffith referred to the governor's ideas as coinciding with his own, and said it would continue to be his aim to make the soul of the nations better by the pictures he may produce.

W. W. Irwin, the last speaker, spoke of the great advance made in the motion picture industry. As an evidence of it he said: "This gathering together of motion picture men, business men and the governor of one of the greatest states in the Union was a few years ago thought an impossible happening."

DON MEANEY IN NEW YORK.

Don Meaney is spending a few days in New York in the interest of the Cinema Exchange of Los Angeles. Meaney only recently gave up his offices on the coast to become affiliated with the Cinema Exchange, believing that with this organization he would have a better opportunity of doing more for those interested directly in the work of producing motion pictures. The Cinema Exchange was organized about six months ago.

Mr. Meaney is producing a series of Snakeville comedies with Victor Potell (Slippery Slim), Margaret Joslyn (Sophie Klutts) and Harry Todd (Mustang Pete), arrangements having been completed for the marketing of these productions.

Mr. Meaney is staying at the Claridge.

"The Spirit of the Red Cross"

Inspiring Two-Part Production to Be Used as Propaganda in Second War Fund Drive.

AN 1800-foot production entited "The Spirit of the Red Cross" has been produced by Jack Eaton for the American Red Cross. This production is to be used in the propaganda connected with the Second War Fund Drive, which will be held during the week of May 20 to 27, and will be distributed by the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry Committee, which is in co-operation with the American Red Cross.

The production is well made and, in fact, is the most entertaining of films of this character that has been presented. Its real purpose is skillfully hidden in a story so interesting, so full of human appeal, that its usefulness is unquestioned. The preachful methods which have usually characterized the propaganda film have in this instance been abandoned, and the spectator is for the moment concerned only with the story of the two central figures of the picture.

Scene from "The Spirit of the Red Cross."

The story of the picture follows a brief period in the career of an American Red Cross nurse and her soldier lover. It opens on the young soldier's last dinner at home and brings on the scene the young woman to whom he is betrothed. The farewell to his family and the parting from his sweetheart later are necessarily touching. The nurse still on duty on this side of the water longs to follow her lover "over there" and finally accomplishes her purpose. Some well-staged battle scenes precede the bringing to the base hospital at which she is stationed the young man who awakes one day after a serious illness from wounds to find in attendance his sweetheart whose spirit has led and ministered to him on the battlefield.

Double exposure has played a large part in the interest of the picture. It is tremendously inspiring to watch the measured tread of the soldiers on their way to the battlefield and to see in advance the spirit of the Red Cross (a young woman in the Red Cross uniform) leading them; or to see the same spirit directing the stretcher bearers on the battlefield.

Peggy Adams plays delightfully the role of the Red Cross nurse and Ray McKee that of the soldier.

A War Film for War Funds

Exhibitors Who Desire to Co-operate in Red Cross Work May Obtain French Government Subject.

AN interesting four-real film, "How France Cares for Her Wounded Soldiers," has been obtained by the National Surgical Dressings Committee of America from the French Government. It pictures the experiences of wounded soldiers from the time they were wounded at the now historic Battle of Verdun, through their hospital experience, until they are trained and prepared to enter the trenches again. If permanently injured the soldiers are taught how to take advantage of their handicaps in learning to work.

The splendid work of the unarmed heroes—the Red Cross men—is shown including that of the Red Cross dog. Various ways of transporting the wounded over the rough roads and by the river boats are seen.

The film is offered by the National Surgical Dressings Committee to war relief organizations for the purpose of raising funds. Exhibitors who wish to co-operate with war relief organizations in giving patriotic entertainments to raise funds will find this film "How France Cares for Her Wounded Soldiers," admirable for the purpose.

The film is being booked by Helen Duey for the National Surgical Dressings Committee. Address, 130 West Forty-fifth street, New York City.

Strand Benefit Nets $20,000

Miss Anne Morgan Patroness at Performance for Benefit of Devastated France.

THE Strand Theater with its usual patriotic spirit gave a benefit under the auspices of Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the late J. P. Morgan, and the Committee for Devastated France, on Thursday, March 28, and turned over $20,000 in cash to the committee. The money will go toward the rebuilding of the French villages. When Miss Morgan arrived in this country a short time ago, and Harold Edel, managing director of the Strand, was informed of the splendid work Miss Morgan and her co-workers were doing in France, he at once offered the Strand Theater, with the orchestra and entire staff, for the disposition of the committee. Miss Morgan gladly accepted the offer, for she has on two previous occasions had proof of the wonderful results obtained at the Strand at patriotic benefit performances. The first of these was for Stricken Belgium and the second for the American Ambulance in France. The last benefit performance was, without a doubt, the greatest success yet achieved at the Strand Theater. Every one of the 3,500 seats was occupied, and standing room was sold to over 500 more, while 1,000 or more were turned away disappointed. The strong drawing cards were Miss Morgan, in her first appearance on the stage, and the motion pictures which she brought back from France, showing relief work.

King Baggot Gets Ovation in Rochester, N. Y.

Star of "Eagle's Eye" Serial Visits Big Ammunition Plants —Cordially Greeted Everywhere.

KING BAGGOT, notable screen star, at present playing the lead in "The Eagle's Eye," and well known to thousands, visited Rochester, N. Y., Monday, March 25, and remained three days. He was accompanied by his director and Rob Townly, his cameraman.

A number of scenes were taken in and about the city, including the Eastman plant at Kodak Park, where seven hundred girls on their way to dinner were filmed. Other locations selected were in and about the Todd Protectograph Company's plant, the Gleason works and other factories now engaged in the manufacture of munitions. These scenes will be used in the later episodes of "The Eagle's Eye," a Foursquare serial, now running in many theaters.

King Baggott is an old friend of Jack Farren of the Victoria theater, and when Jack learned of his coming to Rochester he postponed a business trip to New York City to spend the few days with his old pal.

"In making the trips around the town it was a source of considerable wonder to me," said Mr. Farren, "to see the large number of people in all walks of life who recognized Mr. Baggot. Workers in the large factories, as well as the downtown business men, had seen Mr. Baggot on the screen so frequently that they felt as if they were personally acquainted."

In the lobby of the Victoria theater Wednesday afternoon the number of "fans" who stopped to shake hands with the star at one time completely blocked the passageway.

Wednesday evening Mr. Baggot, Mr. Farren and party occupied a box at Fay's theater as the guest of the general manager, William B. McCallum. At Fay's the evening was a repetition of the afternoon, and people all over the theater looked toward the box occupied by King Baggot and waved their greeting.

Mr. Baggot is enthusiastic over the possibility for picture making in Rochester, and he left town with his mind set on urging his producers to establish headquarters in this city when work is begun on his next big feature.

COLE NOW WITH MAYTRIX.

Henry Cole, the secretary of the Bronx Exhibitors' League, is now connected with the Maytrix Photo Plays, Inc., as sales manager of Northern New Jersey.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE

Temporary Injunction Is Granted Allied

President Armstrong, of Local 110, Announces the Policy of Its Officials and Members.

ON Friday, March 29, a temporary writ of injunction was granted by the Circuit Court to the Allied Amusement Association, of Chicago, against officials of Local 110, I. A. T. S. E. The writ is comprehensive in its restraining powers, with the provision that an application may be made at any time to dissolve the injunction on twenty-four hours' notice.

On March 26 the following postal card, in printed form, was received by the owners and managers of Chicago theaters from Joseph P. Armstrong, president Local 110, I. A. T. S. E.:

That you may not be misinformed about the policy of our Scientific Projection engineers, Local 110, I. A. T. S. E., we hereby declare:

We are satisfied with the scale of wages and do not ask any increase in accordance with contract for five years.

We do not call strikes for so-called affiliated bodies who say they are allied with us, but are not.

We do not ask the exhibitor to pay our operators for running slides and advertising films, but expect the commercial solicitor to pay our operators, not you.

We do not wish you to admit Mr. Shafrank or any other solicitor for advertising into our booths unless you so desire. The National Advertising Film Company has desk room in our office only and has no right to use our officers' names to enforce anything.

We desire to co-operate with the Allied Amusement Association on any matter they desire to take up with us.

No threats or acts of violence will be permitted by this union by any of its members.

All Government slides must be run free by our operators. "Four-Minute men" and National Council of Defense slides must be run gratis.

Nobody has authority to take or place slides in your theater without your consent.

Theaters not running advertising slides or films are not forced by this local union to change their policy.

Operators of this union must work in harmony with the managers of theaters. If not, they can be removed at the request of the managers by complaint to this office.

All films manufactured by any exchange must be run by our operators free, at the request of the manager. All exchanges desiring our co-operation to further their interests, we heartily welcome same. Please call up Harrison 3332 when you consider it necessary and we shall be glad to receive any complaint on film damage, etc. Your interests are our interests. Let us think to further our interests.

At a meeting of the Allied Amusement Association held Friday, March 29, in the Masonic Temple, about 200 were present. Quite a number of exhibitors were also added to the membership at this meeting.

Telegrams from producers throughout the country, offering their hearty co-operation, financial and otherwise, were read.

The association resolved to arrange for a conference in the near future with Local 110, to outline to the officials and members what can and what must not be done with regard to janitors, ushers and cashiers, and to take up other abuses with which they have been charged.

It was also recommended that the Allied Amusement Association appoint an employment committee to be on the lookout for unemployed operators and to see that they are furnished position in theaters in case of trouble that may arise with Local 110.

A meeting of the Committee on Defense of the Allied Amusement Association was held Wednesday afternoon, April 3. It developed from reports received from exhibitors and exchangemen that a marked recession had been made on the part of the officials of Local 110, who have expressed the desire by letter to meet with the Association's defense committee and discuss the existing differences.

The regular monthly meeting of Chicago Local, M. P. E. L. of A., was held Friday afternoon, in the Masonic Temple, particulars of which will appear in my next letter.

Screen's Big Trio On to Washington.

Mary Pickford, Charley Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks came breezing into the city from Los Angeles, Thursday forenoon, April 4. The Northwestern station was crowded with an eager host of admirers and sightseers, and much ado was made over the members of the big trio. They finally succeeded in getting to their automobiles and were driven to the Blackstone.

They left for Washington in the forenoon and will be in readiness to begin work on the "Big Drive" Saturday, April 6. It is understod that after their stay in Washington Mary Pickford will travel through the west, Charley Chaplin through the south and Doug. Fairbanks through the east in support of the Third Liberty Loan, while the drive lasts.

Premiere of "Hearts of the World" to Be Given at Olympic.

David W. Griffith passed through the city Sunday, March 31, on his way to New York to attend the opening of "Hearts of the World," at the Forty-fourth Street theater, April 4. From all information obtainable it is pretty well settled that the Elliott, Comstock and Gest theatrical organization will have charge of the big Griffith picture in the United States. Nat Royster, manager of the La Salle, Elliot, Comstock & Gest's Chicago house, has announced that the first showing of the Griffith picture in Chicago will be given at the Olympic theater, Sunday, April 21.

Carleton, Inc., to Make Four Features Yearly.

John T. Carleton, secretary and general manager of Carleton, Inc., and Ed Lamson, sales manager of that organization, paid a pleasant call at the Chicago office Tuesday, April 2. They arrived in the city Sunday, March 31, from Los Angeles and returned the following Wednesday.

Mr. Carleton informed me that the company is now working on its first production in the Willis & Inglis studio, Los Angeles. This will be a spectacular feature of six-reel length. Four features will be made during the year, the policy being to limit the length according to the interest sustained by the story. The output will be exploited by the company itself, on its own plan, direct to the exhibitor.

Carleton, Inc., was formed January 10 this year, and is a California concern. Lloyd B. Carleton, brother of John T., is president, and all productions are made under his personal direction. He was with Charles Frohman from the beginning of Maude Adams' career as a star. He started as assistant stage manager of one of the productions in which she starred, and when he left the Frohman forces he was the stage manager of "Peter Pan."

Mr. Carleton then went to Australia, having been engaged specially by J. C. Williamson, the Charles Frohman of that country, to stage "Peter Pan" with a local cast. That was in 1909, and the show opened in Sydney. On his return to the United States Mr. Carleton became stage director for the George Fawcett Company's Baltimore stock company, and was afterward stage director for the Hunter Bradford Company in Hartford.

After this engagement Lloyd B. Carleton made his first essay in moving pictures, being engaged as director for Lubin, with whom he remained for four years. He produced the first five-reel picture released by the General Film Company, "The Sunken Village, or From Fire to Fortune." This picture proved popular, and is so to this day, having been shown out in Hollywood during the fall of last year.

Mr. Carleton's next engagement was with the Selig company in Los Angeles, where he directed several pictures, in which Bessie Eyton appeared as star. He next directed Hobart Bosworth for Universal, and remained with that company for over a year.

Mr. Lamson is an old-time Chicagoan. He was manager of Bill Swanson's well-known exchange in Chicago for several years about ten or eleven years ago. He was afterward connected with the Chicago Film Exchange, and later was a member of the Selig company's sales department for a time. Mr. Lamson has been on the coast for about four years in the film business.

L. B. Goulden Joins the Colors.

Louis B. Goulden, sales manager of the Celebrated Players' Film Corporation, this city, left for Camp Custer Monday, April 1, to join the colors. He has been connected with the industry since the early days, when he operated theaters in Milwaukee, Jefferson, South Bend and South Milwaukee. Afterward Mr. Goulden was president and general manager of the Federal Feature Film Supply Corporation and of the Northern Feature Film Company, both of Chicago. The first mentioned company had offices in Chicago and Milwaukee. The Goulden Film Corporation was organized by him in 1915, and he built the studios of that concern on Edison avenue, Milwaukee. Since then he has disposed of these interests.

Rockwell Barnes Off for Camp Grant.

Rockwell Barnes, in charge of the art and animated cartoon department of the Rothacker Company, left March 31 to Join Uncle Sam's training forces at Camp Grant, Rockford. His numerous friends will follow his army career with deep interest. I. Ticktin has succeeded Mr. Barnes as head of the department mentioned.

"The Kaiser" Has Big Second Week's Run.

"The Kaiser" pleased the patrons of Alfred Hamburger's Ziegfeld theater so well during its first week that it was given a second week's run, and has been showing to capacity business. This is a Jewel production, in which Rupert Julian appears as the Emperor of Germany and King of Prussia. Admissions have been 25 and 50 cents.

Cohen and Pettijohn May Join Forces

Organizations Represented by the Two Are Said to Be Founded on Identical Lines.

THE plans of the Exhibitors' Booking Syndicate of Greater New York, recently incorporated at Albany, are said to be almost identical with those of the Producers and Exhibitors Affiliated, and it would not be surprising if the concern pooled its issues with the latter organization, nothwithstanding it may maintain separate offices. The latest report is that the exhibitors' leagues of Buffalo, Utica and the tri-cities will join forces with this booking syndicate. They distinctly say that their policy is not to interfere with the present or established producers, or in any way discourage them. They will rather encourage them and be glad to do with them according to the syndicate's from producers to exhibitors' methods.

The officers of the syndicate are Sydney S. Cohen, president, president of the Exhibitors' League of New York State; Charles L. O'Reilly, first vice-president; John J. Wittmann, president of the Bronx League, secretary, and Rudolph Sanders, president of the Brooklyn League, treasurer. The directors are Sydney S. Cohen, Charles L. O'Reilly, John Manheimer, Isador Edelstein, Rudolph Sanders, John Wittmann and Charles Stearn. The offices are at 729 Seventh avenue, New York City.

Syndicate Books Two Rapf Productions.

Harry Rapf, on April 5, closed an important deal with the Exhibitors' Booking Syndicate of Greater New York, whereby the latter will handle in this territory the exclusive release of "The Struggle Everlasting," with Florence Reed as star, to be immediately followed by Robert Warwick's last production, "The Accidental Honeymoon."

The booking of these two features, each to play at least 225 days in the houses booked under this syndicate plan, marks the first step taken by the newly formed organization.

Mr. Rapf is naturally pleased by the choice of his pictures to open the organization's campaign, and is backing up his pictures with a publicity and advertising service which he is carrying right up to the exhibitor. For the exploitation of "The Struggle Everlasting" he has issued a twelve-page service book intended to give the exhibitor every conceivable angle from which this production may be profitably advertised.

"The Accidental Honeymoon" offers still greater opportunities, so a sixteen-page book is being prepared. Robert Warwick, its star, is now in the United States service in France, commissioned a captain, stationed in the Intelligence bureau under Colonel Nolan, on General Pershing's staff. Captain Warwick cabled a stirring appeal in behalf of the Third Liberty Loan, which is not only added to the last reel of "The Accidental Honeymoon," but its presence there is heralded in advance with a special slide.

TWO AMERICAN FILM MEN JOIN SERVICE.

The American Film Company has contributed two more of its studio staff to the service of Uncle Sam in the persons of Sheridan Hall and Frederick Smith. Mr. Hall was recently made assistant to Director Edward Sloman; while Mr. Smith has been rapidly coming to the front as a juvenile heavy. Mr. Hall has been assigned to the Aviation Division at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas, while Mr. Smith joins the 309th Engineers at Camp Freemont, California.

How It Is Done at the Strand

A Discussion of Methods Which Have Actually Been Worked Out Successfully.

By Harold Edel, Managing Director.

SEVERAL years ago a friend of mine came to me in a downhearted manner and complained that the world was against him. "No one ever has a kind word for me, nor even a smile," said he, adding "why is it?" After one look at him I knew the reason. Leading him up to a mirror I told him to look and he would plainly see why no one smiled. The answer was plainly written in his own reflection. His face, his features and his entire attitude bespoke of gloom.

And so it is with some exhibitors. They worry about a bad day, their opposition, the weather, instead of looking into the mirror to see the reflection of their own intimate organization. Is your theater a house of entertainment? Is the general reflection of your house, your stage, your ushers, your ticket-taker and yourself such as would spread happiness or gloom? Do you yourself wear a genial smile to your organization, or do you scowl at them to impress upon them the insignificance of their position?

The first way to make your theater and its atmosphere congenial is to appear that way yourself to those who are responsible for the general impression which your patron gets while in your house. The appearance and attitude of every person connected with the theater is merely a reflection of your own personality. A happy organization backed by the proper amount of brains is the most successful. Don't always pick on those under your direction. If they are inefficient, release them. If they are efficient, encourage them. Don't be afraid that it will lower your dignity to acknowledge that a thing is well done if such is the case. Express your appreciation in so many words. It will encourage further thought and creation. It will bring about a loyalty that is at all times desirable. Place as much responsibility upon your associates as they can possibly stand. This makes them appreciate the fact that they do mean something to the success of the theater.

One of the best ways of favorably "getting under the skin" of a patron is by greeting him or her by mentioning the name. "How do you do, Mr. Smith, Mrs. Jones, Miss Brown," or whatever the name may be. No matter how famous or how unknown, every person likes to feel that he or she is recognized. There is a little feeling of vanity in all of us, which is tickled upon being so greeted, whether it is by the butcher, the baker or the candlestick maker. On entering a restaurant the patron is usually greeted thus by the head waiter who makes a study of names and faces. The manager or house manager of a theater should as much as possible follow his example. When the prominent merchant of the town enters your theater let him know that he is immediately identified.

It is a good idea to encourage your ushers in this direction. When a person whose face is known to the usher, whether he is the corner grocer or the president of the local railroad, enters, have the usher conduct him to his seat with a "Are these satisfactory, Mr. Blank?" or some other similar question. This is a little idea which I have encouraged among Strand employees and which immediately creates a better feeling of good fellowship, as it were, between the patron and the theater.

SAM MORRIS CALLED TO HEADQUARTERS.

Sam E. Morris, Select Pictures' east central general manager, spent several days at Select headquarters in New York, from about April 6 to 9. Mr. Morris, who is manager of Select's Cleveland branch and has supervision over the Cincinnati and Detroit exchanges as well, has been making such an excellent showing in the field that Presidnet Lewis J. Selznick and General Manager Arthur S. Kane want him to spend several days at the home office for the purpose of giving the other exchanges the benefit of any helpful methods which he may be applying to the sale of Select Pictures in his large and important territory.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. HARLEMAN

Balboa Studio Turned Over to Creditors

Horkheimer Brothers Assign Long Beach Plant to Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade for Liquidation.

ON Monday, March 25, H. M. and E. D. Horkheimer, owners and proprietors of the Balboa Studios in Long Beach, California, one of the largest and best known independent producing concerns in the business, voluntarily turned over their plant to the Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade for liquidation.

It is stated that the Balboa studios have been in financial troubles for a considerable time, but were able to pull through with the assistance of the local banks. Three banks in Long Beach are the largest creditors, and considerable sums are also due employees for back salaries.

By an agreement between the creditors of the Balboa studios and Messrs. Horkheimer the plant will be kept in operation under the direction of the Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade and nine trustees. Three trustees will represent the workers, three the manufacturers and three the banks. Outstanding claims amount to about $200,000, of which $50,000 is due in wages and salaries.

H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the Balboa Amusement Producing Company, has made the following statement:

"The attachment of the Balboa studio on Monday by the Los Angeles Wholesalers' Board of Trade was made at my suggestion and primarily in the interest of all the studios' creditors. It is a well known fact that the film market, from a sales standpoint, has been upset for some time, as a direct result of which larger producers than Balboa have been pinched and forced to retrench.

"I have been looking for a favorable turn in the market any day; but when it failed to materialize, I immediately took the matter up with the three Long Beach banks, which are our largest creditors, and after going over the situation thoroughly I suggested the attachment, which was made, in order to hold the assets together for the benefit of all the creditors. It was only delayed pending the return of my brother, E. D. Horkheimer, who is secretary and treasurer of the Balboa Company.

"Under the circumstances, there were just two courses open to us—bankruptcy or an assignment. The former course would have been the easiest, all things considered, as it would have enabled me to get cleared of all obligations, in a reasonable length of time. But I am not that sort of man and preferred to put my shoulder to the wheel and help save the company, under an assignment, to the end that every creditor will get his money.

"On March 26, at a called meeting of all the creditors, which was attended by those having labor and general claims and presided over by Will Cook, cashier of the National Bank of Long Beach, we made a voluntary assignment of the plant to F. C. Delano, secretary of the Wholesalers' Board of Trade. This organization is now lining up all the creditors. It will operate the studio, in co-operation with a creditors' committee representing the working crew, the banks and general creditors.

"I expect to leave for New York in a few days, where I hope to sell a number of finished photoplay productions which we have on hand. I understand conditions are improving, as they must with the passing of winter and advent of spring. The Balboa Company is far from insolvent; our assets are many times our liabilities. I started this enterprise in May, 1913, with $7,000, and have built it up to almost a half-million dollar concern in less than five years. No stock was ever sold, as it is owned wholly by myself and brother. Without making any rash promises, I think I am safe in saying that every claim against the Balboa Company will be paid dollar for dollar and that we will be doing business many years hence and bigger than ever."

Three companies have lately been working at the Balboa studios, the Kathleen Clifford company, under the direction of Howard Mitchell; the Anita King company under the direction of Bert Enseminger, and the Mona Lisa company. The Kathleen Clifford and the Anita King company finished their productions before the assignment of the studio, but the Mona Lisa picture is not as yet completed, and this company will be working until the picture is finished.

It is probable that the studio will be leased to some outside concern, and it is stated that the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation is considering this plant. The Roscoe Arbuckle company, which is at present leasing space, will remain. H. O. Stechan, assistant to the president and general manager, stated it is not probable that Messrs. Horkheimer will take up production again until the affairs of the company have been settled.

Dustin Farnum Departs for Arizona

Star and Company of Fifty People to Commence Production of "The Light of the Western Stars."

ON Saturday, March 31, Dustin Farnum, Harry Sherman and a company of players departed from Los Angeles in a special train for Tucson, Arizona, where they will commence work on Zane Grey's novel, "The Light of the Western Stars."

The company numbers over fifty people. Among those who will make the trip are Mr. Sherman, president of the company; Miss Winifred Kingston, leading woman; Charles Swickard, director; Roy Clements, who wrote the scenario; George Fields, Virginia Eames, Bert Appling, Frank Clark, Joseph Swickard and Captain Stewart, as well as a corps of assistant directors and technical men.

Harry Sherman

The film version of "The Light of the Western Stars" will be made in eight reels, and what is considered a new departure in motion picture production is that the producer intends to have the scenario follow the incidents in the book without deviation from the dramatic situations as delineated by Mr. Grey.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Kibbey, the president of the La Osa Ranch Corporation, who is a great admirer of Dustin Farnum, the picture will be made upon the exact locations as sketched in the novel. Mr. Kibbey has placed forty thousand head of cattle, several hundred cowboys and Mexicans, and their horses at the disposal of the company.

It is said that the role of Gene Stewart is even better suited to Dustin Farnum than the character of "The Virginian," which he made famous on the legitimate stage; and in the part of Majesty Hammond, Winifred Kingston has wonderful opportunities for the sympathetic type of acting in which she excels.

Following the completion of "The Light of the Western Stars," Mr. Farnum and his company will go to Salt Lake to begin the production of one of Jackson Gregory's widely read stories, "The Wolf Breed."

William Farnum Also Leaves for Arizona.

Like his brother Dustin, William Farnum, the Fox star, is appearing in a Western feature production and by the same author, Zane Grey. Farnum, his director, Frank Lloyd, and their entire company of players will soon leave for the Grand Canyon of Arizona, where scenes will be taken for two of Zane Grey's latest novels, "Riders of the Purple Sage" and "The Rainbow Trail."

Before going to Arizona, Mr. Farnum will conclude a whirlwind tour throughout California in behalf of the Liberty Loan, the chief feature of which will be an address from the steps of the State Capitol at Sacramento, where he will be the guest of Governor Stephens. Frequent stops along the route will be made.

In addition to the personal tour, Farnum's appeal will be made by the medium of a striking film on which he and Director Lloyd have been engaged for weeks. One hundred and twenty prints of the film have been accepted by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo for use in the campaign, and will be distributed by the twelve Federal Reserve State Committees in various parts of the United States.

Both the expenses of the trip and of production of the film have been entirely met by Mr. Farnum.

Clara Kimball Young Arrives.

Accompanied by her producing staff and her father and mother, Clara Kimball Young arrived in Los Angeles Thursday, March 28, preparatory to producing several pictures at the Famous Players-Lasky studio in Hollywood and on specially leased locations near that district of Los Angeles.

Included in the staff of the noted screen star are Harry L. Gerson, her business manager; Robert G. Vignola, her director, and his assistant, William J. Physioc; Jack Voshnell, technical director; Teddy Butcher, studio manager; Milton Sills, leading man; Norman Selby ("Kid" McCoy), Arthur Edeson and others.

The first picture to be produced with Miss Young in the star role will be Cynthia Stockley's "The Claw," to be followed by "The Savage Woman," by Francois Curel.

Miss Young and her company will remain in Los Angeles for several months.

Theda Bara Goes to the Desert.

One of the most picturesque scenes ever filmed for a photodrama was taken by Director J. Gordon Edwards, of the Fox studios, who recently brought his star and a company of more than 200 to an oasis situated in the Yuma desert, 150 miles from Los Angeles.

Palm Canyon, situated in the cleft of the lofty San Jacinto mountains, was the location chosen for the scene where "Salome," the Scriptural siren, for the first time beholds John the Baptist.

Otis Turner Dies.

Otis Turner, dean of motion picture directors, died at his home, 1612 Curson avenue, Hollywood, on Thursday, March 28, at the age of fifty-five years.

Before his advent in the motion picture field Otis Turner held a conspicuous position on the legitimate stage. He began his theatrical career at the age of eighteen and finally became a stage director of national repute, serving under Henry W. Savage, Charles Frohman, and other producers. Several of the more celebrated productions of recent times stand to the credit of Turner. Among these are "The College Widow" and "The Wizard of Oz." About eleven years ago Mr. Turner entered the motion picture field. He was for a long time director with Selig, and the best known of his productions is "The Two Orphans." After leaving Selig, Turner accepted an engagement with Universal and then following his two years of work at that studio he joined the Fox Film Company and directed many pictures featuring George Walsh, Gladys Brockwell and others. Mr. Turner recently retired from directing and devoted his time to his decorating business in Hollywood. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Estelle Dake Turner.

Hippodrome Circuit Acquires Majestic.

A theatrical deal of importance was announced on Tuesday, March 26, when Adolph Ramish, president, Sam Harris and Irving C. Ackerman, owners of the Hippodrome circuit of theaters, leased the Majestic theater building in its entirety from the Hamburger Company for a period of fifty years.

In the new lease it is stipulated the lessees are to have permission to tear the entire inside of the theater out, remove gallery, stage and balcony and remodel the whole auditorium at an expense of nearly $200,000. Mr. Ramish, in discussing the plans, said that the architect had completed plans whereby the entire second and third floors of the house will be torn out and the lower floor extended on an incline, with the addition of one balcony, giving a seating capacity of about eighteen hundred. It is expected the edifice will be opened to the public early in August.

High-class vaudeville and feature photoplay productions will constitute the bill. The space now occupied for offices and stores will be utilized for lobby and promenades, ladies' rest rooms and a nursery for babies. The lobby will be one of the features of the city's theatrical attractions.

Production Activities at Universal City.

At Universal City Dorothy Phillips has started on a new society drama under the direction of Allen Holubar. William Stowell, who has been seen with Miss Phillips in numerous productions, will be her leading man. The photoplay is a filmization of a magazine story entitled "Discipline and Genevra."

Rupert Julian has started production on a detective drama, in which he will star with Ruth Clifford.

Ella Hall will soon start work under the direction of Harry Pollard.

Mary MacLaren's picture under the direction of Ida May Park is nearing completion. "A Man's World" is the working title. Kenneth Harlan plays the leading male part.

Griffith Leaves for New York.

D. W. Griffith departed for New York on March 29 to launch the premiere of "Hearts of the World." The Lyric theater has been leased and the opening date set for April 4. Albert Grey, general business representative for Griffith; Carli Elinor, musical dirctor, and members of the publicity staff accompanied Mr. Griffith on his trip.

Hart to Tour for Liberty Loan.

Arrayed in his famous "two-gun-man" costume, William S. Hart will make a tour of the western states in the interest of the third Liberty Loan campaign at the request of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo.

Mr. Hart will start on April 12 at San Diego. On April 13 he will be in Los Angeles; April 15, Salt Lake; April 18, Spokane; April 19, Seattle; April 20, Tacoma; April 22, Portland; April 24, Oakland; April 25, San Francisco.

Lynch Goes to Universal City.

P. J. Lynch, for some time script editor at the American studios in Santa Barbara, is now holding down the editor's desk at the reopened Universal studios.

Board Puts Arbuckle in Class 5.

"Fatty" Arbuckle has been placed in Class 5 by a Los Angeles draft board. Cause—overweight. The jovial comedian was combating the elements in the wilds of San Gabriel Canyon in an effort to complete "Moonshine," his latest Paramount-Arbuckle comedy, when his order to report for re-examination appeared. As Fatty was marooned by the flood waters in the canyon he kept the telephone wires busy until he had secured an extension of time.

Griffith to Make War Picture for Artcraft.

Upon his return from New York D. W. Griffith will at once begin production of his second war picture, which is to be made for the Artcraft Pictures Corporation. In this picture will appear a number of world-famed figures, including Queen Alexandra of England and David Lloyd George. The story will have as its central theme an international love story, with Lillian Gish, Robert Harron and George Fawcett playing the principal roles. The scenes will be laid in England, France and this country, and many of the battle scenes taken by Mr. Griffith in France will be shown.

Kehrlin Puts on Children's Matinees.

Emil Kehrlin, Jr., of the Kinema theater, has just completed arrangements for special children's matinees to be given every Saturday morning, beginning April 6. He plans to show the most cheery and appealing Mary Pickford and Marguerite Clark films and will search the repertoire of children's plays to find something which will appeal to the younger idea. A feature of the matinees will be the free admission of Boy Scouts in uniform. Some educational films will be shown, with illustrations of bird and plant lift especially. Children and their parents and guardians will be admited for the same fee.

Schenck Returns to New York.

Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Comique Film Corporation, which produces Arbuckle comedies, and of the Norma Talmadge Film Corporation, and his wife, Miss Norma Talmadge, have returned to New York after a flying visit.

Los Angeles Film Brevities.

A tract of fifty acres of land has been secured by the Diando

Film Corporation for the settings and production of the Pathe serial, "The Wolf-Faced Man." The land lies about one mile beyond the studio in Glendale, on Verdugo Road, and was selected because the ruggedness of the surroundings synchronized with the trend of the story.

* * *

Edward C. Saunders, well-known attache of the Balboa studio and brother of Jackie Saunders, recently passed his physical examination for the army, and plans to go in the photographic service of the air division upon the arrival of his assignment orders from the War Department.

* * *

The State Incorporating Commissioner has issued a permit for the disposal of 35,000 shares of stock at $1 a share of the San Bernardino Producing Corporation, whose total capital is $75,000. The company proposes to build a permanent motion picture studio in that city.

* * *

J. D. Hampton, formerly business manager at the Ince studio, has become associated with Paralta in the same capacity.

* * *

William H. Swanson is in Los Angeles looking over the theater situation. He emphatically stated he intended to keep away from the producing game for some time to come.

Madge Evans, Stamp Booster

HERE is probably the most unique method of boosting the sales of War Savings Stamps yet devised. The plan was originated and put into execution by little Madge Evans, the nine-year-old star in World Pictures, whose next appearance on the screen will be in "Vengeance," released May 20, and whose popularity brings to her each week from thirty to fifty requests for autographed photographs.

Madge Evans

Of course, as it is good advertising and publicity to send out photographs to people who are enough interested to write in for them, Madge's mother has been complying with these requests for photos when twenty-five cents was inclosed to pay for the cost of the photo and the postage.

But now Madge, because of her great interest in the sale of War Savings Stamps, has evolved a new scheme. She purchases a War Savings Stamp with each twenty-five cents sent her for her photo and returns to the party sending the money this stamp neatly pasted on a card. And an autographed photo goes with it. In this way Madge has started hundreds of persons saving War Savings Stamps.

SUTHERLAND SUPPORTING VIRGINIA PEARSON.

Victor Sutherland has been engaged to portray the leading male character in William Fox's "A Daughter of France." Like Miss Pearson, who has the leading role, Mr. Sutherland is a native of Kentucky. He was born in Paducah, while Miss Pearson comes from Louisville. When he was only nineteen Mr. Sutherland played for twenty-five weeks as the man with the double personality in "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Mr. Sutherland has been in photodrama for five years, and will be recalled for his excellent work opposite Miss Pearson in "Daredevil Kate," one of her greatest successes.

BROOKS JOINS PATHE SALES DEPARTMENT.

Edgar O. Brooks, formerly general sales manager of the Mutual Film Corporation, has joined the Pathe sales department at the home office. Mr. Brooks is the man who put over the $2,000,000 sales campaign on Mutual-Chaplins, who handled Mutual serials during his connection with that firm, who had much to do with the inauguration of the original star series booking plan in 1915.

Wertz Puts Ban on German Music

United States District Attorney in Northern Ohio Finds Too Many Pro-German Musicians.

A STATEMENT putting a ban on German music in theaters, cafes, cabarets or any other place has been issued by United States District Attorney Wertz, having charge of the northern Ohio district. This followed the arrest of three musicians who were accused of refusing to play patriotic American airs and of playing German music.

Mr. Wertz went to Toledo personally to investigate the case. The men arrested were Henry Weisgraber, Hungarian, orchstra leader; Otto Fechner, German, violinist, and Alfred Otto Buhren, German, flute player of the orchestra in the Princess theater, a photoplay house.

Wertz told the trio their acts had been investigated by the Department of Justice and it had decided to put them under $1,500 bond each for the period of the war. Otherwise, he told them, they would be interned. All the musicians furnished bond and Wertz warned them that any repetition of their German musical propaganda would be followed by internment. Weisgraber, according to Wertz, recently stopped a patriotic piece being played by another member of the orchestra, saying "it hurt his ears." Wertz said also that the trio, upon being forced by the theater management to play "The Star Spangled Banner," played it in ragtime.

"I am going to put a stop to all pro-German music played with malicious intent in theaters and in other public places," Wertz declared.

C. C. Whelan, Kleine Manager

C. C. WHELAN was appointed manager of the Chicago branch office of the George Kleine System to succeed William H. Jenner, Friday, March 15. Mr. Whelan has been on the city sales force of this system for about a year and a half and he has made an enviable record during that time.

I have known Mr. Whelan for nearly eight years, when he first opened the Washington theater, at Forty-third street and Cottage avenue. When he purchased that house in January, 1909, it was known as one of the "juiciest lemons" in Chicago. He sold out in 1915, after cleaning up a tidy profit.

C. C. Whelan.

Mr. Whelan is intimately acquainted with most of the exhibitors in Chicago and can call nearly every one of them by his first name. He was always to the front in every movement that benefited the exhibitors and was one of the organizers of the first Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Illinois, which took place at a round table in the old time Stillson's Cafe. That historic place is now part of the site of the New Morrison Hotel. That was in the summer of 1909, and others present on the occasion were Joseph Hopp, Frank J. Flaherty, George Henry, F. O. Neilsen and Julius Alcock. Exchangemen at the time were included in the organization.

It can readily be seen that Mr. Whelan can take the interests of each individual exhibitor to heart in the matter of bookings, and that he knows the conditions of nearly every theater in the city and adjoining territory.

Mr. Whelan is a native of California, and was a vaudeville actor in San Francisco for several years. He came east and filled engagements all over the country, finally settling in Chicago, in 1908.

Mr. Whelan has received numerous congratulations from exhibitors and other friends in the business in the city on his appointment by George Kleine. J. S. McQ.

Magner Talks on Conditions in Orient

San Francisco Man Says Japan in Time Will be Good Picture Market for American Producers

NAT A. MAGNER, a well known film man of San Francisco, returned to that city in March from a six months' tour of the Orient, where he succeeded in placing a number of Selig productions and in making connections which have induced him to launch out in the importing and exporting business. Since returning home he has opened offices in the Pacific Building and is in the market for film productions of the character demanded in the Far East. He left for the Orient following a serious operation, but is now in better health than for many years.

During the six months that this film man was away from San Francisco he covered Japan, China and the Philippine Islands in a very thorough manner and devoted much time to a study of business conditions and the possibilities of that field as a market for film. His trip through Japan included visits to the six largest cities, while in China he visited Shanghai, Tientsin, Pekin, Hongkong, Canton, Nankin, and some of the smaller places. Business in the Philippine Islands centers largely at Manila, although there are some other cities that are making a good growth, and several of these were visited.

Nat A. Magner.

"American film manufacturers, as a rule, have but little idea of the moving picture business as it is conducted in the Orient," said Mr. Magner, "as much of their information is secured from travelers who have no definite knowledge of the real conditions prevailing there. When one comes from the Far East a film man would naturally ask how the business was there and the average traveler would answer 'Great,' for in some places a prosperous showing is made. But business is exceedingly spasmodic there and native customs and the scarcity of money are serious obstacles to overcome.

"Any manufacturer or distributor who would attempt to start a film exchange in the Orient and really cover and develop the field, would require an immense capital. Only a certain line of subjects is wanted, and the scarcity of theaters, their long distance apart and local conditions prevent the showing of films that one might believe would be a success there. More money has been lost in the film business in the Orient than has been made, largely because of the importation of junk film and features that could not be used. Japan is a country that in time will be a good film market and a source of revenue to American producers. The people there are more enlightened than those of the other countries of the Far East, are becoming more prosperous and more capital is available for the building of moving picture theaters. At the present time Japan is a hard country in which to get a start. Many salesmen have gone there, but most of them have met with poor success, since they have asked high prices for their goods and the Japanese firms discourage the use of high priced films.

Manufacturers Partly Responsible for Pirating.

"The entire Orient has long been a hive for film pirates and in this case the manufacturer is at fault. If the latter would sell goods through a reliable agency which reaches the trade in a proper manner he could sell much more than has been the rule and make a profit and take no chances of having his films pirated. I saw many cases while away that led me to this conclusion, having been surprised to see 'The Barrier,' 'Mormon Maid' and 'The Lust of the Ages' marketed in this manner. Most of the films unlawfully used in this manner come through England and Australia. Chaplin Mutuals are being shown without proper rights throughout the Orient, and the Mutual has retained counsel in an effort to have the practice stopped. The opinion there is that the Mutual will be out a counsel fee and will get no protection.

"In the leading cities of Japan the theaters are very close to each other. In Yokohama there is a theater street where there are between thirty and forty places of amusement, mostly moving picture houses. Prices of admission range from ten sen to one yen fifty, or from 5 cents to 75 cents gold. All pictures are presented with a lecturer and this person is very frequently more the idol of the populace than the star and is paid a good salary. Very little American advertising paper is used, this being chiefly for English-speaking residents. Two Japanese firms control the bookings of most of the moving picture theaters in this country and of late has come a demand for films of Japanese make, an ideal program being considered one with half American and half Japanese films. Some American pictures have met with considerable success in Japan, the honors probably going to 'Joan the Woman.'

"To make a success of showing pictures in the Orient films must be selected that appeal to the natives. The white population is exceedingly limited, there being but about 5,000 white residents in Japan, 30,000 in China and 8,000 in the Philippine Islands. Not only that, the percentage of picturegoing persons among the white population is small. Films of a sensational character are in demand and serials are especially wanted. It is often said by those who visit the Orient that there is a scarcity of films there. To a certain degree this is true, but it is simply because it is impossible for distributors or exhibitors to pay the prices that are demanded by manufacturers. The Orient, with its millions and millions of population, does not support as many moving picture houses as some of our American cities. In all of China there are but about sixty theaters, and in this list there are only four first-class houses. The Philippine Islands have about forty, Japan about six hundred.

Low Price on New Film Will End Pirating.

"Many of the films imported into the Orient are second-hand copies, and buyers there expect to get these in good condition at from two to four cents a foot. Almost one-half of the films shown there have been brought in surreptitiously from other countries. It will be possible for manufacturers to do considerable business, however, and bring the pirating evil to an end, if they will make a price of between six and eight cents a foot on new prints. Only in three or four theaters can exhibitors afford to pay more than $250 for a four-day run.

"It is almost impossible to do business with film men in any of the countries of the Far East without a review of the picture, and then an immediate delivery is demanded. Exhibitors keep very well posted and the Moving Picture World is to be found in almost every theater. The mechanical equipment of most of these houses is wretched, however, many of the machines being of old makes for which parts are no longer available. Many have old German machines, particularly in Japan. In the entire Orient there is not to exceed ten projection machines of a late type. The Empire Theater in Tientsin is the best house in the three countries I visited, but the Empire at Manila is also a good house and is making a success featuring Paramount pictures. Efforts are being made to work up a matinee business at Manila, but it is uphill work, while in China matinees are out of the question.

"The Pathe company is well established in the Orient, having offices at Shanghai, Hongkong and Manila. The Pathe serials have created a good demand for the release of this concern. The Universal has offices in Japan, Manila, Java and India and is commencing to do a good business.

"Censorship is strict throughout this field and pictures displaying nudity are especially frowned upon. To do business in those countries one must understand what will be appreciated by the natives and be prepared to offer it at a reasonable figure."

Mr. Magner made a brief stop at Honolulu on his return and found conditions in the Islands good, with money plentiful. The Consolidated Amusement Company, which controls many of the houses there, is reconstructing a number of these.

How England Helps Maimed Soldiers

Motion Picture Industry Alone Has Taught Hundreds of Men Operator's Trade— Captain Kimberley Honored

AMERICA has the reputation of knowing how to take care of its heroes, and one has only to witness the demonstrations of affection with which the veterans of the Civil War are greeted on any and every occasion to realize that this reputation is the result of no idle rumor.

At the present moment America is creating armies as fast as it is possible to create them, and is sending them overseas to take their part in the terrible conflict which has been raging in Europe since August, 1914. No one can say how long the war is going to last. No one can say how many American soldiers are destined to sleep their last sleep in the soil of Flanders, any more than one can estimate the number of Americans who will return to their native land minus a limb or broken in health to such an extent that they are unable to resume their former occupations in civil life.

Captain Paul Kimberley.

Now the question of finding suitable employment for men who return home in the condition mentioned in the last paragraph is not an easy one, and as our American friends will undoubtedly be confronted with the problem in the near future—unless the unexpected happens and peace is declared—the writer is conceited enough to think "the trade" in America will be interested to hear what "the trade" in England is doing in the matter.

The honor of "starting the ball rolling" in England as far the the cinema industry is concerned belongs to Captain Paul Kimberley, who controls the European interests of the Thanhouser Film Corporation. In September, 1916, he started the Cinematograph Training and Employment Bureau for disabled Sailors and Soldiers at his business premises in Wardour street, and with him on the first committee formed were Messrs. Low Warren, Cabourne and Fredman (representing the English trade press) and J. Frank Brockliss.

The idea was to properly train disabled men as cinematograph operators to meet an increasing demand from the trade for greater efficiency in the matter of projection. Arrangements were made to take selected disabled men immediately they were discharged from the Army, and put them through a thorough practical and theoretical course of instruction which would last on an average from twelve to fourteen weeks. At the end of this period employment was found for the men at good salaries on the understanding that their wages would be increased as they became more proficient.

At the end of the first six months twenty-five disabled men had been trained and were in positions where they were "making good," while seven others were in training. Nineteen of those men had lost a leg.

In April, 1917, the British Government gave Captain Kimberley's scheme official recognition and appointed him technical adviser on methods of training. The cinema trade advisory committee was then formed composed of the following:

F. R. Goodwin, chairman North Metropolitan Circuit of Theaters; W. Barker, Barker's Motion Photography, Ltd.; Captain Paul Kimberley, technical adviser on Methods of Training; William Johnson, honorary secretary; J. B. Williams, Amalgamated Musicians' Union; Edward H. Mason, National Association of Theatrical Employees; J. Kinniburgh, Electrical Trades' Union, and one representative each from the Ministry of Labor, War Pensions and Statutory Committees.

Training centres on a model of Captain Kimberley's school at Wardour street were opened in Manchester, Newcastle, Leeds, Glasgow, Birmingham, Cardiff and Southampton.

The course of training in London and at each of these provincial centres includes a special course in electricity, tuition being given in the construction and use of motor generators, switchboards and electrical fittings in connection with cinema work. Every man is taught the way to handle films and is instructed in and made familiar with the working of different types of modern projectors. A special training allowance has been granted by the British Government to every disabled man attending these classes.

At the London training centre the students have the additional advantage of spending some time in the repair shops of Pathe Freres, Limited, where they gain valuable experience in taking down, repairing and reassembling machines.

Several exhibitors have thrown open their operating boxes to give the men experience in showing to the public, and the students are constantly operating under actual working conditions.

The instructors are men with years of practical experience behind them, and their work at the outset was purely voluntary. John Day, one of the instructors at the London training centre, is still voluntarily devoting a lot of time to the work, with excellent results. From the commencement the training has been carried on under Captain Kimberley's personal supervision, and its success in the first place was entirely due to his energy and enthusiasm and the loyal workers who so ably supported him.

Disabled Soldiers and Sailors Studying Motion Picture Projection.

The following figures are supplied by the London training centre:

Men trained and found positions to Jan. 31, 1916.....	57
Men in training.....	16
Number of men who commenced training and did not complete on account of unsuitability.....	3
Australian soldiers who have been trained (2 of whom are now in positions in Sydney, New South Wales)...	6
	82

The men in the foregoing list were discharged from the army for the following reasons:

Amputation of right or left leg.....	48
Gunshot wounds	20
Other causes such as heart trouble, neurasthenia, etc...	14
	82

These figures do not include the work of the provincial training centres, which is also becoming quite a big item, so much so that the training of disabled sailors and soldiers as cinematograph operators is acknowledged to be one of the most successful schemes that have been put in operation for the benefit of England's heroes.

"The Trade" in England has co-operated whole-heartedly with the promoters by offering employment to the students. In the first place this was done in a spirit of patriotism, but the "boys" have proved their worth to such an extent that exhibitors are freely admitting that they have never had better operators. The demand at the moment for operators trained under the cinema trade advisory committee is greater than the supply.

It may interest our American friends to hear that Captain Kimberley was recently presented with the Roehampton Hospital War Badge for "services rendered" to the inmates, the presentation being made by Princess Mary. Captain Kimberley is the only man in England who is not directly connected with the hospital staff to receive this signal honor. Most of the boys who have passed through his hands came direct from the hospitals at Roehampton.

Goldwyn Quartet on Tour

Messrs. Weiss, Warren, Bolster and Lucas Visiting Exhibitors and Discussing Problems.

THREE executives of Goldwyn are making a concerted effort to meet face to face the exhibitors of the country and to discuss with them the problems they have to deal with. The three are vice-presidents of the Goldwyn Distribution Corporation—Alfred Weiss, F. B. Warren and Harold Bolster. Working in conjunction with them is Arthur Lucas, southern division manager for the company.

In a two-week tour of the Atlantic States, a territory with which he has been intimately familiar for many years, Mr. Weiss has talked with hundreds of men in whose theaters Goldwyn pictures are being played and with scores who have not yet contracted for them.

Mr. Warren has been for nearly a month on the Pacific Coast, where his itinerary embraces most of the important cities between Los Angeles and Seattle.

Mr. Bolster is in the Middle West. Making temporary headquarters in Chicago, he is working through all of the larger cities. Mr. Lucas is covering the South.

No unusual conditions, it was said at the Goldwyn home offices in New York City, are responsible for this simultaneous tour of four of the company's officers. Samuel Goldfish, president of the company, simply felt it was time to further demonstrate to the exhibitors of the country the honesty and earnestness of Goldwyn's established policy of co-operation with theater owners to their best interests.

"Goldwyn wants its exhibitors to feel that their problems are its problems," said Mr. Goldfish. "If Goldwyn can continue to please the exhibitor it can continue to please the public. The Goldwyn executives who have gone to talk to the country's theater owners are well equipped to help solve any perplexities which may have arisen in the comparatively few months in which our productions have been on the market. I expect profitable and lastingly good results from their tours."

Too Much of a Good Thing in Stars

Policy of Giving a Little Less Than People Demand Saves Popularity of Leading Players.

THAT there is such a thing as overplaying any actor or actress in any particular locality is pointed out by Wilbur W. Hindley, dramatic critic of the Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Wash. Mr. Hindley said:

"Old showmen had a theory that the best policy was to give the public a little less than it wanted of any particular thing and there would always be a demand for that product. There is a surprising amount of truth in that dictum, and it is applicable in other lines outside of the theatrical that have to do with catering to the public taste. Present-day producers of moving pictures appear to have waived the old axiom.

"The present epidemic of Hart and Fairbanks pictures indicate that the new theory of screen business is to get all you can while the getting is good. For weeks there has not been a day when either a Fairbanks or Hart picture was not being shown first, second or third run at some Spokane theater. There is no end in sight, for the Hart picture at least. Liberty bookings up to June 2 include four Hart pictures, and the Lyric has two Hart reissues for the current month.

"The Fairbanks management seems to be seeing the light. Up to June 2 the Liberty will show but two Fairbanks pictures, and the Lyric announces one for this month. Local exhibitors cannot be censured for showing so many Hart and Fairbanks pictures. The town is crazy over their productions, as one manager puts it, and the familiar faces of the two stars in the lobby displays invariably mean capacity business and standing room only.

"There was a time when the Charlie Chaplin fans felt that the producers were killing him off, and they almost did. Charlie had a business head of his own, however, and for months not a Chaplin picture has been released. The result is that fans everywhere are asking what has happened to him, and there is a growing demand for his pictures. The result will be that when his new picture, 'A Dog's Life,' is released film fans will fall over themselves to see his familiar capers again.

"Picture patrons used to think that Mary Pickford had exhausted all the possibilities of ingenuous stardom. To a somewhat less extent they thought the same about Marguerite Clark. Yet those two stars are as popular today as they ever were simply because their directors and managers realized the truth of the old adage of showmen—'Give the public a little less than it wants and it will always want more.'"

NEWSPAPERS EAGER FOR FILM NEWS.

Moving pictures and the doings of film folks are now receiving more attention at the hands of the San Francisco local press than ever before since it has been proved to the satisfaction of publishers that the general public is deeply interested in these matters. The experiment of devoting space to signed reviews of the offerings of leading downtown moving picture houses, recently made by the Chronicle, has been a marked success, and other papers, notably the Bulletin, have decided to adopt a similar plan.

The Wasp, a local society weekly, recently added a moving picture page, and this proved so popular that it is now using two pages, and is preparing to increase the space materially. There is scarcely a week that some noted screen star does not come to San Francisco with a company to make pictures, and publications have been quick to note that the public pays much more attention to them than to the stars of the legitimate stage.

MANITOBA TICKET TAX IN EFFECT.

The Theater Tickets Act of Manitoba, which provides for the payment of a special tax on all admission tickets to theaters of that province by purchasers, went into effect on April 1. A. Hedley Garland, superintendent of taxes for the province, announced that vast quantities of the tax tickets had been distributed throughout the jurisdiction and each theater had been provided with a special ticket receptacle, in which used tickets were to be destroyed.

There is a one-cent tax on all admission tickets costing up to 10 cents and a two-cent tax on tickets valued at from 11 cents to 25 cents. The assessment becomes proportionately higher on more costly tickets. Pass holders, of course, pay the tax on the highest current admission price at a theater.

Grinding the Crank

With Thornton Fisher

This Kind of a Guy Is—Applejuice

BROADWAY has known Alfred Applejuice, the moving picture office boy of Harlem, for several years. This happy, smiling boy, who has made the Plague Picture Company so successful, is one who once to know him is to love him. His friends in the industry are legion. His steady and consistent ascent to his present position of chief office boy has aroused the envy of men much older in the game.

Alfred Applejuice only smiles when his age is mentioned, but confesses that he has some distance to travel before he reaches the taxi-cabbage. Those close to him say that he was born in 1903, which makes him fifteen years old. One to look at him, however, might suspect that he still has several active years left in which to serve the industry with the splendid energy of the past. Starting in the moving picture business practically penniless he has accumulated in the past year six dollars and forty-three cents, all due to his indefatigable industry in aiding the bookkeeper to roll his cigarettes.

"How can a man make so much money and live?" you ask. Ah, but you do not know Alfred Applejuice. Wine, women, and song have never been permitted to enter the strenuous daily life of the young man recognized by all as the most preeminent personification of brilliancy in the office boy business. There are three reasons why this is so. First, the price of wine is too high in our Broadway hair oil establishments. Second, it is impossible to entertain a lady for an evening on less than sixty cents, and, third, we forget what the third reason is, but it is a good one, nevertheless. To show the esteem with which young Mr. Applejuice is regarded by his friends it is only necessary to state that he was unanimously elected president recently of the Ink Bottle Cleaners' Association, an honor paid to few.

To the public who come not into intimate association with him he is known as Alfred Applejuice, but to the favored and select few he is affectionately called "Rusty," no doubt receiving his monicker because of the color of his hair. His friends, as before stated, are few, for as Mr. Applejuice says, "You can't never trust no guy today; he's liable to stack the cards, load the dice and then bean you for your Ingersoll." His chief says to him that never in the history of the Plague Picture Company has he ever had an assistant who could spit through his teeth so proficiently as Alfred Applejuice.

His favorite songs are "There's Egypt in Your Dreamy Eyes" and "I Love You Like the Yankee Loves a Hun," and often after a hard day's work one might find him playing either of these favorites upon his jews-harp. He is probably one of the most artistic and finished performers on the jews-harp in the country. This young man of the films is nothing if not versatile.

He is winning his way to fame in the business because of a certain commercial pugnacity, so to speak. This accounts for his rapid rise from errand boy for the Plague Pictures Company to chief office boy for the same concern. Once crossed by anyone in his progress he retaliates with unrelenting fury. A story told by one of his friends will serve as an illustration of his combativeness in business. He snorts for the fray. It seems that while crosing the street one day he was humiliated by the rough censor of a chauffeur who nearly ran over him. Following the auto until it stopped, Mr. Applejuice waited until the driver of the car alighted to visit a cigar store. With one fell blow the young man drove a four-inch spike into each of the tires and nonchalantly continued about his business. This is the stuff he is made of.

His face radiates with joy of living. You will never forget the face of Alfred Applejuice once you have seen it. There is not another face in the world like it. Sixteen freckles, counting from the top down, are draped carefully across the ruddy features of the greatest office boy in the movies.

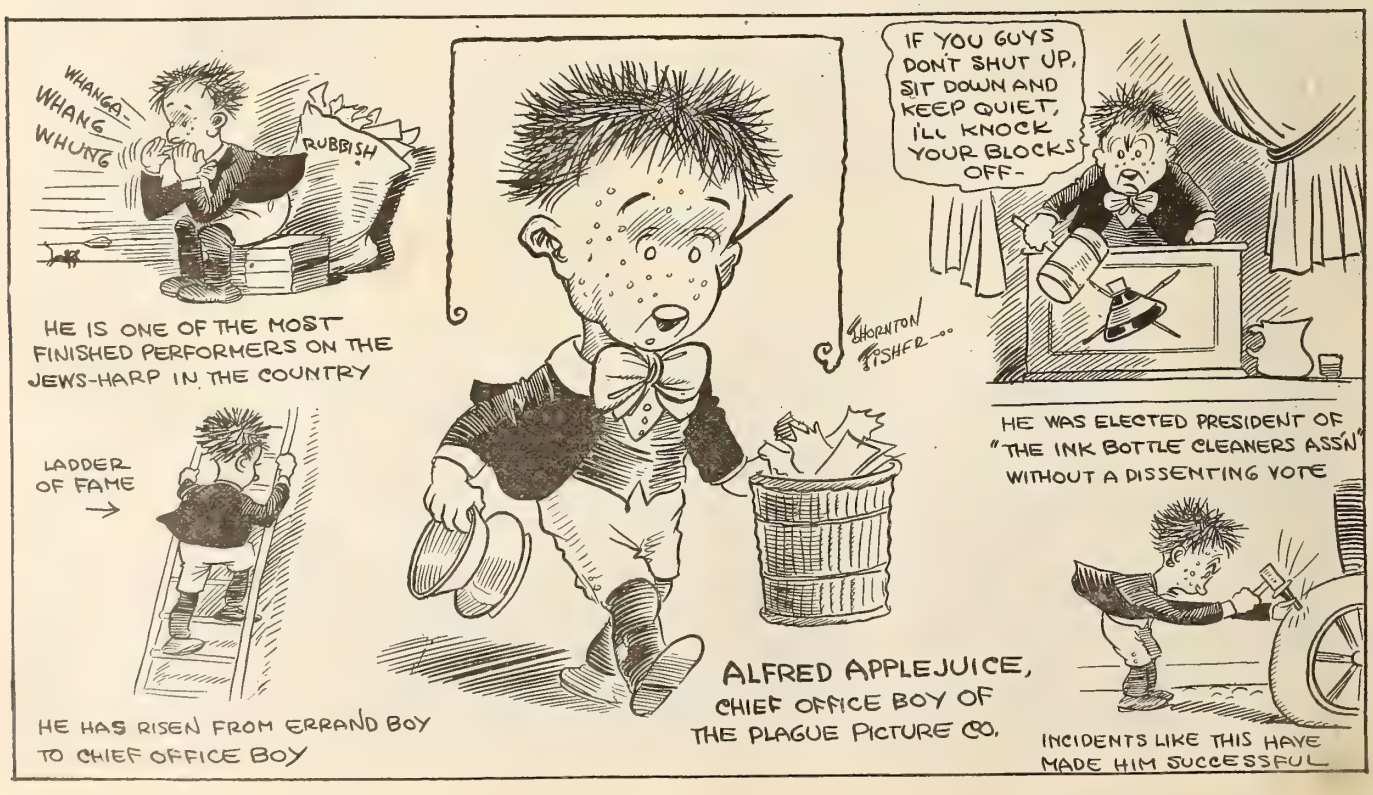
A fever blister and a cold sore also adorn his bean. Two handsome warts protrude from the left hand, which, like the front of his dome, is covered with a select assortment of three-cornered freckles.

When asked for a statement concerning the future of the pictures Mr. Applejuice said, "I don't think them guys in Chicago has got as much chance of winning the pennant in this year's serious as an ant has of stepping on his own chin."

We predict a great future for Alfred Applejuice of the Plague Picture Company.

LOEW AND FOX BOOK "THE KAISER."

Marcus Loew has booked "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," the big Jewel Productions subject, over his entire Greater New York circuit. He has also booked it for his Toronto (Canada) theater. The booking was made after Mr. Loew had witnessed the enthusiasm of the audience at the Broadway Theater. William Fox also has booked the picture over his entire circuit of theaters in Greater New York.



WHANGA-WHANG WHUNG
RUBBISH
HE IS ONE OF THE MOST FINISHED PERFORMERS ON THE JEWS-HARP IN THE COUNTRY
LADDER OF FAME
HE HAS RISEN FROM ERRAND BOY TO CHIEF OFFICE BOY
THORNTON FISHER
ALFRED APPLEJUICE, CHIEF OFFICE BOY OF THE PLAGUE PICTURE CO.
IF YOU GUYS DON'T SHUT UP, SIT DOWN AND KEEP QUIET, I'LL KNOCK YOUR BLOCKS OFF-
HE WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF "THE INK BOTTLE CLEANERS ASS'N" WITHOUT A DISSENTING VOTE INCIDENTS LIKE THIS HAVE MADE HIM SUCCESSFUL

Spokes from the Hub

By Marion Howard

FOR generations it has been the custom to see a good play over and over again—why not a superfine picture? Some thousands think so, and we go Sunday evenings when the popular and stirring pictures are again shown, most of them not before seen by the present-day fans. We had a splendid pair at the Exeter the other night—"Mother of Mine," most timely, too, as Rupert Julian was playing "The Kaiser" here. In this, too, we see Ruby LaFayette and the mad U-boat captain, also others who are in the cast of "The Kaiser." This is a splendid picture of great value well done in all details. Then we had "The Hero of Submarine D-2" with a dandy cast, Charles Richman, Jimmie Morrison, Charles Wellesley, T. R. Mills, Zena Keefe and Eleanor Woodruff. This is distinctly a timely picture made from "Colton, U. S. A.," full of patriotism and an inspiration. Then, too, we get inside Annapolis, where most of the scenes were taken by permission of the Navy Department. I have seen this picture four times.

* * *

"The Beloved Traitor" is another Goldwyn gem, with E. K. Lincoln in a strong, compelling part—out of the ordinary. Such fine titles under the supervision of George Loane Tucker, who edited them. George Fawcett gives us always a treat in facial expression, and wasn't his daughter good to look at! Little Mae Marsh, always a bit pathetic, made a winsome heroine and was well posed for closeups. Good atmosphere all through—a picture to commend.

* * *

Edith Storey in "The Claim." the first Metro picture I have seen her in, having avoided the first one on account of a hideous snake, which friends warned me about. As an artist Miss Storey fills the bill and in this picture she has a good chance to display emotional ability of a high order. Wheeler Oakman was an excellent opposite. Here we get some new situations worth while and a mighty good bit of regeneration bringing happy results and "slow curtain."

* * *

Why such pictures as "Loaded Dice?" Frank Keenan has played many "heavies," but this is the limit for viciousness. It is not a clean picture, and I had a jolt, for the Pathe outputs have hitherto been of a different sort. Keenan deserves better, though he looked the part with his sardonic expression.

* * *

"Ann's Finish" is good, clean entertainment and had some new bits of business. Margarita Fischer as the schoolgirl heroine had a lot of work to do and steered clear of the ridiculous. These rollicking school and college pictures are safe to put on, for who even of the older ones does not like to turn the hour glass back? Then, too, the surprise twist at the close was worth while.

* * *

"Brown of Harvard" is far better than the play. On the screen we get some melodramatic features and old-time stuff, but we did like Tom Moore in it, also Hazel Daly, who won us in support of Bryant Washburn in some of his Skinner pictures. Certain press agents in notices sent here had some of the scenes taken at Harvard, but they did not look familiar and we know the stunning race scenes were taken not far from the Essanay studios in Chicago. Sydney Ainsworth, the dependable, was sufficiently villainous and Marian Thorne made good.

* * *

"Innocent" is one of the best Fannie Ward pictures and a credit to Pathe, who may well be congratulated on play and players in this. This picture has been well reviewed—rightly and deserves every nice word. John Miltern makes a good foil for Armand Kalitz, who has a thankless part. Frederick Perry was some inebriate, and weren't those Chinese kids dear. Splendid atmospher. What authority has the title writer for using the impossible word "Alright?"

* * *

I am glad to report that "The Kaiser" went strong at the Globe. "Simply great" is the verdict. What a fine piece of work Rupert Julian does here, and do you recall his graceful gait? Strikes me this is quite the best "inside story" of the Kaiser possible to place upon the screen. One man whispered in my ear, "Gee, ain't this some picture? Wish the pro-Germans and pacifists would see it, for their views might change." Met "Tom" Spry there and he tells me that the American Feature Film Company is controlling it. Great credit to the Universal!

* * *

Last night at the Fenway we had a good picture—"Alimony," featuring George Fisher in a congenial role supported by Lois Wilson and other good players. The trade mark spelled Selexart, and if this is any criterion we may look for more of like calibre. George Fisher, whose Christus in "Civilization" will never be forgotten, has done nothing better since than this part of the young millionaire who married the right girl only to lose her next day, thanks to the vampire.

* * *

"An American Live Wire" is a corker, no mistake, for here the Vitagraphs have given us a capable cast headed by Grace Darmond and Earle Williams, with a lot of South American atmosphere. It is one of the O. Henry gems with good twists and surprises mixed with humor and stunts well directed by Tom Mills.

* * *

Clara Kimball Young certainly scores again in "The House of Glass," perfectly presented by a capable company with two new faces for the screen—Pell Trenton and Norman Selby (Kid McCoy), both excellent. Then we have Corliss Giles, his strong, determined face just right for the part of a man of affairs with no patience with criminals and no use for political influences until it strikes his own house of glass. Good play and a better picture, for it vizualizes as the stage cannot do.

* * *

Among screen players in town are Alan Hale, Florence Reed, the Sid Drews, Richard Bennett, Alexandra Carlisle, Jeanne Eagels, Lillian Lorraine, John Mason, William Gillette, Holbrook Blinn, Conway Tearle, Blanche Bates and Nora Bayes, two recent converts to the screen. The latter's former hubby, Jack Norworth, is playing here.

* * *

Glad to see some official announcement of Julia Arthur's capitulation. There was a rumor some time ago that her last play, "Seremonda," was to be screened.

* * *

Most agreeable is the news of the coming of "Masks and Faces," with a nearly all star cast of London players headed by Forbes Roberson, whose "Passing of the Third Floor Back" for some reason not yet shown here.

* * *

"Eve's Daughter"—well, to read the effusive reports of the press agent one would think it was Billie Burke's "greatest ever" when it is not at all up to the mark. Many weak points were noticeable, or else I am getting too critical. Recalling the play done so well by Grace George, maybe I expected better things.

* * *

Well, at last we had Herbert Brenon's "The Fall of the Romanoffs," put on at the Globe. We liked especially the acting of Edward Connolly, whom we recall so well as Dr. Zulph in Metro's serial "The Great Secret." Certainly he looked the part of the disreputable Rasputin and was the most compelling figure all through. Nance O'Neil and Al Hickman made the most of their parts as Czar and Czarina, never departing from the character. Of Iliodor my neighbor said he "ain't much of an actor." This picture is educational on the side of history, but it seemed too bad to have to cut Kerensky out, for we had only the merest glimpse in perspective. We wanted a close-up of him as "the man of the hour" if only for a limited time. Big picture, mobs well done and scenes delicately handled in relation to the two girls.

* * *

One of the weekly pictures put out by permission of George Creel shows New York soldiers at drill doing their stunt in mob scenes.

* * *

Another Mutual quite as strong as "Ann's Finish" is "The Girl and the Judge," with Olive Tell and David Powell, written around a kleptomaniac in the person of the girl's mother. Good story, sanely worked out. "Love Me" was a delight, and so well cast, though Dorothy Dalton has a part beneath her ability. Old story of girl marrying into a family of snobs, but hubby was not in the same class and stood by wifey like a brick. Here we have Melbourne MacDowell and handsome Elinor Hancock "to the manner born" as a fine society dame. William Conklin, Jack Holt and Robert McKim form quite a trio. Conklin had a "fat" line early in the game in a tribute to the bride out of the West. Good domestic play, worth while.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON and MARGARET I. MACDONALD

Interesting Educationals

Two Industrial Subjects, One Travel, and One Topical Subject.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

"Cavalry of the Air" (Universal).

THE manufacture of an aeroplane is clearly illustrated in the 67th release of the Screen Magazine. From the preparing of the plans in the drafting room to the final test of the machine the various stages through which each part passes is shown. We see in the picture the laying of the longeron for the framework, the assembling of the struts and framework, and the fashioning of the wing. The attaching of the cover to the wing, the putting on of strips over the seams to increase the supporting strength of the wing, and the shellacing of it is shown. It is then hoisted into position for assembly and the various details of assembling are performed.

"Uncle Sam's Stamp Factory" (Paramount-Bray).

In the 114th release of the Pictograph will be found some instructive and entertaining views of Uncle Sam's stamp factory. The first step in the making of the postage stamp is the engraving of the plate, which when finished is placed in the stamp machine, and loaded with the color in which the design is to be reproduced on the paper. It is then on its way to help in the turning out of 20,000,000 stamps per day. The perforating of the large sheets of stamps, the cutting of them into smaller sheets, and the gumming of the stamp are among the details shown.

"Scenes of Life and Habits in Southern Peru" (Kleine-Lincoln & Parker).

An interesting number of the Lincoln & Parker South American series which are being handled through the George Kleine System treats of life and habits in Southern Peru. The town of Arequipa presents quaint scenes, showing the colonnaded street where the richer citizens go shopping, and also the less pretentious part of the town where the poor purchase their various necessities. Mount Misti towering into the skies is the next feature of interest at the foot of which is an astronomical observatory. Nearby is Mt. Chachani in the throes of a snow storm when the picture was taken. The subtitles of the various scenes are entertaining and the most amusing face is placed on the subjects presented. There are many holy days in Peru we learn, and each holy day is a holiday. We are also told that each doorway is decorated with those too proud to work, and that the Peruvian Indians put water on their feet only when hired to wash wool. The agricultural facilities of this part of the world are also illustrated on the screen. This number is of intense interest.

"Grizzly Bear Pets" (Paramount-Bray).

One of the most pleasing subjects to be found in the 114th release of the Pictograph was photographed at one of the western cantonments and shows some of the funnyisms connected with the daily life of a couple of bears which the boys have made the mascots of the camp. These bears dance and fight, beg appealingly for food, climb a tree after mischievous tormentors and are altogether entertaining.

ITALIAN WAR PICTURES.

Second Instalment Includes the Making of Munitions and Thrilling Battleplane Maneuvers.

IN THE second instalment of the Official Italian War Pictures which are being exhibited at the Rivoli theater, scenes of unusual interest appear. The manufacture of munitions in the Italian factories and the installing of a big gun on a monitor introduce thrilling scenes, which include the bombardment of Hermada overlooking the Adriatic. The "Braemar Castle," which was torpedoed in the Mediterranean under repair at an Italian port, the sinking of the U. C. 12, a view of this submarine when finally raised to the surface, and a squadron of hydroplanes taking their places six abreast to await the signal to fly are of more than ordinary interest. Then there is a series of thrilling scenes in which an Austrian battleplane is pursued by Italian fliers and forced to capitulate. The releasing of powerful bombs from airplanes is one of the interesting features of this instalment. This has been photographed at close range by a cameraman aboard another machine. These and other interesting things will be found in this instalment.

Something New from Switzerland

Frederick Burlingham Due to Arrive With Views Depicting Swiss Life in Regions Little Known.

FREDERICK BURLINGHAM, the American explorer and cinematographer, well known for his descent 1,200 feet inside the crater of Vesuvius while active, and for his work on the Matterhorn, Mont Blanc and the Jungfrau, has left Switzerland for New York with a unique series of new views.

Frederick Burlingham.

Among his new views are some which depict Swiss life in almost inaccessible valleys, where the peasants weave their own cloth, make their own clothes and hats; where they bake bread only twice a year at a primitive communal oven; where children play with bones; where cheese is inherited and where many of the peasants don't know there is a war.

Among his new Alpine scenes are the Ascent of the Zinal-Rothorn, at Zermatt, more dangerous than the Matterhorn, and a film showing the Scaling of the Blümlisalp where the whole party narrowly escaped death by the breaking of an ice cornice on the summit. Mr. Burlingham was taking a scene at the time and consequently succeeded in registering the accident in detail. These views are unique in Alpine history and may never be seen again.

The past year has been prolific in things extraordinary so far as the moving picture is concerned, and many important truths have found their way to the public which have been practically unknown to the great masses that view moving pictures. We believe that the public which heretofore loved in the way of entertainment only things which served to amuse it, has learned not to resent being educated via the screen. Therefore the pictures which Mr. Burlingham is bringing with him, and which are destined to enlighten us on phases of Swiss life with which we have been unfamiliar, will no doubt be greeted with pleasure.

He is also bringing to us, as stated above with regard to photographing of the breaking of an ice cornice, something which probably has not been photographed before, and which may never appear again on the camera man's film. And for such things as these we should be eternally grateful to Mr. Burlingham, and to others of his kind who brave the dangers with which Nature loves to pave her wonder spots.

We hope in the near future to be able to tell our readers something more about these pictures, and to cover in detail those things which Mr. Burlingham has succeeded in transferring to the moving picture film.

The Ocean's Garden

Third Episode of "The Depths of the Sea" at Strand Contains Remarkable Illustrations of Submarine Beauties.

RAYMOND L. DITMARS in the third episode of "The Depths of the Sea," which has been showing at the Strand theatre, has given us a delightful series of views of the more delicate animal growths of the sea bottom. The first to appear on the screen is the jelly fish, so fragile that if placed on a piece of blotting paper it will evaporate, leaving nothing but an outline. Along with it are some crabs, who interfere at various times during the run of the picture. Then there is the argonaut of the tropical seas, a peculiar little creature that moves gracefully through the water, and the coral polyp at work on the foundation of a coral reef. The tube worm which looks like a feathery blossom set in an upright tube at times issues bright red flakes like fire. The anemone, one of the most beautiful and interesting of the inhabitants of the gardens of the sea, is shown in closeup reaching out for food, and awakening after a quiet snooze. Two anemones feeding on a dead fish is an interesting sight. The clam digging itself into the sand to hide from enemies, and the star fish in various poses are the closing features.

"Adaptation"

Attractive Ditmars Number Appearing on the Program of the Educational Films Corporation of America.

THE screech owl opens this attractive number in which Raymond L. Ditmars draws attention to the manner in which Nature looks after her own, equipping them with powers of combating the conditions in which they have been thrown. The picture shows us the nest of the screech owl built of wood pulp in a hollow tree. Then we see him at another time as sentinel of the wood pile, where he succeeds in catching a rat which he also devours, leaving nothing behind of which Hoover might complain. The flamingo, whose long serpentine neck serves it in good stead when dinner time comes round, is also seen in the picture as well as the wild turkey supplied with a camouflage of feathers that so harmonize with the background that it is not easily discerned at a distance. The last of this interesting collection is the secretary bird, named for the quills in the top of its head, which is the arch-enemy of reptiles and serpents. The secretary bird in the act of killing a small snake and devouring it is rather an unusual sight.

To Film Jewish Play

"Judarael," George L. Hutchin's Book, to Be Adapted to Screen in Aid of Movement for Rehabilitation of Palestine.

THE Judarael Producing Association of Los Angeles, Cal. (suite 211, W. P. Story Building), is about to commence the production of George L. Hutchin's book, "Judarael," which deals with Jerusalem in the pride of its ancient glory, its fall, its vassalage to Babylon, the destruction of Solomon's Temple, the test of the Fiery Furnace, the worship of the Golden Calf, the Hanging Gardens of Babylon, Belshazzar's impious feast, the handwriting on the wall, the triumph of Cyrus, God's protection of Daniel in the Lion's Den, and the triumphal return of the Jews to their native land.

This picture, the making of which will encompass a journey to Palestine to obtain authentic settings and proper atmosphere, will be exhibited in aid of the $100,000,000 required for the rehabilitation of Palestine. Overtures have been made to the British government for permission to visit Jerusalem to obtain scenes necessary for the completion of the production. The expedition will go to Palestine via the Pacific, touching at Honolulu, Yokohama, Tokio, Manila, Hong Kong, and other ports. It is planned to notify the Zionists at these ports and to photograph the crowds who are expected to greet the expedition. These latter pictures will no doubt be released through one of the regular film news services.

Items of Interest.

The 69th release of the Universal Screen Magazine contains an animated interview with Marion Harland in which she tells us how to be happy in old age. Her advice is good and the illustrations effective. She says "make a vocation for yourself when you are young," then when old age comes you can still be busy and happy. She illustrates the foolishness of young people taking the old people to live and insisting that they sit still and do nothing, with the mistaken idea that this is going to make them happy. Useful and entertaining.

* * *

The Liberty Loan Trailer in Pictograph No. 114 pictures Mrs. William McAdoo, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, with other women of the National Women's Liberty Loan Committee. She is telling the public from the screen that they help to secure for the Third Liberty Loan double the amount they were instrumental in securing for the Second Liberty Loan.

Are Exhibitors Demonstrating Values?

Two St. Louis Distributors Take Theaters to Prove Money-Making Power of Films.

AS an answer to concerted and "fly-by-night" threats of certain persons in St. Louis to organize the exhibitors of that city as "against the exchanges," the distributors of some of the larger films are experimenting in their own way as to the possibilities that lie in the showing of their own pictures at their own houses.

Recently two important steps in this direction have been made, both being watched with unusual interest by both the exhibitors and the distributors. The rivalry here is intense, with twenty-two exchanges, in a city of this size, bidding for first-run houses among a comparatively small number of actual first-run houses.

John Burhorne, local manager of the Kleine System, started out by contracting for the Victoria theater, in which he opened for the first time here the Edison picture "The Unbeliever." The theater company has nothing to do with the picture. All the advertising is being paid for by Burhorne, and in initiating his project he "spread" in the local newspapers to such an extent that he eclipsed the advertising of the purely privately managed houses. He "papered" the town considerably and opened up.

The second instance of the exchange's attempt to handle its own affairs is found in the showing of Universal features at the Royal theater, owned by Mrs. Cornelius, who has a string of houses.

While this venture is not an outright stab at motion picture theater management by the Universal office, it is tantamount to it.

Manager Barney Rosenthal, of the Universal here, is conducting the advertising campaign, and in all the newspapers was right up with "The Unbeliever" in spreading on "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin." Unlike Burhorne, Rosenthal is guaranteeing only 50 per cent. of the advertising bills, but the amount of space used in the newspapers is indicative of what this venture must be costing. The Royal Theater advertising is from three to four times greater than any of the privately conducted houses.

The correspondent of the World is acquainted with another exchange manager who contemplates branching out into the theater business, but is not at liberty to give his name at this time. It is safe to say, however, that he represents one of the largest producing corporations in the country.

A few days ago he was attempting to sell one of his best late releases to a first-class house. The manager of the house said that the price of the film was prohibitive under the circumstances, whereupon the exchange manager replied, "Well, I'll not let it go for less, if I have to open my own house myself to show it in."

It became known later that this exchange manager got a complete report on the business being done by both the Universal and the Kleine ventures.

PUBLISHER CURTIS VISITS CULVER CITY.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, publisher of well-known periodicals, visited the Triangle Culver City studios recently to see just how the moving pictures are made. The Curtis party spent the day as guests of General Manager H. O. Davis and visited every nook and cranny on the property.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Doing Your Bit.

PERHAPS you think that you are doing your bit if you buy a Liberty Bond or two of each issue and run a slide for the War Saving Stamps, but that is the least you can do, not the best. Perhaps you run a slide of the national colors at the end of each show and play the audience out with the national anthem. That is not doing your bit. That is simply adding to the mess of fake patriotism that contributes to the general distaste of the public for "war stuff." Doing your bit is keeping your business as far up to standard as possible, and pushing it beyond the old mark if you can. This not only adds to the size of the check you pay on the admission tax, but it keeps the money in circulation, it keeps people feeling normal, and holds them on an even keel. The man who stays away from the picture show to save the cost of admission "because times are getting harder" is in a fair way to become a miser in greater things. He won't save his money for Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps. He'll hoard the actual cash against the time the country goes to the demnition bow-wows, and the reason he feels that the country is headed in that direction is because he misses his old entertainment. You best do your bit when you persuade him to come out of his shell and take his place with the other old patrons. Then feed him entertainment and not the sort of patriotism the average motion picture director comprehends, and you will have done something for your country that no one else in your town can do—unless it be the other theater manager. The average man can get all the war stuff he wants out of the news weeklies. Have one of these a day and not merely one service, but two or three, as may be necessary. This will arouse the patriotic spirit, not destroy it. Put in a lot of pseudo patriotic drivel that is offered as sure money getters and that sort of thing, and you'll drive him back into his shell. Give him ENTERTAINMENT, and make him come to it through the attractiveness of your advertising. It can be done, because it is being done every day, but you must do it right. Use slides for the patriotic appeals the Government wishes to make, but do not use too many to a show. Not more than four or five to a five to seven-reel show should be used. As a general thing plan to let the patron forget the war when he comes into your house, and he'll come more often, and go away a better citizen and a more patriotic one.

Novelty Advertising.

This is the way George J. Schade, of the Schade theater, Sandusky, Ohio, put on the Government picture, "The Remaking of a Nation." The proceeds were devoted to the families of the Ohio boys in training, and doubtless that fact accounts for the kiosk over the sidewalk, which forms a most novel advertisement. It will be noted that old Liberty Bond Posters and recruiting posters have been used in part as being appropriate to the subject. Here is one man who did his bit, and did it better than merely good. How about you? Have you done your own bit where it will do some good, or have you left it to George?

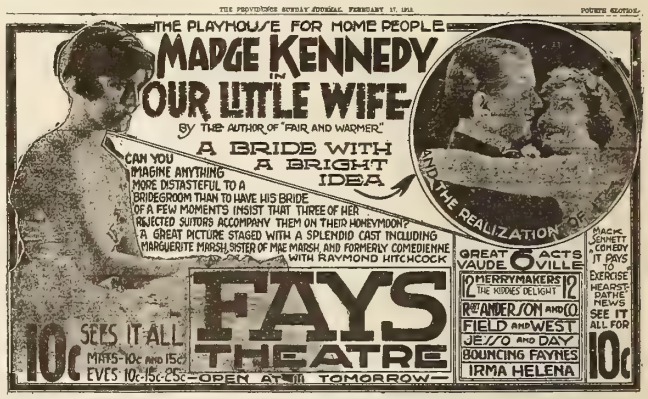
Twins.

The Colonial and Palace theaters, East Orange, N. J., use two programs built along the same lines, and yet sufficiently different to be distinctive. Each runs two weeks, three changes to the week, which does not permit much display in a 3¼ by 5½, but it gets the message over, because the manager does not seek to tell all he knows in the limited space. In point of fact it might be better to name the other titles instead of announcing "A Drew comedy and others." It might be that this particular comedy had been seen earlier in town by someone, and word passed around that it was better than usual. An oddity is that while the Colonial stands on its own address the Palace adds "two blocks below the Colonial" to its street location. Both programs give full information as to prices and times of admission, as well as a telephone number that will bring any additional information desired. They are a neat pair of twins, and the managements are fortunate in being set in an office where they have some idea of the use of small display faces and intelligence in type selection. The printer has done his part as well as the manager. He knows his business.

Overlooked One Chance.

Here is a Sunday advertisement for Fay's theater, Providence, R. I. It drops nine inches across the page. If the press agent will look it over he will find that there is a space in the upper left hand corner 1 by 2½ inches that he did not fill in with type. Apart from this he seems to have done his best—or his worst. Personally we do not see



THE PLAYHOUSE FOR HOME PEOPLE
MARGE KENNEDY
IN
OUR LITTLE WIFE
BY THE AUTHOR OF "FAIR AND WARMER"
A BRIDE WITH A BRIGHT IDEA
CAN YOU IMAGINE ANYTHING MORE DISTASTEFUL TO A BRIDEGROOM THAN TO HAVE HIS BRIDE OF A FEW MOMENTS INSIST THAT THREE OF HER REJECTED SUITORS ACCOMPANY THEM ON THEIR HONEYMOON? A GREAT PICTURE STAGED WITH A SPLENDID CAST INCLUDING MARGUERITE MARSH, SISTER OF MAE MARSH, AND FORMERLY COMEDIENNE WITH RAYMOND HITCHCOCK
AND THE REALIZATION OF GREAT VAUDE 6 ACTS VILLE
MERRYMAKERS THE KIDDIES DELIGHT
ANDERSON AND CO.
FIELD AND WEST
JESSO AND DAY
BOUNCING FAYNES
IRMA HELENA
MACK SENNETT A COMEDY IT PAYS TO EXERCISE HEARST-PATHE NEWS
SEE IT ALL FOR 10c
10c SEES IT ALL
MATS 10c AND 15c
EVES 10c-15c-25c
FAYS THEATRE
OPEN AT 11 TOMORROW

how it could be much worse than this. It is a fine example of an all-caps atrocity made worse through the use of hand lettering that is not a very good example of the art. Hereafter we are lined up with George M. Cohan against Providence. Managers write in pathetic letters about how bad business is, and then they use this sort of advertising! What can they expect if they put out advertisements that are neither attractive nor readable?

Give a Guess.

How many theaters have become "A National Institution" since the late Stanley Mastbaum coined the phrase? Our own guess is 856.

Three and Flourishing.

Cecil Jeffrey, of the Majestic theater, Freemantle, West Australia, sends in three four-page programs which are now entering their second year. He calls them throwaways, which would indicate the method of distribution, but they are in reality briskly edited four-page programs. There is even a two-color Christmas edition, and in general we think that the issues are really looked for by the readers, for there is just the mixture of local items, humor and screen announcement that makes for the most efficacious advertising. The four-page all-advertisement program works, but the really hard worker is the program in which the people read from humor and news into house announcements and back again into the more entertaining notes. Mr. Jeffrey writes that the same management has houses at Perth (of which Freemantle seems to be the port of entry) and at Kalgoorlie, about 400 miles distant, all built within the past year, and all doing well. They should, with intelligent advertising, and from the programs we imagine that the newspaper work must also be competent, though Mr. Jeffrey sends no samples.

Ambitious.

The Picture News, published in New Orleans, announces that it "Covers Dixie like the dew." It carries three pages of text, mostly clipped, and a page of advertisements of theaters between Pensacola, Fla., and Texarkana, Texas. We don't see where the houses get off if they pay for their advertising, but there must be some reason.

Make a Note.

Advertising writers should remember that the parenthesis marks () are not the same as the quotation marks " ". There is no more general error made than the misuse of these marks. We have before us an advertisement reading, "Mae Marsh (the Girl of a Thousand Faces) in The Beloved Traitor." In a sense it might be regarded as proper usage to bracket the descriptive matter, but in that case the quotes should also be used, and then there is no real need for the brackets.

Too Full.

Harold Grant or Harold Frank (his signature is not clear) is press agent of the Family theater, Jackson, Mich. He sends in quite a bunch of material from which we have selected three samples. For a newspaper man we think these samples are unusually poor, though

Come Through
Herbert Rawlinson
7 ACTS OF THRILLS—SUSPENSE—SURPRISE
TODAY—MONDAY—TUESDAY FAMILY
REGULAR PRICES
D——n the United States;
I hope that I may never hear of the United States again!
THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY
My Own United States.
FAMILY THEATER
Mary Miles Minter
in "The Maid of the Salty Inn"
Brown of Harvard
FAMILY TODAY and MONDAY
Margarita Fisher
"MISS JACKIE of the ARMY"
MUTT and JEFF
THE TRIUMPH OF DEMOCRACY OVER KAISERISM
THOMAS H. INCE presents
THE GREATER THAN "CIVILIZATION"
ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID
Revealing for the First Time the Inner Workings of One of These Death-Dealing Monsters of the Sky
SEE!
FAMILY THEATER
WED. and THU.

a clean-up is reported on the three. All three are fairly stuffed with type. A newspaper man should know better than that. He should be able to say something and then shut up and let it sink in. Take the first example on the left, that for "Come Through." It will be noticed that a column width cut is employed. The house decided that the play would make good, and while the star does not have considerable draught in Jackson it was decided to force a run. The cut was made and used in all advertisements, and also as teasers for the better part of a week before the first showing, with the result that they broke the house record the opening day, running about $125 more than the Hart-Triangles used to do as first runs. But it was more the cut and the teaser campaign, we think, than the Sunday advertisement. Marion Davies and Taylor Holmes are also included in this advertisement, though the printer has done his best to cut it off completely. It is intolerably bad use of rule work. Some day we hope to see a decent advertisement for "The Man Without a Country," but to date we have not seen a single one. Even Ruff fell down on this. The advertisement shown here is far from convincing. There is nothing to the phrases to particularly attract attention, and this in spite of the many phrases used. There is not a punch in the entire layout save the top line, and here the all too common mistake is made by using dashes. If you mean damn say damn and not D—n. It looks better, and is not as offensive as the evasive form. The right hand advertisement offers two advertisements, and this is a good idea, for the Zep picture was a special, and was properly segregated and advertised as such. The copy would look first rate on a circus herald, but it is too full for a newspaper advertisement. The advertiser is better at special stuff, for he handled Mary cleverly as he describes:

> Let me call your attention, too, to the "Mary MacLane" story. Used this in both local papers, got it on the society page, and used 3-inch advs. to call attention to it as though it were one of the papers' features. And I know the women read it. There were a bunch of them on hand when the theater opened first day, and the two days ran more than $100 above normal, and right up to the best Friday-Saturday the house has ever had. This only cost us $10 or thereabouts in extra advertising, and not another thing was done on it.

The only trouble is that he was not adroit enough to leave it a society note. He had to add to the bottom of the story:

> NOTE—Bearing the title, "Men Who Have Made Love to Me," Mary MacLane has produced and herself appears in a motion picture as frank and daring as her story, herself playing the vampire woman. This picture is the attraction at the Family theater today and Saturday, and it is the one big screen sensation of the year.—Advertisement.

They came, of course, but the effect of the story on the society page without that damning "Advertisement" would have lasted months after the film had passed on. They got the business, but they utterly lost. We disagree with the writer when he says:

> There is another angle from which I consider the sex in preparing advertising. Most advertising critics tell you, "Don't use a whole lot of reading matter, make a flash and let it go at that, nobody will read a lot of small print." I think they are wrong to a degree with women at all times, and are way off the track in regard to Sunday morning. Give them a fairly good amusement page, and I flatter myself that I have it, and most of them will read it through religiously. I go and sit in the house to listen to comments whenever I have a little time to spare, and many a time they show familiarity with some incident in the picture that only the reading of some press stuff will account for. You can stake your wad, too, that when they go shopping for shows the final decision is going to rest with the woman, and especially so if she has read something about it that interests her and she can press it as an argument.

He has the issues mixed. If you are writing advertisement write advertisement and not photoplay notes. If you are writing photoplay notes write notes and not advertisement. The two things are entirely distinct, different and apart. We have always contended that it pays to feed the fans with items, but the photoplay page or the house program is the place for that, and NOT the advertisement.

Something for You.

Here is a clipping from the Garfield theater program (Chicago) that seems good enough to make a tour of the country:

> "I AM THE GARFIELD."
>
> I am the Garfield theater. I am the favorite child of my father—the motion picture. I am his son—his harshest critic, therefore his sincerest friend. I was first to recognize his greatness. On this belief I staked my all. I introduced him to my friends—the rich, the poor, the old and the young, and bespoke their loyalty and support for him. I am never content. I am ever searching for new ideas. I am proud of my father. He is proud of his son. I am all that my father would have me be. I am the "Garfield Theater."

If not used for the program it might be printed on a card, with a list of underlines on the back, and put out in small manila envelopes boldly printed upon both sides in 24 point upper and lower case, "Who am I?"

Good, Only.

A certain theater gives a thrift stamp attached to a card to each 200th patron, and announces that this will be continued for the duration of the war. The idea is excellent in its intention, and may be wholly legal within the state laws, but in the eyes of the Federal law this is a lottery, and as such is to be avoided. To deposit even one program in the mails carrying such an announcement is advertising a lottery, and, while it is probable that the intention of the management will be taken into consideration and merely a warning given, it is none the less a penal offense, and some other scheme should be adopted. If every house manager had a copy of Picture Theater Advertising and would read the chapter on prize schemes they could keep out of a lot of trouble, and some may possibly save many times the cost of the book by avoiding prosecution. Anything that will get the W. S. S. before the public and still keep within the law is to be commended, but some other scheme than this will have to be adopted "for the period of the war." A better scheme would be the issuance of coupons, so many coupons to be good for one stamp. The children will do the rest.

Matching Borders.

We are looking at an advertisement in a Mid-West paper. It drops just the length of a cut of a star supplied by the company. The cut is enclosed in linear border, and runs to the right of the advertisement. The type portion of the advertisement to the left is set inside an eighteen point rule border, solid black, and an effort has been made to include the cut by the use of a six point border. Either one of two things should have been done, the linear border should have been routed off, or linear should have been used around the entire advertisement. It is these little things that make for effect.

"The Warrior."

> No, you're wrong, "The Warrior" has nothing whatever to do with the war. Forget the world's tragedy and enjoy the clever comedy that is coming to the Olympia on the Heatless Holiday. Maciste is a giant over seven feet in height who tosses soldiers over precipices, pushes full grown horses around, and topples over trees as though they were mere toys. He is the original and only strong man of the movies. "The Warrior" is pure amusement with enough stupendous stunts to secure the interest of the most fastidious fan.

That tells the story in a nutshell and gains interest. It makes people want to see the play. And in passing, if you have Maciste booked, the April Popular Mechanics has a story, not mentioning his name, that is worth a lot of money to an exhibitor if played up. It is a disinterested authentication of his marvelous feats of strength. It's the sort of advertising you cannot buy.

Getting back to Mr. Purrington, we reproduce one of his new style advertisements, showing that he will splurge, for this is slightly deeper than seven eights (and will the printer PLEASE behave and leave off the hyphen. It is seven eights and not 7/8), and he is not a bit afraid to go a column or so over his regular measurement if he thinks the house needs it to boom a semi-feature. Mr. Purrington is all set to pull more business to the house with the old outlay, and still more business with a slightly larger space. He needed only a hint, and he took the hint.

The One-Track Ad.

From a bunch of copy sent in by Goldwyn we take these two advertisements as admirably illustrating the difference between the single-track ad and the congested freight yard. Look at the advertisement on the left. A well-etched half-tone supplies the display. Above, in upper and lower case, is a brief, pointed explanation of the scene. Below comes the title, four lines of explanation, and the house name, prices, and times of showing. The arrow leading from the top takes the eye down to the house title. It is all simple, direct, and logical. You are interested in the scene, you are told that the scene is from "The

TODAY
As and All Week
HALL CAINE'S
"THE MANXMAN"
KINEMA THEATER
GRAND AT SEVENTH
STRAND
ALL WEEK
"HELLO, FOLKS, I'M BACK AFTER A YEAR'S REST IN A REAL REEL TORPEDO. TAKE MY TIP AND SEE IT."
MABEL NORMAND
IN DODGING A MILLION
—LOVE, MYSTERY AND SLOW POISON —ONE MILLION DOLLARS—A BEAUTIFUL HEIRESS—A HANDSOME LOVER—A MYSTERIOUS FOREIGNER — ALL MIXED IN AN APPETIZING MANNER BY EDGAR SELWYN, PRODUCES SIX REELS OF KEEN SUSPENSE, AND A FILM ENTIRELY OUT OF THE ORDINARY
STRAND ORCHESTRA PHILIP PELZ
Our Next Big Attraction "PARENTAGE"

Manxman," that it is at the Kinema theater, and can be seen at certain times for certain prices. And note particularly the legibility of the small paragraphs set in upper and lower case. Contrast these with the all-capital monstrosity on the right. There is something wrong with a printer who will set a three fifteens with but four words in upper and lower case ("our next big attraction"). He should be sent to the printer's home or to jail. It is a crime against St. Guttenberg. The use of capital letters does not—P-O-S-I-T-I-V-E-L-Y does not make for display. It makes for space paid for and utterly wasted. The cut would have been better had the bag been lettered merely "$1,000,000," with a type title at the side, and that lower box would have been far better had it been set so that it could be read, thus:

Love, Mysery and Slow Poison!
One Million Dollars!
A Beautiful Heiress!
A Handsome Lover!
A Mysterious Foreigner!

These ingredients mixed with the skill of Edgar Selwyn have resulted in a play that keeps you laughing, keeps you guessing, keeps you entertained through six smart reels.

When space is paid for in order to talk to the public at least give the public a chance to read the message.

Another Skeedoodle Scheme.

A. C. Raleigh, advertising manager of the Rialto, Butte, Mont., comes in with some more talk about skeedoodles and how to use them. He writes:

> "Skeedoodle" plugs will only carry 60 watts, but there is a firm in your town who turn out flashers that will carry as many watts as one wishes. These flashers are merely sockets with a metal spring that is highly susceptible to heat. The current running through this metal heats it up, which contracts it and breaks the contact. When it cools a second or two it works back and again makes the contact which gives the flash.
>
> I am using a new combination on my cutouts now—I put three circuits back of the cutout letter (backed with white crepe paper). One circuit has blue lights, one yellow, and one red (as you know, the three primary colors). They are all on flashers, and the result is a constant kaleidoscopic change of colors—all the colors of the spectroscope, as the flashers do not work regularly, sometimes only one working, and again all three; at other times all off for a second or two. All flashers have a screw by which one can regulate the time the light is to be on or off.

We do not know the present price of these flasher plugs, but they are inexpensive, and particularly so when compared with the results they yield. They require no special wiring, and may be used on a single circuit. No doubt you have seen the prismatic signs used in drug and other stores. These generally work with glass screens and a small motor, sometimes heat-operated, but the flasher plug lets you do what you want just as you want it, and with a little care in timing the flash you can get all sorts of effects and combinations. Mr. Raleigh sends in a sample of his advertising with the remark that he prefers black-and-whites to gray half-tones every time. We prefer the same thing, but only if the artist can put some life into the drawing. Here the drawing accords with the title, and somewhat the same design was used over the house front with action, which not only brought mention from the papers, but one actually persuaded Mr. Raleigh to let his picture be taken and reproduced for the first time in eighteen years. Mr. Raleigh writes that he has some new schemes trying out, the details of which he will report later.

Philadelphia Programs.

Several new programs are found in the last batch of Philadelphia programs sent in, and we note that our friend, Mrs. Woodruff, of the Colonial, Camden, is still using the same style of program she has affected so long. If she finds a better one sne will probably use it, but it will take a lot of thinking to get up a better style than she uses. The back page is now headed, "Between ourselves before the pictures start," and is a chatty full page talk on the underlines. We consider it one of the best laid programs of the 6x9 size being gotten out. It is so long since we reproduced a sample of her work that we are giving a detail. There are two pages to the day, with the house head at the top of one of these inside pages, and an underline for a special to match on the other side. The type detail is always the same; the summary in italics, the detail in Roman, and the added attraction in full face.

The Columbia uses a fairly good layout, but prints on colored stock, and the colors are awful—nothing short of awful. The sample to hand is a sort of ashes-of-roses—shrimp-pink—crushed-mulberry-cerise-red that is calculated to make a bilious man dizzy to look at it, and apt to make bilious a normal observer.

The Star, on the other hand, uses a bright green that is good to look at. It is only a 3½x5½, but clean press work and good composition and choice of types puts it in Class A. They are a little weak on descriptive matter, however. We would hardly describe "Today" as a "pleasing" play, however powerful it is.

The Franklin issues a weekly card with a small calendar in the center. Get them used to looking for that calendar each week and it will be surprising how many will find a permanent place for it. Since the program is weekly and the calendar gives the entire month it might be a good plan to hire a couple of small boys to underline

Friday & Saturday,
January 18th & 19th—
Ann Murdock
in
"Please Help Emily"

As refreshing a bit of comedy drama as one would wish to see, with Miss Murdock doing the honors in a way that is positively delightful and satisfying.

This is a sparkling adaptation of a famous Charles Frohman stage success. It has been most carefully and artistically handled, and the daring escapades of Emily, only daughter of a scientist possessed of peculiar ideas on the training of daughters, are treated with more than ordinary skill and refinement, and when the play is finished you will have the consciousness of having viewed a production of the most wholesome character with all the varied situations given a most engaging appeal from the comedy angle It is all fun and comedy, with Miss Murdock proving herself one of the greatest comediens of the day.

ADDED ATTRACTION—Fox Comedy, "TOM AND JERRY."

ORGAN SELECTION—"Ermine."

the week of distribution in red. It can best be done with the cheap stylo pens rather than the regular ruling pens.

The Cedar uses a weekly calendar as side dates for its attractions. We like their line, "A newcomer to the screen, but known to all theatergoers," but they should not have permitted the printer to make it "Oliver" instead of Olive Tell. Sort of takes the kick out of it.

Jay Emanuel, who sends in his own programs, seems to have changed from the monthly to the weekly program for his Jefferson and Park theaters. We like the idea better. But the thing we like best about Jay's stuff is that it is clean cut and well printed. Real advertising in a town that does not advertise well is welcome.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. By mail, postpaid, $2.00. Order from nearest office.

Moving Picture World, 516 Fifth Avenue, New York
Schiller Building, Chicago, Ill.
Wright & Callender Building, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Photoplaywright

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

NOTICE.

Owing to illness, Mr. Sargent will be unable to reply to any inquiries whether a return envelope accompanies the questions or not. No exceptions to this rule can be made, perhaps, for several months.

Synopsis Only.

DURING the past two years this department has made a consistent fight for the production of plays more or less directly from the continuity of the author, contending that if the author knows his business as a writer of photoplays a far more artistic result will accrue from this method than from the present practise. We see not a single reason for changing this belief in any particular, but the conditions are such that a change toward a more sane method of production seems still to be a matter for the years to come, and for the present the director will rise triumphant even over his employer, taking the continuity made by a staff writer from a more or less brief synopsis, and changing this continuity to suit his own ideas. Until this condition changes the synopsis only will alone be salable, and in the future this department, following the market, will deal more largely with the writing of the synopsis than with the finer points of play construction.

Nice points of play construction are no longer wanted. It is pretty hard to tell what is wanted these days, but good plays are of a certainty to be listed among the undesirables. All that is asked of the free lance is an idea reasonably well told. Some inside writers are sometimes asked to supply a continuity, but as one of them recently explained this is merely to give the director something to laugh at and fix up that he may prove his superiority. The author in question has refused lately to do a continuity for his plays because it is merely a waste of time. His script is given no real attention, and does not help him to get over the production of his own play as he has it in mind. In fact the more exact and careful his continuity the greater the delight the director seems to take in altering it. The director does not want the assistance of the author in the interpretation of the author's idea. He wants to work out his own peculiar ideas as to how a play should be handled. He wants only a punch and a story of some sort leading to that punch. Of course we shall have few good plays until we have plays unified and consistent, but until the director is made to realize that he is a servant and not a dictator the present condition of affairs will continue.

The recent brain polisher synopsis contest shows very clearly that few of the free lances have any idea as to what a synopsis should be. This was clearly taken up in connection with Mr. Harrison's synopsis, but no examples were then given of the lapses that led to the statement. Few even know what a synopsis really is. Some seem to consider it a synopsis of events, and give what is virtually a continuity in brief something along these lines:

> Mr. and Mrs. Smith are sitting on the piazza of their beautiful home. Their daughter, Margery, comes riding in with Harold Jones, who tells the Smiths Margery has promised to marry him, but Smith gets very angry and tells Harold this cannot be, because his father is Smith's bitterest political enemy. Harold argues, but Smith is firm, and we see him riding disconsolately down the road to his own home, where he meets his father and tells him what has happened.

So the story runs on and on, lacking only numbered scenes and the smaller details of the action. It has neither the clearness of a real continuity nor the clearness of a synopsis. It tires, and the reader is seldom apt to get as far along as the real matters of interest.

Another form of synopsis is perhaps even more tiresome, though perhaps less vague. This is the intimate description style. It starts off more like this:

> Harold Jones, a handsome young man, son of the local Democratic leader, falls in love with Margery Smith, a beautiful young girl about eighteen. Her father is the Republican boss, a stern, unyielding man of about fifty with hair greyed at the temples. He hates Jones because of the stinging defeats the latter has administered, and when Harold comes to tell him that he and Margery are engaged, he drives him from the house with words of angry denunciation. Harold goes off to consult his father, a short, undersized man of about forty-five who does not in the least look like the successful general he is and tells him the whole story.

This is about as bad as the other type. It may not induce brain fever, but it will result in brain fag, and no reader of manuscripts is going to read very far on such a story because he knows from sad experience that no story that starts in like that is going to be a real story. The man who does not know how to write a decent synopsis is still less apt to know how to write an interesting idea.

But suppose the reader gets a story that starts off like this:

> With his own daughter driving him down to political defeat, with the women voters solidly arrayed against him, in spite of party lines, George Smith learns that Boss Cupid is more powerful than either the Republican or Democratic boss, and by permitting (when no other recourse is left) the marriage of his daugther to the son of the opposing boss, he establishes in the little town a political machine that is unbeatable.

This suggests action, love interest, political contest, and smart incident. It suggests that the story will at least repay reading with care. The punch is advanced to the first paragraph, and now the story may be told in detail, not too full and yet so full as to be informative. The second paragraph may start off:

> George Smith is the Republican boss of the town of Windham. Horace Brown is the Democratic leader, and by superior generalship has repeatedly sent Smith and his party down to defeat. Naturally a strong feeling exists between the two men, and this is not made the less when Brown's son Jack is accepted by Margery Smith, only to be rejected by her father with the remark that he would rather see her dead than the wife of a Democrat, and particularly the son of the democratic leader. Margery sides with Jack and uses her influence with the legislators she knows through their visits to her father to influence the passage of the equal rights bill, conferring the vote upon women. This gained she organizes the women voters' league.

The story goes on to tell in detail the moves that are made, not with the painfully exact detail of the novice, but with the ease and grace of the trained writer who knows what to tell and what to leave to the continuity writer.

That is the great trick in synopsis writing. Learn what to put in and what to leave out. Learn to tell what the continuity writer needs, and learn to omit the things that will suggest themselves to he imagination of any intelligent plot handler. The paragraph given above might supply the material for a reel or a reel and a half, properly handled, because the staff man will know how to handle political opposition, a love affair, some amateur lobbying and the formation of a society. It is merely necessary to tell that this is done. The continuity will give these facts in the method of the continuity writer. Another story might require a thousand words to get the first reel over. It all depends upon the story and the newness or oddity of the idea.

The successful seller of synopses first makes his story interesting, not through inflated literary style, but through clearness in the exploitation of idea. He makes his second point through the fullness of the necessary detail. His third point is made through the omission of unnecessary detail. His last advantage is that he knows when to give scenes out of the ordinary and leaders that will be useful to the continuity writer. He undertakes to sell no more than an idea and, selling an idea, he does not confound it with history nor expect the buyer to be a mind reader. He leaves nothing to the imagination that may not safely be left to the imagination, but he does not undertake to tell the staff writer that Jack should have blue eyes and brown hair when black hair will do as well.

It is for this reason that a careful study of technique of playwriting should be made, even though the play itself is not written. The author must understand the technique that will be used, that he may make his story technically possible. He should be a master of his subject even though the studios permit him to be only a literary tout, for it will be noted that the most successful synopsis sellers are those who are most soundly grounded in all the minor details of technique.

Agents.

Speaking of a recent article on selling agents and their general unreliability, Mrs. L. Case Russell writes:

> Until I became so pressed for time that I could not bother handling my own stories, I sold direct. Now, busier than ever, I again sell direct or not at all.

She goes on to tell of one agency, conducted by a supposed friend, which sold a story for her. The check was made out jointly to her and the agency, and was sent to her for endorsement. Not questioning the honesty of the agent, she endorsed the check and sent it back, later receiving but 75 per cent. of the proceeds. Some agents exact 15 per cent., but 10 per cent. is the usual rate, and 25 per cent., save by special contract and for some unusual reason, is unheard of among reputable concerns.

There may be some reputable agency for the sale of photoplay manuscripts, but we are free to confess that we have not heard of a single one.

Technique of the Photoplay
By
EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

A book replete with practical pointers on the preparation of stories for the screen, answering the hundred and one questions which immediately present themselves when the first script is attempted. A tested handbook for the constant writer of picture plots. "Straight-from-the-shoulder" information from an author with a wealth of real "dollars-and-cents" experience.

By Mail, Postpaid, Three Dollars

Published and For Sale by

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, 516 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

Schiller Bldg., Chicago Wright and Callender Bldg., Los Angeles

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Manufacturers' Notice.

IT is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication, it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department, one dollar.

Both the first and second sets of questions are now ready and printed in neat boklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Over the Hilly Road.

Brother A. A. MacDonald, secretary Local Union 497, Halifax, N. S., writes to the Moving Picture World as follows:

> Officers and members of Local Union 497 extend to the Moving Picture World our heartfelt thanks for your help in our time of great need. It really seems as though thanks from us is always due the Moving Picture World, since it is always at hand, ready to help us over the hilly road.

In a personal letter to the editor brother MacDonald says:

> Local 497 wishes to extend to you personally its thanks for the aid you have given us. It is such things as this that renew our faith in human kindness and remind us that the darkest cloud bears a silver lining. Our theaters are again getting into shape, and all but the King Edward and Ackers are now open.

That is good, but it won't rebuild the shattered, burned homes of the men who passed through that horrible disaster. You owe me no thanks, my brothers. It was a real pleasure to be able to even do so little for you. I am really ashamed that with fully 30,000 projectionists to draw from, the response was not very much larger. I well know we are all laboring under a heavy burden at this time, but just the same a twenty-five-cent piece would not have seriously hurt any of you, and even that small sum from every projectionist would have been enough to have replaced most of the homes, after a fashion, at least. Well, anyhow, we helped some. I have sent $60.00 and have about twenty more in hand. The latest contributors are:

John Farr, operator, formerly Sidney Mines, N. S., now with U. S. colors in camp at Jacksonville, Florida	$5.00
George Hoffstatter, St. Paul, Minnesota	1.00
Elmer B. Bedwell, operator Iris theater, San Bernardino, Cal.	1.00
M. P. M. O. Local Union 466, I. A., Fort Wayne, Indiana	10.00
Joseph H. Parker, Anijox, E. C.	2.00

Local 466 says, in part: "We sincerely sympathize with the Halifax fund and wish our checks might be for $10,000.00 instead of ten. But we have done the best we could and know the Halifax boys will be glad to get it," which same is the right spirit.

Later, I have forwarded U. S. P. O. Money Order for $28, making a total of $88, and thus endeth the Halifax Fund.

Lamp Trouble and Worn Gears—Maybe.

B. A. Aughinbaugh, High School Principal, Mimgo, Ohio, sends for copy of Handbook and says:

> We get splendid, clear pictures of extraordinary brilliancy; also they are above ordinary in steadiness. Both machines are connected to one rheostat and both are American Standards, model No. 4. Both lamps are trimmed the same, but one uses up a 6-inch lower carbon in five reels, whereas the lower lasts for more than ten reels. Why is this? Another thing: cannot "lines" from letters and ghosts be caused just as readily by enlarged sprocket holes as by faulty shutter adjustment? If we adjust shutters to overcome the trouble on one film, it may or may not show up on the next. On some films we notice a peculiar haze about the letters of titles. None of these defects are noticeable 20 feet from the screen. There are no lights burning in auditorium when films are running.

The fast burning lower is most likely due to overheating of the carbon. The carbon is not overloaded, if your statement as to diameter and amperage is correct (5/16 Silver Tip and 40 amperes d. c.). I would advise you to carefully examine lower carbon jaw. Most likely it is either developing high resistance, hence high heat which is communicated to the carbon, or else it is from some cause (probably roughened or dirty interior) making poor contact with the carbon. As to the other matter, you must mean travel ghost. No, enlarged sprocket holes could not possibly have anything to do with causing travel ghost (white streaks up or down from white objects in picture or white title letters on dark background). I think you most likely are running with a shutter blade just barely wide enough to cover film movement when everything is just right, but if the gears are somewhat worn, then there might be occasional travel ghost. I would recommend to your consideration General Instructions No. 18, pages 469 to 476 of your new Handbook. In your case I think you most likely need to add 1/16 to 1/8 of an inch to each side of your main shutter blade. Try this by making a false blade of cardboard of proper dimensions, attaching it temporarily to the main shutter blade in any convenient way, paper clips, for instance. If this stops the trouble, there you are. But add no more to the blade than is absolutely necessary. The haze is probably due to your having a screen with a highly reflective surface. You will find this explained under "Reason for Haze," page 168 of your Handbook.

Just Must Have It.

Private W. Johnson, Overseas Military Forces of Canada, sends a U. S. quarter and says:

> Although in the Canadian army I am an old operator. Indeed you may remember me, as I corresponded with the department a few years ago. Will be back in the harness again as soon as released from the army. Am studying, in my spare time, light, mechanics and kindred subjects. Have your valuable Handbook on the table before me as I write; also the English Handbook, which, however, cannot approach yours in excellence. Am hungry for a copy of the World, and after much trouble have gotten hold of a good U. S. quarter which strayed into this land of shillings and pence in the pocket of a U. S. soldier in a camp not far from ours. I am enclosing it and want you to send me a late copy of the World. In closing accept best wishes from an old admirer of both yourself and the paper.

In Error.

I note a machine manufacturer is sending out blueprint of front operating room wall, designed to be used for planning openings in wall for his machine. In this print the observation port is shown as ten inches square, which is well and good, though the adjustable port is very much better. In the blueprint the bottom of the port is located 4' 7" from the floor. This is a good port for level projection, but it is an error to send out a plant such as this without warning that it must be modified where there is pitch in projection, the warning to be incorporated in the plan itself.

Given a pitch of 16" in 100 to center of picture, a line from bottom of a 16' wide picture to bottom of observation port located 4' 7" from the floor (disregarding thickness of wall which would make it worse if bottom of port in level) would be 5' 4" from the floor at 3' from wall, 5' 7" at four feet and 6' 1" at 6 feet from the wall. If the bottom of the picture be 16' below bottom of port, then the figures would be 5' 1", 5' 2.5" and 5' 7".

I call attention to this because of the fact that any error in placing of observatiou port is a very serious matter. Error in this respect makes for poor screen results as well as for grave inconvenience to the operator every moment of every day he works. There is no one thing makes for good screen results to a greater extent than providing for the operator a full, unobstructed view of the screen. Make it inconvenient for him to see his picture and at least for a very goodly percentage of the time he won't see it. To date, after having viewed many hundreds of operating rooms in all parts of the country and in all grades and classes of theaters I have seen but one plan which in my judgment excels that given on page 220 of the Handbook (the adjustable port), which same was only evolved after several years of study and observation of the evils of wrongly located observation ports. The single exception was found in San Diego, where I saw an observation port, covered with plate glass, 36" square, located between the machines. It was ideal and, taken in conjunction with the fire shutters, perfectly safe. I would respectfully suggest to the company putting out this blueprint that it add to it the words: "Observation ports must be lowered in proportion where there is drop in projection." Without this, builders will locate them as per plan, regardless of what pitch there may be, with results very far from satisfactory. I would suggest that the right method of locating observation and other ports is fully set forth in the Handbook, and the methods there described and illustrated provide for both level and depressed projection; also there is no "monkey business" as to builder properly locating lens ports, which are built for any projection pitch and filled in afterward. The operator has to work with the things provided, day after day and year after year. A little inconvenience means a great deal as the days go by. Hence "snap-shot" planning of such rooms is very bad, particularly in view of the fact that there is no excuse for it.

More Trouble!

Recently, at the invitation of Mr. States, of the Sales Department of the Edison Lamp Works, Harrison, New Jersey, the editor spent an afternoon at the works, in consultation with Mr. States, Dr. Orange and Dr. Porter; William C. Smith, general manager Nicholas Power Company, accompanied us, and took part in the conference, incidentally demonstrating the fact that he is not the best judge in the world as to exactly where a sphere will roll when driven by another similar sphere, in turn propelled by a round, elongated section of wood, capped with a section of the hide of an ox. In other words, during a lull in the proceedings, he jousted a joust of pool with brother States and our honorable self and got ignominiously skinned. Served 'im right, say I!

Dr. Porter sought to convince us that our theory of extending the distance from condenser to film is in error; that more light will be had by advancing the condenser very close to the film. By photometric measurements he did demonstrate a gain with the condenser close to the film, as against an approximation of the March 17 lineup; amperage same in both cases. But this I am not so sure could be made to hold good in actual practice. The doctor's theory is that by increasing distance from condenser to film we lose all but the light from a very small section of the crater. This he apparently proves by reversing process, thus: Set revolving shutter so that lens is open, have dowser up and film gate open. Now project white light to screen from the other machine. Hold a piece of white paper exactly where the arc crater is and the size of the image of the screen projected back through the lens system will indicate the size of the light source actually available for use in the projection of the film in that machine. The image will be but a small fraction of the crater area, as the doctor demonstrated.

Well, he had me stumped for a time. I didn't say much, but what little grey matter I have has been working overtime ever since. The demonstration seems reasonable and conclusive. BUT is it? I have my doubts, and right here is where I probably 'spose my ign'runce. Will the good doctor answer me this? If his theory is correct, and the area of the screen image projected to the crater position fixes the area of crater, how does he account for the very great difference in result when 25 amperes are used (which produces a crater of greater area, at position advocated by chart, than re-projected screen image), and when the amperage is advanced to 50, without changing any other condition. Also, doctor, you agree that the spot is the image or photograph of the crater and that it is as many times the diameter of the crater as distance X is divided into distance Y. You must also agree that, barring loss through divergence beyond aperture, as per figure 50, page 120 of the handbook, of which you have a copy, the full area of the spot covering actual machine aperture is utilized in projection. How do these facts square up with your theory and with your demonstration of the re-projected screen image? You admit that it is impractical to advance the condenser close to the film (when using an arc), so as to (according to your theory) utilize the whole crater area, because of impracticability of maintaining even screen illumination under that condition, hense you of necessity admit that my position is the right one as applied to the arc, though you claim it is right from a different cause than I claim. No, doctor, I must contend that you are in error; also I must at the same time admit that you have put a few dents in my own confidence, which was never any too strong. The chart and handbook table have both worked great improvement in many hundreds of theaters, but I have never been quite convinced that we understood the optical system fully, or knew exactly what did take place as between the two lens systems involved in the optical train of the projector. John Griffiths has evolved some theories, with which I have never been able to entirely agree, but he has also worked out some tables and charts which are, beyond any question of a doubt, far in advance of anything else set forth up to this time. And here was I, paddling my little canoe along in quiet waters, fairly well satisfied in that I could give advice which seemed to be right, and which did work very large improvement in a very large percentage of cases, when you, my dear doctor, come along, coolly upset my kettle of fish and make me go poking around among a lot of old light rays again, seeking for that which seems to be a sort of Flying Dutchman, or Will-o'-the-Wisp. Well, anyhow, I'll get even by saying you're wrong until I have to say otherwise, with a grave suspicion, however, that maybe we're neither of us entirely right, and both of us partly right. Meanwhile the chart STANDS. It is still far and away the best thing we have, and I'm going right along advocating its use until there is something better to offer. Later: I submitted a copy of this to Dr. Orange. His reply will be published later.

Size of Picture.

Parkinson and Dockendorff, architects, La Crosse, Wisconsin, write:

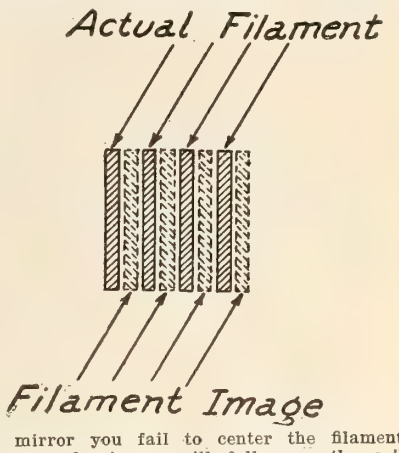
> We have a high school at Berlin, Wisconsin, in which is a large assembly room. Have made arrangements for showing motion pictures therein. Enclosed please find plan and section of this room. Will you be kind enough to advise as to proper size screen to use for best results. We wrote you for information on another subject some time ago. Followed your advice with, we are pleased to say, fine results.

I would advise either a 12 or a 14 foot picture. The first named would be 9 feet high, and could be placed either on the back stage wall at D, as I have marked the plan I am returning to you, in which event it would allow a front seating angle as per lines A-A, or at C, about two feet from the back wall, which would allow a slightly wider front seating angle, as per B-B. The screen could, of course, be placed nearer front, thus allowing a very wide front seating angle, but as you advance the screen you set up eye strain for those in the front rows, and the gain in side front seats only provides a few additional seats of comparatively small value. With the screen at C or D the distance from it to front row of seats will approximate twenty feet, which is very excellent. The 14 foot screen could be placed at E, about 3 feet from the rear wall, and allow seating angle as per lines B-B, or approximately at C, and allow angle lines as per A-A. This will give a distance of projection around 80 feet, which also is excellent; in fact, with either a 12 or a 14-foot picture it is pretty nearly ideal, particularly where, as in your case, the projection is approximately level.

There is no valid reason for exceeding a 14-foot picture in the hall in question, the same being 80 feet from back wall of stage to opposite wall of auditorium, and 56 feet wide. Some near sighted people might not see that size picture quite clearly from the rear seats, true, but on the other hand that size picture will be much easier on the eyes of those in the front rows, much easier to properly illuminate, show rain less, less flicker and better definition. Personally, I would prefer a 12-foot wide picture, but probably you had better strike a medium and make it 14. If you propose using a metallic surface screen be sure and get one suited to a wide, comparatively short auditorium. Surround your screen with a border of dead black (no gloss) not less than two feet wide. Get your light properly placed on the screen, make a mark one inch inside the light all around, and then paint right up to the mark.

Important to Incandescent Users.

Those using Mazda lamps for projection will do well to give careful attention to the proper adjustment of the mirror reflector, so that the image of the coils are exactly placed between the coils themselves. Failure so to do will prove disastrous to the lamp. The picture shows what I mean. The concave mirror reflector projects an image of the actual coils as shown. Now this image is one of highly concentrated light, hence it is very hot. The coils are working to the very limit of their capacity on a 100 hour life basis (the filaments are designed to last 100 hours when not worked above a certain degree of temperature, and the rated amperage of the lamp is calculated to, and does, raise them to approximately that temperature), and if by an improper adjustment of the mirror you fail to center the filament image exactly between the coils, the image will fall upon the coil itself and superheat it far above its safe operating temperature, with result that you will very quickly be "out" one $7.00 lamp.



A True Word.

G. R. Radley, president Citizens Commission on Motion Pictures, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, in course of a personal letter says:

> The writer has appreciated your work in supplying real information with regard to new things which are brought out in the motion picture projection field, and the giving of real facts with regard to them, as distinguished from the advertising man's "write ups," which are so prone to fail in getting forth the limitation, thus causing many to be misled, and afterward disappointed, because of what was really an improper application of the new device. Your efforts to encourage and induce operators to study their business, and to know the why and wherefore of its various elements is most certainly commendable.

Mr. Radley is entirely correct in saying that dependence in the statements of the seller's agent is apt to prove a broken reed upon which to lean. This is true, even though it often happens that every statement of the advertising man is absolutely and literally true when measured solely by statements he makes, although the whole thing is a deliberate lie. The trouble is not in what the advertising man has said. It is in what he has not said. He has picked out the GOOD points, very carefully refraining from any mention of those other points, which he well knows are going to cause trouble. This department has had many pretty hot battles with manufacturers over this very point. It absolutely REFUSES to admit any "write ups," regardless of how much advertising the seller of the device may take. Time and again advertising has been pulled out of this paper because we have stood on this principle, and have insisted on criticising where criticism was deserved. But I think most manufacturers are coming to understand that after all our stand in this matter is RIGHT. I am right now, and have been for a month past, consuming a lot of time and energy in convincing Mazda lamp manufacturers and sellers that saying the Mazda will do that which it will not do, or leaving it to be inferred from advertising matter that it will, IS NOT GOOD BUSINESS POLICY. I have INSISTED that the statements be confined to that which is within the possibility of actual performance, and I am glad to say that the United Theater Equipment Company is adopting my demand of maximum performance (I have insisted on basing all comparison between Mazda and arc performance on amperage, and that no claim be at this time made that the 750 watt Mazda will do more than equal the performance of a 25 ampere d. c. or a 50 ampere a. c. arc, meaning in GENERAL SCREEN RESULTS) in its advertising matter, and I have every reason to believe the Nicholas Power Company, the Precision Machine Company and the Edison Lamp Works, the National Lamp Works and the Westinghouse will do the same.

This department has tried to deal in FACTS. If all papers would do the same, wildcat advertising statements would soon become a thing of the past, and benefit would result to all. The company which sells a thing by what amounts to false pretenses in its advertising statements, even though it be but by the sin of omission, will sooner or later feel the reaction. Such business tactics never have and never will build up a solid, substantial, lasting business. The very worst possible advertisement a firm can have is a customer who feels he has been made to pose as "the goat."

Screen Surroundings.

In some of our very best, largest theaters there is, in the opinion of the writer, very questionable judgment used in planning the screen surroundings. This is especially true where the screen sets back in a semi-circle or at the back of a stage, and doubly true where a large orchestra is used, with its necessary lights, which, however well shaded, must inevitably send a portion of their direct rays and a considerable percentage of reflected rays to whatever surrounds. If the surroundings be of a highly reflective character, then much of this light will be re-reflected, and at least a portion is more than apt to reach the screen, dulling the highlights, perhaps rendering the picture gray, or at least reducing the value of its contrasts.

In this connection there seems to be a lack of understanding that yellow walls rank next to white in reflective power. Taking perfect reflection at 100, white walls will reflect, according to various authorities, from 80 to 82 per cent.; light yellow from 65 to 75 per cent. according to shade; chrome yellow, 62 per cent.; orange, 50 per cent.; dark yellow, 40 per cent.; ordinary yellow wall paper, 40 per cent.; light pink, 36 per cent.; light blue, 25 per cent. I am sorry I have not the figures for tan, but presume it might be fairly taken as a medium between brown, which is 20 per cent., and light yellow, which is, say, 70; which would be 45 per cent. for light tan, and maybe 30 for dark.

The surprise is the low reflective power of pink. Green also has very low power of reflection—from 18 for emerald, down to 12 for blue green. Cobalt blue is given as 12 per cent. It would really seem that shades of low reflective power could be selected for decorations surrounding the screen, and still keep the beauty of the set at as high as its present too highly reflective setting. The matter certainly is one deserving of very serious study on the part of theater decorators.

Glass for Ports.

John L. Gates, Minneapolis, Minnesota, says:

> Am planning a theater in a small Wisconsin city and trying to make it a model. Have built operating room according to Handbook plans and must say it is a beauty. Your port plan on page 216 is great. But now I am just a little puzzled. Picked up a trade paper in an exchange yesterday and noticed, in a column headed "Operators' Inquiries" statement that only optical crown glass ground plain on both sides is permissible in ports. This, the paper said, is very expensive and anything else will cause distortion. Now I have arranged to close all ports with glass, as per your recommendation. How about it?

Don't be alarmed. Fill your lens ports with glass obtained by removing the emulsion from old photographic plates, which may be obtained from any photgrapher. You have a Handbook, and will find directions for removing emulsion on page 206. Be very sure to get the glass perfectly clean. If this glass gives distortion, then all photographs are distorted and no enlargements could be made. Thousands of operators are using this kind of glass in their ports, and are unable to tell, so far as screen results be concerned, when it is in or out. This department gives no advice until a thing has been thoroughly tested in practice, except in very rare cases where the thing is in itself self-evident. When we told you this glass was good, we told you so because it had been thoroughly demonstrated that it IS good. When you get an out and out statement by this department and its editor that a thing is good you may gamble that it IS GOOD. In all the years of its existence, how many instances can you point out where this is not absolutely true? If we are not sure, we say so.

His Debut.

Edward P. Ober, Beverly, Mass., says:

> This marks my debut into our department, of which I have been a silent partner, as well as a student of your handbooks, for more than three years. In all that time, which I served as apprentice (GOOD! A three-year apprenticeship should start you in as a real operator, not a mere imitation. —Ed.), I never saw an example of the trouble I shall describe occur more than three or four times. Then it was due to faulty upper reel. But my angora is now clear off the map. Attached find sample of damaged film to illustrate. Am running two Power's 6-A machines. Lately there has been a tendency to rip out sprocket holes when nearing end of reel. This is gradually growing worse, without any change of any sort in the machine (Any visible change, you mean.—Ed.). Have bushed my upper reels to make them perfectly straight, and have so increased the tension that there is no lost motion between upper reel and upper sprocket, but without effect. The trouble always occurs during the last eight or ten feet of the reel, and at no other point. It only occurs on double reels; no trouble with singles. Ripped sprockets are only on one side of film. Upper sprcket is practically new, and everything seems to line up right. The thing that gets my goat is that on the face of it the thing should be readily discernible and easily remedied, but it has me going south in a fast lope. So if you know the answer, for the love of heaven shoot it, before I do something desperate.

Poor goat! See if you can't coax him back with a little vaseline and work, as follows: First, examine your upper sprocket idler roller and see if it is exactly square with the sprocket, and remains that way when you raise slightly on each end in turn; also set it two ticknesses of a film away from the sprocket. If this remedies the trouble, well and good. If not, then rub a little vaseline in the upper magazine spindle and try a reel of film. In one of these two things your trouble will most likely be found; possibly, to some extent, in both. Very likely the upper reel fits the spindle a trifle snug, and at high speed it binds a trifle. Better get a few reels with five-inch hubs for your upper magazine. You can get them from the United Theater Equipment Co., 28 Piedmont street, Boston, Mass. It is often the small things which get one's angora. I have found it that way myself. Well, I'm an expert roper of goats and believe I am going to get yours back for you, too.

Sulphuric Acid Due.

Charles G. Roos, Toronto, Canada, issues an engraved, embossed invitation to trouble, as follows:

> Being a mere man, and not in Miss Long's class as a "student of projection," the sulphuric acid from some of our operators is now in order. Miss Long stated the situation in a nutshell when she said but three theaters in this city can show really good projection. Beyond a doubt the Regent has the best projection, not only in this city, but in Canada (Pretty large claim. Have you seen it all?—Ed.). This may be because the Regent spends the money necessary to secure results, or to cleverness on part of the operating room staff. Be that as it may, they certainly do put up the real goods. Operator Piton mentions the projection at Lowes and says it is simply great. Now I myself think his own work at the Rialto is very much better, which opinion advances friend Piton at least one full peg. The day of flickering tintypes is past. If Mr. Manager refuses to install up-to-date machines and those other things necessary to high-class projection it is always possible for friend Patron to look up another theater with a live manager. I sincerely trust you will motor to Toronto next summer. Your opinion on projection here would be interesting. And now I will beat it to an agency and place an extra thousand on my life before this gets into print.

Yes, I intend to visit Toronto next summer, but my opinion of projection cannot, I am afraid, be based on a view of what ordinarily takes place in that city. You see, friend Toronto operator is apt to be very muchly on the job the day I am there, even as is the case in other cities. Personally I believe projection in Toronto is on an average with other cities of that size. I see no reason why it should be otherwise. Right here in New York, for instance, I can show you examples of as thoroughly, completely, absolutely, entirely and superlatively rotten projection as you will find anywhere in all this glorious land of the free and residence of the brave; also I can show you as good projection as you will find anywhere on this giddy old footstool, with about all grades and shades of excellence and lack of excellence between the two extremes.

Spanish Work Commenced.

Camillo Wixak, electrician and operator at the Cinema Congresso theater, Sao Paulo, Brazil, writes congratulating the editor of the Projection Department of Cine Mundial (which is us) on his wonderful work in the Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World (Cine Mundial) and to wish him a happy new year.

And thus we have been able to help our Spanish brothers also, which is a source of gratification, because before we entered the field as editor of the Spanish Projection Department there was practically no source of reliable information to which the Spanish operator could turn.

Still Operating, but It's a Truck Now.

Frank F. Bell, a former Palestine, Texas, live-wire operator, is now in the U. S. army (or is it navy?) at New Orleans. He remarks, however, that as soon as the Y. M. C. A. gets its new Motiograph he will most likely shoot a few pictures for the boys at night. Says that anyhow he doesn't have to observe wheatless and meatless days, and that's some comfort. Says Dad (owner Jewel theater, Palestine, Texas), says the "war diet" is fierce; also he hopes my necessary supply of black diamonds won't work entire ruin to my bank account. And for them last kind woids I vera much thank him. Take it from me the outlook for replenishing the bins in my cellar next summer gives me an extra chill, and there are chills enough in New York right now. Good luck to you, Brother Bell. You were a live one as operator and I have no doubt will be the same sort of soldier.

Projection Experience

There isn't an operator's booth in the universe in which this carefully compiled book will not save its purchase price each month.

Buy It Today

$4 the Copy, Postpaid

MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

For Managers and Operators

By F. H. RICHARDSON

The recognized standard book on the work of the operator. Complete descriptions and instructions on all leading machines and operating equipment.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Schiller Bldg. Chicago, Ill. | 516 Fifth Avenue New York City | Wright & Callender Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

To save time, order from nearest office.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by GEORGE W. BEYNON.

Notice.

QUESTIONS regarding music, addressed to this department, will receive a carbon copy of the department's reply by mail, when 4 cents are enclosed. Special replies by mail on matter which cannot be answered in this column $1.00.

Color in Picture Playing.

MUSIC for the pictures is essentially interpretative; it must never rise above the situations depicted, but lie just below them, carrying them upon its billowy crest. The art of portraying pictures musically has advanced wonderfully and is now a fine art. It requires more than music knowledge, picture experience and broad intelligence. It calls for genius and a psychological intuition that senses the proper moment to change the coloring of the orchestra.

In the early days of the silent drama we were wont to see pictures thrown upon the screen in black and white. No tinting of film was known. No matter how beautifully photographed, the scenes, following one after the other, with no tint effects, became monotonous to the eye of the esthetic. Today that condition has become a thing of the past and film tinting calls for research work and expertness. New tints are sought after and, when found, conscripted into picture service.

An evening scene calls for blue tints if it be exterior and yellow or orange if interior. Different scenes are treated differently, according to well set rules, with the object of bringing warmth and life into the picture. Every effort is put forth to make the screened objects appear natural to the eye, at the same time giving variety of tonal vision.

In picture playing we are still only in the black and white period. A few of the more advanced leaders are dabbling in colors, but the way is open for freer development and more progress along these lines.

The orchestra is composed of four distinct divisions, namely, the string section, composing violins, violi, celli, bassi and harp; the wood-wind section, made up of piccolo, flute, oboe, clarinets, cor Anglais, bassoon and contra-bassoon, while the brass section is composed of trumpets, French horns, trombones and tuba. The percussion department is represented by drums, kettle drums and cymbals. Traps, such as bells, xylophones, anvils, etc., are also classed in this division.

The wood-wind and brass are the color sections. Each instrument in these divisions is different in its tonal quality, yet wonderfully effective in the ensemble. One can readily realize the wide possibilities in tonal color to be derived from four separate sections, three of which can, at least, be divided again into four parts.

By using the strings alone we get two effects, legato (smooth sweet sounds) or pizzicato (sharp staccato sounds). If a weird or pathetic effect be desired the application of the mute serves the purpose admirably. Thus we gain three colors from the strings in the changed method of playing. Each instrument has three registers—the low, medium and upper—totally different in vibration and distinctly varied in color. This adds three more possibilities. Moreover, by a different arrangement of the strings, we get different shading of tone; for example, by giving the solo to the cello in its upper register the quality is broader than could be obtained from the violin, playing the same notes. Summing up we find the string section plastic, with a capacity for much varied color. With music properly arranged an orchestra of strings alone could present the picture without monotony to the ear.

Looking into the possibilities of the wood-wind instruments we find that as a separate division and playing together they carry all necessary voices for a good ensemble. Their use in this way would necessarily be infrequent because no music of any length has been so arranged that it could be used for practical purposes without drawing on instruments from other departments. There are many bits or excerpts from selections that are excellent examples of the wood-wind choir, such as the opening four bars of the Ruy Blas Overture, but we do not look to this section as a whole for change of color.

It is the peculiar individuality of the wood-wind instruments and their use as soloists accompanied by the other sections that goes far to change the color of the music. The quality of the flute is entirely different from that of the oboe in its mellow richness. The latter has a piercing effect, more shrill than the clarinet. The bassoon is the bass foundation of the wood-wind family, being sombre in tone and yet grotesque in some passages. Though the oboe, clarinets, English horn and bassoon are reed instruments they differ materially in quality. Their proper use in their three registers brings into play colors that cannot be duplicated in any other section.

The brass instruments, used in a separate mass or in combination with strings or wood, not only give a new tone-color to the orchestra, but greatly increase its power. Their frequent employment, unless managed with great judgment, is likely to produce an effect of noise; and there is no department of the orchestra so liable to abuse at the hands of an inexperienced leader. At the same time, if properly and carefully treated, these instruments add a richness to the instrumental mass which can be obtained in no other way.

The timpani and drums are peculiarly effective in adding color to the general tone but must be used with discretion. The constant claptrapping of cymbals and snare drum is in bad taste and nauseating to the lover of pure music. And, furthermore, by a discreet use of percussion the foundation of the orchestral mass is further solidified.

The varied treatment of theme is a new idea that is finding favor among both musicians and patrons. The continual reiteration of the theme by the same instrument with the same accompaniment becomes monotonous and disagreeable. It is not feasible to alter the accompaniment, but the melody is usually cued in other parts and perfectly easy of performance. Upon the scene fitted depends the choice of instrument as soloist. Brightness is exemplified by the violin, piccolo, or upper register of the flute and clarinet. Sadness is heard in the cello and French horn, while intense grief can readily be depicted by the bassoon or tuba. Plaintive melancholy is exactly portrayed by the oboe in its middle register and triumph finds expression in the trumpets and trombones.

In special musical scores for big pictures this treatment of the theme has already been successfully tried by the best experts. It has the added advantage of resting the soloists, lightening the work of the more important instruments. By a little forethought and some extraction of certain parts the idea is perfectly feasible for musical settings. In fact, it would obviate turning back to the theme in many cases.

Some scientists state that color sensation is a part of sound and gives the character or impression of the sound. All people feel it whether they consciously recognize it or not. In the same way, melodious sounds should give their character through impressions of harmonious combinations of pleasing colors. Again, color sensations may be translated into their vocal sounds, thereby giving color to spoken words.

Perhaps it was because Wagner loved color so much in life that we find so much color in his music. He stands the pre-eminent colorist among composers. We can well understand his saying, "I must have beauty, light and color," and that he received all three is evinced in the beauty and color of his musical writings.

Recently symphonies have been played accompanied by color effects supposed to represent the composer's thought. Sounds have been classified in colors and so tabulated. It indicates the trend of thought in this direction. Who can say that it's the product of the fevered brain of the extremist?

Common Abbreviations.

ACCEL.—Acellerando.
ACCOMP.—Accompaniment.
AD LIB.—Ad libitum.
AFFETT.—Affettuoso.
AFFRETT.—Affrettando.
AG°. or AGIT°.—Agitato.
ALL°.—Allegro.
ALLG^tto. / ALL^tto. } Allegretto.
AND^no.—Andantino.
AND^te.—Andante.
ARC.—Arcato.
ARP°.—Arpeggio.
B. C.—Basso continuo.
B. H.—Both hands.
BRILL.—Brillante.
CAD.—Cadenza.
CAL.—Calando.
CANTAB.—Cantabile.
'CELLO.—Violoncello.
CH.—Choir-organ.
CL., CLAR.—Clarinet.
COLL'OTT. / COLL'8^va. } Coll'ottava.
COR.—Cornet.
CRES. / CRESC. } Crescendo.
DAL S.—Dal Segno.
DECRES. / DECRESC. } Decrescendo.
DIAP.—Diapason.
DIM.—Diminuendo.
DIV.—Divisi, divise.
DOL.—Dolce.
DOLCISS.—Dolcissimo.
DOPP. PED.—Doppio pedale.
D. S.—Dal segno.
ENERG.—Energicamente.
ESPR. / ESPRESS. } Espressivo or Espressione.
FAG.—Fagotto.
MAN.—Manual.
MARC.—Marcato.
M. D. { Mano destra. / Main droite.
MEN.—Meno.
MEZ.—Mezzo.
mf.—Mezzo forte.
mfz.—Mezzo forzando.
MOD. or MOD^to.—Moderato.
MOR.—Morendo.
MOV^to.—Movimento.
mp.—Mezzo piano.
M. S. { Manuscript. / Mano sinistra.
OB.—Oboe.
OBBL.—Obbligato.
OP.—Opus.
OPP.—Oppure.
ORG.—Organ.
OTT., O^va. or 8^va.—Ottava.
PED.—Pedal.
PES.—Pesante.
pf.—Piu forte.
P. F. / PFTE. } Pianoforte.
PIZZ.—Pizzicato.
PO.—Poco.
pp, ppp.—Pianissimo.
RALL.—Rallentando.
RECIT.—Recitative.
rf., rfz., rinf.—Rinforzando.
R. F. { Right hand. / Rechte hand.
RIT. / RITARD. } Ritardando.
RITEN.—Retenuto.
SHERZ.—Scherzando.
SEG.—Segue.
SEM. or SEMP.—Sempre.
sf., sfz., sff., sffz.—Sforzando.
SIM.—Simile.

FF. or FFF.—Fortissimo.
FL.—Flute.
FLAG.—Flageolet.
F. O. / F. ORG. } Full organ.
FP.—Forte piano.
FORZ. or FZ.—Forzando.
G. O. / G. ORG. } Great organ or Grand-orgue
GRAND.—Grandioso.
GRAZ.—Grazioso.
GT.—Great organ.
HAUT. or HTB.—Hautbois.
HR. or HRN.—Horner.
INCALZ.—Incalzando.
INTROD.—Introduction.
LEG.—Legato.
LEGG.—Leggero, Leggiero.
L. H. { Left hand. / Linke hand.
MAEST°.—Maestoso.
SMORZ.—Smorzando.
